

SPEECHES

BY

RICHARD COBDEN, M.P.

SPEECHES

ON QUESTIONS OF PUBLIC POLICY

BY

RICHARD COBDEN, M.P.

EDITED BY

JOHN BRIGHT

AND

JAMES E. THOROLD ROGERS

IN TWO VOLUMES

VOL. II.

FREE TRADE, PEACE, GOOD WILL AMONG NATIONS

London
MACMILLAN AND CO.

1870

[All rights reserved]

OXFORD:

BY T. COMBE, M. A., E. B. GARDNER, E. P. HALL, AND H. LATHAM, M. A.,

PRINTERS TO THE UNIVERSITY.

V32M04

A870.2

3222

CONTENTS OF VOL II

. WAR.

	PAGE
I. Russian War. House of Commons, December 22, 1854 . . . . .	3
II. Russian War. House of Commons, June 5, 1855	25
III. Russian War. Manchester, March 18, 1857 . .	57
I. American War. House of Commons, April 24, 1863 . . . . .	83
II. American War. Rochdale, November 24, 1863 .	99
China War. House of Commons, February 26, 1857 . . . . .	121

FOREIGN POLICY.

I. House of Commons, June 12, 1849 . . . . .	159
II. London, October 8, 1849 . . . . .	179
III. London, January 18, 1850 . . . . .	191
IV. House of Commons, June 28, 1850 . . . . .	211
V. Rochdale, June 6, 1861 . . . . .	231

CONTENTS.

vii

EDUCATION.

	PAGE
I. Manchester, January 22, 1851 . . . . .	567
II. House of Commons, May 22, 1851 . . . . .	585
III. Manchester, December 1, 1851 . . . . .	595
IV. Barnsley, October 25, 1853 . . . . .	609

INDEX.

A.

- ABERDEEN, LORD, why Lord Palmerston quitted his Government, ii. 62; criticisms of Lord Palmerston on foreign policy of, ii. 442.
- Absentee landlords, give but little assistance to education, ii. 593.
- 'Abstract, true in the,' absurdity of phrase, i. 82.
- Abstractions, out of place in Parliament, i. 36.
- Accounts, ridiculous character of, from Government manufactories, i. 592.
- Aores, sluggish, superstitious reverence for owners of, i. 119.
- Adams, Mr., on blockade running and munitions of war, ii. 85.
- Adderley, Mr., charged wrongly with a fallacy, ii. 586.
- Addresses, annual, to constituencies, a good custom, ii. 231.
- Administration, the personnel of, carries on the Government, i. 606.
- Admiral, a, in the west of England hindered from voting, ii. 521.
- Admirals, number of, in 1849, i. 476; have a habit of saying that French meditate invasion, ii. 238.
- Admiralty, affairs of, deplorably mismanaged, ii. 240; Board of, has a defective constitution, ii. 241; worst of all Boards, ii. 245; habit of, of building useless ships, ii. 268.
- Advertisement of Austrian loan, criticised, ii. 184.
- Advertisements, tax on, criticism on, i. 571.
- Agents of loans, profits of, ii. 183.
- Aggression, Papal, wide-spread agitation about, ii. 451.
- Agitation, process by which to be carried out, i. 109; going on now (1844) not likely to be quieted, i. 169; against Corn-laws, character of, i. 412; what kind of, succeeds, ii. 367; for education, commencement of, ii. 583.
- Agitator, the speaker not intended for, i. 393; dusky, on Ganges, his grievance, ii. 378.
- Agricultural Associations, what do they do for agriculture? i. 219.
- Agricultural distress, how squires bid farmers meet it, i. 228; Select Committee to inquire into, i. 260.
- Agricultural districts, chief abode of ignorance, ii. 593.
- Agricultural interest, Corn-laws for benefit of, i. 46; depressed by cheapness, i. 68.
- Agricultural labourer, better off since Free-trade, i. 437; ignorance of, ii. 604.
- Agricultural labourers, earn minimum of wages, i. 6; deplorable state of, i. 213; their consumption of manufactures, i. 275; their position under Free-trade, i. 398; why out of employment in cheap years, i. 405; condition of, ii. 498.
- Agriculture, wants improving throughout, i. 168; if depressed, when other interests are thriving, why? i. 438; in China, its character, ii. 156.
- Agriculturists, landlords not, i. 31; repeal of Corn-laws a benefit to, i. 98; made to bring their trade to perfection by manufacturers, i. 104; practical, may give valuable suggestions, i. 166; landlords are not, i. 192.
- Alabama, the, law of France in case of ships like, ii. 95; cruise of the, ii. 97.
- Alderney, suspension of fortifications at, i. 520.

- Alliance with France, an absurdity if it is conspiring against us, ii. 325.
- Allotment of land, landowners' remedy for distress of agricultural labourers, i. 214; a plaything, i. 280.
- Almanach de Gotha*, on Russian finance, ii. 200.
- America, offering of corn from Western States of, i. 40; supply of corn from, i. 300; Free-trade in, supported by President Polk and Secretary Walker, i. 357; its precedents on purchase of munitions of war, ii. 84. See United States.
- American Consul at Malta, his opinion on the navy, i. 468.
- Amendment proposed by speaker on Corn Bill, i. 117.
- Amusement may be extracted from monopolists' speeches, i. 125.
- Andrian, Baron, on Austrian finance, ii. 181.
- Angels, disinterested, landowners pretended to be, i. 50.
- Anglia, East, hypothesis of, ii. 360.
- Annuities and pensions, amount of, i. 499.
- Anti-Corn-law League, its collisions with Chartists, i. 18. See League, Anti-Corn-law.
- Anti-Felony Society, its proceedings should be copied in regard to elections, i. 110.
- Antipodes, people smuggled away to, i. 275.
- Anti-Slavery Convention, its report, i. 180.
- Apathy, complaint of, ii. 101.
- Appeal, Court of International, ii. 174.
- Arbitration, why recommended, i. 424; in use as a substitute for war, ii. 161; more rational, just, and humane than the sword, ii. 170; in Greek dispute, should have been employed, ii. 218; use of adopting, ii. 410.
- Arbitrations, under treaties of 1794 and 1814, ii. 162.
- Argument, no place for, during war, ii. 314.
- Argyle, Duke of, his argument on the China question, ii. 129.
- Aristocracy, who are the real enemies of the, i. 37; England a paradise for, i. 334; two kinds of, i. 385; Manchester school said to meditate ruin of, i. 556; growing feeling against, ii. 54; civil war in United States a rebellion of, against democracy, ii. 107; government of, its mischief to the country, ii. 484.
- Aristocracy, English, its relations to the people, i. 282; warning to it, i. 283.
- Aristocratic system, will be torn in pieces, i. 421.
- Arithmetic, use of, to mechanics, ii. 612.
- Armaments, increase of, i. 456; expense of, i. 464; reduction of, not abandonment of defence, i. 470; increase of, never followed by reduction, i. 478; naval, increase of, ii. 237; great, incompatible with financial reform, ii. 436.
- Armstrong, Sir W., adoption of his gun, i. 581; now manufacturing for foreign countries, i. 587.
- Army, two-thirds of, for colonial garrisons, i. 425; and navy, a preserve for younger sons, ib.; English, not maintained in reference to Continental armies, i. 516; Crimean, state of, ii. 23; Crimean, amount of, in summer of 1855, ii. 45; increase of, in 1839-49, ii. 166; standing, loan contracted for, ii. 195; Russian, dislike of people to enter, i. 207.
- Arrow*, the, not a British vessel, ii. 125.
- Arsenals, no reference made to these, i. 505; might be blockaded, ii. 291.
- Artillery, most valuable arm in battle, ii. 168.
- Artisans, wages of, in dear and cheap years, i. 198.
- Ashburton, Lord, his mission to the United States, i. 489; mission of, and Maine boundary, ii. 163; his powers as plenipotentiary, ii. 166.
- Ashley, Lord, his labours on behalf of factory operatives, i. 162; voted in favour of Corn-laws, i. 231.
- Ashmolean Society, paper read at, by Dr. Buckland, i. 340.
- Assassination farce, acted in House of Commons, i. 94.
- Assessment on real property and houses, principle of, i. 533; of others, less objected to than assessment by oneself, i. 563.
- Associations for education, rival, ii. 598.
- Atheist, trick of one, to prove his view from Scripture, i. 202.
- Athens, improvement of, ii. 213; once teacher of whole world, ii. 620.
- Atherton, Mr. N., his opinion on the effect of Corn-laws on feeding stock, i. 273.

- Atherton, Sir W., on foreign enlistment acts, ii. 94.
- Attwood, Mr., his plans, i. 42.
- Auckland, Lord, on forces in the Pacific, i. 523.
- Auctioneers, frequently put forward as farmers, i. 127.
- Austin, Mr., his inquiry into condition of women and children employed in agriculture, i. 150; on homes of agricultural labourers, i. 156; on clothing of agricultural labourer, i. 160.
- Australia, hostility to convicts at, i. 426; candidates from, ii. 517.
- Austria, miserable and degraded, i. 432; officers in army of, i. 508; indebtedness of, to Russia, for political support, ii. 5; favourable to peace in 1854, and inferences from this, ii. 8; its interests against Russian aggression, ii. 39; expectations of its joining the Allies in Crimean War, ii. 41; only a government and an army, not a nation, ii. 115; character of loans of,—its acts of bankruptcy, ii. 180; revolutionary war in, and its effects, ii. 182; character of war in which it has been engaged, ii. 188; financial condition of, ii. 410; its removal from Italy beneficial to itself—unwisdom of its Government, ii. 529.
- Austrian loan, breakdown of, ii. 209.
- Ava, king of, and Commodore Lambert, ii. 391.
- Aylesbury, meeting at, six years before 1850, i. 435.
- Azoff, Sea of, expedition to, its importance exaggerated, ii. 47.
- B.
- Baby, overgrown colossal, Emperor of Russia like, ii. 192.
- Baines, Mr., on ignorance of the English people, ii. 604.
- Baker, Mr., a Protectionist orator, who is an auctioneer, i. 190.
- Bakers in Turkey, their risks, i. 227.
- Balance-sheets of Enfield, would not pass Bankruptcy Court, i. 591.
- Ballads, national, on wine-drinking, ii. 236.
- Ballot, Conservative delusion about, ii. 274; desired by farmers, ii. 480; special necessity for, in England, ii. 505; a true test of Liberal opinion, ii. 506; use and value of the, ii. 520; must follow an extension of the franchise, ii. 588; operation of, in United States, ib.
- Banks, Mr., his clamorous assault on the Anti-Corn-law League, i. 30; his benevolence to labourers, i. 47; states that agricultural distress arises from legislation, i. 261.
- Banking and banks, increase of, between 1831-6, i. 13.
- Bankrupt governments, England must not collect loans to, ii. 202.
- Banner, the, on Education, ii. 602.
- Barbarism, Russia a youthful, ii. 43; discoveries of civilisation made to contribute to, ii. 169.
- Baring and Co., their subscription to Sir H. Pottinger, i. 232; loans of, ii. 205.
- Baring, Mr., charges against him in 1815, i. 34.
- Baring, Mr. Thomas, his misrepresentation of Free-trade, i. 81; says Free-traders have no direct interest in election for City of London, i. 87; ignores the property of a man in his own labour, i. 89; not possessed of a brilliant fancy in invention, i. 94; his rejection at London—questions to be put if he comes forward again, i. 234.
- Baring, Sir F., his navy estimates for 1851, i. 519.
- Barnaley, arts of drawing and designing in, ii. 610; size of, ii. 613.
- Bastiat, M., his newspaper, i. 471.
- Battue shooting, mischiefs of, i. 402.
- Bavaria, embassy of, might be suppressed, i. 501.
- Bawtry, Mr., his opinion on the case of agricultural protection, i. 100.
- Bayonets, government by, its effects, ii. 511.
- Beans, grown only in certain places, i. 271; Egyptian, importation of, alarm at, ib.
- Beer, is it a primary necessary of life? i. 537; how cheapened by Budget of 1852, i. 547.
- Belfast, movement for Free-trade in, i. 356; representative of, should be silent on English taxation, i. 529.
- Belgium, King of, on opening Belgian ports, i. 325.
- Benefit, no permanent, can be obtained by doing injury to others, i. 99.
- Bennett, Mr., his opinion of Corn-laws, i. 51; his statement as to what the price of wheat should be, i. 137; said the landowner's land was no longer his, i. 401.

- Benevolence, schemes of universal, not before House of Commons, ii. 27.
- Bentham, Jeremy, his definition of war, ii. 176.
- Berks, electors of, and adults in, ii. 497.
- Bernal Osborne, Mr., his criticism on Lord Palmerston's fortifications, ii. 332.
- Bessemer, Mr., importance of his steel, i. 583; his proposals to Government, i. 587.
- Betrayal breeds resentment, ii. 372.
- Bible, reading of, in schools, ii. 572, 583, 590; no one would object to it, ii. 591; not to be excluded by Act of Parliament, ii. 599; Roman Catholic version of, differs in trifling matters from Authorised, ii. 600.
- Big loaf, working men not frightened by visions of, i. 378.
- Binns, Mr., his opinion on productiveness of land, i. 101.
- Birkbeck, Dr., merits of, ii. 609.
- Birmingham, tenders of trade in, compared with Enfield, i. 591; complaints from, about 'viewer' of contract rifles, i. 602; Freeholders' Union, objects of, ii. 485; preparatory school at, secular, ii. 577.
- 'Black and curly,' Sir W. Molesworth become, ii. 28.
- Black Sea, opening of, alleged as cause of war, ii. 4; Russian naval force in, ii. 29; Russian preponderance in, and why, ii. 43.
- Blacks will have votes before English working men, ii. 372.
- Blandford, agricultural meetings at, i. 33.
- Blights attacking vegetation, ii. 287.
- 'Bloated armaments,' a phrase of Mr. Disraeli, ii. 371.
- Blockade, attempts to run, do not make a Government responsible, ii. 85; must be effective to be recognised, ii. 284; violent breach of, would be an unmitigated outrage, ii. 290; true meaning of, ii. 291; Lancashire virtually in state of, ii. 306.
- Blockades, commercial, their character, ii. 282.
- Blue-books, voracious appetite of speaker for, ii. 137; magnitude and weight of, ii. 519.
- Board of Trade, pamphlets issued by functionaries of, ii. 296; Presidency of, might have been acceptable to Mr. Cobden, ii. 539; assistance of, to art, ii. 612.
- Bond Street, Duke of Richmond's Protection Society in, i. 225.
- Bonham, Sir George, on the manners of English in China, ii. 142; on Cantonese servants, ii. 150.
- 'Boots,' the Times said Lord Palmerston had been, to every Administration for thirty years, ii. 61.
- Bordeaux, Mayor of, his test of civilisation, the use of claret, ii. 236.
- Bornean pirates, arbitration with, not contemplated, ii. 175.
- Boroughreeve, election of, in Manchester, ii. 79.
- Boroughs, hardly any pure in south of England, i. 111.
- Bouverie, Mr., speech of, at Kilmarnock, ii. 349.
- Bowman, Mr. Robert, his evidence as to agricultural labourers, i. 152.
- Bowring, Sir John, his long acquaintance with Mr. Cobden, ii. 122; his conduct in affair of lorcha, ii. 123; on the nationality of the Arrow, ii. 125; penned the most flagitious public document ever seen, ii. 127; letter of Yeh to, ii. 134; has a monomania for getting into Canton, ii. 148; acted contrary to his instructions, ii. 151; advised to play part of another Clive, ii. 154.
- Boxer, Captain, his establishment of manufactories, i. 580.
- Brazil, ambassador of, imaginary conversation with, and President of Board of Trade, i. 85; imaginary diplomatic correspondence with, i. 177; a better market for manufactures than English agricultural labourers, i. 276; quarrel with, and inferences from, ii. 94.
- Bread tax, admitted to be intended to keep up rent, i. 24; a tithe and landlord tax, i. 247.
- Brescia, town of, and Hasynau, ii. 409.
- Brevets, pressure on subject of, i. 498.
- Bribery, legislative remedies against, i. 75; League resolved to put down, i. 93; how it should be checked, ii. 517; impossible in Manchester or Leeds, ii. 560.
- Bricks, duty on, but not on draining tiles, i. 217.

- Briggs, General, his canvass at Exeter, i. 185.
- Bright, Mr., his bricks and Lord Stanley's draining tiles, i. 217; his Committee on Game-laws, i. 286; his attempts to get information from Government as to the Crimean war, ii. 44; speaker the representative of, ii. 57; friendship of speaker for—his illness, ii. 74; his character, fame, destinies not in hands of Manchester men—his powers, ii. 75; his services to the compound householders, ii. 78; has a good Reform Bill in him, ii. 118; and speaker, called members for the United States, ii. 253; his eloquence, ineffectual in time of war—insult to him, ii. 315; his domestic loss, and the sympathy felt towards him, ii. 339; sympathises with nationalities without being demonstrative, ii. 353; the speaker always claimed to precede him, and why, ii. 447; his advocacy of reform, and comments of an American on, ii. 556.
- British public, appeals to, and their meaning, ii. 371.
- Britton, Mrs., wife of an agricultural labourer, her evidence, i. 153.
- Brooke, Sir James, his attempts at extension of empire, ii. 384.
- Brooms, gipsies who sold, story of, i. 593.
- Brotherton, Mr., feelings of, towards Government, ii. 460.
- Brougham, Lord, his utterances, i. 34; the Henry Brougham that was, i. 243; on Irish Church, ii. 100.
- Broughton, Lord, on government of India, ii. 384.
- Brown, Mr., on indebtedness of Ireland to England, i. 570.
- Brown's Hotel, meeting at, in 1839, i. 200, 345.
- Brunow, M., contingent claims of, ii. 221.
- 'Bubble, the republican,' a phrase in House of Commons, ii. 357.
- Buckets in draw-well, agricultural and manufacturing interests compared to, i. 68.
- Buckhounds, Master of, an absurd establishment, i. 499.
- Buckingham, Duke of, what he thinks should be the price of wheat, i. 21; his presiding at a meeting to celebrate defeat of Great Western Railway, i. 73; why he excludes political topics from an agricultural association, i. 213; his influence, i. 303; his meeting at Salthill, i. 314.
- Buckinghamshire, bad votes in, i. 302; and Manchester, contrast between, ii. 476; Members of, nearly all nominees, ii. 477.
- Buckland, Dr., on kinds of food, i. 340.
- Budget, of Mr. Disraeli in 1852, step towards compensation, i. 533; framed for foreign, not domestic policy, ii. 530.
- Building societies, check to, by house-tax, i. 534.
- Burdens, peculiar, on land, a fiction, i. 23; if any, should be removed, not compensated, i. 28; compensation for excessive, i. 50; on land, assertion of, like a trick of mendicants, i. 287; landowners had better not invite discussion on, i. 346; on property, and on those who have no property, i. 418.
- Burke, his opinion on slavery, i. 180; said the food of nations can be regulated by God alone, i. 384; laid down arguments why Government should not manufacture, i. 577; charges against, ii. 26; eloquence of, did not prevent war with America, ii. 314.
- Burmah, war in, circumstances of, ii. 389 seqq.; annexation of, its probable consequences, ii. 399.
- Burmese Government, quarrel with, ii. 113.
- Burrell, Sir Charles, his advice about carrots, i. 100; on cultivation of flax, i. 277.
- Byron, said this was a canting age, i. 232; says a person has a right to give the pronunciation of his own name, i. 548.

C.

