PREFACE.

The utility of a parallel code is so well recognised that no apology is needed for bringing out one, at this transition stage, in regard to the Indian Income-tax Act. The recent Amendment Act occupies considerable space even in bulk and in its scope and effect may be considered to mark a definite epoch in the history of fiscal legislation in this country. It is unique in this that it is the result largely of co-operation and compromise between the Government and the leading parties of the opposition.

The purpose of the new Legislation is to bring in more revenue by enlarging the scope and area of taxation and by putting effective stop to fraudulent evasion and legal avoidance. The Legislation is intended to secure an equitable and more effective administration of the Act.

Our aim is to focus attention on the sections themselves and we have given in the notes extracts from the Objects and Reasons accompanying the Bill and the Select Committee Report as well as extracts from the speeches in the Assembly and the Council of State which elucidate clearly the scope and intention of the changes. This will, we hope, help towards a clearer understanding of the sections themselves.

Mr. M. Subbaraya Aiyar has kindly written an Introduction. We take this opportunity of expressing our gratitude to him.

The Amendment Act consists of two parts. Part I takes effect from 1—4—1939 and is incorporated in the Act itself. Part II brings into existence the Appellate Tribunal and will take effect at a date not later than two years from 1—4—1939. Part II is printed separately at the end of the Act, as Appendix A, and also at the foot of each section to which it relates.

The Act is printed in parallel columns the Old Act on the left-half and the Act as amended on the right-half, the amendments and the additions being printed in italics. Asterisks denote omissions. The unamended portions are printed throughout the page.

We have added by way of Appendix, the Finance Act and the rates in force for income-tax and super-tax for 1938-39 and the Finance Act and rates for 1939-40 and other useful Acts and Orders. The new Rules containing the new return forms and rules governing registration of firms etc., will also be found in the Appendices.

These we believe will be very helpful. An index has also been added which it is hoped will be of considerable assistance.

Our thanks are due to the Madras Law Journal Press for their quick and neat execution.

INTRODUCTION.

The need for the publication of a parallel Code of the Income-tax Act containing the old and new sections side by side requires little explanation.

The changes made in the law by the provisions of the Amending Act are varied and some of them very startling. Onerous statutory obligations are laid on the assessee even in submitting the returns which have to be sent hereafter without being called upon to do so. A perusal of the Statutory Form of Return at the end of the book will make it clear how necessary it is for every tax-payer to know the essential requirements regarding the details he has to furnish. The changes proposed by the Income-tax Enquiry Committee Report and the clauses in the Bill originally introduced were so complex that the public mind was considerably agitated over the legislation. For the purpose of an accurate understanding of the New Act and the implications of its provisions, my friends Messrs. T. V. Viswanatha Aiyar and S. Krishnamurthi prepared, mainly for their own study, in parallel columns the sections in Act XI of 1922 and the clauses in the Amending Bill with modifications therein from stage to stage, and the results of their labour in this direction were of considerable use to me.

In view of the great changes in the state of the law which every tax-payer has to know, I felt it would be a public service if they took the trouble of getting out a parallel code so as to point out the changes in a prominent manner and bring out a publication which would be of use not merely to the tax-payers but also to lawyers and laymen who have to deal with Income-tax cases either before the Officers of the Income-tax Department or before the High Courts. Select extracts and speeches during the passage of the Bill in the Legislature are given in the shape of foot-notes so as to be of help in tracing the scope of the changes.

In response to a request from the publishers that some immediate guidance may be given as to the changes made which may be available to tax-payers in preparing their first Income-tax returns and to others interested in the administration of Income-tax, I have given below an idea of the main provisions of the Amending Act.

The New Act is called an Amending Act but there is hardly any section of importance in the Act which is left untouched. Some sections which have been substituted in the place of the existing ones and others which have been newly introduced have radically altered the existing law and after incorporating the present amendments, one will find that he has got practically a new Act. In the Act before the amendment there were 96 sections comprising the original sections and the additions under various Amendment Acts. As many as 65 out of the 96 sections have been amended, 6 sections completely substituted, 5 sections omitted and 14 newly added. Complications of interpretation are inevitable and the help of professional men would be more constantly required under the new enactment than under the old.

The Act is frankly designed to bring in more revenue to the Exchequer by closing all existing defects or loopholes in the Act leaving no chance for tax dodgers being left free and by extending the scope of taxation by bringing into the net fresh items of income. The administrative machinery has been strengthened and improved so as more effectively to deal with evasion of tax. It has been claimed by the framers of the Act that there has been no fundamental alterations but on a perusal of the provisions one feels that there have been sudden and abrupt variations of the principles of taxation.

The assessment of foreign income has been the most contentious and complicated item of discussion in the Assembly. Indeed at one stage, it appeared that the Bill would not be proceeded with. But Sir James Grigg skilfully avoided such an ending and with the co-operation of the Congress Party and the Muslim League, a compromise formula was adopted and passed by the Assembly under which foreign income is made assessable on an accrual basis despite its non-receipt in British India.

The main changes and the new provisions of the Amending Act are best considered under distinct headings.

- I. Compulsory returns.
- II. Return of information and furnishing particulars.
- III. Basis of assessment.
  - (a) Resident and ordinarily resident.
  - (b) Resident but not ordinarily resident.

- IV. Special provisions against avoidance of tax.
  - (a) Limited companies and accumulated profits.
  - (b) Transfer of assets abroad.
  - (c) Transactions in Securities and sales cum dividend.
  - (d) Settlements and Trusts.
  - (e) Dividends.
- V. Change from the step system to the slab system.
- VI. Salaries.
- VII. Firms registered and unregistered.
- VIII. Assessments of Insurance Companies.
- IX. Right to carry forward losses.

- XII. Deduction of tax at source.
- XIII. Making of additional assessments and re-opening of assessments.
- XIV. Assessments, Appeals and Administrative Machinery.
- XV. Amounts hitherto not assessable now made assessable.

I. Compulsory Returns of Income.

A system of compulsory returns has been introduced in S. 22 as in the United Kingdom. The issue of a notice calling for a return of income is made optional. Each person whose total income exceeds the taxable limit must voluntarily send a return of income within 60 days of the income-tax authorities giving notice by publication in the press and an assessee may apply and obtain extension of time for the delivery of the return. Hitherto there was no pecuniary penalty leviable by an Income-tax Officer for non-submission of a return but only a prosecution before a Magistrate under S. 51 of the Act. Now, pecuniary sanction by way of imposition of penalty by the Income-tax Officer himself for non-submission of returns is provided for. The penalty for non-submission of a return is up to a limit of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  times the tax levied, while the penalty for non-production of evidence after submission of a return is less, that is, up to a limit of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  times the difference between the tax leviable on the returned income and the income assessed. But in the case of a person whose total income is less than Rs. 3,500 or in the case of an agent of a non-resident, no penalty can be levied for non-submission of return unless a notice calling for a return of income is served on him. If a person who has failed to submit a return even after being served with an individual notice calling for the return of income proves that he had no assessable income, a nominal penalty is leviable up to a maximum of Rs. 25.

II. Return of information and furnishing particulars.

(i) Hitherto persons who pay interest of Rs. 1,000 and above had voluntarily to furnish a return of the names and addresses of all persons to whom such interest was paid and now the limit has been reduced to Rs. 400.

(ii) Every person engaged in any business, profession or vocation should furnish along with his return of income full particulars of location and style of principal place, branches, names, addresses and shares of partners.

(iii) The assessee, when required, has to furnish a statement of persons to whom rent, interest, commission, royalty or brokerage, etc., amounting to more than Rs. 400 is paid in any year.

(iv) The officer may require any person to furnish particulars of all securities of which he was the owner during the period specified in the notice for the purpose of discovering whether through any transaction or dealings in the securities, he has evaded payment of proper tax. Failure to give such information entails a very heavy penalty.

(v) The trustees of approved superannuation funds and employers who contribute to approved superannuation funds have, when required, to furnish particulars of contributions, the names and addresses of every person in receipt of annuity, the amount of the annuity payable to each annuitant, contributions returned to the employer or employees and sums paid in commutation or in lieu of annuities.

(vi) Where an employer pays emoluments to employee or makes on his behalf any contributions to an approved superannuation fund he shall include all such payments and contributions in the annual return under S. 21.

III. Basis of assessment

The new Act makes a differentiation between classes of residence—resident and ordinarily resident, and resident but not ordinarily resident—as affecting taxability. The basis of liability to tax differs according to whether the tax-payer is or is not ordinarily resident.

Persons who are resident in British India and also ordinarily resident have to pay tax in respect of Indian as well as foreign income, i.e., on (a) income accruing or arising in British India, (b) on hitherto unassessed foreign income from 1st April, 1933, brought into British India, and (c) each year's foreign income accruing from 1st April, 1938—a sum up to Rs. 4,500 in this category is not taxable in that year if it is not brought into British India. But even here the same will be liable to be taxed in later years as and when it is brought into British India. Persons who are “resident” but are “not ordinarily resident” in British India have to pay tax (a) on all income accruing or arising in British India, (b) on foreign income brought into or received in British India, and (c) on all income accruing or arising out of a business controlled in or a profession or vocation set up in India (including Indian States) whether brought into British India or not. It will thus be seen that the difference in the basis of taxation between the above two classes of residents is that while the person who is resident and ordinarily resident in British India pays tax each year on all his income, British Indian and foreign, on the accrual basis (“total world income”), the person who is resident but not ordinarily resident does not pay tax (a) in respect of income accruing or arising outside British India from a business not controlled in or a profession or vocation not set up in India and (b) in respect of income accruing or arising otherwise than from a business controlled in or a profession or vocation exercised in India. Nevertheless, such income is liable to be taxed in his hands as and when the same is brought into British India. In the case of persons who are not resident in British India, the tax is payable only in respect of income accruing or arising or deemed to accrue or arise in British India. Residence is an attribute which an individual acquires according to the circumstances of his life in each year in question and the tax-payer’s chargeability in each assessment year constitutes a separate issue. The question of residence in any particular case can only be determined by reference to the facts of the case each year though the facts applicable to several years may become necessary to be found in one continuous story.

S. 4-A enacts a set of rules in order that a person may know with as much accuracy as possible, what degree of residence will subject him to liability to tax in India.

The definition of residence is in substance as follows:—

To be a resident in the account year, i.e., the previous year to the year of assessment an individual must have been (a) in British India for half the number of days in the year (to be correct 182 days) or (b) must have maintained a dwelling house in British India and must have visited British India at least once during the year no matter for how short a period even it be a single day or (c) must have been in British India for periods amounting to a year during the preceeding four years and must have visited British India during the year otherwise than on an occasional or casual visit. If an individual does not visit this country at all during any year though he has a dwelling house available for him, he is not to be regarded as resident. An individual is “not ordinarily resident” if he is not resident in British India in nine out of the ten preceding years or if he has not during the seven preceding years been in British India for a total period of two years.

A company is deemed to be resident in British India if it is wholly controlled in British India or if more than half its entire income arises in British India. The distinguishing features of an individual person’s residence are almost completely absent in the case of a body corporate. A company cannot normally have a residence that is other than ordinary although that residence may be one of several. Therefore if a company is resident it is treated as ordinarily resident as well. Thus there is no distinction between residence and ordinary residence in the case of a company. So in the case of a company, if it is controlled wholly in British India or its income arising in British India is more than half its total world income, then it is taxable on all its world income.

A Hindu undivided family is resident unless the control and management of its affairs is wholly outside British India and is deemed to be ordinarily resident only if its manager is ordinarily resident in British India.

In the case of firms or other association of persons, they are resident and ordinarily resident if they are not wholly controlled or managed outside British India.

The rate of tax applicable to residents and non-residents is different. The resident is assessed on the rate applicable to his income. A distinction is also made among the non-residents between British subjects and non-British subjects. A non-resident who is a British subject or a subject of a State in India or Burma pays income-tax and super-tax on his total income at the average rate applicable to his total world income. This class of non-residents will not have to pay tax on British Indian income if there is a world loss,—which was not the case before the Amendment. A non-resident who is not a British subject pays income-tax at the maximum rate on his total income and super-tax at the average rate applicable to his total world income.

No provision has been introduced here as in U.S.A. to compel non-residents to satisfy the Government, before they leave this country, that they have paid all tax due in respect of income earned here though there is however a provision regarding foreign ships which are not allowed to leave a British Indian port without a clearance certificate that tax has been duly paid.

IV. Special provisions against avoidance.

The rising burden of income-tax and super-tax has brought about many methods of avoidance of this liability very largely through the media of company formation and transfer of assets to others both in and out of British India and making settlements of income or properties. When super-tax was first imposed in 1917, the maximum rate for income-tax was 1 anna in the Rupee and for super-tax 3 annas in the Rupee. The first Rs. 50,000 was exempt from super-tax. Rates have since been increased. The maximum income-tax rate together with surcharge hitherto was 28 1/6th pies in the Rupee and for super-tax 6 annas 9 1/2 pies in the Rupee. The exemption limit was later lowered to Rs. 30,000 from Rs. 50,000. Individuals having substantial incomes thus had to pay heavy sums by way of tax, and therefore there was the incentive to minimise income-tax and super-tax burden to the lowest possible limits.

As the machinery of avoidance was very widely adopted in relation to the following matters, the Government felt its duty to close up all material loopholes by enacting certain provisions restricting legal methods in regard to :

- (a) Limited companies and accumulated profits.
- (b) Transfer of assets abroad.
- (c) Transactions in securities and sales cum dividend.
- (d) Settlements and Trusts.
- (e) Dividends.

(a) Limited companies and accumulated profits.

A most convenient method of avoidance was to form companies in and out of British India transferring assets to them so that the income (British Indian and foreign) accruing to the companies and accumulated in the companies' hands may avoid taxation either by not distributing dividends or by distributing income in the shape of capital. The issue of income in the form of shares instead of dividends by the retention of the company's income with the company itself was held to be capital receipt and this principle was applied even to cases of issue of debentures by the company. As the machinery of companies was successfully employed for legitimate tax avoidance and it began to be widely adopted, the Legislature attempted to dam the leakage by enacting S. 23-A of the Act.

The several requisites necessary to set in motion S. 23-A machinery led to great uncertainties and possibilities of challenge varying with types of businesses and the Crown had also to prove that the avoidance was with an intention to evade payment of tax before a direction could be made under the section. The section was applied only in two cases and it could not be made use of in other cases.

S. 23-A is now made applicable to all companies in which the public is not substantially interested, and not merely to companies which are under the control of not more than 5 persons. The section says that where the profits and gains distributed as dividends by a company up to the end of the sixth month after its accounts for the previous year are laid before the company in the General Meeting together with the income-tax payable thereon is less than 60 per cent. of the assessable income of the company of the previous year, the Income-tax Officer shall, unless he is satisfied that having regard to losses incurred in earlier years or to the smallness of the profits made, the payment of dividend or a larger dividend would be unreasonable, make an order that the assessable income shall be deemed to have been distributed as dividend among the shareholders and included in the shareholders' total income. Where the accumulated undistributed profits exceed the value of the fixed assets or the paid-up capital together with any loan capital belonging to shareholders' 100 per cent. is substituted for 60 per cent. A further provision is also made to make allowance for a possible case of error in which though if 60 per cent. of the assessable income of the company has not been actually distributed, an amount not less than 55 per cent. has been distributed and the company is given a chance to distribute the balance of 5 per cent. also and thus avoid S. 23-A proceedings.

The proviso has also been altered so as not to apply the section to subsidiary companies of a company in which the public are substantially interested if the whole of the share capital of such subsidiary company is held by the parent company or by the nominees thereof. Further consequential amendments have been made to the section and it is also made clear that where a company is a shareholder of a company to which the section applies the amount of the dividend deemed to have been paid to the shareholder company shall be deemed to be part of its total income for the purpose of application of the section to distribution of profits by the shareholder company. The tax due by the shareholder is now to be recovered from the company, only if it cannot be recovered from the shareholder. The previous approval of the Inspecting Assistant Commissioner is also necessary before an order is passed by the Income-tax Officer.

S. 33-A of the Act which provided an appeal from a decision of the Income-tax Officer under S. 23-A to a Board of Referees has now been omitted and an appeal is provided to the Appellate Assistant Commissioner under S. 30.

The amended section relieves the Income-tax Officer of the duty of determining whether the profits and gains are allowed to accumulate beyond its reasonable needs, existing and contingent, having regard to the maintenance and development of its business and an enquiry as to whether there was an intention to evade payment of super-tax by the members.

(b) Transfer of assets abroad.

The new S. 44-D has been enacted to bring into the net of taxation persons who with a view to avoid tax transfer their assets abroad to persons or to companies incorporated outside British India.

These are cases where by a transfer of assets and by a series of transactions, income is paid or becomes payable to a person 'not resident' or to a person 'resident but not ordinarily resident', but the person who so transfers is really in control of and in some cases in enjoyment of the income of such other person. This provision is analogous to cases of settlement of income on others while in fact the settlor has power over or is in enjoyment of the income.

This section will not apply to any individual who shows to the satisfaction of the Officer either that (1) avoiding liability to taxation was not the purpose or one of the purposes, for which the transfer or associated operation or any of them were effected or (2) that the transfer or any associated operations were bona fide commercial transactions and were not designed for the purpose of avoiding liability to taxation.

(c) Transactions in securities and sales cum dividend.

Under sub-Ss. (1) and (2) of S. 44-E it is provided that if an owner sells or transfers securities, stocks or shares and by the agreement of sale or by any collateral agreement buys back or re-acquires the securities, stocks or shares any interest or dividend thereon which as a result of the transaction becomes receivable by any other person is to be deemed to be the income of the original seller for all the purposes of the Act, that is, income-tax and super-tax.

Under sub-sections (3) and (4) it is provided that where any person carrying on business which consists wholly or partly in dealing in securities, stocks and shares buys or acquires securities, etc., and under the agreement for purchase or collateral agreement sells back or re-transfers the securities, etc., and the result of the transactions is that interest is receivable by him, no account shall be taken of the transaction in computing his profits or loss in business.

