POLICE REPORT

OF THE

BOMBAY PRESIDENCY

INCLUDING

SIND AND RAILWAYS

FOR THE YEAR 1909.

From

MICHAEL KENNEDY, Esq.,
Inspector-General of Police,
Bombay Presidency, Poona;

To

J. H. DeBOULAY, Esq., C.I.E., I.C.S.,
Secretary to Government,
Judicial Department, Bombay.

Office of the Inspector-General of Police;
Poona, 22nd August 1910.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit the Annual Administration Report for the Submission of the Report. Bombay Presidency, including Sind and Railways, for the year 1909, together with the statements noted below:—

Statement A—Parts I and II.
Statement B—Parts I and II.
Statements C, D and E.

The material for writing the Report was not complete till the 9th July 1910 on which date the Commissioner's Review on the Sind Report was received.

2. I was Inspector-General of Police throughout the year. Mr. F. M. Gadney was my Assistant up to 14th September 1909; Charge. for the remainder of the year Mr. F. C. Griffith. The Deputy Inspectors-General in charge of the Ranges and Sind were as under:—

In the Northern Range, Mr. W. L. B. Souter (for some 3 months) and Mr. Digby Davies; in the Southern Range, Mr. L. H. Spence; and in Sind, Mr. H. M. Gibbs (for 10 months) and Mr. R. MacTier.

Crime—(Cognizable and Non-Cognizable).

3. The total number of cognizable and non-cognizable cases reported during the year was 115,518 as against 109,493 in 1908—a net increase of 6,020 cases. On the Presidency Railways only has there been any diminution; in all the territorial divisions there has been a rise which is most marked in the Northern Division. Out of the 115,518 cases reported, 67,332 were under the Indian Penal Code and 48,186 under Class VI, as compared with 64,553 and 44,945 respectively in 1908.

Statement A—Part I.

4. The total number of cognizable cases reported to the Police or taken up suo motu was, under "All Classes," 31,526 as Police Cognizable Cases. against 33,616 in the previous year. Of these, 31,609 cases were under the Indian Penal Code and 2,917 under Class VI as against 30,757 and 2,859 respectively in 1908.

The distribution of reported crime under the Indian Penal Code during the past three years is demonstrated in the subjoined table:—

	Northern Division.	Central Division.	Southern Division.	Ind.	Railways.
1909	5,365	8,519	4,937	10,713	2,015
1908	4,973	9,314	4,710	9,859	1,900
1907	4,191	7,997	4,578	8,153	1,416

Reported crime under Class VI shows a slight rise of 28 cases only.

The following tabular statements supply interesting information and comparisons between the figures relating to reported cognizable crime as a whole and the more serious forms of offences dealt with by the Police in particular:—

Reported cognizable crime of all kinds.

1905—34,084; 1906—33,022; 1907—29,617; 1908—33,646; 1909—34,526.

	1905.	1906.	1907.	1908.	1909.
(1) Murder and attempts at murder and culpable homicide ...	500	520	514	599	614
(2) Dacoity and preparation therefor ...	267	231	222	237	206
(3) Robbery ...	676	694	662	669	687
(4) Lurking house-trespass with intent to commit an offence ...	5,989	5,952	5,900	7,146	7,455
(5) Cattle thefts ...	4,172	3,983	3,409	3,154	3,477
(6) Ordinary thefts ...	11,237	11,218	9,542	11,839	11,669

Cases during 1909 in the above table are divided between the Divisions and Railways in the Presidency as under:—

	(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)
Northern Division ...	139	25	95	1,383	147	1,914
Central Division ...	154	76	284	2,004	308	3,529
Southern Division ...	137	79	160	1,343	129	1,754
Sind ...	175	20	132	2,633	2,893	2,760
Presidency Railways...	9	6	16	92	...	1,712

As the figures in this paragraph include false and mistaken complaints as well as true, comments based thereon in respect to the rise and fall in crime during 1909 would only be misleading, so criticism is reserved till the statistics relating to true cases are dealt with lower down.

5. Including cases pending from the previous year, complaints for disposal totalled 39,618 as against 38,619 in the year 1908. Police cases for disposal. The Police refused investigation (section 157 (b), Criminal Procedure Code) in respect to 1,066 complaints, so the balance—38,552 cases—remained for investigation. 36,539 of the 39,618 cases for disposal were Indian Penal Code cases, while 3,079 fell under Class VI. There were thus a rise of 1,007 cases under the Indian Penal Code, a drop of 8 under Class VI and a net increase of 999 cases.

Comparing the figures relating to Indian Penal Code cases alone with those for the preceding year, an increase is noticeable throughout the Presidency except in the Central Division and is most marked in Sind which contributes no less than 983 cases to the general rise.

It has been explained above that the Police refused to investigate 1,066 mistaken, trivial and manifestly untrue complaints in the exercise of the discretion allowed them by section 157 (b) of the Criminal Procedure Code. Similar figures for the two preceding years are 1908—566 cases; 1907—299 cases.

There is nothing in the District or Divisional reports to indicate that the rules sanctioned in Government Resolution in the Judicial Department, No. 5542, dated the 1st October 1909, have been otherwise than judiciously worked, and having given careful attention to the subject during my tours of inspection, I have no hesitation in stating that they have been of great assistance to the subordinate Police. Time and energy formerly expended on infructuous investigations have been saved for more important duties, clerical work has been reduced and the public has been spared the inconvenience of attending investigations which were either uncalled for or could not possibly have led to any useful conclusions. There is, moreover, reason to believe that the freer use of the section which has been brought about by the guidance investigating officers have received in the matter of exercising their discretion to refuse investigation, has resulted in the registration and proper disposal of a number of petty and mistaken complaints which but for the introduction of the rules would, under the old practice, have been burked.

The ratio of investigations refused to cases for disposal is as follows:— for 1909—2·6, for 1908—1·4.

6. Cases struck off during the year under notice numbered 11,632 as against 11,196 in 1908; 11,267 were under the Police cases struck off. Indian Penal Code and 365 under Class VI as against 10,823 and 373 respectively in the preceding year. Sind yields the largest number of cases (3,708); the Central Division contributes 3,524; the Southern and Northern Divisions 2,057 and 1,870 respectively; and Railways 473. Contrasted with figures of the previous year, Sind and the Northern Division show a rise of 626 and 186 cases respectively. Elsewhere there is a decline more or less marked.

Actually and proportionately, more complaints have been struck off this year than last, but the rise in both cases is small and the fluctuations are normal. The percentages of complaints struck off as false or mistaken to complaints for disposal are, since the year 1906, as under:—

32·84 in 1906; 30·37 in 1907; 28·99 in 1908; and 29·3 in 1909.

As bearing on the opinion expressed in the last portion of paragraph 8 of my Annual Report on the Crime Returns for 1908, I would mention that although undoubtedly improvement has taken place in the working of the system of classification of cases since it was introduced in the year 1888, some of the District Reports this year show that many complaints are still being incorrectly classified and that more care and discrimination in this respect will have to be observed before the statistics of true crime and false and mistaken complaints can be regarded as entirely reliable.

7. Maliciously false cases totalled 1,418 in the year under report showing an increase, due to some extent to the rise in the Maliciously false cases. complaints for disposal, of 160 cases over the previous year. Of the 1,418 cases, the Northern Division accounts for 166, the Central Division 399, the Southern Division 193, Sind 644 (not 582 as the Deputy Inspector-General of Police in his report states) and Presidency Railways 11. This year again there has been an appreciable increment of 175 cases in Sind.

Maliciously false complaints are most rife in Sind where the proportion to cases for disposal stands at 4·9 (against 3·8 in 1908) as compared with 2·3 in the Northern Division, 3·7 in the Central Division, 3·3 in the Southern Division and ·4 on Railways, the percentage for the entire Presidency being 3·58 as against 3·25 in 1908 and 3·11 in 1907.

In 367 cases in the Presidency proper sanction was accorded to prosecute those who had made false complaints as against 385 similar prosecutions in 1908. In 280 of the 367 cases, prosecutions were launched during the year, but in 97 only were convictions obtained. In Sind, only 71 sanctions to prosecute were accorded in 644 cases and but 16 cases ended in conviction.

As the District Magistrate, Poona, remarks—

“Co-operation between the Magistrates and Police in the attempt to deal with the evil of false complaints is extremely desirable, but the direction in which it is required is not clear.”

8. The number of cases in which the provisions of section 250 of the Criminal Procedure Code were made use of have advanced from 93 in 1906, 117 in 1907 and 115 in 1908 to 156 in the year under report. The improvement is marked and is probably due to the expression of opinion contained in paragraph 4 of Government Resolution in the Judicial Department, No. 4855, dated the 26th August 1909, and to the fact that the Police have orders to remind Courts of the existence of this useful section of the law in every case classed after trial as not true and not maliciously false. This year again it is Sind with 74 cases which heads the list.

The Commissioner, Central Division, remarks that—

“In Sholapur the continued efforts of the District Magistrate to ensure the use of powers given by the law for the discouragement of vexatious proceedings bore good fruit; the results in the other districts are unsatisfactory, judging by the figures. Except, however, for some remarks of a general nature by the District Magistrate, Poona, there is no explanation of the apparent neglect of the section by subordinate magistrates. I propose to investigate the point in respect of two of the worst districts, namely, Sátára and West Khándesh, by drawing the District Magistrates' attention to the latest orders as contained in paragraph 4 of Government Resolution No. 4855 of the 26th August 1909 and requiring them to report the number of cases proved to be vexatious after trial and the reasons why no penalties were imposed on the complainants in such cases.”

The District Magistrate, Dhárwár, expresses the opinion that—

“Section 250 is a disheartening one to a Magistrate. Though it is so seldom used as often as not deterrent orders are reversed on appeal.”

The Commissioner, Southern Division, remarks that it is but rarely that section 250 can be used by Magistrates in cases sent up by the Police.

In the cases in which the provisions of section 250 of the Criminal Procedure Code were made use of, compensation aggregating Rs. 3,155 was awarded to the aggrieved parties against Rs. 2,726 in the previous year.

In Sind the section is not being made use of appreciably in districts other than Hyderabad, and several of the District Magistrates are drawing the attention of their magistracy to the matter.

