

THUMB-NAIL SKETCHES

Right Hon.
NIVASA SASTRI

By the same Author and Editor :

THE OTHER HARMONY

A collection of the author's writings and speeches.

The following reviews of the book will be of interest :

The Sunday Leader, Allahabad :

"... A distinguished son of India, Mr. Sastri is one of the most excellent and chaste writers of English prose. English language comes to him as to the manner born. He is a finished orator and has achieved distinction not only in India, but in foreign countries also. This is a valuable collection of some of his best speeches and writings. The essays contained in the book are thought-provoking and reveal a thinking mind at work. The book deserves to be read by old and young alike."

The Mail, Madras :

"... Mr. Srinivasa Sastriar's writings and speeches embodied in this volume are in a harmonious style, and are fine examples of his mastery of English prose and his Chrysostomic eloquence... A philosopher-statesman, with a broad outlook and liberal sympathies, he speaks from wide knowledge and rich experience... They are alike instructive and thought-provoking."

The Indian Review, Madras :

"... Here are 15 papers of charming interest, ... are frankly autobiographical in which Sastri reveals himself with admirable naivete, all the more attractive for the glamour of his style and his method of approach... We are glad to see included in this selection, Sastri's masterly speech on the Joys of Freedom, delivered on the occasion of his accepting the Freedom of the City conferred by the Corporation of London in 1921."

PUBLISHER'S NOTE

When "The Other Harmony" by the Right Hon. V. S. Srinivasa Sastri was published, a number of requests to publish further selections of his speeches and writings were received. This book is in response to such requests. It is greatly regretted that, owing to difficulties in getting paper, it has not been possible to use uniform and better quality of paper for printing this book.

Another book of the Author, "Lectures on the Ramayana" is in the press and will be published shortly.