- Cabinet in 1845, their deliberations and dissensions, i. 323; dissolution of, sudden, i. 337; in 1855, language of, ii. 34; dissensions of, and desertions from, during Crimean war, ii. 65; two principles at work in (1862), ii. 334.
- Cabinets, no business of Free-traders to form, i. 336.
- Caffres, expense of war with, i. 426.

- Caird, Mr., value of his opinion on foreign supplies of food, i. 586.
- Calamity, teaching of, ii. 321; of cotton famine, general, ii. 307.
- Calhoun, Mr., his services to this country in 1837, ii. 90.
- California, no naval force at, i. 523.
- Calne, a dirty little village, ii. 360.
- Cambridge, Oxford and, education at, ii. 103; ignorance of undergraduates at, ii. 363.
- Canada, lakes of, convention about, i. 522; we cannot afford to keep armies in, i. 551; rebellion of, in 1837, and the facts of the case, ii. 89; embarkation of troops for, ii. 253; expedition to, its absurdity, ii. 271; climate of, till March, ii. 272; Sir Francis Head in, ii. 408.
- Candidate always knows about corruption, i. 92.
- Candidates, Free-trade, to be started, i. 74.
- Canning, Mr., on American Foreign Enlistment Acts, ii. 87; his opinion about United States, ii. 108.
- Canton, bombardment of, ii. 123; regulations as to residence of British at, unpleasant, ii. 142; people of, their temper, ii. 147; city and streets of, ii. 148; inhabitants of, their address, ii. 149; injury done to, as a place of business, ii. 152.
- Canvas, instance of absurd contract for, i. 604.
- Cape of Good Hope, behaviour of colonists of, i. 426; limit of English morality and Christianity, ii. 113.
- Capital, want of, a great evil to farmers, i. 262; shrinks from insecurity of tenure, i. 263; deficiency of farming, why, i. 404; floating, proposal to put local rates on, i. 446; Government manufactories do not understand meaning of, i. 592; is wasted, and therefore there is lack of employment, ii. 71.
- Capitalist and labourer have no quarrel, ii. 509.
- Capitalists, attempt to throw blame of cotton famine on, ii. 307.
- Caricatures, French and German, on England, ii. 347.
- Carialle, Lord, on condition of Turkey, ii. 15; on toleration in America, ii. 452.
- Carlton Club, ballot-box used at, ii. 481.
- Carnot, M., letter of, ii. 426.
- Carolina, South, law of, about coloured men, ii. 126.
- Caroline, burning of the, and case of, ii. 172.
- Carriage duty, analogy of, to that on newspapers, i. 573.
- Carrots, white, Sir Charles Burrell's advice about, i. 100.
- Cartridges, number of, in store in 1849, ii. 167.
- Case, Mr., despatch of, in 1859, ii. 287-8.
- Castlereagh, Lord, his admission that low prices of food and prosperity of manufactures go together, i. 415; on standard of expenditure to be taken, i. 496; his Foreign Enlistment Act of 1819, ii. 88; his powers at Vienna, ii. 105; pressure put on, to prevent imports of American cotton, ii. 295.
- Cattle, effects of distress on price of, i. 143; malt a food for, i. 539.
- Cattle, fat, importation of, price of, i. 270.
- Cavaignac, advocating a reduction of the French army, i. 489.
- Cavalry, officers in, absurdly numerous, i. 508.
- Cayley, Mr., his opinion as to what agricultural prices should be, i. 21; has tried to make Adam Smith a protectionist, i. 202; said wages were reduced, i. 399.
- Census, facts of, an argument for reform, ii. 251.
- Certificate of Suffolk labourer, i. 280.
- Chamber of Commerce, meeting of, in Manchester, in 1838, ii. 279.
- Champion of Peace, title of, honourable, ii. 422.
- Chancery, House of Commons a more expensive tribunal than, ii. 515.
- Chandos Clause, use made of it, i. 238.
- Changes, great, are imminent, i. 385.
- Channel Islands, free trade in corn in, i. 139.
- Charity, not this asked for, but justice, i. 62; should follow justice, i. 231.
- Charleston, affair of coloured seaman at, ii. 126.
- Charter of incorporation for Manchester, how got by Mr. Cobden and Alderman Neild, ii. 80.
- Chartists not generally favourable to Corn-laws, i. 18; opposition of, perhaps hired in Birmingham, i. 128.

- Chatham, charged with unfaithfulness, ii. 26; eloquence of, did not prevent war, ii. 314; policy of, ii. 350.
- Cheapness of food, how it stimulates trade, i. 67.
- Cheese, when it rises and falls in price, i. 145; proportion of price of, in rent, i. 148; what counties send it to market, and how they are taxed in cattle food, i. 272.
- Cherbourg, defensive works at, why constructed, i. 520; destruction of, ii. 13.
- Cheshire, bad cultivation of, i. 70, 220.
- Chevalier, M., his pamphlet on expenditure, i. 521; inquiries by, into French armaments, ii. 327.
- Chicago, importance of, ii. 363.
- China, tariff of, rejoicings over, i. 233; tariffs of, without reciprocity, i. 234; trade of, with England, ii. 96; discreditable proceedings in, ii. 114; treaty with, binds to a reciprocal policy, ii. 124; necessity of government of, to watch irregular trade, ii. 130; no country in which trade is more free than in, ii. 144; exports to, low, and why, ii. 146; affairs of, in 1862, ii. 269.
- Chinese, cleverness of, are fond of limited liability partnerships, ii. 132; have desired earnestly to carry out treaties, ii. 137; antiquity and intelligence of, ii. 155; not a nation to imitate, ii. 620.
- Chinese war, reason why speaker dealt with, ii. 58.
- Chivalry, Sir Robert Peel not much alarmed at, i. 175.
- Cholera, epidemic panics like, i. 461; a vegetable, so to speak, an epidemic blight is, ii. 287.
- Christians, some oppose all war, ii. 160.
- Christopher, Mr., on agricultural statistics, i. 265.
- Church in danger, cry of, recurrent, ii. 453.
- Church of England, clergy of, their invidious position, i. 356; attitude of, on education, ii. 570; schism in, probable, ii. 574; outcry against, danger to, ii. 591; supported in the country by its endowments, ii. 592; its departure from its original ground of uniformity in schools, ii. 600.
- Church-rates, Lord Palmerston's indifference to, ii. 275.
- Church, State, its attitude in public questions, ii. 453.
- Churches, subscriptions in, to relieve distress, ii. 312.
- City, laughs at the speaker's letter, ii. 209.
- City of London, Lord John Russell's speech in, ii. 7.
- Civilians, may decide on necessity of armaments, i. 458.
- Civilisation, low state of, when no country, particularly if weak, feels itself safe, i. 601; barbarous hordes unable to cope with, ii. 21; discoveries of, perverted to policy of barbarism, ii. 168.
- Civil List, no reduction needed in, i. 498.
- Civil war, American, how said to have been originated, ii. 104; destructive character of, ii. 107; why the speaker is tolerant of opinion about, ii. 356.
- Civis Romanus sum*, a bad motto on a foreign counting-house, ii. 143.
- Claqueur*, Lord Palmerston had a, in the press, ii. 274.
- Clarendon, Lord, his speech on Russian war criticised, ii. 36; fallacious argument of, about powers of Hong-kong register, ii. 129; on observance of treaties by Chinese, and inference thence, ii. 136; on the wishes of British merchants in China, ii. 141; on coming into office, slackened the rein, ii. 152.
- Claret, consumption of, a test of civilisation, ii. 236.
- Clarkson, Thomas, on free and slave colour, i. 181.
- Class, legislation for, against the people, i. 22; Free-trade intends to extinguish legislation in behalf of a particular, i. 78.
- Classes, no war of, i. 348.
- Classes in Mechanics' Institutes, their value, ii. 610.
- Classical learning, advantages of, ii. 364.
- Clay, Henry, rejected in America as a Protectionist, i. 226; his services to this country in 1837, ii. 90.
- Clergy, wages of, only kind which is settled by sliding scale, i. 23; only class interested in Corn-laws, i. 204; of Church of England, in an invidious position, i. 356; their abstinence from support to Corn-laws, praiseworthy, i. 357; aggregate in-

- comes of, ii. 592; assistance given by, to education, ii. 593; to make schoolmasters the teachers of religion, a reflection on the, ii. 598.
- Clergyman, joining a rifle club, ii. 441; opinion of, on secular education, ii. 581.
- Clerk, Sir G., his evidence as to the fitness of Indians for employment, ii. 389.
- Cleveland, Duke of, his liberties with Adam Smith, i. 202.
- Clive, Sir J. Bowring is to play the part of, ii. 154.
- Cloutz, Anacharsis, England should not be the, of Europe, ii. 7.
- Clothing, of French, bad, ii. 233.
- Clothing colonels, abolished, i. 594.
- Clothing department, accounts of, fallacious, i. 596.
- Clothing establishments, character of Government, i. 594.
- Clover-seed, free admission of, alarmed Mr. O'Brien, i. 271.
- Club, Carlton, and Reform, put up boroughs to auction, i. 110; a rich man's, the House of Commons, ii. 372.
- Clubs, concert rumours, i. 288.
- Coal, exportation of, not to be prohibited, ii. 296.
- Cobbett, his prejudice against potatoes, i. 105; his grammar, for Kings' speeches, i. 312.
- Cobden, Mr., a farmer's son, i. 32, 191; contrast of his business with that of landowner, i. 194; how he obtained his estate in Sussex, i. 440; letter of, to tenant-farmers, i. 449; his travels in America in 1859, and inferences therefrom, ii. 104; his work on 'How Wars are got up in India,' ii. 113; his adventure in an omnibus, ii. 204; letter of, on Russian loan, the City laughs at, ii. 209; history of his refusal to take office, ii. 539; his rule in matters of public policy, ii. 544; his efforts for education in 1836, ii. 573; takes his family to parish church, and therefore is living on endowments, ii. 602.
- Cochrane, Admiral, letter of, on Chinese affairs, ii. 140.
- Cockburn, Mr., his speech on the Pacific case, ii. 224.
- Coffee, effect of equalising duty on, i. 61; reduction of duty on, i. 176.
- Colchester, meeting at, i. 100; Free-trade meeting at, i. 131.
- Coles, Colonel Cowper, difficulty in getting his turret-ship taken, i. 602.
- Collier, Sir R., on Foreign Enlistment Act, ii. 86.
- Colonels, two in each regiment, one its tailor, i. 477.
- Colonies, policy towards, i. 424; expense of, i. 425; what should be the policy of, i. 486; question of, i. 503; constitutions for, ib.; expenses of, paid from a little speck, i. 551; representatives of, in House, effects of presence of, i. 569; people of, freer than English, ii. 117; protection of, ii. 248; withdrawal of troops from, ii. 331; government of, bad, ii. 383.
- Colonial interests, power of, i. 248.
- Colonial system, Free-traders charged with desiring to subvert, but they only want to subvert colonial monopolies, i. 60.
- Colonists, a one-sided bargain with, i. 504.
- Coloured men, law of South Carolina about, ii. 126.
- Colt, Colonel, his manufacture of small arms, i. 589.
- Combativeness, speaker affected by, i. 339.
- Combe, Mr., on details of education, ii. 595; on ignorance of English people, ii. 604.
- Commander-in-Chief, effect of his approbation, i. 582.
- Commerce of England, its magnitude, ii. 300; position of, in 1864, ii. 347.
- Commercial blockades, maintenance of, gives claim of compensation on part of those who suffer by them, ii. 289.
- Commercial intercourse, effects of war on, ii. 246.
- Commercial treaty with France, its motives, ii. 232.
- Commission, Select Committee better than, and why, i. 166; on women and children employed in agriculture, i. 350.
- Commissioners, expense of, i. 500; in bribery cases, proceedings of, ii. 519.
- Commissioners, Poor Law, their report on the state of the nation, i. 62.
- Commissions, Irish, cost of, i. 502.
- Committee, of House of Commons, frequently appointed to take evidence, i. 136; Select, less useful than Commission, i. 166; to inquire into agricultural distress, i. 260; Select, proceedings of, ii. 519; of Privy

- Council, action of, transferred to localities, ii. 569.
- Committees, character of, of House of Commons, i. 378; futility of appointing, to control expenditure, i. 579; labour on, great, ii. 228.
- Commodities, Government should buy, not make, i. 587.
- Commons, House of, not intended to petition further, and why, i. 76; does not require bribery to be defined, i. 94; its real indifference to bribery, i. 110; mere majority of members in, cannot carry a minister on, i. 132; advantages of speaking in, i. 285; dread of members that what they have said may be quoted against them, i. 302; on Schleswig-Holstein, ii. 342.
- Communities, down-trodden, of Continent, not likely to be helped by Crimean war, ii. 34.
- Company, East India, annexation favoured among servants of the, ii. 386.
- Compensation, claims for, under Corn-law, i. 27; odious principle of, i. 531; scheme of, spoliation, i. 533.
- Competition, of farmers for farms, proof of the direction in which profits of protection go, i. 119; Government should not manufacture that which can be produced by private competition, i. 579; force of, sufficient check, i. 600.
- Compliments, empty, are valueless, ii. 312.
- Compulsory system in education, suggested by some, ii. 579.
- Conductor, or non-conductor, of immorality, i. 178.
- Confederacy, Southern, policy of, ii. 363.
- Confidence, election of 1841 referred to, in Ministers, is sometimes stated, i. 2; not vote of want of, to invite reduction of taxation, i. 513; vote on Foreign Enlistment Bill a vote of, in Government, ii. 3; want of, in public men, ii. 49.
- Congress, sitting of, December 1860, January 1861, ii. 105; European invited, but not hopeful, ii. 109; of nations, desirable, ii. 176.
- Conquest, war of, impossible on Continent, i. 483.
- Conscript, story of Russian, ii. 207.
- Conscription, effect of, on people, ii. 38.
- Conservative, who is the true, ii. 255.
- Conservatives, in House of Commons, not followers of Duke of Richmond, i. 369.
- Conservatism, a spurious or ignorant kind of, ii. 358.
- Consolidated Fund, plan to put half the local taxes on, i. 446.
- Constantinople, population of, steadily diminishes, ii. 16; speaker at, in 1837, when the affair of the Vicer occurred, ii. 170; keeping Russians out of, part of Indian policy, ii. 393.
- Constituencies, enlargement of, a necessary reform, ii. 561.
- Constituency, annual address to, a good custom, ii. 231.
- Constitutional Government, abuse of word, ii. 224.
- Consul, better at Athens than an ambassador, ii. 217.
- Consumer, benefit to, by remission of taxes, i. 536.
- Consumption, taxes of Consolidated Fund are taxes on, i. 446; taxation cannot be left on, i. 559.
- Continent, nations of, desire peace, i. 432; threat of Russia to overrun European, discussed, ii. 7; disturbances in, and their effect on England, ii. 549.
- Continental war, originated with us, ii. 430.
- Contract, difficulties of, when it is contrasted with Government account, i. 600; absurdity of forms of Government, i. 604.
- Contractors of loans, their procedure, ii. 203.
- Cook, Mr., on British smugglers in China—is completely anti-Chinese, ii. 131; on trade at Whampoa, ii. 145.
- Cooper, case of, in Staffordshire, ii. 471.
- Corn, attempt to fix a certain price of, its absurdity, i. 20; not in Peel's tariff, and why, i. 116; when cheap, wages high in Lancashire, i. 120; home-grown, seldom carried coastwise, i. 141; high price of, always time of manufacturing distress, i. 249; tax on, most objectionable, i. 290; why not freely imported, i. 330; exported ordinarily from Ireland, i. 418; exports of, from Russia, ii. 43; Black Sea ports left open for a year, to procure, ii. 292; exports of, from America, ii. 295.
- Corn-dealers, ruined by Corn-laws, i. 40.

- Corn-law, interest of, to people of England, i. 2; immediate repeal of, why as just as its immediate imposition, i. 27; support of, inflicts scarcity, i. 45; its evils on all, i. 57; why abolition of it is principally advocated, i. 115; only a rent law, and no use to farmers, i. 192; of 1841, petitions against it, i. 337.
- Corn-law repeal, will be carried by some statesman of established reputation in Parliament, i. 79.
- Corn-laws, why passed, i. 37; taxes imposed in consequence of, i. 71; said to be for benefit of labourers, i. 116; condition of agricultural labourers related to, i. 165; made politics of, i. 263; repeal of, three ways of effecting, i. 292; condition of people during the, ii. 234.
- Corn-rents, security of, i. 226.
- Corporation of London, its absurdity and mummeries, ii. 459.
- Correspondence, imaginary, with Brazil, i. 177; in blue-book, culled on purpose, ii. 141.
- Corruption, always known to candidate, i. 92; old, character of, ii. 517.
- Cortes, Portuguese, elections to, i. 466.
- 'Cosmogony,' use of, in Vicar of Wakefield, like Protection, a cover for a cheat, i. 125.
- Cottage property, better investment, as far as regards interest, than savings-bank, i. 240.
- Cottages, pulled down by landowners, i. 159.
- Cotton, slave-grown, and yet imported, i. 178; effect of attempting to fix its price, i. 318; admission of, delayed, and why, i. 559; supply of, ii. 119; supply of, dependent, unfortunately, on slavery, ii. 254; from Southern States in the war of 1812-13, ii. 294; cost of obtaining, by force, ii. 320.
- Cotton night-cap, each Chinaman buying, would keep Lancashire mills going, ii. 145.
- Cotton Supply Association, its services, ii. 119.
- Cotton trade, sketch of, ii. 285; prospects of, in 1862, ii. 310.
- Counties, more vulnerable at elections than small boroughs, i. 210; all in hands of monopolists, i. 236; progress of Free-trade movement in, i. 239.
- Country, state of the, in 1843, i. 39; soil of, the most attractive investment, i. 263; its sympathy with the Ministry, assisted by the attacks of the Protectionists, i. 366; appeal to, why unnecessary in Feb. 1846, i. 367; new, its disadvantage by side of old, ii. 619.
- County franchise, importance of, i. 318.
- County meetings, unwillingness of landowners to call, i. 192; should be held, in order to relieve distress, ii. 312.
- County Members, their treatment of dissenters, ii. 500.
- County representation, character of the, i. 373.
- County towns, meetings at, i. 196.
- County vote, how to be obtained, i. 238.
- Covenants, absurd in leases, i. 266.
- Covent Garden meetings, benefit of, i. 232.
- Cowper Coles, Captain, on Armstrong guns, i. 586.
- Crawford, Mr. Sharman, services of, ii. 562.
- Craze, the English, the dread of a French invasion, ii. 534.
- Crimea, occupation of, impossible, ii. 12; state of army in, in winter of 1854, ii. 23; climate of, in autumn, ii. 48; war in, naval expenditure during, ii. 243.
- Crimean war, ordnance supplied in, satisfactory, i. 584; experience of, as to the effects of blockade, ii. 292; experience derived from, as to uselessness of argument, ii. 314.
- Crimes, rare in Russia, ii. 208.
- Criminal, political, sum paid for capture of, ii. 66.
- Croly, Dr., eminent for learning, piety, and moderation, i. 356.
- Cromwell, manifesto of, ii. 358.
- Cronstadt, Russian ships at, i. 523; fleet at, absurd, ii. 208.
- Crowding, in country places, may be under control, i. 157.
- Culture, value of, ii. 364.
- Curry powder, proposal to use, i. 341.
- Custom-houses, not intended to take away, but only certain persons from them, i. 114.
- Customs, what kind of, the League wishes to take away, i. 82; reduction of, and the explanation, ii. 370.
- Customs regulations, vexatiousness of,