The scope for avoidance referred to above was due to the legal position that interest on securities and dividends did not accrue day to day but were receivable only on the day the holder is entitled to draw them.

This provision has been introduced as it was found that several lakhs of rupees per annum representing tax on interest on securities, etc., were being refunded as a result of owners of securities, etc., arranging with a person not liable to income-tax or liable to a lower rate of tax to sell or transfer those securities to him shortly before interest or dividend becomes due, and to buy back or get a retransfer after interest or dividend is paid.

The original seller receives interest or dividend in the form of price that is capital appreciation not chargeable with super-tax, and where the purchase is made by a person whose business is to buy and sell securities, and he resells shortly after the payment of interest or dividend, loss in the transaction is allowable to him and could be set off against other income received by him.

S. 44-F deals with a case of an individual escaping income-tax or super-tax by selling his securities in the market and rebuying after the due date for payment of interest.

(d) Settlements and trusts.

A variation in the ordinary Law of Trusts is introduced in S. 16 of the Act to cover certain cases of evasion of income-tax. In England the Law of Trusts was utilised as a device to evade tax and special provisions were made. The various Finance Acts and Part 4 of the English Finance Act of 1938 contains a fasciculus of sections designed to deal with such cases. Similar provisions are also enacted under the Indian Amending Act to deal with income transferred by way of settlements or dispositions or revocable transfer of assets with a view either to evade tax or to make the tax payable at lesser rates. The section deals with those classes of cases in which provision is made for the retransfer directly or indirectly of the income or assets to the transferor or settlor or in any way gives him the right to reassume power directly or indirectly over the income or the assets. Sums payable under such settlements or dispositions are to be included in the income of the settlor. But where the settlement is not revocable for a period of six years or for the lifetime of the beneficiary, the case is outside the pale of the Act and is not taxable in the hands of the settlor. But even here once the power to revoke arises, the Act applies.

The section applies even to transactions before the Amending Act and to all cases of Trusts or Settlements, however bona fide they may be, which come under the provisions of the Act. In effect those dispositions or transfers to which the section applies are to be regarded as having been made with a view to evasion of income-tax.

The conditions obtaining in India do not lend scope to the wide use of the Law of Trusts for avoiding taxation, and Trusts are usually effected in this country to provide maintenance for dependant relatives and members of one's family, the corpus reverting to the settlor when the purpose of the Trust is served.

In the present provisions, the maxim that the way in which one's income is applied cannot affect the liability to tax of the person to whom the income arises is applied. In other words the arrangement is treated as a method of utilisation of or an expenditure out of one's income and should be regarded to be on the same footing as items of expenditure which are not allowable deductions under the Act. Tax-payers are thus liable to pay tax upon items of income which they cannot themselves enjoy.

Under the old Act, trustees or guardians for several beneficiaries are treated as an Association of Persons and single assessments on income belonging to several beneficiaries or wards were made in the hands of the trustee or guardian. This has been rectified in the Amending Act by making the assessments on trustees at rates applicable to the income of each beneficiary, the trustee being assessed only as the agent of each beneficiary. The tax to be paid by the trustee is analogous to that of an employer paying the tax due by the employee on salaries.

One of the usual methods adopted to avoid super-tax which would otherwise be payable by shareholders was to distribute profits in the form of capital receipts like bonus shares, bonus debentures, etc., which under the law as it stood was not income in the hands of the shareholders and hence not liable to tax.

“Dividend” has now been defined to include thereunder the distribution of capitalised profits which entails release by the company to the shareholders of any assets of the company and debenture-issues out of the accumulated income. The new definition covers the case where a company goes into liquidation and distributes the accumulated profits which arose during the 6 previous years preceding the date of liquidation and also includes any distribution by a company on the reduction of its capital to the extent to which the company possessed accumulated profits which arose after the end of the previous year ending next before first day of April, 1933. The “dividend” as now defined is included in the definition of income. The definition is aimed more at shareholders of companies formed for the purpose of reducing tax payable by individual shareholders than at companies carrying on legitimate business. It does not include any distribution by way of bonus shares as it does not entail release of any assets by the company but only means the user of such assets in the company itself by way of increase of capital.

Under Explanation (3) to S. 4 (1) a ‘dividend’ paid without British India is now to be deemed income accruing or arising in British India to the extent to which it has been paid out of profits subjected to income-tax in British India.

Until now under S. 14 ‘dividend’ received by a shareholder was exempt from taxation to income-tax in his hands. This exemption proceeded on the idea that for revenue purposes a joint stock company should be treated as a large partnership, so that the payments of income-tax by the company would discharge the quasi-partners. The consequence of this legislative outlook was that a “dividend” was really a division of profits and when a payment is made to shareholders it is a mere distribution for which the shareholders incurred no liability. The new Act has deleted ‘dividends’ from S. 14 and dividends will no longer be exempt from taxation.

As a corollary, by a new S. 49-B, payment of income-tax by a company is deemed payment by a shareholder on so much of the dividend as the amount of income on which the company has paid income-tax bears to the whole income of the company.

By amendment to S. 18, ‘dividend’ is placed on the same footing as interest on securities and credit is to be given in the assessment of the shareholder for the appropriate amount of tax.

The effect of the above provisions of the Amendment Act is that shareholders are now made liable to be taxed even in respect of income which was exempt in the hands of the company.

V. Change from the step system to slab system

Another great change in the system of taxation in the Amending Act is the introduction of the slab system. Under this system, every slice of income is taxed at a particular rate. The rate on higher incomes increases as the income increases. Progressive rates are applied to successive slices of income as is already the case in respect of super-tax. There are no sudden jumps, as in the step system, as the income increases. It was stated by the Finance Member that under this system on the basis on the standard rate suggested by the Income-tax Enquiry Committee which has now been adopted, all persons getting incomes of Rs. 8,000 and under will pay less than the present tax, while of the persons getting incomes between Rs. 8,000 and Rs. 24,000, some will pay less and some more and all persons getting incomes or over Rs. 24,000 will decidedly pay more as tax. The introduction of this system has also necessitated the insertion of a clause providing for the calculation of tax in cases where out of the total income, certain sums are exempted from payment of tax, namely, life insurance premia, etc. In such cases the tax shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of income-tax excluding super-tax which would have been payable on the total income had no part of it been exempted, the same proportion as the unexempted portion of the total income bears to the total income.

VI. Salaries

Under the Act as it stood income under the head salaries was taxable only on payment and receipt. Tax was being postponed or evaded by postponing the receipt of salary or by taking advances or loans.

The Act has now been amended to cure these defects so as to make sums due under that head liable on the date when they are due whether paid or not, and advances by way of loans or otherwise of income are hereafter deemed salary due on the date they are received.

But to safeguard against possible hardships to the employees due to the insolvency of the employer or other causes, the employee cannot be called upon to pay the tax himself unless he has received the salary without such deduction.

The Privy Council in Commissioner of Income-tax, Bengal v. Shaw, Wallace & Co., (1932) 63 M.L.J. 124=L.R. 59 I.A. 206=I.L.R. 59 Cal. 1343 (P.C.), held that capital sums received as a sort of solatium for compulsory cessation of business or in commutation of pension, or as a consolidated compensation for death or injuries or in payment of insurance policy or as the accumulated balance from a Government Provident Fund, cannot in any scheme of taxation be regarded as income. Income has now been defined in the Act as including a profit received in lieu of salary as provided in explanation (ii) to sub-S. (1) of S. 7. This explanation says that a payment due to or received by an employee from an employer or from his Provident Fund at or in connection with the termination of his employment (not including his own contribution) is to be deemed salary provided it is a payment not made for loss of office but by way of remuneration for past services. The result of this is to nullify the effect of the Privy Council decision to the extent stated.

Exception is however made in favour of payment made out of recognised provident funds and approved superannuation funds.

Changes have also been made in regard to deduction of tax at source. Hereafter not only income-tax but super-tax should be deducted at source and provision has also been made to deduct income-tax and super-tax at specified rates in respect of salaries paid to non-residents.

By Explanation (2) to S. 4 (1) all income which would be chargeable under the head salaries if payable in British India and not being pension payable without British India, is deemed to accrue or arise in British India wherever paid if it is earned in British India.

The Legislature is able to deal with such cases by deeming it income accruing or arising in British India and securing the tax thereon by providing for deduction of tax at source.

For example if a person entered into a contract of service with his employer in British India and was appointed as a travelling representative outside British India, he will be liable to tax on his salary even though his salary was payable, under the contract, outside British India.

VII. Firms—Registered and unregistered

The position of Registered and Unregistered Firms has been fundamentally modified. No tax is levied on a Registered Firm but a computation of the income and profits of the firm is made. The share in the profits of the firm of each individual partner is directly assessed on him along with his other income. If there be loss in the registered firm the share of loss of each partner could be set-off against his other income and where it could not be wholly set off the portion not set-off can be carried forward to the following year up to a period of six years, the first of the six years commencing from April, 1939. But such carrying forward of losses is permitted to be set-off only against the profits of the same business, profession or vocation. An unregistered firm is assessed to tax and if loss is incurred by an unregistered firm it could only be set-off against other income if any of the firm itself and not against the income, profits and gains of any of the partners of the firm. But if the unregistered firm is treated as a registered firm by the Officer of his own motion in circumstances set out below the benefits accruing to partners of a registered firm equally apply to the partners of the unregistered firm. Another new feature introduced in regard to an unregistered firm is that if the aggregate amount of tax including super-tax payable by the partners if assessed in the manner laid down for registered firm would be greater than the total tax payable by the firm if assessed as an unregistered firm, the Officer is empowered to place the unregistered firm in the position of a registered firm. In other words if the partners of an unregistered firm would pay less tax than if the firm had been treated as a registered firm, the Officer can of his own motion act as if the firm got itself registered.

VIII. Assessment of Insurance Companies

The method of assessment now adopted has been changed which gives considerable relief to the companies. Hitherto an Insurance Company was assessed on the surplus between the assets and the annual valuation of liabilities without taking into consideration the sum re-distributed among the policy holders in the shape of bonus.

Under the Amending Act, the Department has two methods of computation to choose from, either the income on investments less expenses, or the alternative basis of the surplus as hitherto, allowing for a moiety of the bonus paid to the policy-holders which is really to a certain extent their own premia collected in excess. What was not wholly income was being taxed hitherto by adopting the method based on the actuarial surplus. But this has been remedied now by adopting a more accurate method of computation either on the basis of actuarial surplus or the basis of income less expenses whichever is the greater.

IX. Carrying forward losses

Another of the important changes effected in the Act is that an assessee is permitted to carry forward the losses incurred by him in one business and have it set off against his income from the same business in the succeeding years up to a period of six years. But during the transition stage, such carrying forward is restricted. The losses incurred in the account years 1938-39 to 1942-43 can be so carried forward only to one, two, three, four and five years respectively. This carrying forward of losses is apart from the other provision by which a loss incurred by a person in any year under any head can be set off against his income, profits and gains under the other heads in the same year. But the carrying forward of loss for setting off can only be against the subsequent income from the same business. If a business which has suffered loss is discontinued, such loss cannot be set-off in the succeeding years since that business no longer exists to yield income and such loss would become a capital loss. Such carrying forward is also not permitted if there is a change in the constitution of a firm or if a person is succeeded by another person except by way of inheritance, as the object is to confer the privilege to the particular persons incurring the loss. A person who is a partner in a registered firm can have his share of loss incurred in a year set-off against his other income in the same year and can also carry forward the loss or the balance of loss and set it off against his share of income from the same business in the subsequent years. Where a person is a partner in an unregistered firm and the unregistered firm sustains a loss in any year, his share cannot be set off against his other income even in the same year. The loss can be set-off only against the profits and gains of the unregistered firm in the succeeding years. Where an unregistered firm is treated and assessed by the Income-tax Officer as a registered firm, then the provisions in respect of a registered firm also apply to such a firm.

X. Depreciation Allowance on Buildings, Machinery and Plant

The present method of granting allowances for depreciation is the straight method of allowing particular percentages on the original cost till the original cost is exhausted. In modification of the present straight method, the written down method, that is, allowance on the written down value of such machinery, etc., each year has been introduced. The written down value has to be arrived at or calculated every year. Where the assets are acquired or purchased in the year of account, the written down value will be the actual price paid by the assessee for such machinery or plant. Where the assets are acquired before the account year but after the commencement of the Amendment Act, the written down value would be the actual price paid by the assessee for such plant or machinery less all depreciation allowance to the assessee for every year after purchase till the account year on such plant or machinery. Where the assets have been acquired or purchased before the commencement of the Amendment Act, the written down value will be the actual cost of such machinery or plant less for each financial year since acquisition the amount of depreciation applicable to the assets at the rates in force for each such year since 1st April, 1922, and at the rates in force on 1st April, 1922, for each such year prior to that date. This change does not come into force till 1-4-1940.

Allowance on the basis of the written down value each year necessitates special income-tax treatment of such assets involving the maintenance of a new set of books for all machinery, etc., for purposes of income-tax, so as to display the wear and tear attributed to each unit in order. This will facilitate the claim for obsolescence and will avoid difficulties though it involves time and trouble to assesseees who have to claim depreciation. Valuation of such assets by deducting depreciation for domestic or commercial purposes and the keeping of reserves, etc., has necessarily to be on different principles.

XI. Allowance for Life Insurance Premia

Hitherto relief was given from the tax payable on the income of any person in respect of premiums paid for insurance on his own life or on the life of his wife or for any deferred annuity on his or his wife's life the relief being subject to the restriction that the total amount of premiums on which relief is given is not to exceed 1/6th of the total income of the assessee.

Under the Amending Act while retaining the limit of 1/6th of the total income, the maximum is fixed at Rs. 6,000 in the case of an individual assessee and at Rs. 12,000 in the aggregate for a joint Hindu family. This provision prevents richer assesseees from claiming sums in excess of Rs. 6,000 or Rs. 12,000 as the case may be. Another change introduced in the Amending Act is that the wife in her assessment is enabled to claim relief for the premium paid by her on the life of her husband. It may be remembered in this connection that in England the life assurance allowance is granted only if the insurance, etc., is with a company legally established in the United Kingdom or British Possessions or with any company lawfully carrying on business in the United Kingdom. No such restriction is introduced in the Indian enactment.

XII. Deductions of Tax at source

The Revenue employs the system of deducting tax at source immediately the income arises, for facility, certainty, early collection and in several cases automatic elimination of tax evasion. This system was hitherto adopted in respect of (i) Income-tax on Salaries (S. 7), (ii) Income-tax on Interest on Securities (S. 8), (iii) both Income-tax and super-tax on interest (not being interest on securities) paid to a non-resident under the circumstances stated in S. 18 (3-A) and (3-B), (iv) Super-tax on dividends paid to a non-resident S. 18 (3-C) and (3-D), and (v) payment of accumulations in recognised Provident Fund (58-H).

There was no provision for deducting super-tax in respect of salaries or any tax on salaries paid to non-residents and these have now been remedied by amendments to S. 18.

Sub-S. (2) of S. 18 has been amended so as to provide for deduction at source of super-tax also on "salaries" and not merely income-tax as hitherto-fore, and the rate at which deduction has to be made is the average of the rates applicable to the estimated total income of the assessee under the head "Salaries". The new sub-S. (2-B) directs that if any salary is paid to a person not resident in British India, income-tax at the maximum rate and super-tax at the rates applicable to the estimated income should be deducted.

The new sub-S. (3-A) provides that any person paying to a non-resident any interest not being interest on securities or any other sum chargeable under the Act, shall deduct income-tax thereon at the maximum rate unless he himself is liable to pay tax thereon as agent.

Consequential amendments are also made in the section.

Sub-S. (5) has been amended to include income-tax on a dividend as a sum for which credit is to be given to a shareholder in his assessment.

This amendment puts dividends on the same footing as securities and credit for the appropriate amount of tax on it will be given in the shareholder's assessment.

As a corollary, by a new S. 49-B, payment of income-tax by a company is deemed payment by a shareholder on so much of the dividend as the amount of income on which the company has paid income-tax bears to the whole income of the company.

By Chapter IX-B special provisions are made in regard to certain classes of superannuation funds and the new S. 58-S (2) provides that the Trustees of the superannuation fund should deduct income and super-tax at the average rate of tax during the preceding three years in cases where contributions are repaid to an employee during his lifetime but not at or in connection with the termination of his employment. This does not apply to persons whose employment was carried on abroad. This principle of deduction of tax at source entails the necessity of repayment claims in cases where the receipt of this income is not liable to be assessed or is to be assessed at lower rates.

XIII. Making of Additional Assessments and Reopening of Assessments.

Hitherto the Income-tax Officer could assess only for one previous year on the ground of escape of assessment either wholly or partially. This power should be exercised within one year from the end of the year in which the income should be taxed. Under the Amending Act, the Income-tax Officer can go back further and reopen a completed assessment or make fresh assessment where no assessment had been made up to a period of four years where there is a bona fide error on assessee's part in not returning the income in full. But where the Income-tax Officer has reason to believe that the under-assessment was due to the fact that the assessee concealed particulars of his income or deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars, such power to reopen can be exercised for a period of eight years. A difference is thus made between a genuine mistake and deliberate mistake to defraud revenue. This power can also be invoked in a case where excessive relief has been granted. But in practice, this difference will not be made in a majority of cases as every assessee must be aware of his income and know the law and must take the consequence of not disclosing all his income. Thus every tax-payer coming into the net is provided for and power is taken to deal with obstruction and dishonesty. An exception has been made in the case of a person who has been assessed as the agent of a non-resident under S. 43 where a fresh assessment could be made only within one year from the end of that year. Lest the Act should be deemed retrospective, provision is also made that in the case of assessments prior to the commencement of the Amendment Act, such back assessment can be made only within one year from the end of that year. What is required in all these cases is that action should be taken under S. 34 within the periods mentioned above and the fresh assessments may be completed later. To avoid assessments or re-assessments being kept pending for a long number of years it is stated that in all cases assessments or re-assessments should be completed and orders passed ordinarily within four years. But where the provisions of cl. (c) of sub-S. (1) of the penalty S. 28 applies, the same should be done within eight years. Since it is the Officer who is finally to decide whether the under-assessment was due to bona fide cause or due to the fraud of the assessee, every person should be prepared to submit returns, explain transactions and produce his accounts and evidence in support thereof up to a period of nine years from the date on which the transactions took place. This provision necessitates the preservation of all accounts, documents and correspondence and evidence for nearly a decade. In such back assessments after a long lapse of years, it is doubtful whether an assessee would be able to explain his accounts in the same manner in which he might be able to do it if he were called upon to do so earlier. By the operation of this section, if a fresh assessment is made, it could be only to the disadvantage of the assessee as the assessee is not given an opportunity to show that he is over-assessed and have the assessed income reduced.

