

Dhananjayrao Gadgil Library

GIPE-PUNE-002108

MISCELLANIES
LITERARY AND HISTORICAL

MISCELLANIES

LITERARY & HISTORICAL

BY

LORD ROSEBERY

IN TWO VOLUMES

VOL. II

HODDER AND STOUGHTON
LIMITED LONDON

xM47
F1-2

First published September 1921

2108

CONTENTS

II

VIGNETTES

CHAP.	PAGE
XIV. THE PORTRAITS OF BURNS	3
XV. THE LOVE EPISODE OF WILLIAM PITT	7
XVI. NELSON	16
XVII. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON	22
XVIII. CECIL RHODES	30

III

SCOTTISH HISTORY AND CHARACTER

XIX. SCOTTISH HISTORY	39
XX. THE UNION OF ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND	71
XXI. THE PATRIOTISM OF A SCOT	106
XXII. THE FORMATION OF THE SCOTTISH CHARACTER	134
XXIII. THE STRULDBRUG	152
XXIV. THE SCOTS GREYS	180

MISCELLANIES

IV

THE SERVICE OF THE STATE

CHAP.	PAGE
XXV. THE SERVICE OF THE STATE	187
XXVI. STATESMEN AND BOOKMEN	208
XXVII. QUESTIONS OF EMPIRE	229
XXVIII. THE PRESS OF THE EMPIRE	264

V

GENIUS LOCI

XXIX. ETON	281
XXX. THE ROYAL PALACE OF WHITEHALL	290
XXXI. EPSOM	307
XXXII. THE TURF	317
XXXIII. THE POLITICAL ASPECT OF BUCKINGHAMSHIRE	326
INDEX	341

INDEX

- Aberdeen, Earl of, i. 210
- Albert, Prince, his observation on Peel's Ministry (1845), i. 192
- Ashburton, Lady, and the Turf, ii. 321
- Auckland, Lord, his correspondence with Pitt, ii. 7; suggests that Privy Seal be conferred on him, ii. 10; made Joint Postmaster-General, ii. 10; quarrels with Pitt, ii. 10
- Aylesbury, early political history of, ii. 834; Wilkes member for, ii. 834; a typical eighteenth-century borough, ii. 835
- Bentinck, Lord George, his attacks on Peel, i. 290; his brief leadership, i. 291; personality of, compared with Lord Randolph Churchill, i. 291
- Bolingbroke, compared with Dr. Johnson, i. 51.
- Boswell, James, character of, as seen in correspondence with William J. Temple, i. 85; hero-worship of Johnson, i. 85-87; determines to make Johnson's acquaintance, i. 87
- Boswell's Life of Johnson discussed, i. 41-44; its unique place in literature, i. 43
- Bothwell, Earl of, as a man of learning, ii. 142
- Bristol, Burke's connection with, i. 130-133
- Brougham, Lord, ii. 210
- Buckingham, Marquis of, his claim to the Dukedom granted, ii. 331
- Buckinghamshire, political history of, ii. 827-834
- Burford Bridge, romantic associations of, ii. 23
- Burke: his connection with Bristol, i. 130-133; his love of reform and hatred of revolution, i. 134; his denunciation of French Revolution, i. 135; his devotion to duty, i. 136; studies the problem of Indian administration, i. 137; brings Hastings to an impeachment, i. 137; ill-success of his speeches, i. 138; advocates Roman Catholic emancipation, i. 139; as a gentleman farmer, i. 143; strongly influences Windham, i. 146-147; his connection with Bucks, ii. 836
- Burney, Miss, and Windham as a conversationalist, i. 153
- Burns, Robert, Scotland's debt to, i. 4, 22; voices Scotland's claim to nationality, i. 5; last days and death of, i. 6-10; prediction of, i. 12-14; memory of, worshipped, i. 13, 15; his hold on the imagination and affection of mankind discussed, i. 16; inspiration and sympathy the secret, i. 17; as a force in British literature, i. 17; the excellence of his poetry, i. 18; his conversational charm, i. 18, 19; his sympathy for the suffering and oppressed, i. 20; a universal message in his poetry, i. 21; songs of, i. 22; his patriotism, i. 23; his politics, i. 23; his attitude to French Revolution, i. 24; on the rights of humanity, i. 25; as lover, i. 25; social habits of his time, i. 27; portraits of, ii. 3; as depicted in the statues and the paintings, ii. 8; room for an ideal portrait, ii. 8-4; the description of an eye-witness, ii. 5; two word-portraits, ii. 5, 6

