

1857

Lakshman Krishnaswami
16.6.82. Elphinstone College.

Dhananjayrao Gadgil Library

GIPE-PUNE-001796

THE
HISTORY OF ENGLAND

FROM THE ACCESSION
OF
JAMES THE SECOND.

BY THOMAS BABINGTON MACAULAY.

VOLUME III.

LONDON:
LONGMAN, BROWN, GREEN, LONGMANS, & ROBERTS
1857.

V3.L
A850.3

1796

LONDON:
Printed by SPOTTISWOODE & Co.
New-street Square.

CONTENTS

OF

THE THIRD VOLUME.

CHAPTER XI.

	Page
William and Mary proclaimed in London - - - - -	1
Rejoicings throughout England; Rejoicings in Holland - - - - -	2
Discontent of the Clergy and of the Army - - - - -	3
Reaction of Public Feeling - - - - -	5
Temper of the Tories - - - - -	7
Temper of the Whigs - - - - -	11
Ministerial Arrangements - - - - -	13
William his own Minister for Foreign Affairs - - - - -	14
Danby - - - - -	15
Halifax - - - - -	17
Nottingham - - - - -	18
Shrewsbury - - - - -	19
The Board of Admiralty; the Board of Treasury - - - - -	20
The Great Seal - - - - -	21
The Judges - - - - -	22
The Household - - - - -	23
Subordinate Appointments - - - - -	26
The Convention turned into a Parliament - - - - -	27
The Members of the two Houses required to take the Oaths - - - - -	31
Questions relating to the Revenue - - - - -	33
Abolition of the Hearth Money - - - - -	36
Repayment of the Expenses of the United Provinces - - - - -	37
Mutiny at Ipswich - - - - -	38
The first Mutiny Bill - - - - -	42
Suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act - - - - -	47
Unpopularity of William - - - - -	48
Popularity of Mary - - - - -	52
The Court removed from Whitehall to Hampton Court - - - - -	54

	Page
The Court at Kensington; William's foreign Favourites	58
General Maladministration	60
Dissensions among Men in Office	63
Department of Foreign Affairs	67
Religious Disputes	69
The High Church Party	71
The Low Church Party	72
William's Views concerning Ecclesiastical Polity	74
Burnet, Bishop of Salisbury	75
Nottingham's Views concerning Ecclesiastical Polity	79
The Toleration Bill	81
The Comprehension Bill	89
The Bill for settling the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy	99
The Bill for settling the Coronation Oath	115
The Coronation	117
Promotions	120
The Coalition against France; the Devastation of the Palatinate	122
War declared against France	127

CHAPTER XII.

State of Ireland at the Time of the Revolution; the Civil Power in the Hands of the Roman Catholics	129
The Military Power in the Hands of the Roman Catholics	132
Mutual Enmity between the Englishry and Irishry	133
Panic among the Englishry	134
History of the Town of Kenmare	135
Enniskillen	140
Londonderry	141
Closing of the Gates of Londonderry	143
Mountjoy sent to pacify Ulster	146
William opens a Negotiation with Tyrconnel	147
The Temples consulted	150
Richard Hamilton sent to Ireland on his Parole	151
Tyrconnel sends Mountjoy and Rice to France	152
Tyrconnel calls the Irish People to Arms	154
Devastation of the Country	155
The Protestants in the South unable to resist	160
Enniskillen and Londonderry hold out; Richard Hamilton marches into Ulster with an Army	162
James determines to go to Ireland	163
Assistance furnished by Lewis to James	165
Choice of a French Ambassador to accompany James	167

CONTENTS.

v

	Page
The Count of Avaux - - - - -	168
James lands at Kinsale - - - - -	170
James enters Cork - - - - -	171
Journey of James from Cork to Dublin - - - - -	172
Discontent in England - - - - -	175
Factions at Dublin Castle - - - - -	177
James determines to go to Ulster - - - - -	183
Journey of James to Ulster - - - - -	184
The Fall of Londonderry expected - - - - -	188
Succours arrive from England - - - - -	189
Treachery of Lundy; the Inhabitants of Londonderry resolve to defend themselves - - - - -	190
Their Character - - - - -	192
Londonderry besieged - - - - -	197
The Siege turned into a Blockade - - - - -	200
Naval Skirmish in Bantry Bay - - - - -	201
A Parliament summoned by James sits at Dublin - - - - -	202
A Toleration Act passed; Acts passed for the Confiscation of the Property of Protestants - - - - -	208
Issue of base Money - - - - -	214
The great Act of Attainder - - - - -	216
James prorogues his Parliament; Persecution of the Protestants in Ireland - - - - -	220
Effect produced in England by the News from Ireland - - - - -	223
Actions of the Enniskilleners - - - - -	226
Distress of Londonderry - - - - -	227
Expedition under Kirke arrives in Loch Foyle - - - - -	228
Cruelty of Rosen - - - - -	229
The Famine in Londonderry extreme - - - - -	232
Attack on the Boom - - - - -	235
The Siege of Londonderry raised - - - - -	237
Operations against the Enniskilleners - - - - -	241
Battle of Newton Butler - - - - -	243
Consternation of the Irish - - - - -	245

CHAPTER XIII.

The Revolution more violent in Scotland than in England - - - - -	246
Elections for the Conventien; Rabbling of the Episcopal Clergy - - - - -	248
State of Edinburgh - - - - -	252
Question of an Union between England and Scotland raised - - - - -	253
Wish of the English Low Churchmen to preserve Episcopacy in Scotland - - - - -	258
Opinions of William about Church Government in Scotland - - - - -	259

	Page
Comparative Strength of Religious Parties in Scotland	261
Letter from William to the Scotch Convention	262
William's Instructions to his Agents in Scotland; the Dalrymples - - - - -	263
Melville - - - - -	266
James's Agents in Scotland: Dundee; Balcarras	268
Meeting of the Convention	271
Hamilton elected President	273
Committee of Elections; Edinburgh Castle summoned	274
Dundee threatened by the Covenanters	275
Letter from James to the Convention	277
Effect of James's Letter	279
Flight of Dundee	280
Tumultuous Sitting of the Convention	281
A Committee appointed to frame a Plan of Government	283
Resolutions proposed by the Committee	285
William and Mary proclaimed; the Claim of Right; Abolition of Episcopacy	287
Torture - - - - -	289
William and Mary accept the Crown of Scotland	291
Discontent of the Covenanters	293
Ministerial Arrangements in Scotland	294
Hamilton; Crawford - - - - -	295
The Dalrymples; Lockhart; Montgomery	296
Melville; Carstairs - - - - -	297
The Club formed: Annandale; Ross - - - - -	298
Hume; Fletcher of Saltoun - - - - -	299
War breaks out in the Highlands; State of the Highlands	300
Peculiar Nature of Jacobitism in the Highlands	313
Jealousy of the Ascendency of the Campbells	315
The Stewarts and Macnaghtens	318
The Macleans; the Camerons; Lochiel	319
The Macdonalds; Feud between the Macdonalds and Mackintoshes; Inverness	323
Inverness threatened by Macdonald of Keppoch	325
Dundee appears in Keppoch's Camp	326
Insurrection of the Clans hostile to the Campbells	330
Tarbet's Advice to the Government	332
Indecisive Campaign in the Highlands	333
Military Character of the Highlanders	334
Quarrels in the Highland Army	340
Dundee applies to James for Assistance; the War in the
Highlands suspended	342
Scruples of the Covenanters about taking Arms for King
William - - - - -	343

CONTENTS.

vii

	Page
The Cameronian Regiment raised - - -	344
Edinburgh Castle surrenders - - -	346
Session of Parliament at Edinburgh - - -	347
Ascendency of the Club - - -	348
Troubles in Athol - - -	351
The War breaks out again in the Highlands - - -	354
Death of Dundee - - -	362
Retreat of Mackay - - -	363
Effect of the Battle of Killiecrankie; the Scottish Parliament adjourned - - -	365
The Highland Army reinforced - - -	369
Skirmish at Saint Johnston's - - -	371
Disorders in the Highland Army - - -	372
Mackay's Advice disregarded by the Scotch Ministers - - -	373
The Cameronians stationed at Dunkeld - - -	374
The Highlanders attack the Cameronians and are repulsed - - -	375
Dissolution of the Highland Army; Intrigues of the Club; State of the Lowlands - - -	377

CHAPTER XIV.

Disputes in the English Parliament - - -	379
The Attainder of Russell reversed - - -	380
Other Attainders reversed; Case of Samuel Johnson - - -	382
Case of Devonshire - - -	383
Case of Oates - - -	384
Bill of Rights - - -	393
Disputes about a Bill of Indemnity - - -	396
Last Days of Jeffreys - - -	398
The Whigs dissatisfied with the King - - -	404
Intemperance of Howa - - -	405
Attack on Caermarthen - - -	406
Attack on Halifax - - -	407
Preparations for a Campaign in Ireland - - -	410
Schomberg - - -	412
Recess of the Parliament - - -	414
State of Ireland; Advice of Avaux - - -	415
Dismission of Melfort; Schomberg lands in Ulster - - -	420
Carrickfergus taken - - -	421
Schomberg advances into Leinster; the English and Irish Armies encamp near each other - - -	422
Schomberg declines a Battle - - -	423
Frauds of the English Commissariat - - -	424
Conspiracy among the French Troops in the English Service - - -	426
Pestilence in the English Army - - -	427

	Page
The English and Irish Armies go into Winter Quarters	430
Various Opinions about Schomberg's Conduct	431
Maritime Affairs	432
Maladministration of Torrington	433
Continental Affairs	435
Skirmish at Walcourt	437
Imputations thrown on Marlborough	438
Pope Innocent XI. succeeded by Alexander VIII.	439
The High Church Clergy divided on the Subject of the Oaths	440
Arguments for taking the Oaths	441
Arguments against taking the Oaths	445
A great Majority of the Clergy take the Oaths	456
The Nonjurors; Ken	453
Leslie	455
Sherlock	456
Hickes	458
Collier	459
Dodwell	461
Kettlewell; Fitzwilliam	463
General Character of the Nonjuring Clergy	464
The Plan of Comprehension; Tillotson	468
An Ecclesiastical Commission issued	470
Proceedings of the Commission	471
The Convocation of the Province of Canterbury summoned;
Temper of the Clergy	476
The Clergy ill affected towards the King	477
The Clergy exasperated against the Dissenters by the Proceedings of the Scotch Presbyterians	481
Constitution of the Convocation	483
Election of Members of Convocation; Ecclesiastical Preferences bestowed	485
Compton discontented	487
The Convocation meets	488
The High Churchmen a Majority of the Lower House of Convocation	489
Difference between the two Houses of Convocation	491
The Lower House of Convocation proves unmanageable	492
The Convocation prorogued	494

CHAPTER XV

The Parliament meets; Retirement of Halifax	496
Supplies voted	497
The Bill of Rights passed	498

CONTENTS.

ix

	Page
Inquiry into Naval Abuses - - - -	500
Inquiry into the Conduct of the Irish War - - - -	501
Reception of Walker in England - - - -	503
Edmund Ludlow - - - -	505
Violence of the Whigs - - - -	509
Impeachments - - - -	510
Committee of Murder - - - -	511
Malevolence of John Hampden - - - -	513
The Corporation Bill - - - -	517
Debates on the Indemnity Bill - - - -	523
Case of Sir Robert Sawyer - - - -	524
The King purposes to retire to Holland - - - -	528
He is induced to change his Intention; the Whigs oppose his going to Ireland - - - -	530
He prorogues the Parliament - - - -	531
Joy of the Tories - - - -	533
Dissolution and General Election - - - -	534
Changes in the Executive Departments - - - -	537
Caermarthen Chief Minister - - - -	538
Sir John Lowther - - - -	540
Rise and Progress of Parliamentary Corruption in England -	541
Sir John Trevor - - - -	547
Godolphin retires; Changes at the Admiralty - - - -	549
Changes in the Commissions of Lieutenancy - - - -	550
Temper of the Whigs; Dealings of some Whigs with Saint Germain; Shrewsbury; Ferguson - - - -	553
Hopes of the Jacobites - - - -	555
Meeting of the new Parliament; Settlement of the Revenue -	556
Provision for the Princess of Denmark - - - -	559
Bill declaring the Acts of the preceding Parliament valid -	567
Debate on the Changes in the Lieutenancy - - - -	569
Abjuration Bill - - - -	570
Act of Grace - - - -	575
The Parliament prorogued; Preparations for the first War -	579
Administration of James at Dublin - - - -	580
An auxiliary Force sent from France to Ireland - - - -	582
Plan of the English Jacobites; Clarendon, Aylesbury, Dart- mouth - - - -	586
Penn - - - -	587
Preston - - - -	588
The Jacobites betrayed by Fuller - - - -	590
Crone arrested - - - -	591
Difficulties of William - - - -	593
Conduct of Shrewsbury - - - -	594
The Council of Nine - - - -	597

	Page
Conduct of Clarendon - - - -	598
Penn held to Bail - - - -	599
Interview between William and Burnet; William sets out for Ireland - - - -	600
Trial of Crone - - - -	601
Danger of Invasion and Insurrection. Tourville's Fleet in the Channel - - - -	603
Arrests of suspected Persons - - - -	604
Torrington ordered to give Battle to Tourville - - - -	605
Battle of Beachy Head - - - -	608
Alarm in London; Battle of Fleurus - - - -	609
Spirit of the Nation - - - -	610
Conduct of Shrewsbury - - - -	613

CHAPTER XVI.

William lands at Carrickfergus, and proceeds to Belfast - - - -	615
State of Dublin; William's military Arrangements - - - -	617
William marches southward - - - -	619
The Irish Army retreats - - - -	620
The Irish make a Stand at the Boyne - - - -	622
The Army of James - - - -	623
The Army of William - - - -	624
Walker, now Bishop of Derry, accompanies the Army - - - -	626
William reconnoitres the Irish Position; William is wounded - - - -	627
Battle of the Boyne - - - -	629
Flight of James - - - -	635
Loss of the two Armies - - - -	637
Fall of Drogheda; State of Dublin - - - -	638
James flies to France; Dublin evacuated by the French and Irish Troops - - - -	641
Entry of William into Dublin - - - -	642
Effect produced in France by the News from Ireland - - - -	643
Effect produced at Rome by the News from Ireland - - - -	644
Effect produced in London by the News from Ireland - - - -	645
James arrives in France; his Reception there - - - -	647
Tourville attempts a Descent on England - - - -	649
Teignmouth destroyed - - - -	652
Excitement of the English Nation against the French - - - -	654
The Jacobite Press - - - -	656
The Jacobite Form of Prayer and Humiliation - - - -	657
Clamour against the nonjuring Bishops - - - -	659
Military Operations in Ireland; Waterford taken - - - -	661
The Irish Army collected at Limerick. Lauzun pronounces that the Place cannot be defended - - - -	663

CONTENTS.

x

	Page
The Irish insist on defending Limerick	665
Tyrconnel is against defending Limerick; Limerick defended by the Irish alone	667
Sarsfield surprises the English Artillery	669
Arrival of Baldearg O'Donnel at Limerick	671
The Besiegers suffer from the Rains	673
Unsuccessful Assault on Limerick. The Siege raised	674
Tyrconnel and Lauzun go to France; William returns to Eng- land; Reception of William in England	676
Expedition to the South of Ireland	678
Marlborough takes Cork	679
Marlborough takes Kinsale	680
Affairs of Scotland; Intrigues of Montgomery with the Jacobites	681
War in the Highlands	683
Fort William built; Meeting of the Scottish Parliament	685
Melville Lord High Commissioner; the Government obtains a Majority	686
Ecclesiastical Legislation	688
The Coalition between the Club and the Jacobites dissolved	695
The Chiefs of the Club betray each other	697
General Acquiescence in the new Ecclesiastical Polity	700
Complaints of the Episcopalians	701
The Presbyterian Nonjurors	703
William dissatisfied with the Ecclesiastical Arrangements in Scotland	707
Meeting of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland	708
State of Affairs on the Continent	709
The Duke of Savoy joins the Coalition	710
Supplies voted; Ways and Means	712
Proceedings against Torrington	714
Torrington's Trial and Acquittal	716
Animosities of the Whigs against Caermarthen	718
A Jacobite Plot	720
Meeting of the leading Conspirators	721
The Conspirators determine to send Preston to Saint Germain's	723
Papers entrusted to Preston	724
Information of the Plot given to Caermarthen; Arrest of Preston and his Companions	726

INDEX

TO

THE THIRD VOLUME.

- Abjuration Bill; brought into the House of Commons, 570. Its provisions, 571. Tyranny of its last clause, 571, 572. Thrown out, 573. Another Abjuration Bill introduced into the House of Lords, 573. Its provisions, 574. The bill committed, but never reported, 575.
- Addison, Joseph; reference to, 98. note.
- Admiralty; under the control of James II., 14. Its administration confided to a board, 19. A new Commission of, issued, 549.
- Aldrich, Dean of Christchurch; one of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 470. His character and abilities, 470. Absents himself from the meetings of the Commission, 472.
- Allegiance, Oath of; required of the members of both Houses, 31. 82. Discussions on the bill for settling the, 99. See Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy.
- Alexander VIII., Pope; his accession to the Papal chair, 499. Refuses to acknowledge the bishops appointed by Lewis XIV. in France, 440.
- Alsop, Vincent; his zeal in favour of the dispensing power, 71.
- Amsterdam; public rejoicings at, on the accession of William and Mary, 3.
- Angus, Earl of; raises the Cameronian regiment, 344.
- Annandale; excesses of the Covenanters in, 250.
- Annandale, Earl of; joins the Club of Edinburgh, 298. Absents himself from the command of his regiment at the battle of Killiecrankie, 355. His regiment routed, 361. Proceeds with Montgomery and Ross to London, 682. Returns to Edinburgh, 683. Promises made to him by Mary of Modena, 696. Breaks with the Jacobites and becomes a Williamite again, 697. Retires to Bath, 699. Brought up to London by a warrant, 699.
- Anne, the Princess (afterwards Queen); incivility of William III. to her, 51. Gives birth to a son, William Duke of Gloucester, 395. The King acts as sponsor at the baptism, 395. Annuities granted to her, 559, 560. Not on good terms with the King and Queen, 560. Her stupidity, 560. Her fondness for Lady Marlborough, 560. Her bigotry, 563. Boundless influence of the Churchills over her, 563. A Princess's party formed in Parliament, 564. Annoyance of the Queen at the conduct of the Princess, 564. An annuity of fifty thousand pounds settled on her, 556. Renewal of her friendship with the Queen, 566.
- Anne's Bounty, Queen; founded by the perseverance of Bishop Burnet, 78.
- Antrim; migration of the people of, to Londonderry, 163.
- Antrim, Alexander Macdonnell, Earl of; his march to occupy Londonderry, 144. Refused admittance by the citizens, 144, 145. Retires to Coleraine, 146. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 630, 631.
- Apoerypha; discussions respecting the, 490.
- Appin, Stewarts of. See Stewarts of Appin.
- Apprentices; the thirteen, of Londonderry, 145.
- Arbutus; the, in Kerry, 135.
- Architecture; the, of Hampton Court, 55. A favourite amusement of William III., 55.
- Argyle, Marquess of, (father of Earl Archibald); his ambition and influence among the Campbells, 316, 317. His son Archibald, 317. His grandson, 271. 318.

