No. 1619 OF 1879.

To

THE COMMISSIONER, S.D.

Kalghatgi 25th April 1879.

SIR,

I have the honour to forward, for the sanction and approval of Government, the Survey Commissioner's report (No. 374 of 1879, dated the 19th instant) containing his proposals for the revision rates of the villages comprising the old Dhárwár Táluka.

2. The steady decrease of the area of waste lands and the increase of the net revenue since the first settlement in 1849* shows that its effect has been most favourable to the prosperity of the rayats.
- *See paras. 54 and 56 of the Survey Commissioner's report.

3. I consider that the maximum dry-crop rate for the six groups of villages in this táluka, which are now proposed in the 41st para. of the Survey Commissioner's report, is a legitimate increase of assessment over the maximum rates assessed by Captain Wingate, taking into consideration the fact that grain has increased in value more than 100 per cent. since the date of Captain Wingate's assessment (see para. 30 of the Survey Commissioner's report). The prices prevailing during the last eighteen months are said to be 300 per cent. higher than the prices at the time of the first settlement; but as they have been abnormally high, owing to the failure of the monsoon in 1876 in this zilla and the Southern Marátha Country generally, the Survey Commissioner rightly points out that these prices cannot be expected to prevail in future years.

4. The maximum rates for rice lands appears to be a very moderate and reasonable increase on those fixed by Captain Wingate, and this increase, the Survey Commissioner points out, will only have a material effect on the better class of rice lands such as is cultivated with sugar-cane in triennial rotation.

5. The average increase of 7-8 pies per acre upon the whole of the Government occupied land, as shown in para. 55 of the Survey Commissioner's report, must be admitted to be exceedingly moderate, and one very favourable to the prosperity of the rayats during the duration of the settlement, of which the rates are now submitted for the sanction of Government.

6. There is no doubt but that the railway communication by the Kárwár, Hubli and Bellary line, which the Survey Commissioner has advocated in the 60th para. of his report, will do more for the well-being of the people in this district than any other measure which could be devised; it will also be a preventive against the distress arising from unusually high prices of grain such as prevailed during the famine of 1876-77 until after a long delay grain was imported at Kárwár and sent up-country.

I have, &c.

TO

THE CHIEF SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,

Bombay.

Belgaum, 17th May 1879,

SIR,

I have the honour to forward the papers, marginally noted, relative to the proposals for the revision of the assessment of the old Dharwár Táluka, which comprised 134 villages, at present distributed as follows:—

Collector's letter No. 1619 of 25th April 1879.

Survey and Settlement Commissioner's report, No 374 of 19th April, with accompaniment.

Dhárwár Táluka	129
Kaládgi do.	2
Hubli do.	1
Parasgad do. of the Belgaum District	2
Total	134

2. According to the statistics furnished by the Deputy Superintendent, Revenue Survey, the population of the tract under notice has decreased within a generation by $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. This decrease the Survey Commissioner attributes to—(1) emigration from the western parts into the adjacent villages of Kánara and the Bidi Táluka of Belgaum, and (2) the prevalence of fever during the months following the monsoon between 1860 and 1868. It is doubtful whether the people could have found it advantageous to shift into districts offering no attractions for permanent residence, and notoriously unhealthy. It is probable that the decrease is chiefly owing to climatic influences. There is a deadly type of fever which has been hanging about the district for years past, which seems to defy medical science.

3. The considerable decrease in the number of agricultural cattle and other animals, noticed in para. 25 of the Survey Commissioner's report, is also an unfavourable feature in the history of the taluka during the settlement.

4. On the other hand, it is satisfactory to note that during the period of the settlement now expiring, the condition of the taluka has immensely improved, and the people have greatly benefited by the increased facilities of communications and the rise in prices of all agricultural produce.

5. For the purposes of revision settlement the Survey Commissioner has divided the taluka into six groups, in the manner detailed in para. 41; and the maximum dry-crop rates proposed, as shown below, seem, under the present favourable circumstances, to be fairly moderate:—

Maximum Dry-crop Rate for	Present.			Proposed.			Increase.
	Rs.	a.	p.	Rs.	a.	p.	Rs.	a.	p.
1st Class	2	4	0	3	0	0	0	12	0
2nd do.	2	0	0	2	10	0	0	10	0
3rd do.	1	12	0	2	6	0	0	10	0
4th do.	1	8	0	2	0	0	0	8	0
5th do.	1	1	6	1	10	0	0	8	6
6th do.	0	14	0	1	4	0	0	6	0

6. For the rice lands, in the place of Captain Wingate's maximum rates of Rs. 8 and 7, the Survey Commissioner proposes to adopt three rates, viz., Rs. 9 for the first and second groups, Rs. 8 for the third and fourth, and Rs. 7-8-0 for the remaining two. The increase of Re. 1 on Captain Wingate's maximum, which the Survey Commissioner states "will only have a material effect upon the better description of rice land which bears sugarcane in triennial rotation," will affect no less than 65 villages, of which the majority form the eastern portion of the taluka; and as the rain-fall is considered to be "certain and sufficient for the best kinds of dry-crop cultivation" only, and not for rice, there seems no sufficient reason for the increase proposed.