- Cabinet, government by, discussed, i. 202; Press excluded from councils of, i. 208
- Cardwell and Sir Robert Peel, i. 187
- Carlyle, his observation on Peel's humour, i. 194; his address as Lord Rector of Edinburgh University, ii. 231
- Carteret, John, ii. 221-222
- Catt, Henri de, his relations with Frederick the Great, i. 101 et seq.
- Chalmers, Dr.: years in Glasgow, i. 238; his work among the poor, i. 239; his aversion to State aid, i. 239; his scheme for poor relief and its ultimate failure, i. 239-240; his preaching gifts, i. 242; the power of his sermons, i. 243; Canning moved by his preaching, i. 244; the secrets of his power discussed, i. 245; his aversion to State aid or patronage, i. 248; compared with contemporary orators, i. 249; his speech on Roman Catholic emancipation, i. 250-251; his pathos in the pulpit, i. 251-252; as a leader of the Disruption movement, i. 253; prospect of a National Church, i. 254
- Chamberlain, Mr., and candidature of Lord Randolph Churchill at Birmingham, i. 810; he defines the Toryism of Lord Randolph, i. 848
- Charles I., character of, i. 81; differences with Cromwell irreconcilable, i. 81
- Chatterton, Thomas, mentioned, i. 183
- Chesterfield, Lord, ii. 221, 222-223
- Christison, Sir Robert, tribute to the memory of, ii. 107
- Churchill, Lord Randolph: an appreciation of the Life, i. 276-281; as a letter-writer, i. 276-279; to his wife on Mr. Balfour's assumption of leadership, i. 279; his speeches, i. 280; his relations with the Irish Party discussed, i. 281-287; his dislike of coercion, i. 283; his rooted objection to Home Rule, i. 286; at Eton and Oxford, i. 292; his election for Woodstock, i. 294; he forms the Fourth Party, i. 295; joins Lord Salisbury's Government, i. 297; Chancellor of the Exchequer, i. 299; his resignation tendered and accepted by Lord Salisbury, i. 300, 303-305; the differences on policy which led to his resignation discussed, i. 306-309; his projected candidature at Birmingham resisted by Mr. Chamberlain, i. 810; his search for health, i. 812; an analysis of his character, i. 813-818; as public speaker, i. 819-823; his wit and humour, i. 819-823; his power of invective, i. 824; his speech at Dartford, i. 826; his speech on Home Rule Bill, i. 826; his oratory modelled on that of Disraeli, i. 827; his method of preparing a speech, i. 829-831; an estimate of the value of his speeches, i. 831-832; his career discussed, i. 833; his waywardness, i. 834-836; Radical in aim and instinct, i. 837; a comparison with Peel and Disraeli, i. 838; Tory Democracy, i. 844-848, 859-860; his popularity, i. 845; and the Labour Party, i. 849; a critical estimate of his career, i. 861-872
- Cobham, Lord, political influence of, ii. 830-831
- Cockburn, Lord, ii. 190, 192; and Edinburgh, ii. 192
- Coke, Thomas, mentioned, i. 145
- Condé, letter to Cromwell quoted, i. 89
- Cowley, his criticism of Cromwell's character quoted, i. 98
- Croker, John W., i. 213
- Cromwell, Oliver, controversy regarding statue to the memory of, i. 77-79; his policy towards Ireland, i. 80-81; his dispute with King Charles, i. 81; conflict of opinion regarding the merits and character of, i. 82, 92-98; his military record, i. 84; his achievements as ruler, i. 85-86; his tolerant attitude towards Jews, i. 86; he maintains the power and influence of Britain in Europe, i. 88; he intervenes successfully on behalf of the Waldenses, i. 88; alliances sought with, i. 88-89; the secret of his power discussed,