Though noticeably more complaints, which turned out to be frivolous and vexatious after trial, have been dealt with this year under section 250, Criminal Procedure Code, the number is far too small if it is accepted that the classification, in the large number of complaints classed after trial as not true and not maliciously false, is correct.

9. Eliminating cases “struck off” and those “pending” at the close of the year, real cognizable crime under “all classes” amounted to 23,069 cases as against 22,517 in 1908: True Police cognizable cases. 20,589 of these were classed under the Indian Penal Code and 2,480 under Class VI, as compared with 19,965 and 2,552 in the previous year. There was thus a net rise of 552 cases of true crime dealt with by the Police in the year under report as compared with an increment of 3,933 in the previous year. The Northern and Southern Divisions and Sind all contribute to the increase, while in the Central Division and on the Presidency Railways there was a decline. The increase in crime is distributed over all classes except Class VI and is most marked under Class III (serious offences against person and property)—297 cases—and Class V (minor offences against property)—203 cases.

A detailed examination of the figures indicates that true murders numbered 286 as against 275 in the previous year, Sind contributing the largest number (97), the Sukkur District being chiefly responsible for the increase. In the Central Division there is a satisfactory drop of 17 murders. The rise in the Northern Division is shared mostly by Kaira and Thána, though Ahmedabad, Panch Maháls and Broach are all bad in this respect; in the Central Division matters were not so bad in 1909 as in the previous year. In the Southern Division murders have advanced from 70 to 72, the Dhárwár District where the number rose from 20 in 1908 to 36 in 1909 being entirely responsible. There were 3 true murders on the Presidency Railways against nil in 1908.

True dacoities—146 against 186 in 1908—have been everywhere markedly less numerous during the year under report. The Central Division and Southern Division contributed 62 and 34 against 70 and 60 respectively in the previous year. In Sind the number dropped from 26 to 12.

True robberies were also less frequent in 1909, the numbers having declined from 359 in 1908 to 332 in the year under report and improvement is most marked in the Central Division. Sind returns 22 more and the Presidency Railways 6. In the Northern Division the increase in Ahmedabad, Kaira and Broach Districts is described by the Commissioner, Northern Division, as "very disquieting." In the Sind districts, Karachi and Larkana are the districts where robbery was most rife.

Real burglaries rose from 5,687 in 1908 to 6,107, showing an increase of 420 cases. In Sind and the Southern Division the increase is 318 and 179 respectively. In the Central Division only is there a drop of 114 cases.

Next in importance come true thefts which have been somewhat more frequent, the figures being 10,103 against 9,959 in 1908. Except in the Central Division where there were 139 fewer cases, there has been an increase, more or less marked, everywhere. Cases of receiving stolen property have remained practically stationary, i. e., 489 against 451 in 1908. The fluctuation is however on the right side.

In regard to the more serious forms of crime dealt with above, the following remarks are recorded by the Commissioners:—

The Commissioner, Northern Division, observes:—

"Probably life is nowhere held so cheap as in Kaira, perhaps, because of late years so many murder cases have remained undetected. Special measures for the repression of crime in this district may become necessary before long."

The Commissioner, Southern Division, in commenting on the very large number of murders in the Dhárwár District, quotes the Dhárwár Police Superintendent's remarks as below:—

"If I may be allowed to hazard an opinion, it is that of late years in so few cases has the extreme penalty of the law been exacted, that where faction disputes exist—and this may be taken as a sine qua non in practically all villages throughout the Dhárwár District—educated as well as less well-informed inhabitants of towns and villages do not hesitate to take the life of a troublesome relative or neighbour, feeling more or less sure that, if caught, their own life will not be required of them. On this point Mr. Hudson, the District Magistrate of Dhárwár, states: 'If memory serves, only one capital sentence has been passed in Dhárwár in the last 4 years less a few months.' Mr. Phillips' explanation may not be far out."

Further on, the Commissioner adds:—

"Serious crime in the three upcountry districts is very heavy as compared with that in the three coast districts. . . . Dhárwár, as usual, is the most criminal district and claims about half the serious crime in the Division."

The Commissioner in Sind observes:—

"It is satisfactory to note that dacoities have been practically stamped out in the Larkana District, the number of true cases for disposal in 1909 being 4 as compared with 20 in the previous year."

The rise in true crime under the Indian Penal Code shows an increase in the Northern Division everywhere except in Thana, where the falling off was to some extent counterbalanced by a large increase of offences under special laws—principally the Abkari Act. In the Bándra and Kurla Potas and the taluka of Salsette house-breakings and thefts have again gone up due, it is said, to the inability, and I might add the inadequacy, of the police force to cope with this class of crime.

In the Central Division the decrease is general, but is somewhat marked in the East Khándesh, Násik and Sholápur Districts, and is ascribed to a more favourable season and to better supervision over bad characters.

In the Southern Division all districts except Belgaum contribute to the rise which is put down principally—

"To more faithful registration of cases in which investigation was refused under section 157 (b), Criminal Procedure Code, and to a slight increase of criminality in the southern talukas of B'japur District where famine conditions prevailed for a time and in the Koldia District where the appearance of outside criminal gangs is said to be responsible for a number of house-breaking and theft cases in the talukas of Panvel and Mahád."

The increase under Class VI occurred chiefly in the Dhárwár District where greater energy on the part of the Excise staff is said to be the cause.

In Sind, all except the Karáchi and Upper Sind Frontier Districts added their quota to the rise, Sukkur being the largest contributor. The Commissioner agrees with the Deputy Inspector-General for Sind that crime is now "being more freely reported and systematically registered". The marked decrease in crime in the city of Karáchi was due to the strengthening of the local force and the improved system of night patrolling: another factor in the improvement here and in the district is said to be "absence of distress such as was caused by the floods of 1908".

10. On a slightly larger volume of true crime, 10,448 true cases under "All Classes" remained undetected during the year under review as compared with 10,029 in 1908.

The following table gives, in round figures, the ratios of undetected crime to true cases disposed of for the year 1909 and the three preceding years:—

Year.	Presidency Proper.				Sind.	Remarks.
	Northern Division.	Central Division.	Southern Division.	Railways.
1906	25	36	38	36	49	It was not till 1908 that the Sind Railways were transferred to Sind from the Punjab.
1907	26	39	41	31	52
1908	36	42	39	41	53
1909	35	43	33	49	57

The same percentages, again in round figures, for Sind as a whole for the same years compare with those for the Presidency Proper as under:—

Year.	Sind.	Presidency Proper.
1906	49	33
1907	52	37
1908	53	40
1909	57	39

Amalgamating the figures for Sind with those for the Presidency Proper, the proportion of undetected cases on the true crime disposed of in the entire Presidency during each of the past 4 years, is as follows:—

1906—38; 1907—41; 1908—44; 1909—45.

Thus it will be seen that it is due to the appreciably lower standard of detective efficiency among the Sind Police that the ratio for the Presidency as a whole is pulled down and that though during 1909 the Police in the Presidency excluding Sind have been able to show slightly better results than in 1908, the inclusion of the Sind figures has more than neutralized the slight improvement which has taken place outside the Province.

In respect to Sind and Indian Penal Code cases only, the ratio of undetected to true cases disposed of is, during the year under report, in districts 59 per cent. and on railways 77 per cent. (in round figures); the same proportions for the previous year are 57 per cent. and 59.

Judged by the last 4 years' figures for the Presidency Proper the standard of efficiency is, as is apparently the case in Sind, worst on the Railways and best on the whole in the Northern Division, though the Southern Division has beaten it this year and has the lowest record of undetected cases, namely 33 per cent.

Next to the Railways the Central Division shows the worst results.

The Commissioner in Sind observes :—

“It is to be regretted that the standard of efficiency is very low, but, as pointed out last year, no improvement is to be anticipated until the police force has been re-organized. The percentage of failure is again lowest in the Sakkur District, it is highest in the Sind Railway District, in which the localization of crime, especially thefts, presents peculiar difficulties.”

And in connection with the all-important question of undetected crime, the District Magistrate, Bijápur, very aptly observes :—

“In no part of the Presidency as far as my experience goes, do the police get any reasonable amount of assistance from the public, and in this district the attitude of the public is not merely apathetic but actively obstructive. Moreover, in many cases especially those of theft and house-breaking or house-trespass, detection is peculiarly difficult.”

Descending to details and in regard to the more important forms of crime, the statistics show that it is in the detection of burglaries, dacoities and thefts that the Police have been most unsuccessful this year, though slight improvement as compared with 1908 is noticeable in regard to the detection of the two former. In dealing with robberies the results are poor and show a very marked falling off this year. In homicides and attempts they are good, the figures indicating but slight variations from last year's.

The results are on the whole disappointing but in the Presidency Proper matters are by no means so bad as at first sight they appear from the combined figures for the Presidency as a whole and undoubtedly improvement has set in.

It is in the successful detection of burglaries and thefts that the police are particularly backward, especially so in Sind, and I think that perhaps this is, in a great measure, due in the Presidency Proper, and perhaps too in Sind, to the police working along time-honoured grooves and not being sufficiently alive to the activities of upcountry expert and professional criminals who, in innocent disguises and aided by the spread of communications and the confiding nature of the people, exploit the districts and railways of the presidency in more or less large gangs. As a rule the subordinate police know all about local criminals and bad characters but are wholly ignorant of depredators from beyond, how to identify them and recognise their methods of committing crime. I am, therefore, asking Superintendents to give this matter their careful attention, suggesting lines along which to work in order to checkmate the upcountry professional.

11. With a rise of 990 cognizable cases for disposal, the total number of cases either under investigation by the police or with magistrates at the close of the year, has but slightly increased, the excess over the previous year's figures, which were low, for the Presidency, under all classes, being 20 cases only.

Many of the pending cases were under disposal, being tried and awaiting final orders, by magistrates; in most of those with the police the complaints were received during the closing days of the year and the investigations could not therefore be completed.

The proportion of cases pending to cases for disposal stands as under :—

12·2 in 1909 against 12·4 in 1908, 13·8 in 1907, and 10·2 in 1906.

12. Dealing next with the results obtained by the police before the courts, out of 11,553 true cases disposed of by trial, 10,351 ended in conviction, giving a ratio of 89·5 as against 89·8 in the year 1908. The figures do not, however, include cases “struck off”—classed not true and not maliciously false—after trial. The high percentage (91 for Southern Division) of convictions is, in the opinion of the Commissioner, Southern Division, probably due to many of the cases ending in acquittal or discharge being “struck off”.

