APPENDIX No. III.
MEMORANDUM BY THE PRESIDENT ON THE INFLUENCE OF INSANITARY CONDITIONS UPON THE EXTENSION AND VIRULENCE OF PLAGUE IN INDIA, DISAGREEING WITH CERTAIN OF THE CONCLUSIONS OF THE MAJORITY OF THE COMMISSION.
—	1	Introductory	446
I.		EXAMPLES OF INSANITARY CONDITION OF TOWNS, VILLAGES AND HOUSES:
"	2	Description of insanitary condition of towns and villages	446
"	3	Description of insanitary condition of dwelling-houses	449
"	4	Difficulties in effecting sanitary improvements in India	452
"		Much sanitary work has been accomplished	452
II.		OPINIONS THAT THE SPREAD OF PLAGUE IS DUE TO GENERAL INSANITARY CONDITIONS:
"	5	Opinions that the spread of plague is due to general insanitary conditions	452
"	6	Necessity for separating insanitary conditions outside from those inside of dwellings	453
III.		OPINIONS THAT THE SPREAD AND VIRULENCE OF THE PLAGUE ARE CHIEFLY DUE TO INSANITARY CONDITIONS WITHIN DWELLINGS:
"	7-8	Opinions that the spread and virulence of the plague are chiefly due to insanitary conditions within dwellings.	454
IV.		ADDITIONAL FACTS SUPPORTING THE VIEW THAT INSANITARY CONDITIONS INSIDE DWELLINGS ARE THE CHIEF CAUSES OF THE SPREAD AND VIRULENCE OF PLAGUE:
"	9	Incidence greater in lower than in higher flats of many-storeyed houses	457
"	10	Freedom from plague of inmates of well-ventilated and lighted houses	458
"	11	Inmates of the better class houses attacked if ventilation is inadequate	458
"	12-13	Incidence of plague not necessarily co-relative with density of population	459
"	14	Certain classes of people who live in well-ventilated houses or in the open air have been little affected.	460
"	15	Immunity of Europeans	460
"	16	Large incidence amongst domestic servants	460
"	17	Immunity and prevalence among different castes	460
"	18-21	Immunity in evacuation camps due to good ventilation	461
"	22	Immunity in camps not due merely to removal from the infected place or site	462
"	23	Immunity in camps cannot be explained by disinfection with chemical substances	463
"	24-25	Failures of evacuation camps due to overcrowding and insufficient ventilation	463
"	26-27	Plague does not extend in hospitals. Excluding moribund cases hospital mortality *relatively low.	464
"	28-29	Immunity in hospitals contrasts remarkably with great and rapid extension in native houses.	466
"	30	Causes of immunity in hospitals	466
"	31-32	Absence of extension in hospitals not due to disinfection by chemical substances	467
"	33	No extension of plague when patients treated in their own residences if in well- ventilated rooms.	468
"	34	Plague does not extend much in ships	468
"	35-40	Occupation during the night of infected houses which are inadequately ventilated is a potent cause of extension of plague.	468
"	41	Comparison as to the incidence of plague between sanitary and insanitary towns and between sanitary and insanitary houses in the same town.	470
"	42	Contrast between outbreaks of plague in Hardwar and Banga	470
"	43-44	Contrast between outbreaks of plague in Hardwar and Rohri	471

Section.	Para.	Summary.	Page.
