TABLE OF CONTENTS.

Majority Report.

CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTORY.

PARA.		PAGE.
1.	The question referred to the Board	1
2.	The proposals of the Indian Mining Federation and the Board's Communiqué	1
3.	Proposals of the Indian Mining Association	2
4.	Evidence tendered in favour of protection	2
5.	Evidence tendered against protection	3
6.	The Board's sources of information	3
7.	Arrangement of the Report	4

CHAPTER II.

THE PROBABLE RESULTS OF A PROTECTIVE DUTY ON COAL.

8.	Necessity of investigating the probable results of a protective duty on coal.	5
9.	Questions to be examined	5
10.	The market for coal in India before the war	6
11.	Conditions affecting the Indian coal market during and after the war	6
12.	The Indian coal market from 1923 to 1925	7
13.	Imports of foreign coal only 2½ per cent. of internal consumption	7
14.	The market for coal in Burma and Madras	8
15.	The Bombay coal market before, during and after the war	8
16.	Displacement of coal in Bombay by fuel oil and hydro-electricity	9
17.	The present market for coal in Bombay	10
18.	Pre-war imports of coal at Karachi by the North-Western Railway	11
19.	The market for coal at Karachi before, during and after the war	11
20.	The present market for coal at Karachi	12
21.	Increase in the market for Indian coal which a protective duty could give—only 300,000 tons a year	12
22.	The c.i.f. cost of the best Jharia coal at the Indian ports	13
23.	Sea freights to Bombay on coal from Calcutta and South Africa	14
24.	Price obtainable for the best Jharia coal c.i.f. Bombay	15
25.	Protection would not increase the price of Indian coal except possibly in Bombay and Sind	15
26.	Comparison of the price of Jharia coal at Bombay with the price of similar coal at Madras and Rangoon	16
27.	Extent to which protection might raise the price of coal in Bombay and Karachi	17

PARA.	PAGE.
28. Effect of protection on the sales and prices of Indian coal . . .	17
29. Probability of increased sales of Indian coal at Bombay and Karachi even though protection is withheld	17
30. Consumer's view of a rise in the price of coal due to a protective duty	18

CHAPTER III.

PROPOSED PROTECTIVE DUTY ON ALL IMPORTED COAL.

31. Questions considered in Chapter III	19
32. Rates of duty proposed by the Mining Federation	19
33. No reason for imposing a higher duty on coal other than South African	20
34. Criticism of the proposed rate of duty on South African coal	20
35. Impossibility of fixing the rate of duty on coal on the basis of a fair price	21
36. Depression in the Coal industry	22
37. Reasons given for declining coal prices	22
38. Present consumption of Indian coal higher than ever before	22
39. Reasons for increased consumption of coal	23
40. Low price of coal due to over-rapid development	24
41. The excess of productive capacity over demand not a sufficient ground for protection	24
42. The Claim of the Coal industry to assistance from the State	25
43. The embargo on coal exports not a reason for imposing a protective duty on coal	25
44. The prejudice against Indian coal in overseas markets	26
45. The prejudice justified by actual quality of much Indian coal sent to Bombay and Sind	26
46. Explanation of the prejudice given by the mine owners	27
47. Dissatisfaction with Indian coal not due mainly to shipment conditions	28
48. Responsibility of the Coal industry for the unpopularity of Indian coal	28
49. Unfairness of compelling consumer to purchase Indian coal	29
50. Probable increase of shipments of Indian coal to Bombay and Sind without protection	30
51. National importance of the Coal industry and unsalability of second class coal	31
52. Summary of the reasons against a protective duty on all imported coal	32

CHAPTER IV.

PROPOSED COUNTERVALUING DUTY ON SOUTH AFRICAN COAL.