- Argyle, Archibald, Earl of; his defeat of the confederacy formed against him, 317. Driven into exile, 317. His return, rebellion and execution, 317. His son, 271. 291. 318. 343.
- Argyle, Earl of (son of Earl Archibald); presents himself at the Convention in Edinburgh, 271. Appointed one of the Commissioners to carry the instrument of government of the Scotch Convention to London, 291. Returns to Scotland and claims his title and estates, 318. Empowered by William III. to raise an army on his domains for the service of the Crown, 318. Alarm of the adjacent chieftains, 318, 319. His difficulty in gathering his clan, 343.
- Argyleshire; possessions of the Maconalds in the, 315.
- Armada; the Spanish, 62.
- Arminianism; leaning of the High Church party towards, 94.
- Armstrong, Sir Thomas; his case examined by the House of Commons, 525. His flight and arrest at Leyden, 525. His daughter, 526. His execution, 527. Appearance of his daughter at the bar of the House to demand vengeance, 527.
- Army; its discontent on the accession of William and Mary, 4. Causes of this, 4. Its alarming conduct in various places, 5. Disaffection of its Scottish corps, 38, 39. The revolt suppressed, 42. The first Mutiny Bill, 42. No standing army under the Plantagenets and Stuarts, 43. Aversion of every party in the state to a standing army, 44. Its maladministration during the reigns of Charles II. and James II., 61. The army of James II. disbanded by order of Feversham, 268. Frauds of the English Commissariat under Shales, 424. Villany of that of the army under the command of Schomberg, 501. State of that of William III., 624.
- Army, Highland. See Highlanders.
- Army, Irish; its numerical force under Tyroonnel, 155. Low station of many of the officers, 155. Small pay of the soldiers, 155. The army of James II., 417, 418. The scandalous inefficiency of his foot soldiers, 581. Its condition at the battle of the Boyne, 623.
- Articles of the Church of England; the clergy relieved from the necessity of subscribing, 94.
- Articles; Lords of the, of the Scottish Parliament, 348.
- Ashton, John, 723. Arrested, 727.
- Assembly, General, of the Church of Scotland, 708. Letter from William to the, 708. Its answer, 709.
- Athanasian Creed; discussed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 473.
- Athol; Blair Castle at, 353. Troubles in, 351. Jacobite leaning of the men of, 352. Their ravages in Argyle, 352. Called to arms by two leaders, 353. They join the camp at Blair, 369.
- Athol, Marquess of; supported by the Jacobites at the Scottish Convention, 272. His abilities and dishonourable character, 272. Takes part with Dundee in his Jacobite transactions, 280. His tardiness and its results, 280. Refuses to vote on the resolution that James had forfeited his crown, 286. His power in the Highlands, 351. His faithless character, 351. Distrusted both by Jacobites and Williamites, 351. Steals away from Scotland and settles at Bath, 352.
- Atkyns, Sir Robert; appointed Chief Baron, 23. Chosen Speaker of the House of Lords, 497.
- Attainder, Act of; passed by the Irish Parliament of James II., 216. Reversal of attainders in the first Parliament of William and Mary, 382.
- Auverquerque; appointed Master of the Horse, 24. His courage, 25. Accompanies William to the siege of Limerick, 668.
- Avaux, the Count of; his character and abilities, 168. Chosen as ambassador to accompany James II. to Ireland, 169. His instructions, 169. Sworn of the Privy Council, 175. Supports the Irish party, which desires to be placed under the government of France, 181. His dislike of Melfort, 182. Accompanies the King to Ulster, 184. He begs the King to return to Dublin, 185. Leaves the King, and retraces his steps to Dublin, 187. Remonstrates with James to abstain from openly opposing the repeal of the Act of Settlement, 213. Persuades the King not to allow Irish Protestants to possess arms, 221. His character compared with that of Count Rosen, 231, 232. His atrocious advice to James, 415. His counsel rejected, 416. His opinion of the Irish troops, 417. His astonishment at the energy of the Irish on the news of the landing of the English, 419. His adjurations to James to prohibit marauding in the Irish infantry, 581. Recalled to France, 584. Sends a translation of Penn's letter to James to Lewis, 587.

- 'Austria; her alliance with England in the great coalition, 122.
- Aylesbury, Earl of; takes the Oath of Allegiance to William III., 33. His traitorous conduct, 586.
- Ayrshire; disturbances of the Covenanters in, 250. The Covenanters from, called to arms in Edinburgh, 282.
- Baker, Major Henry; calls the people of Londonderry to arms, 191. Appointed one of the governors of the city, 195. Dies of fever, 229.
- Balcarras, Colin Lindsay, Earl of; his station and character, 268. Meets James II. at Whitehall, 269. Greets William at St. James's, 269. His wife's relationship to William, 270. Returns to Scotland, 270. Prevails on the Duke of Gordon to hold the Castle of Edinburgh for King James, 271. 274. Applies to the Convention for assistance, 277. Arrested and imprisoned in the Tolbooth, 328. His perjury, 687. His mortification at finding his name not even mentioned in the letter of Mary of Modena to the Club, 696.
- Balfour's regiment, 355. Broken and its chief killed at Killiecrankie, 361.
- Ballenach, Stewart of; summons the clan Athol for King James, 353.
- Ballincarrig, Castle of; taken and destroyed by the Enniskilleners, 226.
- Bandon; muster of the Englishry at, 139. Reduced by Lieutenant General MacCarthy, 160, 161.
- Bantry Bay; naval skirmish between the English and French fleets in, 201.
- Baptismal service; the, discussed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 472, 473.
- Baptists; relieved by the Toleration Act, 83. Large numbers of, at the time of the Revolution, 96.
- Barillon; end of his political career, 167. His death, 168.
- Batavian federation; joins the great coalition, 122. Manifesto of, declaring war against France, 127.
- Bates, 88.
- Bavaria; Elector of, occupies Cologne, 437.
- Baxter, Richard, 88. Charitable sentiments expressed by him before taking the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, 89.
- Bayonet; improved by General Mackay, 371.
- Beachy Head; battle of, 608.
- Beatoun, Cardinal, 276.
- Beaufort, Henry Somerset, Duke of; takes the Oath of Allegiance to William III., 32. Entertains King William at Badminton, 677.
- Beaumont; commands his regiment at the battle of the Boyne, 624.
- Beccaria, 88.
- Belfast; its present condition compared with that at the time of the Revolution, 615, 616. Landing of William III. at, 616. Joy of the inhabitants at his arrival, 616. The castle of the Chichesters at, 616.
- Belhaven, Lord; commands a regiment at Killiecrankie, 355. His gallantry in the battle, 361.
- Belturbet; action between the Enniskilleners and Roman Catholics at, 227.
- Bentham, Jeremy, 85.
- Bentinck (afterwards Earl of Portland); appointed Groom of the Stole to William III., 24. See Portland.
- Berry, Lieutenant Colonel; sent to the assistance of the Enniskilleners, 242. Sent to raise the siege of the Castle of Crum, 242. Meets MacCarthy's troops at Newton Butler, 243.
- Berwick, Duke of; follows James II. to Ireland, 166. Obtains an advantage over the Enniskilleners, 241. Appointed Commander in Chief of the Irish army, 676.
- Beveridge; his Latin sermon before Convocation, 489.
- Billog; his arrest of the Jacobite conspirators in the Thames, 726.
- Birch, Colonel, 31. His suggestions for stopping the revolt of the soldiery, 40. His speech on the gallantry of the people of Londonderry, 225. Opposes the intemperate motion of Howe, 405.
- Bishops; scanty attendance of, at the coronation of William and Mary, 118. (See Nonjurors.)
- Bishops, Irish; bill brought into the Irish Parliament for deposing all of them, 214.
- Blackmore; his Prince Arthur referred to, 24. note. Reference to his Alfred, 312.
- Blackwell Hall, broadcloth of, 97.
- Blair Castle, 353. Occupied by Stewart of Ballenach, 354. Summoned by Lord Murray to surrender, 354. Besieged by Lord Murray, 354, 355. The siege raised, 357. Held by the Highlanders after the battle of Killiecrankie, 366. Surrenders to Mackay, 377.
- Boisseleau; obtains the command of the Irish garrison of Limerick, 668.
- Boom Hall, near Londonderry, 201.
- Borderers, the King's Own, 355. Commanded by Lord Leven at Killiecrankie, 355, 361.
- Boroughs, Irish; under the influence of the Roman Catholics, 131, 132.

- Boyne; beauties of the valley of the, 621. The ford at Oldbridge, 622. Battle of the, 629.
- Brandenburg; manifesto of, declaring war against France, 127.
- Breedlings; the, of the Fens, 41.
- Brest fleet; placed at the disposal of James II., 165. Sails for Ireland, and lands James at Kinsale, 169, 170.
- Brown, Tom; his remarks on the Presbyterian divines, 98. note.
- Browning, Micaiah (master of the Mountjoy); breaks the boom in the Foyle, 235. His death, 236.
- Buchan; appointed general in chief of the Jacobites in Scotland, 683. Surprised by Sir Thomas Livingstone, and his army routed, 684.
- Burnet, Bishop; his generosity to the Earl of Rochester, 93. Appointed to the vacant see of Salisbury, 75. Hated by the Anglican priesthood, 75. His conversation with the Queen respecting the duties of bishops, 78. His zeal in performing his duty, 78. His success in establishing Queen Anne's Bounty, 78. His speech in Parliament for the retention of the last clause of the Comprehension Act, 112. His endeavour to make the clergy an exception to the provisions of the bill for settling the oaths of fealty, 114. His coronation sermon, 118, 119. Extract from it, 254. note. His efforts to uphold prelacy in Scotland, 259. His desire to strike out the Athanasian Creed from the Liturgy altogether, 473. His share in the construction of the Bill of Rights, 498. His sermon at Bow Church on the fast day, 552. note. The King's interview with him previous to the expedition into Ireland, 600.
- Burt, Captain; his description of the Highlands at the time of the Revolution, 301, 302.
- Burton, John Hill; reference to his History of Scotland, 255. note.
- Butler, Captain; leads the forlorn hope at the assault on Londonderry, 199. Takes part in the blockade, 200.
- Cabal; the, the originators of parliamentary bribery, 545.
- Caermarthen, Marquess of; Lord Danby created, 121. Attacked by Howe in the House of Commons, 406. His influence in the Ministry, 516. Implores the King not to return to Holland, 530. Continues to be President under the new government, and in reality chief minister, 538. His ill health, 538. His employment of parliamentary bribery, 545. Appointed to be chief adviser to the Queen during William's stay in Ireland, 598. Animosity of the Whigs against him, 718. His mortification at the promotion of Sidney to the Secretaryship, 720. Obtains information of a Jacobite plot, 726. Sends his son to intercept the vessel containing the messengers of the conspirators, 726.
- Caillemot, Count de; appointed Colonel of a Huguenot regiment under Schomberg, 412. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 630. Mortally wounded, 632.
- Calendar, ecclesiastical; revised by the Ecclesiastical Commission, 473.
- Calvin, John; his observance of the festival of Christmas, 249.
- Calvinism; leaning of the Low Church party towards, 94.
- Calvinistic Church government. See Presbyterians.
- Calvinists of Scotland, 249. See Presbyterians.
- Cambon, M.; appointed to the command of one of the Huguenot regiments under Schomberg, 412.
- Cambridge; population of, at the time of the Revolution of 1688, 41.
- Cambridge University; its disgust at the proceedings of the Whigs respecting the Bill of Indemnity, 536. Its sympathy with their victims, 536.
- Cameron, Sir Ewan, of Lochiel; his surname of the Black, 319, 320. His personal appearance, his character, and singular talents, 320. His patronage of literature, 321. His homage to the house of Argyle, 321. Joins the Cavaliers, 321. Knighted by James II., 321. Singular compliment paid to him in the English Court, 322. His treatment of the Sheriff of Invernesshire, 322. His dread of the restoration of the house of Argyle, 322. The gathering of the insurrectionary clans at his house, 330. Opposes the proposition of Dundee to induce the clans to submit to one command, 339. Macdonald of Glengarry quarrels with him, 340, 341. Assembles his clan to assist Dundee in Athol, 355. His advice to hazard a battle at Killiecrankie, 357. Influence of his physical prowess, 359. Endeavours to per-uade Dundee not to risk his life in battle, 359. Charges at the head of his men in the thickest of the fight, 360. Proposes to give Mackay battle again, 372. Overruled, 373. Retires to Lochaber in ill humour, 373. Induces the clans to promise to reassemble, 683. Accidentally wounded, 684, 685.

- Camerons; their dread of the restoration of the power of the house of Argyle, 322. See Cameron, Sir Ewan.
- Cameronian regiment; raised by the Earl of Angus, 344. Its first Lieutenant Colonel, Cleland, 345. Its rigid Puritanism, 345. Its chaplain shields, 345. Ordered to be stationed at Dunkeld, 34. Attacked by the Highlanders, 375. Repulses them, 376.
- Campbells, the; jealousy of the Camerons of the ascendancy of the, 315. The ambition of Mac Callum More, 316. His influence, 316. The Marquess of Argyle in 1638, 316. The Campbells defeated at the battle of Inverlochry, 317. Earl Archibald of Argyle, 317. His son, 318. Insurrections of the clans hostile to the, 330. Disarmed and disorganized, 343.
- Cannon, General; commands the Irish foot at Killiecrankie, 355. His position in the field, 358. His command of the Highlanders after the death of Dundee, 370. His hesitations and blunders, 370. Increasing disorders in his camp, 372. Some of the Highland chiefs quit the camp, 373. Attacks the Camerons at Dunkeld and is repulsed, 377. His Highlanders leave for their homes, 377. He departs with his Irish troops to the Isle of Mull, 377. Becomes second in command to Buchan, 683. Escapes in his shirt from the surprise of Strathspey, 684.
- Canterbury, Archbishopric of; its former importance compared with that of York, 484.
- Capel, Sir Henry; appointed a Commissioner of the Treasury, 21. Signs the warrant for the arrest of Clarendon, 605.
- Carlingford; destruction of, 420.
- Carmichael, Lord; sent by William as Commissioner to the General Assembly, 708.
- Carstairs, the Reverend William; his abilities and character, 297. Confidence reposed in him by William III., 297. Named chaplain to their Majesties for Scotland, 298.
- Cartwright, Bishop of Chester, 74. Follows James II. to Ireland, 166. Sworn of the Privy Council, 175. His death, 221.
- Castle Drummond, 365.
- Castlemaine; impeached and sent to the Tower, 511.
- Catechism, the Longer and Shorter, of the Scottish Church, 690.
- Catinat; marches with a French army into Savoy, 710.
- Cavaliers; their torment and ruin of dissenting divines, 83. Their sanguinary proscriptions, 577.
- Cavan; migration of the Protestants of, to Enniskillen, 163. Victories of the Enniskilleners in, 226.
- Cavanagh; his Kerry men, 200.
- Cavendish, Lady; presented to William and Mary, 2. Her romance, 2. note. Her description of the Court on the evening of the proclamation, 2.
- Celtic clans of Scotland. See Highlanders.
- Cibber, Colley; his Nonjuror, 467.
- Cirencester; alarming conduct of the troops at, 5.
- Citters, Van; his long residence in England, 535.
- Civil List; the, of the seventeenth century, 556, 557, 558.
- Charlemont; arrival of James II. at, 184. Wretched condition of, 184.
- Charles Frederick, Duke of Wirtemberg; commands the Danish mercenaries at the battle of the Boyne, 625. 631, 632. Joins Marlborough at Cork, 678. His dispute with Marlborough, 678. The quarrel accommodated, 679.
- Charles I.; his judges and executioners excluded from the benefits of the Act of Grace of William III., 576.
- Charles II.; his indolence and fondness for pleasure, 13. His revenue, 35. His vivacity and good nature, 50. Maladministration during his reign, 61. His ignominious dependence on France, 62. Treatment of Scotland during his reign, 255. Proposes a commercial treaty between England and Scotland, 255. Offers to mediate between the Scottish Parliament and England, 256.
- Charles II., of Spain; joins the coalition against France, 122. Accused by Lewis of leaguering with heretics, 125. Answer of Charles, 126.
- Charleville; muster of the Englishry at, 139. Taken from the Protestants by the Roman Catholics, 160.
- Chateau Renaud, Admiral Count de; skirmishes with the English fleet in Bantry Bay, 201. Returns to Brest, 202.
- Chichester, family of; its castle at Belfast, 616.
- Chimney Tax. See Hearth Money.
- China, porcelain of; origin of the taste for, in England, 56.
- Christmas; festival of, reobserved by the Calvinists of Geneva, 249.
- Chrysostom; deprivation of, referred to, 102.
- Church of England; Arminianism and Calvinism in the, 94. "Rabbling" of the Episcopalian clergy in Scotland, 248, 249, 250. Form of notice served on

- them, 251. Wish of Low Churchmen to preserve Episcopacy in Scotland, 258. Opinions of William III. about Church government in Scotland, 259. Comparative strength of religious parties in Scotland, 261. Episcopacy abolished in Scotland, 287. An Ecclesiastical Commission issued, 470. Proceedings of the Commission, 471. See High Church; Low Church.
- Church of Scotland; a church established by law odious to Scotchmen, 247. Legislation respecting the, 688. The law fixing the ecclesiastical constitution of Scotland, 690. The Confession of Faith, and the Longer and Shorter Catechism, 690. The synodical polity reestablished, 691. The power given to the sixty deposed ministers, 691. Patronage abolished, 694. General acquiescence in the new ecclesiastical polity, 700. Meeting of the General Assembly, 708.
- Churchill, John, Baron (afterwards Duke of Marlborough); created Earl of Marlborough, 121. See Marlborough, Earl of.
- Churchmen; their determination not to submit to supercilious and uncharitable Puritans, 92.
- Claim of Right; the, of the Scottish Convention, 287. The clause abolishing episcopacy in Scotland inserted, 289.
- Clans, Celtic, of Scotland. See Highlanders.
- Clarges, Sir Thomas; his motion of a vote of thanks to the King, 569.
- Clarendon, Lord Chancellor; his impeachment, 13.
- Clarendon, Henry Hyde, Earl of; refuses to take the Oath of Allegiance to William III., 33. His disgraceful conduct, 586. Evidence of his being deeply concerned in the Jacobite schemes of insurrection, 599. Receives a warning from William, 599. Arrested and lodged in the Tower, 605. Released and joins a Jacobite conspiracy, 721.
- Cleland, William; his share in the insurrection at Bothwell Bridge, 276. His enmity to the Viscount Dundee, 276. His attainments and character, 276. Appointed Lieutenant Colonel of the Cameronian regiment, 345. Repulses the Highlanders at Dunkeld, 375. Shot dead in the streets, 376.
- Clelands, the, 276. note.
- Clergy; their refusal to join in the triumph of William and Mary, Causes of this, 4. Their zeal for the doctrine of nonresistance, 4. Deputation of the London, to welcome William III., 70. Relieved from the necessity of subscribing the Articles, 94. Their claims to consideration favourably regarded by the Whigs, 103, 104. Vehemently opposed by the Tories, 104, 105. Compelled by Act of Parliament to take the oaths of fealty to the King and Queen, 114. Their exertions in sustaining the spirit of the people of Londonderry, 195. The Irish Protestant clergy turned out of their livings, 209. An Act passed to enable the fugitive Irish clergy to hold preferment in England, 224. "Rabbling" the "curates" in Scotland, 249. 251. Divisions among the High Church party respecting the subject of the oaths, 440, 441. Arguments for and against taking the oaths, 441. 445. The "swearing clergy," 447. Their absurd theory of government, 447. A great majority of them take the oaths, 451. General character of the nonjuring clergy, 464. Their temperate Convocation, 476, 477. Ill affected towards the King, 477. Their exasperation against the Dissenters by the proceedings of the Scotch Presbyterians, 481. Constitution of Convocation, 483. The condition of the London and country clergymen compared, 493. Indulgence shown by the King to the nonjuring prelates, 534. The clergy of Scotland ordered to publish the proclamation, and pray for William and Mary, 287.
- Clifford; his discovery of parliamentary bribery, 545.
- Clifford, Mrs., the Jacobite agent, 592. 602, 603.
- Clonmel; abandoned by the Irish troops of James at the approach of William, 662.
- "Club," the; formed in Edinburgh, 298. Its members, 298. Its ascendancy in the Scottish Parliament, 348. Its introduction of a law aimed at the Dalrymples, 349. Its intrigues, 377, 378. Decline of its influence, 378. In a minority, 687. Becomes a laughing stock, 687. The coalition between the Club and the Jacobites dissolved, 695. The chiefs betray each other, 697.
- Clydesdale; "rabbling" of the clergy in, 250.
- Coalition, the great, against France; formation of, 122. The states forming the coalition, 122. Victor Amadeus joins it, 710.
- Coin, base; issue of, by James II. in Ireland, 216.
- Coldstreams; the, at the skirmish of Walcourt, 437.
- Coll of the Cows, 325.