- i. 550; just complaints against, i. 559.
- Czar, the, a mendicant, ii. 193; subscriptions of, to Austria, the Pope, and Tuscany, fictitious, ii. 197; character of his kingdom, ii. 200; expenses of, met by loans, ii. 420.
- D.
- Daily News*, on petitions in favour of Reform (1848), ii. 469.
- Dalgleish, Mr., his inquiries into French dockyards, ii. 327.
- Dalhousie, Lord, on annexation, ii. 385; and the Burmese war, ii. 391.
- Dalton, Dr., anecdote of, ii. 312.
- Damaak, patterns of, ii. 611.
- Dantziö, statement as to price of wheat at, i. 139, 141, 276.
- Danube, navigation of, alleged as cause of Russian war, ii. 5.
- Davis, Jefferson, Mr., his capacity, ii. 359.
- Davis, Sir John, British Plenipotentiary in China, correspondence of, ii. 139; letter of, in 1846, ii. 141.
- Davison, Mr., on house and income tax, i. 530.
- Dawes, Mr., his admirable schools, ii. 605.
- Debates, wish that they were burned, i. 302.
- Debt, Austrian, its growth, ii. 182.
- Debt, National, payment of, i. 512.
- Debts, public, responsibility of, ii. 419.
- Decline, cessation of progress, the commencement of, ii. 303.
- Defensive war, advantage given to, i. 601.
- Deficit, Government proposed to create in 1852, i. 553; in Indian revenue, ii. 73.
- De Girardin, M. Emile, on the cry of French invasion, ii. 426.
- Delusion of the legislature in 1815, i. 17.
- Delusions, gross, of Lord Palmerston, ii. 323.
- Demagogue, disappointed, the speaker charged with being, by the Globe, ii. 463.
- Democracy, civil war in United States, aristocratic rebellion against, ii. 107.
- Demonstrations, on foreign topics, misleading, ii. 352.
- Demoralisation of telling farmers they cannot compete with foreigners, i. 170.
- Denman, Admiral, quotation from pamphlet of, ii. 267.
- Denmark, war of Schleswig and, its inconvenience to commerce, ii. 175; integrity of monarchy of, ii. 341; loan of, ii. 419.
- Departments, ridicule the control of Parliament, i. 579.
- Dependence on foreigners, a long buried ghost, i. 377.
- Deputations, numerous to Prime Minister on state of manufacturing population, i. 151.
- Derby, recent (1855) meeting at, ii. 53.
- Derby, Lord, his brilliant and admirable speech, ii. 173; has no wish to displace Lord Palmerston, ii. 273.
- Details, control of, impossible in House of Commons, i. 579.
- Devon, North, highest poor rates, least capital in, i. 404.
- Devonshire, farmers of, their distress; i. 260; north of, peasantry degraded because tenants impoverished, i. 269.
- Dinners, agricultural, talk at, i. 102.
- Diplomacy, proper business of, i. 526; feelings akin to contempt for, ii. 218; traditions of, futile, ii. 524.
- Diplomatic salaries, charges of, i. 506.
- Direct taxation, when not objectionable, i. 531; advocates of Free-trade not necessarily advocates of, i. 545.
- Directions, any attempt to give to trade and industry, will probably be wrong, i. 383.
- Directors, Court of Indian, a mere screen, ii. 380; have no power except patronage, ii. 388.
- Dirt, advocates of tax on soap, advocates of, i. 550.
- Disarmament, total, the speaker never argued for, ii. 530.
- Discussions, ripening of, into true principles, ii. 331.
- Disfranchisement, amount of voluntary, great, i. 183; said to be an odious plan, but we must do the same on both sides, i. 241.
- Disputes which have not led to war, cost of, ii. 173.
- Disraeli, Mr., his plans, i. 42; his theory of compensations, i. 395; said the speaker was a party to injuring farmers, i. 397; on land, and landlords, i. 439; magniloquent phrases of—has done his best, i. 548; took a philosophical and able view of finance, ii. 73; his sneers generally ex post facto, ii. 159; a phrase of,

- 'bloated armaments,' ii. 371; on Bucks and Manchester, ii. 476.
- Dissenters, treatment of, ii. 499; errors of conduct by, on system of education, ii. 601.
- Dissolution, motive for, in Feb. 1846, i. 368.
- Distress, of agriculturists, when others prosper, due to unnatural causes, i. 68; agricultural, great, i. 260; will repeal Corn-laws, i. 299; farming not real in 1852, i. 532.
- Divorced, English peasantry, from land, ii. 117.
- 'Do something,' a popular cry, ii. 47.
- Dockyards, royal, conduct of, i. 597; Commission to inquire into (1860), ii. 240.
- Doctrine of Protectionists, not believed by themselves, i. 381.
- Doe and Roe, banishment of, from Courts, retention of, in India, ii. 382.
- Dorsetshire, condition of labourers in, i. 30; highest poor rates, least capital in, i. 404; compared with Middlesex, ii. 478.
- Douay Bible, use of, ii. 571.
- Douglas, Sir Howard, the irrelevancy of his speeches, i. 15.
- Drain of gold, absurdity of, i. 124.
- Draining tiles, free from duty, i. 217.
- Drawing, art of, its use in Barnsley, ii. 611.
- Drawing master, need of, in manufactures, ii. 611.
- Drogheda, petition against Corn-laws from, i. 356.
- Drouyn de Lhuys, M., offers of, ii. 45; communications of, with Lord Palmerston, ii. 218.
- Drum-heads, gentlemen of England should not be mere, i. 282.
- Drummond, Mr., his adage, that property has its duties as well as its rights, i. 158.
- Drummond, Mr., his criticism on the speaker, i. 549.
- Drunkenness, common in Russia, ii. 208.
- Dubergier, Mons. Duffour, a French Free-trader, i. 392.
- Ducie, Lord, his excellent farming, i. 122; his good sense, i. 167; an agriculturist and free-trader, i. 222; his opinion as to proportion of labourers to agricultural requirements, i. 275; on Corn-laws, land-owner, farmer, and labourer, i. 330.
- Dudley Stuart, Lord, his private virtues, disinterested conduct, and boundless generosity, ii. 5; wished Kossuth to see Lord Palmerston, ii. 63.
- Duelling, obsolete, and argument from the last, ii. 518.
- Duke, a noble, in House of Lords said the League wished to lower wages, i. 196.
- Dukes, argue in the future tense, i. 200.
- Dundee, effects of depression on price of cattle near, i. 144; memorial from, during Crimean war, ii. 293.
- Dunfermline, damask manufacture of, ii. 611.
- Dungannon, Lord, his loss of seat for bribery, i. 111.
- Dunkirk, case of, after Treaty of Utrecht, ii. 12.
- Dutch, contempt of, for English keeping their ports shut, i. 328.
- Duty, fixed, on corn, i. 290.
- Dynasty, French, said to be at stake in Crimean war, ii. 44.

E.

- Earnest, Lord Palmerston not much in, ii. 275.
- Economy, Liberal party has not fulfilled pledges of, ii. 259; necessity of, ii. 473.
- Edinburgh Review*, on foreign affairs, ii. 366.
- Education, imperfections of, at University, and danger from, ii. 364; system of, difficulty of supplying, ii. 591; public opinion on, ii. 601; best assistance to temperance, ii. 616.
- Education, national, a necessary sequel of an extended franchise, ii. 551; policy and necessity of, ii. 620.
- Education, secular, its urgency, ii. 568; outlay for, good, ii. 593.
- Education grant, amount of, 1851, ii. 586.
- Egerton, Mr., of Tatton, condition of his estate, i. 221.
- Egmont, Lord, noted for foolish speeches and overrunning land with game, i. 422.
- Egypt, expedition of Napoleon to, ii. 408.
- Elbe, blockade of, in war between Denmark and Schleswig, ii. 175.
- Election of 1841, question before the constituencies at, differently stated, i. 1; last general (1841), corruption at, i. 74; people at large have an

- interest in every, i. 87; of 1841, its character, i. 281; general, only means of checking expenditure, ii. 371; cost of petitions after an, ii. 515.
- Electioneering agents of landowners their land agents, i. 354.
- Elections, Free-traders wish to influence, i. 72; intention of League to influence, i. 107; American, true test of spirit, ii. 318; in United States and England, ii. 360; in Italy, satisfactory, ii. 526.
- Electoral districts, objections against, ii. 474.
- Electors, existing, might think the admission of others would weaken them, ii. 547.
- Elizabeth, law of, giving a garden to every cottage, i. 214; times of, examined, ii. 352.
- Ellenborough, Lord, generosity of British people to, ii. 344; on Government of India, ii. 384; his sketch of Rangoon, ii. 390.
- Elswick, establishment at, i. 582.
- Emancipation Bill of 1833, its settlement by religious persons, i. 10.
- Emigration, effects of, great, on national resources, i. 552; no relief by, and no need of, ii. 71.
- Emperor of Russia, character of, ii. 20.
- Empire of China, oldest in world, ii. 155.
- Empires, desire and motive for mighty, will hereafter die away, i. 363.
- Empires, great, less enduring than small states, ii. 316.
- Employers, influence their labourers' politics, ii. 505.
- Employment, a great want, i. 166.
- Enactments, restrictive, possible effects of, i. 138.
- Enfield, origin of manufactory at, i. 589.
- England, gentlemen of, should not be drum-heads, i. 282; corrupts Europe by the vicious example of her commercial legislation, i. 359; like a garrison, requiring that its supplies should be kept open, i. 586; should not be the Anacharsis Cloots of Europe, ii. 7; lesson learnt by, in Russian war, ii. 21; no duty of, to fight for German interests, ii. 40; most powerful, but most vulnerable, ii. 96; excellent country for rich, ii. 116; how liberties of, obtained, ii. 201; people of, would subscribe to pay back the money claimed from Greece, ii. 222; a free port for manufactured goods, ii. 235; navy of, its proportion to French, ii. 239; commerce, double that of any other country, ii. 300; obstacle to a beneficent change in maritime law, ii. 301; cannot carry on hostilities with United States, ii. 319; institutions of, require amendment, ii. 321; expenditure of, in peace, equal or nearly to that of United States in war, ii. 369; disgraced by acting as a bully, ii. 461; people of, desire the franchise, ii. 468; honour and honesty in, ii. 488; its disorders in 17th century, ii. 495; great inequality of fortune in, ii. 505; what should be the demeanour of, at a Congress, ii. 525; long period of revolutions in, ii. 527.
- English, when they get east of the Cape, lose morality and Christianity, ii. 113; not character of, to be bullies, ii. 124; behaviour of, abroad, ii. 143; habits of, in dealing with foreign questions, ii. 355; cannot be indigenous in India, ii. 397; pride and prejudice of, ii. 619.
- Englishmen, their veneration for sacred things, i. 10; generally much the same everywhere, i. 56; desire of, to possess land, i. 382; hated in Italy, and why, i. 484; conduct of, in China, ii. 138; certainly not cowards, ii. 408.
- Epworth, Protectionist meeting at, i. 373.
- Equality, religious and fiscal, an advocate of, i. 567; social, prized in France, ii. 433.
- Essex Protection Society, its nonsense, i. 139.
- Establishment, wealth of, ii. 592.
- Establishments, additions to, not easily got rid of, i. 557; no logical end to increase of, ii. 169; expensive, Lord Palmerston always in favour of, ii. 262; military, reduction of, necessary in order to reduce taxation, ii. 405.
- Estimates, reason why exception is taken to refusal of, i. 494.
- Eton College, fellows of, at Salthill, i. 314.
- Europe, corrupted by vicious example of England, i. 359; nations of, have no desire to make war on each other, i. 503; dread of its being overrun by Russia, absurd, ii. 7; prospects of peace with, according

- to Mr. Cockburn, ii. 224; how it may negotiate on maritime law with the United States, ii. 301; amount of soldiers in, ii. 416; public opinion of, not in favour of wars, ii. 537.
- European Governments, American legislation on foreign enlistment for benefit of, ii. 86.
- Exact sciences, mastery of, not so hard as of political economy, i. 383.
- Excitement, political, when most active, ii. 556.
- Executive, weakness of, cause of Government manufactories, i. 578.
- Exeter Hall, meeting at, i. 230.
- Exhibition, Great, its lesson, ii. 606.
- Expatriation of labour from the United Kingdom, i. 71.
- Expenditure, prospects of reducing, i. 423; amount of, in 1836 and 1849, particulars of, i. 497; private, of Crown, small, i. 499; increase of, how arises, i. 502; great increase of, i. 552; Lord Aberdeen did not attempt to increase, i. 556; naval and military, to be grappled with, i. 558; progress of scientific knowledge leads to increased, ii. 169; on navy, French and English, ii. 240; amount and character of (1863), ii. 260; under Sir R. Peel and Duke of Wellington, ii. 322; probable reduction of, by a reformed Parliament, ii. 337; American, compared with English, ii. 368; reduction of, the only expedient of finance left, ii. 370; amount of, for military purposes, ii. 406; amount of, and prospects of reducing, ii. 435; saving of, its advantage, ii. 536.
- Expenses on petition, by whom to be borne, ii. 516.
- Experience, its use in political questions, i. 296.
- Exports, increase of, between 1831 and 1836, explained, i. 13.
- 'Extract,' suspicious character of public documents marked, ii. 127.
- F.
- Factor, Scotch, 'waur than the laird,' i. 174.
- Faith, every new, must have its martyrs, i. 362.
- Fallacies of House, fun to fustian jackets, i. 377; some very costly, ii. 245.
- Falsehood, definition of, ii. 127.
- Falsehoods, enormous, of monopolists, i. 250.
- Famine, effect of waiting for, before the repeal of the Corn-laws, i. 294; state of, in 1845, i. 322.
- Fanatics, made use of by clever knaves, i. 179.
- Fantome, case of the, ii. 216.
- Farmer, distress of, prosperity of the nation, i. 14; Corn-laws delusive to, i. 48; pays for the Corn-laws, i. 51; distrusts promises now, i. 59; has no interest in Corn-laws, i. 119; interest of, that of whole community, i. 138; cajoled by landowners, i. 149; real grievances of, i. 193; English, close to servility of ryot, i. 266; does not take a lease, and why, i. 269; not responsible for condition of labourer, i. 279; the better off he is, the more he suffers by protection, i. 316; interest of, involved in abolition of Corn-laws, and why, i. 360; votes with landlord, i. 375; frightened by bogies raised by landlords, i. 378; to be taxed by Mr. Disraeli, on plea of benefiting him, i. 395; a manufacturer, i. 396; suffering in certain districts, i. 400; does not want to extirpate game, i. 403; to be instructed on relations of landlord and tenant, i. 422; does not keep books, and therefore does not know what his profits are, i. 545.
- Farmers, condition of, i. 31; not responsible for low wages, i. 160; slow to improve, and why, i. 170; those put forward by Protectionists, are lawyers, land-valuers, and auctioneers, i. 174; free-traders, when intelligent, i. 190; what causes their suffering, i. 262; speaker's acquaintance with, i. 274; landlords do not now say that Corn-laws are their advantage, i. 288; interest of, in maintaining Corn-laws, i. 293; proportion of, to population, i. 298; assessment of income-tax on, i. 542; kept as a separate class, i. 544; Welsh, complaining of taxation, ii. 405; desire the ballot, ii. 480.
- Farmers' friends, party of, its profession, i. 54; the duty of such people, i. 145.
- Farming, most inviting business of all, i. 404.
- 'Farming,' the Indian Government, its meaning, ii. 382.

- Farming capital, average amount of, i. 262.
- Farms, valuation of, i. 137.
- Fever, intermittent, liability to, in Crimea, ii. 48.
- Fever Hospital, London, patients in, i. 164.
- Ferrand, Mr., vote of House of Commons on him, i. 237.
- Feudalism, destroyed in France, ii. 433.
- Filibustering, habit of, in Lord Palmerston, ii. 270.
- Finance, Austrian, condition of, ii. 183; of India, cannot be separated from that of England, ii. 392.
- Finances, reform of, necessary, ii. 367; French, annual statements of, ii. 239; national, in a perilous condition, ii. 500.
- Financial Reform Association, its services, i. 498.
- Finlay, Mr., story of, ii. 213.
- Fireside jealousy, attacks on Mr. Bright due to, ii. 75.
- Fisher, Mr. Malachi, on agricultural labourers' homes, i. 157.
- Fitzwilliam, Lord, his assistance to Free-trade, i. 106.
- Fixed duty, policy of, discussed, i. 294; what if this had been adopted, ii. 69.
- Flax, cultivation of, advised—not protected, i. 277.
- Fleet, use of, in time of war, to protect, not prevent commerce, ii. 298.
- Fokien, inhabitants of, begged that Cantonese should be sent away, ii. 151.
- Follies, Palmerston's, the fortifications will be called, ii. 332.
- Food, price of, not relative to price of labour, except where slavery prevails, i. 6; price of, regulates wages, an opinion in 1814, i. 16; low priced, does not mean low wages, i. 105; price of, and of labour, i. 252; low price of, beneficial to agricultural labourer, i. 279; dependence on one power for, when undesirable, ii. 321.
- Food tax, anxiety of people to get rid of, i. 3.
- Force, government by moral or physical, i. 290.
- Foreign Affairs, Minister for, his business, ii. 412.
- Foreign corn, how its import benefits workmen, i. 253.
- Foreign Enlistment Act, necessity for Government to be vigilant in enforcing, ii. 86; two hundred years old, ii. 98.
- Foreign Office, approbation of, impossible to vote, ii. 223; mischievous activity of, ii. 341.
- Foreign trade, absurdity of a foreigner selling his goods and taking nothing in return, exposed, i. 123; inferences from, i. 605.
- Foreigner in England, once liable to be insulted, i. 526.
- Foreigners, said to be impossible to compete with, even if land rent free, i. 146; can get better goods than we do from Government workshops, i. 587; claim of, for admission to Canton, ii. 147; interference of, causes union, ii. 318.
- Forfar, state of peasantry in, i. 162.
- Fortifications, cost of, ii. 260, 330; expenditure on, act of Lord Palmerston, ii. 268; description of, and absurdity of, ii. 329.
- Forty-shilling franchise, its origin, i. 200; justification of creating, i. 243.
- Four Points, basis of peace, proposed by Russia, ii. 4.
- Fox, Mr. Thomas, on homes of agricultural labourer, i. 156.
- Fox, Mr. W. J., a distinguished orator, i. 246; on education, ii. 585; objections to scheme of, ii. 592.
- Fox, Charles, denounced as hiring of France, ii. 26; on guarantees of peace against France, ii. 31; eloquence of, did not prevent war of French Revolution, ii. 314; his correspondence with Mr. Gurney, ii. 440.
- Fox, Mr., ambassador at Washington in 1837, his communications with American Government, ii. 90.
- France, land-tax in, amount of, i. 24; noblesse of, before Revolution, i. 78; reasons why it should not go to war with us, i. 459; its pacific tendencies, i. 480; claim of United States on, i. 488; navy of, rule which fixes its amount, i. 517; interests of, in Crimean war, ii. 44; Lord Palmerston's policy towards, ii. 64; law of, in regard to ships like the Alabama, ii. 95; on verge of war with, ii. 138; humiliation of England by, in affair of Pacifico, ii. 221; monopolies in, ii. 232; navy of, its proportion to that of England, ii.