IV.	45-46	Results of geological and meteorological investigations support the view that conditions inside of houses are the dominating features in the propagation of plague.	472
"	47-48	Relationship between climate and plague	472
"	49-51	Cyclical character of successive local outbreaks not explainable by temperature or rainfall.	473
"	52	Growth and decline of local outbreaks prove that spread and virulence of plague chiefly depend on insanitary conditions within dwellings.	474
"	53-57	Influence of filth	474
"	58	Overcrowding chiefly operative by increasing the vitiation of the atmosphere within houses.	476
"	59	Almost no infection when exposure is in open air; almost no infection when exposure is in well-ventilated places.	476
"	60	Infection promptly produced in badly-ventilated places	477
"	61	Mere number of people of less importance than effects of bad ventilation	477
"	62	Overcrowding not co-relative with number of persons	477
"	63	Conclusions respecting overcrowding	477
"	64	Criticisms of statements relied on to disprove above-conclusions	477
V.		THE CONDITIONS WITHIN DWELLINGS WHICH INCREASE THE EXTENSION AND VIRULENCE OF PLAGUE, AND THE MANNER IN WHICH THEY DO SO:
"	65	Experience has proved that insanitary conditions within houses are the chief causes of the spread and virulence of plague. How far corroborated by experimental investigation.	479
"	66	Conditions within houses that increase the infectivity and virulence of plague	479
"	67	Effects on the plague micro-organism of deficiency of light	479
"	68	Effects on the plague micro-organism of deficiency of ventilation	479
"	69	The required moisture and warmth provided in unventilated rooms	479
"	70	Deficiency in amount of oxygen is favourable to the vitality of the plague bacillus	480
"	71	Excess of carbon dioxide increases the vitality and virulence of the bacilli	480
"	72	Earth and crowding floors increase the vitality and virulence of plague bacilli	480
"	73	Insufficiently lighted and ventilated dwellings so affect individuals as to increase their susceptibility to plague.	481
"	74	Effects of insufficient sunlight on persons exposed to infection	481
"	75-76	Effects of deficient ventilation on persons exposed to infection	481
VI.		SUMMARY OF PRECEDING EVIDENCE IN SUPPORT OF CONCLUSION THAT INSANITARY CONDITIONS WITHIN HOUSES ARE THE CHIEF CAUSES OF THE EXTENSION AND VIRULENCE OF PLAGUE:
"	77-80	Summary of evidence that insanitary conditions within houses are the chief causes of the extension and virulence of plague.	482
"	81	General conclusion	484
VII.		GREAT IMPORTANCE OF IMPROVING THE SANITARY CONDITION OF DWELLINGS:
"	82-84	Great importance of improving the sanitary condition of dwellings	484
"	85	Sanitary improvement of dwellings would render the suppression of the epidemic possible by practicable and relatively simple measures.	485
"	86	Satisfactory sanitary conditions greatly lessen the difficulties of prevention and suppression.	486
"	87	Satisfactory sanitary conditions greatly reduce the danger of spread by rats	486
"	88	Summary	487
VIII.		MINIMAL SANITARY REQUIREMENTS FOR DWELLINGS:
"	89	Minimal sanitary requirements for dwellings	487
"	90	Until means for sufficient ventilation and lighting provided, reduction of "overcrowding" of little use.	487
"	91	Minimal requirements not great and always obtainable	487
"	92	Difficulties in effecting the minimal sanitary improvements	488
"	93	Much sanitary reform effected since the epidemic began	488
"	94-95	The mere removal of filth shown to be inadequate as a plague measure	488
"	96	Financial difficulties	489
"	97	Opposition of the people	490
"	98	Structural sanitary improvements effected without opposition	490
"	99-101	Causes of general existence of unventilated houses	491
IX.		HOW THE NECESSARY SANITARY REFORMS MAY BE CARRIED OUT:
"	102	How the necessary sanitary reforms may be carried out	491
"	103	In places already affected or threatened with plague	491
"	104	In places remote from centres of infection	492
X.		A NEW SANITARY ORGANISATION REQUIRED FOR INDIA:
"	105-6	A new sanitary organisation required for India	492
"	107-14	Scheme proposed by Commission	493
APPENDIX No. IV.
MEASURES FOR THE DISCOVERY OF PLAGUE DEATHS.
MEMORANDUM OF DISSENT BY DR. WRIGHT AND DR. RUPPER.
	1	Dissent not on matters of detail but on matters involving grave practical issues	495
	2	Measures for discovery of plague cases during life ineffectual, except in small places and in exceptional circumstances.	495