Under Indian Penal Code the proportion of convictions was 87·5 as against 87·7 in the previous year and excellent results have been obtained under all classes and in all forms of crime, serious and otherwise. Under Class VI the results leave practically no room for improvement, the proportion being 97·3 of convictions as against 97·5 in 1908. But owing to the fact that cases of undetected crime have been proportionately more numerous during the year under review, the ratio of cases ending in conviction to true cases disposed of, under "all classes," has further dropped to 44·8 from 47·5 in 1908.

Out of 230 true murders, convictions were obtained in 73 per cent. against 63 per cent. in 1908. Among territorial divisions, the Central Division again yields the highest ratio of convictions and the Southern Division shows marked improvement, the percentage having advanced from 41 in 1908 to 66·6 in 1909.

Sixty-six per cent. of the true dacoity cases sent to trial ended in conviction during 1909 against 73·0 per cent. in 1908, so dacoity prosecutions have not gone so well for the police as in 1908; in the Northern Division only has there been an improvement. The two dacoity cases on Railways remained undetected.

Under robberies, 80 per cent. of the cases tried ended in conviction as against 85 in the previous year. The Central Division saved the situation with an improved ratio of 92·8 under this head as against 80·8 in 1908. On the Presidency Railways five out of six tried, ended in conviction.

Of lurking house-trespass and house-breaking there were altogether 6,107 true cases; but of these only 1,422 were brought to trial, convictions being secured in 1,261 cases, giving a percentage of 88·6 against 89.

With respect to thefts—cattle and ordinary—the proportion of cases ending in conviction to cases tried is also practically the same, 92 as against 93 in 1908.

447 out of a total of 489 cases of "receiving stolen property" were placed before the courts, convictions being obtained in 412, the percentage of success being 92 as against 95 in the previous year. In dealing with cases of "receiving" the Railway Police have displayed considerably greater activity and secured better results in 1909 than in 1908.

In respect to true Police cases, a very important test of the efficiency, namely, the ratio of cases ending in conviction to true cases disposed of, stands as under for the year under report contrasted with that for three previous years:—

	1906.	1907.	1908.	1909.
Ratio of cases ending in conviction to true cases disposed of	54·13	50·7	47·5	44·8

Exclusive of Sind the proportion for the Presidency Proper stands at 51·2 against 52·9 in 1908, 55·9 in 1907 and 59·6 in 1906.

The circumstances therefore still, as pointed out in Government Resolution in the Judicial Department No. 72, dated the 7th January 1910, call for vigilance and close personal attention by supervising officers, to details in respect to the detective work of the police and the preparation of cases. The deterioration indicated by the ratios given above in respect to undetected cognizable true crime and cases ending in conviction to true cases disposed of is at first sight disquieting, but it is apparent rather than real; it is accounted for almost entirely by a drop in the proportions of cases "struck off," in other words to more correct classification, and in cases pending at the close of the year. Fewer true but undetected cases are now being "struck off" and side by side with this, investigations are being carried through with greater promptitude, fewer cases which are hopeless of detection being left at the end of the year to burden next year's returns as undetected crime. The fact, too, that during the last two years investigating officers have to a greater extent refused to investigate trivial, exaggerated or untrue complaints, has somewhat increased the proportion of undetected crime, all cases "refused" under section 157 (b), Criminal Procedure Code, being, though not investigated, regarded as true for statistical purposes. 99 per cent. of the cases refused, if investigated, would have been struck off during the year as false or mistaken; as it is, they are returned as cases of true crime not detected.

13. The results before Sessions Courts were on the whole satisfactory, the percentage of cases ending in conviction to cases tried remaining practically stationary, viz. 73.

Sessions Cases.

Altogether 836 cases were committed and 718 were tried, convictions being obtained in 524.

14. In accordance with Government Resolution in the Judicial Department No. 2196, dated the 26th April 1907, the following information is furnished regarding infanticide :—

Infanticide.

Twenty-one cases of infanticide were reported during the year, 7 from the Central Division and 14 from the Southern Division. Of the former, Poona and Satara return 3 each and Sholapur 1. Two of the 7 cases ended in conviction, 1 in discharge, the rest were pending. Of the 14 cases reported by the Southern Division, in 8 the mothers committed suicide by drowning themselves with their children to avoid disgrace. In another the mother, driven to despair over a domestic quarrel, jumped into a well with her child in order to commit suicide. The woman was rescued but the child died. The former was prosecuted and sentenced to 1 year's rigorous imprisonment. In the other 5 cases, illegitimate children were killed by their mothers to conceal disgrace. In 3 cases, the accused were tried, 1 was sentenced to transportation for life, another was discharged and the third case was pending. In the remaining 2 cases the accused were not brought to trial owing to want of evidence.

15. Offences dealt with by the Police under special and local laws have slightly advanced from 2,669 to 2,830 cases. The rise is most marked in the Northern Division and Sind; on the Presidency Railways there has been a large fall of 230 cases. 2,273 of the 2830 offences were brought to trial and 2,218 ended in conviction as against 2,166 and 2,120 in 1908. The ratio of cases convicted to cases tried was 97.5 as against 97.8 in the preceding year.

Offences under special and local laws.

During the year under report, with the approval of Government conveyed in Government Resolutions in the Judicial Department Nos. 3714, dated the 3rd July 1909, and 8199, dated the 5th September 1909, rules to ensure co-operation between the Police and the Excise Departments in cases of smuggling and other offences against the Excise laws were brought into operation.

16. The total number of true cases disposed of by magistrates without the intervention of the Police, during the year under report, was 8,373 as against 7,276 in 1908; of these 3,505 ended in conviction, the percentage of cases convicted to tried being 42 against 41 in 1908. There was a rise throughout except on Railways. The rise is most marked in the Northern Division.

Cognizable crime—Direct cases.

Writing in regard to the results obtained in his division, the Commissioner, Southern Division, remarks :—

"The percentages of conviction not only show no improvement over those of the previous year but are on the contrary slightly lower. This result is, as remarked last year, due to some extent to the failure on the part of the magistrates to examine complaints before issuing process."

STATEMENT A—PART II.

17. With nearly 1,000 more cases to deal with, the total number of persons arrested by the Police suo motu during the year of report has dropped from 27,167 to 27,111. Persons released without being brought to trial totalled 618, very nearly the same in number and proportion (2.2) as in the previous year. Persons for disposal, including those pending disposal at the commencement of the year, numbered 30,982 as against 30,715 in 1908. Of these the number actually placed on trial was 20,124 against 20,141 and 15,114 were convicted. The ratio of persons tried to persons for disposal was 84.3 as against 85.1 and of persons convicted to tried stood at 59 against 59.5. Slight improvement is noticeable in all the territorial divisions of the Presidency Proper, but some deterioration is apparent in Sind and on Presidency Railways.

Persons in police cases.

The percentage of persons convicted to tried under the Indian Penal Code for the Presidency works out to 55.2 which is almost the same as in the preceding year; under Class VI it has dropped from 80.1 to 82.5. During the year under review 702 persons were tried for murders and cognate offences against 908 in the previous year, and 47.4 as against 41.4 of these were convicted. In the Northern Division the percentage has dropped appreciably from 65.5 to 48.3. Elsewhere there is improvement. The number of persons tried for dacoities was 486 as against 473 in 1908 and the ratio of convictions has declined from 53 to 43.4. In the Central Division the fall is very marked, the percentage of conviction being 36.6 against 71 in the preceding year. In the Southern Division the results have been better.

453 persons as compared with 533 in 1908 were tried for robberies, the ratio of convictions to tried being 50.5 in 1909 against 47.4 in 1908. The highest ratio 63.3 per cent. is returned by the Northern Division, but in the Central Division only has there been any improvement; elsewhere the variation from last year's standard is slight.

For 'burglaries' 3,069 persons were tried and 2,032 or 66.2 per cent. convicted as against 3,042 and 2,021 or 66.4 per cent. in the preceding year. The fluctuations are small throughout except on Railways where 80 per cent. of the individuals tried against 50 per cent. in 1908 were convicted.

8,493 persons against 9,113 were tried for thefts and 69.3 per cent. against 70.2 were convicted. No striking variations are noticeable anywhere.

Altogether 946 persons were sent up to courts for receiving stolen property as against 818 in 1908, convictions being secured in 576 or 60.9 per cent. against 63.2.

In the Presidency Proper the results everywhere are good, ranging between 75.1 in the Central Division and 69.5 in the Northern Division. The ratio in Sind is low, 36.6.

1,349 persons were committed to the Sessions Courts in the Presidency Proper and on Railways. Of these, 59 per cent. were convicted against 62 per cent. in 1908.

In respect to persons convicted in all cognizable cases, the Commissioner in Sind remarks that the 45 per cent. convictions to tried as compared with 50 per cent. in 1908 indicates a low standard of efficiency.

The proportion of persons convicted to persons disposed of by trial is always a reliable test of police efficiency, for there is no room for inaccuracy due to "classification", "striking off" and the like in the disposal of persons as there is in the disposal of cases.

Judged by this test, the police in the Presidency as a whole have done fairly well during 1909, the proportion of convictions to tried being 59 per cent. Eliminating the figures for Sind, the same percentage is 61.6. The ratios for the preceding three years stood as under:—

	1906.	1907.	1908.
The Presidency including Sind ...	61.1	59.3	53.5
The Presidency Proper ..	65.2	62.4	63.

Statement B—Part I.

18. As compared with last year, non-cognizable reported crime has further increased from 68,576 to 72,619 cases. The rise runs through the returns of all the territorial divisions but is most marked in the Central Division.

The total number of cases for disposal was 76,315 as against 72,526 in the previous year : of these 26,622 or 34·8 per cent. ended in conviction. Of the cases for disposal 21,996 alone, as against 20,963, were under the head "voluntarily causing hurt".

Commenting on the rise of non-cognizable crime, the Commissioner, Southern Division, states :—

"Of the cases under the Indian Penal Code full one-third (2,075) belong to the Kolába District. This is curious in the light of the fact that Dhárwár only reports 692 cases. On examining the figures for the Kolába District, it appears that the majority (1,761) of the 2,075 cases were under sections 323 and 504 and were generally compounded. If the magistrates dismissed such cases on carefully examining the complainant instead of issuing process, much unnecessary annoyance to accused persons would be averted and the lodging of false or trivial complaints would be discouraged."