- Collects, the, altered by Dean Patrick, 476.
- Collier, Jeremy, 459. Becomes a nonjuror, 459. His service to English literature, 459. His talents and character, 459, 460.
- Cologne; occupied by the Elector of Bavaria, 437.
- Commissariat, English; frauds of the, 424. Condition of that of the army of Schomberg, and of William III., 501. 624.
- Committee of Murder of the House of Lords, 511, 512.
- Common Prayer, Book of; sublimity of the diCTION of the, 475. Compared with the Latin Liturgies of the Roman Catholic Church, 475. Altered by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 476.
- Commons. See House of Commons.
- Comprehension; the question of, 80.
- Comprehension Bill; the, of Nottingham, 80. Its history, 89. Allowed to drop by general concurrence, 90. Review of its provisions, 90, 91. Dread and aversion of the Dissenters for, 95. Division amongst the Whigs respecting the Comprehension Bill, 99. Debate in the House of Lords respecting its last clause, 110. The amendment lost, 112. Sent down to the Commons, 112. Proposal to refer it to Convocation, 112, 113. The plan of, 468. Causes which conspired to inflame the parochial clergy against Comprehension, 481—483.
- Compton, Henry, Bishop of London; heads a deputation to welcome William III., 70. Supports Nottingham's Toleration and Comprehension Bills, 91. His letter to Archbishop Sancroft respecting these bills, 91. note. Occupies the place of the primate at the coronation of William and Mary, 118. His discontent at the news of Tillotson's prospect of the primacy, 487. Presides at the meeting of Convocation, 489.
- Confession of Faith of the Scottish Church, 690. Required to be signed by every office bearer in every University of Scotland, 694.
- Confiscations of the property of the Protestants in Ireland, 206.
- Coningsby, Thomas; appointed Paymaster General of William's army in Ireland, 618, 627.
- Constable, Lord High, office of the, 118.
- Conventicle Act; its provisions, 82. Its harshness relaxed by the Toleration Act, 82.
- Convention, the. See House of Commons.
- Convention, Scottish; summoned by William III., 248. Elections for the, 248. Letter from William III. to, 262, 267.
- Meeting of the, 271. Election of the Duke of Hamilton as president, 273. Character of Scottish statesmen of that period, 273. Appointment of a Committee of Elections, 274. The Convention summons the Castle of Edinburgh to surrender, 274. Receives a letter from King James, 277. Reads the letter from William III. and that from King James, 278. Passes a vote binding itself to continue sitting notwithstanding any mandate in James's letter to the contrary, 278. Contents of James's letter, 279. Agitation and close of the sitting, 279. Flight of Viscount Dundee, 280. Tumultuous sitting of the Convention, 281. Returns a letter of thanks to King William, 282. A Committee appointed to frame a plan of government, 283. Andrew Mackay appointed general of the forces of the Convention, 284. Resolutions proposed by the Committee, declaring that King James had forfeited his crown, 286. William and Mary proclaimed, 287. The Claim of Right, 287—291. The Coronation Oath revised, 291. Discontent of the Covenanters at the manner in which the Convention had decided the question of ecclesiastical polity, 293. Reassembling of the Convention, 347. Act turning the Convention into a Parliament, 347. Act recognising William and Mary as King and Queen, 347. Ascendency of the "Club," 348. The Act of Incapacitation carried, 350. Conflict between the Convention and the Lord High Commissioner Hamilton, 350, 351. The Parliament adjourned, 365.
- Convocation; address of Parliament to William III. to summon, 113. Appointed to meet, 469. 476. The clergy ill affected towards King William, 477. Constitution of the Convocation, 483. The Convocations of Canterbury and York, 483. The two Houses, 484. Election of members, 485. The Convocation meets, 488. Beveridge's Latin sermon, 489. The High Church party a majority in the Lower House, 489. The King's warrant and message, 491. Difference between the two Houses, 491. Presents an address to the King, 492. The Lower House proves unmanageable, 492. Prorogued, 494.
- Conyngnam, Sir Albert; his share in the battle of the Boyne, 626. His seat near the Boyne, 621. 626.
- Cork; its present state compared with its condition at the time of the Revolution,

178. Visit of James II. to, 171, 172. Besieged by Marlborough, 679. The Old Fort, 679. The Cathedral, 679. The Mall, 679. Grafton Street, 680. Capitulation of the garrison, 680.
- Cornish, Henry; his attainder reversed, 382.
- Coronation of William and Mary, 118. The coronation medal, 120.
- Coronation. Oath; discussion on the bill for settling, 115. Revisal of the, by the Convention of Scotland, 291.
- Corporation Act; bill for repealing the, 109. The debate adjourned and not revived, 110.
- Corporation Bill; introduced into the Commons, 517. Sacheverell's clause, 517. Sir Robert Howard's motion, 518. Tumultuous debate on the bill, 522. The odious clauses lost, 522.
- Corruption, parliamentary; rise and progress of, in England, 541.
- Corryarrick, 325. 329.
- Cosmas Atticus; deprivation of, referred to, 102.
- Cotton, Sir Robert; his opinion on the Coronation Oath Bill, 117. note.
- Council, Privy; the first, of William III. sworn in, 15.
- Covenanters; disgust of rigid, at the reverence paid to the holidays of the Church, 249. The Church clergymen "rabbl'd" by the Covenanters, 249, 250. Fears of the elder Covenanters respecting the proceedings of their riotous brethren, 251. Their outrages in Glasgow, 252. Their inflexible pertinacity of principle, 273. They threaten the life of Viscount Dundee, 275. 277. Their singularly savage and implacable temper, 275. The Covenanters from Ayrshire and Lanarkshire called to arms in Edinburgh, 282. Their discontent at the manner in which the Convention had decided the question of ecclesiastical polity, 293. Their scruples about taking up arms for King William, 343. Their deadly hatred of Dundee, 343. Their sufferings at his hands, 344. Determination of the majority not to take up arms, 344.
- Coventry; Commissioner of the Treasury, 13.
- Crane; bears a letter from James to the Scottish Convention, 277. Admitted to the sitting, 278.
- Crawford, Earl of; appointed President of the Scottish Parliament, 295. His rigid Presbyterianism, 295. His character, 296. His poverty, 296.
- Creaghts, or Rapparees, of Ulster, 673.
- Cromwell, Oliver; his position in the government compared with that of a Prime Minister, 13. His wisdom and liberality respecting the freedom of trade with Scotland, 254.
- Crone (a Jacobite messenger from St. Germain's); sets out with despatches from England, 591. Betrayed by his companion, Fuller, 591. Arrested, and brought to Whitehall, 592. Brought to trial, 593. 601. Found guilty, 602. Visited by Secretary Nottingham in Newgate, 603. Respited for a week, 603. Brought before the Privy Council, to whom he furnishes important information, 608.
- Cross, Godfrey; executed as a traitor, 720, 721.
- Crosses, fiery, in Scotland, 330.
- Crum, Castle of; besieged by Viscount Mountcashel, 242.
- Cumberland, Dukedom of; given to Prince George of Denmark, 120.
- Cunningham, Colonel; arrives at Londonderry with reinforcements for the garrison, 189. Treacherously dissuaded by the governor, Lundy, from landing, 190. Sent to the Gate House, 225.
- Cutts, John; commands a regiment at the battle of the Boyne, 624.
- D'Alembert, 85.
- Dalkeith, Earl of, son of the Duke of Monmouth; his marriage to the Lady Henrietta Hyde, 118. note.
- Dalrymple, family of; its talents, misfortunes and misdeeds, 263, 264.
- Dalrymple, Sir James, of Stair; chief adviser of William III. on Scotch matters, 263. Tales told of him, 264. His high attainments and station, 264. Sketch of his career, 264. His letter respecting the abolition of episcopacy in Scotland, 289. Appointed President of the Court of Session, 296. Jealousy of the Club at his prosperity and power, 349. Takes his place as President of the Court of Session, 378.
- Dalrymple, Sir John; his services rewarded by a remission of the forfeiture of his father's estates, 265. His talents and character, 266. Frames the resolution of the Scottish Convention declaring the throne vacant, 286. Appointed a Commissioner to carry the instrument of government of the Scotch Convention to London, 291. Appointed Lord Advocate, 296. The law aimed by the Club at his father and him, 349. His answer to the asperity of Montgomery, 688.

- Daly; one of the judges of the Irish Common Pleas, 130. Offends the Irish House of Commons, 207.
- Danby, Thomas, Earl of; his impeachment, 16. Accepts the Presidency of the Council under William III., 16. Public feeling regarding him, 16. His inveterate enmity to Halifax, 63. He withdraws from Court, 63. Created Marquess of Caermarthen, 121. See Caermarthen, Marquess of.
- Danish mercenaries at the battle of the Boyne, 625. Dreaded by the Irish, 625, 631, 632.
- Dartmouth, George Legge, Earl of; takes the Oath of Allegiance to William III., 33. His traitorous conduct, 586. Joins the Jacobite conspiracy, 721.
- Delamere, Henry Booth, Lord, 5. Appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer, 20. His character, 65. His jealousy of Mordaunt, 65. Resigns the Chancellorship of the Exchequer, 539. Created Earl of Warriington, 539. His bitter complaints, 533.
- Dennis, Saint, battle of; reference to, 25.
- De Ruyter, Admiral, 61.
- Derry. See Londonderry.
- Derry, Walker, Bishop of. See Walker.
- Devonshire; rising in, to repel the threatened invasion of the French, 651, 652.
- Devonshire, William Cavendish, Earl of; appointed to the High Stewardship, 23. His attachment to the liberties of England, 23. Absents himself from Parliament during the discussion on the Sacramental Test, 110. Created a Knight of the Garter, 120. Case of, examined by the House of Lords, 384. The sentence of the King's Bench reversed, 384.
- Diarmid; the children of, 316, 318.
- Directory, the, of the Scottish Church, 630.
- Dispensing power, the, 500.
- Dissenters; the first legal indulgence granted to, 69. Their gratitude for it, 72. Leniency with which they were regarded by Low Churchmen, 73. Peculiar grievances of their clergy, 82. The Act of Uniformity, 82. The Five Mile Act, 82. The Conventicle Act, 82. Their dread and aversion of Comprehension, 95. Influence of the dissenting minister over his flock, 97. Value of his position, in a worldly view, compared with that of a chaplain of the Church of England, 98. Attempt to relieve the Dissenters, 99.
- Division lists; first printed and circulated, 535.
- Downell, Professor Henry; his absurd at-
- tempts to distinguish between the deprivations of 1559 and those of 1689, 103. Included in the Act of Attainder of the Irish Parliament, 218. Becomes a non-juror, 461. His erudition, 461. His singular works, 461.
- Dohna, Christophe Count de; his "Mémoires Originaux sur le Règne et la Cour de Frédéric I., Roi de Prusse," quoted, 53. note.
- Donegal; the Roman Catholics defeated at, 226.
- Donore, 621. James takes his position at, 622.
- Dorset, Charles Sackville, Earl of; appointed Lord Chamberlain to William III., 23. His generosity to Dryden, 23, 24.
- Douglas; great meeting of the Covenanters in the parish church of, 344.
- Douglas, Andrew; Master of the Phoenix, assists in relieving Londonderry, 235.
- Douglas, James; commands the Scotch Guards at the battle of the Boyne, 624, 629.
- Dover, Henry Jermyn, Lord; accompanies James II. to Ireland, 166. Receives William's promise of pardon, 713.
- Drogheda, port of, 621. Its condition at present and at the time of the Revolution, 621, 622. Held by James II., 622. Surrenders to the English without a blow, 638.
- Dromore; the Protestants make a stand at, 163.
- Drowes river; Irish forces encamped on the, 241.
- Dryden, John; deposed from the Laureateship, 23, 24. Treated with generosity by the Lord Chamberlain Dorset, 24. His piteous complaints, 24. Contempt of the honest Jacobites for his whinnings, 24. His conversation with Charles II. about poetry, 50. The origin of Dryden's medal, 50. note. His dedication to the play of Arthur, 655.
- Dublin; Tyrconnel's motto on the Castle flag, 154. Entry of James II. into, 173. Its condition at the time of the Revolution, 173. Its present graceful and stately appearance, 174. Wretched state of Dublin Castle, 174. The new buildings of Tyrconnel, 174. A proclamation issued convoking a Parliament, 175. Factions at the Castle, 177. Alarm of, at the news from the North, 245. The French soldiers billeted on Protestants in, 585. Fearful agitation in, on the news of the landing of William, 617. The Protestants forbidden to leave their homes after nightfall, 617.

- The gaols and public buildings crammed with prisoners, 617. Reports in the city respecting the battle of the Boyne, 638. The evil tidings reach the city, 639. Arrival of James and the remnant of the defeated army, 639. Evacuated by the French and Irish troops, 641. A provisional government formed to welcome King William, 642. William's entry into the city, 643.
- Dublin University; fellows and scholars ejected from, and allowed as a favour to depart in safety, 221, 222.
- Duinhe Wassel; Highland title of, 305.
- Duleek, pass of; occupied by the Irish, 630, 637. And by the army of William, 638.
- Dumont's Corps Universel Diplomatique, 127. note.
- Duncannon, fort of; taken by William III., 662.
- Dunciad, the, 370, 389.
- Dundalk; Schomberg's entrenchments near, 425.
- Dundee, John Graham, Viscount; his command of the Scottish troops stationed near Watford to oppose the Dutch, 268. His courage and military skill, 268. His troops disbanded, 268. His reception by James II. at Whitehall, 269. Greets William at St. James's, 269. Absurd story about William III. and Dundee, 269. note. He returns to Scotland under an escort of cavalry, 270. Prevails on the Duke of Gordon to hold the Castle of Edinburgh for King James, 271, 274. His life threatened by the Covenanters, 275. His enemy, William Cleland, 276. Applies to the Convention for assistance, 277. His flight from Edinburgh, 280. His fear of assassination, 280. Succeeds in raising the clans hostile to the Campbells, 330. Surprises Perth, and makes some Whig gentlemen prisoners, 330. His difficulties with the Highlanders, 334. Causes of those difficulties, 334—338. Calls a Council of War to endeavour to induce the clans to submit to one command, 339. Supported by the Lords and Dunfermline and Dunkeld, 339. Retires to his country seat in Scotland, 336. Letter from James to him intercepted, 327. Ordered to be arrested, 328. Escapes to the camp of Macdonald of Keppoch, 328. His proposal for placing the clans under one command rejected in council, 339. Applies to King James for assistance, 342. The assistance promised, 342. The war suspended, 342. Deadly hatred of the Covenanters for Dundee, 343. Summons the clans for an expedition to Athol, 355. Sets forth for Athol, 355. Joined by Cannon with the Irish foot, 355. Arrives at Blair Castle, 357. Defeats the King's troops at Killiecrankie, 360, 361. Mortally wounded, 362. Effect of his death, 366. His burial place, 367.
- Dunfermline, James Seton, Earl of; supports Dundee, 339.
- Dunkeld; attack of the Highlanders on the Cameronian regiment at, 375.
- Dunkeld, James Galloway, Lord; supports Dundee, 339.
- Dunlop, the Presbyterian minister, 697.
- Duras, Marshal; his devastation of the Palatinate, 123.
- Durfey, Tom, 50.
- Dutch; their joy and festivities on the accession of William III., 2. Favours bestowed on those who stood highest in the King's esteem, 24. The Dutch army in England suppresses the revolt of the soldiers at Ipswich, 41, 42. Preference of William III. for his Dutch favourites, 59. Their fidelity to him, 59. Dutch soldiers at the coronation of William and Mary, 119. Unfavourable opinion entertained of them by the Presbyterians, 292. note. Their murmurings at William's partiality for England, 435. Ill treated by Torrington at the battle of Beachy Head, 607. Their bravery, 608. The Dutch Blues at the battle of the Boyne, 625, 627, 630, 631, 632.
- Easter Monday; sitting of Parliament on, 113.
- Ecclesiastical polity; views of William III. respecting, 74. Opinions of the Earl of Nottingham concerning, 79.
- Ecclesiastical Commission; one issued, 470. Their proceedings, 471.
- Edinburgh; state of, at the time of the Revolution, 252. The Castle held by the Duke of Gordon for James II., 252. The College of Justice disarm themselves on William's proclamation being issued, 252. Arrival of Covenanters from the West, 253. The Bishop of Edinburgh officiates at the Scottish Convention, 271. The Castle summoned by the Convention to surrender, 274. Refusal of Gordon to submit to the summons, 274, 275. The Earl of Leven calls the people to arms, 282. Gordon urged by the Jacobites to fire on the city, 283. He refuses, 283. William and Mary proclaimed in Edinburgh, 287. Formation of the "Club," 298. The Tolbooth, 318, 328. Surrender of the Castle to King William's troops, 346. The session of Parliament at Edinburgh, 347. Panic in Edinburgh at the news of the battle of Killiecrankie, 365. Sittings of the Courts of Justice recommenced, 378.

- Eland, Lord; his defence of his father Halifax in the Commons, 410.
- Elections, Committee of; appointed by the Scottish Convention, 274.
- Elizabeth, Queen; the schism of her reign, 95. Her ejection of the bishops, 102.
- Elliot, the Jacobite, 723. Arrested, 727.
- Ely, Bishop of; joins the Jacobite conspiracy, 721.
- Ely Cathedral, 41.
- Emigration of the English from Ireland, 135.
- England; the Toleration Act a specimen of the peculiar virtues and vices of English legislation, 84. The practical element always prevails in the English legislature, 85. Declares war against France, 128. Discontent in England at the news of the arrival of James in Ireland, 175. Effect produced in England at the news of the persecutions in Ireland, 223. Question of a Union between England and Scotland raised, 253. Hatred of the English for the Highlanders in 1745, 310. A strange reflux of public feeling in their favour, 310. Concludes a treaty with the States General, 496. A general fast proclaimed, 552. Alarming symptoms of a Jacobite outbreak in the north of England, 589. Danger of invasion and insurrection, 603. Tourville's fleet in the Channel, 603. France successful on land and at sea, 609. Alarm of England, 610. Spirit of the nation, 610. Antipathy of the English to the French, 611. 655. Attempts of Tourville to make a descent on England, 649. The country in arms, 652, 653.
- Enniskillen; one of the principal strongholds of the Englishry at the time of the Revolution, 139. Its situation and extent at that period, 140. Its boasted Protestantism, 140. Its determination to resist Tyrconnel's two regiments being quartered on them, 140. Its arrangements for defence, 141. Gustavus Hamilton appointed governor by his townsmen, 141. Sends a deputation to the Earl of Mountjoy, 147. Operations of the Irish troops against the Enniskillers, 241. Receives assistance from Kirke, 242. Colonel Wolsley and Lieutenant Colonel Berry, 242. Defeat of the Irish at Newton Butler, 243. Actions of the Enniskillers, 226, 227. Bravery of the Enniskillen dragoons, 626. Their part in the battle of the Boyne, 633.
- Episcopacy abolished in Scotland, 287.
- Episcopalians of Scotland; their complaints, 701. Their contempt for the extreme Presbyterians, 702. See Clergy, Scottish; Presbyterians.
- Equity; gradually shaping itself into a refined science, 22.
- Erne, Lough, 140, 141
- Error, writs of, 385.
- Esser, Arthur Capel, Earl of; Committee of the House of Lords to examine into the circumstances of his death, 379.
- Estates of the Realm; their annual grant respecting the government of the soldiery, 47.
- Eucharist; the question of the posture at the, discussed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 472.
- Euler, 85.
- Eustace; his Kildare men, 200.
- Exchequer, Court of, in Ireland; Stephen Rice appointed Chief Baron of the, 180. Abuses of, under Rice, 131.
- Exchequer Chamber; coronation feast in the, 118.
- Exclusion Bill; reference to the, 105.
- Evertsen, Admiral of the Dutch auxiliary fleet; joins Torrington at St. Helens, 604. His bravery at the battle of Beachy Head, 608. Takes the part of prosecutor at the trial of Torrington, 717.
- Farquharsons, the; their arrival at the camp at Blair, 369.
- Fast, public; proclaimed by William III., 552.
- Fens; state of the, at the period of the Revolution, 41. Their population, 41.
- Ferguson, Robert; appointed to a sinecure in the Excise, 26. His seditious character, 554. His services rewarded by government, 554. Eagerly welcomed by the Jacobites, 555. Becomes agent between James and Montgomery, 682.
- Feversham, George Viscount; orders the disbanding of the royal army, 268.
- Finch, Sir Heneage; his opinion on the Coronation Oath Bill, 117. note. His attempt to defend his conduct as counsel against Russell, 381. Refusal of the House to hear him, 382.
- Fitton, Alexander, Lord Chancellor of Ireland; his character, 129. His mode of dispensing justice, 130.
- Fitzwilliam, John, canon of Windsor; becomes a nonjuror, 463. His intimacy with Lord Russell, 463.

