

Dhananjayrao Gadgil Library

GIPE-PUNE-108033

Supplement
to

ELECTRONIC COMPUTATION OF HUMAN DIETS

VICTOR E. SMITH

(This supplement contains the tabular material, beginning with Chapter III and continuing through the Appendices.)

MSU BUSINESS STUDIES 1963

Bureau of Business and Economic Research
Graduate School of Business Administration
Michigan State University, East Lansing

LIST OF TABLES

Supplement Table	Supplement Page	Supplement Table	Supplement Page
III-1 The Wolfe Quadratic Diet: Daily Expenditure for an Adult Male at August, 1939, Prices.....	1	V-1 How to Increase the Levels of Individual Nutrients: Midget Diet	31
III-2 Brown's British Working Class Diets - Weekly Amounts for One Person	2	V-2 Changes in the Nutrients Provided by Each Food when Ascorbic Acid is Increased by One Decigram (Scarce Nutrients Only).....	32
III-3 The Smith Midget Model Diet with Cooking Aids--For a Family of Three for Four Weeks, at May, 1955, Prices in Lansing, Michigan	3	V-3 Marginal Costs of Nutrients.....	33
III-4 Smith Models: Complementarity Restrictions.....	4	V-4 How to Increase the Levels of Individual Nutrients: Large Model Diet	34
III-5 Smith Models: Commodities Required in Predetermined Amounts	5	V-5 Nutrient Effects of Substitutions Made to Increase Calcium (Scarce Nutrients Only).....	36
III-6 Small Model: Maximum Consumption Limits.....	5	VI-1 Net Marginal Costs of Meeting Requirements for Exact Quantities	37
III-7 Small Model Solution for a Family of Three for Four Weeks at May, 1955, Prices in Lansing, Michigan.....	6	VI-2 Net Marginal Costs of Meeting Minimum Requirements: Large Model	38
III-8 Large Model: Maximum Consumption Limits.....	7	VI-3 Net Marginal Costs of Observing Maximum Limits.....	40
III-9 Large Model: Minimum Conventional Requirements.....	8	VI-4 The Marginal Costs of Conforming to Complementarity Restrictions	41
III-10 Large Model Solution for a Family of Three for Four Weeks at May, 1955, Prices in Lansing, Michigan.....	10	VI-5 Costs of Complementarities Involving Flour: Small Model.....	42
IV-1 Nutritional Elements Provided by Each Food: Midget Model....	12	VI-6 Allocation of Total Diet Cost by Categories.....	43
IV-2 Percentage of Each Nutrient Requirement and of Total Expenditure that is Provided by Each Food: Midget Model.....	12	VII-1 Marginal Efficiencies and the Stigler Gap: Foods in the Large Model Solution.....	44
IV-3 Nutritional Elements Provided by Each Food: Small Model.....	14	VII-2 Marginal Efficiencies and the Stigler Gap: Selected List of Foods Not in the Optimal Diet.....	46
IV-4 Percentage of Each Nutrient Requirement and of Total Expenditure Provided by Each Food: Small Model.....	16	VII-3 The Thirty-One Commodities That Can Be Introduced at the Least Expense per Pound.....	47
IV-5 Nutritional Elements Provided by Each Food: Large Model.....	18	VIII-1 Marginal Utilities of Nutritional Elements, in Terms of Money	49
IV-6 Percentage of Each Nutrient Requirement and of Total Expenditure Provided by Each Food: Large Model.....	24	VIII-2 Marginal Utilities (in Terms of Money) of the Nutritional Components of Foods in the Diet.....	50
IV-7 Percentage of Nutrient Requirement Supplied by Diet.....	30	VIII-3 Marginal Utility (in Money) of Capacity to Satisfy Specified Consumption Habits or Taste Preference Requirements.....	53
IV-8 Principal Sources of Nutrients in Each Diet (Major Source Listed First)	30	VIII-4 Marginal Utility Allocations for Meats.....	54

Supplement Table	Supplement Page
VIII-5 Marginal Utility Allocations for Flours.....	55
IX-1 Maximum-Saving Changes in Activity Levels Associated with Relaxing Certain Restraints by One Pound.....	56
IX-2 Maximum-Saving Changes in Activity Levels Associated with Relaxing the Minimum Quantity Requirements on Groups of Commodities by One Pound.....	60
IX-3 Maximum-Saving Changes in Activity Levels Associated with Relaxing Requirements for Specific Commodities by One Pound...	64
IX-4 Least-Cost Changes in Activity Levels Associated with Introducing Selected Foods Not in the Optimal Diet.....	70
IX-5 Least-Cost Ways of Adding Variety to the Diet - The Thirty-One Substitutions that Can Be Made at the Least Expense per Pound	82

Supplement Table	Supplement Page
X-1 Seasonal Model: Maximum Consumption Limits.....	91
X-2 Solutions of the "Seasonal" Model: Items Specifically Required by the Model.....	92
X-3 Solutions of the "Seasonal" Model: Items Not Specifically Required by the Model.....	94
X-4 Cost of a Given Diet when Purchased at Each of the Four Sets of Prices	98
X-5 Seasonal Variation in the Marginal Costs of Nutrients.....	99
A-1 Nutrients per Pound and per Dollar.....	100
B-1 Solving a Diet Model.....	102