- 239; invasion cry of, as bad as anything Titus Oates said, ii. 244; Lord Palmerston always raising cry of invasion from, ii. 262; in war with, blockade no service, ii. 291; naval expenditure of, ii. 323; to be prevented from swallowing up Germany, an absurdity, ii. 349; invasion of, an absurdity, ii. 425; has suffered wrongs from England, ii. 430; justifiable complaints of, ii. 435; coup-d'état in (1851), ii. 510; expense of guarding England against, ii. 531; naval preparations in, provoked by England, ii. 532; invasions of, by England, ii. 537.
- Franchise, what constitutes borough, i. 184; women would make a better use of, than their husbands do, i. 257; county, its value, i. 256; early, kinds of, ii. 373; extension of, its necessity, i. 432; must be extended, ii. 546; an extended, its effects on education question, ii. 603.
- Frankfort, peace congress at, its value, ii. 410; treatment of Jews at, ii. 599.
- Franklin, Dr., his opinion on slavery, i. 180; his proposed reforms in maritime law, ii. 281.
- Franklin, Lady, answer of American President to, ii. 160.
- Freedom, of industry, its meaning, i. 385; political, brings about distaste for war, i. 432; gains of, on the Continent, i. 482; colonial, complete, and consequences of, i. 504; progress of, on what it depends, ii. 228; enemies of religious, also enemies of commercial, ii. 458.
- Freehold, value of, as a franchise, i. 333.
- Freehold Land Association, objects of, ii. 486.
- Freeholds, purchase of, i. 211; how to be obtained, ii. 487.
- Free institutions, must be maintained by political contests, ii. 562.
- Free-trade, accepted on principle, i. 35; theoretically and in abstract right, i. 61; would not adversely affect landowners, i. 69; what its nature and aims are, i. 79; its real meaning, i. 113; effects of, in foreign countries, i. 121; progress that the movement has made, i. 132; in corn, would raise average prices, i. 140; not promotive of slavery, i. 180; why it is demanded, i. 203; beneficial to tenants, labourers, landlords, i. 270; sketch of its ultimate benefits to humanity, i. 363; North of England Conservatives in favour of, i. 369; importance of its acceptance, i. 391; perfectly understood in Manchester, i. 456; brings peace and harmony, i. 471; advocates of, not necessarily advocates of direct taxation, i. 545; its effects on revenue, i. 547; objection that criticism on principle of loans controverts, examined, ii. 180; objection to loans said to be violation of, ii. 193; coping-stone of edifice of, set by Mr. Gladstone, ii. 234; benefits conferred by, ii. 302; reasons for promoting, ii. 421; policy of a public man who adopts, ii. 449; effect of, on towns, and rents in and near them, ii. 489.
- Free-traders, monopolists of public opinion for quarter of a century, ii. 100.
- French, dominant passion of, desire for peace, i. 481.
- French invasion, panic of, i. 557.
- Friend of India*, an advocate of annexation, ii. 154.
- Friends, Society of, their success in extorting toleration, ii. 409; their connection with politics, ii. 440.
- Fulton, Mr., discovery of, ii. 168.
- Funding system, objections of economists to, ii. 180.
- Fustian jackets, fallacies of House of Commons fun to, i. 377.

G.

- Galileo, persecutors of, like Protectionists, ii. 493.
- Gallipoli, death of a pacha at, ii. 16.
- Game, how the speaker dealt with it, i. 441.
- Gamekeeper, should not be prowling about, i. 268.
- Game-preserving, a nuisance, i. 402.
- Gardens, value of, ii. 489.
- Gardner, Mr. Robert, a Conservative who proposed a Free-trader, i. 199.
- Genet, Mr., his proceedings in 1793, ii. 86.
- Geography, value of knowledge of, to agricultural labourers, ii. 593.
- George III, Watt's saying to him, i. 256; story of, and Lord Nelson, ii. 329.
- Germana, educated people, ii. 38.
- Germany, its certain united resistance to French invasion, i. 483; would

- be united to resist Russia, ii. 9; Lord J. Russell on, ii. 36; adopting popular sovereignty, ii. 117; policy of nationality in, ii. 316; sympathies of Schleswig and Holstein for, ii. 342; absurdity of France swallowing, ii. 349.
- Gibson, Mr. Milner, his work in the House of Commons, i. 245; his career in Parliament, ii. 76; properly took office, ii. 541.
- Gillatt, Mr., an Oxfordshire farmer, on abolition of Corn-laws, i. 358.
- Gilpin, Mr. C., his acceptance of office, ii. 541.
- Gilray, caricature of, ii. 26.
- Gipsies who sold brooms, story of, i. 593.
- Gisborne, Mr., his views on local taxation, i. 419.
- Gladiators, men who lend to belligerents have not the pleasure of seeing the, ii. 189.
- Gladstone, Mr., his opinions on Free-trade, i. 35; on Corn-law and tariff, i. 58; on the Corn-law of 1842, and its effect on prices, i. 261; opinion of, as to effects of Free-trade on poor land, i. 274; advising importation of raw materials, i. 330; his pathos in his speech, i. 555; his defence of income-tax unsatisfactory, i. 560; his character for sincerity and truthfulness, i. 571; holds both a philosophical and able view, ii. 73; the powers of his eloquence, ii. 75; on civilisation of the age, ii. 160; his fiscal reform, ii. 234; on public works in 1860, ii. 244; wrong guess of, during American war, ii. 315; has not defended the system of fortifications, ii. 332; his financial reforms up to 1861, ii. 335; his merits as a financier—his budgets, ii. 368.
- Gladstone, Mr., of Fasque, his opinion on Corn-laws, i. 52.
- Globe, the, Lord Palmerston's organ, its denunciations of the speaker, ii. 462.
- Gloucester, commission of inquiry into, ii. 520.
- Gold, drain of, crotchet of reciprocity-man, i. 124; drain of, absurdity of, i. 437.
- Gordon, Mr., his offer to his tenants, to take their farms, i. 379.
- Gordon, General, on military significance of railways, i. 505.
- Goulbourn, Mr., his opinion on Free-trade, i. 36.
- Government, moral, of the world does not suffer that any one should permanently benefit by wrong, i. 99; moral, of world, never gives a premium to injustice, i. 182; organs of, discrediting the extent of famine, i. 327; ought not to be able to be assailed as cause of scarcity, i. 342; will revert over the world to the municipal system, i. 363; should be always on the defensive, i. 476; should have no connection with the Press, i. 572; cannot understand the functions of a buyer, i. 586; carried on by a narrow class, i. 606; responsibility of, in continuing war with Russia, ii. 29; how it becomes unpopular, ii. 52; of 1857, incompetent, in matters of finance, ii. 72; English, always in alliance with most odious Governments in the world, ii. 115; French, good faith of, ii. 247; has nothing to do with mercantile operations, ii. 299; its fidelity to promises, ii. 322; British, does not dread invasion, ii. 428; ahead of the people in information, ii. 615.
- Governments, from Mr. Huskisson's time, have all wanted to get credit of being Free-traders, i. 115; one or two to be disposed of by Corn-laws, i. 336; rarely wise, ii. 529.
- Graham, Sir J., his opinions on Free-trade, i. 35; his speech on scarcity, i. 288; his administrative talents, i. 310; his unpopularity now (Feb. 1846) changed to the reverse, i. 367; compared with Lords J. Russell and Palmerston, ii. 463.
- Grain, consumption of, in United Kingdom, i. 67.
- Grease debate, great and immortal, i. 287.
- Greece, Court of, at Naulpa, ii. 213; grievances against, ii. 216; in the right (in Pacifico's case, ii. 411; treatment of, by England, ii. 461; colonies of, ii. 620.
- Greek Government, claims on, amount of, ii. 222.
- Greenock, Lord J. Russell's speech at, ii. 7.
- Greenup, Dr., his evidence as to agricultural labourers, i. 152.
- Gregson, Mr., on China trade, ii. 146.

- Grey, Lord, speeches of, in 1830, ii. 223.
- Grey-haired, when people get, they get moderate, ii. 336.
- Grievance, danger of a, when imposed by others, ii. 173.
- Griffiths, Rev. W., speech of, at Derby, ii. 53.
- Groaning, speaker not surprised at, since some must groan at their own inconsistency, ii. 221.
- Gros, Baron, his mission to Athens, ii. 219.
- Ground-rent, tax on houses does not reach, i. 535.
- Guardian*, the Manchester, its attacks on Mr. Bright, ii. 74.
- Guards, English officers in regiment of, i. 508.
- Guildhall, meeting at, in favour of the Poles, ii. 354.
- Guizot, M., reproaches on, for the Tahiti case, ii. 173.
- Gun-boats, best means of defence, ii. 535.
- Gun-factory, wages at, of Woolwich, i. 580.
- Gunpowder, insurance of works of, what reckoned at, i. 594; stock of, in 1849, ii. 167.
- Guns, manufacture of, i. 581.
- Gurney, Mr., his correspondence with Fox, ii. 440.
- Guthrie, Rev. J., his evidence on agricultural labourers, i. 152.
- H.
- Habeas Corpus, not known in France, ii. 432.
- Haddingtonshire, Protectionist party in, i. 373.
- Hadly, Dr., on vices of Turks, ii. 16.
- Hale, Justice, on wages in 1683, i. 155.
- Halley, Dr., on education, ii. 602.
- Halliday, Mr., on Indian government, ii. 382.
- Halstead, Admiral, on English guns, i. 585.
- Hampshire, electors of, and adults in, ii. 497.
- Hanover, embassy of, might be suppressed, i. 501.
- Hansard, advantage of burning, i. 302.
- Hardinge, Lord, on Indian government, ii. 380.
- Hardwicke, Lord, his advice to labourers, i. 279.
- Hartington, Lord, responsible for a feat of commercial legerdemain, i. 593.
- Harvest, of 1842, abundant, i. 66; deficient, effects of, if it come (1845), i. 300.
- Hawes, Sir B., on army clothing, i. 595.
- Haynau, his enormities in Brescia, ii. 409.
- Hayter, Mr., on effect of Corn-laws, i. 270.
- Head, Sir F., on military expenditure, ii. 408.
- Headache, pledge after, ii. 348, 366.
- Health of towns, gathering for, but not one of them thinks of bread, i. 230.
- Hemp, Manilla, buyers of, during the Crimean war, ii. 293.
- Henley, Mr., his 'ugly rush,' ii. 118.
- Henry, Mr., on national ignorance, ii. 582.
- Herald, Morning*, to be made a fool's-cap or bonfire of, i. 123.
- Herculaneum of buried pamphlets in British Museum, i. 142.
- Hereditary legislators, and bondsmen, i. 347.
- Hertfordshire, interest of farmers in, i. 273.
- High Church, its quarrels with Low, ii. 575.
- Highlander, story of, about ghosts, i. 174.
- Hill, Mr., obligation of Greeks to, ii. 214.
- History of agriculture, future, what it will say of Corn-laws, i. 222.
- Hobbes, Mr. Fisher, his opinion on the productiveness of English land, i. 101; on agriculture, i. 264.
- Holland, only country besides England which ever levied a tax on bread, i. 4; history of, during a war, ii. 196; mode of its resistance to enemy, ii. 496; its system of education, ii. 573.
- Home Secretary, difficult for one in troublesome times to be popular, i. 397.
- Hong Kong, legislature of, limit of its powers, ii. 128.
- Honour, national, how far staked in Crimean war, ii. 21; public, and true interest, never dissociated, ii. 368.

- Hop-duties, remission of, objections to, i. 540.
- Hope and Co., their transactions with Austrian Government, ii. 181; give no guarantee of loan, ii. 185.
- Hops, protective duty on, i. 272.
- Horse, story of starving, and suggestion that corn should be tried, i. 225.
- Horse Guards, system of, ii. 253.
- Horsfall, Mr., his motion on the Alexandra, ii. 83; motion of, on maritime law, ii. 282.
- House of Commons, surrounded by a police force, i. 22; repeal of Corn-law will not be done in, but out of, i. 255; young members of, should study political economy, and why, i. 384; independent members in, weak, i. 490; committee of, on government manufactures, i. 578; has to deal only with the honest interests of England, ii. 27; duty of, on public questions, ii. 50; members of, their duty on expenditure, ii. 59; if it had right of electing three members, would elect Mr. Bright, ii. 81; more extravagant than Government, ii. 371; a rich man's club, ii. 372; religious opinion in, ii. 455; requires external stimulus for any reform, ii. 460; members of, numerous enough already, ii. 479; does not represent the people, as is proved by associations to move it, ii. 482; a more expensive tribunal than Chancery, ii. 515; not friendly to parliamentary reform, ii. 555; should be composed of single members from districts, ii. 561.
- House-tax, for England and Scotland only, i. 530.
- Household suffrage, a Saxon franchise, ii. 504.
- Householders, enfranchisement of, ii. 474.
- Householders, compound, Mr. Bright's services to them, ii. 78.
- Houses, additional law on, an additional income-tax, i. 533.
- Howqua, interview of Sir J. Bowring with Yeh, at his packing-house, ii. 148.
- Huddersfield, debate on secular education at, ii. 577.
- Hudson, Mr., on distress of Norfolk farmers, i. 260; his speeches about the League—nickname for him, i. 312.
- Hulls of ships, dockyard difficulties always in construction of, i. 599.
- Humboldt, Baron, an excellent arbitrator on geographical questions, ii. 171.
- Hume, his opinion on slavery, i. 180.
- Hume, Mr. Deacon, his opinion on taxation, i. 20; his services, i. 391.
- Hume, Mr. J., always a little before his time, but in the right, i. 408; excellent and tried veteran friend, his character, i. 491; confirms that 1792 was the standard of expenditure, i. 496; his acquaintance with expenditure, ii. 168; his labours for parliamentary reform, ii. 503; anecdote of, and Sir R. Peel, ii. 548.
- Hungarian war, Russian loan raised to pay for, ii. 418.
- Hungarians, high character of, and what they want, ii. 226.
- Hungary, campaign in, expenses of, not paid, ii. 188; expenses of war in, how met, ii. 198; speaker said untruly to have made an exception to his principles in favour of, ii. 224; interference with Greece, justifies Russia in invading, ii. 225; mode of its resistance, ii. 496; clergyman of, on English ignorance, ii. 615.
- Hunt, Mr., on wages and cost of maintaining paupers, i. 155.
- Huskisson, Mr., his authority, and opinions, i. 11, 12; his changes in 1823, i. 115; objections to his plan for reducing duty on wool, i. 142; his legislation on wool, i. 175; took duties off raw materials, i. 271; began policy of shifting taxes, i. 567.
- Hypocrites, the assailants of free-trade in sugar are, i. 86.

I.

- Ignorance, titled, among monopolists, i. 126; of American affairs, gross, ii. 103; chiefly in agricultural districts, ii. 593; amount of, in Manchester, ii. 614; vices often spring from, ii. 615.
- Ilyseus, the, present condition of, ii. 364.
- Improvements, unexhausted, speaker stipulated for, with tenants, i. 443.
- Income and property, increased expenditure must be met, by charges on, i. 558.
- Income-tax, tax on food a very severe form of, i. 4; levied because the - poor could pay no more taxes, i. 84; why imposed, i. 124; its employment in finance, i. 246; no threat to landed interest, said Mr. Benett, for their land belonged to mortgagees and money-lenders, i. 401; Peel's, not in a desirable form, but not to be parted with, i. 512; levied on English and Scotch, but not on Irish manufacturers, i. 530; modification of, by Budget of 1852, criticised, i. 541; modification of, how possible, i. 563; why people acquiesce in its inequalities, i. 566; permanent in character, i. 574.

- Independence, too rare a virtue in House of Commons, and why, ii. 68.
- Independence, War of, moral derived from, ii. 51; Declaration of, ii. 359.
- Independent members, weak in House of Commons, i. 490.
- India, finances of, ill managed, ii. 73; empire in, state of, ii. 114; risks of governing, ii. 357; government of, single or double, ii. 379; questions on, and public opinion, ii. 383; finances of, ii. 384; natives of, their fitness for employment, ii. 388; debt of, ii. 393; its probable growth, ii. 394; responsibility of governing, self-imposed by England, ii. 398.
- Indian corn, no objection made to its import, i. 330.
- Indians, American, wigwams of, better than houses of agricultural poor, i. 158.
- Indirect taxes, remitted yearly, i. 560; demoralisation by, i. 562.
- Industrious classes, better under Free-trade than under restrictive prices, i. 546.
- Industry, pays taxes, not wealth, i. 512; burdens on, by expenditure, ii. 439.
- Industry, French, its peculiarities, ii. 233.
- Infamous house, lenders to Russian Government like keeper of an, ii. 199.
- Inglis, Mr., his account of Ireland, i. 25.
- Inglis, Sir R., on contingencies of war, i. 474.
- Injustice, produces weakness and injury, ii. 111.
- Innovation, of sol. occupancy, how to be met, i. 375.
- Inquests on dead bodies washed on shore, charged to county rate, and so a burden on land, i. 287.
- Insults in China, correspondence respecting, a mystifying title, ii. 137.
- Insults to England in France, ii. 139.
- Insurance of powder-mill, i. 594.
- Insurance duties, tax on, objectionable, i. 550.
- Insurrection in Poland (1863), its origin and event, ii. 351.
- Interest, agricultural, its condition under monopoly, i. 400; common, in general prosperity, i. 448; true, and honour, never dissociated, ii. 368.
- Interests, important, plea for postponing repeal of Corn-laws, i. 299; material, the smallest part of the Free-trade movement, i. 362; rival, odious task to reconcile, i. 384; of buyer and seller, how they differ, i. 439; honest, House of Commons has to deal with, ii. 27; honest, of England, are of all mankind, ii. 291.
- International obligations, how, and why kept, ii. 299.
- Intervention, things to be considered in, ii. 110.
- Intolerance towards those who do not entertain the same view on Government questions, ii. 212.
- Invasion by France, a perpetual cry of Lord Palmerston, ii. 325.
- Investment, permanent, character of loans for, ii. 205.
- Ionians, the four, the case of, ii. 215.
- Ireland, Mr. Inglis' account of, i. 25; people of, seldom use wheaten bread, i. 105; pauperism in, i. 164; forty-shilling freeholders of, how treated, i. 210; how the rights of property are kept there, i. 281; failure of potato crop in, i. 308; famines in, i. 310; proposals for relieving distress in, i. 325; what will happen in, i. 327; Mr. O'Connell and, i. 347; invitations from, to speak on Free-trade, i. 356; unholy alliance of protectionists and landlords in, i. 416; landlords of, their tactics, i. 417; representation of, rotten, ib.; police force and judges' salaries in, i. 501; an excuse for keeping an army, i. 506; troops in, i. 507; extension of income-tax to, i. 567; indebtedness

