TO MY PARENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This study was undertaken at the Gokhale Institute of Politics and Economics, Pune, under the supervision of my Guru, Professor A. S. Nadkarni, presently, Director of Indian School of Political Economy, Pune. I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere gratitude to him for sparing time for me despite his extremely busy schedule. This work would have never taken this shape without his critical comments and valuable suggestions. Besides this capable guidance, his ever smiling face and gentle manners inspired me to work more and more with great pleasure. I shall ever remain grateful to him.

I would like to express my deep sense of gratitude to my other Guru, Professor B. S. R. Rao, Reserve Bank of India Professor of Finance at the Gokhale Institute, who in spite of his extremely busy schedule, devoted his precious time in reading considerable portion of the draft on which he gave very insightful and constructive comments. I have no words to express my gratitude to him for seeing the work through to completion during a difficult passage of time, when Professor A. S. Nadkarni was seriously ill.

I am deeply indebted to the authorities of His Majesty's Government, Nepal, particularly Chief Secretary

Shri K. D. Adhikary (then Finance Secretary), Finance Secretary
Shri L. B. Shreshta, Commerce Secretary, Shri D. P. Gautam
(then Additional Secretary, Ministry of Finance), Shri S. N.
Shah, Additional Secretary, Ministry of Finance, Shri N. R.
Tiwari, Director General, Tax Department and Smt. Saraswati Shreshta, Chief, Revenue Administration Training Centre, for granting me study leave and other facilities to complete this study.

I am extremely grateful to the authorities of Gokhale Institute of Politics and Economics, Pune for providing me with institutional facilities.

I am very much beholden to Dr. S. Sriraman, Reader at the Gokhale Institute and Dr. R. Narayanswamy, Lecturer at the Gokhale Institute, for having gone through the earlier draft of some of the chapters of the study and making a number of suggestions and also for their friendly advice and help throughout the preparation of this study.

I am highly indebted to Shri D. B. Sardesai, Lecturer at the Gokhale Institute and Smt. Vidya Kher for their help for computer work.

I am thankful to my friend, Dr. Tapas Kumar Sen, senior economist at the National Institute of Public Finance and Policy, New Delhi, for providing materials as and when required.

I must convey my grateful thanks to the retired personnel of His Majesty's Government, Nepal like Saradar

Bhim Bahadur Pandey, Shri Toran Bahadur Shah, Shri Purushottam Rajbhandari and Shri Madhuvan Prasad Upadhyaya, who provided the historical account of commodity taxation. Similarly, my sincere thanks are due to the personnel working in the Ministry of Finance, Customs, Excise and Tax Departments and different field offices under these departments for supplying information about different aspects of commodity taxation and for the kind help they rendered during the period of data collection.

My acknowledgements would be incomplete if I forget to mention here my thanks to the authorities of Government of India, Central Board of Excise and Customs, particularly, Deputy Collectors, Shri T. K. Jayaraman, Pune, and Smt. Sunipa Basu, New Delhi, and Assistant Collectors Shri V. R. Kumare, Pune, and Shri B. K. Juneja, New Delhi, for providing information and materials regarding different aspects of commodity taxation in India.

I shall fail in my duty if I forget to mention here my hearty thanks to the Librarian and the staff of the Servants of India Society's Library, for their ever-helping attitude and courtesy.

My special thanks are due to Shri S. K. Athale, who patiently, efficiently and neatly typed several drafts of this study.

My wife Anita, not only inspired me to continue my study from the day of our marriage, but also took on herself an immeasurable burden during the preparation of this study. This piece of work would never have been initiated and completed without her constant inspiration, exemplary patience, great sacrifice and deep understanding. Her inspiring letters, which almost came at the rate of one a day during my stay at Gokhale Institute, always kept me in good spirits. In fact, mere words cannot express my indebtedness to her.

Sweet remembrance of my son Utsab and daughter Upasana, who were born whilst this study was in progress and ample desire to listen to their babbling actuated me to complete this work as early as possible. They deserve special thanks from the depth of my heart.