In cases of succession, the successor cannot be assessed to such tax except for one year (S. 26). It is not clear whether this provision could be applied (a) to the case of a Hindu undivided family which becomes divided and ceases to be a joint family and (b) to the case of a company which is dissolved and the Officer finds that its income three or four years previously has been under-assessed.

In the case of assesseees who are not alive and who escaped assessment, no such limitation of one year is made. The law has been amended so as to render legal representatives of an estate liable in respect of income, profits and gains which ought to have been returned and which were not returned for the period of four years or eight years as stated above. Thus the estate is made liable to all penalties for fraud or negligence as the Act would have imposed upon the deceased tax-payer, if he had still been alive. In the past one assumed that back assessment cases concerned only the living and not the dead, and when the tax-payer died, liability to penalties for negligent or fraudulent returns died with him. With death duties on the horizon and imminent, on an investigation into the estate of deceased for death duty purposes, information leading to proceedings for penalties and back assessment can easily reach the Income-tax Officials. Figures may raise a prima facie case of fraud and the only person who could refute the implication may be the deceased. Fraud is both a state of mind and a question of fact and there will be great difficulty in explaining matters and the deceased if alive might have been able to give a perfectly correct explanation of what had taken place and to show that penalty provisions could not be applied. The object of these provisions is to raise the morale of the people.

It may be here pointed out that the English Statute (S. 29 of Finance Act, 1923) while extending the period of back assessments from 3 to 6 years, specifically provided that in the case of raising fresh or additional assessments on the estate of deceased persons, the three years rule shall be applicable.

It is significant to note that there is no complementary provision placing the Tax-payer and the Revenue on an equal footing, though a tax-payer may make an honest mistake and no retrospective right is conferred on him.

XIV. Assessment, Appeals and Administrative Machinery

Under the Act before the amendment, in cases where the Principal Officer of a company or any other person who is an assessee made defaults and failed to make a return or to comply with all the terms of a notice issued by the Officer requiring him to produce accounts or documents, the Income-tax Officer had power to make an assessment to the best of his judgment and also to cancel the registration of any firm. No appeal was provided against such estimated assessment and the only remedy which the assessee had was to apply to the Income-tax Officer himself under S. 27 and to get the assessment set aside on satisfying the Income-tax Officer that he was prevented by sufficient cause from making the return or complying with the terms of the notice issued. This led to a great hardship and assesseees were unable to fight the assessment on its merits. This has now been remedied by making such assessments also appealable in the regular manner similar to an appeal against an ex parte decree.

In effect it may be said that under the Amended Act all orders passed by the Income-tax Officer affecting the assessee are appealable and this is definitely of great importance. If however the appeal is against an order levying penalty for non-payment of the tax within the time allowed, the appeal will be entertained only if the tax has been paid.

The duties of the Assistant Commissioner have been separated and two categories of Assistant Commissioners have now been appointed, namely, Inspecting Assistant Commissioners and Appellate Assistant Commissioners, the former have nothing to do with the hearing of the appeals against orders of the Income-tax Officer which is solely entrusted to Appellate Assistant Commissioner. Though both categories of Assistant Commissioners are under the control and subject to the jurisdiction of the Central Board of Revenue, the Central Board of Revenue cannot interfere or give any instructions or orders so as to interfere with the discretion of the Appellate Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate jurisdiction. This division of functions is a salutary change. As the Appellate Assistant Commissioner performs more or less judicial functions it is now provided that the Income-tax Officer has the right to be represented before him at the hearing of an appeal against an order of the Income-tax Officer.

By far the most important change introduced by the Amending Act is the provision made for the introduction of a further appellate authority of an independent nature for the hearing of appeals from decisions of the Appellate Assistant Commissioners.

It is provided in Part II of the Amending Act that the Central Government shall appoint an Appellate Tribunal consisting of not more than 10 persons made up of an equal number of judicial members and accountant members.

The normal qualification for a judicial member is that required of a District Judge and the qualification for an Accountant Member is that of an Auditor who has practised for not less than six years. But the Central Government may appoint as an Accountant Member, a person who, though not possessing the qualifications aforesaid, by his other qualifications and adequate experience, is found suitable for appointment to the Tribunal.

Not less than two members are necessary to form a Bench and the number of Judicial or Accountant Members in a Bench should not exceed each other by more than one. The decision of the majority governs the case and in the case of a tie the matter is to be referred to the President of the Tribunal on stated points who refers it for the opinion of other member or members and the final decision is according to the majority opinion of all members who heard it. In order that both the department and the assessee may have sufficient time and opportunity to acquaint themselves and be prepared for the change, the Appellate Tribunal is not to take effect immediately but is to come into effect not later than two years from the commencement of the Amending Act. It is also provided that an assessee may appeal, or the Commissioner if he is not satisfied with the Appellate Assistant Commissioner's order may direct the Income-tax Officer to appeal, to the Appellate Tribunal against the order of the Appellate Assistant Commissioner under Ss. 28 or 31 and the appeal should be filed within 60 days of the service of notice of such order. The Appellate Tribunal is to decide the appeal after giving notice to both parties and its orders are final except in cases to which S. 66 applies (namely statement of case by the Appellate Tribunal to the High Court).

The present Ss. 32 and 33 dealing with appeals to the Commissioner against the order of the Assistant Commissioner and power of revision will not operate when the Appellate Tribunal as abovesaid is constituted. The Appellate Tribunal is given the power to regulate its own procedure to rectify any mistakes and to take evidence on oath, to call for evidence, production of documents, etc.

S. 66 as it stood is amended and it is provided that within 60 days from the service of the notice of order by the Appellate Tribunal, the Commissioner or the assessee as the case may be, may file an application (accompanied in the case of the assessee by a fee of Rs. 100) requiring the Tribunal to refer to the High Court any question of law arising out of the order of the Tribunal and the Appellate Tribunal is directed to draw up a statement of the case and refer it to the High Court but where the Tribunal refuses to state a case on the ground that no question of law arises, the aggrieved party is given the liberty to move the High Court within 6 months of the date of refusal to direct the Tribunal to state a case and refer it. If the Appellate Tribunal refuses to state a case on the ground that the application filed is out of time then also the aggrieved party has got the right to move the High Court within 60 days.

It will therefore be seen that two appellate authorities are provided for and there can be two appeals as of right in each case. The Appellate Tribunals are hereafter the ultimate judges of fact and not the Assistant Commissioner or the Commissioner and so far as a reference to the High Court is concerned both the Department and the assessee are placed on the same footing.

The appointment of an appellate tribunal can be said to be a most important provision in the Amending Act in favour of the assessee and goes a long way to remove the grievances and complaints made by the assessee hitherto that the scales had not been held even as between the tax-payer and the tax-gatherer.

Under S. 5 (2) of the Act provision has been made to enable the Government of India to appoint not more than three Commissioners of Income-tax without reference to area to work directly under the Central Board of Revenue.

The idea underlying this is to create a centralised or special staff to deal with special branches of work or matters of special difficulty or importance, e.g., companies, insurance, penalty, fraud, etc., and with a view to bring under one head assessment of persons who are assessed in different areas.

XV. Amounts hitherto not assessable now made assessable

This has been done by enlarging the area of taxation as in S. 4 or by extending the definition of income by deeming certain sums as income which were hitherto either held as capital sums or income not liable to tax.

Sums mentioned in the following sections which have been dealt with in detail above under different heads are now taxable as income. Ss. 2 (6) A, 4 (1) Explanation (2), 4 (1) Explanation (3), 4 (2), 16 (2), 16 (3), 42, 44-D, 44-E, 44-F.

Under S. 2 (6-C), (i) a profit received in lieu of salary; (ii) sums got in excess of written down value when plant or machinery is sold; (iii) mutual assurance profits; (iv) under cl. (xi) of S. 10 (2) the excess sum received over a sum written off as bad debt are deemed income under the new Act.

Explanation (3) to S. 4 (1) says a dividend paid without British India shall be deemed to be income accruing or arising in British India to the extent to which it has been paid out of profits subject to income-tax in British India. By an addition to S. 42 of the Act, interest from money lent abroad by a non-resident and brought into British India in cash or in kind (by the borrower) shall be deemed to be income accruing or arising within British India assessable either on the non-resident or his agent.

S. 60 of the Act gave power to the Governor-General to exempt particular classes of income from tax under which many items of income have been exempted by notification. This section has been modified in such a way that while taking away the scope of exercising the power of exemption hereafter, power is retained only for the purpose of revoking or modifying exemptions already given.

Under the Act the income from agricultural land in a Native State in India paying land revenue to the Indian State was exempt. But such agricultural income would be assessable under the Amendment Act. The land tax may be payable to the Native State Government and Income-tax to British Indian Government and there will be no relief against double tax in respect of such taxation. Income from agricultural lands in Burma will be assessable in British India on the accrual basis.

Part II deals with the Appellate Tribunal and comes into force from a date not later than two years from the date of coming into force of Part I to be notified by the Central Government. April 1st 1939, is appointed for Part I to take effect (except clauses (vi) and (vii) of sub-section (2) of section 10 which takes effect only on April, 1st 1940.) [Gazette of India 18th March, 1939].

ACT No. VII OF 1939.

An Act further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (17th March, 1939).

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for the purposes hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (i) This Act may be called the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939.

(ii) This section and Part I shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint, and Part II shall come into force on such subsequent date, not later than two years from the date appointed for the coming into force of Part I, as the Central Government may, in like manner, appoint:

Provided that sub-clauses (iii) and (iv) of clause (b) of section 11 shall not take effect earlier than the 1st day of April, 1940.

(1) "agricultural income" means—
 (a) any rent or revenue derived from land which is used for agricultural purposes, and is either assessed to land-revenue in British India or subject to a local rate assessed and collected by officers of the Crown as such;

(b) any income derived from such land by—
 (i) agriculture, or
 (ii) the performance by a cultivator or receiver of rent-in-kind of any process ordinarily employed by a cultivator or receiver of rent-in-kind to render the produce raised or received by him fit to be taken to market, or

(iii) the sale by a cultivator or receiver of rent-in-kind of the produce raised or received by him, in respect of which no process has been performed other than a process of the nature described in sub-clause (ii);

(c) any income derived from any building owned and occupied by the receiver of the rent or revenue of any such land, or occupied by the cultivator, or the receiver of rent-in-kind, of any land with respect to which, or the produce of which, any operation mentioned in sub-clauses (ii) and (iii) of clause (b) is carried on:

Provided that the building is on or in the immediate vicinity of the land, and is a building which the receiver of the rent or revenue or the cultivator or the receiver of the rent-in-kind by reason of his connection with the land, requires as a dwelling-house, or as a store-house, or other out-building;

(2) "assessee" means a person by whom Income-tax is payable;

OLD.
 (3) "Assistant Commissioner" means a person appointed to be an Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax under section 5;

NEW.
 (3) "Appellate Assistant Commissioner" means a person appointed to be an Appellate Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax under section 5;

(4) "business" includes any trade, commerce, or manufacture or any adventure or concern in the nature of trade, commerce or manufacture;

(4-A) "the Central Board of Revenue" means the Central Board of Revenue constituted under the Central Board of Revenue Act, 1924;

(5) "Commissioner" means a person appointed to be a Commissioner of Income-tax under section 5;

(6) "company" means a company as defined in the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or of Royal Charter or Letters Patent, or of an Act of the Legislature of a British possession, and includes any foreign association carrying on business in British India whether incorporated or not, and whether its principal place of business is situate in British India or not, which the Central Board of Revenue may, by general or special order, declare to be a company for the purposes of this Act;

NEW.

(6-A) "dividend" includes—

(a) any distribution by a company of accumulated profits, whether capitalised or not, if such distribution entails the release by the company to its share-holders of all or any part of the assets of the company;

(b) any distribution by a company of debentures or debenture-stock, to the extent to which the company possesses accumulated profits, whether capitalised or not;

(c) any distribution made to the shareholders of a company out of accumulated profits of the company on the liquidation of the company;

Provided that only the accumulated profits so distributed which arose during the six previous years of the company preceding the date of liquidation shall be so included; and

NOTES.

Section 2, sub-section (6-A)—a new provision—defines "dividend".

To prevent the avoidance of super-tax which would otherwise be payable by the shareholders by the device of distributing the profits in the form of bonus shares, bonus debentures or some other form which, as the law stands at present, are capital receipts and not income in the hands of the shareholders, dividend is defined in such a way that wherever the shareholders receive profits in any of such forms it can be treated as income for tax purposes. The definition also covers the case where a Company goes into liquidation and the accumulated profits are distributed by the liquidator to the former shareholders. Income is then defined in section 2, clause (6-C) to include any dividend as defined in section 2, clause (6-A), and also to include distributions from unrecognised Provident Funds. Objects and Reasons.

Section 2.—We have recast and expanded the definition of "dividend," primarily in order to ensure that no distribution falling under this head shall be taxed unless there is a release of assets. Under the amended definition, a debenture will, when issued be treated as a dividend but an ordinary bonus share will not be liable to taxation until it is actually paid off. The definition further secures that accumulated profits distributed on the liquidation of the company shall only be included in dividend for the purposes of taxation, if they arose within six years of the liquidation. Clause (d) of the revised definition provides for the case in which a company tries to disguise a distribution of profits as a reduction of capital. The words inserted in the new sub-clause (v) of clause (11) of section 2 of the Act by clause 2 (c) (iii) of the Bill merely makes a correction overlooked in the Bill, and necessary in view of the revised wording of section 10 of the Act Select Committee Report.

Section 2.—(6-A) 'dividend' as defined makes the decision of the Privy Council in Commissioner of Income-tax v. Mercantile Bank of India, (63 I.A. 457; 1937 (1) Cal. 180;

OLD.

NEW.

(d) any distribution by a company on the reduction of its capital to the extent to which the company possesses accumulated profits which arose after the end of the previous year ending next before the 1st day of April, 1933, whether such accumulated profits have been capitalised or not:

Provided that 'dividend' does not include a distribution in respect of any share issued for full cash consideration which is not entitled in the event of liquidation to participate in the surplus assets, when such distribution is made in accordance with sub-clause (c) or (d).

Explanation.—The words 'accumulated profits', wherever they occur in this clause, shall not include 'capital profit'.

(6-A) 'firm', 'partner' and 'partnership' have the same meanings respectively as in the Indian Contract Act, 1872:

(6-B) 'firm', 'partner' and 'partnership' have the same meanings respectively as in the Indian Partnership Act, 1932: provided that the expression

A.I.R. 1936 P.C. 238; 71 M.L.J. 525; 10 I.T.C. 39; 1936 I.T.R. 239) in regard to debentures and of the Bombay High Court in Shah Mohantal Chhotalal v. The Commissioner of Income-tax, Bombay Presidency and Aden. (10 I.T.C. 46) in regard to reduction of capital, no longer applicable.

ASSEMBLY DEBATES.

Sub-section (6-A) Proviso. Mr. S. P. Chambers.—Sir, as I understand it from the Honourable Member's speech, his intention is to exclude from the definition of dividend all distributions in this form which are really distributions of shares which have been issued for cash of the same value, but, the exact expression used in the proviso is not very happy because the word cash may mean of course one anna or one rupee for a large number of shares, and I feel that the original definition is such that it can only apply to a distribution of shares for full consideration. * * * I reserve the right there to make an amendment to make it quite clear that what is intended is only that shares issued for full cash consideration and not for one anna or two annas are let out.

Mr. Bhulabhai, J. Desai.—Sir I oppose this unless the words are introduced now—"full cash consideration."

Mr. S. P. Chambers.—Yes.

Sub-section 6-A, Explanation.—The intention is that at no time in no form should capital be taxed.

Section 2, sub-section (6-B).—The inclusion of a minor admitted to the benefits of partnership in the expression "partner" obviates further reference to him in the Act. Objects and Reasons.

OLD.

NEW.

'partner' includes any person who being a minor has been admitted to the benefits of partnership;

(6-C) "income" includes anything included in "dividend" as defined in clause (6-A) and anything which under explanation 2 to sub-section (1) of section 7 is a profit received in lieu of salary for the purposes of that sub-section and any sum deemed to be profits under the second proviso to clause (vii) of sub-section (2) of section 10 and the profits of any business of insurance carried on by a mutual insurance company computed in accordance with Rule 9 in the Schedule;

(6-D) "Inspecting Assistant Commissioner" means a person appointed to be an Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax under section 5;

(7) "Income-tax Officer" means a person appointed to be an Income-tax Officer under section 5;

(8) "Magistrate" means a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class, or a Magistrate of the second class specially empowered by the Central Government to try offences against this Act;

(9) "person" includes a Hindu undivided family and a local authority;

(10) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

NOTES.

Section 2, sub-sections (3), (6-D).—Appellate Assistant Commissioners, and Inspecting Assistant Commissioners are defined as the result of the amendment to section 5.

Section 2, sub-section (11).—The definition of "previous year" is amended so as to—

(1) allow an assessee to have separate previous years for each separate source of income;

(2) to prevent double assessment of the same profits when the assessee exercises the option to change his "previous year" for the first time after his first year of assessment;

(3) to prevent double assessment of the same profits in the case of a newly set up business;

(4) to prescribe the "previous year" of the firm as the partner's "previous year" in respect of his share.

OLD.

