PREFATORY NOTE.

POLITICAL DEPARTMENT, 1864—1868.

THE papers in this section are very similar to those in the previous volume and like them are far from complete. Bahawalpur affairs occupy a good deal of space, as the disturbed condition of that State led to the appointment of a Political Resident and staff. The reports of this Resident on the resources of the State and his proposals for their improvement are very voluminous. The State of Chamba was also under the supervision of a British Agent, at the request of the Raja himself, and the reports of the former give evidence of much activity in road making, timber sales and other development. Affairs in Afghanistan continued to be regularly reported upon by the Kabul Vakil, though a number of these reports are missing.

An officer continued to be deputed each season to Kashmir to act as British Agent and to look after the welfare of visitors. The latter had increased to such an extent that it was found necessary to limit their number and they were now required to be in possession of a regular pass to which was attached a set of rules for their guidance. In July 1867 occurs the first mention of Gulmarg, as a hill station, as the Agent, Colonel Cracroft, announced that he was moving up to that station and had arranged postal facilities for any visitor who might care to do the same.

Plans for the bridge at Kohala were in preparation. The bridge was to cost Rs. 20,000, the cost being divided between the British Government and the State of Kashmir.

In 1867 a British Agent, Dr. H. Cayley, began to reside regularly at Leh during the summer months. Dr. Cayley submitted regular reports and these are interesting reading, particularly those relating to trade with Yarkand and other parts of Central Asia. Envoys from two potentates of this region—the King of Bokhara and the Khan of Khotan—visited India during the period under review.

A large section of the papers deals with frontier affairs. As usual the tribesmen were constantly raiding into British territory and punitive expeditions of varying importance were necessary. These expeditions were directly conducted by the Punjab Government, as the Frontier Force was then under the immediate control of the Lieutenant-Governor. Hence the military details are reported to the civil authorities to a much greater extent than would be the case to-day.

The balance of the papers are of less importance. Kharitas to and from the various ruling Chiefs, claim for rewards and pensions, petty boundary disputes and so forth.
