PREFACE

I am greatly indebted to Mr. A. H. Longhurst, head of the Archaeological Survey of Ceylon, for his permission to publish the photographs of the Kantaka Cetiya, the Anuradhapura "Moonstone," the Thuparama and Lankatilaka at Polonnaruwa and of Sigiriya. I am also grateful to Mr. Aloysius Perera for allowing me to reproduce his photographs of the leopard and of the tank in the jungle. The remaining photographs were taken by myself.

Travels in the North

by KAREL ČAPEK

Translated by M. and R. Weatherall

Illustrated. Cr. 8vo. 7s. 6d.

Čapek travelled north beyond the Arctic Circle because he wanted to see at last the lands of his boyish dreams, and of his life-long friends, Kierkegaard, Jacobsen, and the others, and also because the silvery and cool birch-trees, the aconites, the moss, and the sparkling waters appeal to him strongly. He tells of his impressions in the generous style of a smiling philosopher and there is great mellowness and depth in his observations.

Introducing Britain

by THOMAS BURKE, S. P. B. MAIS, and others

Illustrated. Cr. 8vo. 7s. 6d.

"A collection of impressions of British life and landscape, this book is an outstanding event in the production of travel literature . . . the book should serve not only as an introduction to Britain for the visitor, but also as a contribution to our own knowledge of our country. . . . Subjects have been cleverly selected, and photographs are of a high standard. . . . All that is best in English life and scenery is described, and the reader can obtain, by reading well-written essays, an impression and understanding of England such as no guide-book could offer . . . exceptionally satisfying travel book."—Tourist

A Tour in Northumbria

by DOUGLAS GOLDRING

8½ × 6½ in. wide; with 28 photographic illustrations.

7s. 6d.

Many people hurry through Northumbria intent only on arriving somewhere else. Mr. Goldring, however, went there on a leisurely tour for no other reason than to see what it was like. He found busy cities, quaint market towns, hamlets, and fishing villages. The countryside varied between remote, lovely moorland, thickly wooded valleys, and sandy sea-coast. Castles, border fortresses, and old ecclesiastical buildings with their long romantic histories proved absorbingly interesting. All these things are described vividly and lucidly. Mr. Goldring has the experienced traveller's knack of picking out the essential characteristics of places seen.

This book about Northumbria is packed with local information and sensible advice on what and what not to see, where to go for the best sport, and where to stay. It also gives lightly and entertainingly a story of life as it is in the two most northerly counties of England to-day.

From My African Notebook

by DR. ALBERT SCHWEITZER

Author of My Life and Thought, Christianity and the Religions of the World, etc.

Translated by Lilian Russell

Illustrated. Cr. 8vo. 5s.

In this little volume, written in the vein of his ever-popular On the Edge of the Primeval Forest, Dr. Schweitzer, from his unique wealth of experience, gives us a rich medley of history, reflection, folklore, marriage and birth customs, and stories. His keen sense of humour has made the book intensely amusing, but at the same time it adds much to our understanding of primitive mentality and should not be missed by anyone concerned with Africans. The chapter on Taboos and Magic is of special interest and helps us to realize in what a state of spiritual bondage pagan peoples may live. It will be news to many people that the hospital at Lambaréné occupies the site of Aloysius Horn's African home. A whole chapter is devoted to Trader Horn and his contemporaries. Altogether a most enlightening work, though light enough to be enjoyed even by intelligent children.

Language Hunting in the Karakoram

by E. O. LORIMER

Illustrated. Demy 8vo. 12s. 6d.

In an almost inaccessible part of the Karakoram, in the extreme north of British India, on the frontier of Afghanistan and Chinese Turkestan, lives an entirely self-supporting peasant people, the Burusho of Hunza. They have been ruled by their own royal family for at least six hundred years; they have no machines and almost no money, but their social organization is as admirable as their material culture is primitive. Mrs. Lorimer and her husband lived for a year amongst them and were the first white people to learn their difficult language, which is apparently unrelated to any other speech, alive or dead. Mrs. Lorimer tells of the delightful life amongst these people, of the beauty of the Karakoram and the adventurous journey through high mountains that she and her husband made to get there. There are many very beautiful photographs.

