PREFACE

TO THE ORIGINAL EDITION, WITH SOME UNIMPORTANT OMISSIONS.

IN concluding this undertaking, * * * * little more remains than to indicate the plan upon which the GAZETTEER has been written, and to note some particulars respecting its production.

A leading aim throughout has been to maintain a proper medium between those works which give lengthy and elaborate articles, and consequently treat of a comparatively small number of places, and those which, by giving very short meagre articles, often little better than registers of positions, are enabled to include an immense number of places. While in the number of articles the IMPERIAL GAZETTEER greatly exceeds works of the former, it does not fall much short of works of the latter class; for, by a rigid exclusion of irrelevant matter, by carefully avoiding the repetition of information in articles relating to the same subjects, though necessarily arranged under different heads, and by adopting a concise style of writing, space has been found, generally speaking, to notice all known towns having not less than 1000 inhabitants, and many even of a smaller population, besides including the needful articles on countries, seas, lakes, rivers, mountain-ranges, &c.

To facilitate the labour of consultation, the Editor has endeavoured to construct all the articles upon a uniform plan. In those on TOWNS, first the position is given, then a description and enumeration of the principal buildings and institutions, followed by an account of the manufactures and trade, and closed, where needful, with succinct historical notices; the population being always at the end. In the articles on COUNTRIES, first the position, boundaries, and general features are noticed; then, in suitable detail, the mountains and valleys, lakes, rivers, climate, natural products, manufactures, trade, people, manners and customs, language and literature, government, army and navy, &c.; and, at the end, the chief facts in their history. All these subjects, however, are not treated of under separate headings in the articles on every country; but, where they are, they will be found generally to follow in the order above indicated, and where they are not, the subjects at least will usually be found adverted to pretty much in the same sequence.

In fulfilment of the promise made in the Prospectus to consult, in the compilation, the most recent and authentic works, both home and foreign, reference may with confidence be made to the authorities quoted at the end of the articles. That these authorities have not been more uniformly appended as the Work advanced, was owing wholly to the urgent demands upon the allotted space by the accumulation of materials, and the fear of still further increasing the extent of the book. Besides the use that has been made of several public libraries, a private library, extending to nearly 2500 volumes, has been collected exclusively for the compilation of the IMPERIAL GAZETTEER, including works in French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese, German, Dutch, Danish, and Swedish.

In countries whose languages are written in the Roman or Gothic character, the spelling adopted of the names of places is, generally speaking, that used by the natives themselves. To this rule, however, there are numerous and notable exceptions: thus, for instance, while there has been no hesitation in writing Nürnberg for Nuremberg, Württemberg for Wirtemberg, Nijmegen for Nymwegen, Leipzig and Danzig for Leipsic and Dantzic, it was deemed inexpedient to write Livorno for Leghorn, Torino for Turin, Firenze for Florence, &c., though in cases like these, where an English name is used as the leading word in the article, the true native name is usually appended in brackets. In countries, the languages of which are not written in the Roman or Gothic character, the attainment of uniformity of spelling is impracticable. Linguists of the same country are not at one as to the orthography of sounds, and those of different countries spell them according to the canon of pronunciation of their native language; thus the sound of sh in the English word shall would, by a Frenchman, be written ch; by a German, sch; by an Italian, sci; by a Swede, sk or sj, &c., rendering a strict inquiry into the nationality of the writer necessary when interpreting his orthography.

The Editor has much pleasure in acknowledging the valuable assistance he has received from William Desborough Cooley, Esq., F.R.G.S., author of Inner Africa Laid Open, &c. &c.; G. S. Brent, Esq., F.R.G.S.; Henry Beveridge, Esq., Advocate; Sir Robert H. Schomburgk, author of Reisen in Guiana und am Orinoko, &c., British Consul in Santo Domingo; and without further particularizing, his best thanks are cordially returned to those gentlemen, both in this country and in foreign countries, who kindly revised the articles on the places of their residence or their nativity, including many of the most important towns both at home and abroad; and to those very numerous correspondents, in all parts of Scotland, England, and Ireland, who, by obligingly furnishing replies to the Schedule of Queries submitted to them respecting the place of their residence, supplied an amount of accurate information that has greatly enhanced the value of the GAZETTEER.