(11) "previous year" means—

(a) the twelve months ending on the 31st day of March next preceding the year for which the assessment is to be made, or, if the accounts of the assessee have been made up to a date within the said twelve months in respect of a year ending on any date other than the said 31st day of March, then at the option of the assessee the year ending on the day to which his accounts have so been made up:

Provided that, if this option has once been exercised by the assessee, it shall not again be exercised so as to vary the meaning of the expression "previous year" as then applicable to such assessee except with the consent of the Income-tax Officer and upon such conditions as he may think fit; or

(b) in the case of any person, business or company or class of person, business or company, such period as may be determined by the Central Board of Revenue or by such authority as the Board may authorise in this behalf;

NEW.

(11) "previous year" means in respect of any separate source of income, profits and gains—

Provided that where an assessee has once been assessed in respect of a particular source of income, profits and gains, he shall not in respect of that source exercise this option so as to vary the meaning of the expression 'previous year' as then applicable to him except with the consent of the Income-tax Officer and upon such conditions as the Income-tax Officer may think fit; or clause (b), then, at the option of the assessee, the period from the date of the setting up of the business, profession or vocation to such other date:

Provided that when such other date does not fall between the setting up of the business, profession or vocation and the next following 31st day of March, it shall be deemed that there is no previous year; and

Section 3.—The object of the amendment is to enable assessment to be made on individual partners of firms or on individual members of associations of persons. Section 4.—Application of the Act. See notes under section 4-A also.

Sub-section (1).—At present under the provisions of section 4 the Act applies to income which accrues or arises or is received or is deemed to accrue or arise or be received in British India and, in addition, in the case of a resident, to income accruing or arising outside British India if received in or brought into British India. The Bill enlarges the scope of the section by including—

- (1) the whole of the foreign income of a person resident and domiciled in British India whether brought into British India or not;
- (2) the whole of the foreign income from business, profession or vocation of a person resident but not domiciled in British India whether brought into British India or not. The other foreign income of such a person remains liable only if brought into British India.

These amendments follow the provisions of the United Kingdom law except in respect of the foreign income of domiciled and resident persons other than income from business, securities, stocks, shares or rents. Such income in the United Kingdom is taxed on the Explanation 3, newly inserted by us, has the effect of making liable to super-tax dividends paid outside British India in so far as they are paid out of profits subjected to income-tax in British India. It also makes it clear that refunds of income-tax can be claimed on such dividends. To the extent to which this Explanation enlarges the taxation imposed under the Bill we recognize that it is not covered by the sanction accorded to the Bill before introduction, and so requires sanction before it can be moved in the House.

We have received an assurance that administrative arrangements can and will be made to obviate any hardship that might be imposed, in consequence of the change to the accrual basis of taxation, on persons prevented by laws in force in the country, where their money may be lying from remitting money to British India as and when they wish." Select Committee Report.

The variation in the system of assessment of foreign profits from the remittance basis into the accrual basis in the case of residents, makes the numerous decisions relating to the receipt of foreign profits hereafter inapplicable except in regard to profits which accrued outside British India from 1st April, 1933, are received in British India and have not been taxed on the accrual basis.

The deletion of clause (v) of sub-section (3) does not mean that the amounts mentioned therein are liable to tax. The distinction between "domicile" and "non-domicile" is removed and replaced by distinction between "Resident" and "not ordinarily resident."

Sections 4 (1), 4-A and 4-B proved the most important and contentious provisions in the Amending Bill and at one time the entire fate of the Bill depended on these provisions. The sections as finally passed are the result of compromise.

The Changes in the Assembly are as regards three important matters—

(a) Omitting the distinction between domicile and non-domicile and introducing, instead the distinction between resident and not ordinarily resident;

The object and scope of the change will appear from the following extracts from the

ASSEMBLY DEBATES.

Mr. Bhulabhai J. Desai:—" * * * All I say is this that what we wanted was that those who reside here, without technically changing their domicile long enough and with sufficient continuity, ought not to get away with a plea that none the less their domicile is some part of England. That is the real point at issue * * * All I want to convey is that these two words "resident" and "ordinarily resident" are merely technical expressions by means of which you intend to represent all the qualifications of one as distinguished from the other. That is the only purpose of it. But it serves one important purpose from the point of view of the objective which I had, namely, it gets rid of the issue of domicile of origin, as the constitutional law would have it. The domicile of origin is England at his birth although he may remain here for fifty years. He is still able to say, during the interval and even after his death, that his domicile still remains in England. That was the main purpose that I had in view.

Ultimately we began to realise that some method must be found in order to be able to attract for the purpose of taxation within the scope of the Act, such companies which technically, that is in a legal sense, might be resident, that is might be registered, but whose central control is in the United Kingdom, but the bulk of whose business—and in this case 51 per cent. of their profits of the year—is here. After all, you can only draw a line somewhere and we had to draw a line, and the line that we have drawn is that any company, whatever its place of registration, whatever its place of central control, whose world profits in the proportion of 51 per cent. in any year are made in this country, will come within the scope of the Act and will have to pay the tax accordingly. Therefore shortly stated, what we attempted to do was this, without attempting to be technical: Firstly, that we should abolish all distinction between domicile and non-domicile and thereby everybody, who made his fortune here in a substantial sense and remained here and continued to be so should be protected. That applies to individuals. As regards the companies, as I have already stated, we judged that not so much by central control or even by its place of registration, as by the fact that the bulk of its fortune was being made from year to year here.

When you come to the small trader, as I call him, the amendments will clearly show that any trader who is not ordinarily resident at all, does not come within the scope of the Act at all. That is the man who has left India and who is away in, say, Africa all the time and who has been many years away, who has not even perhaps a dwelling house or even a thatched roof in a village. For such a man the Act does not provide * * *

NOTES.

Then as regards resident Indians, we have taken a further step and my honourable friend Mr. Jinnah insisted upon that point more than once that our social habits and our ways are different. Notwithstanding the fact that we may be in foreign countries, we come back here for observance of ceremonies including death, marriage, etc., and therefore we have provided that a man would not become ordinarily resident even though roughly, I am talking of the average case, it is 24 months in seven years and that is a little more than three months every year, the man comes to India and resides. The man is a non-resident and does not come within the provisions of this Act. Though he resides every year for three months in India, he is not within the Act.

Then comes the man who operates from India with business here and elsewhere. It is that man who has been talking loudly. It is that man undoubtedly whom we want to catch.

On the top of that we have further, at all events, as part of the agreement provided that a sum of Rs. 4,500 in addition to the exhibited income in India should be made tax free. Supposing a man has income both in India and foreign countries, then out of his slab of foreign income for the purpose of calculating the tax, a sum of Rs. 4,500 would be deducted. In other words, a man up to the time he makes an additional income of Rs. 400 a month in foreign income, is not taxed.

Mr. A. Sikman:—The amendment before the House alters the second proviso to clause 4. It removes the old distinction between domicile and non domicile and replaces it with the distinction between residents on the one hand and those who are not ordinarily resident on the other hand, that is to say, all persons who normally reside and work in this country will, in the matter of taxation, be treated on the same footing.

The Honourable Sir James Grigg.—Sir I will do my best to solve conundrums. In the first place, we were trying to cover rather compendiously two entirely different classes of cases, firstly the European official or the trader for that matter in the early years of his stay in India before it has become established that his career is in India. The other is the case of the Indian trader abroad who has an ancestral home in India to visit irregularly but possibly enough to become technically resident in every year. The conditions to be satisfied are cumulative, that is a man has to be resident in nine out of ten years preceding the year of assessment. Now that means that there are three ways in which a man can become resident. He can become resident by being in the country for six months, he can become resident if he has got a house in the country and comes here for one day; he can become resident in a year if he is here for a day, if he has been here before that year for one year out of four i.e., a regular visit of about three months a year. Any one of these definitions of "resident" or one or other of these definitions of "resident" has got to be satisfied in nine out of ten years. Then you come to the second wing, to the case where a man becomes a resident technically in every one of the ten years although his visits are very short and he becomes resident in the main in fact entirely, because he keeps an ancestral house in British India; and therefore unless he is in India for a substantial period over seven years he is to be regarded as not ordinarily resident. That was the objective which the Leader of the Muslim League party had, that is, to cut out the Indian trader whose connection with India had become rather attenuated and only existed at all because he had an ancestral house and came back to it at odd intervals for short periods. So that a man is not ordinarily resident unless he satisfies both of those conditions and both of those conditions amount to saying that he must have been resident in nine out of ten years and he must have been here for substantial periods in the preceding seven years. And those are the criteria we have invented to cover two different types of cases. There are two cases in which a man may become resident by being in India for a single day for a tax year. The first is that he has got a furnished house and he occupies it and the second is, if he has been a regular visitor for substantial periods for four years preceding that year, and the criterion for that is that he has been here for one year in the preceding four. And in both cases a man can technically become resident by being in the country for one single day. And you cannot exclude the rather absurd extreme case where a man has been here for (say) one day in nine years out of the preceding ten and becomes ordinarily resident by that criteria alone. And that was the objective which not only Mr. Jinnah, but the Leader of the Congress Party had in mind, to cut out the person whose connection with India had become so attenuated as to be non-existent.

OLD.

NEW.

Mr. S. Satyamurti:—Are these accumulative or alternative conditions?

The Honourable Sir James Grigg:—They are accumulative. * * * The reason why it was put in the form of an accumulation of negatives is that it was discussed at great length and I think the general consensus of opinion was that in order to get an accumulation of conditions only using positives it will be necessary to complicate the provisions and that this was a more compendious way of doing it. * * *

COUNCIL OF STATE—DEBATES.

The Hon. Mr. S. P. Chambers:—Under the Bill as it now comes to this Council, tax-payers are divided into three classes. First, there are the non-residents. They pay tax only on the income which arises in British India. Then there are the persons who are resident but not ordinarily resident. They pay tax on the amounts which arise in India plus the amount of their foreign income which they bring into British India. And then, finally, there are those who are both resident and ordinarily resident. I will come to the way in which these classes are defined in a moment. But this last class pay tax on the income which arises in India, on the amounts they bring to India and also on the amounts which arise abroad and which have not been brought into India, with a deduction from this last class of income of Rs. 4,500. So much for the incidence of taxation between these three classes. I think the chief trouble has arisen not so much in understanding that but in understanding the differences made between the classes, the manner in which the different classes have been defined. This matter is dealt with * * * in sections 4-A and 4-B. Now under the new section 4-A a person is resident in British India if he satisfies one of the three conditions. First of all he has to be resident in British India (or rather actually in British India) for at least half the year. That is one condition. Secondly, if he has a house in British India maintained for at least half a year and visits the country for any time during the year, however small the period may be he may be here only two or three days; he would then be regarded as a resident. And thirdly, if in the preceding four years he has been in British India for at least 365 days, he will be regarded as resident. Now that differentiates residents from non-residents. We will have to keep those three conditions entirely separate from the conditions which are dealt with in the second section, section 4-B, which defines persons who are ordinarily resident. Now under 4-B a person in order to be ordinarily resident must have been a resident as defined in 4-A for at least nine out of the ten preceding years and must also have been in British India for at least 730 days (that is to say two years), in the previous seven years. Both these conditions have to be satisfied. If I give one or two illustrations, perhaps it might make the thing clearer. First of all, let us take the case of a Sindhi merchant; I mention the Sindhi merchant because that is a class affected, who maintains a house in British India, trades abroad and comes back regularly every year. He will clearly be a resident of British India, but unless he has also been for 730 days out of the past seven years in British India he will not be also ordinarily resident. He would just be treated as a person resident but not ordinarily resident, and will pay tax on the income in British India plus the income arising abroad which has been remitted to British India. Then, if you take the case of a European member of the Indian Civil Service who has been here for eight years, he will be regarded as not ordinarily resident, because quite clearly he has not been resident in British India for nine out of the previous ten years. But his colleague, also a European member who has been here 12 years, and has only had short periods of leave, eight or nine months at a time will be regarded both as resident and ordinarily resident. In order to escape a person who has been resident here for more than ten years will have to be out of the country for the whole of two complete income-tax years; otherwise the condition of ordinary residence will apply to him.

NOTES.

So far I have been dealing with the question of residence in its relation to individuals; but an important change has been made in defining what we mean by a company resident in British India. In the past a company was regarded as resident in British India unless its control and management was situated wholly outside the country. The Bill adds another condition and says that a company shall be regarded as resident if its control and management is here or if more than half its income arises here. That is a change which has been made in the Assembly and the effect of that is to bring within the scope of the Act those companies which have most of their trading activities in India but which have their technical control in the United Kingdom. By technical control I mean control as it has been interpreted in the Courts, the control of the Board of Directors if the power of control is vested in that Board. If those meetings are all held in London, then, notwithstanding the existence in India of large buildings and most of their business here, then technically that company will be regarded as resident in the United Kingdom and not resident in India. These companies paid in the past on the income arising here, but they did not pay on the income arising abroad, the United Kingdom or elsewhere. That is rather an important change. Fortunately for a company "ordinary residence" is the same as "residence". So there is no further complication here'.

"SECTION 5 deals with Income-tax authorities. It has been decided to divide Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax into Appellate Assistant Commissioners and Inspecting Assistant Commissioners and to place the former under the control of the Central Board of Revenue. Objects and Reasons."

Section 5.—The addition made to sub-section (2) of section 5 of the Act is intended to make possible the establishment at a central or headquarters station under the Central Board of Revenue of special branches for work of special difficulty or importance. The change made in sub-section (7) is consequential on the provision made in sub-section (2) for the existence of Commissioners of Income-tax whose jurisdiction is not defined by areas. The new sub-section (8) inserts a provision contained in the English law explicitly asserting the controlling power of the superior Revenue Authority over its officers.

Provision originally made in the Bill for appointment of Income-tax Inspectors who are to have powers to enter premises of assesses to make enquiries, examine books, etc., has been omitted by the Assembly as a result of strong opposition.

COUNCIL OF STATE-DEBATES.

The Hon. Mr. S. P. Chambers:—"Then clause 5 also provides for the setting up of a headquarters staff. In regard to this I might say that there is in India at present no staff at headquarters comparable to the technical staff at Somerset House which controls and advises the whole of the income-tax staff throughout the United Kingdom. The object in having such a staff, first of all, is to impose a more thorough check upon the imposition of penalties. The Bill provides, as I have already mentioned, for much larger penalties and penalties which may extend back to eight years. Well, it is felt that responsibility for imposing such penalties, which can of course be very large in some cases, should not rest entirely on the local officer, but there should be some system of centrally controlling penalties. So some officers are required to "vet" penalties throughout the country. Then there are some assessments which we have found have been rather badly handled, not because the officer is necessarily unintelligent or lazy but because he lacks the necessary technical equipment. In the United Kingdom such matters as the assessment of insurance companies, banks and large financial houses are dealt with, mainly dealt with in one place only—London. But there is at hand some one or two persons at Somerset House who are really experts in these difficult matters, and in that way the assessments on those large cases have been dealt with more effectively and more efficiently in the United Kingdom than they have been here. But the fault does not lie so much with the Officers as with the system in India which does not provide for specialists, and it is hoped that by having one or two persons here for this purpose the Government will not lose large sums of money through ignorance or inefficiency."

COUNCIL OF STATE-DEBATES.

The Hon. Mr. S. P. Chambers:—Then, in the machinery side, we have of course a very important change, an Appellate Tribunal is proposed, and that is dealt with in Part II of the Bill. The reason for putting this in a separate Part of the Bill, even though the amendments are spread throughout the Act, is that it would impose too heavy a burden upon the Department to have such a radical change made at a time when so many other changes were being made both in the organisation of the Department and the incidence of the tax. For that reason the provisions are put into Part II of the Bill and the intention is that they shall come into force two years after the Bill itself comes into force. Now, the main lines of the proposal were settled in Select Committee and they were these. First of all, a Tribunal was to be set up consisting of not more than ten persons half of whom would be judicial members, that is to say, persons of approximately the status of a District Judge—no less status than that—and half of them were to be what has been described as accountancy members, that is to say, persons with experience in accountancy matters and business matters generally. The intention is to have appeals heard by Benches of two members drawn from the Tribunal which would be a kind of panel and one judicial member would sit with one accountancy member, so that when a case came up which dealt with difficult points of accountancy or of business generally the experience and knowledge of the accountancy member would be available, while of course on points of law there would be the experience and learning of the judicial member. Provision is made for referring to the President of the Tribunal of any case in which there is a difference between two members hearing an appeal and the President can then refer the matter to other members and take a majority decision. The precise rules for determining the manner in which that should be done have not been laid down; they have been left for the President to make himself. Now, one big difficulty which was feared when these proposals were first mooted was that there will be hundreds and thousands of appeals, some of them very small, which would go from the Assistant Commissioner to the Appellate Tribunal. I may say at this state that the various Benches should sit at the same time in different parts of India, so that one will be sitting in Bombay, one in Calcutta and perhaps another in Madras. Thus, in various parts of the country these groups of two would be hearing appeals at the same time. It was felt that the Tribunal would be flooded out by these appeals and that something must be done to prevent that, otherwise the increase in the number of members necessary to hear the appeals would be so great as to make the scheme altogether too costly. To get over that, the proposal is to provide for a fee of Rs. 100 for every appeal taken to the Tribunal. The assessee continues, of course, to have the right without any cost of going to the Assistant Commissioner, who in future will do nothing but hear the appeals and it is expected that he will be able to do substantial justice in all ordinary simple cases. That will mean that only those cases in which a very large point of substance or a very difficult point of law arises will, in fact, go to the Appellate Tribunal. That corresponds very largely, almost exactly, to the system of the Special Commissioners in the United Kingdom. There, the Special Commissioners are a full-time body as here and they go on tours in twos all over the country and it is a practice for only fairly large and important cases to reach that stage. I think I have explained everything that need be explained on that Tribunal except possibly this that the Tribunal will not in any sense be under the control of the Commissioner as it is going to be an entirely separate judicial body and for that reason the right is given to the Income-tax Officer himself to lodge an appeal against the decision of either the present Assistant Commissioner or the Appellate Tribunal. His appeal against the Appellate Assistant Commissioner's decision would, of course, be on the instructions of his Commissioner on Income-tax and would follow the same course as that of an appeal by an assessee. The further stages will, of course, be nothing more than the reference to the High Court on a point of law in the same way as a point of law can now be referred by the Commissioner to the High Court.