Statement B—Part II.

19. Persons who appeared before Courts in connection with non-cognizable cases numbered 133,222 as against 125,098 in 1908. Of these 70,546 were tried and 46·3 per cent. as against 52 in the previous year convicted. 8,783 persons were discharged after appearance, without trial, as against 6,349, nearly half the number (4,072) being returned by the Northern Division ; 6,060 persons remained under trial at the close of the year as against 5,163 in 1908.

Statement C.

20. In cognizable cases property valued at Rs. 13,75,692 was stolen during the year as compared with Rs. 17,00,287 in the previous year, showing a net decrease of Rs. 3,24,595. Everywhere except in Sind, where there is a rise of Rs. 68,646, less property has been stolen. In the Northern Division the value of property stolen has dropped from Rs. 5,10,631 in 1908 to Rs. 2,17,215. The value of property restored for the entire Presidency amounted to Rs. 4,16,660, yielding a percentage of 30·2 as against 45 in the previous year.

In the Northern Division, though the ratio of recoveries dropped from 68 to 33·15 during the year of report, it is the best in the Presidency. Next in order of merit come the Southern Division, Sind, the Presidency Railways, and last of all the Central Division. In all the territorial Divisions, except Sind, there is marked deterioration in the results obtained and nowhere are the latter, in my opinion, creditable.

The Commissioner, Northern Division, remarks :—

"The result is poor and no amount of explanation can make it anything else. Taken district by district and judging solely by figures, the results are best in Ahmedabad and Panch Maháls and worst in Kaira."

The Commissioner, Central Division, says :—

"There was a decrease (in the amount stolen) in every district of the Division, except East Khándesh, where the total was swollen by the value of property (nearly Rs. 31,000) alleged to have been carried away in a single house-breaking case. The marked deterioration in East Khándesh is accounted for by the failure of the Police to detect the criminals in the case referred to above, but it is to be noted that the District Magistrate doubts whether the case is a genuine one. As regards the Poona District, it is believed that much of the property, which could not be traced, was carried away by a gang of criminals in Poona City which has been broken up since the close of the year."

The Commissioner, Southern Division, does not consider the results of the year under this head as satisfactory.

The Commissioner in Sind observes:—

"It is satisfactory to note that greater success than in 1908 was attained in the recovery of stolen property."

The improvement in 1908 in regard to the recovery of stolen property has not been maintained in 1909 but, as explained in my annual report for the former year, the figure of recoveries was inflated by 2 heavy cases in Ahmedabad and 1 in Bijápur. The police have not been so fortunate this year with their heavy cases and the result is a drop in the ratio of recoveries to the former low level. The figures for previous years are:—

				Presidency including Sind.	Presidency. Proper only.
1906	...	...	...	36.63	33.6
1907	...	...	...	30.8	28.6
1908	...	...	...	45.	50.2

Preventive action.

21. Altogether 4,239 bad characters were proceeded against under the provisions of Chapter VIII, Criminal Procedure Code, during the year under report as against 4,417 in the previous year, and nearly 66 per cent. of these were called on to furnish security as against 63 per cent. in 1908. 1,866 furnished security, 206 were released on agreement under Regulation XII of 1827 and 1,219 went to jail in default. The number of persons proceeded against is smaller this year, but the results show that the quality of work done has improved.

The crime statistics from the year 1805 to 1909 inclusive furnish proof of the fact that crime fluctuates according as the police make more or less vigorous use of the provisions of the preventive sections of the law against bad characters.

The subjoined table furnishes detailed information in respect to action taken under Chapter VIII, Criminal Procedure Code, and Regulation XII of 1827:—

Divisions.		Total number of persons proceeded against.	Number ordered to furnish security.	Number who furnished security.	Number released on agreement under Regulation XII of 1827. The Commissioner, Southern Division, says the Police were more active in his Division during the year under report and he considers the results on the whole satisfactory.

The Deputy Inspector-General in Sial says:—

“In Karachi special efforts were made to rid the town of some of the more notorious bad characters, and with successful results, so that it is hoped that during the current year there may be a further fall in the number of house-breaking and theft and simple ‘theft’ cases.”

22. Among 15,414 persons convicted during the year under report, 2,478 were identified as having been previously convicted and 1,070 were classed as Habitual Offenders, against 1,031 for 1909.

The Criminal Investigation Department.

23. The Criminal Investigation Department, which includes the Finger Print Bureau, is under the Deputy Inspector-General of Police for Railways and Criminal Investigation.

Mr. O. A. B. Beatty acted as Deputy Inspector-General of Police for Railways and Criminal Investigation during the whole of the year: his Personal Assistants were Mr. Griffith for nearly 7 months and Messrs. E. P. White and Stanley during the remainder of the year.

Mr. J. A. Guider continued as Special Assistant to the Deputy Inspector-General of Police throughout the year, directing and controlling with his accustomed thoroughness and skill the Criminal Investigation staff in the many difficult and important cases they dealt with.

When the year opened, the staff consisted of 8 Inspectors, 10 Sub-Inspectors, 15 Head Constables, 20 Constables, and during the year a permanent addition of 3 Sub-Inspectors was made for duties of a special nature under the authority of Government Resolution in the Judicial Department No. 499, dated the 23rd January 1909.

Twice it became necessary to temporarily augment the Criminal Investigation Branch staff, once in March when a District Superintendent of Police, 2 Sub-Inspectors, 4 Head Constables, 3 Constables and 1 Clerk were added under the authority of Government Resolutions in the Judicial Department Nos. 1793 and 2373, dated the 25th March and the 18th May 1909, respectively; the second time in November when 1 Deputy Superintendent, 3 Inspectors, 4 Sub-Inspectors and 3 Head Constables were added, formal sanction to this accession being accorded in Government Resolutions in the Judicial Department Nos. 6030, 6514 and 506, dated the 27th October 1909, 22nd November 1909, and 26th January 1910, respectively.

Some reductions in the temporary additions above referred to took place during the year, with the result that at its close the staff stood as under:—

Permanent.	Temporary.
8 Inspectors.	1 District Superintendent of Police.
13 Sub-Inspectors.	1 Deputy Superintendent of Police.
15 Head Constables.	2 Inspectors.
20 Constables.	1 Sub-Inspector.
	1 Head Constable.
	2 Constables.
	1 Clerk.

The Criminal Investigation Department was engaged in many very difficult and lengthy investigations, prosecutions and enquiries either initiated on information received direct or undertaken by request in aid of the local police in various parts of the Presidency, and on other important and miscellaneous duties.

It was also employed in co-operation with the police of other Provinces in the prevention of the spread of serious crime, investigations into crime having ramifications over several jurisdictions, in pursuit of criminals, and, generally, in the maintenance of peace and order.

Special attention was also paid to the important work of marking down and dealing with professional foreign criminals, 34 of whom were arrested and 31 convicted, and members of the local criminal classes and in the detection of counterfeit coining.

The work has been onerous and much of it very responsible and exacting, but under Mr. Guider's close personal and untiring supervision and able direction and the Deputy Inspector-General's general control, a large measure of success has been secured.

The personnel of the staff has worked zealously and loyally, and deserves the public confidence which, I believe, it enjoys. Without entering into great detail, the records of the department show that during the year 141 investigations and enquiries in complicated cases were undertaken, the most important of former being—

1. The murder, for the sake of her ornaments, of an old Teli woman in Ghorpuri, near Poona, by a sowar of the 26th Light Cavalry assisted by two other persons. The investigation commenced during 1908, was continued in the year under review when 3 accused were convicted and sentenced to transportation for life.

2. A series of undetected thefts by "Bhamptas" in the Sholapur, Sátára and Poona Districts during the years 1906, 1907 and 1908. Property valued at Rs. 5,953, stolen in several cases, was recovered, it having changed hands several times after it was stolen. All the Bhamptas were convicted and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment.

3. A Railway gang case under section 401, Indian Penal Code, in which 12 very expert professional criminals, some of them being ex-convicts, were brought to justice after a successful career of crime on the Railways in the Presidency and no doubt on others beyond. The case ended after the close of the year and after a very lengthy trial in the conviction of all the accused who were sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from 10 years and upwards.

4. A burglary case at Bhusáwal, in East Khándesh, involving the loss of nearly Rs. 32,000. The case is still under investigation.

5. The brutal murder of a Patel of Umeta in the Kaira District. The case was investigated by the local police but remained a mystery till the middle of 1909 when the Criminal Investigation Branch was called in. The investigation proved successful and since the close of the year 3 accused have been sentenced to death and 3 to transportation for life.

6. The Bomb outrage during His Excellency the Viceroy's tour in November 1909 at Ahmedabad.

7. The assassination of Mr. Jackson, I. C. S., the Collector and District Magistrate of Násik.

8. An offshoot of the above, the Násik Conspiracy case, the investigation into which was barely commenced before the close of the year; and

9. A cunning attempt by two persons in the Sátára District to falsely implicate another in a case under the Explosives Act. The plot was unmasked, the culprits being sentenced for giving false information.

Finger Print Bureau.

24. The staff employed in the Bureau consisted of one Inspector, two Sub-Inspectors, five Head Constables, one Clerk and two Constables of the Poona District as orderlies.

At the beginning of 1909 there were on record 85,404 slips and during the year 7,351 new slips were received for record, making a total of 93,255. Of these, 218 slips were destroyed owing to deaths amongst convicts and ex-convicts, leaving 93,037 slips on record at the close of the year 1909 as compared with 85,404 at the close of 1908. The number of new slips received exceeded the previous year's receipts by 2,127.

Of the 7,851 impression slips received for record, 22 were those of ex-convicts as compared with 125 in the year 1908. These figures show a continued decline due, no doubt, to the fact that many ex-convicts have been lost sight of since 1898 or have died. There are still 5,853 ex-convicts whose finger impressions are required for record: it is not likely that many of these will be obtained.

Of the 7,829 new slips received for record, 378 were from the City of Bombay, 6,805 from the Districts and Railways of this Presidency, 126 from Sind; the remainder came from other Presidencies, Native States, &c. During the year 1908, 262 slips were received for record from Native States as against 261 in 1909.