53. Complaint of the mine owners that the competition of South African coal is unfair	34
54. Coal freights on the South African railways	34
55. Difference between export and domestic freight—the primary measure of assistance given to export trade	36
56. The higher rate on bunker coal	36

PARA.	PAGE.
57. Payment of the export rebate on bunker coal used by ships carrying export coal	37
58. Sacrifice of revenue by the South African railways in the interests of the coal export trade	38
59. Possibility of reductions of rail freight on particular commodities with the object of increasing traffic generally	39
60. Domestic rate on coal too low to admit of drastic reductions on export coal	39
61. Only a substantial freight concession could develop South Africa's export coal trade	40
62. South African rebate on export coal introduced in the interests of the Coal industry rather than to bring traffic to the railways	41
63. Export bounty on South African coal not less than Re. 1-8 a ton	42
64. The existence of a bounty does not of itself justify the imposition of a countervailing duty	42
65. Procedure for safeguarding industries in the United Kingdom	43
66. Duty on South African coal not likely to injure industries in India	44
67. Success of South African coal not due entirely to the bounty	44
68. Extent to which the sales of Indian coal would probably increase if a duty were imposed on South African coal	45
69. Countervailing duty on South African coal not recommended	45
70. Protective duties inappropriate to the Coal industry	46
71. Possibility of retaliation by South Africa	47
72. The Board's findings regarding the proposed duty on South African coal	47
73. The Report not signed by Mr. Ginwala	49

Minority Report.

CHAPTER I.

REASONS FOR DISSENTING FROM THE MAJORITY REPORT.

1. Agreement with Majority on essential facts; difference of opinion as regards recommendations	50
2. Exclusion of competition from other countries	50
3. Competition with South African coal	50
4. Difference in methods of approach—main cause of disagreement	51
5. Explanation	52
6. Acknowledgments	52

CHAPTER II.

SUCCESS OF SOUTH AFRICAN COAL MAINLY A RESULT OF BOUNTY

7. Summary of the conclusions arrived at in the separate note	53
8. Bounty	54
9. The amount of the bounty	54
10. Rebates are nothing but a direct bounty	54

(iv)

PARA.	PAGE.
11. South African freights deliberately approximated to Indian freights	55
12. South African coal cannot compete against Indian coal without bounty	55
13. Success of South African coal due to bounty and not to deterioration of quality of Indian coal or embargo on export	56

CHAPTER III.

MEASURES AGAINST UNFAIR COMPETITION IN OTHER COUNTRIES.

14. How unfair competition is dealt with in other countries	59
15. Pre-war legislation against unfair competition	59
16. Post-war legislation against unfair competition	59
17. Unfair competition—sole criterion in some countries	59
18. Unfair competition attended by actual or probable injury to domestic industry, criterion of other countries	60
19. United Kingdom requires fulfilment of other conditions	60
20. These conditions afford little assistance in the deliberations of this Board	60
21. Other countries: South Africa: Australia	61
22. Action not confined to protectionist countries	62
23. Reasons for action	62

CHAPTER IV.

COUNTERVAILING DUTIES ON SOUTH AFRICAN COAL.

24. Practice of other countries	64
25. Practical considerations justify imposition of countervailing duties	64
26. Limitations imposed by fiscal law and system cannot be ignored	64
27. Fiscal law	64
28. Indian fiscal system	65
29. Injury to the Indian Coal industry extensive	66
30. Loss of external market must be taken into account in determining the extent of injury	66
31. Amount of countervailing duty recommended—Re. 1-8 per ton on South African coal	67
32. Burden of the countervailing duty on the consumer	67
33. Principal Bombay consumers in favour of countervailing duty	68
34. Rise in the price of South African coal will throw no burden on the consumer, it may reduce it	68
35. Quantity of South African coal which may be displaced	68
36. Gain to the country as a whole by the imposition of countervailing duty	69
37. Precautions by consumer to secure good quality of Indian coal. Purchasing direct from the collieries	69
38. Securing guarantee as to the quality if middlemen employed	70
39. Reason for such guarantee	70
40. Consumer will not adopt any precautions unless South African coal becomes dearer	71

(v.)

CHAPTER V.

OBJECTIONS TO THE IMPOSITION OF A COUNTERVAILING DUTY ON SOUTH AFRICAN COAL.

PARA.	PAGE.
41. Resultant gain to Indian Coal industry small	72
42. Some recovery already visible without protection	72
43. Past deterioration in quality of coal partially disentitles industry to assistance	74
44. Unfairness of restricting the consumer's choice	75
45. Retaliation by South Africa	75

CHAPTER VI.