- Five Mile, Act; a grievance to the dissenting clergy, 82.
- Fleet, the English; naval skirmish between the English and French fleets, 201. Battle of Beachy Head, 608.
- Fletcher, Andrew, of Saltoun; extract from his work, 254. note. His erroneous political opinions, 299. Joins the Club, 299.
- Fleurus, battle of, 609. The news carried to William in Ireland, 661.
- Foreign affairs; direction of, reserved to himself by William III., 14. Sir William Temple, 14. Ably managed by William, 67.
- Port William at Inverness built, 685.
- Fowler, Edward; appointed one of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 470.
- Foyle river; flocks of wild swans on the, 142. Bridge over the, 144. Lord Galmoy's encampment on the, 200.
- Frampton, Bishop of Gloucester; becomes a nonjuror, 453.
- France; European coalition against her ascendancy, 15. Declares war against the States General, 38. Her military greatness at the close of the 17th century, 43. A formidable enemy at the accession of William III., 62. Formation of the great coalition against, 122. 436. War declared against, 127. Assistance afforded by her to James II., 165. Choice of a French ambassador to accompany James, 167. Naval skirmish between the English and French fleets, 201. War raging all round her, 436. Battle of Beachy Head, 608. Effect produced in France by the news of the battle of the Boyne, 643.
- Frankenthal, plains of; devastated by Marshal Duras, 123.
- Frazers, the, 329. Their arrival at the camp at Blair, 369.
- "French are coming," the cry, 611.
- French, the; their mean opinion of the Irish as soldiers, 665. The French army of Lewis XIV. commanded by Marshal Humieres, 437. Its skirmish with the Dutch and English at Walcourt, 437.
- Friday, Black, 103.
- Fuller, William (Jacobite messenger); his early life, 590. Sent from St. Germain's with Jacobite despatches to England, 591. Betrays the cause of the Jacobites, 591.
- Fyne, Loch, 318
- Gaels. See Highlanders.
- Galley slaves, 649, 650. 654. An incident related of one, 654.
- Galleys, the French, 649. Character of their crews, 649, 650. 654.
- Galmoy, Lord; his part in the siege of Londonderry, 200.
- Gardening; a favourite amusement of William III., 55. The gardens of Hampton Court, 56.
- Garry, the river, 353. 357.
- Garter, the, given by James II. to Lauzun, 165.
- George II.; nicknamed the Butcher, 310.
- George IV.; his court at Holyrood, 312.
- George, Prince of Denmark; created Duke of Cumberland, 120. Offers to accompany William to Ireland, 600. Unpolitely treated by William, 601.
- George, Prince of Hesse Darmstadt; his share in the battle of the Boyne, 625. 627.
- Germanic federation; joins the great coalition, 122. Manifesto of, declaring war against France, 127.
- Germany, Emperor of; concludes a treaty with the States General, 436.
- Gibbons, Grinling; his carvings at Hampton Court, 56.
- Ginkell, General; sent to suppress the revolt of the Scotch regiments at Ipswich, 41, 42. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 625. Accompanies the King to the siege of Limerick, 668.
- Glasgow; the cathedral attacked by the Covenanters, 252. Extent of the town, 256. Archbishop of, 284. 286.
- Glengariff, pass of, 138.
- Glengarry. See Macdonald of Glengarry.
- Glengarry; its state at the time of the Revolution compared with its present condition, 330.
- Glenroy, Lake of, 325.
- Gloucester, William, Duke of (son of the Princess Anne); his birth and baptism, 395.
- Godolphin, Sidney, Lord; nominated Commissioner of the Treasury, 21. His usefulness, 21. Hated by his colleagues, 65. His superiority over them in financial knowledge, 65. His retirement from the Treasury, 549. Returns, and is made First Commissioner, 719.
- Goldsmith, Oliver; his dislike for the Highland scenery of Scotland at the time of the Revolution, 302.
- Gordon, Duke of; prevailed on by Dundee and Balcarras to hold the Castle of Edinburgh for King James, 271. 274. His communication with Dundee, 281. Requested by the Jacobites to fire on the city, 283. His refusal, 283. Besieged in the Castle of Edinburgh, 346. Polite and facetious messages between the besiegers and the - besieged, 346. Surrenders the Castle to William's troops, 347.

- Gormanstown, Lord; his part in the siege of Londonderry, 200.
- Government; the Whig theory of, 11. The first, of William III., 15. General maladministration from the Restoration to the Revolution, 60. Absurd theory of, as taught by the clergy of the time of the Revolution, 447.
- Grace, Act of; the, of William III. for political offences, 575. Distinctions between an Act of Grace and an Act of Indemnity, 575. The Act passed, 576. 579.
- Grafton, Henry Fitzroy, Duke of; rumours of his determination to join his uncle at Saint Germain's, 32. Takes the Oath of Allegiance to William and Mary, 32. Carries the King's crown at the coronation, 118. Has the colonelcy of the First Regiment of Foot Guards conferred on him by William, 678. Accompanies Marlborough on his expedition to the south of Ireland, 678. Struck down at the assault on Cork, 679.
- Graemeis, The, the lost epic Latin poem of Phillippa, 331, note.
- Grenard, Lord; one of the Peers of James's Irish Parliament; enters his protest against the repeal of the Act of Settlement, 213.
- Grants, the, 329. Join Mackay, 334. Their territory invaded by the Camerons, 340. Join Sir Thomas Livingstone against the Highlanders, 684.
- Gustavus, King of Sweden, 49.
- Gwyn, member of the House of Commons, 110, note.
- Habeas Corpus Act; suspension of the, 47. Sarcasm and invective caused by the measure, 48.
- Hales, Sir Edward; his impeachment for high treason, 511. Committed to the Tower, 511.
- Halifax, George Savile, Marquess of; his part in the proclamation of William and Mary, 1. His remark on the reactionary feeling of the people, 10. Takes charge of the Privy Seal, 17. Public feeling regarding him, 17. Declines the offer of the Great Seal, 21. His alarm at the revolt of the soldiers at Ipswich, 39. His antipathy to Danby, 63. Load of public business imposed on him, 64. His distractions, caused by the jealousies and quarrels of his subordinates, 64, 65. Not in the list of promotions at the coronation, 121. His cautious policy, 121. Calumnious accusation brought against him, 148. Attacked by Howe in the House of Commons, and by Monmouth in the Lords, 407, 408. His letter to Lady Russell, 409. Absolved by a majority of the Commons, 410. Retires from the Speakership of the House of Lords, 496. Examined by the Murder Committee of the House of Lords, 512. Defended by Seymour in the Lower House against the attacks of John Hampden, 515. Abatement of the animosity of the House against him, 516. His resignation of the Privy Seal, 537. His retirement from public business artfully alluded to by Dryden in the dedication to Arthur, 655.
- Hamilton, Duke of; supported by the Whigs in the Scottish Convention, 272. His character, 272. Elected president of the Convention, 273. His fierce address to the members of the Convention, 281. Declared Lord High Commissioner of Scotland, 295. His discontent, 348. His refusal to pass the Acts of the Convention, 350. His false, greedy character, 686. Saying of King William respecting him, 686. His indignation at the passing of the clause of the bill for fixing the ecclesiastical constitution of Scotland, which sanctioned the acts of the Western fanatics, 692.
- Hamilton, Anthony; severely wounded at the battle of Newton Butler, 243.
- Hamilton, Gustavus; appointed governor of Enniskillen, 141.
- Hamilton, Richard; his foreign military service, 151. His distinguished wit, 151. Sworn of the Irish Privy Council, 151. Sent to negotiate with Tyrconnel, 152. His perfidy, 152, 154. His march into Ulster with an army, 162. Terror of his name, 163. Marches against the Protestants of the North, 171. Rosen and Maumont placed over his head, 187. Appointed second in command at the siege of Londonderry, 197. Takes the chief command at the death of Maumont, 198. Superseded in the chief command by Count Rosen, 229. Rosen recalled, and Hamilton again assumes the chief command, 232. His tricks and lies to discourage the besieged, 232. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 630, 631, 632. Wounded, taken prisoner, and brought before William, 634.
- Hamilton, the Rev. Andrew, of Enniskillen, 141, note.
- Hampden, John; presides at a committee to present an address to William III. on the barbarities of Lewis of France, 127.

- His power and prosperity, 519. His malevolence, 513. His disgraceful appearance before the Murder Committee of the House of Lords, 514. His bitter speech in a committee of the whole House of Commons, 514. Excluded from the new House of Commons at the general election of 1690, 536.
- Hampden, Richard; appointed a Commissioner of the Treasury, 21. His objections to Aaron Smith as Solicitor to the Treasury, 26. Appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer, 549.
- Hampton Court; removal of the Court to, 54. The palace of Cardinal Wolsey, 55. The gardens and buildings of William III., 56.
- Harbord, William, member for Launceston; informs the House of the revolt of the Scotch troops, 40.
- Harlots; the brokers of the Court of Charles II., 61.
- Hastings's regiment, 355. Its unbroken order at Killiecrankie, 361. 364. At the battle of the Boyne, 624.
- "Hear, hear," origin of, in Parliament, 30.
- Hearth money, or chimney tax; its unfairness, 36. Abolished at the request of William III., 37.
- Hebrides; possessions of the Macdonalds in the, 315.
- Heidelberg; destroyed by the French under Marshal Duras, 124.
- Heinsius, Anthony, Pensionary of Holland, 67. Causes of the aversion with which he regarded France, 68. His correspondence with William III., 68. His importance after the death of William, 69.
- Henderson, Major; takes the command of the Cameronians after the death of Colonel Cleland, 376. Mortally wounded, 376.
- Herbert, Arthur, Rear Admiral of England; appointed first Commissioner of the Admiralty, 20. His services to his country, 20. Skirmishes with the French fleet in Bantry Bay, 201. Vote of thanks to Herbert passed, 202. Created Earl of Torrington, 493. See Torrington.
- Hewson; the Scotch fanatic of Londonderry, 196.
- Hickes, George, Dean of Worcester; becomes a nonjuror, 458. His learning, 458. His views of passive obedience, 458. His brother John, 458. His bigotry, 459.
- Hickes, John, 458.
- High Church party; the, of the reign of William III., 69. Origin of the term, 69. Tenderness of their regard for James II., 71. Their distaste for the Articles, 94. Their leaning towards Arminianism, 94. Their numerical strength in the House of Commons, 113. The High Church clergy divided on the subject of the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, 440, 441. They constitute a majority of the Lower House of Convocation, 489. Their refusal to deliberate on any plan of comprehension, 492.
- High Commission Court, 10. Its decrees every where acknowledged to be nullities, 382.
- Highlands; breaking out of war in the, 300. Their state at that period, 300, 301. Captain Burt's descriptions of them, 301, 302. Oliver Goldsmith's opinion of them, 302. Hardships endured by travellers in, 305, 306. The politics of the Highlands not understood by the government, 332. Viscount Tarbet, 332. Smallness of the sum required to settle the discontented, 332. Poverty of the Celtic chiefs, 332. Mackay's indecisive campaign in the Highlands, 333. The war suspended, 342. The Cameronian regiment raised, 344. The war breaks out again, 354. Shut out by a chain of posts from the Lowlands, 377. The war recommenced, 683. Buchan surprised, and the war extinguished, 684.
- Highlanders; their characteristics at the time of the Revolution, 304. Their religion at that period, 305. Their dwellings, 306. Their virtues, 306. Lofty courtesy of their chiefs, 308. Value of their faculties if developed by civilisation, 308. Contempt of the Lowlanders for them, 309. The poem "How the first Hielandman was made," 309. Their complete subjugation in 1745, 310. Hatred of the populace of London for the very sight of the tartan, 310. Strange reflux of feeling in England in favour of the Highlanders, 310. Applause given to Celtic manners, customs, and literature, 312. Peculiar nature of Jacobitism in the Highlands, 313. Tyranny of clan over clan, 315. Jealousy of the ascendancy of the Campbells, 315. The battle of Inverlochy, 317. The Marquess of Argyle, 317. Execution of his son Earl Archibald, 317. His grandson, 318. The Stewarts and Macagnhtens, 318. Alarm of the chieftains at the restoration of the power of Argyle, 318, et seq. The Macleans, the Camerons, and Lochiel, 319. Insurrection of the clans hostile to the Campbells, 330. The gathering at Lochaber, 330. Military

- character of the Highlanders, 334. et seq. Want of harmony amongst the clans when under one command, 337, 338. Quarrels amongst them, 340. Their conduct at the battle of Killiecrankie, 360, 361. Retire to the Castle of Blair, 366. Arrival of reinforcements at the camp at Blair, 369. General Cannon's difficulties, 370. Their attack on the Cameronian regiment at Dunkeld repulsed, 369, 370. Dissolution of the Highland army, 377. Surprised and routed at Strathspey, 684.
- Highwaymen, in the time of William III., 58.
- Hill, Colonel; left in command of Fort William at Inverness, 685.
- Hodges, Colonel Robert; his gallantry at the skirmish of Walcourt, 437, 438.
- Holidays of the Church, ancient; held in disgust by rigid Covenanters, 249.
- Holland; rejoicings in, on the accession of William III., 2. Expenses of her expedition under William III. repaid to her, 37. War declared against her by France, 38. The English contingent, under the Count Schomberg, 38. Natural resentment of, at the conduct of Torrington towards the Dutch fleet at Beachy Head, 614. A special ambassador sent to assuage her anger, 614.
- Holland House; becomes the temporary residence of William and Mary, 58.
- Holt, Sir John; appointed Chief Justice of the King's Bench, 23. His opinion respecting the revenue of James II., 84.
- Holyrood Palace, 312.
- Hondekoeter, the painter, 56.
- Hopkins, Ezekiel, Bishop of Londonderry, 144. Preaches the doctrine of nonresistance, 144, 145. Withdraws from the city, 195.
- Hounslow, the troops at; reviewed by Queen Mary, 653.
- House of Commons; the Convention turned into a Parliament, 27. The Convention of 1660 compared with that of 1689, 29. Discussion on the bill declaring the Convention a Parliament, 29. Passes the bill, 31. The Oath of Allegiance, 31, 32. Power of the House over the supplies, 35. Discussion respecting hearth money, 36. Passes a grant for repaying the United Provinces the expenses of William's expedition, 37. Alarm respecting the defection of the Scottish regiments at Ipswich, 39. Passes the first Mutiny Bill, 45. Suspends the Habeas Corpus Act, 48. Views of the House respecting the Sacramental Test, 109. Gives leave to bring in a bill for repealing the Corporation Act, 109. The debate adjourned and never revived, 110. Carries a clause in the bill for settling the oaths of fealty compelling the clergy to take the oaths, 114. Passes the bill for settling the Coronation Oath, 115. Its address to the King on the barbarities committed by Lewis of France in the Palatinate, 127. Invectives applied to Lewis, 127. Its munificent relief afforded to the Protestant fugitives from Ireland, 224. Brings in a bill for reversing the sentence on Oates, 389. Conference with the Lords, 390, 391. The bill dropped, 393. Remonstrance sent to the Lords on their uncourteous behaviour to the Commons, 393. The Bill of Rights passed, 393. Rejection of an amendment of the Lords, 394. Disputes respecting the Bill of Indemnity, 396. The bill allowed to drop, 398. Resolution of the House that a pardon cannot be allowed to bar a parliamentary impeachment, 407. Its grant to Schomberg, 413. Its votes of supply for carrying on the war in Ireland and against France, 497. Inquiry into naval abuses, 500. Violence of the Whigs, 509. Impeachments, 510. The Corporation Bill brought in, 517. Great muster of both parties for discussing the bill, 521. Tumultuous debate, 522. The two obnoxious clauses lost, 522. The Indemnity Bill brought forward again, 522. The rise and progress of parliamentary corruption in England, 541. Settlement of the revenue, 556. Bill for declaring all the acts of the late Parliament to be valid, 568. The Abjuration Bill, 570. An Act of Grace read and passed, 575—579. The Parliament prorogued, 579. Reassembled, 711. A bill introduced, appointing Commissioners to examine and state the public accounts, 712. The Ways and Means, 712. A bill confiscating the estates of the Irish rebels brought in and passed, 713. The bill withdrawn in the Lords, 714.
- House of Lords; visited by William III., 29. William's assent to the bill declaring the Convention a Parliament, 31. The Oath of Allegiance, 31, 32. Discussion respecting hearth money, 36. Passes the first Mutiny Bill, 46. Suspends the Habeas Corpus Act, 48. The valuable, but neglected, archives of the House, 90. note. Bill for settling the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, 100. Rejection of a motion for the abolition of the Sacramental Test, 110. Debate on the Comprehension Bill, 110. Discussions and conferences on the bill for settling the oaths of fealty, 114.

- Passes the bill for settling the Coronation Oath, 117. Commits Oates to the Marshalsea for breach of privilege, 386. Takes the opinion of the Judges on Oates's case, 386. Refuses to reverse his sentence, 388. A bill brought into the Commons annulling the sentence, 389. The committee appointed to inquire into the circumstances attending the death of Essex, 379. Reverses the sentence on the Earl of Devonshire, 384. Sentence of Titus Oates brought before it by writ of error, 385. Embarrassment of the House, 390. Conference with the Commons, 390, 391. The bill dropped, 393. The Bill of Rights passed by the Commons, 393. The Lords' amendment, 394. Retirement of Halifax, 497. The House appoints a Committee of Murder, 511. Bill introduced declaring all the acts of the late Parliament to be valid, 567. A second Abjuration Bill introduced into the House of Lords, 573. An Act of Grace read and passed, 575—579. The Parliament prorogued, 579. Reassembled, 711. The bill for confiscating the estates of the Irish rebels withdrawn, 714.
- Howard, Sir Robert; his noble birth, 388. His bad poetry, 389. Calls the attention of the House of Commons to the unjust decision of the Lords respecting the sentence on Oates, 389. His motion on the Corporation Bill, 518. His clause lost on the debate, 522.
- Howe, John, or "Jack Howe;" appointed Vice Chamberlain to the Queen, 25. His singular character, 25. Proposes to send the Dutch soldiers to suppress the revolt of the Scotch regiments at Ipswich, 40. His advocacy of strong measures for Ireland, 225. His intemperate motion in the House, 405. His attack on Caermarthen, 406. And on Halifax, 407.
- Huguenots in exile in Holland; their joy on the accession of William and Mary, 3. Regiments of, raised in England to accompany Schomberg to Ireland, 411. Their conspiracy at Dundalk, 426. Their share in the battle of the Boyne, 625. 630. 632.
- Hume, Sir Patrick; his character after his return from exile, 299. He joins the "Club" in Edinburgh, 299.
- Humieres, Marshal; his army near the Straits of Dover, 616.
- Hyde, Lady Henrietta; her attendance at the coronation of William and Mary, 118. Married to the Earl of Dalkeith, 118. note.
- Impeachment, parliamentary; resolution of the House of Commons that a pardon cannot be pleaded in bar of impeachment, 407.
- Indemnity, Bill of; disputes in Parliament on the, 396. Suffered to drop, 598. Debates on the, renewed, 523. The mock Bill of Indemnity for King James, 524. Difference between an Act of Indemnity and an Act of Grace, 575.
- Independents; large numbers of, at the period of the Revolution, 96. Their views respecting the sovereignty of every congregation of believers, 96.
- Indulgence, Declaration of, 10. Gratitude of the Dissenters for the, 72.
- Innocent XI.; his death, 439. His strange fate, 439. Effect of his death, 439.
- Inverary Castle, 318, 319. 321. 352.
- Inverlochty, battle of, 317.
- Inverness; founded by Saxons, 323. Insolence with which the burghers were treated by the Macdonalds, 324, 325. The town threatened by Macdonald of Keppoch, 325, 326. Settlement of the dispute, 329. Fort William built and garrisoned, 685.
- Invernesshire; possessions of the Macdonalds in the, 315.
- Iona, island of, 323.
- Ipswich; revolt of the Scottish regiments at, 38.
- Ireland; state of, at the time of the Revolution, 129. The civil power in the hands of the Roman Catholics, 129. Lord Deputy Tyrconnel, 129. The Courts of Justice, 129—131. The Municipal institutions, 131. Boroughs, 131. Aldermen and sheriffs, 132. The military power in the hands of the Papists, 132, 133. Mutual enmity between the Englishry and Irishry, 133. Panic among the Englishry, 134. Emigration from Ireland to England, 134. An illustration of the general state of the kingdom, 135. Infested with wolves at the time of the Revolution, 136. Musterings of the Englishry, 139. Conduct of the Ennis-killeners, 140. Alarm of the people of Londonderry, 143. Effect of the news of the Revolution in, 146. Mountjoy sent to pacify the Protestants of Ulster, 146. William III. opens a negotiation with Tyrconnel, 149. Tyrconnel determines to raise the Irish, 152. Sends secret instructions to offer Ireland to the King of France, 153. Arming of Ulster, the whole kingdom, 154. Habits of the Irish peasant, 154. Exhortations of the priests to their flocks to prepare for battle with the Saxon, 154, 155. The Irish army, 155. General arming, 155. The country overrun with banditti, 156. Barbarity and filthiness of the Rapparees, 159. Landing of James at Kinsale, 170. His entry into Dublin, 173. The two factions at the Castle, 179—181. James's journey to Ulster, 184. The country impoverished, 184, 185. Londonderry besieged, 197, et seq. Character of the Irish gentleman of the period of the Revolution, 205. A Parliament convened by James in Dublin, 202. Acts passed for the confiscation of the property of the Protestants, 208. Excuses for the bigot legislators, 209. Distrust of the Irish for James, 214. Issue of base money, 214. Cruel persecution of the Protestants in Ireland, 220, 221. Their escape to England, 224. Alarm in Dublin at the news from Londonderry, 229. The siege of Londonderry raised, 239. The battle of Newton Butler, 243—245. Preparations for a campaign in Ireland, 416. Landing of Schomberg in Ireland, 414, 420. State of the country, 415. Causes of the defeats and disgraces of the Irish troops, 417. Schomberg's operations, 421. Inquiry of the House of Commons into the conduct of the war in Ireland, 501. King William determines to go himself to Ireland, 532. Preparations in England for the first war, 579, 580. The administration of James at Dublin, 580. Condition of the country according to Lauzun, 585. Its state along the march of William III. 620. The battle of the Boyne, 629. Flight of James to France, 641. Surrender of Waterford to William, 662. The Irish army collected at Limerick, 663. Discontent of the French, 664. Siege of Limerick, 676. William returns to England, leaving a commission to govern Ireland, 676, 677. Marlborough's expedition to the south of Ireland. Sails, 678. Cork taken, 679. Kinsale surrenders, 680.