The PICTORIAL ILLUSTRATIONS, 567 in number, were selected by and executed under the superintendence of Mr. Robert Blackie, one of the Publishers. They are derived partly from original drawings, but principally from engravings and expensive illustrated works; the authorities from which they are taken are given under the titles of the subjects. While these authorities serve to authenticate the drawings, they also indicate where further illustrations of the same localities are likely to be found; and by thus showing the great variety of sources from which the views have been derived, give a slight idea of the extensive research undertaken in collecting them, the entire series forming only a small selection from the large mass of materials and authorities which have been accumulated and consulted for the purposes of illustration. Preference having been given to views published in the countries to which they relate, as likely to be the most authentic, works published in France, Switzerland, Spain, Italy, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Norway, Russia, Hungary, the United States, India, and the British Colonies, have thus been laid under contribution. The small MAPS and PLANS, 172 in number, were drawn and engraved by William Hughes, F.R.G.S., and reproduced for surface-printing by glyphography, of which art they furnish very successful specimens.

* * * * *

In conclusion, the Editor indulges the hope that the IMPERIAL GAZETTEER will be deemed no unimportant contribution to the collected geographical knowledge of the present day, and that the efforts made to render it a Standard Work of Reference have not been altogether without success.

PREFACE

TO THE SUPPLEMENT AND FIRST REVISED EDITION.

SINCE the time that the publication of the IMPERIAL GAZETTEER was completed, very extensive additions have been made to our knowledge of various parts of the world. Africa—Southern, Central, and Eastern—has been opened up greatly by Livingstone, Barth, Richardson, Overweg, Vogel, Baikie, Andersson, Burton, Speke, Grant, Baker, and other travellers. The journeys of the Gregories, Macdouall Stuart, Landsborough, the unfortunate Burke and Wills, M'Kinlay, and others, have changed our ideas regarding the interior of Australia, hitherto supposed to be covered with salt scrub, hard-baked mud, or burning sands, and have shown that immense tracts are suited for the abode of the hardy settler, and capable of grazing countless flocks of sheep and herds of cattle. In Eastern Asia the Russians have augmented our knowledge of the lands bordering the mighty river Amoor; the British and French expeditions to China, and the researches of intrepid travellers, have increased our information regarding the features, the products, and the people of the Middle Kingdom; while in the Arctic regions, new islands, straits, and seas have been added to our maps by the numerous daring explorers who endeavoured to track the course and solve the fate of the lamented Franklin. Much has been done likewise to increase our knowledge of the less known parts of North and South America; and short but sanguinary continental wars have brought about extensive changes in the political geography of Central and Southern Europe.

In compiling the SUPPLEMENT, thus rendered necessary by the progress of discovery, all the valuable works of travel, home and foreign, that have appeared in recent years have been consulted, and also the more important geographical and other periodicals published in this country, and in France, Germany, and America; and considerable additions of noteworthy facts have been obtained through the kindness of private correspondents.

* * * * *

The plan adopted in the SUPPLEMENT is identical with that of the GAZETTEER. The descriptions and accounts have been taken almost solely from original authorities, and confined as far as possible to statements of fact; opinions and suppositions, as such, being studiously and uniformly excluded. Indeed, geographical conjectures are so frequently found in experience to require subsequent modification, that it would be contrary to the design of such a work as the IMPERIAL GAZETTEER to record matters which a few months or years after may prove to be really non-existent. The object has been simply to collect ascertained and tested facts, and to arrange them in such a manner as to give the substance of all that is known respecting the places treated of. And in compassing this object, no labour, or time, or expense has been spared.

The Editor desires to express his deep obligations to several gentlemen who have rendered valuable assistance in the compilation of the SUPPLEMENT—more especially to the Rev. W. B. FINDLAY, M.A., Rector of Etherly, who, besides writing many articles, scrutinized the MS. with the eye of an accomplished geographer, and greatly facilitated the work of revision—to the late HENRY BEVERIDGE, Author of the “Comprehensive History of India,” who supplied a large number of important articles—to SAMUEL MOSSMAN, late editor of the “North China Herald,” and author of “China,” “Our Australian Colonies,” &c., who contributed most of the articles on Chinese and Japanese localities—to WILLIAM HUGHES, F.R.G.S., for contributions on African and Australian geography—and to friends at home and abroad who have sent information respecting the localities in which they reside, or with which they are intimately acquainted.

PREFATORY NOTE

TO SECOND REVISED EDITION.

In the edition of the IMPERIAL GAZETTEER now brought to a completion very extensive changes have been made, rendered necessary by the progress of geographical discovery, the changes of political boundaries, and the expansion and development of commerce. Numerous articles have been altered, many re-written or extensively changed, and not a few new articles have been added. Many of the small maps and plans have been altered, and a goodly number re-engraved in an improved form, and improvements have likewise been made in the pictorial illustrations both by substitution and addition.