- of, to England, and vice versa, i. 570; education in, its benefits, ii. 603.
- Irish, in Manchester and Salford, ii. 587.
- Irish Church, a great and glaring abuse, ii. 100.
- Irishman, story of, in Kentucky, i. 253.
- Iron, trade in, its fluctuations, i. 119.
- Italians, what they ask of England, ii. 226; good conduct of, in their political crisis, ii. 526.
- Italy, English hated in, and why, i. 484; war in, instructions of United States during, ii. 284; history of nationality in, ii. 316; should be let alone, ii. 525; campaign of Napoleon in, ii. 529.
- J.
- Jackson, General, his claim for compensation from the French, i. 488.
- Japan, war in, ii. 112.
- Jefferson, Mr., his opinion on the purchase of munitions of war, ii. 84; autobiography of, cited, ii. 281.
- 'Jenkinson, Mr.,' in Vicar of Wakefield, i. 125.
- Jersey, prices of corn in, instructive, i. 139.
- Jeweller, his opinion of the value of the custom of great people, i. 91.
- Jews, treatment of, ii. 599.
- Job, may be perpetrated out of famine (1845), i. 325.
- Johnson, Rev. C., on fear of tenants that landlords should increase their rent, i. 266.
- Journal des Débats*, a pacific newspaper, ii. 426.
- Journals, metropolitan, their servility to Lord Palmerston, ii. 64.
- Judge, nations should not be, in their own case, ii. 170.
- Jury, intervention of, in cases of bribery, its value, i. 75; employment of, to punish bribery, i. 112; mixed system of, and, inference from, ii. 411.
- Jurymen at Preston, ignorance of, ii. 614.
- Justice, more important in legislation than charity, i. 62; should precede charity, i. 231.
- K.
- Kagosima, storming of, ii. 111.
- Kaye, Mr., on East India Company, ii. 396.
- Kennedy, Mr., his age, as captain of the lorcha, ii. 132.
- Kent, inferiority of education in, ii. 591.
- Kentucky, story of Irishman in, i. 253.
- Kertch, expedition to, ii. 46.
- Keyham, works at, and their cost, i. 521.
- Kid, extracting out of maw of wolf, like getting Corn-law repeal from landowners, i. 255.
- Kidderminster, little town of, elections in, ii. 360.
- Kilmainham hospital, fights about, i. 568.
- King, Mr. Thomas, his evidence as to agricultural labourers, i. 152.
- Kinglake, Mr., amendment of, ii. 346.
- King-street, Manchester, faint voice raised in, in 1838, i. 352.
- Kinnaird, Lord, on price of cattle near Dundee, i. 144; his presence at meetings of the League, i. 173.
- Knatchbull, Sir E., his opinion on the Corn-laws, i. 25; his justification of the Corn-laws, i. 36, 51.
- Knaves, make use of fanatics, i. 179.
- Knight, Mr., on protection to cattle and Corn-law on oats, i. 272.
- Knightley, Sir Charles, his abuse of the League, i. 126.
- Knutsford, meeting at, i. 221.
- Kossuth, M., his opinion about Lord Palmerston, ii. 63; claim of extradition of, by Nicholas, ii. 227.
- Kuper, Admiral, at Kagosima, ii. 112.
- L.
- Labour, increased demand for, involves a rise in wages, i. 6; price of, only affected by price of food, where slavery prevails, ib.; of England, cheapest in the world, i. 19; property in, foundation of all property, i. 89; agricultural improvement will employ, i. 103; demand for, likely to be increased by Free-trade, i. 205; price of, and of food, i. 252.
- Labourer, condition of, delineated, i. 54; effect of Free-trade on, i. 204; never prosperous when tenantry is degraded, i. 269.
- Labourer, agricultural, effects of high prices and protection on him, i. 149.
- Labourers, state of, in country, i. 7;

- smuggled away, when the most valuable part of possessions, i. 275; better with good hogs, than overrun with game, i. 442.
- Lakes, American, treaty between England and United States about force on, ii. 411.
- Lamartine, testimony of, to condition of Turkey, ii. 16.
- Lambert, Commodore, his conduct, ii. 390 sqq.
- Lancashire, dialect of, i. 27; its interests identical with those of London, i. 91; prices of food and labour in, i. 120; highest wages in, i. 153; rise and fall of wages in, i. 199; pride of, in Sir R. Peel, i. 332; prices of oatmeal in, i. 341; conduct of people of, ii. 119; difficulties of, in 1861, ii. 254; distress in, would have been avoided had commercial blockades been abandoned, ii. 284; state of, during cotton famine, ii. 308; heroic acts done in, ii. 313; sentiment of, on Indian questions, ii. 379.
- Lancaster, Mr., his rifle, i. 590.
- Land, price of, rise in, i. 155; improvement of, why landlords boast of it, i. 218; thrown out of cultivation, no object of alarm to poor, i. 378; not depreciated by prospect of Corn-law repeal, i. 379; desire of Englishmen to possess, i. 382; production from, if capital be sufficient, no conception of, i. 407; why just to lay certain taxes on, i. 419; continually grows in value, i. 420; attempts to make an artificial price of, i. 438; price of, at Athens, ii. 213; free-trade in, ii. 367.
- Land-agents, electioneering agents, i. 354.
- Landed interest, would bring down England to Spain or Sicily, i. 244.
- Landlord and tenant, illustration of law of, by case of manufacturer and draper, i. 194; interests of, divergent, i. 397.
- Landlordism of Ireland, stinks in nostrils not only of people of England, but of the whole civilised world, i. 416.
- Landlords, not agriculturists, i. 31; political, their objects, i. 56; not agriculturists, i. 192; language of, gratuitous impertinence, i. 218; estates of, seldom theirs, i. 242; make tenants servile, dependent, and timid, i. 265; cry of, that food is too cheap—so long considered themselves the whole community, i. 414; Irish, how they have acted, i. 417; more friendly to abolition of Corn-laws than farmers, i. 422; should be excluded from the councils of farmers, i. 447.
- Landlords, political, their advice to farmers, i. 195.
- Landowner, effect of Free-trade on, i. 204.
- Landowners, being absolute in Parliament, were not disinterested angels, i. 50; prosperity of, during distress of people, i. 69; would not be adversely affected by Free-trade, ib.; political, who dress their labourers and cattle in blue ribbons, i. 146; may be refuted, but will vote for the Corn-law, i. 255; their absolute power, i. 280; how they have avoided taxation, i. 344.
- Land-tax in foreign countries, amount of, i. 24.
- Land-valuers, frequently put forward as farmers, i. 127.
- Lattimore, Mr., his opinion on the effect of Corn-laws on feeding stock, i. 273; his example to farmers, i. 447; his plea for abolition of malt-tax, i. 537.
- Law of wicked men substituted for law of Nature, i. 68.
- Law of nations, claim of extradition of political offenders a violation of, ii. 227.
- Lawrence, Mr., advice of, ii. 453; on English education, ii. 582.
- Laws, just, not temporary, i. 37; of Nature to be studied by farmer, and not laws of House of Commons, i. 170.
- Layard, Mr., his prediction about the Crimean war, ii. 22; his sympathies in Crimean war, ii. 32.
- Leaders of parties, importance of their accession to Free-trade, i. 377.
- League, Anti-Corn-law, its popularity, i. 33; really a Free-trade League, i. 61; policy and future plans of, i. 71; no political organisation, i. 77; had not originally the same breadth of view as now, i. 97; a peripatetic political University, i. 191; its operations described, i. 235; project of, to have a model farm, i. 268; farmers subscribers to, i. 274; its advantages in teaching the people, i. 305; attacks on, i. 354; cannot be employed for other

- purposes, i. 362; suspension of—its expenses, i. 388; harmony of its seven years' labours, i. 394.
League for free-trade in land, ii. 367.
League newspaper, circulation of, i. 236.
Leagues, complaint against, but why adopted, ii. 482.
Lease, effect of refusing, rarity of, specimen of a Cheahire, i. 266; covenant in, not to grow flax, i. 278.
Leases, best farming under longest, i. 56; how they should be worded, i. 268; fair, will bring capital on land, i. 404.
Leeds, woollen manufacturers of, demanded abolition of duty on wool, i. 175.
Legacy duty, extension of, i. 565; story about, i. 574.
Legal patriots, have already been drawn out, i. 241.
Legal profession, foundation of all civilisation, must vindicate itself, ii. 129.
Legerdemain, commercial, Government accounts, i. 593.
Legislation, incompetent to fix prices, i. 49; cannot add to wealth, but may destroy it, i. 382; errors in, never debated till we suffer under evils, ii. 280.
Legislators, hereditary, and bondsmen, i. 347.
Leicester, absurd resolution at, ii. 5.
Liberal party, Lord Palmerston leader of, but without any liberal tenet, ii. 62; professed principles of, ii. 258; should be (1863) in opposition, ii. 276; reconstruction of, to be effected, ii. 507.
Liberals, difficulty of, in supporting Government of 1862, ii. 335.
Liberties of England, how secured, ii. 201.
Libre Echange, Free-trade paper, i. 471.
Licence of lorchs, void, ii. 128.
Licences, trade, policy of tax on, i. 571; English, in China, their effect, ii. 132.
Lincoln, President, reproaches against his origin, ii. 107; his policy, ii. 361.
Lincoln, rise in rent of city estate of, i. 53.
Lincolnshire, labourers and farmers better off in, i. 161.
Lindsay, Mr., his inquiries into the French marine, ii. 327.
Line-of-battle ships, called slaughter-houses, ii. 535.
Linen-trade of Belfast, Barnsley, Leeds, i. 569.
Lisbon, charms of climate at, i. 465.
Liverpool, claims of merchants of, ii. 143; merchants of, like inhabitants of Canton, ii. 150; Financial Reform Association at, ii. 482.
Liverpool Association, downright selfish violence and unreasoning injustice of, ii. 144; its policy mischievous, ii. 147.
Livsey, Alderman, his opinion as to the compact at Willis's Rooms, ii. 322; his death, and his merits, ii. 340.
Loan, objection to Russian, ii. 194; lenders of American, morally responsible for its use, ii. 199; of Russia in 1849, an imperial falsehood, ii. 418.
Loans, system of, favours war, ii. 189; of Europe since 1815, ii. 203; morality of, illustrated, ii. 418.
Local burdens, on whom do they fall, owners of property, or capital of country? i. 396.
Local taxation, incidence of, i. 535.
Local taxes, how paid, i. 445.
Lodgers, not enfranchised, but should be, i. 184; franchise of, given by a legal decision, ii. 471.
Lodging of agricultural labourers, its kind, i. 156.
Lodgings, to cheapen beer to raise price of, no wise policy, i. 547.
Lombard-street, people of, not gullible, ii. 185; liberalism of, less than in Lancashire or Yorkshire, ii. 510.
Lombardy, a weakness to Austria, i. 483.
London, trade of, with manufacturing districts, i. 90; speaker entitled to register as voter of, i. 133; rents in, hardly ever lower than 10*l.*, i. 184; wages in, fixed not in relation to prices of food, i. 198; unemployed persons in, and why, ii. 71; convention of, terms of, ii. 220; feeling in, on Schleswig-Holstein, ii. 345; city of, their inscription to Chatham in Guildhall, ii. 351; speech of an alderman and sheriff of, ii. 415; their mummeries and processions, ii. 459; constitencies of, too large, ii. 479.
Lorchs, meaning of word, ii. 122.
Lord-Lieutenancy, a bauble, i. 568.

- Lord Mayor's day, alteration in the show on, ii. 415.
- Lords, House of, requires great courage to speak independently in, i. 197; its indifference to legacy duties, and why, i. 574; character of debates in, ii. 342.
- Lothians, East, farmers of, in 1852, i. 532.
- Louisiana, purchase of, ii. 361.
- Louis Philippe, his policy in France, i. 432; his political death, i. 479; panics during reign of, ii. 428; impolitic act of, in refusing to extend the franchise, ii. 548.
- Low, Professor, on refusal of tenants to take leases, i. 269.
- Low Church, its quarrels with High, ii. 575.
- Low prices, Free-trade does not necessarily mean, i. 546.
- Lowe, Mr., his place in the House of Commons, ii. 81.
- Loyd, Mr. Samuel Jones, his wealth and intelligence, his opinion quoted, i. 88; his assistance to Free-trade, i. 116.
- Lynchhurst, Lord, his opinion as to the nationality of the Arrow, ii. 125; no lawyer will dispute his doctrine, ii. 129; Yeh's arguments like those of, ii. 135; an authority in America and France, ii. 153.
- Lyons, Sir Edmund, mixed up with Greek politics, ii. 217.
- M.
- McClellan, General, his candidature, ii. 361.
- McGregor, Mr., on sugar duties, i. 60; his evidence on sugar duties, i. 84; his services, i. 391; on indebtedness of Ireland to England, i. 570.
- Machinery, exportation of, committee on, i. 136.
- Macintosh, Sir James, his opposition to the Foreign Enlistment Act of 1819, ii. 88.
- McLane, Mr., anxiety of, on Oregon question, ii. 171.
- McLeod, trial of, in 1841, ii. 172.
- McNeill, Sir J., his report, and Lord Palmerston's conduct to him, ii. 66.
- Macqueen, Mr., his estimate of the value of land in the United Kingdom, i. 24.
- Mahometans, their opinion of hypocrites, i. 86.
- Maine boundary, arbitration on, ii. 163.
- Majority, who would have it in Feb. 1846, if an appeal were made to the country, i. 368.
- Males, number of qualified, in countries, i. 431.
- Malta, great skulking hole for navy, i. 467; British fleet at, ii. 428.
- Malt-tax, complaints against, i. 397; speaker an advocate for repeal of, but not enthusiastic, i. 408; objections to, i. 491; a measure of relief to landed interest, i. 533; diminution of, for benefit of land, i. 536; plea for abolishing, less objectionable than any other in its form, i. 537.
- Manchester, meeting of ministers of religion at, i. 7; meeting at, against Corn-laws in 1819, i. 17; prices at, i. 22; cradle of Anti-Corn-law League, i. 97; men of, have used fly-flappers on the squires, i. 103; distress in, how commented on, i. 228; history of its charter of incorporation, ii. 79; effect on, if it rejects Messrs. Gibson and Bright, ii. 82; its influence abroad, ii. 443; Members for, calumniated, ii. 448; comparison of Buckinghamshire with, ii. 476; petition from, in 1832, ii. 512; Roman Catholics in, ii. 571; attitude of, on education question, ii. 583; local education scheme at, ii. 587; education schemes at, ii. 596; services, and influence of, ii. 607.
- Manchester press, vermin of, ii. 74.
- Manchester school, charged with a wish to ruin the aristocracy, by Mr. Newdegate, i. 556; charges against, ii. 69; said not to pay attention to Manchester interests, ii. 78.
- Mangles, Mr., on Indian finance, ii. 387.
- Mankind, no change in character of, anticipated, ii. 176.
- Manufactories, Government, and employment of workmen, i. 590; Government, analysis of business done by, i. 593.
- Manufacturer, never enters into covenants as to how he should work his mill, i. 267.
- Manufacturers, know that Free-trade will raise wages, i. 200.
- Manufactures, rate of wages in, not affected by price of food, i. 7;

- amount of protective duties to, i. 60; progress of, without any association, i. 220; consumption of, by agricultural labourers, i. 275; depression of, after war, i. 407.
- Manufacturing districts, importance of, to London, i. 90.
- March, Earl of, on agricultural labourer, i. 398.
- Maritime law, love of, resemblance to old system of protection, ii. 280; alterations of, real escape from worst evils of war, ii. 320.
- Market, foreign, fixes prices in home, i. 6.
- Marlborough-street Police Office, beggars brought before, i. 164.
- Marshman, Mr., his evidence on India, ii. 380; on annexation, ii. 386.
- Martin, Mr. Montgomery, on Chinese statistics, ii. 133.
- Massachusetts, statute of, for schools, ii. 573; education in, ii. 589; religion in, ii. 590.
- Maury, case of the, ii. 92.
- Mechanics' Institute at Huddersfield, and its school, ii. 578.
- Mechanics' Institutes, original purposes of, ii. 609.
- Mediterranean, trade in hands of foreigners, and why, ii. 143; as much belonging to France as us—English navy in, ii. 537.
- Meetings, public, what should be rule at, i. 128; in favour of arbitration, ii. 177; not allowed in France, ii. 432.
- Mehemet Ali, a despot, but man of genius, i. 86; his reception of Napier, i. 92; his navy, i. 523.
- Melville, Mr., on powers of President of Board of India, ii. 387.
- Mendicant, common trick of, i. 287.
- Mercantile classes, speaker's sympathies with, ii. 141.
- Mercantile marine, use of, as means of defence, i. 509; essential to a naval power, i. 523; English, amount of, ii. 96, 248.
- Merchant, case of, who bought unsaleable goods, ii. 267.
- Merchant Taylors' Hall, feast in, i. 234.
- Merchants, English, favour violent proceedings in China, ii. 141.
- Metropolis, representation of, and Free-trade, i. 370.
- Mexico, war in, greatest mistake Napoleon has committed, ii. 108.
- Middle class, has scanty power in House of Commons, ii. 372.
- Middlesex, compared with Dorset, ii. 478; electors of, and adults in, ii. 497.
- Midshipman, case of the, in Greece, ii. 216.
- Militia, ignorance of men in, ii. 614.
- Millionaires, able to take care of themselves, i. 89.
- Milowner, losses of (1862), ii. 309.
- Mills, rated to relief of poor, ii. 308.
- Mincing-lane, its claims for protection, i. 84.
- Ministers of religion, meeting at Manchester of, i. 8; conference of, in their reports, i. 213.
- Ministers, Her Majesty's, their conduct discussed instead of Corn-laws, i. 366; process of punishing, ii. 346.
- Ministries, fall of, associated with the speaker, ii. 57.
- Minto, Lord, mission of, to Italy, ii. 228.
- Misdemeanour, bribery made a, by Lord J. Russell's Act, i. 75.
- Misery, may be inflicted without benefit to the doer, i. 99.
- Mississippi, importance of, in United States, ii. 319; geography of, ii. 361; valley of, its fertility, ii. 362.
- Mitchell, Mr., on foreign supply of corn, i. 300.
- Mohammedan race, war on behalf of, Sir W. Molesworth on, ii. 29.
- Moldavia and Wallachia, protectorate of, ii. 32.
- Molesworth, Sir W., his speech on the Colonies, i. 486; his change of opinions, ii. 28.
- Monarchy, abolition of, in England, would be mischievous, ii. 472.
- Money, doctrine that one must not question what a man does with his, ii. 196.
- Moniteur Industriel*, French Protectionist paper, i. 471.
- Monmouth, disturbances in, i. 478.
- Monopolies, reference of election of 1841 to, i. 1; gigantic Government, i. 578.
- Monopolists, their advice to farmers, i. 100; speeches of, amusement to be obtained from, i. 125; assertion of, that they keep up the revenue, a monstrous piece of impudence, &c.; taxes for, to be reduced, i. 248; enormous falsehoods of, i. 250; quarrels of, i. 304.
- Monopoly, Free-traders, charged with

- desiring, i. 59; attack on to be universal, the Corn-law being the worst, i. 77; its effects on consumers, i. 84; what interest has shopkeeper, skilled artisan, and labourer in? i. 89; system analogous to that of Tudors and Stuarts, i. 114.
- Monsell, Mr., his commencement of Ordnance works, i. 580.
- Moore, Thomas, his jeu-d'esprit on the Whigs, ii. 28.
- Moral force, necessity of using, i. 430; mode of using, ii. 496.
- Moral restraints, weak among leaders of money, ii. 199.
- Morning Herald*, an anecdote for, i. 236.
- Morning Post*, to be made a fool's-cap or a bonfire of, i. 123.
- Morpeth, Lord, his return for the West Riding, ii. 494.
- Mortgages, Corn-laws intended to pay, i. 51.
- Moseley, Sir Oswald, lord of manor of Manchester, ii. 79.
- Moses and Son, attacks on, i. 228.
- Motion, good, never brought forward in a bad season, ii. 175.
- Motley, Mr., his 'Rise of the Dutch Republic,' ii. 350.
- Mould, theft of, from Duke of Richmond, i. 47.
- Multitudes, ready to listen to disquisitions of political economy, i. 292.
- Mummers of London Corporation, worse than those of Popery, ii. 459.
- Municipal Corporations Act, a model for all corporate action, ii. 596.
- Municipal law, Foreign Enlistment Acts only legally part of, ii. 94.
- Municipal system, will hereafter characterise the government of the world, i. 363.
- Muntz, Mr., his plans, i. 42; his speech on Corn-laws, i. 45.
- Museum, British, Herculaneum of buried pamphlets, i. 142.
- Mystification, readjustment of taxation, a. i. 343.
- N.
- Napier, Commodore, his story of Mehemet Ali, i. 92.
- Napoleon the First, more popular in Spain than Wellington, i. 485; rule of, in Prussia, memories of, ii. 37; war with Russia of, lesson derived from, ii. 51; expedition of, to Egypt, ii. 408; his nephew very different from him, ii. 538; adage of, ii. 619.
- Napoleon the Third, his aspirations for peace, i. 480; his efforts for commercial freedom, ii. 232; abilities of, ii. 246; effect of hostility to, on his position in France, ii. 427; services of, to Italians, ii. 518; proofs that he was really elected by French, ii. 538.
- Nassau, order that Alabama should be stopped at, ii. 97.
- Nation, degrading that it should submit to bread-tax, i. 257; will of, certain to carry repeal of Corn-laws, rather than Parliament, i. 361.
- National Assembly of France, report of, i. 519.
- Nationale*, a liberal French paper, its criticism on English Corn-laws, i. 92.
- Nationalities, oppressed, Government never went to war for, ii. 6; demonstrations in favour of, misleading, ii. 352.
- Nations, intercourse between, increasing, i. 527; intercourse of, will be like that of individuals, ii. 229.
- Natives of India, their capacity, ii. 388.
- Nature, war against, leads to discomfiture, i. 138; has repealed Corn-laws, i. 338.
- Naval force, why maintained, i. 516.
- Naval forces, reduction of Russian, in Black Sea, nugatory, ii. 29.
- Navigation Act, British, binds Hong-kong legislature, ii. 428.
- Navigation laws, to be left to Government, i. 405.
- Navy, army and, preserve for younger sons, i. 425; waste in, i. 427; reduction of, i. 509.
- Navy, foreign, objection to taking estimates by, i. 518; French, its proportion to English, ii. 239; English, history of, and waste of, ii. 242; amount of men in English, (1860), ii. 247; English, ought to be greater than that of France, ii. 249; expenditure on, in France and England, ii. 324; confidence in, abandoned, ii. 330; British, at Malta, ii. 428; French and English contrasted, ii. 534.
- Neild, Alderman, his complaint against Manchester Members, ii. 77; his connexion with the incorporation of the city, ii. 79.