7. It may not be out of place to draw attention to para. 72 of Captain Wingate's report,* from which it will be seen that the old Dhárwár Táluka was over-assessed at the first survey settlement introduced in 1825-26, and also to para. 46 of the Survey Commissioner's report, wherein he observes that this táluka "was assessed by Captain Wingate at rates somewhat higher than those imposed by him in previously settled tálukas to the southward." Under these circumstances it seems but fair that the maximum rate for rice lands should not be in excess of that introduced into the Hubli Táluka, which is contiguous to Dhárwár, which latter rate was itself considered† by the late Revenue Commissioner Mr. Havelock to be too high.

* No. 235 of 21st December 1848.
 † Para. 14 of memo. No. 742 of 2nd March 1874, and para. 14 of Government Resolution No. 2157 of 23rd April 1874.

8. The maximum rate of Rs. 9 for garden land appears reasonable under the circumstances stated in para. 45.

9. Considering the difference in the status of the eastern and western divisions of the táluka, I should have preferred a difference of rates in favour of the latter; but the increased rates seem suitable to the táluka as a whole, and, therefore, with the modifications above suggested (para. 6), I would recommend that the present proposals be sanctioned.

Revenue Survey and Assessment.

No. 2769.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 27th May 1879.

Letter from the Commissioner, S.D., No. 949, dated 17th May 1879—Submitting, with his remarks, the report (No. 874 of 1879) of the Survey and Settlement Commissioner, S.D., with appendices, containing proposals for the revision of assessment of the old Dhárwár Táluka of the same Collectorate, comprising 13½ villages, now distributed as shown in the margin, together with a letter from the Collector of Dhárwár (No. 1619 of 1879), containing his observations on the proposed revision settlement.

RESOLUTION.—This carefully prepared report treats very clearly and fully of the various questions affecting the revised settle-

Dhárwár Táluka, villages...	129
Rajhatgi do.	2
Hubli do.	1
Parasgad Táluka of Bal-gaum	2

ment of the old Dhárwár Táluka, which comprises 134 villages, and which was last settled by Captain, afterwards Sir George, Wingate in 1848-49. Two of the villages are now in the Parasgad Táluka of Belgaum, two in Kalghatgi, one in Hubli, and the remainder in the Dhárwár Táluka.

2. The re-measurement was conducted on the same principle as was adopted in the revision of the old Bankápur Táluka, and by this method 11,760 survey numbers have now been subdivided into 15,102 numbers. The area as now ascertained appears to have risen from 206,916 acres under the old survey to 207,748 acres, and considering the hilly and jungly nature of the country in the western part of the táluka, the correspondence between the measurements of the two surveys is very close, though in individual survey numbers there were occasionally considerable discrepancies met with.

The re-classification of dry-crop soils was, as described in the reports, but partial, a sufficient amount only being done to enable the survey officers to judge of the standard of the former classification, and to ascertain what adjustment it was necessary to apply to that classification so as to bring it to the standard now adopted. Where necessary, however, the whole village was re-classed, and water classification was in all cases done afresh.

3. The climate, so far as rainfall is concerned, varies considerably. In the eastern part the rainfall from both the south-west and north-east monsoons is plentiful, and is added to by frequent thunder showers in May, while the western portion is more dependent on the south-west monsoon alone. The staple crops in the former are jowári, wheat, pulses, cottons, and oilseeds, while in the latter they comprise rági, rice and to some extent sugarcane and pulses.

Roads throughout the táluka are now many and excellent, and whereas thirty years ago there was but one made road, viz., that from Hubli to Belgaum, which passes through Dhárwár, there are now cross roads in every direction, while from Dhárwár itself there are three ports on the coast—Kumta, Kárwár and Goa—which are accessible by good made roads over the gháts. In addition there are good markets at Dhárwár, Hubli, Kittúr in the Belgaum district, and other large towns in the táluka.