- i. 89-92; George Fox's interview with, i. 92-93; incident at Knaresborough, i. 94; his Ironsides, i. 95-96; a conversation with Hampden on the fighting quality of his army, i. 95-96
- Curzon, Lord, as Chancellor of Oxford University, ii. 31; otherwise mentioned, ii. 287
- Dickens and Pickwick, i. 63
- Disraeli, cited, i. 66; and Peel's expression, i. 194; his relations with Peel, i. 213-214; estimate of Peel's qualities, i. 220; and Bucks, ii. 329
- Dunlop, Mrs., Burns and, i. 10
- Edinburgh: in Lord Cockburn's Memorials of His Time, ii. 192; and Sir Walter Scott, ii. 193
- Edinburgh Review*, ii. 190
- Ellenborough, Lord, i. 207-208
- Empire: the increasing greatness of, ii. 40; the responsibilities of our young manhood towards, ii. 40; the place of education in shaping the destiny of, ii. 40; loyal service needed for, ii. 233; what might have been had America remained British, ii. 234-236; the responsibilities of, ii. 237; the Great Powers and empire, ii. 239; the empire of Frederick the Great, ii. 241-243; progress in nineteenth century, ii. 245; the need for trained servants, ii. 246; the Universities' part in training them, ii. 247; education, ii. 250; health, ii. 251; intense industry essential to maintain empire, ii. 252; commerce as a bond of empire, ii. 253; a Commercial Faculty advocated in our Universities, ii. 255; stress of competition, ii. 257; the responsibility of each citizen to empire, ii. 260-261
- Epsom: a one-time fashionable resort, ii. 308; an early description of, quoted, ii. 309-310; it shelters some refugees of the French Revolution, ii. 313; its new-found popularity, ii. 314; the origin of the Derby and the Oaks, ii. 314
- Eton, ii. 281
- Fourth Party, Lord Randolph Churchill and, i. 344, 350; Sir John Gorst and, i. 351, 352-353; Disraeli and, i. 343, 353, 354; attitude of, to Reform Bill of 1884, i. 352
- Fox, Charles James, and Burke, i. 137; ii. 219, 220
- Fox, George, his interview with Cromwell, i. 92-93
- France seeks alliance with Cromwell, i. 88
- Frederick the Great: compared with Napoleon and Cromwell, i. 87; an exacting master, i. 104; his tears, i. 106; his verse, i. 107; he pursues a policy of plunder at expense of neighbouring States, i. 109-112; his friendship with Voltaire, i. 115, 124; his cynical nature, i. 115-116; his generalship commended by Napoleon, i. 117; his views of frightfulness, i. 119-120; his civil administration, i. 120-125; his legacy to modern Prussia, i. 126-129; empire of, ii. 241-243
- French Revolution denounced by Burke, i. 135
- Gardiner, S. R., quoted regarding Cromwell, i. 83
- Gaskell, Mrs., and Cranford, i. 63
- Gimcrack Club, speech at, ii. 317
- Gladstone, Mr.: and Peel, i. 209; and Chalmers, i. 247; a diligent disciple of Chalmers, i. 249; characteristics of: strong religious faith, i. 257; tenacity of purpose, i. 258; industry, i. 259; courtesy, i. 260; courage, i. 261; moral courage and its influence on others, i. 261-262; in the speeches of Lord Randolph Churchill, i. 320-324; as statesman and bookman, ii. 211, 213, 224-225, 227; otherwise mentioned, i. 191
- Glasgow and Dr. Chalmers, i. 241; motto of the city, i. 241
- Glasgow University, a picture of the inauguration of, ii. 137-138
- Goldsmith, Oliver, befriended by Dr. Johnson, i. 48
- Gordon, Duchess of, impressed by Burns's conversational gifts, i. 19
- Gorst, Sir John, and the Fourth Party, i. 351, 352-353