Extensive and rapid as have been the additions made to our knowledge of the earth's surface in recent years, it is believed that the IMPERIAL GAZETTEER, as now completed, may fairly claim to exhibit a satisfactory view of our present state of geographical information.

GLASGOW, Nov. 1872.

W. G. BLACKIE

Note.—In subsequent reprints the sheets have been carefully examined, and such changes have been made in populations, statistics, &c., as seemed needful to keep the articles abreast of the times.

MARKED LETTERS.

The subjoined marked letters, used in the names of various foreign places, should be sounded as follows:—

ä in German, Swedish, and Danish names, as a in fate.

ö in German, Swedish, and Danish names, as eu in the French word peu.

There is no equivalent for this sound in English. It is common, however, in Scotch, and is the same as oo in smoor, or ui in muir, puir.

ii in German, Swedish, and Danish names, similar to the French u.

The same remark applies to this as to o. The sound is a sort of compound between that of ó and e, as in me.

å in Swedish names, nearly like oa in boat.

ñ in Spanish names, as French gn, or resembling n-ny, as Baños, pronounce Ban-nyos.

ç in French, Spanish, and Portuguese names, as c soft ão in Portuguese, something resembling oung.

DISTANCES, MEASURES, HEIGHTS, POSITIONS, &c.

Distances are given in British statute miles, and are to be understood as direct, unless otherwise expressed.

The area of countries, islands, &c., is given in square statute miles, unless explicitly stated to be in geographical miles. In smaller tracts, as counties, the area is given in imperial acres.

1 statute mile	=	1760 yds.
1 geo. mile	=	2025½ yds.
1 sq. mile	=	640 aerea.
1 geo sq m.	=	1·324 sq statute miles.
10 geo. sq miles	=	13·240 or 13½ nearly.

Foreign monies, weights, and measures, are reduced to British standards.

Degrees of heat are expressed according to Fahrenheit's thermometer.

Soundings, in the small maps of ports and roadsteads, are in fathoms.

Longitudes are always E. or W. from Greenwich.

For latitudes and longitudes, three special authorities have been consulted, besides maps, namely:—

Tables of Maritime Positions, in 'The Practice of Navigation and Nautical Astronomy,' by Henry Raper, Lieut. R.N. London, 1849.

Verzeichniss Geographischer Ortsbestimmungen nach den neusten Quellen, mit Angabe derselben, von C. L., v. Littrow. Leipzig, 1844; Wien, 1845.

Tables des principales positions Geographiques du Globe, &c., par Ph. J. Coulier. Paris, 1823.

Generally speaking, a preference has been given to the tables of Raper and Littrow; but wherever a position has been taken from any of the three works, it is indicated by the letter (R.), (L.), or (C.), following the longitude. Very many positions, however, have no distinctive letter attached to them. These are either not to be found in any of the Tables above referred to, or, for some special reason, it has been deemed better to give them on the authority of the traveller or navigator from whom the information on the locality has been derived; unless, indeed, which is frequently the case, the only authority for them be the map

ORTHOGRAPHY

The orthography of foreign names, as printed in English, is proverbially irregular. In the case of European countries having languages written in Roman or Gothic characters, this irregularity arises from two causes; either from adopting the name of a locality in one country through the medium of the language of another; for instance, Mayence, the French form, in place of Mentz, the usual English form, or Mainz, the correct German form of the well-known town of that name on the Rhine; or from the writer not being acquainted with the language of the country in which the locality indicated is situated. As regards countries whose languages are not written in Roman or Gothic characters, the difference of orthography has in a great measure arisen from the arbitrary methods adopted to produce the desiderated sounds—a point on which even distinguished linguists are at variance. Here also, as in the former case, still further irregularity is produced, by adopting the names of localities in such countries through the medium of some foreign continental language; for instance, Jidda is frequently written according to the French form, Djidda; Jebel, in the same way, becomes Djebel; and the sound represented in English by oo in moon, or u in bull, invariably becomes ou in names adopted from French authorities.

The result of all this confusion necessarily is, that the Gazetteer is often consulted in vain, in consequence of the name being looked for under a different spelling from that which has been adopted by the compiler.