Irish Night, the, 398.

Islay, the abode of Celtic royalty, 323.

Isles, Lordship of the; claimed by the Macdonalds, 323.

Jacobites; their struggles against the bill for declaring the Convention a Parliament, 30, 31. Their agitation on the passing of the bill, 32. Their spirit broken by the defection of Seymour, 33. Many of them arrested and confined, 47. Suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act, 47.

Strong feeling against the Jacobite priests in the House of Commons, 114. Jacobite Lords at the coronation of William and Mary, 118. Their scurrility and sarcasm on the coronation of William and Mary, 119. Extract from one of their lampoons, 120. note. Difference between English and Irish Jacobitism, 177. Jacobite pamphlets in favour of James, 223. The Jacobites of the Scottish Convention, 272. Their determination to oppose the Estates by force, 280. Their designs frustrated, 281, 282. Arrival of the Duke of Queensberry in Edinburgh, 283. They request the Duke of Gordon to fire on Edinburgh, 283. His refusal, 284. Their spirit quelled, 284. Peculiar nature of Jacobitism in the Highlands, 313. Their disgust at the contents of the letters from James to Dundee and Balcarras, 327. The Duke of Gordon surrenders the Castle of Edinburgh to William's troops, 347. Jacobite imputations on Marlborough, 438. The nonjurors, 443, 450. Accessions to the strength of the Jacobite party, 554, 555. Their hopes from William's journey into Ireland, 555. Their plans, 586. Their cause betrayed by Fuller, 590. Their dismay, 592. Their anxiety at the trial of Crone, 601. Clarendon, another noted member of their party, arrested and lodged in the Tower, 605. Threatened invasion of the French, 610, 611. Dangers of the Jacobites, 613. Character of the Jacobite press, 656. Methods of distributing their productions, 657. The Jacobite Form of Prayer and Humiliation after the battle of the Boyne, 657. Jacobite intrigues with Montgomery, 681. Their army routed at Strathspey, 684. Forswear themselves, 687. Find themselves in a minority, 687. Their rage, 688. Their attack on that clause of the bill for establishing the ecclesiastical constitution of Scotland, which sanctioned the acts of the Western fanatics, 692. Their coalition with the Club dissolved, 695. Letter from Mary of Modena to the Club, 695. Formation of a Jacobite conspiracy, 720. Meeting of the leading conspirators, 721. They determine to send Preston to St. Germans, 723. Papers entrusted to him, 724. Information of the plot given to Caermarthen, 726. Preston and his men arrested, 728. The Jacobites terror-stricken, 728.

James I.; gives the site of Derry to the Corporation of London, 141. His treatise on the Pope as Antichrist, 499.

James II.; reactionary feeling in his favour, 7. This feeling extinguished by himself, 10. Discussion respecting his revenue while on the throne, 33. Amount of his revenue, 34. His civility to those who did not cross him, 50. Maladministration during his reign, 61. His correction of some of the gross abuses of the navy, 61. His pusillanimity and dependence on France, 62. Tenderness with which he was regarded during his exile by the High Church party, 71. His piteous appeals to Vienna and Madrid, 126. Places the civil and military power in the hands of the Papists in Ireland, 129—133. Mountjoy and Rice sent from Tyrconnel to him, 153. Causes Mountjoy to be sent to the Bastille, 163. He determines to go to Ireland, 163. Assistance afforded to him by Lewis, 165. Comforts prepared for him on the voyage, 166. Pays his farewell visit to Versailles, 166. Sets out for Brest, 166. His retinue, 166, 167. The Count of Avaux chosen as ambassador to accompany him to Ireland, 167. Lands at Kinsale, 170. Learns that his cause is prospering, 170. Proceeds to Cork, 171. Tyrconnel arrives there, 172. Leaves Cork for Dublin, 172. His progress, 173. Reaches Dublin, 173. His entry into the city, 174, 175. Holds a Privy Council, 175. Issues a proclamation convoking a Parliament in Dublin, 175. Factions at the Castle, 177. Determines to go to Ulster, 183. His journey to Ulster, 184. Reaches Charlemont, 184. Arrives at Omagh, 185. Alarming information reaches him, 186. He determines to proceed to Londonderry, 187. Approaches the walls of Londonderry, and his staff fired on, 191. Summons the inhabitants to surrender, 196. Their refusal, 197. Returns to Dublin and entrusts the siege to his officers, 197. Orders a Te Deum for the naval skirmish in Bantry Bay, 202. Meeting of the Parliament of James in Dublin, 202. His speech from the throne, 206. Little in common between him and his Parliament, 210. Permits the repeal of the Act of Settlement, 213. Gives his reluctant consent to the great Act of Attainder, 216. Prorogues the Parliament, 220. Effect produced in England by the news from Ireland, 223, 224. James's alarm at the news from Londonderry, 229. His indignation at the cruelty of Count Rosen, 231. Siege of Londonderry raised, 239. Battle of Newton Butler, 243—245. His consternation, 245. The Castle of Edinburgh held for him by the Duke of Gordon, 252. His agents in Scotland, Dundee and Balcarras, 268. Sends a letter to the Estates of Scotland, 277. His letter read, 279. Their resolutions that he had forfeited his crown, 286. His letters to Dundee and Balcarras intercepted, 327. Application from Dundee for assistance in the Highlands, 342. James sunk in dependency at the news from the north of Ireland, 415. Atrocious advice of Avaux, 415. Avaux's advice rejected, 416. James's prospects begin to brighten, 417. Dismisses Melfort, and gives the seals to Sir Richard Nagle, 420. Leaves Dublin to encounter Schomberg, 420. Collects his army at Drogheda, 422. Advised by Rosen not to venture a battle, 423. Draws up in order of battle before Schomberg's entrenchments at Dundalk, 425. Despatches Sarsfield with a division to Connaught, 429. Goes into winter quarters, 430. Dealings of some of the Whigs with the Court of Saint Germain, 553. Shrewsbury and Ferguson, 554. James's administration at Dublin, 581. Scandalous inefficiency of his infantry, 581. His fiscal administration, 582. Receives succours from France, 582, 583. Plans of the English Jacobites, 586. Letter from Penn, 587. Accepts the services of the Earl of Shrewsbury, 596. William lands at Carrickfergus, 615. James sets out for the Irish camp near Leinster, 617. Retreats before William's army, 620. Reaches the valley of the Boyne, 622. Pitches his tent on the banks of the river, 622. Condition and number of his army, 623. His army cut to pieces at the battle of the Boyne, 635. His flight to Dublin, 635. His ignoble conduct, 635, 636. Loss sustained by his army, 637. Takes leave of the citizens of Dublin, 643. His flight to France, 641. His arrival and reception there, 647. His importunities to Lewis to invade England, 648. Contempt of the French courtiers for him, 648, 649. Discovery of a Jacobite plot, 720—728.

James's Park, St., 50.

Jane, King's Professor of Divinity; one of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 470. His political apostasy and relapse, 471. Absents himself from the meetings of the Commission, 472. Elected as Prolocutor of the Lower House of Convocation, 489, 490. His oration before the Upper House, 490.

Jefferson; his code, 88.

- Jeffreys, George, Lord; his imprisonment in the Tower, 399. Sensible of his peril, 399. Euliation of the mob at his downfall, 399. His disease and despondency, 400. His drunkenness, 400. The Colchester barrel, 401. Visited by John Tutchin, 401. And by Dean Sharp and Doctor John Scott, 402. His death, 403. Causes of his death, 403. note. His insolence and cruelty on the trial of Sir Thomas Armstrong, 526.
- Jennings, Fanny (Lady Tyrconnel), 639.
- Jerusalem Chamber, the, 471.
- Jews; proposition of the House of Commons to exact a hundred thousand pounds from them, 497.
- Johnson, Dr. Samuel; his opinion of the abilities of Charles Leslie, 455. And of William Law, 455. note.
- Johnson, Samuel; case of, 382, 383. His quarrel with Burnet, 383.
- Johnston's, Saint; skirmish between the Highlanders and Mackay's troops at, 371.
- Jones (otherwise Simpson); his Jacobite intrigues, 683.
- Jourdain; Molière's reference to, 168.
- Judges; appointment of the, by the government of William III., 22.
- Jura, the paps of, 329.
- Justice, College of, in Edinburgh; the members disarm themselves on William's proclamation being issued, 252.
- Juxon, Bishop, 165.
- Keating, John, Chief Justice of the Irish Common Pleas, 130. His courageous address at the Wicklow assizes on the lawlessness of the Merry Boys, and attempt to uphold the law, 157. Dismissed from the Council Board by James, 175.
- Ken, Thomas; Bishop of Bath and Wells, 88. Becomes a nonjuror, 453. His indecision, 453, 454.
- Kenmare, town of; foundation of by Sir W. Petty, 136. Its isolation at that period, 137. Its manufactures and trade, 137. Forays committed by the Irishry, 138. Reprisals of the people of Kenmare, 139. Acts as an independent commonwealth, 139. Compelled to capitulate to a large force, and suffered to embark for England, 161.
- Kenmore, Lord; commands a regiment at the battle of Killiecrankie, 355.
- Kensington House; purchased and the gardens planted by William III., 58.
- Keppoch, Colin Macdonald, of. See Macdonald, Colin.
- Kerry; beauties of the southwestern part of, 135. Little known at the time of the Revolution, 136. Its wild state, 136. note.
- Kettlewell, John, rector of Coleshill; becomes a nonjuror, 463. His intimacy with Lord Russell, 463.
- Kildare, 641.
- Kilkenny; abandoned by the Irish troops at the approach of William, 662.
- Killarney, Lakes of, 136.
- Killiecrankie, glen of; its present appearance, 353. Its condition at the time of William III., 353. Occupied by the Williamite troops, 357. Battle of Killiecrankie, 360, 361. Effect of the battle, 365. Compared with the battle of Newton Butler, 367.
- King, Doctor William, Dean of St. Patrick's; his sufferings, 222. Committed to prison in Dublin, 617. Welcomes the King to Dublin, 642. Preaches before the King in St. Patrick's Cathedral, 643.
- King's Bench, Court of; its sentence on Devonshire reversed, and declared to have violated the Great Charter, 384.
- King's Evil; sneers of King William at the practice of touching for, 478. Ceremonies of touching, 478. Popular belief in the efficacy of the King's touch, 478, 479.
- Kinsale; James lands at, 170. Capitulates to Marlborough, 680.
- Kintyre, 323.
- Kirke, Colonel Percy; appointed to command a force for the relief of Londonderry, 226. His character, 226. His expedition windbound at the Isle of Man, 226. Arrives in Loeh Foyle, 228. Considers it not advisable to make any attempt, and remains inactive, 228. Peremptorily ordered to relieve the garrison, 235. Does so, and the siege is raised, 235—237. Invited to take the command, 238. His conduct disgusting to the inhabitants, 238. Sends arms to the Enniskilleners, 241.
- Lake, John, Bishop of Chichester; becomes a nonjuror, 453.
- Lanarkshire; the Covenanters from, called to arms in Edinburgh, 282.
- Lanier, Sir John; commands the Queen's regiment of horse at the battle of the Boyne, 624.
- Lansdowne, Lord; takes the command of the army for repelling the French invaders, 653. His military experience, 653.
- Latin; the bad, of the Roman Catholic services, 475.

- Latitudinarians; their objections to the Easter holidays, 113.
- Lauzun, Antonine, Count of; a favourite, with James II., 165. Hated by Louvois, 165. His ambition, 165. Appointed to the command of the Irish forces in Ireland, 583, 584. Lands in Ireland, and takes up his residence in the castle, 584, 585. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 627, 629. Reaches Dublin, 639. Marches out of Dublin, 641. Retires to Limerick, 663. Expresses his opinion that Limerick cannot be defended, 663. His impatience to get away from Ireland, 664. Retires to Galway, leaving a strong garrison in Limerick, 668. Goes with Tyrconnel to France, 676.
- Law, William; Dr. Johnson's opinion of him as a reasoner, 455. note.
- Lavers, Ben, 364.
- Laws of England; the peculiar virtues and vices of our legislation, 84. The practical element always predominates over the speculative, 85.
- Leadenhall Market, 97.
- Leake, Captain John (afterwards Admiral); assists in relieving Londonderry, 235, 236.
- Lee, Sir Thomas; his opinion on the Coronation Oath, 117. note.
- Leinster; lawlessness of the Merry Boys of, 157.
- Leopold I., Emperor of Austria; joins the coalition against France, 122. Accused by Lewis XIV. of leaguings with heretics, 125. Extract from the answer of Leopold, 126. note.
- Leo X.; reference to, 95.
- Leslie, Charles; his abilities and character, 455. Becomes a nonjuror, 456.
- Leven, David, Earl of; bears a letter from William III. to the Scotch Convention, 267, 278. Calls the people of Edinburgh to arms, 282. Commands the King's Own Borderers at Killiecrankie, 355, 361. His gallantry, 563.
- Lewis XIV., King of France; great coalition against him, 122. His devastation of the Palatinate, 122—124. His marriage with Frances de Maintenon, 124, 125. Spares Treves at her entreaty, 124, 125. His accusations against the Emperor of Austria and the King of Spain, 125. Leagues himself with the Sultan of Turkey, 126. War declared against him by the coalition, 127, 128. His unwillingness to assist James II. with an army, 163, 164. His sentiments respecting James's character, 164, 165. Furnishes James with assistance, 165. His farewell visit to James at St. Germain's, 166. His joy at the death of Innocent XI., 439. Sends an ambassador of high rank to Rome, 439. Failure of his schemes there, 440. Sends an old piece of brass ordnance to Dublin to be coined into crowns and shillings, 582. Forwards an auxiliary force from France to Ireland, 582. His error in the choice of a general, 583, 584. Receives James after his flight from Ireland, 648. Importuned by James to invade England, 648. His admiral, Tourville, attempts a descent, 649. Burnt in effigy in Covent Garden, 677.
- Lewis of Baden, Prince; his victories over the Turks beyond the Danube, 436.
- Lieutenancy, Commissions of; changes effected in, 550. Debates in the House of Commons on the changes in, 569.
- Limerick; occupied by the Irish troops after the battle of the Boyne, 663. Their determination to hold it, 666. The command given to Boisseleau, 668. Aspect of the town at the time of the Revolution, 668. Its present importance, 668. The old castle, 668. Arrival of Baldearg O'Donnell, 672. The besiegers repulsed, 674. The siege raised, 675. The Duke of Berwick appointed Commander in Chief of the Irish army at, 676.
- Lisburn; migration of the people of, to Antrim, 163.
- Lisle, Alice; her attainder reversed, 382. Assassination of her husband, 506.
- Lisle, John (husband of Alice Lisle); his refuge near the Lake of Geneva, 506. Assassinated, 506.
- Literature; character of the Jacobite, of England, 656.
- Liturgy; proposal by the Comprehension Bill for an Ecclesiastical Commission to revise the Liturgy and Canons, 110. Discussion in the House of Lords respecting, 110, 111. The English Liturgy compared with the Latin, 475. Altered by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 476.
- Livingstone, Sir Thomas (governor of Inverness); surprises and routs the Highlanders at Strathspey, 684.
- Lloyd, Bishop of St. Asaph; carries the patent at the coronation of William and Mary, 118.
- Lloyd, William, Bishop of Norwich; declares himself a nonjuror, 453.
- Lobb, Stephen; his zeal in the persecution of the seven bishops, 71.
- Lochaber; gathering of the clans at, 330.
- Lochiel. See Cameron, Sir Ewan.
- Lochbuy; the Macleans of, 331.
- Locke, John; dedicates the Essay on the - Human Understanding to the Earl of Pembroke, 549.

- Lockhart, Lord President; murder of, 290.
- Lockhart, Sir William; appointed Solicitor General of Scotland, 296.
- Long, Thomas; his Vox Cleri, 493.
- Londeriad, the, 177. note.
- London; its loyalty to William and Mary, 1. Proclamation of the new King and Queen in, 1. Its filth at the time of William III., 56. Highwaymen and scourers in the outskirts of, 58. The site of Derry given by James I. to the Corporation of, 141. Sorrow and alarm of the Londoners at the news of the landing of James II. in Ireland, 175. Hatred of the Londoners for the Highlanders in 1740, 310. News of the successes of the Protestants in the north of Ireland, 411. Reception given by the London companies to the Reverend George Walker, 503. Excitement in, on the dissolution of Parliament and general election, 535. Returns four Tories for the City, 536. Agitated state of the City, 552. Proclamation of a general fast in, 552. Its alarm at the news of the battle of Beachy Head, 609. Its joy at the news from Ireland, 614. 645. Effect produced by the news of the battle of the Boyne, 645. Its reception of the King on his return from Ireland, 677.
- London Gazette; its lying statements, 431. note.
- Londonderry; one of the principal strongholds of the Englishry at the time of the Revolution, 139. Destruction of the ancient city of Derry, 141. The site and six thousand acres in the neighbourhood given by James I. to the Corporation of London, 141, 142. Foundation of the new city of Londonderry, 142. The cathedral, 142. The bishop's palace, 142. The new houses, 142. The city walls, 142. The inhabitants all Protestants of Anglo-Saxon blood, 143. Besieged in 1641, 143. Its prosperity, 143. Alarm of the inhabitants, 143. Arrival of the Earl of Antrim to occupy the city, 144. Doctrine of nonresistance preached by the bishop, 144. Low character of the Mayor and Corporation, 144. The thirteen Scottish apprentices, 145. The city gates closed against the King's troops, 145. James Morison, 145. Retreat of the troops, 146. A small garrison of Mountjoy's regiment left in the city, under Robert Lundy, 147. Lundy gives in his adhesion to the government of William and Mary, 162. Confirmed by them in his office of governor, 162. All the Protestants of the neighbourhood crowd into the town, 163. The fall of the city expected, 188. Lundy considers resistance hopeless, 189. Arrival of succours from England, 189. Treachery of Lundy, 190. The citizens resolve to defend themselves, 190. Their disgust at the conduct of the governor, 190. A tumultuous council of the inhabitants called, 191. The people called to arms, 191. Major Henry Baker, Captain Adam Murray, and the Reverend George Walker, 191. Character of the Protestants of Londonderry, 192. Two governors elected, and the people divided into regiments, 195. Frequent preaching and praying, 195. Remarkable aspect of the cathedral, 196. Summons from James to surrender, 196. Refusal to do so, 196. Commencement of the siege, 197. The assault at Windmill Hill, 199. The siege turned into a blockade, 200. A boom placed across the stream, 201. Interest excited in England in the siege, 225. Distress of the inhabitants, 227, 228. Hunger and pestilence, 229. Cruelty of Count Rosen, 229. Rosen recalled by King James, 232. Attempt at negotiation, 232. Extreme famine in the city, 232. Walker unjustly suspected of concealing food, 233. "The fat man in Londonderry," 234. Kirke ordered to relieve the garrison, 235. Attack on the boom, 235. The boom gives way, 236. The garrison relieved, 237. The siege raised, 237. Loss sustained by the besiegers and besieged, 237, 238. Kirke invited to take the command, 238. Large quantities of provisions landed from the fleet, 238, 239. Letter from William III., acknowledging his grateful thanks to the defenders, 239. Pride of the inhabitants in their city as a trophy of the bravery of their forefathers, 239. Ten thousand pounds granted by the Commons to the widows and orphans of the defenders of Londonderry, 505.
- Loe, the palace of, 55, 56.
- Lords. See House of Lords.
- Lords of the Articles of the Scotch Parliaments, 283.
- Lorn; ravaged by the men of Athol, 352.
- Lorraine, Charles, Duke of; drives the French out of the Palatinate, and takes Mentz, 437. His death a great loss to the coalition, 709.
- Lothians, the, 256.
- Loughbrickland; rendezvous of the Protestant forces at, 617, 619.
- Louvois, chief military adviser of Lewis