NOTES.

The object of the third proviso to section 7 (1) is that where tax is not deducted by an employer, unless the assessee receives the salary without deduction he should not be called upon personally to pay the tax. Under a new chapter introduced in the Assembly Chapter IX-B super-annuation funds which are approved are dealt with in a way similar to Recognised Provident Funds in regard to certain exemptions.

NOTES.

Sub-section (1) (iv).—At present interest on any capital charge on the property is allowed even though the capital was borrowed for private purposes; and interest on capital borrowed for the purpose of acquiring the property is allowed even though there is no charge on the property. The amended clause (iv) further allows—what is not now allowed—an annual charge not being a capital charge to which the property is subject.

In order to secure that tax shall be collected on such interest or charges payable outside British India it is provided that no allowance shall be made in respect of them unless tax has been deducted therefrom. There is a similar provision in section 8, section 10 and section 12. Interest on a public loan issued before 1st April, 1938, is excepted.

Consequently depreciation for any year subsequent to the commencement of the amending Act can only be carried forward for as long as any other loss can be carried forward. But the unabsorbed depreciation at the commencement of the amending Act may be carried forward until fully allowed and is to be allowed before the depreciation due in respect of subsequent years.

NOTES

Sub-section (2) (vii) prescribes the allowance for machinery or plant sold or discarded in consequence of its having become obsolete. This allowance is now to be given in respect of any machinery or plant sold or discarded and is to be the difference between the excess of the written down value over the sale price or scrap value provided that this amount is written off in the books of the assessee. Any excess of the sale price or scrap value over the written down value is to be treated as an assessable profit.

preciation to the amount written off in the books of the assessee, remove the restriction to six years of the carry forward of depreciation, and secure that depreciation which is unabsorbed at the time when the law is changed shall not be deducted from the original cost of plant, machinery, etc., in arriving at the written down value. The effect of this provision is to spread the writing-off of the unabsorbed depreciation over a longer period. The proposals contained in the Bill limited the amount of depreciation to the amount written off in the books of the assessee and treated depreciation arising after the change of the law, as a loss like other losses, so that it could be carried forward only for six years. Depreciation unabsorbed at the time of the change of the law was to be carried forward without time limit until it was absorbed but was to be deducted from, that is to say, allowed against, profits before any further allowance for depreciation was to be made for any particular year subsequent to the change of the law.

Government have given us an assurance that the new rates consequent on the change from the cost basis to the written down basis will be discussed with the interests concerned before they are fixed, and that the new provisions will not be brought into operation until the rates have been so fixed.

The main change made in clause (xi) of sub-section (1) of the Act, as amended by clause 10 (b) (vi) of that Bill, makes it clear that irrecoverable loans in a banking or money-lending business are to be allowed for. A minor drafting change is also made.

The re-draft of section 10 (2) (xii) of the Act contained in clause 10 (b) (vi) of the Bill substitutes the wording of the English Act for the wording adopted in the Indian Act.

The words now inserted in the new sub-section (4) of section 10 of the Act, as substituted by clause 10 (c) of the Bill, provide for grant of some relief, now that the system of taxation is changed to the accrual basis, where double income-tax relief is not given in the country where the profits accrue or arise. The second change shown in the sub-section is similar to that already referred to in connexion with clause 9, and found also in clause 12.

In the new sub-section (5) of section 10 of the Act in addition to the change already referred to in the definition of "written down value," we have inserted a reference to vehicles in the definition of "plant" and we have made a verbal change of the word "allowed" to the word "allowable."

We have also added a proviso, already referred to in our remarks above on clause 10 (b) (iii), to ensure that depreciation allowance due for a year prior to the change of the law but unabsorbed shall not be deducted from original cost in arriving at the written down value.

The new sub-section (7) which has been added to section 10 has the object of including in the Act and placing on a statutory basis the provisions relating to the computation of the profits and gains of insurance business which were formerly contained in rules made by the Central Board of Revenue under the power conferred by section 59 of the Act.—Select Committee Report.

Section 11.—This is omitted as income from profession or vocation is also included in section 10.

NOTES

Section 14. Sub-section (2) (a) exempts from taxation dividends of companies whose profits have been assessed to tax. This provision needed amendment as the result of a Privy Council decision that it exempts the whole dividend even when only part of the Company's profits have been taxed. Instead of amending it, it has been decided to delete it and amend section 16 (2) and section 18 (5). The result of these changes will be that a dividend will no longer be exempt. It will be on the same footing as interest on securities and credit for the appropriate amount of tax on it will be given in the assessment. Other sections affected are sections 48 and 49.

Sub-section (2), clauses (b) and (c) of section 14 exempt the proportionate shares of the taxed profits of firms and associations of individuals. Since it has been decided [section 23 (5)] to tax the partners of registered firms directly, this sub-section as amended relates only to unregistered firms and it exempts not the amount (which is now exempted) of the firm's profits proportionate to the assessee's share therein at the time of making the assessment but the portion of the firm's taxed profits which the assessee is entitled to receive. This change is made in pursuance of a decision to take as the basis for income-tax purposes the actual shares of the previous year. The same principle has been adopted in amending section 26.

Sub-section (2) (b) of section 14 as now amended exempts not the amount which a member of an association receives but the amount that he is entitled to receive.—Objects and Reasons.

Section 15 gives exemption in the case of life insurance premia and payments to Provident Funds and limits the exemption in respect of those payments and payments to Family Pension Funds to 1/6th of total income. In the case of large incomes this is too generous an allowance and therefore sub-section (3) as amended limits it to Rs. 6,000 or up to 12,000 in the case of a Hindu Undivided Family.

NOTES

Section 10 specifies certain sums which are to be included in "total income". It is amended in the following ways:—

Sub-section (1) (b), a new provision, prescribes the way in which the share (whether profit or loss) of a partner in a firm is to be computed. This method of computation follows the amendment of section 10 (4) (b), disallowing in the firm's assessment payments to partners.

Sub-section (1) (c), is an important provision designed to prevent the avoidance of tax by the simple device of settling income upon another person whose rate of tax is lower than that of the settlor, or by a transfer of assets, so that the income therefrom arises to such other person. This amendment provides that the income in such a case is to be treated as the income of the settlor or transferor. Where, however, the assets are irrevocably transferred to another person, other than in the circumstances dealt with in sub-section (3) (b), the income therefrom is not to be deemed to be income of the transferor.

Sub-section (2) of section 16 provides for the inclusion in "total income" of the tax on the dividend along with the dividend. As amended it provides for the inclusion of partly taxed profits. The form of the sub-section has been altered to suit the definition of "dividend" in section 2 (6-A).

NOTES

Sub-section (3) (b).—The wording of this clause has been found to be defective as it may be possible for a person to transfer income to an association of individuals which includes a person other than that individual or his wife but in such circumstances that the income becomes the income of the wife or minor child. For this reason the words “consisting of such individual and his wife” are being omitted and the words “for the benefit of his wife or a minor child or both” are being added. It will be seen that the provisions in sub-section (1) (c) cover all cases of transfers of income and also cover cases of revocable transfers of assets. This clause as now amended covers the further cases of irrevocable transfers of assets where the income accrues to the benefit of the wife or minor child of the transferor.—Objects and reasons.

Section 16.—We have supplemented clause (c) of the new sub-section (1) of section 16 of the Act by the addition of two definitions, the first explaining the term “revocable” and the second explaining the terms “settlement or disposition” and “settlor or disponent.”

The change made in sub-section (3) of section 16 of the Act, as amended by sub-clause (b) of this clause of the Bill, introduces into clause (b) of sub-section (3) of section 16 of the Act the words “otherwise than for adequate consideration” which

The last proviso to s. 16 (1) (c), was added by the Assembly to make it clear that only those settlements and trusts which are likely to lend themselves to evasion of tax are intended to be affected and not other cases.

The words "otherwise than for adequate consideration" were added by the Assembly in s. 16 (3) (a) (iv) and 16 (3) (b), to bring that clause also into line with s. 16 (3) (a) (iii).

Section 17 (marginal relief) which becomes superfluous owing to the adoption of the "slab" system of rates is deleted and a new section 17 prescribing the way tax is to be determined in certain cases is substituted.

Sub-sections (1) and (2) determine the tax payable by non-residents with non-taxable foreign income and persons with exempted income which is included in total income. The principle adopted is to calculate the tax (including super-tax) on the whole income of the assessee and levy that proportion of it which the liable income bears to the whole income. The important point about this amendment is that the rate applied to the taxable income is the rate applicable to the whole income. In the case of non-British non-residents income-tax will be payable at the maximum rate—Objects and Reasons.

The reference to Burma introduced in sub-section (1) of section 17 of the Act is made for the purpose of according to States in Burma the same treatment as is accorded by the Burman law to States in India.

The words inserted in sub-section (2) of section 17 of the Act are necessary, because an unregistered firm may under section 23 (5) of the Act be assessed as a registered firm and the present sub-section is not intended to apply where an unregistered firm is so assessed. Select Committee Report.

*Section 17, Sub section (2).--*In the Assembly the words "the income-tax excluding super-tax payable by the assessee shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of the income-tax excluding super-tax" were substituted for the words "the tax payable by the assessee shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of the tax including super-tax" originally in the Bill.

The object of this was to prevent what would have been otherwise done, viz., to include the allowance of relief from super-tax in respect of payments of life assurance and to exclude them also from tax free securities. This was not the intention.

Section 18, Sub-section (3-A), a new provision, provides for deduction of tax at source from interest and other payments made to non-residents. In the case of residents it is not advisable to make such deduction because of practical complications, but in the case of non-residents it is advisable to secure the tax in this way if it can be done. Where deduction at source is not practicable, the payments will be disallowed in the payer's assessments (Sections 9, 10 and 12). ## NOTES.

The object of the provision prescribing compulsory returns is to enable the Income-tax authorities to deal with defaulters who conceal the fact that they have taxable incomes. It is not considered right that the onus of finding such persons should be on the Income-tax authorities and this provision coupled with the penalty provisions (section 28) and the extension of the time for initiating assessments (section 34) is designed to put the Income-tax authorities in a position to deal adequately with defaulters.

Section 22 (3) allows an assessee to file a return or revised return before assessment is made and so to escape an assessment under section 23 (4). He is to retain this right [see section 23 (4)]; but in order to prevent him escaping the consequences of submitting an original false return or evading the penalty for failure to submit a return, the closing words of this sub-section have been omitted and a suitable proviso has been inserted in section 28.

NOTES.

Section 23-A. Section 23-A of the Income-tax Act, 1922, has proved practically a dead letter, mainly because it imposes upon an Income-tax Officer the duty of determining whether the profits and gains of a Company are allowed to accumulate beyond its reasonable needs, existing and contingent, having regard to the maintenance and development of its business. The present clause substitutes a simple arithmetical criterion for the determination of the applicability of the section to the circumstances of a Company in any year. Subsidiary Companies, and Companies in which the public are substantially interested are still excluded from the operation of the section, but the opportunity has been taken to amend the definition of "Subsidiary Company" so as to remove any doubt as to the meaning of the expression "a company not being a company to which the provisions of this sub-section apply". The clause also alters the procedure under the section. Instead of passing an order to the effect that the sum payable as income-tax by the company shall not be determined and that the proportionate share of each member in the profits and gains of the Company shall be included in his total income, the Income-tax Officer has, under the present clause merely to deem the profits of the Company to have been distributed as dividends on a given date. The assessment of a Company to both income-tax and super-tax will therefore be made whether or not an order is passed under the section in its proposed new form.—Objects and Reasons.

The change made in the proviso covers cases where the accumulated undistributed profits exceed the value of the fixed assets or the paid up capital taken with loan capital belonging to shareholders, whichever is greater. We have added an additional proviso in order to make allowance for possible cases of error in which though the full sixty per cent. of the assessable income of the company has not been actually distributed, an amount exceeding fifty-five per cent. has been distributed. In such case we consider that the company should be given a reasonable opportunity of escaping the operation of the section by revising its distribution within three months. The removal of the reference to subsidiary companies supplements the first change made in the section and secures the application of the section to all companies except companies in which the public are substantially interested in the sense defined in the Explanation. The deletion of clause (a), (c) and (d) in the Explanation is consequential on the changes made in the main part of the sub-section.—Select Committee Report.

Section 23-A.—The substitution of a rough and ready rule to apply this section eliminates the canvassing of positions like that taken in Harvey v. Commissioner of Income-tax, (A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 1005; 69 M.L.J. 577; 8 I.T.C. 311; 1935 I.T.R. 311)

Section 24, makes a major change in the whole scheme of the Act by allowing the carry forward of losses.

Sub-section (1) is amended by a proviso which does not allow any of the partners of an unregistered firm to set off any part of the firm's loss against their incomes. In the case of a registered firm the loss that cannot be set off in the firm's assessment shall be apportioned amongst the partners who alone will be entitled to set off the loss.

Sub-section (2) allows losses in a business, profession or vocation to be carried forward and set off against the profits of the same business, profession or vocation. The period of carry forward is to be six years but to mitigate the effect on the revenue of this concession losses of the first "previous year" after the commencement of the Amending Act are to be carried forward for one year, losses of the next year for 2 years, and so on until the full period of 6 years is reached.

The provisions regarding registered and unregistered firms in sub-section (1) are mutatis mutandis repeated in sub-section (2) and in accordance with the principle given effect to elsewhere that the liability or benefit should attach to the person receiving the profits or incurring the loss it is provided that in the case of a change in a firm's constitution or of a succession only the person incurring the loss will be able to set it off.

NOTES.

Section 25.A.—(1) The words "that a separation of the members of the family has taken place" have been omitted. 26. (1) Where, at the time of making an assessment under section 23, it is found that a change has occurred in the constitution of a firm or that a firm has been newly constituted, the assessments on the firm and on the members thereof shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be made as if the firm had been constituted throughout the previous year as it is constituted at the time of making the assessment, and as if each member had received a share of the profits of that year proportionate to his interest in the firm at the time of making the assessment.

NOTES.

Section 26.-- Is amended by giving effect to the principle mentioned in the preceding section. In cases where a firm has changed its constitution, or has been newly constituted or where there has been a succession to a business, profession or vocation except in the case of an unregistered firm (where the partners entitled to the profits get credit for the tax paid) the persons who are entitled to receive the profits are to be assessed on them. Provision is made for assessment on and recovery of tax from the successor in the case where the predecessor cannot be found or where he will not or cannot pay the tax.

The words added to the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 26 of the Act give an explicit right to the person by whom tax properly payable by another is paid to recover any amount so paid from that other person.

designed to give the Income-tax Department more effective means of dealing with illegal evasion. The penalty is increased from the amount of the tax avoided to twice that amount; it is to include super-tax as well as income-tax and it is to be impossible for failure to file a return or to submit accounts or to submit other evidence in support of a return. To prevent hardship in the case of a person with no income liable to tax the penalty is limited to Rs. 50 and in the case of the agent of a non-resident the penalty for failure to file a return can only follow the issue of a specific notice calling for a return. Provision is also made [proviso (c) to sub-section (1)] to prevent an assessee-resenting penalty proceedings from avoiding them by the submission of a return.—Objects and Reasons.

In the proposed new sub-section (1) of section 28 of the Act we have provided that accidental failure to furnish the returns referred to shall not be visited with penalty; and by our changes in the proviso to the sub-section we have restricted the penalty for failure to comply with the general notice under sub-section (1) of section 22 of the Act to assessee whose income is not less than three thousand five hundred rupees, and we have reduced to a maximum of twenty-five rupees the penalty for failure to comply with the notice under section 22 (2) of the Act where the person failing is proved to have no income liable to tax. We have omitted clause (c) of the proviso contained in the Bill as introduced in the belief that it is unnecessary.—Select Committee Report.

NOTES.

Section 33-A which prescribes the reference to a Board of Referees of an order under section 23-A is omitted. Owing to the amendment of section 23-A it is considered that this section is unnecessary and that the appeal can be heard by the Appellate Assistant Commissioner in the ordinary way.

(4) The decision of the Board of Referees shall be forwarded to the Commissioner who shall transmit it to the Income-tax Officer who passed the original order, and shall also send copies to each Income-tax Officer who has made any assessment consequent upon such order; and where a decision reverses or modifies the order of the Income-tax Officer, fresh assessments shall be made in accordance therewith, or such consequential adjustments as may be required shall be made in any assessment already made.

(5) The decision of a Board of Referees shall not be subject to appeal to any Income-tax authority, and shall not be revised by the Commissioner in exercise of his powers under section 33.

NOTES.

From one year to six years. This follows the United Kingdom law and in conjunction with compulsory returns (Section 22) and penalties (Section 28) it is expected to be a very effective provision for dealing with illegal evasion. Owing to a recent decision of the Calcutta High Court which narrowly restricts the scope of section 34 it is considered necessary to amend it so as to make it clear that it is applicable where the Income-tax Officer is of opinion that income has escaped assessment. This amendment follows section 22 (2) which has given rise to no difficulty in practice. The section is also amended so as to remove any doubts as to its applicability to cases of under-assessment.

At present there is no time limit for the completion of assessment proceedings begun in time. Sub-section (2) provides that they shall be completed within the period of six years from the end of the assessment year.—Objects and Reasons.

Section 34.—The proposals contained in the Bill adopted the period of six years uniformly as the limit for the carrying forward of losses under section 24, for pursuing income which had escaped assessment under section 34, for the rectification of errors under section 35 and for the claiming of refunds under section 50. We have decided to retain six years as the limit for the carrying forward of losses under section 24, but we think that in all the other cases the limit should be a period of four years except that it should be extended to eight years, where income has escaped assessment in consequence of the assessee having concealed the particulars of his income or deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of his income. The changes made in this clause and in section 35 give effect to this decision.

The change of the expression "is of opinion" to "discovers" in sub-clause (a) of this clause brings the wording of sub-section (1) of section 34 into accord with the wording of the corresponding English provision. A minority of us desired further changes to be inserted in the sub-section.—Select Committee Report.