- Nelson, story of, ii. 329.
- Nesselrode, correspondence of, with Lord Palmerston, ii. 217.
- Nestor of the Conservative party (Mr. Henley), ii. 275.
- Neutral, United States the great Power among nations, ii. 283.
- Neutrality, in what it consists, ii. 94; not known in middle ages, ii. 98; reasons for, in American war, ii. 365.
- Neutrals, right of, in war of 1814, ii. 19.
- Newdegate, Mr., said Manchester school were going to ruin the aristocracy, i. 556.
- Newspaper, Manchester, treats French as though they were thieves, i. 460.
- Newspapers, divided opinion of, on advertisement duty, i. 572; English, not probably bribed, ii. 206; activity of, on affairs of Schleswig-Holstein, ii. 344; ignorance of, ii. 363; military, excite jealousies, ii. 416; Manchester, on French invasion, ii. 427; expediency of keeping up character of, ii. 433; criticisms on, ii. 534.
- New York, exhibition at, ii. 618.
- New York Evening Post*, citation from, ii. 267.
- New York Times*, quotation from, ii. 533.
- Nicholas, Emperor, character of, ii. 198.
- Nobility, may be detested, if not well advised, i. 78.
- Nomination counties, their place in legislation, i. 371.
- Non-intervention, profession of policy of, ii. 101; value of policy of, ii. 227; England professes policy of, ii. 302; to be practised as well as professed, ii. 317; progress of principle of, ii. 341; growth of principle of, ii. 523.
- 'No popery,' the cry, the lowest step of degradation, ii. 277.
- Norfolk, farmers of, their distress, i. 260.
- Normanby, Lord, communications received by, most humiliating, ii. 220.
- North China Herald*, cited as to British ends in China, ii. 269.
- O.
- Oates, Titus, hoaxes as bad as his perpetrated, ii. 244; delusions equal to falsehoods of, ii. 323.
- Oats, their place in ordinary agriculture, i. 272.
- O'Brien, Mr. Stafford, his dread at admission of clover-seed free, i. 271.
- Occupiers, taxation of, i. 534.
- Ocean, property of England on the, ii. 96.
- O'Connell, Mr., the value of his assistance, i. 346; on indebtedness of England to Ireland, i. 570; adage of, ii. 349; on dividing political aims, ii. 545.
- O'Connor Chartists at Birmingham, i. 128.
- Office, Conservatives in power without responsibilities of, ii. 273.
- Officers, should be reduced in army, i. 507.
- Oldham, meeting at, and speech of working man at, i. 250.
- Oligarchy, most ignoble, the sugar monopolists, i. 84; has granted monopolies which the Crown cannot, i. 114; a miserable, unintelligent, incapable, is misgoverning England, i. 244; sooner power is transferred from, the better, i. 256; governed England during the continental war, ii. 430.
- Opinion, difference between existence of a popular, and going to war in support of an, ii. 20.
- 'Opinion of the country,' what does it mean? i. 368.
- Opium, trade in, with China, ii. 146.
- Opposition, Parliamentary, between Whig and Tory, an intangible line, i. 207; 'factions,' useful, ii. 70; work of, and growth of, ii. 277; support of, to Government, ii. 333; functions of, the, ii. 346.
- Orange-men, dread of Liberal alliance with, ii. 277.
- Order, for keeping, at home, how far is army necessary, i. 506.
- Ordinance, economy in, i. 511; wages paid to labourers in 1849 and 1864, i. 579; Committee on, and its value in 1862-3, i. 584; purchase of, before and at Crimean war, i. 588.
- Oregon, squabble about boundary, i. 478; misunderstanding concerning, ii. 171.
- Orleans, New, might be submerged, ii. 362.
- Osborne, Hon. and Rev. S. G., on homes of agricultural labourers, i.

- 156; his evidence, value of, i. 158.
- Outlaw, a nation becomes, if it violates international law, ii. 300.
- Oxford, Ashmolean Society of, i. 340; an avowal at, its extraordinary character, i. 474; and Cambridge, education at, ii. 103; ignorance of undergraduates at, ii. 363.
- P.
- Pacifico, M., attack on house of, ii. 214; valuation of furniture of, ii. 215; case of, an atrocious one of swindling, ii. 220.
- Pacifico debate, Sir W. Molesworth on, ii. 28.
- Paget, Mr. Charles, his explanation of rent and cost, i. 147.
- Paget, Lord Clarence, defends naval abominations with cheerfulness, ii. 111; his criticism on naval expenditure, ii. 241.
- Palmerston, Lord, invited to resign by Sir R. Peel, i. 42; on prospects of peace in 1848, i. 474; on naval force in 1848, i. 517; his speech at Tiverton in February 1854, ii. 8; jaunty statements of, about condition of Turkey, ii. 15; his unfortunate ignorance about Turkey, ii. 18; his form of despotism, ii. 60; his career, ii. 60, 61; his foreign policy, his towering genius lately discovered, ii. 64; lives from hand to mouth, ii. 72; dealt with as a policy, ii. 81; on Canadian rebellion of 1837, ii. 89; meek and lamb-like reply of, to Count Nesselrode, ii. 218; perpetual necessity to denounce proceedings of, ii. 222; no champion of Liberalism and Constitutionalism, ii. 227; represents a policy, ii. 261; cost of, to country, ii. 262; a popular minister, ii. 264; Conservatives have greater confidence in him than in their chief, ii. 273; his delusions about France, ii. 323; his ridiculous scheme of fortifications, ii. 329; is really living in 1808, ii. 331; his criticism on Lord Aberdeen's policy, ii. 442; on the Greek affair, ii. 461; his offer of office to Mr. Cobden, ii. 539; his kind and manly conduct, ii. 541.
- Pamphlets buried in British Museum, i. 142.
- Panic, cause of fortifications, i. 520; of a French invasion in 1853, i. 557.
- Paper duty, its mischief, i. 549; objections to maintaining, i. 574.
- Parchment, rustling of, has drawn out legal patriots, i. 241.
- Parke, Mr., his claim on governor of Canton, ii. 122; his qualifications, ii. 133.
- Parkinson, Mr., on the aristocracy, ii. 54.
- Parliament, old, the perfection of human wisdom, according to Duke of Wellington, i. 11; present constitution of, may carry Free-trade, i. 107; Acts of, not wanted to protect the farmer, i. 166; dissolutions of, associated with the speaker, ii. 57; are members of, to be whipped in, ii. 67; of 1841, speaker's action in, ii. 68; of 1863, its character, ii. 100; reform must be made in, ii. 250; reformed, probable character of, ii. 252; reform of, advantages to be hoped for in, ii. 336; takes reforms from out of doors, ii. 492; not in earnest to put down bribery, ii. 514.
- Parliamentary Reform, speech on, at Rouen, i. 461; general importance of, ii. 545; an object of anxiety but not desire to House of Commons, ii. 555.
- Parliaments, shortening of, why expedient, ii. 562.
- Parties, not honest in 1862, ii. 333; broken up, ii. 507.
- Partnerships with limited liability, common in China, ii. 132.
- Party, Protectionist, broken up, i. 369; public business under representative institutions must be conducted by, ii. 258.
- Patronage, establishments in colonies means for, i. 505; the sole privilege of the Court of Directors (India), ii. 381.
- Pattison, Mr., his election, i. 132.
- Pauperism, its amount in agricultural counties, i. 31, 46; increase of, when price of food rises, i. 153; always greatest where farming is most unskillful, i. 168; test of national prosperity, i. 436.
- Peace, securities of, in 1849, ii. 166.
- Peace party, not allowed to make objections, i. 556; charges against, ii. 26.
- Peace Society, to be congratulated, and why, ii. 191; purposes of, ii.

- 417; principles of, not adopted entirely by the speaker, ii. 437.
- Pearson, Mr., his remarks on sugar monopoly, i. 98.
- Peasantry, distress of, i. 47; English, has no parallel on the earth—is divorced from the land, ii. 176; French and English, contrast between, ii. 431; rents paid by, ii. 490.
- Peel, Sir Robert, believed that Parliament of 1841 was sent to express confidence in him, i. 2; his expressions of sympathy with working men, i. 16; his attempt to fix a price of corn, i. 20; his insinuations against the Anti-Corn-law League, i. 33; his avowal of responsibility, i. 39; his fiscal policy and objects, i. 59; his changes in tariff, i. 116; admits that profits and wages cannot be regulated by law, i. 138; criticism on changes in his tariff, i. 143; not much alarmed at 'the chivalry,' i. 175; his advice, 'to register,' i. 183; character of his Corn-law, i. 223; attacked League in solemn and pompous tones—will be sacrificed by the farmers hereafter, i. 237; his character as a financier, i. 246; his permission to import fat cattle, i. 270; change in the views of, i. 289; his plea of important interests, i. 299; his importance to his party, and his power, i. 309; is the Government, i. 324; a critical time for him (Nov. 1845), i. 329; desires to carry out Free-trade, i. 331; why we should wish to keep him, i. 332; will show straightforward conduct, i. 337; speaker's feeling towards, i. 341; courses before him on Corn-law, and his probable policy, i. 358; Free-traders willing to follow him in repeal of Corn-laws, i. 361; would now (Feb. 1846) be one of the most popular men in the country, i. 366; has lost office, but gained a country, i. 390; on colonial expenditure, i. 425; why speaker voted against income-tax of, i. 564; resisted appointment of Committees on Administration, i. 579; justification of following, ii. 69; said more responsibility in finances of India than in finances of Downing-street, ii. 73; said fine harvest and Chinese treaty saved England in 1842, ii. 145; anxiety that he should remain in office till Oregon question was settled, ii. 171; on Tahiti case, ii. 173; growth of his party, ii. 252; his majority in 1841, ii. 277; expenditure under Government of, ii. 322; on extension of tropical dependencies, ii. 384; his death a loss to the nation, ii. 413; on military and naval expenditure, ii. 414; on colonial policy, ii. 463; his opinion on defences, ii. 530; anecdote of, in reference to fall of Louis Philippe, ii. 548.
- Peers, chamber of, report of, i. 518; hereditary House of, impossible in France, ii. 434.
- Pegu, annexation of, a loss, ii. 398.
- Pension list, Corn-laws an extension of, i. 25.
- Pensions and annuities, i. 499.
- People, cannot be supposed to favour monopoly, i. 2; to be prosperous and useful, must be well fed, i. 20; reference to, a democratic doctrine, i. 368; its wealth, power, and public spirit, not its armies, estimated abroad, i. 488; must carry financial reform, i. 491; of England, ready to pay just debts, i. 549; can take care of themselves, or no one can, i. 550; resentment of towards their Government, how it arises, ii. 52; of England, illiterate beyond any country, ii. 116; mass of, their indifference to religious bigotry, ii. 458; mass of, alienated from Christianity, and why, ii. 582; mass of, governs in the last resort, ii. 621.
- Perekop, supplies from, in Crimean war, ii. 47.
- Peroration, speaker never uses any, ii. 337.
- Persecution, religious, trial of, and failure of, ii. 456.
- Persian war, entered into in 1856, ii. 58.
- Pestilence, may vanquish mightiest armies, ii. 48.
- Peterloo, Lord Palmerston voted in favour of outrage of, ii. 61.
- Petersburgh, St., railway from, to Moscow, ii. 192; red republicanism less anarchical than despotism of, ii. 106.
- Petitions, proof of popular opinion from, i. 372; for Reform, no use, ii. 495; election, character of, ii. 514.
- Peto, Sir Morton, his inquiries into French dockyards, ii. 327.

- Phelps, Mr., on agricultural labourers, i. 156.
- Philadelphia, population of, ii. 522; ballot in, ii. 560.
- Philanthropists, true, have always a reason for benevolence, i. 178; Protectionists cannot be, i. 229.
- Philippe, Louis, expenditure during reign of, ii. 324.
- Philosophers who govern country, folly of, i. 122.
- Phrase, cant, of Pitt's time, ii. 10.
- Pierce, General, on annexation to the United States, ii. 385.
- Pilgrim fathers, their system of education, ii. 573.
- Pimlico, clothing manufactory in, i. 596.
- Piræus, ships in, i. 510.
- Pitt, Mr., his income-tax, i. 560; prevented from extending the legacy duties, i. 565; cant phrase of time of, ii. 10; cost of wars of, ii. 223; foreign policy of, ii. 351.
- Planet, another, what would be its opinion of our statute-book? i. 51.
- Platform, free, England nearly the only country where there is, ii. 225.
- Pleas, Court of Common, its decision on tenements and the franchise, i. 184; decision of, on lodgers, ii. 471.
- Plenty, object of Anti-Corn-law agitation, i. 308; and security for, according to Sir John Tyrell, the effect of Corn-law, i. 315.
- Ploughing match, for agricultural labourers, i. 215.
- Plymouth, panic at, i. 521.
- Poaching Bill, Lord Palmerston's conduct on the, ii. 275.
- Pocket boroughs, their voice in legislation, i. 371.
- Poland, case of, ii. 110; insurrection of, how fomented, ii. 353.
- Policy, publication of, why not indiscreet, i. 212; Lord Palmerston's foreign, has made no one happier or freer, ii. 64; different, by England, towards strong and weak, ii. 124; foreign, British budget passed for, ii. 530.
- Political economists, truly benevolent, i. 229.
- Political Economy, study of, the highest exercise of the human mind, i. 383; questions of, will form a great part of world's legislation in time to come, i. 384; has raised working men, ii. 373.
- Political influence, may be affected by Free-trade, i. 204.
- Political parties, manifest break up of, i. 207.
- Political rights, exclusion from, its dangers, ii. 550.
- Politician, speaker has no desire to be, i. 79; speaker deals with question as, ii. 26.
- Politicians, aims of, in House of Commons, i. 261.
- Politics, foreign, English meddling in, i. 467.
- Polk, President, message of, in America, i. 357; his belligerent language, i. 478.
- Polling-booth, its expression, powerful in future, ii. 523.
- Pollock, Chief Baron, in the chair at a Middlesex farmers' meeting, i. 219.
- Poor, have a right to subsistence from land, i. 419; taxes on consumption of, more heavy than on rich, i. 561.
- Poor Law, operation of, in Wilt, i. 160.
- Poor-rates, where highest, i. 404; rise as taxation rises, i. 487.
- Pope, the, in advance of some people, i. 314; a political, in Rochdale, ii. 356; acts of, matter of indifference to Americans, ii. 453; political weakness of, ii. 455.
- Popularity, obtained by interfering in other countries, ii. 223; immediate, indifferent to speaker, ii. 355.
- Population, daily growth of, and inferences from, i. 314; growth of, in Europe, i. 359.
- Porter, Mr., his services, i. 391.
- Ports, opening of, its effects, i. 310; what prevents their opening, i. 328.
- Portsmouth, cost of manning fortifications at, ii. 330.
- Portugal, English policy in, i. 466; absurd treaty with, ii. 235.
- Post, penny, its value to the League, i. 73.
- Posts, only two a week at one time between London and Paris, i. 526.
- Potato, people may be constrained to live on, i. 62; speaker entertains Cobbett's prejudice against, i. 105.
- Pothouse politicians, clamour of, ii. 38.
- Potter, Sir Thomas, his labours and services, ii. 76.
- Pottinger, Sir H., testimonial to, i. 232.