- XIV., 123. His character, 123. His diabolical plan of devastating the Palatinate, 123. Regarded by Madame de Maintenon as her enemy, 125. Advises his master not to assist James II. with troops, 165. His hatred of Lauzun, 165. His views respecting Ireland, 182.
- Lowlace, John, Lord, 5.
- Lowlanders; their contempt for Highlanders, 309.
- Lowlands of Scotland; their state, after the defeat of the Highlanders at Dunkeld, 377.
- Low Church party; the, of the reign of William III., 69. Origin of the appellation, 69. Their views respecting James II. and William III., 72. Desire of Low Churchmen to preserve Episcopacy in Scotland, 258. Their minority in the Lower House of Convocation, 490.
- Lowther, Sir John; appointed to a Commissionership of the Admiralty, 20. Deputed to carry the thanks of the Tories to King William, 533. Appointed First Lord of the Treasury, 540. His abilities and influence, 540. His connection with Caermarthen, 540. Not well suited for his post, 541. Moves the grant of the excise and customs' duties to the King for life, 557.
- Ludlow, Edmund; his early life, 505. His vigorous old age, 506. His refuge at Geneva, 506. His arrival in London after the Revolution, 507. Horror of the people at the regicide appearing amongst them, 508. Proclamation issued for his apprehension, 509. His escape to Switzerland, 509. His house and burialplace, 509.
- Lundy, Lieutenant Colonel Robert; left by Mountjoy to garrison Londonderry, 147. His treachery, 188, 190. Considers resistance hopeless, 188, 189. Makes his escape from the city by night, 192. His memory held in execration in the north of Ireland, 192. Sent to the Tower, 225. Annually executed in effigy by the people of Londonderry, 240.
- Luttrell, Colonel Henry; returned for Carlow to the Dublin Parliament of James II., 203.
- Luttrell, Colonel Simon; returned for Dublin to the Irish Parliament of James II., 204. His part in the great Act of Attainder, 216. Allows the ejected fellows and scholars of the University of Dublin to depart in safety, 221.
- Luttrell, Narcissus; his MS. Diary in All Souls' College, 2. note.
- Luxemburg, Duke of; defeats Waldeck at the battle of Fleurus, 609, 661.
- Macarthy, Lieutenant General; his reduction of Bandon, 160, 161. Receives James II. at Cork, 172. His part in the operations against the Enniskilleners, 241. Rewarded with the title of Viscount Mountcashel, 241. See Mountcashel.
- Macclesfield, Earl of; his opposition to the Abjuration Bill, 574. His answer in the House to Marlborough, 574.
- Mae Callum More; his unscrupulous ambition, 316, 323. See Argyle.
- Macdonald of Glengarry; his personal dignity, 331. His position on the field of Killiecrankie, 359. His quarrel with a Lowland gentleman, 684.
- Macdonald, Colin, of Keppoch; his lawless practices, 325. His mountain fastnesses, 325. Proclaimed a rebel and attacked by the King's troops, whom he defeats, 325, 326. Wastes the lands of the Mackintoshes, and threatens Inverness, 326. Appearance of Dundee in Keppoch's camp, 328. The dispute with Inverness settled, 329. Greets the standard of Dundee, 329, 330.
- Macdonalds; power of the clan of the, 315, 323. Their claim to the Lordship of the Isles, 323. Their feud with the Mackintoshes, 323. Their insolence to the people of Inverness, 324. Their muster at the gathering of Lochaber, 330, 331. Quarrels of the Macdonalds of Glengarry with the Camerons, 340, 341. Their position at the battle of Killiecrankie, 358. Macdonald of Sleat quits the Highland camp, 373.
- Macgregors; terrible example made of the, 318.
- Mackay, Andrew, a soldier of fortune, 284. Appointed General by the Scottish Convention, 284. His indecisive campaign in the Highlands, 333. Withdraws from the hill country, and the war suspended, 342. Urges the ministers at Edinburgh to give him the means of constructing a chain of forts among the Grampians, 343. Hastens to assist the besiegers of Blair Castle, 355. Occupies the defile of Killiecrankie, 357. Defeated by the Highlanders at Killiecrankie, 360, 361. Retreats across the mountains, 363. His trying situation, 363, 364. His troops refreshed at Weems Castle, 364. Reaches Castle Drummond and Stirling, 365. Restores order amongst the remains of his army, 370. His improvement of the bayonet, 361. Routs the Robertsons at Saint Johnstone's, 371. His advice disregarded by the Scotch Ministers, 373. The consequences, 374, 375. Takes the - Castle of Blair, 377. His unopposed march from Perth to Inverness, 685. Constructs and garrisons Fort William, 685.

- Mackays, the, 329. Join General Mackay and the King's troops, 334.
- Mackenzie, Sir George, Lord Advocate; his resignation, 265. His life threatened by the Covenanters, 277. Applies to the House for protection, 278.
- Mackenzies, the, 329.
- Mackintoshes; origin of their name, 323. Their feud with the clan of Macdonald, 323. Origin of the dispute, 323. Their friendship with the burghers of Inverness, 325. Their lands wasted by Macdonald of Keppoch, 326. Their refusal to join the banner of Dundee with the Macdonalds, 329.
- Maclean of Lochbuy; musters his clan at the gathering of Lochaber, 331.
- Maclean, Sir John, of Duart, 331.
- Macleans; their oppressions at the hands of the Campbells, 319. Offer their assistance to James, 319. Gathering of the Macleans of Mull, at Lochaber, 331. Muster of the Macleans of Lochbuy, 331. Their position on the field of Killiecrankie, 358.
- Macleods, the, 329.
- Macnaghten of Macnaghten; musters his clan at Lochaber, 330.
- Macnaghtens; their alarm at the influence and power of the Duke of Argyle, 318.
- Macphersons, the, 329. Their arrival at the camp at Blair, 369.
- Magdalene College, 10.
- Maintenon, Madame de; her early life, 124. Her character, 124. Her marriage with Lewis XIV. of France, 124, 125. Intercedes for the city of Treves, 124, 125. Her enmity towards Louvois, 125.
- Mallow; muster of the Englishry at, 139. The Protestants driven out from, 160.
- Manheim; destroyed by the French under Duras, 124.
- Mantegna, Andrea; his Triumphs at Hampton Court, 57. note.
- Marlborough, John, Baron (afterwards Duke); commands an English brigade under Prince Waldeck, 437. Imputations thrown on him, 438. His love of lucre, 438. Opinion of foreigners of the relation in which he stood to the Princess Anne, 561. Power of his Countess over him, 562. His greed of gain, 562. Boundless influence of him and the Countess over the Princess Anne, 563. Marks of favour bestowed on him by William, 566. Supports the Abjuration Bill, 574. Appointed to the command of the troops in England during the stay of William in Ireland, 598. Proposes a plan for reducing Cork and Kinsale, 663. Ordered by the King to execute his plan, 663. Sails for the south of Ireland, 678. His dispute with the Duke of Wirtemberg, 678, 679. The dispute accommodated, 679. He takes Cork, 679. Compels Kinsale to capitulate, 680. Returns to England, 681. Graciously received by the King, 681.
- Marlborough, Sarah, Countess of; fondness of the Princess Anne for her, 560. Their singular relationship, 561. Her power over her husband, 562. Her parsimony, 562. Her hatred of all related to the Princess, 564. Forms a Princess's party in Parliament, 564. Shrewsbury sent to wait on the Countess, 565. Scandalous reports respecting him and the Countess, 565. She obtains a pension from the Princess Anne, 566.
- Marshalsea Prison, the, 386.
- Mary, Queen; proclaimed, 1. Her popularity with her subjects, 52. Her personal appearance and character, 52. Her dislike of evil speaking, 53. Her amiable conduct, 53. Her coronation, 117, 118. Inaugurated like a King, 118. Her munificent relief to the fugitive Protestants from Ireland, 224. Proclaimed in Edinburgh, 287. Accepts the Crown of Scotland, 291. Not on good terms with the Princess Anne, 560. Her annoyance at the conduct of the Princess, 564. Her resentment against Lady Marlborough, 566. Her renewal of terms of friendship with Anne, 566. The Queen appointed to administer the government during the absence of William in Ireland, 579. Her agonies at his departure, 593. Her measures for the defence of the country, 604. Signs the warrant for the arrest of Clarendon and other noted Jacobites, 605. Her distress at the news from Ireland, 645. Her tender letter to William, 646. Her anxiety for both her husband and her father, 646. England threatened with a French invasion, 649. The whole kingdom in arms, 651, 652. Mary reviews the troops at Hounslow, 653. Her letter to William respecting the plans of Marlborough for reducing Cork and Kinsale, 663. William's return to England, 676.
- Mary of Modena, Queen of James II.; her letter to the Club, 695.
- Maumont; appointed to the Lieutenant-Generalship in the French contingent, 165. Entrusted with the direction of the - siege of Londonderry, 197. Shot dead at the head of his cavalry, 197. His sword preserved in Londonderry as a trophy, 240.

- Maynard, Sir John; appointed Commissioner of the Great Seal, 22. His statesmanlike view of the bill for declaring the Convention a Parliament, 31. Opposes the intemperate motion of Howe, 405.
- McCormick, Captain William, of Enniskillen, 141. note.
- Meath, incursion of Enniskilleners into, 226.
- Melfort, John Lord; accompanies James II. to Ireland, 166. Odious to the people of England, 167. A favourite with James, 167. Disliked by the Count of Avaux, 182. Advises King James to set out for Ulster, 183. Held in abhorrence by the Scotch Estates, 279. His letters to Dundee and Balcarra intercepted, 327. His letter to Mary of Modena, 644. Dismissed from office and sent to Versailles for assistance for James, 420.
- Melloniere, La; appointed to the command of a Huguenot regiment under Schomberg, 412.
- Melville, George, Lord; his connection with the Duke of Monmouth and Leslie, 266, 267. His part in the Rye House Plot, 267. His approval of the enterprise of the Prince of Orange, 267. Sent by William III. to Edinburgh as agent to the Presbyterians, 267. His son, the Earl of Leven, 267, 268. Presents himself at the Scottish Convention, 271. Appointed to the Secretaryship of Scotland, 297. Fixes his residence at the English Court, 297. Appointed Lord High Commissioner of Scotland, 686. His character and abilities, 686. Repeals the Act of Supremacy in Scotland, 689.
- Mentz; besieged and taken by Charles Duke of Lorraine, 437.
- Merry Boys, the, of Leinster, 157, 170.
- Mildmay, Colonel, member for Essex; his proposal for suppressing the revolt of the soldiers at Ipswich, 40.
- Militia; the, of England at the time of the Revolution of 1688, 40.
- Ministers; the, of the Plantagenets, Tudors, and Stuarts. See Ministry.
- Ministry; what is now called a, not known in England till the reign of William III., 13. Distinction between ministers and a ministry, 13. A Prime Minister hateful in former times to Englishmen, 13.
- Mitchelburne, Colonel John; appointed governor of Londonderry, 229. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 625.
- Modena, Mary of. See Mary of Modena.
- Money; issue of base, by James II., in Ireland, 214. Allusion to Wood's patent, 216.
- Monmouth, Earl of; Viscount Mordaunt created, 121. His attack on Halifax in the Lords, 408. Resigns his seat at the Treasury, 539. Sets out for Torrington's fleet, 606.
- Montgomery, Sir James; supports the resolution of the Scottish Convention declaring the throne vacant, 286. Appointed a Commissioner to carry the instrument of government of the Scotch Convention to London, 291. His talents and character, 296, 297. Appointed Lord Justice Clerk, 298. His disappointment, 298. Forms the Club, 298. His arrival in London, with Annandale and Ross, 682. Coldly received by the King, 682. Offers his services to James, 682. Returns to Edinburgh, 683. His confidence in his position in the Scottish Parliament, 686. His faction in a minority, 687. His rage, 688. Promises made to him by Mary of Modena, 696. Breaks with the Jacobites and becomes a Williamite again, 697, 698. Refusal of the King to give him any thing but a pardon, 699. His subsequent life, 699.
- Montrose; his Highlanders, 338, 370, 377.
- Mordaunt, Charles Viscount; placed at the head of the Treasury, 20. His character, 20. His jealousy of Delamere, 65. His character, 65. Created Earl of Monmouth, 121. See Monmouth, Earl of.
- Morison, James, of Londonderry, 145. His consultation with the troops from the city walls, 145.
- Mountcashel, Lieutenant General Macarthy, Viscount; lays siege to the castle of Crum, 242. Defeated at the battle of Newton Butler, 243. Violates his parole, 583. See Macarthy.
- Mountjoy, William Stewart, Viscount; sent to pacify Ulster, 146. His character and qualifications, 146. Founder of the Irish Royal Society, 146. His reception of the deputation from Enniskillen, 147. His advice to them, 147. Sent, with Rice, on an embassy to St. Germain's, 153. Arrives in France, and is thrown into the Bastille, 163. Included in the Irish Act of Attainder while in the Bastille, 217.
- Mountjoy, merchant ship; breaks the boom at the siege of Londonderry, 235. Her brave master killed, 236.
- Mourne river, the, 245.
- Mulgrave, John Sheffield, Earl of; plights his faith to William III., 32.

- Mull, Isle of; occupied by the Irish, under Cannon, 377.
- Munroe, Captain; takes the command of the Cameronians at Dunkeld, 376.
- Munros, the, 329.
- Murray, Captain Adam; calls the people of Londonderry to arms, 191. Meets the flag of truce from James, 196. Refuses to surrender, 196, 197. Makes a sally, 197. The Murray Club, 240.
- Murray, Lord (eldest son of the Marquess of Athol); calls the clan Athol to arms for King William, 352. Demands to be admitted to Blair Castle, 354. Besieges the castle, 354, 355. Raises the siege, 357.
- Musgrave, Sir Christopher; his opinion on the Coronation Oath Bill, 117. note.
- Mutiny at Ipswich, 38. The first Mutiny Bill passed, 42. Extreme distrust with which the measure was regarded, 46.
- Nagle, Sir Richard; appointed Attorney General of Ireland, 130. Clarendon's opinion of him, 130. note. Returned for Cork to the Parliament of James in Dublin, 203. Chosen Speaker, 206. Accepts the seals from James in Dublin, 420.
- Navy; maladministration of the, during the reigns of Charles II. and James II., 61. Its condition under Torrington, 433. Inquiry of the House of Commons into the abuses of the, 500. Corruption of the Navy Board, 500.
- Newry; destruction of, 420.
- Newton, Sir Isaac; his observatory over Trinity College gate, 536. Gives his vote to Sir Robert Sawyer, 536.
- Newton Butler; battle of, 243. Compared with that of Killiecrankie, 367.
- Nicene Creed, the, 476.
- Nicolaus Mysticus; deprivation of, referred to, 102.
- Nimeguen, Treaty of, 38.
- Nisbet, John; the Mr. Nisby of the Spectator, 98. note.
- Nithisdale; "rabbling" of the clergy in, 250. Noble, Le, a French lampooner, 120. note. His two pasquinades, 120. note. His assertion that Jeffreys was poisoned by William III., 403.
- Nonconformists; their union with the Conformists against Popery, 70. Their gratitude for the Declaration of Indulgence, 79. The Toleration Act passed, 81.
- Nonhearers of Scotland, the, 707.
- Nonjurors; proposal to leave them to the mercy of the King, 106. Passing of the bill for settling the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, 115. Their arguments against taking the oaths, 443, 445, 453. Their notions of the theory of government, 448. The nonjurors of the highest rank, 453. Ken, 453. Leslie, 455. Sherlock, 456. Hickee, 458. Jeremy Collier, 459. Dodwell, 461. Kettlewell and Fitzwilliam, 463. General character of the nonjuring clergy, 464. Their poverty, 465, 466. Their subsequent lives, 466, 467. Cibber's play of The Nonjuror, 467. Clamours against them excited by the appearance of the Jacobite Form of Prayer and Humiliation, 659. Appearance of a pamphlet suggesting the Dewitting of the nonjuring prelates, 690. The Presbyterian nonjurors of Scotland, 703. Subsequently called the Nonhearers, 707.
- Nonresistance; zeal of the clergy in favour of, 4. Submission of the advocates of the doctrine to the decrees of the Convention, 18.
- North, Sir Dudley; his examination before the Murder Committee, 512.
- Norwich; palace of the nonjuring bishop of, attacked, 660.
- Nottingham, Daniel Finch, Earl of; appointed Secretary of State in the first ministry of William III., 18. Political school to which he belonged, 18. Declines the offer of the Great Seal, 21. His quarrels with Shrewsbury, 64. His views concerning ecclesiastical polity, 79. Discussion on his Comprehension Bill, 110. His pertinacity in opposing the bill for declaring the acts of the late Parliament to be valid, 567, 568. Becomes sole Secretary, 597. Visits Crone in Newgate, 603.
- Nugent, Thomas; appointed Chief Justice of the Irish King's Bench, 130. Recognises the violence and spoliation of the Merry Boys as a necessary evil, 157, 158.
- Oates, Titus; hatred with which he was regarded by the High Church party, 71. His imprisonment in Newgate, 384. Regarded as a martyr by many fanatics, 384. His reappearance in Westminster Hall and the Court of Requests, 385. His personal appearance and manners, 385. Brings his sentence before the House of Lords by writ of error, 385. Ordered to the Marshalsea for a breach of privilege, 386. Refusal of the Lords to reverse his sentence, 388. Bill annulling his sentence brought into the House of Commons, 389. Pardon and pensioned, 393.
- Oath, Coronation. See Coronation Oath.
- Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy; the, required of the members of both Houses,

31. 82. Discussion on the bill for settling the, 99. Divided opinions of the High Church clergy respecting the Oath of Supremacy, 440, 441. Arguments for and against taking the oaths, 441. 445.
- O'Donnel, Baldearg (the O'Donnel); his exile at the Spanish Court, 672. Refused permission to go to Ireland, 672. Escapes, and arrives at Limerick, 672. Muster of the Creights around him, 673. His notion of independence, 673.
- O'Donnels; their struggle against James I., 141. Their exile at the Court of Spain, 671.
- Oldbridge, ford of the Boyne at, 622. William III. wounded at, 627. The Boyne passed by William at, 630.
- Oldmixon; his statements referred to, 80. note.
- Omagh; arrival of James II. at, 185. Wretchedness of, 185. Destroyed by the Protestant inhabitants, 163. 185.
- O'Neil; struggle of the house of, against James I., 141.
- O'Neil, Sir Neil; his part in the siege of Londonderry, 200. Killed at the battle of the Boyne, 629.
- Ormond, James Butler, Duke of; appointed Lord High Constable at the coronation of William and Mary, 118. Created a Knight of the Garter, 120. Meeting of noblemen and gentlemen interested in Ireland at his house, 149. Entertains King William at the ancient castle of the Butlers, 662. Commands the Life Guards at the battle of the Boyne, 624. 627.
- Ossian; reference to, 312.
- Otway, Thomas; his "Venice Preserved," 52.
- Outlawry; the Act of Edward VI. relating to, 525.
- Oxford, Lord; commands the Blues at the battle of the Boyne, 624.
- Painted Chamber, the, 392. 396.
- Paintings of Charles I.; fate which they met, 57. The cartoons of Raphael, 57. The Triumphs of Andrea Mantegna, 57. note.
- Palatinate; the, devastated by a French army under Marshal Duras, 123. Ravaged by Marshal Turenne, 123. Sufferings of the people, 123, 124. The cry of vengeance from surrounding nations, 125. Desolation of the, 611.
- Palatine, Elector; his castle turned into a heap of ruins by the French under Duras, 124.
- Papists. See Roman Catholics.
- Pardouers, the, of Germany, 95.
- Parker, Samuel, Bishop of Oxford, 74.
- Parliament; the Convention turned into one, 27. Etymology of the word, 31. Members of both Houses required to take the Oath of Allegiance, 31, 32. The Oxford Parliament, 81. Parliament, according to some, not competent to compel a bishop to swear on pain of deprivation, 101. Presents an address to William III. to summon Convocation, 113. Sitting of, on an Easter Monday, 113. Disputes in the, 379. Prorogued, 379. Reversal of attainders, 380. et seq. Disputes about the Bill of Rights, 394—396. Quarrel about a Bill of Indemnity, 396. Recess of the Parliament, 414. Meets again, 496. Prorogued by William, 531. Dissolved, and writs for a general election issued, 534. Rise and progress of parliamentary corruption in England, 541. Meeting of the new Parliament, 556. Bill brought into the Lords declaring all the acts of the Convention valid, 567. The Parliament prorogued, 579. The Houses reassembled, 711. The Irish Parliament passes an Act annulling the authority of the English Parliament, 208.
- Parliament, Irish; assembles in Dublin, 202. The House of Peers, 202. The House of Commons, 203. Deficiency of legislative qualities in this Parliament, 205. The Parliament House on College Green, 206. Speech of James II. from the throne, 206. Resolutions of the Commons, 206. Rant and tumult of the Assembly, 207. Judge Daly, 207. Passes a Toleration Act and an Act annulling the authority of the English Parliament, 208. Acts passed for the confiscation of the property of Protestants, 208. Little in common between James and his Parliament, 210. Bill drawn up for deposing all the Protestant bishops, 214. The great Act of Attainder, 216. James prorogues the Parliament, 220.
- Parliament, Scottish; the Parliament meets, 685. Melville appointed Lord High Commissioner, 686. The government obtains a majority, 686. An extraordinary supply voted, 688. Ecclesiastical legislation, 688. Two supplementary Acts passed, 694. See Convention, Scottish.
- Paris Gazette; quotation from the, 113. note.
- Patrick, Simon, Dean of Peterborough; one of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 470. His alterations in the Collects, 476. Appointed to the see of Chichester, 485.