Section 34. Sub-section (3) nullifies the effect of the Privy Council judgment in Rajendranath Mukherjee v. Commissioner of Income-tax Bengal, (61 I.A. 90; 61 Cal. 285; 66 M.L.J. 121; 7 I.T.C. 143) that there is no time limit for completing an assessment once begun.

The annuities so described are mainly those paid by life insurance companies. We have revised the proposed sub-section (2) of section 38 so as to reduce the powers which the Bill proposed to give to Income-tax Officers and Inspectors. The wide powers of entry are taken away, and entry is made possible only when the Commissioner has given a written authorization. A minority of us are still dissatisfied with the sub-section in the form which it now takes.—Select Committee Report.

The clause relating to the power given to Income-tax Officers to visit premises and make enquiries has been deleted by the Assembly.

Section 42 deals with the income of non-residents accruing or arising without British India but deemed to accrue or arise within British India. At present sub-section (1) applies to income accruing or arising through or from any business connection or property in British India. In order to bring within the net of taxation all income arising in a primary sense from British Indian sources, the sub-section has been amended so as to include income accruing or arising "from any asset or source of income in British India or through or from any money lent at interest and brought into British India in cash or in kind".

Sub-section (1) has been also amended so as to make it clear that either the non-resident or his agent may be assessed and so as to allow the agent to retain enough of his principal's moneys to pay the tax.

Sub-section (3), a new provision, narrows the scope of the whole section by confining it to that part of the profits attributable to operations in British India—Objects and Reasons.

No change has been made in this clause; but in connection with section 42 and section 43 of the Act we considered certain difficulties which arose in the application of the agency principle to "hedging and straddling" operations when these operations take place through a person carrying on a bona fide business as broker in British India and a foreign broker acting for an undisclosed foreign principal. We feel that some provision should be inserted in the Act to ensure that the British Indian broker shall not in such a case be deemed to be an agent of the foreign principal. The limited time at our disposal has prevented us from making specific provision to this end in the Bill, but we understand that Government will bring forward proposals on the subject at the consideration stage—Select Committee Report.

42. (1) The last proviso was added by the Assembly. The proviso will only come into operation when there is disagreement between the agent and the non-resident principal and the Income-tax Officer cannot make a greater demand than that specified by the Officer in the certificate. See also notes under section 43.

By the insertion of the provision that a non-resident can be assessed either in his name or in the name of his agent the proposition laid down in I.L.R. 1938 All 432 (A.I.R. 1938 All. 310; 1938 I.T.R. 217) that a non-resident cannot be assessed directly, has no longer any force.

Avoidance of income-tax by transactions resulting in the transfer of income to persons resident or ordinarily resident abroad.

NOTES.

Sections 44-D to 44-F introduce a new Chapter dealing with a particular type of evasion.

One of the methods of avoiding the payment of tax without breaking the law is to transfer the assets from which the income arises to a Company which is resident outside resident or to a person resident but not ordinarily resident in British India, acquired any rights by virtue or in consequence of which he has within the meaning of this section power to enjoy such income, whether forthwith or in the future, that income shall whether it would or would not have been chargeable to income-tax apart from the provisions of this section, be deemed to be income of such first mentioned person for all the purposes of this Act.

(2) Where any person receives or is entitled to receive, whether before or after any transfer of assets by virtue or in consequence whereof either alone or in conjunction with associated operations any income becomes payable to a person not resident or resident but not ordinarily resident in British India, any sum paid or payable by way of a loan or repayment of a loan or any other sum, being a sum which is not paid or payable for full consideration in money or money's worth, paid or payable otherwise than as income, such income shall, whether it would or would not have been chargeable to income-tax apart from the provisions of British India, and then to receive payments from that Company in a form and in such circumstances that the amounts received from the Company are never in fact repayable or repaid to it. The effect of these arrangements is that the real owner of the assets receives the income therefrom indirectly and in a capital form. These receipts cannot, as the law stands at present, be treated as income in the hands of the recipient, nor, since the Company is a non-resident Company, can it be subjected to the provisions of section 23-A which deals with a Company which, to enable its proprietor to avoid super-tax, fails to distribute its income.

It is the object of the present clause to prevent the loss of tax through such devices. It will be seen that the first effect of a device of this kind is that the income which in this section, be deemed to be the income of the first-mentioned person for all the purposes of this Act.

(3) Sub-sections (1) and (2) shall not apply if such first-mentioned person shows to the satisfaction of the Income-tax Officer either—

(a) that neither the transfer nor any associated operation had for its purpose or for one of its purposes the avoidance of liability to taxation; or

(b) that the transfer and all associated operations were bona fide commercial transactions and were not designed for the purpose of avoiding liability to taxation.

(4) For the purposes of this section, an 'associated operation' means, in relation to any transfer, an operation of any kind effected by any person in relation to any of the assets transferred or any assets representing whether directly or indirectly any of the assets transferred, or to the income arising from any such assets, or to any assets representing whether directly or indirectly reality is the income of a person liable to pay income-tax or super-tax or both becomes the income of a non-resident person (which term, of course, includes a Company) which is either not liable or liable for only a smaller amount of tax. By means of the loans the real proprietor continues to have power to enjoy the income from the assets.

It is difficult, if not impossible, to draft a simple preventive clause which a skilled lawyer cannot evade. The clause has, therefore, been drafted in wide terms and follows the wording of section 18 of the United Kingdom Finance Act, 1936. Its terms are very comprehensive, and the net effect intended is that wherever income which really belongs to a person liable to income-tax and super-tax becomes by means of an artificial set of transactions the income of somebody liable to pay less tax or no tax at all, such income can for tax purposes be treated as the income of the person to whom it really belongs.—Objects and Reasons.

NOTES.

The changes made in section 44-D remove certain defects in the provisions relating to evasion of tax by transfer of assets. Transfers to persons resident in but not domiciled in British India are now covered, and by sub-section (2) evasion by transfers resulting in payment of income disguised in the form of loans, or payments made without adequate consideration, is provided for. By sub-section (3) it is provided that a transfer must be untainted by any purpose of avoidance in order to escape the mischief of the section, and the addition of a new clause in sub-section (7) clarifies the position of companies incorporated outside but resident in British India.

Section 44-D contains provisions similar to the English Finance Act, 1938.

The new sections 44-E and 44-F are designed to prevent avoidance of tax by what are known as "bond-washing" transactions, involving the manipulation of securities so that the securities will pass temporarily into the legal ownership of some second person who is either not liable at all or liable in a lesser degree to tax, under such conditions that the interest on the securities is the income of this second person. A common form of the process is the sale of securities oum interest with a simultaneous contract to repurchase them ex-interest. Where foreign securities are concerned this second person may be a foreigner resident abroad entitled to claim exemption from the tax on the interest. More often a financial concern in India is utilized whose computation of profits includes the results of realizing securities, so that the concern can profitably offer "bond-washing" facilities to the owner of securities bearing fixed interest, where the owner himself is not liable to taxation on the realization of the securities.—Select Committee Report.

(2) The Appellate Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate powers, or the Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate powers or powers of revision if satisfied to the like effect shall cause a refund to be made by the Income-tax Officer of any amount found to have been wrongly paid or paid in excess.

(3) Where income of one person is included under any provision of this Act in the total income of any other person such other person only shall be entitled to a refund under this section in respect of such income.

NOTES.

Amendment Act Section 91.—In sub-section (2) of section 48 of the said Act, for the words "The Appellate Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate powers or the Commissioner in the exercise of his powers of revision" the words "The Appellate Assistant Commissioner or the Appellate Tribunal in the exercise of their powers" shall be substituted.

Section 48.—Sweeping changes are made in section 48 which deals with refunds of tax on dividends, of tax paid by registered firms and of tax deducted at source. The section in its reference to rates is unnecessarily cumbersome; it would no longer apply to registered firms whose partners are to be assessed directly (section 23 (5) ) and it leaves the position regarding double income-tax relief in doubt. Instead of the main provisions of the section a simple provision has been inserted giving an assessable person (section 3) a refund of any excess tax paid by him or on his behalf or treated as so paid over the amount with which he was properly chargeable. The amended section does not require any distinction to be made between British and non-British subjects as their rates of tax are dealt with elsewhere [see section 17 (2)].

The new sub-section (2) inserted in section 48 as amended by this clause inserts the provisions of section 48-A (2) which were incorrectly omitted when the present simplified section 48 was substituted for the whole of sections 48 and 48-A. It preserves the power of the Assistant Commissioner and of the Commissioner to order refunds to be made. The change made in sub-section (3) of section 48 is a drafting improvement.

Section 49.—We have removed the two new sub-sections which were inserted in section 49 of the Act by this clause, and have reproduced their contents in new sections 49-B and 49-C dealt with in clause 54 of the Bill.

Section 49 deals with double income-tax relief. The amendments accomplish the following objects:—Relief is restricted to half the Indian rate; the relief granted to the Company is taken into account in computing the refund admissible to the shareholder under section 48; and any excess relief granted to the Company over the relief admissible to the shareholder can be recovered from him.

These amendments are designed to prevent any assessee getting more relief than he is entitled to. The other amendments in the section are only technical improvements on the existing provisions.

CHAPTER X.

MISCELLANEOUS.

59. (1) The Central Board of Revenue may, subject to the control of the Central Government, make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Act and for the ascertainment and determination of any class of income. Such rules may be made for the whole of British India or for such part thereof as may be specified.

Power to make rules.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) prescribe the manner in which, and the procedure by which, the income, profits and gains shall be arrived at in the case of—

(i) incomes derived in part from agriculture and in part from business;

OLD.

(ii) insurance companies;

(iii) persons residing out of British India;

(ii) persons residing out of British India;

(b) prescribe the procedure to be followed on applications for refunds;

NOTES.

Section 59 is amended as so to remove any doubts as to whether the rules regarding the computation of life insurance business are ultra vires in so far as they vary the substantive provisions of the Act.

(c) provide for such arrangements with His Majesty's Government as may be necessary to enable the appropriate relief to be granted under section 27 of the Finance Act, 1920, or under section 49 of this Act;

(d) prescribe the year which, for the purpose of relief under section 49, is to be taken as corresponding to the year of assessment for the purposes of section 27 of the Finance Act, 1920; and

(e) provide for any matter which by this Act is to be prescribed.

(3) In cases coming under clause (a) of sub-section (2), where the income, profits and gains liable to tax cannot be definitely ascertained, or can be ascertained only with an amount of trouble and expense to the assessee which, in the opinion of the Central Board of Revenue, is unreasonable, the rules made under that sub-section may—

(a) prescribe methods by which an estimate of such income, profits and gains may be made, and

(b) in cases coming under sub-clause (i) of clause (a) of sub-section (2), prescribe the proportion of the income which shall be deemed to be income, profits and gains liable to tax; and an assessment based on such estimate or proportion shall be deemed to be duly made in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(4) The power to make rules conferred by this section shall, except on the first occasion of the exercise thereof, be subject to the condition of previous publication.

(5) Rules made under this section shall be published in the Official Gazette, and shall thereupon have effect as if enacted in this Act.

60. (1) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make an exemption, reduction in rate or other modification, in respect of income-tax in favour of any class of income, or in regard to the whole or any part of the income of any class of persons.

Power to make exemptions etc.

NOTES.

Section 60.—Note on Section 7, (1), Explanation (2), may be referred to.

The alteration of the clause has the effect, first, of substituting the words "the appropriate relief" in sub-section (2) of section 60 of the Act, for the expression "such relief as it may think fit" which we consider is unduly wide, and, secondly, of abolishing for the future the power to make any exemptions, reductions or modifications under sub-section (1). It is necessary to keep sub-section (1) so that orders rescinding exemptions now in existence may be made when necessary under the implied power imported into the sub-section by section 21 of the General Clauses Act, 1897. We have received an assurance that it is the intention of Government, in consonance with the general scheme contained in the Bill and simultaneously with its coming into operation, to rescind the exemptions numbered 20, 21, 22 and 23 in the list set forth in paragraph 17 of Part III of the Income-tax Manual.—Select Committee Report.

(2) Where, by reason of any portion of an assessee's salary being paid in arrears or in advance, or by reason of his having received in any one financial year salary for more than twelve months, his income is assessed at a rate higher than that at which it would otherwise have been assessed, the Central Government may grant such relief as it may think fit.

61. Any assessee, who is entitled or required to attend before any Income-tax authority in connection with any proceeding under this Act, may attend either in person or by any person authorised by him in writing in this behalf.

NEW.

(2) Where, by reason of any portion of an assessee's salary being paid in arrears or in advance, or by reasons of his having received in any one financial year salary for more than twelve months or a payment which is under the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 7 a profit in lieu of salary, his income is assessed at a rate higher than that at which it would otherwise have been assessed, the Central Government may grant the appropriate relief.

(3) After the commencement of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, the power conferred by sub-section (1) shall not be exerciseable except for the purpose of rescinding an exemption, reduction or modification already made.

61. (1) Any assessee, who is entitled or required to attend before any Income-tax authority in connection with any proceeding under this Act otherwise than when required under section 37 to attend personally for examination on oath or affirmation, may attend by a person authorized by him in writing in this behalf, being a relative of or a person regularly employed by the

NOTES.

Section 61 is amended so as to correct abuses in respect of the representation of assessees. The provisions are self-explanatory and they give the assessee a wide field from which to choose his representative. The amended section does not affect existing Income-tax practitioners, however incompetent, so long as they are not guilty of misconduct in connection with income-tax proceedings.

We have substituted a more accurate revised definition of "accountant". We have also recast sub-section (3) of section 61 of the Act, as amended by the Bill, so as to remove from the Commissioner of Income-tax the power to decide whether a lawyer or an accountant has been guilty of misconduct in connexion with income-tax proceedings. We consider that the authorities ordinarily responsible for disciplinary action in the two professions concerned should deal with such matters as with other questions of discipline in those professions.—Select Committee Report.

NOTES.

Section 64 (3) is amended so as to debar the assessee from questioning the place of assessment after the time allowed by notice under section 22 (1) for submitting a return. Assessee frequently obstruct income-tax proceedings by raising questions of jurisdiction and the amendment is designed to check this practice. The sub-section is also amended so as to make it clear that the Income-tax Officer has to refer to the Commissioner before assessment a question regarding the place of assessment.

THE SCHEDULE.

[See section 10 (7).]

RULES FOR THE COMPUTATION OF THE PROFITS AND GAINS OF INSURANCE BUSINESS.

In the case of any person who carries on, or at any time in the preceding year carried on life insurance business, the profits and gains of such person from that business shall be computed separately from his income, profits or gains from any other business.

2. The profits and gains of life insurance business shall be taken to be either—

(a) the gross external incomings of the preceding year from that business less the management expenses of that year, or

(b) the annual average of the surplus disclosed by the actuarial valuation made for the last inter-valuation period ending before the year for which the assessment is to be made, after adjusting such surplus so as to exclude from it any surplus or deficit included therein which was made in any earlier inter-valuation period and any expenditure other than expenditure which may under the provisions of section 10 of this Act be allowed for in computing the profits and gains of a business,

whichever is the greater:

Provided that the amount to be allowed as management expenses shall not exceed—

(a) 7½ per cent. of the premiums received during the preceding year in respect of single premium life insurance policies, plus

(b) in respect of the first year's premiums received in respect of other life insurance policies for which the number of annual premiums received is less than twelve, or for which the number of years during which premiums are payable is less than twelve, for each such premium or each such year 7½ per cent. of such first year's premiums received during the preceding year, plus

(c) 85 per cent. of the first year's premiums received during the preceding year in respect of other life insurance policies and 8½ per cent. of other premiums received during that year in respect of all life insurance policies other than single premium life insurance policies.

3. In computing the surplus for the purpose of rule 2,—

(a) one-half of the amounts paid to or reserved for or expended on behalf of policyholders shall be allowed as a deduction:

Provided that in the first such computation made under this rule of any such surplus no account shall be taken of any such amounts to the extent to which they are paid out of or in respect of any surplus brought forward from a previous inter-valuation period:

Provided further that if any amount so reserved for policyholders ceases to be so reserved, and is not paid to or expended on behalf of policyholders, one-half of such amount, if it has been previously allowed as a deduction, shall be treated as part of the surplus for the period in which the said amount ceased to be so reserved;

(b) any amount either written off or reserved in the accounts or through the actuarial valuation balance sheet to meet depreciation of or loss on the realisation of securities or other assets, shall be allowed as a deduction, and any sums taken credit for in the accounts or actuarial valuation balance sheet on account of appreciation of or gains on the realisation of the securities or other assets shall be included in the surplus:

Provided that if upon investigation it appears to the Income-tax Officer after consultation with Superintendent of Insurance that having due regard to the necessity for making reasonable provision for bonuses to participating policyholders and for contingencies, the rate of interest or other factor employed in determining the liability in respect of outstanding policies is materially inconsistent with the valuation of the securities and other assets so as artificially to reduce the surplus, such adjustment shall be made to the allowance for depreciation of, or to the amount to be included in the surplus in respect of appreciation of, such securities and other assets, as shall increase the surplus for the purposes of these rules to a figure which is fair and just;

(c) the whole amount of interest received in respect of any securities of the Central Government which have been issued or declared to be income-tax free shall be deducted.

4. Where for any year an assessment is made in accordance with the annual average of a surplus disclosed by a valuation for an inter-valuation period exceeding twelve months, then, in computing the tax payable for that year, credit shall not be given in accordance with sub-section (5) of section 18 for the tax paid in the preceding year, but credit shall be given for the annual average of the income-tax paid by deduction at source from interest on securities or otherwise during such period.

5. For the purposes of these rules—

(i) 'preceding year' means that year for which annual accounts are required to be prepared under the Insurance Act, 1938, immediately preceding the year for which the assessment is to be made or until the commencement of the Insurance Act, 1938, the previous year as defined in section 2 of this Act;

(ii) 'gross external incomings' means the full amount of incomings from interest, dividends, fines and fees and all other incomings from whatever source derived (except premiums received from policyholders and interest and dividends on any annuity fund) and includes also profits from reversions and on the sale or the granting of annuities, but excludes profits on the realisation of securities;

Provided that incomings, including the annual value of the property occupied by the assessee, which but for the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 10 would have been assessable under section 9 shall be computed upon the basis laid down in the last named section, and that there shall be allowed from such gross incomings such deductions as are permissible under that section.