- Poulett-Thomson, Mr., his motion on the Corn-laws in 1830, i. 12; labours of Mr. Wilson on his Committee, ii. 79.
- Poverty of labouring classes, described by ministers of religion, i. 9.
- Powder-mills, analysis of manufacture of gunpowder at, i. 593.
- Power, of a country, how interpreted, i. 428; political, in hands of those who nominate the House of Commons, ii. 480; political, how it can be transformed, ii. 491.
- Powers, Great, absurdity of, in pretending to keep order, ii. 525.
- Preserve of younger sons, army and navy, i. 425.
- Press, Government should have no connection with, i. 572; exasperation induced by, ii. 173; organs of, on side of loan-mongers, ii. 185; leading organs of, disgracefully recommend loans, ii. 186; Lord Palmerston had a claqueur in the, ii. 274; freedom of, limited in France, ii. 432; liberty of, need not be curtailed, ii. 534.
- Preston, strike at, its causes, ii. 616.
- Price, House of Commons has no power to regulate, i. 138; of corn, nominal and real, i. 276.
- Prices, home, fixed by foreign market, i. 6; affected by two causes, i. 142; of 1790 and 1849 compared, i. 401; high, of agricultural produce, incompatible with well-being, i. 406; effects of Free-trade on, i. 546.
- Pride, national, renders it possible that taxes should be extracted, i. 487.
- Prime Minister, made a mere corn-steward, to keep up prices for his masters, i. 119; should not have the odious task of reconciling rival interests, i. 384.
- Primogeniture, law of, will be discussed, i. 421.
- Principle, no good, sound, or just, at war with another of similar character, i. 180; every political, must have its advocates, i. 362.
- Principles, justice of, admitted, while practise the reverse, i. 82.
- Printed cottons, tax on, objection to, i. 536.
- Pritchard, Mr., case of, ii. 173.
- Privileged classes, their legislation for their own benefit, ii. 554.
- Prize-fight, conduct of Cabinet like promoters of a, ii. 347.
- Prizes for agriculture, absurdity of, i. 215.
- Probate and legacy duty, in France equal, ii. 434.
- Production, agricultural, will be increased by Free-trade, i. 122.
- Profits, fall of, and of revenue, go together, i. 475.
- Profligate expenditure, a characteristic of Lord Palmerston's administration, ii. 371.
- Progress, to cease from, is to begin to decline, ii. 303.
- Property, speaker advocates rights of, i. 89; burdens on, and on those who have no property, i. 418; has duties as well as rights, ii. 189; misrepresented in House of Commons, ii. 475.
- Property-tax, rejection of, in 1816, i. 409.
- Proprietors, etiquette of, in county elections, i. 374; number of, in France, i. 481, ii. 431; great, election contests of, ii. 517.
- Prosperity, how can Sir R. Peel induce it? i. 13; general in 1844, and why, i. 249; national, tests of, i. 436.
- Protection, a mere name for a tax, i. 3; eagerness for, in worst-farmed districts, i. 56; to farmers, really destruction, i. 120; compared to cosmogony in Vicar of Wakefield, i. 125; effects of, on farmers, i. 136; if reduced, then rents should have been, i. 145; really destructive to agriculture, i. 169; necessity that it should be inquired into, i. 261; a vicious circle, i. 263; a failure, i. 281; its mischief to intelligent farmer, i. 318; never advocated by men of average intellect, i. 331; must be destroyed altogether, and why, i. 342; new phase of (Jan. 1846), i. 351; to all, is protection to none, i. 353; as much good, as horsehoes to keep off witches, i. 382; will not be re-enacted, i. 389; absurd idea of its revival, i. 413; completely settled by 1863, ii. 101; may be too much, to merchant as well as to agriculturist, ii. 142; maritime law resembles, ii. 280.
- Protectionists, alone heard before Committees as yet, i. 167; who are the 'farmers' they bring forward, i. 174; their statement about effect of lowering duties on wool, i. 176; like fraudulent mendicants, i. 287;

- speeches of, i. 353; policy of, with tenants, i. 444.
- Providence, Government arrogates functions of, i. 342; gratitude to, for its overruling conflicting incidents, i. 390; obviates evils of injustice, ii. 111.
- Prussia, favourable to peace in 1854, and inferences from this, ii. 8; cause of sympathies of, in Russian war, ii. 37; the channel for Russian produce during Crimean war, ii. 293.
- Prussian, conversation with a, ii. 38.
- Public affairs, living interest in, ii. 101.
- Public men, want of open and frank declarations from, ii. 49.
- Public meetings, proof of popular opinion from, i. 372.
- Public opinion, gross ignorance of, ii. 50; party an organisation of, ii. 258.
- Public works, suggestion of, as means of relief, i. 325; cost of, i. 501; Board of, bad administration of, ii. 245.
- Punch*, an admirable authority, an excellent commentator, and admirable critic, never wrong, infallibly right, i. 289; attacks on an ex-chancellor by, i. 313; calculation in, i. 408; an excellent champion of peace, ii. 415.
- Punjab, expenses of, ii. 396.
- Pusey, Mr., his judgment on present state of things, i. 167; his view on agriculture, i. 264.
- Q
- Quackery, emigration schemes, as a relief of population, downright, ii. 72.
- Quarrel, preconceived design to pick, with Chinese, ii. 136.
- Queen, popularity of the, i. 3, ii. 472; recommendations of the, to take Corn-laws into consideration, i. 10; memorial to, to dissolve Parliament, i. 76; not responsible, as a Czar or Grand Turk, i. 324; her sympathies with Free-trade, i. 390; her courageous visit to France, i. 460; her title to hereditary revenues as good as to any estate, i. 498; attack on, by Lord Ellenborough, ii. 343.
- Queen's Speech, anticipation of it, i. 249; must (1846) propose repeal of Corn-laws, i. 339.
- Questions, political, should be urged separately, ii. 545.
- Questions, public, remaining, ii. 100.
- Quotations, Greek and Latin, ii. 363.
- R
- Rabble, of the towns, said to have carried Free-trade resolutions, i. 131.
- Races, modern desire of agglomerating, ii. 316.
- Radnor, Lord, his statement of relation between price of labour and price of food, i. 197.
- Raglan, Lord, his neglect and mismanagement, ii. 50.
- Railroads, absurdity of believing Russian loan is for, ii. 192; have antiquated blockades, ii. 291.
- Railway Committee, drudgery of, i. 285.
- Railway, Great Western, its scheme defeated, i. 73.
- Railways, effects of scarcity prices on, i. 301; King of, i. 312; carry common sense, except when their King travels on them, i. 313; ought to induce an economy of army, i. 505; Indian, prospects of, ii. 387.
- Randall, Mr., on bribery in America, ii. 522; on ballot in United States, ii. 560.
- Rangoon, Governor of, and Burmese war, ii. 389; an Alastia, ii. 390.
- Rate, virtually same as vote of money in Parliament, ii. 570.
- Rate-book, a good register, ii. 504.
- Rate-supported schools, would supersede voluntary combinations, ii. 576.
- Raymond, M. Xavier, on French and English navies, ii. 265.
- Reaction, after protection, how signs of it may be detected, i. 416; Conservative, a delusion, ii. 277.
- Reciprocity, none in Sir H. Pottinger's Chinese Tariff, i. 234.
- Reciprocity-man, always a busybody, i. 123.
- Redistribution, of electoral power, unnecessary, ii. 251; plan of, ii. 561.
- Reed, Mr., his work on the Research, i. 603.
- Reform, Lord Palmerston's objections to, ii. 62; agitation for, spontaneous, ii. 469; advocates of, true Conservatives, ii. 483; to be carried by a combination of classes, ii. 509.

- Reform Act, a machine, the use of which was not known, i. 389.
- Reform Bill, Lord Palmerston came into office to carry, ii. 262; of 1832, its benefits, ii. 460; of 1832, anecdote of time of, ii. 512; first, its addition to electors, ii. 558.
- Reform, Parliamentary, Mr. Bright's hopes of, in 1861, ii. 251; its probable effects, ii. 336.
- Reformer, claim to be a, inconceivable, unless by allowing the ballot, ii. 508.
- Registration, system of, to be attempted by the League, i. 108; necessity of, i. 185; county, importance of looking to, i. 302.
- Religion, ministers of, their assistance, i. 457; on a footing of equality in France, ii. 434; connection of, with education, a difficulty, ii. 568; votes of money for teaching, ii. 571.
- Religious community, its influence on social questions, i. 10.
- Religious element, difficulty of, in education, ii. 594.
- Religious faith, rumour circulated, that it is intended to deprive the country of its, ii. 589.
- Religious teaching, if insisted on, a hindrance to education, ii. 580; not to be paid for, ii. 597.
- Rent, artificial, obtained by Corn-law, i. 50; may fairly be inquired about by farmers, in order to discover results of Corn-laws, i. 53; its relation to cost of growing wheat, i. 146; rise of, between 1790 and 1844, i. 154; no decline of, likely by abolition of Corn-laws, i. 380; rise of, and its relation to prices, i. 402.
- Rental, 6*l.*, its probable addition to electors, ii. 557.
- Rents, doubled between 1793 and 1843, i. 53; rise of, during unprosperous seasons, i. 69; drawn from distress, i. 149; ten per cent. reduction on, and why, i. 223; effect of Free-trade on, ii. 489.
- Repeal, immediate, of Corn-laws, plea for, i. 291; of Corn-laws, immediate, effects of, i. 295; of Corn-laws, immediate, would have obviated distress of 1849, i. 401.
- Representation, its proportion to population, i. 369; county, should be widened, i. 376; system of, necessity of altering, i. 429; of people, reform of, a pressing question, ii. 115; under a system of, party Government must be, ii. 258; how it would be best secured, ii. 561.
- Representative, question whether our, should carry on war without sanction, ii. 151.
- Representative system, derived from England, i. 385; demoralised by war, ii. 3.
- Representatives, of Colonies, their presence in the House, i. 569; no fear of change of character in, by reform, ii. 472; and people, fight between, ii. 493.
- Reprisals, England in war of, most vulnerable, ii. 96.
- Republicanism, red, not so anarchical as despotism of St. Petersburg, ii. 206; theory of, elevated, ii. 357.
- Republics, Spanish American, the action of England during their revolt, ii. 88.
- Resentment, bred by betrayal, ii. 372.
- Resolutions, said to be carried by rabble of the towns, i. 131.
- Responsibility, great, of Sir R. Peel, i. 42; in case of Prime Minister, what it means, i. 310; of Ministers, what it means, i. 324.
- Reuter's telegram, charged with creating interest in foreign politics, ii. 102.
- Revenues, what causes it to flourish, i. 14; what it should, and should not be, i. 78; the, likely to be increased by Free-trade, i. 206; surplus of, boasted of, i. 247; contribution of agricultural labourers to, i. 276; improving, a test of national prosperity, i. 436; falling off, proves that profits fall off, i. 475.
- Reverence, superstitious, for owners of sluggish acres, i. 119.
- Revival of trade in 1843, its cause cheap food, i. 66.
- Revolution, a world's, the acceptance of Free-trade, i. 392; in France, effect of, i. 482; recognition of incompetence of governing classes may provoke a, i. 606; Lord J. Russell the child and champion of, ii. 33; if it occurs in Russia, prospects of public creditor in, ii. 201.
- Revolutions in France, duration of, compared with England, ii. 433.
- Revue des Deux Mondes*, on navies, cited, ii. 265.
- Ricardo, Mr., on likelihood of an election, i. 183.
- Rich, tax on consumption of the poor

- more heavy than on that of, i. 561.
- Richard, Mr., his argument in favour of peace, ii. 404.
- Richmond, Duke of, his comments on the Corn-laws, i. 52; his assertion, that farmers are all monopolists, erroneous, i. 174; his assertion, that tenantry are against the League, not true, i. 188; should study the English Grammar, i. 193; his Protection Society in Bond-street, i. 225; ought to see the Covent Garden meetings, i. 245; tells us to trust to hereditary legislators, i. 347; his Order to be saved from him, i. 348; his interesting romances, i. 375.
- Rick-burning, what would have obviated it, i. 151.
- Riding, West, cost of contest for, i. 317.
- Rifle corps of Volunteers, formation of, ii. 237.
- Rifles, different values of, at different manufactories, i. 590.
- Right, natural and legal distinctions between, ii. 475.
- Rights, Declaration of, ii. 359.
- Rip Van Winkle, squires like, when at dinner, i. 103.
- Rivalry of expenditure, between England and France, endless, i. 526.
- Rochdale, distress in (1862), ii. 308; thanks of the speaker to the constituency of, ii. 513; character of meeting at, Aug. 18, 1859, ii. 544; rent of houses in, ii. 557.
- Roche, speech on banks of, ii. 348.
- Roebuck, Mr., his exposure of corruption, i. 75; motion of, on mischances at Sebastopol, ii. 65; deals with whole policy of Government, ii. 212.
- Roman Catholics, speaker will not put a fetter on the consciences of, i. 567; have a right to their own form of Church government, ii. 454; number of, in Manchester and Salford, ii. 571; difficulty of teaching their religion at public expense, ii. 572; sacrifice of, from education movement, ii. 587; colleges for, would not be endowed by the House of Commons, ii. 588.
- Rothschild, Mr., his function as a bill-broker and his abilities—his opinion quoted, i. 87.
- Rouen, meeting at, to promote Parliamentary reform, i. 461.
- Russell, Lord John, his expedient, i. 26; in favour of fixed duty, i. 63; his bill against bribery, i. 75; his qualified support of Free-trade, i. 290; if he takes office, must suspend Corn-laws, i. 340; his letter to citizens of London, i. 348; value of his support, i. 390; his figures on the increase of the army and navy, i. 477; on Colonial relations, i. 503; on naval force of 1848, i. 517; his magniloquent phrases at Greenock, and in the City, ii. 7; child and champion of revolution, ii. 33; difference of his language in London and Vienna, ii. 35; chief offender in stimulating clamour for war, ii. 40; his instructions to Admiral Kuper, ii. 112; said in 1849, that the two last wars were unnecessary, ii. 165; his theory as to American blockade, ii. 294; wrong guess of, during American war, ii. 315; his defence of the Government in the Schleswig-Holstein affair, ii. 343; his impatience and petulance, ii. 463; on conditions of a Continental congress, ii. 524; his pledge on reform, ii. 557.
- Russia, despotism, dangerous to Europe, i. 432; threatened invasion of, speaker's pamphlet on, i. 461; why not a naval power, i. 523; war with, by land, how it must be carried on, ii. 4; aggressions of, not to be dreaded, ii. 20; proposals of (1855), ii. 29; pledges of, distrusted, ii. 30; treaties already undertaken with, ii. 32; speaker no friend to, and its despotism, ii. 34; exports of, and prospects, ii. 43; in time of Napoleon's invasion, ii. 51; war with, conduct of Americans during, ii. 92; trade of, with England, ii. 96; hypothetical case of, making demands on Turkey, ii. 144; and Austria, not separated in loan of 1849—speaker's opportunities of knowing, ii. 187; attitude of, to this country (1850), ii. 195; demonstration against Athens intended as a menace to, ii. 217; why speaker attacked, ii. 225; Lord Palmerston apologised for, ii. 228; effects of demonstration in favour of Poles, on, ii. 355; loan of, in 1849, and its objects, ii. 417.
- Russia, Emperor of, has signed an untruth, ii. 191.

- Russian loan, if not paid, a righteous retribution, ii. 202.
- Russian war, statesman's ground for, ii. 7.
- Russians, character of, gentle, ii. 207.
- Ryot, English farmer close to servility of, i. 266.
- S.
- St. Alban's, electors of, i. 108.
- Salamis, fifteen ships of war in Bay of, ii. 212.
- Salcina, six Ionian boats at, ii. 215.
- Salford, Roman Catholics in, ii. 571.
- Salthill, meeting at, i. 73, 314.
- San Domingo, invasion of Spain by, ii. 108.
- Sandon, Lord, said it was impious to consume slave-grown sugar, i. 177; had no objection to Indian corn, i. 330.
- Sanitary reform, necessity for, due to ignorance, ii. 615.
- Sattara, annexation of, a loss, ii. 398.
- Savages, insult of treating the French as, ii. 427.
- Savings-banks, deposits in, i. 211.
- Saxon custom, of public meeting, i. 372.
- Scarcity, artificial, may be produced, i. 138.
- Schedule A, the fate of small boroughs if they formed a Protectionist majority, i. 371.
- Schisms in Churches, imminent, or actual, ii. 574.
- Schleswig, disturbances in, ii. 419.
- Schleswig-Holstein, war with, and Denmark, its mischief to commerce, ii. 175; affairs of, and its history, ii. 341; question of, a ridiculous fiasco, ii. 348.
- School, should be connected with Mechanics' Institute, ii. 613.
- Schoolboy who whistled in the churchyard, like Protectionists who boast, i. 188.
- School-houses, number and excellence of, no proof of education, ii. 579; in America, the best buildings, ii. 552.
- Schoolmaster, a good, fills schools, ii. 579.
- Schoolmasters, to make teachers of religion, a reflection on clergymen, ii. 598.
- Schools, existing, need not be shut up, ii. 576; source of fund for, ii. 593; existing, not to be sacrificed, ii. 598; free, benefits of, ii. 603; common, social benefits of, ii. 605.
- Schwabe, Mr., difficulties of, in relation to education, ii. 576.
- Scientific knowledge, progress of, leads to increased expenditure, ii. 169.
- Scoble, Mr., on slave-grown sugar, i. 181.
- Scotch farmers, sagacity of, i. 226.
- Scotland, rental of, increased threefold in fifty years, i. 53; auctioneers and land-valuers scarce in, i. 128; proportion of price of wheat in, paid for rent, i. 147; agricultural labourers in, their condition, i. 162; dissension between Free and Old Kirk, ii. 575; education of, ii. 620.
- Scott-Russell, Mr., his pamphlet on ship-building, ii. 265.
- Scrip, on whom loss of, falls, ii. 186.
- Scriptures, immutable morality of, condemns the bread-tax, i. 9.
- Scutari, condition of sick at, ii. 17.
- Sea, horror of Russians for, ii. 208.
- Search, right of, in war of 1812, ii. 19.
- Seat in House of Commons, loss of, its consolations, ii. 229; its value to speaker, ii. 464.
- Sebastopol, prospects of taking, ii. 11; destruction of, will not destroy Russian power, ii. 12; capture of, its difficulty, ii. 22; capture of, its object, ii. 42.
- Sebastopol Committee, on small arms, i. 588.
- Secession, success of, why impossible, ii. 104.
- Secrecy, nothing to gain by, i. 243.
- Secret Committee, on Indian affairs, functions of, ii. 380; duties of, ii. 386.
- Sectarian quarrels, must no longer delay education, ii. 606.
- Secular, taunt against use of word, ii. 589.
- Secular instruction, admitted to be good, ii. 574.
- Secular knowledge, value of, ii. 581.
- Secular system, in education, why inevitable, ii. 569; not adverse to religious teaching, ii. 577.
- Security, alone warrants investment of capital on land, i. 263; how best obtained, i. 513.
- Self-government, impossible to a nation under a system of intervention, ii. 528.

- Selfishness, suicidal to those who follow it in legislation, ii. 555.
- Sensation-policy, Lord Palmerston's a, ii. 271.
- Sentimental theory of taxation, not intelligible, i. 532.
- Septennial Act, indefensible, i. 430.
- Serfs in Russia, their probable action, ii. 200; uprising of, likely, ii. 209.
- Session of 1864, its occupation by the Danish question, ii. 342.
- Settlements, marriage, Corn-laws intended to pay, i. 51.
- Seven years, frequent duration of a contest, ii. 498.
- Seven Years' War, Dunkirk rebuilt in, ii. 13.
- Seward, Mr., writes so much, that he is in danger of writing on every subject, ii. 85.
- Seymer, Mr., on votes of tenant-farmers, i. 374.
- Shams, dislike of English people to, ii. 471.
- Shaw, Joseph, speech of, at Oldham, i. 251.
- Sheep-dog, tail of, had better be cut off at once, than a piece daily, i. 358.
- Ships more cheaply built in England than in France, ii. 327.
- Ships of war, idleness and demoralisation in, i. 464; building of, renders persons liable to fine and imprisonment, ii. 97.
- Ship-yards, amount of building by private persons in 1864, i. 599.
- Shirt-makers do not get wages according to the price of corn, i. 117.
- Shuttleworth, Sir James, on educational destitution, ii. 571.
- Sign manual, superstitious reverence for, once, i. 115.
- Silk, sources of, ii. 96; growth of trade in Chinese, ii. 146.
- Silks rendered unsaleable, i. 379.
- Simpferopol, supplies from, in Crimean war, ii. 47.
- Slaughter-houses, a name given to line-of-battle ships, ii. 535.
- Slave, only case in which wages and food rise and fall in price together, i. 197.
- Slave-labour, in this, and in labour like this only do wages vary with price of food, i. 120; more costly than free, i. 180.
- Slavery, objection to using sugar produced by, discussed, i. 85; how a preacher against, in America, was met, i. 92; attempt to raise false issues on, i. 98; contrary to first Christian precepts, i. 180; Free-trade best means for extinguishing, i. 182; sole cause of civil war, ii. 104; war on behalf of, cannot succeed, ii. 106; speaker's hope that it will be extinguished in America, ii. 119; motive of American civil war, ii. 359.
- Slaves, Russians have vices of, ii. 208; emancipation of, seldom attended by violence, ii. 286.
- Sliding-scale, a nostrum for improving the agricultural labourer, i. 214; a total hindrance to import of wheat, i. 223; time of importations under, i. 295.
- Small arms, manufacture of, i. 588.
- Smith, Adam, on rights of labour, quoted, i. 89; his opinion on slavery, i. 180; how he has been treated by Protectionists—quoted, i. 202; study of, recommended, i. 232; did not believe protective duties would ever be abolished, i. 551; speaker has attempted to popularise, ii. 180; opposed to loans, ii. 194; on free-trade in land, ii. 367.
- Smith, Sir F., his criticism on fortifications, ii. 330.
- Smith, Mr. Goldwin, his merits—his opinion cited, ii. 113; his learning and accomplishments, ii. 364.
- Smith, Sir H., on war—says it is a damnable trade, i. 458.
- Smithfield Show, farmers at, i. 225.
- Smugglers, British, in China, ii. 130; their risks, ii. 133.
- Smuggling, commitments for, i. 562.
- Soap, tax on, abominable—advocates of, advocates of dirt, i. 550.
- Soap-duty, scandal of, its abolition, i. 574.
- Soldiers and sailors, veracity of, ii. 140.
- Somers, Mr., his speech on behalf of Free-trade, i. 173.
- Somerset, Duke of, on ordnance and guns, i. 584.
- Somersetshire, speech of farmer in, ii. 246.
- South, recognition of, discussed, ii. 102; would not get cotton, ii. 200; unavailing, ii. 317.
- Southwood-Smith, Dr., on ventilation, i. 231.