To assist the inquirer, as far as possible, in finding his way out of this orthographical labyrinth, a list is subjoined of the interchangeable letters and combinations of letters of most frequent occurrence. It will, therefore, be understood, that when a name in which any one of the following letters, or combinations of letters, occurs, is sought for in the Gazetteer, and not found, that it should be looked for under each, or all, of the other combinations, before it is presumed that it has been omitted:—

x, j, g, in Spanish names, are frequently used for each other; as Xerez for Jerez, Alagueta for Alajuela, Guadalajara for Guadalajara, and vice versa.

Letters are sometimes doubled in words; as Arriege for Ariege, Afghanistan for Afghanistan.

ou, u, and oo, are frequently used in writing the same name; as Soudan, Sudan, Soodan; or Moultan, Multan, Mooltan.

tch, and tsch, is used for ch, sounded as in church; as Tchang for Chang.

c is very frequently used for k, and vice versa; as Calundborg for Kallundborg.

ch, and tch, for cz; as Chernigov and Tchernigov for Czernigov.

Dj, for j; as Djebel for Jebel.

i for e, and ee; as Tabriz for Tabreez.

j for g, soft; as Arjish for Argish.

kh, for k; as Khokan for Kokan.

sch, for sh.

y, for i, j, or e, and vice versa; as Yekaterinodar for Ekaterinodar or Iekaterinodar, and Yalta for Ialta or Jalta.

In the terminal syllable of many Russian names, v, w, and f, or ff, are used interchangeably; as Azov, Azow, Azof, Azoff.

When the name of a place is composed of two words, it will usually be found under the most important and distinctive of the two. Thus, St. Andrews will be found under Andrews (St.), and not under St. Andrews. The same rule, with exceptions of course, holds good of names beginning with Cape, Port, San, and Santo, the latter two being the same as the English Saint. In consulting the Gazetteer, it will be well to observe, that if the place be not found registered under the one word of the name, to look for it under the other; for instance, Port Essington, if not found under Essington, look under Port, and vice versa; Cape of Good Hope, if not found under Cape, look under Good Hope, and if not there, look under Hope.

PRONUNCIATION.

A complete pronunciation of the names of places in the Imperial Gazetteer would have been a very useful addition to the work, and under this impression the subject was carefully considered; but the difficulties of accomplishing it in a satisfactory manner having been found insuperable, it was necessarily abandoned.

There are two ways of pronouncing foreign names:—

1. According to the idiom of the English language.
2. According to the idiom of the language to which they belong.

If the first be adopted, who is to decide in what way a word is to be pronounced? The sounds of the English vowels are so various and uncertain, that the same name might, with perfect propriety, be sounded several ways, and yet each be in strict accordance with the canon of English pronunciation. For example, take Altenkirchen, the name of several places in Prussia, Bavaria, Nassau, and Oldenburg. The name means 'old churches,' and might be pronounced with the a as in fate, the i as in pine, and the ch as in church; or the a might be as in father, the i as in pin, and the ch as in chord; or the a might be as in wall, and the e, in either case, as in me or in met, or one way in alten and another in kirchen. The German pronunciation would be a as in wall, e as in met, i as in pin, and ch as in the Scotch word loch, there being no sound equivalent to it in English. If difficulties so great present themselves with simple German words, what will be said of such polysyllabic intricacies as Ootaguesquegamookook, Alagaguesgamook, &c., names of lakes in Maine, United States of America?

If, on the other hand, the second plan be preferred, as being undoubtedly the more correct, two difficulties again occur:—the first of which is the high improbability, to say the least of it, of meeting with an individual gifted with a knowledge of all the languages in the world, or even a limited number of individuals possessing that knowledge amongst them, without which the scheme could not be fully and perfectly carried out.—The second difficulty is equally insuperable. Supposing a number of individuals to be met with, collectively possessing the requisite qualification, how could they convey to the reader even the remotest idea of many of the sounds, there being no equivalent for them in the English language? From the simple ö or ch of the German, the rough guttural gr of the Dutch, the nasal ão of the Portuguese, or the u of the Swedish, to the chuck or click of the Bojesman, the number of sounds, of which it would be utterly impossible to give the most distant conception by means of any collocation of letters known in our language, is so great, as to render a successful attempt to indicate the correct pronunciation of many thousands of foreign names utterly hopeless.

The most successful attempt to supply this unquestionable desideratum in our literature, as far as we have seen, is the Pronouncing Vocabulary of Modern Geographical Names, by Professor Porter, of Yale College, United States. This vocabulary has been reprinted in the Supplement to the Imperial Dictionary, to which work such of our readers as wish to investigate the subject of pronunciation are referred.