(iii) 'management expenses' means the full amount of expenses (including commissions), incurred exclusively in the management of the business of life insurance, and in the case of a company carrying on other classes of business as well as the business of life insurance in addition thereto a fair proportion of the expenses incurred in the general management of the whole business. Bonuses or other sums paid to or reserved on behalf of policyholders, depreciation of, and losses on the realisation of, securities and any expenditure other than expenditure which may under the provisions of section 10 of this Act be allowed for in computing the profits and gains of a business are not management expenses for the purposes of these rules;

(iv) 'life insurance business' means life insurance business as defined in clause (11) of section 2 of the Insurance Act, 1938;

(v) 'securities' includes stocks and shares.

6. The profits and gains of any business of insurance other than life insurance shall be taken to be the balance of the profits disclosed by the annual accounts, copies of which are required under the Insurance Act, 1938, to be furnished to the Superintendent of Insurance, after adjusting such balance so as to exclude from it any expenditure other than expenditure which may under the provisions of section 10 of this Act be allowed for in computing the profits and gains of a business. Profits and losses on the realisation of investments, and depreciation and appreciation of the value of investments shall be dealt with as provided in rule 3 for the business of life insurance.

7. The profits and gains of companies carrying on dividing society or assessment business shall be taken to be 15 per cent. of the premium income of the previous year, or in the case of non-resident companies 15 per cent. of the British Indian premium income of the previous year.

8. The profits and gains of the British Indian branches of an insurance company not resident in British India, in the absence of more reliable data, may be deemed to be the proportion of the total world income of the company corresponding to the proportion which its British Indian premium income bears to its total premium income. For the purpose of this rule, the total world income of life insurance companies not resident in British India whose profits are periodically ascertained by actuarial valuation shall be computed in the manner laid down in these rules for the computation of the profits and gains of life insurance business carried on in British India.

9. These rules apply to the assessment of the profits of any business of insurance carried on by a mutual insurance company.

PRESENT:—THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS by section one hundred and fifty-nine of the Government of India Act, 1935 (hereafter in this Order referred to as "the India Act") and section one hundred and thirty-six of the Government of Burma Act, 1935 (hereafter in this Order referred to as "the Burma Act") His Majesty is empowered by Order in Council to make provision for the grant of relief from tax where the same income is taxed or taxable both in India and Burma:

AND WHEREAS a draft of this Order has been laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of section three hundred and nine of the India Act and sub-section (1) of section one hundred and fifty-seven of the Burma Act, and an Address has been presented to His Majesty by both Houses of Parliament praying that an Order may be made in the terms of this Order:

NOW, THEREFORE, His Majesty, in the exercise of the said powers and of all other powers enabling Him in that behalf, is pleased by and with the advice of His Privy Council to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows:—

PART I.

INTRODUCTORY AND GENERAL.

1. This Order may be cited as "THE INDIA AND BURMA (INCOME-TAX RELIEF) ORDER", 1936.

2. The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies for the interpretation of this Order as it applies for the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

3. Any reference in this Order to, or to any provisions of, the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall be construed as a reference to that Act or those provisions as for the time being in force in India, as for the time being in force in Burma or as for the time being in force both in India and in Burma, as the context and the circumstances may require, or, if that Act or those provisions have been repealed and re-enacted, either with or without modifications, to the re-enacting Act or provisions as in force as aforesaid.

4. In this Order, "income-tax," or "tax" in relation to India or Burma, means income-tax payable in accordance with the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and includes super-tax so payable; and other expressions have, except where the context otherwise requires, the same meanings as in the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

5. References in this Order to the rate of tax shall—

(a) in relation to India or Burma be construed as references to a rate determined by dividing the amount of income-tax paid in India or Burma, as the case may be, for the year in question (before deduction of any relief granted under section forty-nine of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or under this Order) by the amount of the income on which tax was charged;

(b) in relation to the United Kingdom, mean the appropriate rate of United Kingdom income-tax for the year in question as defined for the purposes of section twenty-seven of the Finance Act, 1920.

6. Any reference in this Order to the lower of two rates shall, where the rates are equal, be construed as a reference to either of those rates, and any reference in this Order to the two lowest of three rates shall, where the three rates are equal, be construed as a reference to any two of them, and where two of the three rates are equal and the third is less, be construed as a reference to the lowest rate and one of the equal rates.

7. This Order shall have effect with respect to the financial year beginning on the date of the commencement of Part III of the India Act and every subsequent financial year:

Provided that if, at any time after the expiration of three years from the commencement of Part III of the India Act, the Governor-General of India gives to the Governor of Burma, or the Governor of Burma gives to the Governor-General of India, notice of his desire that this Order shall cease to operate, the order shall not have effect with respect to any financial year subsequent to the financial year next following that during which the notice is given.

PART II.

RELIEF IN INDIA.

1. If any person who has paid Indian Income-tax for any year on any part of his income proves to the satisfaction of the Income-tax Officer that he has paid for that year Burman income-tax, or Burman income-tax and United Kingdom income-tax, in respect of that part of his income, he shall be entitled to a refund of Indian tax calculated on that part of his income at the appropriate rate of relief.

In this paragraph "appropriate rate of relief" means—

(a) in relation to income taxed in India and Burma and not in the United Kingdom, a rate bearing to the Indian rate of tax or the Burman rate of tax, whichever is the lower, the same proportion as the Indian rate of tax, bears to the sum of the Indian rate of tax and the Burman rate of tax;

(b) in relation to income taxed in India, Burma and the United Kingdom, a rate bearing to the difference between the total rate at which he was entitled to, and obtained, relief in the United Kingdom under section twenty-seven of the Finance Act, 1920, in respect of that income, and the sum of the two lowest of the three rates of tax the same proportion as the Indian rate of tax bears to the sum of the Indian rate of tax and the Burman rate of tax.

2. No refund of tax shall be payable in India under section forty-nine of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, in respect of any income which is taxed under that Act in Burma, and if any such refund is made it shall be repaid.

3. Any sums repayable under the last foregoing paragraph and any sums overpaid by way of refund under this Part of this Order shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of income-tax.

4. No income which an assessee proves to the satisfaction of the Income-tax Officer to have been charged in his hands to income-tax under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for any year preceding the commencement of Part III of the India Act shall be included in India in the assessment of his income for any subsequent year.

5. In the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (other than the provisions of section forty-nine thereof)—

(a) any reference to that Act or to section forty-nine thereof shall be construed as including a reference to this Part of this Order;

(b) any reference to section twenty-seven of the Finance Act, 1920, shall be construed as including a reference to Part III of this Order;

(c) any reference to the United Kingdom in relation to relief under the said section twenty-seven, or in relation to refunds under the said section forty-nine, shall be construed as including a reference to Burma in relation to refunds under Part III of this Order or this part of this Order, as the case may require.

PART III.

RELIEF IN BURMA.

1. If any person who has paid Burman income-tax for any year on any part of his income proves to the satisfaction of the Income-tax Officer that he has paid for that year Indian income-tax, or Indian income-tax and United Kingdom income-tax, in respect of that part of his income, he shall be entitled to a refund of Burman tax calculated on that part of his income at the appropriate rate of relief.

In this paragraph "appropriate rate of relief," means—

(a) in relation to income taxed in Burma and India and not in the United Kingdom, a rate bearing to the Burman rate of tax or the Indian rate of tax, whichever is the lower, the same proportion as the Burman rate of tax bears to the sum of the Burman rate of tax and the Indian rate of tax;

(b) in relation to income taxed in Burma, India and the United Kingdom, a rate bearing to the difference between the total rate at which he was entitled to, and obtained, relief in the United Kingdom under section twenty-seven of the Finance Act, 1920, in respect of that income, and the sum of the two lowest of the three rates of tax the same proportion as the Burman rate of tax bears to the sum of the Burman rate of tax and the Indian rate of tax.

2. No refund of tax shall be payable in Burma under section forty-nine of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, in respect of any income which is taxed under that Act in India, and if any such refund is made it shall be repaid.

3. Any sums repayable under the last foregoing paragraph and any sums overpaid by way of refund under this Part of this Order shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of income-tax.

4. No income which an assessee proves to the satisfaction of the Income-tax Officer to have been charged in his hands to income-tax under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for any year preceding the commencement of the Burma Act, shall be included in Burma in the assessment of his income for any subsequent year.

5. In the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (other than the provisions of section forty-nine thereof)—

(a) any reference to that Act or to section forty-nine thereof shall be construed as including a reference to this Part of this Order;

(b) any reference to section twenty-seven of the Finance Act, 1920, shall be construed as including a reference to Part II of this Order;

NOTE.—The alternatives which are not required in the declaration should be scored out. The signature should be that of the assessee himself if he is an individual, that of a member in the case of a firm or other association of persons, manager or kartha or any adult member in the case of a Hindu undivided family, and of the principal officer in the case of a company or a local authority. The signatory should satisfy himself that the return is correct and complete in every respect before signing the verification.

Notes for guidance in filling up Form No. I. T. 11.—Important changes in the Act* have been made by the Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939 and assesseees are advised to read carefully such of these notes as are appropriate to their cases.

1. On the publication of the notices referred to in section 22 (1) of the Act every person or association of persons whose total income exceeds the maximum amount not chargeable with Income-tax is required to make a return of his total income and his total world income whether or not he has been served with an individual notice under section 22 (2) of that Act. For the year commencing on 1st April, 1939, the maximum amount which is not chargeable to income-tax is as follows:—

In the case of—

Rs.

- (i) Any Court of Wards, Administrator-General, Official Trustee, any Receiver or Manager appointed under any order of a Court, or any trustee or trustees appointed under a

duly executed trust deed, where the income, profits or gains or any part thereof are not specifically receivable on behalf of any one person, or where the individual shares of the persons on whose behalf they are receivable are indeterminate or unknown ..	Nil.
(ii) Any company or local authority ..	Nil.
(iii) Any person, being a British subject or the subject of a State in India or Burma, who is not resident in British India and whose total world income exceeds Rs. 2,000 ..	Nil.
(iv) Any other non-resident person ..	Nil.
(v) Any other individual, Hindu Undivided family, firm or association of persons ..	2000

Total income is the total income chargeable under the Act, and total world income includes all income wherever accruing or arising unless exempted under section 4 (3) of the Act.

2. "Previous year" means for each separate source of income—

- (a) the year ended on 31st March prior to the Income-tax year, or, at the option of the assessee, the year ended on the date (prior to the 31st March) to which his accounts have been made up, or
- (b) the year prescribed by the Central Board of Revenue for any case or class of cases.

Certain conditions attach to the exercise of the option referred to in (a) and certain further conditions govern the determination of "previous year" in respect of a business, profession or vocation newly set up, and these are shown in Clause (11) of section 2 of the Act.

For each source of income for which the previous year does not end on the 31st March, the last date of the previous year should be shown.

3. Sources of income.—The following income must be included in your return under the appropriate head—

(a) So much of the income of your wife as arises directly or indirectly from—

- (i) her membership in a firm of which you are a partner;
- (ii) assets transferred directly or indirectly to her by you otherwise than for adequate consideration or in connection with an agreement to live apart.

(b) So much of the income of your minor child as arises from—

- (i) his (or her) admission to the benefits of partnership in a firm of which you are a partner;
- (ii) assets transferred directly to him (or her) by you otherwise than for adequate consideration unless she is a married daughter.

(c) So much of the income of any person or association of persons as arises from assets transferred to the person or association otherwise than for adequate consideration for the benefit of your wife or minor child or both.

(d) All income arising to any person by virtue of a settlement or disposition whether revocable or not and whether effected before or after the commencement of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, from assets which remain your property, or by virtue of a revocable transfer of assets.

[Section 16 (1) of the Act contains definitions of "revocable" and "Settlement or disposition", and sets out also certain exceptions.]

(e) Income from assets transferred to persons abroad for the purpose of avoiding tax in the circumstances set out in section 44-D.

(f) Income from securities, stocks or shares which have been sold before the date of payment of the interests or dividend and re-purchased subsequently in the circumstances set out in sections 44-E and 44-F.

4. An individual is "resident" in British India if he—

- (i) is in British India in that year for a period amounting in all to one hundred and eighty-two days or more; or
- (ii) maintains or has maintained for him a dwelling place in British India for a period or periods amounting in all to one hundred and eighty-two days or more in that year, and is in British India for any time in that year; or
- (iii) having within the four years preceding that year been in British India for a period or for periods amounting in all to three hundred and sixty-five days or more, is in British India for any time in that year otherwise than on an occasional or casual visit;

A Hindu undivided family, firm or other association of persons is resident in British India unless the control and management of its affairs is situated wholly without British India; and

A company is resident in British India in any year

- (a) if the control and management of its affairs is situated wholly in British India in that year, or
- (b) if its income arising in British India in that year exceeds its income arising without British India in that year.

(a) An individual is "not ordinarily resident" in British India in any year if he has not been resident in British India in nine out of the ten years preceding that year or if he has not during the seven years preceding that year been in British India for a period of, or for periods amounting in all to, more than two years;

(b) A Hindu undivided family is deemed to be "ordinarily resident" in British India if its manager is ordinarily resident in British India;

(c) A Company, firm or other association of persons is "ordinarily resident" in British India if it is resident in British India.

5. Tax already charged or deducted at source.—In this column only British Indian tax should be entered. Supertax deducted at source should be shown separately (unless, in the case of a salaried person, the assessee is unaware of the allocation between Income-tax and Super-tax). In the case of a dividend from a Company the tax to be entered is the net tax appropriate to that part of the dividend which has borne Income-tax and should be calculated at the rate in force for companies for the year in which the dividend was paid. Where this figure of tax is not known, it should be estimated and the word "estimated" written below the figure. The correct figure will then be computed in the Income-tax office. If any tax deducted at source is in excess of the amount on which you are chargeable, the excess will be deducted from any other tax payable by you, provided that certificates of tax deducted are attached to this Return.

6. Salaries includes wages, pensions (if payable anywhere in India including an Indian State), annuities, gratuities, fees, commission, allowances, perquisites, value of rent-free quarters and profits received in lieu of or in addition to salary or wages. The full amount should be entered and not the net amount after deducting income-tax, your provident fund contributions, etc.

Prior to the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, the basis was the amount of salary received in the previous year. It is now the amount actually received or the amount due whether paid or not. An advance of income is to be treated as salary on the date on which the advance is received.

If by the conditions of your employment you are required to spend any sum out of your remuneration wholly, necessarily and exclusively in the performance of your duties you may claim a deduction for such a sum and should give particulars. Travelling expenses from your house to your place of employment are not allowable.

A payment received by an employee from an employer or former employer or from a provident or other fund is taxable to the extent to which it does not consist of the return of your own contributions or interest thereon. Payments made solely as compensation for loss of employment and certain payments from provident funds to which the Provident Funds Act, 1925, applies, from a recognised provident fund or from an approved superannuation fund are exempted.

7. Interest on Securities means interest on promissory notes or bonds issued by the Government of India or any Provincial Government, or the interest on debentures or other securities issued by or on behalf of a local authority or company. The gross amount before deduction of income-tax should be entered.

Entries under this head should be accompanied by the certificate issued by the person paying the interest under section 18 (9) of the Act.

Deductions are allowable in respect of—

(a) commission charged by a banker for collecting the interest;

(b) interest payable on money borrowed for the purpose of investment in the securities except certain interest payable to persons abroad from which tax has not been deducted (see section 8 of the Act for details). Full particulars (in a separate statement if necessary) should be given of any deduction claimed.

8. Property.—The tax is payable under this head in respect of the bona fide annual value of all buildings or lands appurtenant thereto, of which you are the owner, other than such portions of such buildings and lands as you occupy for the purpose of your business, profession or vocation.

9. Business, Profession or Vocation.—You should complete item 4 (a) of Part I, and Parts IV and V of the Return in respect of any business, profession or vocation if you are the sole proprietor or if you are making the Return on behalf of your firm. If you are partner in a registered firm, or if your firm has applied for registration, you must complete item 4 (b) of Part I, and if you are a partner in an unregistered firm you must complete item 4 (c) of Part I.

For the purpose of completing items 4 (b) and 4 (c) of Part I the share of a partner is to be determined as follows:—

- (i) The share is the share to which he was actually entitled during the previous year and not the share to which he was entitled on the date on which the assessment is to be made;
- (ii) it includes all interest (whether on loan or capital account, and whether actually paid or not) and all salary, commission or other remuneration paid, payable or credited to him.

Losses are to be computed in like manner as profits, and the balance of any loss made in the previous year for assessment for the year 1939-40, which cannot be set off wholly against other income of the same year, can be carried forward and set against the profits of the same business, profession or vocation of the following year.

Local authorities.—The income of local authorities which is chargeable to Income-tax is the profits and gains from a trade or business carried on by those authorities other than income arising from the supply of a commodity or service within its own jurisdictional area.

10. Dividends from companies.—The gross amount should be entered after adding to the net sum received Income-tax computed as explained in Note 5 above. Where the exact tax is not known, the estimated tax should be added and the figure of net dividend put in Column 1 followed by the word "net".

11. (a) Agricultural income from land not paying land revenue or local rates to an authority in British India, and all, agricultural income arising abroad (including Indian States and Burma) should be included under this head.

(b) Remittances received by a wife resident in British India from her non-resident husband are deemed to be income accruing in British India and must be included in her return if they are not paid out of income included in her husband's total income.

12. Non-residents.—Income-tax is payable by a non-resident on the total of Section A. If he is a British subject or the subject of a State in India or Burma the Income-tax is computed by reference to the average of rates appropriate to the total of Sections A and C. The income of other non-residents is chargeable at the full company rate. The income of all non-residents is chargeable to super-tax on the total of Section A at the average of the rates appropriate to the total of Sections A and C. A dividend paid without British India is deemed to be income accruing and arising in British India to the extent to which it has been paid out of profits subjected to Income-tax in British India.