- Sovereign, cannot by law grant a monopoly, i. 114.
- Sovereigns, warlike and despotic, check to, ii. 205.
- Spain, unpopularity of England in, i. 485; called the beginning of Africa, ii. 492.
- Spaniards, wise maxim of, i. 484.
- Spanish bonds, case of an unfortunate man who bought, ii. 186.
- Speculator, his relations to the farmer, i. 140.
- Speech from Throne, how it used to be treated, i. 3.
- Spencer, Lord, his Free-trade sympathies, i. 106; his opinion as to effect of Free-trade in corn, i. 121; his cattle farming, i. 122.
- Spencer, Mr., on the climate of the Crimes, ii. 48.
- Standard*, the, its willingness to replace the people on the rack, i. 311; its character of landlords, i. 379.
- Stanley, Lord, his calumny on the manufacturers—his brilliant talents, i. 5; his opinion on what assisted the Emancipation Bill of 1833, i. 10; his opinion as to the effects of the Corn-laws, i. 36; his opinion on productiveness of land, i. 101; his misstatements not due to ignorance, i. 102; his advice to Lancashire farmers improper, i. 170; his speech on agricultural improvement, i. 217; on necessity of giving security to the tenant, i. 264; consequences, if he takes a haughty line, i. 421; says it is a delusion (1863) to talk of reaction, ii. 277; his estimate of expenditure, ii. 370.
- Starvation, lecture on behalf of, a Protectionist meeting, i. 127; periodical, checked by free-trade in food, ii. 556.
- States, American, magnitude of, ii. 103.
- States, small, have had greatest influence on mankind, ii. 316.
- Statesman, in what manner he can get a lasting reputation, ii. 352.
- Statesmen, French and English, desire a reduction of armaments, i. 525; fundamental error of, in relation to American civil war, ii. 102; leading, on toleration, ii. 456.
- Statutes, plainly passed by landlords, i. 51.
- Steam-basins, discovery of, importance of, ii. 168.
- Steam engines in 1848, the Government only just prevented from making, i. 599.
- Steam navy, magnitude of, in 1849, ii. 168.
- Steyning, character of Protectionist meeting at, i. 189.
- Stock, effect of Corn-laws on feeders of, i. 273.
- Stockport, effect of scarcity on price of cattle, i. 144; labour-market in, state of, in 1839, i. 201; speech at, i. 469.
- Stowell, Mr. Hugh, on Papal aggression, ii. 452.
- Strike at Preston, its character, ii. 616.
- Stuarts, monopolies of, i. 114.
- Subdivision of property, erroneous view of dangers of minute, i. 481.
- Subscriptions, amount of, which the League intends to raise, i. 76.
- Sudbury, electors of, i. 108.
- Suffolk, county meeting in, i. 229.
- Suffrage, universal, petitions in favour of, ii. 470; extension of, guarantee of peace, ii. 483; household, Mr. Cobden always voted for, ii. 545.
- Sugar, duties on, i. 41; effect of equalising duty on, i. 60; monopoly of, in hands of a most ignoble oligarchy, i. 84; effect of differential duties on, i. 176; objections to taking tax off, i. 248.
- Sulphur, merchants of Holland sold, to make gunpowder to fire on themselves, ii. 196.
- Supplements of newspapers, taxes on, i. 572.
- Surplus, how alone to be obtained, i. 513; two ways of welcoming a, ii. 450.
- Surrey, East, its representation, i. 303; electors of, and adults in, ii. 497.
- Sussex, condition of, in 1843, i. 48; electors of, and adults in, ii. 497.
- Sussex, West, speaker's estate in, i. 422; speaker's estate in, how managed, i. 440.
- Swindling, Pacifico's case an attempt at, ii. 220.
- Switzerland, mode of its resistance, ii. 496; compulsory education in, ii. 580.
- Syria, war in, and increase of forces, i. 478.

T.

- Taeplings, opinions of Lord Palmerston about, ii. 115; other rebellions in China besides that of, ii. 270.
- Tagus, ships constantly in the, i. 465.
- Tahiti, quarrel at, i. 490; arrest of English consul at, ii. 173.
- Talfourd, Mr. Serjeant, his speech on Parliamentary Reform criticised, ii. 467.
- Tallow, Russian, came during the Crimean war through Prussia, ii. 293.
- Tamboff, Lord Stanley's absurd statement about exports of, i. 192.
- Tariff, reductions of, i. 41; changes in, by Sir R. Peel, and their effects, i. 143; change in, has caused no reduction in prices, i. 144; Chinese, a Free-trade one, i. 233; of Europe, will be changed if we change ours, i. 360.
- Tarrant Hinton, condition of poor in, i. 159.
- Tattersall's, odds about continuance of Corn-laws at, i. 255.
- Tax on food, its amount per cent., i. 3.
- Taxation, recommendation to reduce, how can it take effect, i. 2; re-adjustment of, a mystification, i. 343; opinion of Duke of Wellington on, i. 384; reduction of, impossible without reduction of expenditure, i. 495; effects of reduced, on the prosperity of the people, i. 510; direct, would vote for 10 per cent., i. 513; evil of subjecting different portions of United Kingdom to different modes of, i. 530; excessive, will force emigration, i. 551; interests of working men in diminished, ii. 70; limit of, limit of expenditure, ii. 160; amount of, per head, at different times, ii. 259; adjustment of, ii. 368; manipulation of, nearly finished, ii. 370; cannot be remitted, except expenditure is reduced, ii. 405; equitable in France, ii. 434; adjustment of, necessary, ii. 473; revision of, a consequence of extended franchise, ii. 553.
- Taxes, clamour for reducing, ii. 406.
- Taxes, local, plan to transfer to Consolidated Fund, i. 419.
- Taxpayers, should decide on necessity of armaments, i. 458; of England, will not collect debts of foreign fundholders, ii. 202.
- Taylor, Mr., his plan of reform, i. 431.
- Tea, reduction of duty on, thought good, i. 248.
- Tea duties, alteration of, i. 548.
- Teatollers, arguments of, on malt-tax, i. 539; political, ii. 348.
- Temperance, best assisted by education, ii. 616.
- Tenant and landlord, interests of, divergent, i. 397.
- Tenant-at-will, how he votes, i. 374.
- Tenant-farmer, franchise of, i. 373.
- Tenant-farmers, good manners of, and absence of vulgarity in speeches of, i. 127; distressed in 1844, and why, i. 222; should not look to Dukes and Acts of Parliament, i. 226; should meet as one community, i. 447.
- Tenants, made servile and dependent, and afraid of landlords, i. 265; will not pay in rent, game, and votes, i. 403.
- Terror, Reign of, cause of foreign intervention, ii. 318.
- Texas, prize in American civil war, ii. 362.
- Thames Embankment, attempt to sacrifice interests of many to foolish and blind convenience of the few, in constructing, ii. 276.
- Thiers, M., why in 1846 he voted for augmentation of French navy, i. 517.
- Thompson, Colonel, his comparison of Corn-laws to a spiral spring, i. 312; his protest against Tithe Commutation Act, i. 356; his services and sacrifices to Free-trade, i. 391.
- Thorn, three or four have been to side of Government, ii. 67.
- 'Three ways,' a phrase of Sir Robert Peel, i. 292.
- Thurlow, Chancellor, his unnecessary pains to describe bribery in the House of Commons, i. 94.
- Timber, reduction of duties on, i. 41.
- Time and truth against all the world, i. 98.
- Times, the, its opinion of Corn-laws, i. 25; its report on Welsh farmers and labourers, i. 163; a fair challenge by, i. 291; admirable article of, i. 293; its power and its opinion on naval expenditure, i. 524; Cor-

- respondent of, on Crimean army, ii. 40; character of, ii. 59; said Lord Palmerston had been 'boots' to every administration, ii. 61; its gross falsehoods and calumnies, ii. 69; origin of its attacks on the speaker, ii. 77.
- Tithe commutation, protested against by Colonel Thompson, i. 356.
- Tobacco, indirect effects of tax on, i. 559; adulteration of, i. 562.
- Tocqueville, De, on the political morality of the English, ii. 113.
- Tolerant danger of retracing a single step in, ii. 457.
- Tories, broken by disruption of leaders, i. 349.
- Tory, Whig and, extinct with Corn-laws, i. 329; Lord Palmerston as good as any, ii. 273; Lord Palmerston the staunchest, ii. 333.
- Tory party, its motives not to be extravagant when in office, ii. 334.
- Toulon, occupation of, ii. 13.
- Towns, large, their sympathies with Free-trade, i. 370; no right of agriculturists to lay a tax on, i. 531.
- Tract, published by the enemy, with a quotation from Henry Clay, its moral, i. 226.
- Trade, revival of, no refutation of Free-trade principles, i. 66; not increased by violence, ii. 145; not promoted by war, ii. 421.
- Trade disputes often originate in ignorance, ii. 617.
- Trader, how affected by Corn-laws, i. 118.
- Trades-unions, their effect on legislation, ii. 554.
- Traffic with China, exceptional, and detrimental, ii. 142.
- Transit, cost of, important to get information on, i. 141.
- Transport, difficulty of, in case of large army, ii. 408.
- Travellers, all attest decline of Turkey, ii. 18.
- Treasury, scanty control of, i. 578.
- Treasury Bench, declamatory balderdash and verbiage of, ii. 27.
- Treasury notes, Russian, issued in Hungarian war, ii. 198.
- Treaty, argument against, from its breach under a state of war, examined, ii. 164.
- Treaty, commercial, often obtained by force or fraud, ii. 422.
- Treaty of Paris, 1856, attempts made at, ii. 280.
- Trelawny, Mr., objections of, to secular education, ii. 592.
- Trent affair, possible consequences of, ii. 295.
- Triennial Parliaments, propriety of, and a substitute for, ii. 481; argument for, ii. 505.
- Trollope, Sir John, on the temper and spirit of tenants, i. 269.
- Tropical countries, resolution of House of Commons on extending territories in, ii. 384.
- Trover, action of, how decided, i. 37.
- Truth, benefited by lapse of time, ii. 98.
- Tudors, monopolies of, i. 114.
- Tulloch, Col., his report and Lord Palmerston's conduct to him, ii. 66.
- Tutk, the, statement of treaty with, false, ii. 5.
- Turkey, trick in, on the bakers, i. 227; Russia has abandoned her designs on, ii. 8; no administrative authority in, ii. 17; absurdity of maintaining independence of, ii. 31; hypothetical case of Russian demands on, ii. 744; defence of, supposed duty of England (1850), ii. 196.
- Turkish empire, condition of, and reforms in, ii. 14.
- Turks, the, degraded during the Crimean war, ii. 16.
- Turner, Mr., on distress of Devonshire farmers, i. 260.
- Turner, Mr. Aspinall, his candidature, ii. 67.
- Turnpike-keeper, at Exeter, would not take toll from General Briggs, i. 486.
- Tyrell, Sir John, says Corn-law gives plenty, and 'security' for plenty, i. 315; his cheers for Lord John Russell ominous, ii. 457.

U.

- 'Ugly rush' of sagacious old Conservative, ii. 118.
- Undergraduates, ignorance of, ii. 363.
- Un-English, absurdity of calling the ballot, ii. 480.
- United Kingdom, must depend on foreign countries for supply of corn, i. 24; evil of being subject to different modes of taxation, i. 530;

- bound to relieve Lancashire distress, and why, ii. 306.
- United States, abundance of, i. 253; their navy and army, i. 428; their quarrels with England and France, i. 488; expense of diplomatic service of, i. 500; convention with, in respect of lakes, i. 522; collection of direct taxes in, i. 562; preponderance of, in Gulf of Mexico, ii. 42; Foreign Enlistment Acts of, have gone counter to sympathies of American people, ii. 88; power given to Government of, in 1838, ii. 91; general belief in final separation of, which speaker does not share, ii. 102; should not be divided, ii. 108; England three times on verge of war with, ii. 138; would not take part in the affair of the Arrow, ii. 153; treaty with, in 1794, and in 1814, ii. 162; convention with, in 1818, about captured negroes, ii. 163; difficulties in, their probable effect on cotton prices, ii. 254; their attitude at Treaty of Paris, ii. 280; the great neutral Power among nations, ii. 283; war with, in 1812-13, and exports of cotton, ii. 294; speaker's experience of, ii. 315; various opinions about civil war in, ii. 356; elections in, ii. 360; finance of, unexpected, and why, ii. 369; treaty with, about the lakes, ii. 411; toleration in, ii. 452; constitution of, unfit for England, ii. 522; amusement of, at English alarm of France, ii. 533; suffrage in, various, ii. 551; education in, why general, ib.; operation of ballot in, ii. 559; their educational system, ii. 573; education in, advocated, ii. 603; commission to inquire into mechanical arts of, ii. 618.
- Urquhart, Mr., his passion for tacking on amendments, ii. 174.
- Utopia, peace question not a, ii. 405.
- Utrecht, Peace of, and Dunkirk, ii. 12.
- V.
- Vatican, Easter ceremonies in the, ii. 459.
- Vauban, builder of Dunkirk fortifications, ii. 12.
- Venice, aristocracy of, i. 26.
- Veracity of soldiers and sailors, high, ii. 140.
- 'Vicar of Wakefield,' cited to show what Protection is like, i. 125.
- Vice, often springs from ignorance, ii. 615.
- Vices, social, indescribable, of Turks, ii. 16; and weaknesses, inseparable, ii. 106.
- Vicenne, M., his speech at Rouen, i. 462.
- Vienna, mixed commission at, ii. 14; representation of, ii. 478; Treaty of, torn to tatters, ii. 109.
- Villiers, Mr. C., his labours on behalf of Free-trade, i. 5; his complaint of the irrelevancy of speakers, i. 16; his services to Free-trade, i. 187; intention of not speaking on his motion, frustrated, i. 288.
- Violence, charged against Free-traders, i. 126; will not be repaid by increased commerce, ii. 155; does no good, ii. 494.
- Virgil, responsible for covenants in leases not to grow flax, i. 278.
- Virtues and forces go together, ii. 106.
- Vizet, case of the, ii. 170.
- Voters, county, number of, in 1847, ii. 496.
- Votes, creation of, by League, how effected, i. 355; price of, as four o'clock approaches, ii. 520.
- Votes of money, never reduced, ii. 371.
- Vulgarity, coroneted, among monopolists, i. 126.
- W.
- Wadsworth, Mr. (of New York), on English agriculture, i. 104.
- Wages, abolition of Corn-laws said likely to reduce rate of, by Lord Stanley, i. 5; precisely contrary effect to be predicted, i. 6; regulated by price of food, an opinion in 1814, i. 16; low, a sign of unprofitable manufacture, i. 19; cannot be kept at a fixed amount, i. 23; are not made low by low price of food, i. 105; said to be regulated by price of corn, but not so, i. 116; high in Lancashire, when corn is cheap, i. 120; when do they vary with price of food? ib.; large portion of labourers', spent in food, i. 149; fall of, between 1790-1844, i. 154; low, farmers not responsible for, i. 160; reduction of, by Free-trade, a fair clap-trap of Protection-

- ists, i. 377; how far reduced by Free-trade, i. 399; increase of, test of national prosperity, i. 436; loss of weekly, by cotton famine, ii. 511.
- Wales, condition of farmers in, and labourers, i. 163.
- Walker, Mr. Secretary, on Free-trade in America, i. 357.
- Walker, Mr. Chas., proposed scheme for buying freeholds, ii. 493.
- Wallachia and Moldavia, protectorate of, ii. 32.
- Want, who are the best judges of, rich or poor? i. 25.
- War, revulsion after its cessation, i. 407; a damnable trade, i. 428; use of Government establishments in time of, i. 601; demoralises representative system, ii. 3; is it a luxury? ii. 10; of 1812, character of, ii. 19; two classes who abhor, ii. 160; Jeremy Bentham's definition of, ii. 176; happily, self-destroying, ii. 188; effects of, on commercial intercourse, ii. 246; serious, with what country possible, ii. 291; in time of, ports should be as open as possible, ii. 298; no place for reason and argument during, ii. 314; disinclination to, in 1864, ii. 344; cannot be made profitable, ii. 352; profession of some men, ii. 416; never without declaration, ii. 427.
- War, defensive, justification of, ii. 161.
- War, vessels of, fifteen sent to collect Good., ii. 217.
- War Secretary, most extensive tailor in the world, i. 594.
- Ward, Mr., his Committee on special burdens on land, i. 286; on increase of navy in France, i. 519.
- Wars, how they generally arise, ii. 164; English, continual, ii. 365; for the future, must be short, and why, ii. 537.
- Washington, his efforts to enforce international law, ii. 87; policy of, adopted by United States, ii. 283.
- Waste, public, effects of, i. 487.
- Watchwords of Whig party, according to Lord Grey, ii. 223.
- Waterloo, India annually costs a couple of battles of, ii. 114; battle of, old soldier who showed model of, did not know what it was about, ii. 165.
- Watt, J., his saying to George III, i. 256.
- Weaker State, not always in the right, ii. 11.
- Wealth, cannot be increased by legislation, but may be destroyed, i. 382; does not pay taxes, but industry does, i. 511; taxation has increased more than, ii. 260.
- Weavers, handloom, petition of, to House of Commons, i. 23; of damask, also designers of patterns, ii. 611.
- Webster, Daniel, his speeches, i. 227; on American education, ii. 604.
- Well-being of community, only effected when all are considered, ii. 544.
- Well-doing, plenty and cheapness promised reward of, i. 182.
- Wellington, Duke of, his opinion on public questions, i. 11; his attitude on Corn-law, i. 323; on taxation, i. 384; his letter, its causes and effects, i. 457; never mentioned in Spain, i. 485; on Canadian lakes, i. 522; cost of armaments in his day, ii. 70; Yeh's letters as sententious as those of, ii. 149; public expenditure during administration of, ii. 322; alarms felt about his administration, ii. 512.
- Wesleyans, schism among, ii. 574; body of, torn in twain, ii. 594.
- West Riding, made Liberal by freeholders, ii. 494.
- Western States, rule the Union, ii. 319.
- Whampoa, rapidity with which trade is carried on at, ii. 145.
- Whately, Archbishop, his 'Historic Doubts' cited, ii. 263.
- Wheat, prices of, in 1843, i. 49; prices of, in 1839-42, i. 66; high price of, followed by declining revenue—low, by rising, i. 83; prices of, i. 137; quantity of, grown per acre on a farm, i. 148; price of, in 1839, i. 200; sources of imported, in one year, i. 296; effects on price of, by immediate abolition of Corn-law, i. 359.
- Whig and Tory, extinct with Corn-laws, i. 329.
- Whig party, course always taken by, i. 496.
- Whigs, peace, non-intervention, and retrenchment to be watchwords of, ii. 223.
- Whippers-in, functions of, ii. 344.
- Whitbread, Mr., on Lord Castlereagh's powers as ambassador, ii. 166.