- Graham, Sir James, relations with Peel, i. 211
- Gregory, Dr. James, i. 3
- Grenville, Lord, ii. 217-218; political influence of, ii. 829-833
- Greville: anecdote of Peel, i. 189; and Peel's humour, i. 195
- Guizot, i. 210
- Hampden, John, his conversation with Cromwell quoted, i. 95-96
- Hardinge, his friendship with Peel, i. 212; as Viceroy of India, i. 212
- Harlaw, battle of, ii. 158
- Hastings, Warren, impeachment of, i. 137
- Hawes Inn, Queensferry, as setting for opening scenes in Stevenson's Kidnapped and Scott's Antiquary, ii. 28
- Howard, J., prison reformer, i. 129
- Ireland, Cromwell's policy in, i. 80-81
- Jeffrey, Lord, ii. 190
- Jenner, Dr., fighting smallpox, i. 129
- Johnson, Dr. Samuel: antecedents of, i. 31; the works of, i. 31; Lives of the Poets, i. 32; Rasselas and Irene, i. 32; the Dictionary, i. 33; the foundation of his literary fame, i. 34; Boswell's hero-worship of, i. 35; he meets Boswell, 138; the homage of his contemporaries, i. 45; dislikes Scotland and Scotsmen, i. 46, 49, 54; makes study of mankind his great interest, i. 46; his strange domestic circle, i. 47; his charity and generosity, i. 47; interested in practical side of life, i. 48; characteristics of, i. 49; distinguished as a conversationalist, i. 50-51; as a moralist, i. 53; dislikes Whigs, i. 54; his preference for congenial society, i. 55; as High Churchman, i. 56; his testimony to Windham's conversational gifts, i. 153
- Kelvin, Lord, ii. 134-136
- Leadership of the great political parties in this country often out of sympathy with rank and file, i. 339-340; this in some measure accounted for by influence of heredity, i. 341
- Lord Randolph Churchill, critical appreciation, i. 276-281; compared with Disraeli's Life of Lord George Bentinck, i. 289-291
- Louis XVI. of France, prepared to govern constitutionally, i. 81-82
- Lynedoch, Lord, military record of, compared with Cromwell's, i. 84
- Macaulay, Lord, quoted regarding Cromwell, i. 82; ii. 210, 212
- Masson, Professor, mentioned, ii. 187
- Mazarin, Cardinal, seeks alliance with Cromwell, i. 89
- Minto, Earl of, ii. 286
- Napoleon: compared with Frederick the Great, i. 87; commends Frederick as military leader, i. 117
- Nelson, Lord: some reasons for his undying popularity discussed, ii. 18-21; an estimate of his character, ii. 21
- Northcote, Sir S., contrasted with Lord Randolph Churchill, i. 364-365
- Oxford Union, unveiling of the memorial to Lord Salisbury, i. 264
- Oxford University, unveiling of Rhodes Memorial at, ii. 30
- Parker, Charles Stuart, author of biography of Peel, i. 185
- Parnell, C. S., his compact with Lord Randolph Churchill, i. 282; ii. 225-226
- Patriotism: the varied uses of the word, ii. 109; definition of, ii. 109; and nationality, ii. 110; the sentiment in Scotland, ii. 110; in England, ii. 111-112; nationality in Italy discussed, ii. 113-114; English and Scottish qualities compared, ii. 115-116; national character and its effects on a nation's well-being, ii. 116-119; good for empire that nationality be preserved, ii. 121; how true patriotism might stimulate