- Patronage, Church; abolished in Scotland, 694.
- Payne, Neville; an agent of the exiled royal family, 682. His antecedents, 682. His intrigues with Montgomery, 682. Arrested and carried to Edinburgh, 700. Subjected to the torture, 700. His bravery, 700. Immured in the Castle of Edinburgh, 700.
- Pelham, Henry; corruption of his administration, 546.
- Pemberton, Judge, 580. note.
- Pembroke, Thomas Herbert, Earl of; bears the pointed sword at the coronation, 118. Appointed First Lord of the Admiralty, 549.
- Penn, William; his scandalous Jacobitism, 587. His letter to James, 587. Taken into custody, but acquitted, 588. A letter from James to him intercepted, 599. Taken before the Privy Council, 599. His falsehood, 600. Required to give bail, 600. Joins the Jacobite conspiracy, 721.
- Pensionary of Holland; importance of the office of, 68.
- Perth, James Drummond, Earl of; obtains the estates of Lord Melville, 267.
- Peterborough, Earl of; his impeachment for high treason, 510. Sent to the Tower, 511.
- Peterborough level; Crown lands in the, 550.
- Petre, Father, 10.
- Petty, Sir William; his foundation of the town of Kenmare, 136. His ironworks there, 137.
- "Phyllida, Phillida," the song of, 50.
- Phillipps; his lost poem, the Grameis, 331. note.
- Photius; deprivation of, referred to, 102.
- Piedmont; invaded by a French army under Catinat, 710.
- Plotin Castle, 634.
- P'lowden, Francis; appointed Chief Minister of Finance in the Dublin Parliament of James II., 203.
- Plymouth, garrison of; its discontent and riotous conduct, 5.
- Politics, science of; its close analogy to mechanics, 84.
- Pullxfen; appointed Attorney General and Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, 23. His opinion respecting the revenue of James II., 34.
- Portland, Bentinck, Duke of; his letter to the Scotch ministers respecting Mackay, 374. Sent by William III. on a mission to the Hague, 521. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 625. 629.
- Powell, Sir John; appointed to a judgeship, 23.
- Powis, William Herbert, Earl of; accompanies James II. to Ireland, 166.
- Powle, Henry, speaker of the Convention; his part in the proclamation of William and Mary, 1.
- Prayer, Book of Common; proposed revision of the, 110.
- Presbyterians; the last serious attempt to bring them within the pale of the Church of England, 69. Comforts of their divines, 97. Their influence with their flocks, 97. Tom Brown's remarks on, 98. note. Advice to the Episcopalians of Scotland respecting the Presbyterians, 260. Comparative strength of religious parties in Scotland, 261. Their hatred of the merciless persecutors of their brethren of the faith, 281. Their unfavourable opinion of the Dutch Lutherans, 292. note. Origin of the annual grant of the government to the Presbyterians of Ulster, 618. The law fixing the ecclesiastical constitution of Scotland, 690. Satisfaction of the Presbyterians on the whole at the new ecclesiastical polity, 700. The Presbyterian nonjurors, 703. The reformed Presbytery, 704. note.
- Preston, Richard Graham, Viscount; his Jacobitism, 588, 589. In high favour with Lewis, 589. Joins the Jacobite conspiracy, 721. Proposal to send him to St. Germain, 723. Papers entrusted to him, 724. He and his companions arrested in the Thames, 727.
- Priests; the brokers of the Court of James II., 61.
- Printing offices, the, of the Jacobites, 657.
- Prior, Matthew; his complaint that William III. did not understand poetical eulogy, 52.
- Privy Seal; put into commission, 538.
- Proscriptions of the Protestants in Ireland, 208. Sanguinary proscriptions of the Roundheads and Cavaliers, 577.
- Protestantism; its history in Europe analogous to that of Puritanism in England, 96.
- Protestants; their gratitude to Maurice of Germany and William of England, 49. Their condition in Ireland under the Roman Catholic officials, 131. Six thousand veterans deprived of their bread, 132. Their hopes centred in King William, 133. Panic among them, 134. History of the town of Kenmare, 135. Musterings at the principal Protestant strongholds, 139. Bold front shown by the

- Enniskilleners to the Roman Catholic troops, 140. Alarm of the Protestants of Londonderry, 143. Mountjoy sent to pacify the Protestants of Ulster, 146, 147. General arming of the Roman Catholics and disarming of the Protestants, 156. Approximate estimate of the pecuniary losses caused by the freebooters, 160. The Protestants of the south unable to resist the Roman Catholics, 160. Enniskillen and Londonderry hold out, 162. The Protestants of Ulster driven before the devastating army of Richard Hamilton, 163, 163. They make a stand at Dro-more, 163. Their condition at the landing of James II., 170. They abandon and destroy Omagh, 185. Character of the Protestants of Ireland, 192, 193. Their contempt and antipathy for the Roman Catholics, 194. Acts passed for the confiscation of the property of the Protestants, 208. Sufferings of the Protestant clergy of Ireland, 209. The great Act of Attainder, 216. Cruel persecutions of the Protestants of Ireland, 220. Roman Catholic troops quartered in the houses of suspected Protestants, 221. Doctor William King, Dean of St. Patrick's, 222. Ronquillo's indignation at the cruel treatment of the Protestants in Ireland, 224. Munificent relief afforded to the fugitives who escaped to England, 224. Actions of the Enniskilleners, 226. Distress of Londonderry, 227. Cruelty of Count Rosen to the Protestants of the neighbourhood of Londonderry, 229. Extremity of distress in Londonderry, 233. The siege raised, 237. Gain the battle of Newton Butler, 243—245. Atrocious advice of Avaux to James to massacre all the Protestants of Ireland, 415. The Protestants desire to revenge themselves on the Irish of Carrickfergus, 421. The French soldiers billeted on Protestants in Dublin, 585. Joy of the Protestants of Ireland on the landing of William at Belfast, 615—617. Proclamation in Dublin forbidding them to leave their homes after nightfall, 617. Their fierce and implacable desire to trample down the Irish, 625. The battle of the Boyne, 629. Their joy in Dublin after the battle of the Boyne, 641. Booty taken by the victors of the Boyne, 642.
- Puritanism; its history in England analogous to that of Protestantism in Europe, 96.
- Puritans; in what their scrupulosity really consisted, 92. Their objections to the Easter holidays in Parliament, 113. Their conduct during their ascendancy in England, 481. Feelings with which they were regarded by the Anglican clergy, 482, 483.
- Pusignan; appointed third in command at the siege of Londonderry, 197. Is mortally wounded, 198.
- Quakers; their refusal to take the Oath of Supremacy, and the penal consequences, 83. Declarations required from, under the Toleration Act, 83. Large numbers of, at the time of the Revolution, 96. Pecuniary losses sustained by them at the hands of the freebooters in Ireland, 160.
- Queensberry, Duke of; arrives in Edinburgh and takes his place in the Convention, 283. Refuses to vote on the resolution that James had forfeited his crown, 286.
- Ramsay's regiment, 355. Retreat of, at Killiecrankie, 361, 364.
- Raphael; cartoons of, at Hampton Court, 57.
- Rapparees; their barbarity and filthiness, 159, 170, 173. The Protestants forbidden to possess arms, and their houses at the mercy of the Rapparees, 221.
- Rehearsal, the, 389.
- Resesby, Sir John, 10, 121. note.
- Revenue; the public, at the time of the Revolution of 1688, 35. The revenue of the seventeenth century, 556. Sources of, 557. The hereditary, of the Crown, 557, 559.
- Revolution, English; more violent in Scotland than in England, 246. Reaction which follows all revolutions, 5. note.
- Rice, Stephen; appointed Chief Baron of the Exchequer, 130. Use he made of his power, 131. Sent on an embassy to St. Germain's, 153. His secret instructions as to the offering of Ireland to France, 153. His arrival in France, 163.
- Richelieu, Cardinal, 49.
- Rights, Bill of; passed by the Commons, 393. Disputes between the Houses respecting the succession to the crown, 394, 395. The bill allowed to drop, 396. Introduced again and passed, 498. The special provisions of the Act, 498. The Declaration against Transubstantiation, 498. The dispensing power, 500.
- Rights, Declaration of; doctrine of the, solemnly reasserted every year, 47. Turned into a Bill of Rights, 393.
- Robertson, Alexander (chief of the clan Robertson); joins the camp of the Highlanders at Blair, 369. His literary character, 369, 370.

- Robertson, the clan; their arrival at the camp at Blair, 369. Sent down to occupy Perth, 370. Routed by Mackay at Saint Johnstone's, 371.
- Rocheater, Lawrence Hyde, Earl of; takes the Oath of Allegiance to William III., 33. Generosity of Burnet to him, 33.
- Roman Catholics; hated by the soldiery, 4. The penal code enacted against them by the Parliaments of Elizabeth, 83. All the highest offices of the state in Ireland filled with Papists, 129. Not allowed to be at large in Enniskillen, 141. Rising of the whole Irish kingdom, 154. Their joy at the arrival of James II. in Ireland, 170. Feelings with which they regarded James compared with those of the English Jacobites, 178. Their fixed purpose, 178. Contempt and antipathy of the Protestants of Ireland for the Roman Catholics, 194. Routed by the Enniskilleners in Donegal, 226. Close siege of Londonderry, 227. The Irish raise the siege and retreat to Strabane, 237. Depression of the troops, 241. Defeated at the battle of Newton Butler, 243—245. They rally round James in immense numbers, 419. The battle of the Boyne, 629. Their low military reputation, 665. A bill brought into the House of Commons confiscating the estates of all Papists who had joined in the Irish rebellion, 719.
- Rome; effect produced at, by the news of the battle of the Boyne, 744.
- Rosen, Count; the chief command of the French placed at the disposal of James II. given to, 165. His talents and character, 187. Placed in command in James's army in Ireland, 187. Returns with James to Dublin, 197. Appointed to conduct the siege of Londonderry, 229. His cruelty, 229. James's disgust at his conduct, 231. Recalled to Dublin, 232. His character compared with that of the Count of Avaux, 231, 232. Advises James not to hazard a battle with Schomberg, 423. Recalled to France, 584.
- Ross, Lord; joins the Club, 298. Proceeds with Montgomery and Annandale to London, 682. Returns to Edinburgh, 683. Promises made to him by Mary of Modena, 696. Breaks with the Jacobites and becomes a Williamite again, 697. Turns informer, 697.
- Roundheads; their sanguinary proscriptions, 577.
- Rowa, member of the House of Commons, 110. note.
- Royal Society of Ireland; foundation of the, 146.
- Royal Voyage; the drama so called, 431. note.
- Russell, Lady, widow of Lord William Russell, 2. Her daughter, Lady Cavendish, 2. Her letter to Halifax, 409. Her account of the perplexity of Ken respecting the oaths, 454. note.
- Russell, Lord William, reference to, 105. His attainder reversed, 380. His upright and benevolent character, 380. Reverence in which his memory was held by the Whigs, 380, 381.
- Russell, Edward (afterwards Earl of Orford); appointed to advise the Queen on naval matters, 598. Sets out for Torrington's fleet, 606.
- Ruvigny, the Marquess of; his Huguenot opinions, 411. His residence at Greenwich, 412. His English connections, 412. His sons, 412. His death, 412.
- Rye House Plot, 525.
- Sacheverell, William; appointed to a Commissionership of the Admiralty, 20. His clause in the Corporation Bill, 517. Its effect, 517. The clause lost, 522.
- Salisbury, Earl of; his impeachment for high treason, 510. Sent to the Tower, 511.
- Salisbury, see of; Burnet appointed to, 75.
- Sancroft, William, Archbishop of Canterbury; his refusal to obey the precept of William III., 76. His final submission and foolish expedients, 77. Letter from Bishop Compton to him, 91. note. Absents himself from the coronation of William and Mary, 118.
- Sarsfield, Colonel Patrick; returned for Dublin to the Irish Parliament of James II., 202. His station and character, 202. His services, 202, 429. Avaux's opinion of him, 202. Abandons Sligo, 245. Appointed to the command of a division sent into Connaught, 429. Raised to the rank of brigadier, 429. Present at the battle of the Boyne, 628. Accompanies James in his flight to Dublin, 636. His resistance at Limerick, 666. His despondency, 669. His surprise of the English artillery, 669. His popularity with his countrymen, 671.
- Sawyer, Sir Robert; his opinion on the Coronation Oath Bill, 117. note. His case brought before the House of Commons, 524. His connection with the State Trials of the preceding reign, 525. His manly stand against Popery and despotism, 525. Called by the House to account for his conduct in the case of Sir Thomas Armstrong, 525. Excepted from the In-

- demnity and expelled from the House, 528. Returned to the new House of Commons by the University of Cambridge, 536.
- Scarborough, Mayor of; tossed in a blanket, 242.
- Schomberg, Frederic, Count of (afterwards Duke); appointed to the command of the English contingent in Holland, 38. Created a Knight of the Garter, 120. Orders Kirke to relieve Londonderry, 235. note. Entrusted with the command in Ireland, 411. Formation of his army, 411. His wonderful popularity in England, 412. His undoubted Protestantism, 412. A grant of a hundred thousand pounds awarded to him by the Commons, 413. Returns thanks to the House, 414. Lands in Ireland, 414. Takes Carrickfergus, 421. Joined by three regiments of Enniskilleners, 421. Advances into Leinster, 422. Declines a battle, 423. Frauds of the English Commissariat, 424. Entrenches himself near Dundalk, 425. Conspiracy and pestilence in his camp, 426, 427. Goes into winter quarters at Lisburn, 430, 431. His immense losses of men, 430, 431. Various opinions about his conduct, 431. His admirable despatches, 432. Meets William at Belfast, 615. Gives the country information by signals of the King's arrival, 616. The battle of the Boyne, 629. Schomberg's sullenness, 629. His brave charge with the Huguenot regiments, 633. Killed at their head, 633. Honours paid to his corpse, 638.
- Schomberg, Meinhart (afterwards Duke of Leinster); commands the right wing of the English at the Boyne, 629. Turns the left flank of the Irish army, 629.
- Scotch Presbyterian Eloquence displayed; the book so called, 702.
- Scotland; the Revolution more violent in Scotland than in England, 246. The Church established by law odious to Scotchmen, 247. King William dispenses with the Act depriving Presbyterians of the elective franchise, 248. Elections for the Convention, 248. "Rabbling" of the Episcopal clergy, 248, 249. Dismay of the Scottish bishops, 251. State of Edinburgh, 252. Question of an Union between England and Scotland raised, 253. Prosperity of Scotland under the free trade regulations of Oliver Cromwell, 254. Its grievances under Charles II., 255. A commercial treaty with England proposed, 255. Blessings of the Union of 1707, 257. Opinions of William III. on Church government in Scotland, 259. Comparative strength of religious parties in Scotland, 261. Meeting of the Convention, 271. Dishonesty and timeserving conduct of the statesmen of Scotland at the time of the Revolution, 273. Letter from James to the Estates, 377. Committee of the Convention to frame a plan of government, 385. Resolution proposed by it, 285. Abolition of Episcopacy in Scotland, 287. The Scotch Coronation Oath revised, 291. William and Mary accept the crown of Scotland, 291. Discontent of the Covenanters, 293. Ministerial arrangements in Scotland, 294, 295. Scotland a poor country at the time of the Revolution, 295. War breaks out in the Highlands, 300. State of the Highlands at that period, 300, 301. Goldsmith's comparison of Scotland with Holland, 302. note. Hatred of Englishmen for the very sight of the tartan, 310. Reflux of public feeling, 310. Tyranny of clan over clan, 311. Hatred of the neighbouring clans for the Campbells, 318, 319. Dundee and Balcarras ordered to be arrested, 328. Dundee gathers the clans, 330. Mackay's indecisive campaign in the Highlands, 333. War again breaks out in the Highlands, 354. Panic after the battle of Killiecrankie, 365. The Highlanders defeated at Dunkirk, 375, 376. Dissolution of the Highland army, 377. State of the Lowlands, 377. Intrigues of the Club, 377. The Courts of Justice reopened, 378. Improvement in the aspect of things in Scotland, 681. Intrigues of Montgomery with the Jacobites, 681. War in the Highlands, 683. The spirit of the clans effectually cowed, 685. Ecclesiastical legislation, 688. General acquiescence in the new ecclesiastical polity, 700. Complaints of the Episcopalians, 701. The Presbyterian non-jurors, 703.
- Scott, Doctor John; his visit to Jeffreys in the Tower, 402.
- Scottish troops; revolt of the, under Schomberg, 39. Defeated and taken, 41, 42. Scourers; in the time of William III., 58. Seal, the Great; inconveniences with which it was borne by any but lawyers, 21. Confided to a Commission, 22.
- Sedley, Catharine; her letter to King James, 725.
- Sedley, Sir Charles, 556. His talents, 557. Separatists; their union with their opponents against Popery, 70.
- Session, Court of; Sir James Dalrymple

- appointed president of the, 296. Sittings of, recommenced, 378.
- Settlement, Act of; repealed by the Irish Parliament of James II., 209.
- Seymour, Sir Edward; his opposition to the Act 1 W. & M. sess. 1. c. 1., 30, 31. Takes the Oath of Allegiance, 33. Declares his support of measures for tranquillizing Ireland, 225. Defends Lord Halifax against the attacks of John Hampden, 515.
- Shales, Henry, Commissary General; his speculations, 424. Cry raised against him, 502.
- Sharp, John, Dean of Norwich; his interview with Lord Jeffreys in the Tower, 402. Appointed one of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 470.
- Sharpe, Archbishop, 276.
- Sherlock, Doctor William, 88. Becomes a nonjuror, 456. His distinguished character, 456, 457. His voluminous writings, 457. His contest with Bossuet, 457. His name mentioned with pride by the Jacobites, 458. Indulgence shown to him, 534.
- Shields, Alexander; appointed chaplain of the Cameronian regiment, 345. His opinions and temper, 345, 346.
- Shovel, Sir Cloudealey; conveys King William across to Ireland, 601.
- Shrewsbury, Charles, Earl of; appointed to a secretaryship in the first government of William III., 19. His youth, 19. His antecedents, 19, 20. His quarrels with Nottingham, 64. Absents himself from Parliament during the discussion on the Sacramental Test, 110. His position in the Whig party, 516. Implores King William to change his intention of leaving England, 530. His apostasy to the cause of the Jacobites, 554. Sent to wait on the Countess of Marlborough respecting the Princess's party in Parliament, 565. Scandalous reports respecting him and the Countess, 565. His extraordinary conduct, 594. His peculiar character, 594, 595. His mother, 596. His treason, 596. His mental distress, 596, 597. His resignation of the seals, 597. His illness, 597. Renewal of his allegiance, 613. His offer to retrieve the honour of the English flag, 613.
- Sidney, Algernon; reference to, 105. His attainder reversed, 382.
- Sidney, Henry Viscount; the vacant seals given to him, 719. Mortification of Caermarthen at the appointment, 720.
- Sky, the Macdonalds of, 331.
- Slane Castle, 621.
- Slane, Lord; his part in the siege of Londonderry, 200.
- Slesford, battle of, 41.
- Sligo; musterings of the Englishry at, 139. Taken by the Roman Catholics, 160. Abandoned by Sarsfield, 245. Occupied by Kirke, 245.
- Smith, Aaron; appointed Solicitor to the Treasury, 26. His scandalous antecedents, 26.
- Smith, Adam, 85.
- Society, English; state of Court society at the time of the Revolution, 60.
- Solmes, Count of; commands a brigade of Dutch troops under Schomberg in Ireland, 411. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 625, 627, 630, 632. Appointed Commander in Chief of the army in Ireland, 662.
- Somers, John (afterwards Lord Somers); his opinion respecting the revenue derived by James II. from the parliamentary grant, 34. His reflections on the injustice of the Lords' decision on the sentence on Oates, 388. Chief orator in the free conference with the Lords, 390. His proud appearance in the Painted Chamber, 392. Draws up a manifesto from the Commons to the Lords, 393. Brings up the report on the Corporation Bill, 517. His disapproval of the violence of the Whigs, 522. His speech on the bill for declaring the acts of the late Parliament valid, 568.
- Somers Tracts, the, 120. note.
- Somerset, Duke of; carries the Queen's crown at the coronation, 118. Entertains King William at Marlborough, 677.
- Sophia, Duchess of Brunswick Lunenburg; proposed by William III. as the successor to the Crown of England, 394.
- Sovereign; position of in the government, before and after the Revolution, 13.
- Spain; her alliance with England, 122. Manifesto of, declaring war against France, 127. Joins the coalition against France, 436.
- Spectator; the, reference to, 98. note.
- Spires; cathedral of, destroyed by the French under Marshal Duras, 124.
- Sprat, Thomas, Bishop of Rochester; plights his faith to William III., 32. Carries the chalice at the coronation of William and Mary, 118. One of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 471. His doubts about the legality of the Commission, 472. Absents himself, 472.
- Stamford, Earl of; appointed Chairman of the Murder Committee, 512.
- States General; letter from William III.