The Waters of the West

by KENNETH PRINGLE

Demy 8vo. 12s. 6d.

"For three and a half years Mr. Pringle was a schoolmaster in Jamaica. He made good use of his eyes and ears during that time. Now in a book that is brilliantly written he throws light on the causes of the discontent that led to recent disturbances."—Reynolds News

Maltese Memories

by ERIC BROCKMAN

Illustrated. Cr. 8vo. 6s.

To most Englishmen who have not had the necessity to live in Malta, the name conveys little more than a place of strategic importance, a fortified harbour and ships of war. To a lesser degree it is associated with the Knights of St. John. But relatively few know that Malta has a people all its own, with traditions and customs as unique as they are picturesque, or that it was not until after the Great War that the island took its first hesitant step into the twentieth century. Lt.-Commander Brockman has, in this volume, recorded briefly and colourfully the romantic history of the island from the time of the Phoenicians, and has much to tell too of the Maltese people, their life and laws and customs, their songs and festivals. Very little has been written of Malta and Lt.-Commander Brockman's book is badly wanted.

Sweden: Ancient and Modern compiled and edited by ROLF GRUAERS

Foreword by VERNON BARTLETT

Demy 8vo. 5s.

This book, which is at once a concise history and a practical guide-book, aims at making Sweden better known to the English-speaking world. The conditions of present-day Sweden are shown against a background of centuries of development, and the lively and attractive style in which the book is written does not preclude the incorporation of a great deal of exact information which will help the reader to form a true and clear conception of the land and its people. The book is profusely illustrated and includes a number of maps and diagrams.

The Green Edge of Asia

by RICHARD PYKE

Illustrated. La.

"What he saw he recorded with an artist's intuition. Their books so short that reward the reader so handsomely—and few books of travel, one feels, should be longer. In these sketches of things seen, felt, and heard, we get more genuine information, more intelligent appraisal, than in a library—full of conscientious wanderings. There is no padding in the little record, and few things that are not reported at first-hand."—Sunday Times

Down River

A CANOE TOUR ON THE SEVERN AND THE THAMES

by G. M. BOUMPHREY

Author of Along the Roman Roads, The House Inside and Out, etc.

Narrow Cr. 8vo. 4s. 6d.

G. M. Boumphrey's delightful book Along the Roman Roads will be remembered with pleasure by thousands of readers as well as by his countless listening public. Down River describes his adventures and impressions of a voyage down the Severn and Upper Thames in a portable canoe. The broadcasts on which the book is founded proved one of the most popular features of the Talks Programmes during the past summer. Here is an opportunity to recapture the enjoyment they gave.

The book contains a number of attractive photos by the author.

A Vagabond's Way

by NANCY PRICE

With numerous line-drawings and 17 half-tone illustrations. Cr. 8vo. 5s.

Miss Nancy Price is well known for her work in connection with the People's National Theatre. She combines her wide knowledge of drama and the theatre with a deep love for the lakes, fells, and valleys of the north of England, and in A Vagabond's Way (now re-issued by this firm in a new and cheap edition) she writes of leisurely rambles in Westmorland and Cumberland, not as a tourist but as one who really knows the Lake Country in all its moods, and who understands and appreciates the people who live there.

Where Shall We Go This Year?

AN UNBIASED GUIDE TO EAST COAST RESORTS

by G. H. BOSWORTH

Illustrated. Cr. 8vo. 2s. 6d.

Nearly all the existing guides to seaside resorts are issued by prejudiced parties. The railway companies and the local Town Councils and Chambers of Commerce can hardly be expected to take a purely objective view of the places on which their prosperity depends. This guide, in addition to giving a comprehensive account of the attractions and advantages of all the resorts on the East Coast, is perfectly frank about their unattractive sides and their disadvantages. Thousands who have been misled by optimistic "puffs" of So-and-So-on-Sea and have wasted a holiday in an unsuitable place will welcome this volume.
