PREFACE

My best thanks are due to Professor Alexander Gray, Professor of Political Economy in the University of Edinburgh, who very kindly read through the manuscript of this little book. Professor Gray made many valuable suggestions and saved me from some pitfalls. But, of course, he is in no way responsible for the method of exposition I have adopted nor for the views I have expressed on particular problems.

HARTLEY WITHERS

Nelson Classics, cloth gilt, 1s. 6d. net

An entirely new edition of this masterly little book, revised and reset throughout, and brought up-to-date. Mr. Withers is not only one of the foremost living authorities on the subject he writes with remarkable clarity and ease, and there is no better brief book on the subject in existence.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF POLITICAL IDEAS

F. J. C. HEARNSHAW

Nelson Classics, cloth gilt, 1s. 6d. net

Professor Hearnshaw has written a concise but most lucid and illuminating survey of political theory and practice from ancient Greece to our own day, and pays particular attention to recent political ideas. For this new edition the book has been entirely revised and reset, and a new chapter has been added, bringing it up to 1937.

These two volumes are recent additions to the new Nelson Classics, which now include a number of such books on present-day subjects, and many volumes by such well-known modern writers as G. M. Trevelyan, W. R. Inge, J. B. Priestley, Hugh Walpole, Walter de la Mare, John Buchan, John Galsworthy, Joseph Conrad, Hilaire Belloc, and Kenneth Grahame, besides the best work of all the great novelists, poets, essayists, etc. Over three hundred volumes, beautifully produced, each 1s. 6d. net.
