

3471

Tawney R.H.

Acquisitive Society

Dhananjayrao Gadgil Librar

GIPE-PUNE-003471

THE ACQUISITIVE SOCIETY

THE ACQUISITIVE SOCIETY

BY
R. H. TAWNEY
Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford.

LONDON
G. BELL AND SONS LTD.
1921.

X:3M

F1

3471

To my Wife

*The author desires to express, his acknowledgements to the Editor of the Hibbert Journal and to the Fabian Society for permission to incorporate
in this book the pamphlet,
"The Sickness of an Acquisitive Society" published by them.*

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER	PAGE
I	INTRODUCTORY . . . . . I
II	RIGHTS AND FUNCTIONS . . . . . 9
III	THE ACQUISITIVE SOCIETY . . . . . 23
IV	THE NEMESIS OF INDUSTRIALISM . . . . . 36
V	PROPERTY AND CREATIVE WORK . . . . . 55
	(a) The Traditional Doctrine.
	(b) The Divorce of Ownership and Work.
	(c) Property and Security.
	(d) The Tyranny of Functionless Property.
VI	THE FUNCTIONAL SOCIETY . . . . . 96
VII	THE LIBERATION OF INDUSTRY . . . . . 105
	(a) Industry as a Profession.
	(b) The Extinction of the Capitalist.
	(c) Nationalization as a Problem in Constitution-making.
VIII	THE "VICIOUS CIRCLE" . . . . . 157
IX	THE NEW CONDITION OF EFFICIENCY . . . . . 173
	(a) The Passing of Authority from the Capitalist.
	(b) The Appeal to Professional Feeling.
	(c) The need of a new Economic Psychology.
X	THE POSITION OF THE BRAIN WORKER . . . . . 202
	(a) The Growth of an Intellectual Proletariat.
	(b) The Position of the Mine-Manager under Nationalization.
	(c) The Increasing Separation of "Business" and Industry.
XI	Porro Unum Necessarium . . . . . 222