During the year under report 628 slips were sent for record and 3,213 for trace to the Central Finger Print Bureau, Simla, and the Bureaux of other Presidencies.

There has been an increase in the number of slips received for trace, the number in 1909 being 14,115 as against 14,106 in the year 1908. 2,163 slips were received for identification from other Presidencies, Provinces and Hyderabad Deccan, 402 from Native States and 219 from Káthiáwár, Pálanpur and Mahi Kántha Agencies.

In 1,682 cases, including 127 from other Provinces and 71 from Native States and Agencies, the antecedents of accused persons were traced as against 1,602 in the previous year. There is thus an increase of 80 successful cases over the last year's figures. In 737 cases previous convictions were proved but enhanced punishment was awarded in 677 cases only as against 618 in 1908. In 193 the accused received lighter punishments as against 215 in the previous year, and in 37 cases the same punishment as previously awarded, the number in 1908 being 52. In all these cases the attention of the District Magistrate concerned was drawn to the apparent inadequacy of the punishments awarded.

In 405 cases, as compared with 429 in 1908, the accused were identified locally by Chief Operators, without reference to the Finger Print Bureau. Of this number 400 were traced before conviction, and 5 after the accused had been convicted and admitted into jail.

The following table summarises progress in the work of the Bureau:—

Year.	Number of cards or slips received for record.	Number of cards or slips received for trace.	Number of cases traced.	Remarks
1905 ... ..	5,934	11,509	963
1906 ... ..	7,582	12,650	1,028
1907 ... ..	4,848	11,016	1,118
1908 ... ..	6,724	14,106	1,602
1909 ... ..	7,851	14,115	1,682

In 25 cases during 1909, 7 officers of the Finger Print Bureau were summoned to give expert evidence in Magistrates' and Superior Courts. The total number of days these officers were away from Head-quarters while so engaged, was 73. The cases resulted as under:—

Seventeen ended in conviction, 4 were discharged and in two cases plaintiffs' claims were awarded by the Civil Court. Two cases were pending at the end of the year under report. The 21 criminal cases were tried at the following places:—1 in Ahmedabad, 1 in Panch Maháls, 1 in Thána, 1 in East Khándesh, 1 in West Khándesh, 2 in Násik, 3 in Poona, 4 in Sátára, 1 in Sholkápur, 2 in Belgaum, 1 in Bijápur, 3 in Dhárwár.

The number of finger impression slips received in the Finger Print Bureau at Karáchi during the year under report was 2,633 as against 2,633 in the year 1908. The grand total of slips recorded in the Bureau is 29,433. Four hundred and nine subsequent conviction slips were received and entered during 1909 as compared with 512 in 1908. The number of slips received for search was 3,669 as against 3,829 in 1908. Of these, 1,001 were traced as against 955 in the preceding year.

During the year 26 officers were instructed in the system of taking finger impressions and 1 officer was trained as an expert. Three hundred and fifty-seven slips of foreigners were sent to the Central Finger Print Bureau at Simla for record. During the year under report officers in the Finger Print Bureau were summoned to give expert evidence in the Courts of various Magistrates in the Province in 17 cases and were absent 20 days: 16 cases ended in conviction and one remained pending at the close of the year.

25. In addition to the work connected with the prevention and detection of crime, accounted for in the accompanying statements, many duties of a miscellaneous nature devolve on the police of which the statements contain no record. All districts have not supplied the necessary information in their reports to enable me to make a complete record of these miscellaneous duties. However, so far as information can be culled from district and divisional reports, the following figures will perhaps prove of interest. The Police served 315,014 summonses and warrants, assisted in extinguishing 1,013 fires and destroyed 74,158 stray and ownerless dogs. On the Presidency Railways 679 accidents were enquired into and 574 missing goods cases, of which only 179 turned out to be thefts, were investigated. Further the Police enquired into hundreds of non-cognizable offences under the Indian Penal Code, petty offences under the Cantonment and Police Acts, suicides, accidents and suspicious deaths, licensed and supervised public conveyances everywhere in the mofussil and, in addition to all this, had to escort a large number of prisoners and lakhs of treasure about the Presidency and even beyond.

26. The Commissioner, Northern Division, observes :—

“There was no noticeable influx of criminal classes in any of the districts in the Division. In Ahmedabad, the Pathans continued to frequent the city and its suburbs, but their movements were strictly watched by the Police. Chharas in the Ahmedabad District, and a gang of Sansis in the Panch Mahals, made their appearance, but they were dealt with by the Police under Chapter VIII of the Criminal Procedure Code. Twenty-five suspicious foreigners were arrested in Kaira, of whom 14 were convicted, 9 discharged, and 2 awaiting trial at the close of the year. In Broach, Bhils and Talavias were closely watched especially during the cotton season.”

The Commissioner, Central Division, has offered no remarks on the subject, but from the district reports it appears that the local criminal classes were kept under surveillance as usual. Ahmednagar was visited by some Chapparbands and Phansipardhis, Nandurbár in West Khandesh by a few cattle-lifters. In Sátára a gang of Ghantichors and one of Bhats was brought to book and in Sholápur some Telangi Dhangars were accounted for before they had time to do more harm than commit a couple of burglaries. Bhamptas were conspicuously absent in 1909 for the big Pandharpur fair.

The Commissioner, Southern Division, writes :—

“Gangs of professional criminals were suspected of being responsible for a number of serious offences, including dacoities, in the year under report. Of the arrests made, the most important is that of the notorious Pamlor gang of 29 persons from Mysore territory who were responsible for several dacoities in the Dhárwár District and were arrested by the Dhárwár Police and 25 of them were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment. The attempt being made on a considerable scale in Bijápur to turn the professional criminal into a useful citizen is one which Government and the public will no doubt watch with interest. The experiment is one worth trying even if success is by no means certain.

“Towards the end of the year a large gang of Turks from Bosnia arrived in the Belgaum District and Goa and, after a few days' stay, broke up into two gangs and went South. They were believed to be peaceful merchants. A gang of 26 Iránis from Nizam's territory passed through the Bijápur District during the year. They are reported to have done no harm.”

The report for Sind makes mention of the fact that—

“A few gangs of Wághris and Kutchras troubled the Hyderabad District by their depredations, but were soon broken up. A gang of Punjabis was also proceeded against under Chapter VIII, Criminal Procedure Code, in Thar and Párkar.

"In the Sukkur District the Jagirania, Turta and Shars of Sukkur District have been giving trouble in the district especially on the Railway where thefts are committed from running goods trains. A large number of Hurs (1,585) were released in the Thar and Parkar District, so that there now remain only 4 settlements with 821 therein."

The scheme—to be continued for 18 months more—now in progress under Mr. Starto's directions in the Bijapur District for settling the criminal classes is fraught with great possibilities from a police point of view, and all police officers will hail with satisfaction the Bill to amend the law relating to the registration, surveillance and control of criminal tribes which is now on the anvil and will, when passed, enable the police to exercise some effective control over these troublesome people.

Personal Investigation of Serious Crimes.

27. Out of a total of 1,103 cases returned as serious, the scenes of 628 were visited by gazetted officers; the reasons assigned for not visiting the scenes of a larger number are mostly those which have been specified in paragraph 28 of the Administration Report for 1908, an additional reason assigned by the Commissioner, Southern Division, being the Viceregal visit which accounted for inability to visit the scenes of 5 offences.

In Sind, the Northern Division and Southern Division, the scenes of a large number of serious offences remained unvisited, viz., 158, 104 and 100 out of 261, 237 and 242, respectively.

None of the Divisional Commissioners have expressed any opinion whether the reasons advanced for not visiting the scenes of serious crimes by local officers were adequate or not.

The Commissioner in Sind remarks:—

"The Commissioner notices with regret that the percentage of serious crimes left unvisited by Superintendents shows a considerable increase over that in the preceding year. The point engages special attention in the scrutiny of weekly diaries, and, as observed by the Deputy Inspector-General, it is seldom that omission to perform this duty is not satisfactorily explained. . . . It is satisfactory to find Superintendents making freer and more confident use of their deputies in this as in other branches of work; but it is not for a moment to be suggested that a Deputy Superintendent's visit to a serious crime is equivalent to a visit by the Superintendent himself."

The Deputy Inspector-General, Northern Range, observes with reference to Superintendents not visiting the scenes of serious crime on the ground that the cases are complete:—

"The fact that a case is reported complete is not, I consider, sufficient reason for not visiting a scene of crime specially if a proof depends on a confession which is often retracted. . . ."

That officer further remarks:—

"Of the Assistant Superintendents, Mr. Hoyes visited 13 out of 13 serious crimes that occurred in his charge, which is satisfactory, but 1 out of 7 against the name of Mr. O'Brien is obviously insufficient."

The Deputy Inspector-General, Southern Range, observes:—

"The only district that shows a poor return is Sâtara."

My own observations of the work of personal supervision of investigations by Superintendents and their Assistants point to the conclusion that generally not enough is attempted in this direction. There are exceptions of course, but too frequently officers appear to think that their responsibility begins and ends with a formal visit to, and a more or less brief stay at, the scene of a serious offence. In view of the increasing need of capable criminal investigators, I should like to see officers laying themselves out more to specialize, so to speak, in this most important part of their duties.

The officers who were most active in the matter of visiting the scenes of serious offences are Mr. Kirkpatrick, Assistant Superintendent of Police, Mr. Biddle, District Superintendent of Police, Mr. Curry, Assistant Superintendent of Police, Mr. Jenkins, District Superintendent of Police, and Mr. Moore, Assistant Superintendent of Police.

The territorial reports are silent as to whether any and if so, how many, cases were investigated during the year in the manner laid down in Rule 4 on pages 322 and 323 of the Police Manual. But I have called for information on this point with the following results:—

Messrs. Holland and Stewart, Assistant Superintendents of Police, fully complied with the orders referred to above. For the rest, all but the seven officers named below, viz.:—

- Mr. Hoyes, Assistant Superintendent of Police, Ahmedabad, with 5 cases;
- Mr. G. A. Shillidy, while Assistant Superintendent of Police, Thána, with 2 cases;
- Mr. Curry, while Assistant Superintendent of Police, East Khándesh, with 3 cases;
- Mr. Harker, while Assistant Superintendent of Police, East Khándesh, with 1 case;
- Mr. D. Healy, while Assistant Superintendent of Police of Ahmednagar, with 1 case;
- Mr. Shirgaoker, Deputy Superintendent of Police, 2 cases;
- Mr. F. L. Clifford, West Khándesh, 1 case;
- Mr. Zal Kabraji, while Deputy Superintendent of Police, Bijápur, 1 case; appear to have entirely disregarded the provisions of the Manual Rule on the subject in spite of the fact that the attention of Superintendents was specially drawn in March 1909 to the subject and those who had Assistants were asked to see that the rule is observed.