- to the, on his accession, 3. Its manifesto, declaring war against France, 127. Its treaty with England and the Emperor of Germany, 436.
- Stewart, James; promises made to him by Mary of Modena, 696.
- Stewart of Ballenach. See Ballenach.
- Stewarts of Appin; their alarm at the power of the Earl of Argyle, 318. Muster of the, at Lochaber, 330. Their arrival at the camp at Blair, 369.
- Stillington, Dean of St. Paul's; one of the Ecclesiastical Commission, 470. Appointed to the see of Winchester, 485.
- Stirling Castle, 365.
- Strahane, Claude Hamilton, Lord; summons the people of Londonderry to surrender, 196. Returns unsuccessful, 197.
- Strafford, Earl of; included in the Irish Act of Attainder, 216.
- Strathspey, rout of, 684.
- Succession to the English crown; difficulties respecting the entail, 384. Suggestion that it should be entailed on Sophia of Brunswick, 394. The amendment rejected by the Commons, 395.
- Surplice; question of, discussed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 473.
- Supplies; power of the House of Commons over the, 35.
- Supremacy; Oath of, 31. 82. Discussion on the bill for settling the, 99. See Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy. Act of, repealed in Scotland, 689.
- Sutherland, Colonel Hugh; marches against Enniskillen, 227. Declines an action, and retreats, 227.
- Sutherland, Earl of; introduces into the Scottish Parliament the law fixing the ecclesiastical constitution of Scotland, 690.
- Swift, Dean; his misrepresentations of Burnet's conduct, 78. note. His opinion of Carstairs, 298. note.
- Talbot, lying Dick, 134. See Tyrconnel.
- Talmash, Thomas; second in command to Marlborough under Prince Waldeck, 437. His gallantry at the head of the Coldstreams, 437.
- Tangier battalions; the two, at the battle of the Boyne, 624.
- Tarbet, Mackenzie Viscount; his advice to government respecting the politics of the Highlands, 332. His letter to Lochiel, 333.
- Teignmouth; ravaged by the French under Tourville, 652.
- Tempest (a Jacobite agent from St. Germans); seized on the road to London, 593.
- Temple, John (son of Sir William); employed on business of high importance, 150. Introduces Richard Hamilton as an agent to negotiate with Tyrconnel, 150, 151. Commits suicide, 176.
- Temple, Sir William; his retreat, 14. His rural seclusion, 150. His son John, 150. 176.
- Tenison, Archbishop; one of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 470. Entrusted with the business of examining the Liturgy, 475.
- Test Act; views of Nottingham concerning the, 80. Attempt to relieve the Dissenters from the, 99. Desire of the Whigs for its abolition, 108. How viewed by the Tories, 109. Rejection of a motion in the Lords for the abolition of, 110.
- Theban legion, the, 458, 459.
- Thomas, M.; his report on the defences of Londonderry, 189. note.
- Tillotson, Archbishop; his sermon on Evil Speaking, 53. His popularity as a preacher, 468. His character as a theologian, 469. His importance in the Ecclesiastical Commission, 470. Appointed to the Deanery of St. Paul's, 486. Promised the Primacy, 486. His astonishment and sorrow, 486. His testimony to the humanity and kindness of Halifax, 512, 513.
- "To horse, brave boys, to Newmarket, to horse," the song, 50.
- Tolbooth, the, of Edinburgh, 317. 328.
- Toleration; the question of, 80. The Toleration Bill of Nottingham, 80, 81. Relief granted by the Act, 83.
- Toleration Act; review of its provisions, 84. et seq. One passed by the Parliament of James II. at Dublin, 208.
- Torbay; an army of volunteers formed near, to repel the threatened French invasion, 652, 653. The command taken by Lord Lansdowne, 653.
- Tories; their submission, without loyalty, to William and Mary, 7. Dangers apprehended from them, 10. Their share in the first government of William, 15. Their jealousies and quarrels with the Whigs in all the departments of the government, 65, 66. Take the part of the clergy at the discussion respecting the Acts for settling the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, 104, 105. 109. Their view of the Sacramental Test, 108. Their satisfaction at the result of the Comprehension Bill, 112, 113. Their annoyance at the introduction of the Corporation Bill, 517—520. Their muster in the House to oppose the bill, 521. Their triumph, 522.

- Their renewal of the debate on the Indemnity Bill, 523. The bill thrown out, 524. Defeated on the discussion on the Indemnity Bill, 528. Their gratitude to William for proroguing Parliament, 539. A general election, 535. Four Tories returned for the City of London 535. Predominance of the Whigs in 1690, 537. Their parliamentary bribery, 545, 546. The Tories admitted to a share in the government, 550. Their majority in the House, 567. The war between the two parties, 567. Debates on the Abjuration Bill, 570—575.
- Torrington, Arthur Herbert, Earl of; receives signal marks of the royal favour, 433. His maladministration of the navy, 433. His vices, 501. His anger at being removed from the Admiralty, 550. His displeasure appeased, 550. Takes command of the fleet in the Downs, 604. Joined by the Dutch under Eversten, 604. Retreats before the French towards Dover, 605. Ordered to give battle to Tourville, 605. Baseness of his arrangements of battle, 607. Gives the French battle, 608. Defeated, and escapes into the Thames, 608. Sent to the Tower, 614. Consultation amongst the Judges relative to his trial, 714, 715. Brought to trial and acquitted, 716. Dismissed by the King from the service, 717.
- Torture; always declared illegal in England, 289. Declared by the Scottish Claim of Rights to be, under certain circumstances, according to law, 290, 700.
- Tourville, Admiral of the French fleet; cruises in the British Channel, 603, 604. His seamanlike qualities, 604. Accepts battle from Torrington, 608. Defeats Torrington at the battle of Beachy Head, 608. His timidity of responsibility, 609. His unopposed range of the Channel, 649. His galleys and their crews, 649. Their practical value, 650. Ravages Teignmouth, 652. His exploits inglorious and impolitic, 654.
- Tralee, 138.
- Transubstantiation; Declaration against, 82, 498.
- Treasurer, Lord High; administration of the office of, under William and Mary, 16.
- Treasury, Board of; constitution of the, by William III., 20. Solicitor to the, importance of the duties of, 26. Corruption of, in the time of Charles II. and James II., 26. Appointment of Aaron Smith, 26. Quarrels and jealousies of the Commissioners of the, 65.
- Treby, Sir George; appointed Attorney General, 23. His opinion respecting the - revenues of James II., 34. His suggestions for suppressing the revolt of the soldiers at Harwich, 40.
- Treves; saved from destruction by Madame de Maintenon, 124.
- Trevor, Sir John (Master of the Rolls); his early life and gambling propensities, 548. His friendship with Jeffreys, 548. His popularity among High Churchmen, 548. Undertakes the agency for parliamentary bribery in the House of Commons, 549. Elected Speaker of the Commons, 556.
- Turenne, Marshal, 49. His ravages in the Palatinate, 123.
- Turks; their alliance with France against the great coalition, 436. Their military tactics in Servia and Bulgaria, 436. Victories gained over them by Prince Lewis of Baden, 436.
- Turner, Bishop of Ely; becomes a non-juror, 453. His letter to James, 725.
- Tutchin, John; his visit to Jeffreys in the Tower, 401.
- Tyrconnel, Lord Deputy; entrusted with the designs of James II. in Ireland, 129. Hopes of the Irishry centred in him, 133. Lying Dick Talbot, 134. His alarm at the news of the Revolution, 146. His affected clemency, 146. Opens a negotiation with William III., 149. He determines to raise the Irish, 152. Sends Mountjoy and Rice on an embassy to St. Germans, 153. Arrives at Cork to meet James II., 172. His improvements at the Castle, 174. Carries the sword of state before James, 175. Created a Duke, 183. Advises James to remain in Dublin, 183. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 627, 630, 631. Marches out of Dublin, 641. Retires to Limerick, 663. Disapproves of holding Limerick, 667. Mean estimate entertained by the French officers of his military qualities, 667. Retires to Galway, leaving a strong garrison in Limerick, 668. Goes with Lauzun to France, 676.
- Tyrconnel, Lady (Fanny Jennings), 639.
- Ulster, alarm of the people of, 133. et seq. Mountjoy sent to pacify, 146. March of Hamilton against the Protestants of, 162. Origin of the annual donation of the government to the Presbyterians of, 618.
- Uniformity, Act of; a grievance of the Dissenting clergy, 82.
- Union between England and Scotland; question of, raised, 253. Blessings of the union of 1707, 257.

- Verrio; his frescoes at Hampton Court, 56.
- Versailles; farewell visit of James II. to, 166.
- Victor Amadeus, Duke of Savoy; joins the league against France, 710. His military fame, 710.
- Walcourt; skirmish between the Dutch and English and French at, 437.
- Waldeck, Prince; his command of the Dutch and English in the war with France, 437. Defeated at Fleurus by the French under the Duke of Luxembourg, 609: 661.
- Walker, the Reverend George; calls the people of Londonderry to arms, 191. Appointed one of the governors of the city, 195. Unjustly accused of concealing food, 233. His statue on the bastion, 239. The Walker Club, 240. His arrival in London, 503. His popularity, 503. His gracious reception by the King at Hampton Court, 503. Accused of publishing a partial account of the siege of Londonderry, 504. Obtains a grant from the Commons for the widows and orphans of the defenders of Londonderry, 505. Thanked by the House for his zeal and fidelity, 505. Appointed by William III. to the see of Derry, 626. Accompanies the army of William, 627. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 633. Shot dead, 633.
- Walker, Obadiah; his impeachment for treason, 511. Sent to the Tower, 511.
- War declared against France, 127, 128.
- Ward, Seth, Bishop of Salisbury; his death, 75.
- Warrington, Earl of; Delamere created, 529. See Delamere.
- Wash, the; state of the country near the, at the time of the Revolution of 1688, 41.
- Waterford; taken by William III., 662.
- Watford; Scotch troops of James II. stationed near, 268.
- Weems Castle, 364.
- Wellington, Arthur, Duke of; reference to him, 414.
- West Indies; trade of, at the time of the Revolution, 256.
- Wharton, Lord; his speech on the Abjuration Bill, 374.
- Whigs; their attendance at Court on the evening of the proclamation of William and Mary, 1. Peculiarity of their fondness for the new monarchs, 11. The Whig theory of government, 11. Their share in William's first government, 15. Their jealousies and quarrels with the Tories in all the departments of the government, 65, 66. Concessions of the government to the, 81. Division among the, respecting the Comprehension Bill, 99. Oppose the clergy at the discussions on the Acts for settling the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, 103. Their view of the Sacramental Test, 109, 110. Their objections to an Ecclesiastical Commission for revising the liturgy and canons, 110, 111. Pleasure which the result afforded them, 113. Elections for the shires and burghs to the Scottish Convention almost all fall on Whigs, 248. Their support of the Duke of Hamilton in the Convention, 272. They elect him as President, 273. Conduct of the Whig Club of Edinburgh, 377, 378. Reverence with which the Whigs of England regarded the memory of Lord William Russell, 380, 381. Redress obtained by some living Whigs for injuries sustained during the preceding reign, 382. Dissatisfaction of the Whigs with William, 404. Their views of the end for which all governments had been instituted, 449. Their ostentatious triumph over the divided priesthood, 450. Their violence and vindictiveness in the House of Commons, 509. Their crafty conduct on the Corporation Bill, 516. Their successful opposition to the Indemnity Bill, 525—528. Their triumph over the Tories, 528. Their opposition to the King going to Ireland, 530. Lesson they receive from the King, 532. A general election, 534. Their artifices and exertions in the City of London, 535. Four Tories returned for the City, 535. Their parliamentary bribery, 545, 546. Discontent of the Whigs at the successes of the Tories, 551, 553. Dealings of some of the Whigs with Saint Germain, 553. Their wary tactics in the House, 567. Their artful parliamentary war with the Tories, 567. Their only victory during the whole session, 569. Stormy debates on the Abjuration Bill, 570, 575. Their vindictiveness against the nonjuring bishops, 659. Their animosity against Caermarthen, 718.
- White, Thomas, Bishop of Peterborough; becomes a nonjuror, 453.
- Whitehall; scene at the Banqueting House of, 1. Removal of the Court from, to Hampton Court, 54. William and Mary accept the Crown of Scotland in the Council chamber at, 291, 292.
- Wicklow; lawlessness in, at the time of Tyrconnel's rebellion, 157.
- Wight, Isle of; the hostile fleets of England, Holland, and France lying off, 604.

Wildman; appointed Postmaster General, 26.

Wilkie; reference to his Epigoniad, 312.

William III.; proclaimed King, 1. Gorgeous assemblage at the palace on the evening of the proclamation, 1. Rejoicings throughout England and in Holland, 2. His letter to the States General, 3. Begins to be anxious and unhappy, 3. Discontent of the clergy and army, 3. Abatement in the public enthusiasm for the new monarchs, 4. Reactionary feeling amongst the people, 5. Dangers of the government, 7. William's reservation to himself of the direction of foreign affairs, 14. His peculiar fitness for foreign negotiation, 14. His selection of his first ministers and high officers, 15. His state visit to the Convention, 29. His proposal to abolish hearth money, 32. His measures for the suppression of the revolt of the soldiers at Ipswich, 41. His politic clemency to the leaders of the rebellion, 42. His unpopularity, 48. His manners, 48, 49. His talents, 49. How regarded by foreigners, 49. And by Englishmen, 50. His freezing manners compared with the vivacity and good nature of Charles II. and the sociableness of James II., 50. His incivility to the Princess Anne, 51. His bad English, 51. Incapable of enjoying our literature, 52. His dislike of backbiting, 52. His ill health, 54. Removes from Whitehall to Hampton Court, 55. Architecture and gardening his favourite amusements, 55. His palace of Loo, 55, 56. Discontent excited by the removal of the Court from Whitehall, 57. Resides for a time at Holland House, 58. Purchases Kensington House, 58. His foreign favourites, 58. His reputation lowered by the maladministration of the two previous reigns, 62. Dissensions among his ministers, 63. His difficulties in consequence, 67. His excellent management of the department of Foreign Affairs, 67. Religious disputes, 69. His views respecting ecclesiastical polity, 74. Appoints Burnet to the vacant see of Salisbury, 75. His conduct respecting the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy proposed to be exacted from the clergy, 108. Promises Parliament to summon Convocation, 113. Passing of the Coronation Oath, 117. His coronation, 117, 118. Honours bestowed by him, 120. Accomplishes the formation of the great coalition against France, 122. Receives an address from the Commons condemning the barbarities of Lewis in the Palatinate, 128. War declared against France, 128.

Manifesto of William, 128. Effect in Ireland of his march to London, 146, 147. His negotiation with the Lord Deputy Tyrconnel, 147. Open rebellion of Tyrconnel, 152, et seq. Landing and reception of James II. in Ireland, 170—174. Discontent of the multitude in England with the neglect of William, 175. His letter to the brave and loyal inhabitants of Londonderry, 239. Dispenses with the Act depriving Presbyterians of the elective franchise, 248. Outrages of the Covenanters in Scotland, 249. Their conduct offensive to William, 251. His opinions about Church government in Scotland, 259. His recommendations to the Scottish Episcopalians, 260. His letter to the Convention, 262. His instructions to his agents in Scotland, 263. Absurd story about William and Viscount Dundee, 269. note. His letter to the Scottish Convention read, 278. They return him a letter of thanks, 282. They proclaim him King in Edinburgh, 287. Accepts the Crown of Scotland, 291. His wisdom and dignity on this occasion, 292, 293. His ministerial arrangements in Scotland, 294, 295. War breaks out in the Highlands of Scotland, 300. The war suspended, 301. The Covenanters' scruples about taking up arms for King William, 343. The battle of Killiecrankie, 360, 361. William proposes to the Lords that the crown should be entailed on Sophia of Brunswick, 394. Acts as sponsor to the son of the Princess Anne, 395. Dissatisfaction of the Whigs with William, 404. Preparations for a campaign in Ireland, 410. William's difficulties in foreign affairs, 435. Meeting of Convocation, 476. The clergy ill affected towards him, 477. His warrant and message to Convocation, 491. His inquiry into the state of the navy, 500. His displeasure with the Tories respecting the Corporation Bill, 519. His anxiety respecting the result of the bill, 521. His weariness of the contentions of Whigs and Tories, 528. He purposes to retire to Holland, 529. Induced to change his resolution, 530. Determines to proceed himself to Ireland, 530. The Whigs oppose his going, 530. He prorogues Parliament, 531, 532. Gratitude of the Tories to him, 533. His conciliatory policy, 534. Changes effected by the King in the executive departments, 537. His scruples respecting parliamentary bribery overcome, 547. Hopes of the Jacobites from his absence in Ireland, 555. His speech on the opening of Parliament, 556.

Not on good terms with the Princess Anne, 560. His visit to the Lords during the debate on the Abjuration Bill, 574. He sends down an Act of Grace, 575. Peculiar character of his clemency, 578. He prorogues the Parliament, 579. The Queen appointed to administer the government during his absence in Ireland, 579. His preparations, 586. Despatches from St. Germain to the English Jacobites delivered into his hands, 591. His difficulties, 593. His selection of nine Privy Councillors for Mary's guidance, 597. His serious remarks on Clarendon's conduct, 599. His interview with Burnet, 600. Sets out for Ireland, 600. His embarkation at Chester, 601. Lands at Carrickfergus, and proceeds to Belfast, 615. Meets with Schomberg, 615. His joyful reception by the Protestants, 616. His arrival made known to James, 616, 617. His military arrangements, 617. Bestows a donation on the dissenting divines of Ulster, 618. His popularity with his army, 618, 619. His march southward, 619. Reaches the valley of the Boyne, and surveys the Irish lines, 622. State of his army, 624. Alights and breaks fast at Oldbridge, 625. Is wounded, 626. The battle of the Boyne, 629. Heads the left wing himself, 630. Crosses the river, 633. Charges in the thickest of the fight, and changes the fortune of the day, 633. His disregard of danger, 634. James's flight to Dublin, 635. Losses sustained by the two armies, 637. Advances to Duleek, 638. Surrender of Drogheda, 638. William enters Dublin, 643. Receives the news of the defeat of Waldeck, 661. Writes a kind letter to Waldeck, 661. Intelligence brought of the defeat of Torrington's fleet, 661. Takes Waterford, and the fort of Duncannon, 662. Sets out for England, 662. Returns to the army at Cashel, 663. Receives a letter from the Queen respecting a proposal of Marlborough for reducing Cork and Kinsale, 663. Orders Marlborough to execute his plan, 663. Marches to besiege Limerick, 668. His artillery surprised by Sarsfield, 669, 670. Repairs his loss, and proceeds to batter the town, 671. His army suffers from the rains, 674. The assault on Limerick unsuccessful, 674. Raises the siege, 675. Returns to England, 676. His progress to London, 677. His reception, 677. His difficulties with the Scottish Parliament, 685. His exclamation respecting Scotland and Hamilton, 686. Distrust and abhorrence with which he regarded Montgomery, 698. The opinion of the nonjurors of Scotland respecting William, 704. His dissatisfaction with the ecclesiastical arrangements in Scotland, 707. Sends a Commissioner and a letter to the General Assembly, 708. Respectful answer of the Assembly, 709. State of affairs on the Continent, 709. Victor Amadeus of Savoy joins the coalition, 710. William reassembles the Parliament, 711. His speech from the throne, 711. His dismissal of Torrington from the service, 717. Gives the vacant seals to Sidney, 719. A Jacobite conspiracy, 720. The plot discovered, 726. The Parliament adjourned, 728. Sets out for the Congress of the Hague, 728.

Williams, Doctor (afterwards Bishop of Chichester); his diary of the proceedings of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, 471. note.

Winnington, Solicitor General, 13.

Wirtemberg, Duke of. See Charles Frederic, Duke of Wirtemberg.

Wolsey, Colonel; sent to the assistance of the Enniskilleners, 242. His qualifications, 242. His staunch Protestantism, 242. Defeats Mountcashel at the battle of Newton Butler, 243. His share in the battle of the Boyne, 625.

Wood's money; allusion to, 216.

Worcester, William Thomas, Bishop of; dies a nonjuror, 453.

Wren, Sir Christopher; his additions to Hampton Court, 56.

Wycherley, William; his Country Wife, 52.

York, Archbishopric of; its former poverty, 483. Its present importance, 484.

Zulestein; appointed Master of the Robes, 24.

END OF THE THIRD VOLUME.

LONDON:

Printed by SPOTTISWOODE & Co.
New-street Square.