4. The statistics supplied by Mr. Fletcher as to the condition of the people give some curious facts. First, as regards population, it appears that the numbers of the people have fallen from 84,872 in 1848-49 to 79,414, a decrease which the Survey Commissioner attributes partly to migration to the adjacent villages of Kánara and the Bidi Táluka of Belgaum, and partly to the deadly nature of the fever which has in recent years raged in this part of the country. Mr. Fletcher considers that it is to some extent due to the famine, but this idea is strenuously opposed by Colonel Anderson, and Government are of opinion that his views are correct. The number of houses has risen considerably, and their quality is much improved, and though cattle have decreased greatly in numbers, undoubtedly from the effects of the famine, the stock now remaining is first class, and it is shown that the decrease in numbers is partly apparent rather than real, as at the time of counting them many cattle were absent from the villages, some being engaged in the carrying trade and some having been sent to the gháts for grazing. Carts and wells, two of the ordinary indications of the rayats' condition, are far more numerous than formerly, and education has made no little progress, while the value of land, as ascertained from the registration records relating to sales and mortgages, is very high. Of the total quantity of land under cultivation it was found that 63½ per cent. was held by cultivators direct from Government, and the balance by traders, who in this district frequently engage in agriculture in addition to their ordinary pursuits. Excluding the famine year from consideration, it is shown that prices have vastly increased since the former settlement, and from all the circumstances set forth in these reports, Government can only come to the conclusion that the rayats of the Dhárwár Táluka are, as a rule, well-to-do.

5. It is gathered from the statement in paragraph 32 of Colonel Anderson's report that the quantity of Government occupied land has risen from 57,827 acres in the ten years from 1838-39 to 1847-48 to 1,13,384 acres in the decade from 1868-69 to 1877-78, with a corresponding increase of average annual collections from Rs. 1,27,222 to Rs. 1,69,419. Remissions in the former period averaged Rs. 16,664, in the latter Rs. 23 annually and the statement of outstanding balances shows that these were but trifling. It will be seen therefore, that of late years remissions have practically ceased to exist, and even in the last three years, during two of which famine prevailed in the district, there were altogether only 57 cases in which it was found necessary to resort to distraint in order to recover the Government demand.

6. The actual proposals for revised assessments have now to be considered. The 134 villages are divided into six groups as follows :—

The first contains 14 villages in which the maximum dry-crop rate is raised from Rs. 2-4-0 to Rs. 3 per acre.

The second contains 51 villages in which the rate is raised from Rs. 2 to Rs. 2-10-0 per acre.

The third contains 24 villages in which the rate is raised from Rs. 1-12-0 to Rs. 2-6-0 per acre.

The fourth contains 19 villages in which the rate is raised from Rs. 1-8-0 to Rs. 2 per acre.

The fifth contains 18 villages in which the rate is raised from Rs. 1-1-6 to Rs. 1-10-0 per acre.

The sixth contains 8 villages in which the rate is raised from Rs. 0-14-0 to Rs. 1-4-0 per acre.

The maximum rate for rice land is increased from Rs. 8 per acre to Rs. 9 for villages of the first and second groups; the former rate of Rs. 8 per acre is retained in villages of the third and fourth groups, while in those of the fifth and sixth classes the former rate of Rs. 7 per acre is raised to Rs. 7-8-0. The average rate per acre throughout is increased from Rs. 2-9-8 to Rs. 2-12-3.

The maximum rate on garden land is Rs. 9 per acre, the same rate as that for first class rice, and the average assessment is Rs. 4-6-4 per acre as compared with Rs. 3-14-4 under the former settlement.

Lands irrigated by wells existing at the time of the former settlement are assessed within the highest dry-crop rate, and those watered by wells constructed during the present settlement are assessed on the simple dry-crop rate of their class.

7. It appears from the table in paragraph 47 of the Survey Commissioner's report that the imposition of these rates as compared with those of the former settlement will give an increase of revenue from Rs. 1,38,843 to Rs. 1,96,939, a general percentage increase of 39·8. There are but few cases in which the assessment has been suddenly very greatly raised, and those which do occur are satisfactorily explained in paragraphs 49—50 of the Survey Commissioner's report. On the whole, Government occupied land of every description, garden, rice and dry-crop, the average rate per acre of assessment has been raised from Rs. 1-3-2 to Rs. 1-10-10, an increase of Rs. 0-7-8 per acre. These rates show a substantial increase in revenue, which, however, does not appear to be excessive, and is not so great as in the plain talukas in the centre of the Collectorate, 1st because the original assessment was based on a somewhat higher standard, and, 2nd, because in the western half of the taluka rice is the staple crop, the cultivation of which is more or less precarious, and moderation in assessment is therefore necessary. The proposed rates are approved of by the Collector of Dhárwár and the Commissioner, S.D., with the exception of the highest rate for rice lands, which the latter officer considers should not be levied. In other respects both Mr. Reid and Mr. Elphinston consider that the rates generally are fair and moderate. It appears to Government that Colonel Anderson has shown that the rates proposed by him for rice lands are not excessive, and they, as well as those for the other descriptions of land, may be sanctioned and introduced on any date up to the 5th of June, their permanency being guaranteed for thirty years as usual.

8. In conclusion, the Governor in Council desires to express his acknowledgments to Colonel Anderson for the careful and exact report which has been submitted, and to note his satisfaction with the work done by Messrs. Fletcher and Wingate, who are deservedly commended by the Survey Commissioner for the labour they have bestowed in the making up and tabulation of the voluminous statistics appended to the reports.