Statement D.

28. The sanctioned strength of the entire Police Force of the Presidency inclusive of Railways and Sind stood at 23,997 officers and men. The increase of 1,199 units as compared with the previous year's strength is mainly due to the addition of 1,154 constables sanctioned in Government Resolution in the Judicial Department No. 5709, dated the 30th October 1908—923 for the Presidency Proper and 231 for Sind. During the year under report 3 Assistant Superintendents of Police, 1 Deputy Superintendent of Police, 1 Inspector and 46 Sub-Inspectors were added to the higher grades of the police towards completion of the scheme of reorganization.

In addition to the sanctioned strength, temporary additions including chowkidárs on the railways (so far as I can gather from the Divisional and Railway Police Superintendents' reports) aggregating 532 officers and men were entertained during the year under review for plague duty, as additional police on account of the misconduct of the villagers, to maintain order at the Sinvhasht fair and for other extra duties.

29. The cost of the police has advanced from Rs. 54,98,381 in 1908 to Rs. 62,04,579 in the year under report. The increase is mainly due to the further introduction of measures of reorganization in Sind and in the Presidency Proper, the augmentation of the force and an all-round rise in the pay of lower grades of police (Foot and Mounted) in the Presidency Proper, as well as to the increased establishment sanctioned for the Criminal Investigation Branch. Sind alone has contributed to the rise by Rs. 2,26,313.

30. One policeman to every 5.76 square miles and 1.77 railway miles as against 6.07 and 1.65 respectively is the proportion of police to area, and in respect to population 1 policeman for every 742 persons against 780 in 1908.

31. The proportion of cognizable crime investigated to police is for the entire Presidency 1 policeman to 1.46 crimes during the year under review as against 1.51 in 1908. For the reasons given in paragraph 32 of my Annual Report on the Police returns for 1908 the percentages given in this paragraph are misleading. Moreover, they are further vitiated by reason of the fact that pending cases (column 10 of Statement A—Part I) which include cases partially investigated by the police and those entirely investigated but awaiting orders by magistrates, are not taken into account.

32. There were 417 police stations and 1,156 outposts in the entire Presidency as against 410 and 1,178 in the previous year. Besides these, there were 127 subposts, which it is intended to abolish on reorganization, on the Presidency Railways.

Of the 387 police stations and 1,033 outposts in the Presidency and Sind districts, 347 stations and 837 outposts were visited and inspected by District Superintendents, Assistant Superintendents and Deputy Superintendents of Police, 40 stations and 226 outposts remaining un-inspected. More inspection work was accomplished in 1909 than in the previous year.

The reports of the Commissioners in Sind and the Northern Division make no reference to the subject of inspection work; the Commissioner, Central Division, remarks:—

“A considerable number of outposts remained un-inspected in East Khândesh owing to the necessity of visiting the scenes of serious crimes in rapid succession during a part of the year, in Násik, owing to the state of the district and in Poona owing to work at Head-quarters in connection with the reorganization scheme and other engagements.”

The Commissioner, Southern Division, observes:—

“Two stations—one in Bijápur and one in Dhárwár—and 40 outposts—13 in Bijápur, 2 in Belgaum, 19 in Dhárwár and 6 in Koláha—remained unvisited. The reasons stated by the District Superintendents of Police, Bijápur and Dhárwár, for not being able to do the whole inspection is that there was extra work in connection with serious crime which increased during the year and in connection with the Viceregal visit.”

The Acting Deputy Inspector-General for Sind considers that on the whole all the officers have done their best to visit and inspect their stations and outposts during the year under review.

On the G. I. P. and M. and S. M. Railways, 6 stations out of 14, 27 outposts out of 56, and 56 subposts out of 87, remained un-inspected. On the B. B. & C. I., 4 police stations and 55 outposts and subposts were not inspected. The quantity of the inspection work done was, as explained in my reviews on the Railway Reports, altogether inadequate and, I am afraid, lacking in thoroughness.

In addition to the ordinary inspection work done by district officers, the Range and Railway Deputy Inspectors-General of Police made extended tours and inspected several Superintendents' offices, a large number of stations and many outposts in their Ranges. The reasons advanced by the Railway Superintendents in the Presidency Proper for the failure to do more in this direction are not, in my opinion and that of the Deputy Inspector-General for Railways, satisfactory, and special steps have therefore been taken to watch the progress of the inspection work and effect an improvement.

The value of an inspection, whether of a station or outpost, depends greatly on the way it is carried out, whether it is just sufficient to comply with rules or original and intelligent. The best results may be looked for from a well ordered and thorough inspection of a station with its outposts as a whole, rather than of a station or an outpost here and there, because the records of the station have an important relation to those of an outpost and vice versa. And much may be learned if the inspecting officer devotes attention to items outside the strict letter of the rules; for instance, the estimation in which the police and individual officers are held by the public and whether crime is being reported or hushed up, are matters which would perhaps repay investigation; and quiet enquiry while in the neighbourhood among the public and persons concerned in cases that have been disposed of as undetected or struck off, about local bad characters, factions and the work of the village police, would also assist the inspecting officer to decide whether the police are working satisfactorily or not with a view to the adoption of such measures for the improvement of the administration as may be called for.

Statement E.

33. There was no change in the armament of the force during the year of review : the proposal to arm all Sub-Inspectors with revolvers in lieu of S. B. Muskets referred to in paragraph 34 of the previous year's report was still under consideration at the close of the year.

Armament.

34. With an increase of nearly 1,200 units in the police force the total number of officers and men punished departmentally and judicially rose from 2,480 in 1908 to 3,094 in the year under report. Thus 13·3 of the force were punished as against 11·2 in 1908 and the rise is due entirely to the large number of young constables in the service. Of the total number of officers and men punished (3,094), 2,912 were for departmental and 182 for judicial offences as compared with 2,334 and 146 respectively in the preceding year. Of the judicial punishments (182), the largest number (69) is returned by Sind, the smallest (18) by the Southern Division. The number of officers judicially punished remained the same as in the previous year, viz. 3. Ninety-five judicial punishments as against 60 in 1908 were inflicted under the Police Act, 5 under Chapter IX, Indian Penal Code, against the same number in the previous year; 77 under other offences against 80 and 5 appear in columns 16 and 17 of Statement E as against 1 in the preceding year. There were 226 dismissals as against 190 in 1908. Dhárwár and the B. B. & C. I. Railway return each the largest number of dismissals—21 against 7 and 31 respectively. On the G. I. P. Railway 20 men were dismissed against 14 in the preceding year.

Punishments.

The Commissioner, Southern Division, commenting on the high percentage of punishments in the Dhárwár District as compared with Bijápur and Belgaum, remarks :—

"The difference . . . . . cannot be adequately explained by any supposition of a difference in the conduct of the police forces of the respective districts. It must be due to difference in the policy in the matter of the District Superintendent of Police."

The Commissioner in Sind remarks :—

"The number of departmental and judicial punishments shows an increase, pointing unmistakably to the fact that closer supervision was exercised over all the ranks of the subordinate police."

On the B. B. & C. I. Railway, the reason assigned for a large number of punishments is the inability of the head constable police station officers to maintain discipline : the remedy is the substitution of Sub-Inspectors in charge of stations for head constables, a measure of reform which has already been proposed.

35. Rewards by promotion, good conduct tickets and money numbered 6,392 as against 5,150 in 1908. Thirty-seven, as compared with 13 in 1908, rewards were by promotion. The increase in the latter form of rewards is due to the fact that in the latter half of the year the incremental system of pay gave place to the graded system.

Rewards.

The sum disbursed during the year under review in rewards to the police was Rs. 21,090 as against Rs. 13,115 in 1908.

The Commissioner, Central Division, observes :—

"It is satisfactory to note that concurrently with a decline in the number of men punished, there was an increase in the number of those rewarded for good work."

And the Commissioner in Sind considers that meritorious services rendered were more freely recognized.

During the year under review His late Majesty King Edward the Seventh instituted and created a new medal designated and styled "The King's Police Medal" : it was awarded to the following officers of the force in this Presidency in recognition of meritorious services in the police :—

Mr. W. L. B. Scuter, Deputy Inspector-General of Police, who, since the close of the year, has been admitted to the Order of the Indian Empire as a "Companion."

Mr. J. A. Guider, Special Assistant to the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Railways and Criminal Investigation.

Mr. M. P. Toradmal, Deputy Superintendent.

Inspector Ráo Bahádur Rama Pandu of Poona.

Inspector Y. M. Karaik of Násik.

36. Out of a total force of 812 officers and 22,125 men, 813 officers and 11,912 men can read and write as against 771 and 11,122 in the previous year. The proportion of Education. educated officers and men to the total actual force has slightly advanced from 51 to 54·7 per cent. Thus on an appreciably larger force the standard of education has been more than maintained. Sind shows a very low proportion of educated men as compared with other territorial divisions in the Presidency. In this connection the Commissioner in Sind remarks that "the standard of literacy is at present very low, viz., 29 per cent."

In the Southern Division, as the Commissioner points out,—

"By districts the percentage of literates among men varied in the year under report from 50·4 in Bijápur to 88 in Ratnágiri."

37. On a total force numerically stronger by some 1,200 units, there were 638 vacancies at the end of the year under report—12 Vacancies and recruiting. fewer than at the close of 1903, the proportion to sanctioned strength standing at 2·6 against 2·9 in 1903, 3·2 in 1907 and 3·7 in 1906. Exclusive of Sind figures, the same ratios work out at 1·08, 2·08, 3·3 and 3·8 respectively. Thus the situation in respect to recruiting was decidedly easier at the end of the year and I have no hesitation in stating that the material coming forward was appreciably better.

In the Sind Districts, the Northern Division, and on Sind and Presidency Railways, vacancies were fewer by 39, 20 and 89 respectively; in the Central and Southern Divisions the number was larger than at the close of 1903 by 86 and 83 respectively.