13. For the Income-tax year 1939-40 only, tax is not chargeable in respect of both the income accruing or arising outside India in the previous year and the income brought into British India during that year out of income accruing or arising in earlier years but only in respect of the greater of these two amounts. If the latter sum is the greater, Section B (2) should be marked "covered by Section C", and if the former is the greater, section C should be marked "covered by Section B (2)".

14. Sums entered in Part II cannot be deducted from total income, but, subject to the limits laid down in the Act, a deduction will be made in respect of such sums from the Income-tax payable at the average rate for the total income. No deduction from super-tax is given in respect of these sums, except in certain special cases of members of unregistered firms and other association of persons as provided for in the second proviso to section 55.

15. The proviso to section 7 (1) of the Act applies to sums deducted in accordance with the conditions of service for the purpose of securing a deferred annuity or of making provision for the employee's wife or children.

16. Details of the amounts to be entered in respect of a recognised Provident Fund or approved Superannuation Fund should be obtained from the trustees of the fund or from your employer.

17. Part IV.—(a) In computing the profits or gains of a partnership all sums paid or credited to a partner must be disallowed. These sums will be taken into account in allocating the gross income of the business between the partners to ascertain the individual share of each partner. All sums of interest, salary or commission will thus be included in the partner's share of the firm's income and will not be again assessed on that partner as interest, salary or commission respectively.

(b) Attention is particularly drawn to the provisions of section 10 (2) (iii) and section 10 (4) (a) of the Act which prohibits the deduction of any payment of interest chargeable under the Act which is payable without British India except interest on which tax has been paid or from which tax has been deducted, or in respect of which there is an agent who may be assessed under section 43, or any payment chargeable under the head "Salaries" if it is payable without British India and tax has not been deducted. An exception is made in the case of interest on a loan issued for public subscription before 1st April, 1938. These provisions do not apply to interest or salary which is not chargeable to income-tax under the Act, (i.e., interest on money borrowed abroad from a non-resident and not brought into British India in any form whatever, or salary for services rendered wholly abroad by a non-resident).

(c) Depreciation.—The method of calculating depreciation on the written-down value basis instead of on the basis of the cost of the assets does not come into force for the assessment for the year 1939-40 but will come into force from the assessment for 1940-41.

18. General Directions—

(a) The form must be filled in and signed in ink. Losses may be shown in red ink.

N.B.—(a) Income accruing to you outside British India received in British India is liable to taxation, and must be entered by you in the form.

(b) All income, from whatever source derived, must be entered in the form, including income received by you as a partner of a firm.

NOTE 1.—In column 2 should be shown the gross amount of salary and not the net amount after deductions on account of income-tax, provident funds, etc.

NOTE 2.—“Interest on securities” means the interest on promissory notes or bonds issued by the Government of India or a Local Government, or the interest on debentures or other securities for money issued by or on behalf of a local authority or Company. Where income-tax has been deducted from the interest, or where the interest has been paid income-tax free, the amount of tax so deducted or paid should be added to the amount of interest actually received, and the gross amount so arrived at should be entered in column 2 of the statement. The term “interest on securities” does not include interest on fixed deposits or mortgages or other loans, which have to be shown under heading 8.

The interest on securities of the Government of India or of Local Governments declared to be income-tax free should be shown under head 3. Those which are not declared to be income-tax free should be included under this head.

Entries under this head must be supported by the certificate issued by the person or Company paying the interest under section 18 (9) of the Act.

NOTE 3.—(a) The income-tax payable on the interest receivable on a security of a Local Government issued income-tax free is payable by the Local Government and not by the holder of the security.

(b) Only the interest on securities of the Government of India or of a Local Government declared to be income-tax free should be entered against this head. Such interest will not be charged to income-tax, but it must be included in the statement of total income in order to ascertain the rate of income-tax chargeable on other income. It is chargeable to super-tax.

(c) Particulars of any interest on securities issued by other authorities, and stated to be free of income-tax should be entered against head 2, as income-tax on such interest is actually paid by these authorities on behalf of the recipients.

NOTE 4.—The tax is payable under this head in respect of the bona fide annual value of any buildings or lands appurtenant thereto of which you are the owner, other than such portions of such buildings and lands as you may occupy for the purpose of your business.

NOTE 5.—(a) Where you keep your accounts on the mercantile accountancy or book profits system, you must file a return in the following form:—

Income, profits or gains from business, trade, commerce.

	Rs.	As.
Income, profits or gains as per Profit and Loss Account for the year ended 19

State here amount of salary paid to a partner and not added back on the ground that it is not an appropriation of profits ..... Rs. ....

(b) Where you do not keep your accounts on the mercantile accountancy or book profits system but on a cash basis, you must file a statement showing how you arrive at the taxable profits, i.e., showing details of the gross receipts and of the expenditure you propose to set against those receipts specifying separately salary paid to partners and deducted from gross receipts as not being an appropriation of profits. No deductions are permissible on account of—

- (i) Property owned and occupied by the owner of a business for the purposes of a business;
- (ii) Additions to, or alterations, extensions, or improvements of, any of the assets of the business;
- (iii) Interest on the capital of the proprietors or partners of the business;

- (iv) Bad debts not actually written off in the accounts;
- (v) Losses sustained in previous years;
- (vi) Reserves of any kind;
- (vii) Sums paid on account of the income-tax or super-tax or any tax levied by a local authority other than local rates or municipal taxes in respect of the portion of the premises used for the purpose of the business;
- (viii) Any expenditure of the nature of charity or a present;
- (ix) Any expenditure of the nature of capital;
- (x) Any loss recoverable under an insurance or a contract of indemnity;
- (xi) Depreciation of any kind other than that specified in the Act;
- (xii) Drawings or salary of proprietor, drawings of partners and salary of partners if it be an appropriation of profits;
- (xiii) Private or personal expenses of the assessee;
- (xiv) Any expenditure of any kind which is not incurred solely for the purpose of earning the profits.

If you have included any such sums in your expenditure in your books, you must exclude them from the expenditure permissible for the purpose of arriving at your taxable profits.

(c) You are also required to attach a statement showing the sums charged in your accounts under the provisions of section 58-K (2).

NOTE 6.—The income, profits or gains shall be computed after making allowance for any expenditure (not being in the nature of capital expenditure) incurred solely for the purpose of such profession or vocation, provided that no allowance is made on account of any of your personal expenses. Professional fees received by you in any part of India (whether within British India or not) must be included by you in your receipts.

NOTE 7.—Income-tax chargeable on the profits of companies is paid by the Companies, so that the dividends received by the shareholders represent the net amount remaining after any Income-tax due by the company has been paid. This amount should be entered in column 2 of the statement. The proportionate tax will be added in the Income-tax Office.

If the rate of tax applicable to your total income is less than the rate of tax applicable to the profits or gains of the Company at the time of the declaration of such dividends, you may, by attaching the Company's certificate received with the dividends, have the excess collected on your dividends from the Company set against the tax payable by you on your other income instead of having to apply separately for a refund.

NOTE 8.—Agricultural income from land not paying land revenue or local rates to an authority in British India should be included under this head or under income from business according to circumstances.

NOTE 9.—Deductions from total income can only be made for insurance premia in respect of insurance on your own life or on the life of your wife, or in respect of a contract for a deferred annuity on your own life or on the life of your wife. No deduction is permissible in the case of any other form of insurance except in the case of Hindu undivided families where deductions are permissible on account of premia paid in respect of insurance on the life of any male member of the family or of his wife. 6. An applicant for refund under these rules may appeal to the Appellate Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax from any order of the Income-tax Officer disallowing the claim for refund either wholly or in part.

7. The appeal shall be presented within thirty days of the date on which the order of the Income-tax Officer was communicated to the applicant, and shall, as far as circumstances permit, be in Form II appended to these rules.

RELIEF FROM MYSORE INCOME-TAX.

I. Relief in respect of salaries.—The Government of India have provided by executive order that their servants who are liable to tax in any Indian State may deduct the amount of the tax paid to the Indian State from the tax which they are liable to pay to the Government of India.

II. Relief from double income-tax in respect of pensions.—The Government of India have agreed that the existing arrangement whereby relief from double income-tax is afforded in respect of the salaries of the servants of the Government of India and the Mysore Government should be extended to pensions of retired officials of the Government of India and of the Mysore Government. According to this arrangement which came into effect from 1st July, 1924, British pensioners residing in Mysore will pay to the Mysore Government the tax on their income and to the British Indian Government only the difference between the British Income-tax payable on the pension and the tax levied thereon in Mysore; while Mysore pensioners living in British India will pay tax only to the Government of India and will pay no tax to Mysore Government on their pensions so long as the Mysore rates are lower than those of British India.

III. Relief from double income-tax in respect of business.—The Government of India have agreed that in the case of businesses whose headquarters are in British India but which have branches in Mysore or carry on business in Mysore, a deduction shall be made from the Indian Income-tax payable on the profits of such businesses of the amount of Mysore Income-tax that would be payable on such portion of the same profits as appear to the Income-tax Officer in British India to be due to transactions in Mysore. Businesses with headquarters in Mysore which have branches or dealings in British India should be assessed by the Income-tax authorities in British India to the full amount of Indian Income-tax due on the profits in British India only.

IV. Relief from double income-tax on dividends and professional earnings.—Relief from double income-tax of incomes taxed both in Mysore and in British India in respect of dividends and income from professions and vocations.

(1) As regards dividends, the Government within whose jurisdiction tax is charged on the profits out of which a dividend is paid, will retain the tax on the part of those profits represented by the dividend and will allow such refund on the dividend as may be due under the provisions of its Income-tax Law, corresponding to section 48 of the Indian Income-tax Act, while the Government in whose jurisdiction the dividend is received will include it in the total income of the assessee concerned for the purpose of fixing the rate of and the liability to tax, but will waive its claim to levy tax in respect of the dividend.

(2) As regards income derived from the practice of a profession or vocation, the Government within whose jurisdiction it arises or accrues will tax it, while the Government in whose jurisdiction it is received will include it in the total income of the assessee for the purpose of determining liability to, and the rate of, tax provided that—

- (i) the income earned in Mysore by a resident in British India or in British India by a resident in Mysore shall be charged to tax in British India or Mysore, as the case may be, if it has not already been, or will not be, charged to tax in Mysore or British India;
- (ii) in cases where such professional earnings have been or will be taxed in Mysore or in British India, they shall be taken into account for the calculation of total income in British India or Mysore whether received in British India or Mysore. The object of proviso (i) is to tax in British India incomes which fall below the taxable limit in Mysore and of proviso (ii) to include in the total income (i.e., to fix the rate of tax) incomes which may be received in Mysore in the first instance and may be brought subsequently into British India and vice versa.

N.B.—"Part of his income" (India).

"His income from any source" (Ceylon).

Relief of half the smaller tax (both countries).

(1) As the British Indian Notification No. 14 (Finance Department—Central Revenues), dated the 2nd April, 1932, is drafted, relief is to be allowed in British India "on that part of the income on which relief is admissible under the Ceylon Income-tax law". The practical result of this is that the expressions "part of his income" in the Indian notification, and "his income from any source" in the Ceylon Ordinance, refer to the same thing, and the British Indian relief is automatically regulated by the Ceylon relief.

The British Indian and Ceylon authorities alike will ignore in granting relief all differences between the computation of the income in the two countries due to—

- (a) Certain expenses being allowed in one country and not in the other.
- (b) The allowances for depreciation being higher in one country than in the other.
- (c) Depreciation being carried forward in one country and not in the other.
- (d) Losses being carried forward in one country and not in the other.
- (e) The fact that assessment is made on the "income arising" in one country and on "remittances" in the other.
- (f) The fact that the assessments are based on different accounting periods in the two countries.
- (g) Where a Tea Estate is taxed on 40 per cent. of its profits in British India and on the whole profits in Ceylon, there will be only one source of income from the Ceylon point of view and the relief allowed in each country will be half the lower amount of tax ignoring this difference in the basis of assessment.

(2) No relief can be given unless tax is paid for the same year in each country on the source in question, e.g., in the first year of a business, tax will be levied on its profits in Ceylon but not in British India; in the year after a business ceases, its profits will be liable to tax in British India but not in Ceylon. No relief can be given in these cases.

"ANY PERSON".

(1) In Ceylon, the income of married women is treated as that of their husbands. If the wife is separately assessed in British India, on the same income she will be entitled to relief in British India.

(2) Partnership.—Ceylon charges tax on individual partners and not on partnerships at all. No difficulty will arise in British India in regard to registered Firms. If partners of an unregistered firm are assessed in Ceylon and the firm is assessed in India, the partners will be entitled to relief in British India and direct assessments should be made on them for the purpose.

SHAREHOLDERS.

(1) A resident in India has dividends from a Company in Ceylon from which Ceylon tax is deducted at source. He is assessed in India on those dividends, as may in certain circumstances happen.

He will be entitled to relief in India.

(2) A resident in Ceylon is a shareholder in an Indian Company and is taxed on its dividends in Ceylon. The Company is taxed only in India. Ceylon will regard him as having suffered Indian tax indirectly. He will be entitled to relief in India.

(40) When in any year an assessee has ceased to be an employee participating in a recognised Provident Fund and has been declared by the employer maintaining the Fund not to be eligible to receive the whole of the accumulated balance due to him, so much of his income as is assessable for that year shall be exempted from income-tax and shall be excluded from the computation of his total income for the purposes of the said Act as is equivalent to so much of the accumulated balance due to him as has not been paid or is not payable to him, and if such amount exceeds the amount of his income in that year, so much of his income in the following year or years as is equal to the amount of such excess shall be so exempted and excluded in such year or years.

(41) Income of a Service Fund derived from interest on Government securities or interest on funds deposited with the Central or any Provincial Government.

For the purpose of this exemption, a Service Fund means a fund established under the authority of, or with the permission of, the Central or any Provincial Government for the purpose of securing deferred annuities to the subscribers, or payments to them in the event of their resignation or dismissal from the service in which they are employed, or provision for their wives or children after their death, or payments to their estate or their nominees upon their death; to which servants of the Crown are alone admissible as subscribers or members and the funds of which are either deposited with the Central or any Provincial Government or invested in Government Securities.

II. Incomes included in total income but exempt from Income-tax.

- (1) The interest on Government securities purchased through the Post Office, and held in the custody of the Accountant-General, Posts and Telegraphs, provided that the exemption shall apply only to interest on securities so held on account of any one assessee up to a face value of Rs. 22,500.

This shall cease to have effect in respect of interest paid after the 31st March, 1939.

- (2) Sums received by an assessee on account of salary, bonus, commission, or other remuneration for services rendered, or in lieu of interest on money advanced, to a person for the purposes of his business, where such sums have been paid out of, or determined with reference to, the profits of such business, and, by reason of such mode of payment or determination, have not been allowed as a deduction but have been included in the profits of the business on which income-tax has been assessed and charged under the head "business":

Provided that such sums shall not be exempt from the payment of super-tax unless they are paid to the assessee by a person other than a company and have already been assessed to super-tax.

- (3) The profits of any Co-operative Society other than the Sanikatta Salt-owners' Society in the Bombay Presidency for the time being registered under the Co-operative Societies Act, 1912 (II of 1912), the Bombay Co-operative Societies Act, 1925, (Bombay Act VII of 1925), the Burma Co-operative Societies Act, 1927 (Burma Act VI of 1927) or the Madras Co-operative Societies Act, 1932 (Madras Act VI of 1932), or the dividends or other payments received by the members of any such Society out of such profits.

Explanation.—For this purpose the profits of a Co-operative Society shall not be deemed to include any income, profits or gains from—

- "(1) investments in (a) securities of the nature referred to in section 8 of the Indian Income-tax Act, or (b) property of the nature referred to in section 9 of that Act;

- (2) dividends, or
- (3) the 'other sources' referred to in section 12 of the Indian Income-tax Act."
- (4) Such part of the profits or gains of a firm which has discontinued its business, profession or vocation as is proportionate to the share of an assessee in the firm at the time of such discontinuance, if income-tax has at any time been charged on such business, profession or vocation under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1918 (VII of 1918), or if an assessment has been made on the firm in respect of such profits or gains under sub-section (1) of section 25 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922).

- (1) So much of the income of any Investment Trust Company as is derived from dividends paid by any other Company which has paid or will pay super-tax in respect of the profits out of which such dividends are paid.

Explanation.—For this purpose an investment trust company means a company in respect of which the Governor-General in Council is satisfied that—

- (i) it is a company having for its principal business the acquisition and holding of investments in the stocks, shares, bonds, debentures or debenture-stocks of other companies or in securities issued by public authorities,
- (ii) it is not a company formed for the purpose of, or engaged in, acquiring or exercising control over any other company or group of companies or enabling any other persons to acquire or exercise such control,

MODIFICATIONS.

1. Where, owing to the fact that the total income of an assessee has reached or exceeded a certain limit, he is liable to pay super-tax or to pay super-tax at a higher rate, the amount payable by him on account of income-tax and super-tax shall, where necessary, be reduced so as not to exceed the aggregate of the following amounts, namely:—

- (a) the amount which would have been payable on account of income-tax and super-tax if his total income had been a sum less by one rupee than that limit, and
- (b) the amount by which his total income exceeds that sum.

2. Allowances in assessing profits of railway or tramway business.—
The following modification has been made in respect of income-tax in favour of income derived from railway or tramway business (other than an electric tramway):—

An assessee deriving income from a railway or tramway business may at his option require that in computing the profits or gains of such business the following allowance shall be made in lieu of the allowances specified in clause (v), clause (vi) and clause (vii) of sub-section (2) of section 10 of the said Act, namely, the actual expenditure incurred by the assessee during the previous year on repairs, replacements and renewals of plant, machinery, buildings and furniture which are the property of the assessee.

Provided that an assessee who in any year has exercised the option hereinbefore conferred shall not be entitled save with the consent of the Commissioner of Income-tax to withdraw that option in any subsequent year.

Provided further that nothing in this notification shall apply to an electric tramway.