- every Scot, ii. 121-123; private beneficence as a form of, ii. 123-124; a plea for the preservation of the Scottish character in Church, Law, and Education, ii. 124-127; the spirit of, ii. 130-138
- Peel, Sir Robert: speeches of, i. 186; and Cardwell, i. 187; biography of, i. 187; political sympathies and inclinations of, i. 189; opposes Reform Bill of 1832, i. 190; general stand against patronage, i. 191; the humour of, i. 194-195; in his letters to Croker, i. 195; temper of, and projected duels, i. 196; as Prime Minister exercises personal supervision over all departments, i. 197; contemporary estimates of, i. 198; his view of a Prime Minister's duties, i. 199-200; his views on House of Lords, i. 200; his relations with Queen and Prince Consort, i. 204; owes much to Wellington's loyalty, i. 205; his personal relations with the Duke, i. 206-207; with Graham, i. 211; his friendship with Hardinge, i. 212; Corn Laws, i. 211-212; his correspondence with Croker, i. 213; with Brougham, i. 218; his relations with Disraeli, i. 218-214; his patronage, i. 215; his views of peers, i. 215; his faculty of public speaking, i. 217; his knowledge of the House of Commons, i. 219; his parliamentary tactics, i. 219; Disraeli's estimate of, i. 220; his qualities as a leader, i. 220; influence left on his colleagues, i. 221; his changes of policy, i. 222; Catholic emancipation, i. 224-228; repeal of the Corn Laws, i. 229-232
- Pitt, William, and the war with France, i. 148; his correspondence with Lord Auckland in reference to Miss Eden, ii. 7; his political relations with Lord Auckland, ii. 11; and final breach, ii. 12
- Press: excluded from Cabinet counsels, i. 203; speech to, ii. 264
- Prime Minister, duties of, discussed, i. 201; Peel's conception of, i. 199-200
- Puritans, the, believed themselves to be God's chosen people, i. 81
- Ramsay, Dean, and Chalmers, i. 252
- Reynolds, Sir Joshua, and Dr. Johnson, i. 51, 54, 56
- Rhodes, Cecil: honoured as Empire builder and Imperialist, ii. 30; his affection for the University of Oxford, ii. 31; his great ambition, ii. 32; misjudged in his lifetime, ii. 32; his career not without mistakes, ii. 33; his idea of fame, ii. 34; his gift to Oxford, ii. 35
- Riddell, Mrs., Burns and, i. 7, 10, 11
- Robertson, Principal, his opinion of Burns's gifts quoted, i. 19, 20
- Roman Catholic emancipation: advocated by Burke, i. 139; by Windham, i. 146; Peel and, i. 193
- Roumania, Queen of, and the songs of Burns, i. 22
- Russell, Lord John, i. 232
- Rutland, Duke of, mentioned, i. 357
- St. Andrews University, celebration of five hundredth anniversary of, ii. 152; foundation of, by Papal Bull in 1414, marks the beginning of Scottish learning, ii. 154
- Salisbury, Marquis of: his family life, i. 266; his eloquence, i. 266-267; his scorn of wealth and honours, i. 267; his dislike of publicity, i. 267-268; his view of the effects of legislation on human progress, i. 269; his attitude on Reform Bill of 1867, i. 270, 271; he joins Disraeli's Government, i. 272; at Foreign Office, i. 273; Treaty of San Stefano, i. 273; an estimate of his career, i. 274; and Lord Randolph Churchill's resignation, i. 303-305
- Scots Greys, the: raised by Colonel Dalziel of Binns, ii. 180; with Marlborough, ii. 181; at Waterloo, ii. 181; with the Heavy Brigade at Balaklava, ii. 182; in South Africa, ii. 182; memorial to the fallen, ii. 183