There were 3,122 enlistments during the year under report as against 2,314 in 1903. Of these 3,105 were constables as against 2,231 in the preceding year.

On the subject of vacancies and recruiting, the Commissioner, Northern Division, observes:—

"The revival of the old grades of Jamadar, and the increase of rupee one in the initial pay of constables in all branches, have had a wholesome effect on recruiting, and have considerably lessened the difficulty hitherto experienced in getting better men. As a result the forces in Ahmedabal and Surat were maintained up to the full sanctioned strength. Owing to the improved conditions of service, the discontent which was previously apparent, will, it is hoped, gradually cease."

The same officer quotes the Thána District Magistrate's remarks with regard to recruiting in his district, where it has always been extremely difficult to get men, as follows:—

"Recruiting has been much more brisk this year, but has failed to keep pace with the increase in the sanctioned strength."

The Commissioner, Central Division, writes:—

"Some difficulty in obtaining suitable recruits is reported from West Khándesh, Poona and Sholápur. . . . The labouring classes in all three districts when they are not tempted to migrate to Bombay, find employment in the local factories more congenial and remunerative than service in the police. It may be hoped, however, that the improvement in pay and prospects ensured by the orders published in Government Resolution No. 2352 of the 13th July 1909, will eventually stimulate recruitment."

The Commissioner, Southern Division, observes:—

"There is generally no difficulty in getting recruits but the quality of the men available is said to be inferior in the matter of physique and education."

The Commissioner in Sind says:—

“As the result of the recent orders regarding the pay and allowances of policemen the difficulty of obtaining suitable recruits will, if they are put into force without delay, be considerably lessened, though the existing difficulties in the way of securing recruits with a knowledge of Sindhi will probably remain.”

38. There was a small increase (69) in the number of resignations over the previous year's total, the proportion being 4·5 Resignations. resignations to the actual strength against 4·4 in 1908, 5·2 in 1907 and 4·6 in 1906. The ratios for the Presidency Proper only for these years stand as under:—

In 1906—3·8 ; in 1907—4·1 ; in 1908—3·2 ; and 1909—3·2.

Resignations were most frequent in Sind and the Northern Division and least numerous in the Southern Division.

In spite of an increase of nearly 1,200 raw recruits to the force the ratio of resignations is practically stationary, vacancies at the close of the year were fewer, the proportion of educated men was slightly higher, more rewards were earned and the rise in ratio of punishments was small. These are all encouraging and healthy signs showing that the force was more contented, worked better, and the service was more attractive. These improvements were brought about by the redress, during the year under notice, of the grievances and disabilities alluded to in annual reports for the last two years in regard to pay and the system of promotion and prospects.

39. Conclusions regarding the health of the force can be based only on the figures relating to admissions and re-admissions into Hospitals and Dispensaries. The returns relating to these are however not, I am afraid, as observed by the Commissioner, Southern Division, reliable. Nor are they alone a safe index of the amount of sickness, for many men prefer, when indisposed or feverish, to go on working or to ask for casual leave rather than to report sick and go to hospitals. But taking the figures in the statement as they are, the health of the force as a whole during the year under review shows some improvement.

In Larkana in Sind, Sholapur and Kaira, there was apparently the smallest amount of sickness among the police, in Thana and Kolaba in the Presidency Proper the most.

The Commissioner in Sind remarks that “the health of the force was better”. On railways in the Presidency Proper the health of the police, though there was some improvement on the G. I. P. and B. B. & C. I. Railways, was bad and will continue to be unsatisfactory so long as the men in Bombay have to live, for want of lines, in insanitary and overcrowded lodgings, in the city, to the detriment of their health, morale and efficiency generally.

Casualties in the police force numbered 285 as against 233 in 1908, giving a percentage on actual strength of 1·22 as against 1·28 in the preceding year. The rise in mortality in the police force of the Hyderabad District has attracted the attention of the Commissioner who is having enquiries made as to the cause. So far as the information can be gathered from the Divisional reports in the Presidency Proper, there were 9 deaths from plague and 9 from cholera. Among the Sind Police, no deaths occurred from either cause.

Inoculation is becoming increasingly popular in the force generally, as its advantages are recognised by the men. In Satara and Dhárwar where 404 and 457 men respectively were inoculated it apparently caught on during the year. The preventive is not, however, much in favour yet in the districts of the Northern Range. Every thing that is possible is done to reduce sickness due to fever among the men: quinine is distributed liberally at the cost of Government and the surface drainage of lines carefully attended to in order to prevent mosquitoes.

Miscellaneous.

40. Escapes from the custody of district and village police numbered 133 as against 177 in 1908—32 from jails and lockups, 89 Escapes and Recaptures. from the custody of the district police and 13 from that of the village police. All the 13 escapes from the custody of the village police occurred in the Presidency Proper. Of the 133 escapes Sind contributed the largest number 41, the Southern Division and Railways the fewest, namely, 23 and 12 respectively.

There were in all 106 recaptures including 12 of the previous year's escapes, as compared with 112 in 1908. The percentage of recaptures to escapes works out to 70.6 as against 78 in the preceding year. One of the recaptures in Sind was the notorious Shadi of the Thar and Parkar District who broke out of the jail at Mirpurkhás and was a constant source of alarm to peaceful inhabitants of the district till he was recaptured.

41. During the year under review I visited all the districts in the Presidency Proper on inspection and other duty and before the close of the year, in consultation with the local officers, prepared reorganization schemes which were submitted to Government for 19 districts. I also visited Karachi to meet the Commissioner in Sind and consult with him about police matters generally.

42. On the purchase of clothing, equipments, etc., for the police of the districts and the railways of the Presidency Proper

Supply.	Rs. 2,10,665
---------	--------------

were expended during the year under report against Rs. 1,70,705 in 1908. Some supplies were purchased locally, some from the Supply and Transport Department, but most by contract through my own and Deputy Inspectors-General's offices. Details are as under:—

Rs.

9,828 on arms and accoutrements.
2,03,228 on clothing.
3,409 on saddlery.

Total ... 2,10,665

A grant of Rs. 3,700 was placed at my disposal by Government as a grant-in-aid to the Mounted Police Funds which are mostly insolvent, Rs. 3,200 for native mounted police remounts and Rs. 500 for the one for the Sergeant of the Poona Mounted Police.

With this grant and from Mounted Police Funds 36 remounts were purchased at a total cost of Rs. 13,162.

The footgear of the Ahmedabad, Broach, Kaira, West Khándesh and Mahi Kántha Districts was changed with the approval of Government from "gurgabis" to boots, and dark blue putties were sanctioned as an addition to the uniform of the foot police (districts and railways) in the Presidency Proper.

43. Shops licensed to deal in arms and ammunition are returned at 355 as against 301 in 1908. Of these 293, as against 259 in the preceding year, were inspected by Superintendents, Assistant and Deputy Superintendents. More than half the number of shops is in the Central Division; the Northern Division contains the fewest (29). The Southern Division has 94 and Sind 35. There was a large decrease of 17 shops in Sind and of 2 in the Northern Division. An increase of 10 and 3 appears in the Southern and Central Divisions respectively.

16,013 licenses were issued for arms, including firearms, against 14,689 in 1908. The increase in the number of licenses to carry firearms was 907 as against 512 in the preceding year. The orders of Government contained in paragraph 8 of Resolution in the Judicial Department No. 83, dated the 9th January 1907, have again not been observed except by the Commissioner, Central Division.

101 prosecutions were instituted under the Arms Act, of which 65 ended in conviction. The fines in these 65 cases aggregated Rs. 1,143. In the Northern Division, Ahmedabad was the only district in which prosecutions were undertaken, the number being 16. In the Central Division there were no prosecutions under this Act. In Sind there were only 8, and in the Southern Division 11.

44. There was no change in the strength and constitution of the Prosecuting Staff in the districts of the Presidency Proper.

The prosecutions in 2,580 of the more important and difficult cases were conducted by Prosecuting Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors, 1,839 ending in convictions. The ratio of convictions to cases conducted is thus 71·3 as against 63 in the previous year. In 5,368 of the less important and simpler cases First Grade Head Constables prosecuted 3,871 or 72·1 per cent. ending in conviction as against 71·9 per cent. in the previous year. On the whole, the volume of prosecuting work done was larger and in quality has improved.

In Sind each district has now been given a Prosecuting Inspector and they have apparently worked well during the year under report.

The railways in the Presidency Proper are still without any prosecuting staff; the want of one is greatly felt but cannot be supplied till orders are passed on the railway police reorganization proposals.

45. The Sind Deputy Inspector-General of Police reports that the drill efficiency of the Karachi armed police is the best in Sind; that of the Hyderabad force has suffered owing to the men being overworked apparently.

In the Presidency Proper the standard of efficiency among the police varies somewhat by districts but on the whole I have had no reason to be dissatisfied with it anywhere. The improvement noticeable last year both in drill and physical training has been maintained and the training continues to be practical. As an encouragement and incentive to physical training the Inter-District Athletic Competition has produced good results and fully justified its institution.

Musketry.

43. There has been an all-round improvement in the musketry efficiency of the armed police.

Presidency Proper.

During the year under review 5,577 head constables and constables, as against 5,352 in 1903 out of a total armed force of 6,179, completed the full musketry course: of those 2,326 or 41·70 per cent. qualified as marksmen as against 1,973 or 36·86 per cent. in 1903 and 1,673 or 29·99 per cent. against 30·29 as second class shots. Government annually sanction a grant for Presidency prizes in the shape of money rewards of the aggregate value of Rs. 1,000 to the most deserving and successful shots and district rewards to the value of Rs. 70 in each district. The former are awarded by the Inspector-General of Police, the latter by the Superintendents. In all 60 Presidency prizes were distributed as under:—

Among the mounted police 5; rifle squads 23; ordinary armed police 32—total 60.

The number of marksmen in the entire force are classified as under:—

Men armed with S. B. M. H. muskets 1,963; men armed with M. H. rifles 307; men armed with M. H. carbines (mounted police) 56—total 2,326.