- Scott, Sir Walter, admires poems of Johnson, i. 81; mentioned, ii. 192
- Scottish History: definition of the word history, ii. 45; search after historical truth, ii. 46; Macbeth and Rizzio, ii. 47; provision for the teaching of, at Scottish Universities, ii. 48; advocacy of a Chair of, ii. 49; Mr. Froude's scheme, ii. 49; knowledge of the history of one's native country a duty, ii. 50; Scotland before and after the Union, ii. 51-52; Scottish independence and liberties secured by the Union, ii. 52; menaced by Charles I., ii. 53; passion of the Scots for independence, ii. 54; origin of the Scottish Universities, ii. 55; John Knox and the Reformation, ii. 56; the nobles and the people, ii. 57-60; the romance of history ii. 60-62; an appeal for the study of history, ii. 62-63; work of Scottish History Society, ii. 64
- Scottish History Society: work of, ii. 64; two important subjects in Scottish history dealt with, ii. 65; two fields for further exploration indicated, ii. 66-69
- Sheridan, on liberty of the Press, quoted by Chalmers, i. 251
- Smith, Adam, as Lord Rector of Glasgow University, ii. 230
- Southey quoted regarding Cromwell, i. 83
- Spain seeks alliance with Cromwell, i. 88
- Stanley, Lord, his relations with Peel, i. 208
- State, service of the, ii. 194; in Parliament, ii. 196; in the work of the municipalities and councils, ii. 197; in Government departments, ii. 198; in the Colonies and Dependencies, ii. 199; the Civil Service, ii. 200-201; the Treasury, ii. 201; the individual citizen's duty to the State, ii. 204; interest in public and municipal affairs essential, ii. 205
- Stevenson, Robert Louis, two places which appealed strongly to the imagination of, ii. 23; his striving after style, ii. 24-25; scenes from The Master of Ballantrae and Treasure Island as illustrating the power of his writing, ii. 27-28; an argument in favour of a memorial to, ii. 28-29
- Stewart, Dugald, appreciation of the gifts of Burns, i. 19, 20
- Struldbrug, the, ii. 163-164; five centuries of Scotland's history reviewed, in imagination, by, ii. 165-178
- Thackeray, W. M., biographical notes on, i. 60; early life of, i. 61; portraits of, i. 62; the place of Vanity Fair in English literature, i. 62-64; a critical appreciation of the novel, i. 64-65; compared with other classics, i. 66; Vanity Fair contrasted with The Newcomes, i. 67-68; Henry Esmond, i. 68; other works discussed, i. 69-71; his verse, i. 72; his drawings, i. 72-73; his place as a writer considered, i. 74-75
- Thornycroft, Mr., mentioned, i. 91
- Tom Jones*, most perfect novel in the English language, i. 62
- Turf, the, a personal experience of, ii. 319-321; as a basis of friendship, ii. 321; the chief pleasure of, ii. 322
- Union of England and Scotland: some reasons for Scottish hatred of England in the 17th century, ii. 73; some of the causes which led to Union, ii. 73; Union the ambition of English statesmen, ii. 74; Act of Security (1704), ii. 75; the Scottish Estates, their constitution, ii. 75; an account of a meeting of the Estates, ii. 77-80; career of James, Duke of Hamilton, ii. 80-83; of Lord Belhaven, ii. 83-86; of Andrew Fletcher, ii. 86-88; the question of Union before the Scottish Parliament, ii. 88-90; the Union agreed to and the Treaty signed, ii. 91; ratification by the Scottish Estates, ii. 97; the benefits of the Union discussed, ii. 98-104; a plea for the union of classes, ii. 104-105
- University: the functions of a, ii.

- 41; as a training-ground for the formation of character, ii. 41; the office of Lord Rector, ii. 43; provision for the teaching of history at, ii. 44, 48
- Voltaire, his friendship with Frederick the Great, i. 115, 124
- Waldenses, the, Cromwell's successful intervention on behalf of, i. 88
- Walpole, Sir R., ii. 216-217
- Wellton, Rev. J. E. C., Bishop of Calcutta, ii. 285
- Wellington, Duke of: as a loyal colleague of Peel, i. 205; and Catholic emancipation, i. 205; otherwise mentioned, i. 191; connection of, with Oxford University, ii. 30; quoted, ii. 284
- Wesley, John, mentioned, i. 129
- Wharton, Philip, ii. 333
- Whitehall Palace: a brief history of, ii. 291-292; a description of the old Palace, ii. 293-299; magnificence of Inigo Jones's plan, ii. 300-301; the Stuarts and, ii. 304-305
- Wilkes, John, his meeting with Johnson described, i. 43
- Windham, William: influence of Burke on, i. 146-147; he advocates Roman Catholic emancipation, i. 146; his relations with Pitt, i. 148; as an orator, i. 149-150; his parliamentary career, i. 151; at the War Office, i. 151; his conversational charm, i. 152-153; his Diary, i. 155; his character, i. 156-159

THE END