During 1903 the musketry course of the mounted police was greatly hindered and efficiency suffered owing to the shortage of ammunition due to delay in supply and by the issue of old and defective stock: in the year of report the shooting of the mounted police has again practically everywhere been adversely affected by defective ammunition some of which was no less than 15 years old and practically all of which had deteriorated, some having become even dangerous by keeping. Making all allowance for faulty ammunition there is still considerable room for improvement everywhere in the musketry efficiency of the mounted police as a body; the improvement in the shooting of this arm has not been commensurate with the increased scale of ammunition allowed for practice purposes. On the whole there has been appreciable improvement in the all-round standard of musketry efficiency among the foot police in spite of the fact that during the year under review the armed strength of the Presidency was added to by men who were still in the recruit stage.

Judging by the best test of efficiency, viz., proportion of marksmen to total armed strength the very small armed police force (24 men) on the M. and S. M. Railway again ranks first as the best shooting force; the Ratnágiri police again comes second and is the premier shooting force among districts. Ahmednagar, the B. B. & C. I. Railway and Thána show the most marked deterioration and the police in East and West Khándesh and Ahmedabad are still the worst shooting forces.

In respect to prizes, Panch Maháls secured the first prize and gold badge for mounted police, Belgaum for rifle armed foot police and Dhárwar again for foot police armed with M. H. smooth bores. In regard to prize money won, the first six districts in order of merit are Sátára Rs. 217, Dhárwar Rs. 194, Panch Maháls Rs. 120, Belgaum Rs. 111, Sholápur Rs. 67, East Khándesh Rs. 65.

The steady improvement in drill, physical training and musketry efficiency of the police is creditable to the Superintendents, their Assistants, Deputies and the Head Quarters Sub-Inspectors and is due to the interest these officers evince in these matters and the care bestowed by them on the training of their men.

Sind.

In the province of Sind the Musketry Rules are, it is believed, different to those in the Presidency Proper. The Deputy Inspector-General remarks in respect to the shooting of the men:—

“In the annual competition shooting with smooth bores, all the prizes were carried off by the armed and mounted police of the Karáchi District. In the competition shooting for the special rifle reserve, 2 prizes out of 3 were won by Karáchi, and the third by Hyderabad—that is to say, Karáchi won all the prizes competed for except one. The number of men who qualified as marksmen has risen from 125 in 1908 to 215 in 1909, of whom more than half belong to Karáchi. . . . Thar and Párkar is still the last in order; but not only was their ammunition found defective, but for some time it had no capable instructor as the Head Quarters Sub-Inspector died. . . . The shooting of the armed foot police in Karáchi has reached a very high standard of efficiency. . . . The shooting of the mounted police was not so good.”

47. The arms and accoutrements supplied to the force have been correctly maintained, and, on the whole, in good condition; accoutrements that became unserviceable and time expired were replaced and firearms that required it were rebrowned.

Co. dition of Arms and Accoutrements.

48. During the year of report new standard designs for head constables' and constables' quarters received the approval of Government and the grant for renting accommodation for Sub-Inspectors in localities where the want of accommodation is a special hardship was increased. Among important major works which were in progress or started during the year the following may be mentioned:—

Head Quarters Police Lines at Broach, Surat, Thána, Sholápur, Sátára and Kárwár and City Police Lines at Bijápur. Fair progress was made in respect to building accommodation for the police at places where no lines exist and liberal grants were made for relieving the police at Táluka stations and outposts of conservancy charges and for lighting Head Quarters and City Police Lines.

The provision of well ventilated and sufficiently commodious accommodation according to the new standard design in sanitary surroundings is a matter of the utmost importance as affecting the health of the police and is an important factor in popularizing the service and making it attractive to recruits.

The difficulty, however, just now is to get money for the many projects of new construction and conversion that should be undertaken and will be more numerous and urgent as the force is increased under reorganization and more police stations are opened. The Deputy Inspector-General for Sind mentions certain police projects that were undertaken during the year of report and says "with an increase of numbers everywhere more quarters will be required. In the Karáchi District the existing quarters for officers and men are in bad condition also ; and in many places the accommodation is insufficient."

49. In the Presidency Proper the village police rendered assistance to the district police in the detection and investigation of crimes in 380 cases as against the same number in the preceding year. In all 412 persons were rewarded either by money or in other ways. 283 persons were reported for negligence and 251 were punished either by dismissal, fine, suspension, warning or reprimand.

The Commissioner, Northern Division, observes that the District Superintendent of Police, Panch Maháls, "is dissatisfied with this class of men in his district", on the other hand, that, in the opinion of the District Superintendent of Police, Broach, "the quality of the work done by the village police was better than in previous year."

The Commissioner, Southern Division, remarks :—

"It is doubtful if due share of credit was given to the village police for the work done by them. Mr. Daniel states that in the Ratnágiri District the village police were seldom called on to give any substantial help."

The Deputy Inspector-General for Sind reports that there are a few táluka and village pagis in each district and considers their work was satisfactory in the Hyderabad and Sukkur Districts.

My own opinion is that in the districts of the Presidency Proper the village police though indispensable in many ways and better in some parts of the Presidency than in others are for several reasons unreliable and count for little as an efficient rural police agency. The organization requires to be entirely remodelled to suit present day requirements, the strength being reduced to allow of better remuneration to secure superior material. The task of wholesale reorganization would, however, be an enormous one and it is not easy to see how it is to be accomplished. The best must therefore be made of what we have got and the personnel encouraged by the bestowal of rewards in recognition of good work done.

Concluding Remarks.

50. The most noteworthy and interesting incidents and cases, apart from those mentioned in paragraph 23 above, which the district, railway and divisional reports refer to, were—

(a) The Titwala arson case and the murder of the Roman Catholic Vicar of Bassein. Both occurred in the Thana District and both ended in the conviction of the culprits. For the successful investigation of these two difficult cases, Mr. Ingle, the District Superintendent of Police, and his officers deserve great credit.

(b) The Insurance fraud cases in East Khándesh in which Deputy Superintendent Mr. Gudi did excellent work. The cases ended in conviction and the effect has been most salutary.

(c) A case of murder—practically of Lynch Law—in the Kaira District. The deceased Shanker Jetha, a dangerous character and a terror to the villagers, who had quite recently been acquitted on a charge of murder in the Sessions Court, was done to death by four persons, who were witnesses against him in security proceedings the police had instituted under Chapter VIII, Criminal Procedure Code.

(d) The capture, which, however, was effected by the Jath State Police, of Nana Mahasale, a local Robin Hood, and the breaking up of the remainder of his dao-it gang. He and his followers had committed several offences in the Bijápur, Sátára and Sholápur Districts as well as in some of the Native States of the S. M. Country.

The following important reforms in furtherance of the general scheme of police reorganization were introduced in the Presidency Proper during the year of report :—

(1) The minimum pay of all foot constables, armed as well as unarmed, was raised from Rs. 9 to Rs. 10.

Simultaneously with this, the incremental system of pay was abolished in favour of three grades on Rs. 10, 11 and 12.

(2) The pay of all head constables, armed as well as unarmed, was increased and four grades on pay ranging from Rs. 35 to Rs. 15 substituted for three grades on Rs. 20, 17½ and 15.

(3) The mounted police was brought under the grade system, two grades among head constables on Rs. 20 and 15 (in the place of one grade on Rs. 15) and three grades among constables on Rs. 10, 11 and 12 (in the place of one grade on Rs. 10) being sanctioned.

(4) The horse allowance of the mounted police was increased from Rs. 20 to Rs. 25 per mensem.

(5) Nine hundred and twenty-three constables were added to the force of the Presidency Proper as an instalment towards the general scheme for a reorganized strength.

(6) Three additional police stations were created in the Ahmedabad District and two in Belgaum.

(7) The Central Police Training School was transferred from Bhamburda to Násik.

(8) The Head Quarters Line and Conservancy Funds supported by cuttings from the pay of the men were abolished and Government accepted liability of charges hitherto met from these funds.

(9) The Baroda Cantonment was declared a police station and transferred for administrative purposes from the Kaira to the Panch Mahals District.

(10) In Sind 231 constables were added to the force as an instalment towards an increased strength when reorganization is complete, and I gather from the Sind report that Government have, since the close of the year, sanctioned "new rates of pay for the armed and mounted police and new (old) grading" for all the police in the province.

Apart from these and other important measures referred to elsewhere in this report —

(11) A General Provident Fund for Government servants was inaugurated by Government Resolution in the Financial Department No. 2546, dated the 1st July 1909, and it is interesting in this connection to note that 40 Inspectors, 7 Sergeants, 115 Sub-Inspectors, 216 Head Constables and 207 Constables have joined the Fund.

(12) Rules for the more efficient working together of the Railway and District Police received the approval of Government, vide Government Resolution in the Judicial Department No. 3577, dated the 24th June 1909, and came into force.

(13) Eighty-eight constable checkers on the G. I. P. Railway, who had been abolished under a misunderstanding in 1908, were restored during the latter half of the year.

The revised rates of pay sanctioned for the District Police (head constables and constables) and their grading in certain fixed proportions have, since the close of the year, been extended to the railway police in the Presidency Proper. This concession has removed a very old standing grievance and anomaly, has been received with the utmost gratitude and appreciation by the force and is likely to have an excellent effect.

In respect to the practical training under supervision of all probationary Sub-Inspectors when they leave the school, referred to in the concluding sentence of paragraph 3 of Government Resolution in the Judicial Department No. 72, dated the 7th January 1910, a working scheme likely to yield satisfactory results has, since the close of the year, received the approval and sanction of Government (vide Government Resolution in the Judicial Department No. 2397, dated the 26th April 1910) and been brought into operation.

Experience has shown that a one year's course is not sufficient to impart a thorough theoretical training at the Central Police Training School and that probationary Sub-Inspectors, without previous police experience, who pass out of the school are, by reason of the want of practical knowledge and experience, insufficiently equipped for the efficient discharge of duties as Sub-Inspectors and investigating officers. They are therefore timid of responsibility in the matter of investigation and the discharge of other duties, with the result that they shirk work and have to rely on the guidance of subordinates when seniors and superiors are not at hand to advise and direct. The question of prolonging the school course is therefore under consideration; a system for giving a course of practical training before confirmation has been adopted as explained above and time alone will supply the experience which is indispensable to a successful investigator.

The most important and noticeable characteristics of the year's returns as compared with those for the previous year may be summed up, I think, as follows:—

Cognizable crime, reported and true, serious and ordinary, has increased somewhat, especially burglary and cattle thefts; actually and proportionately slightly more real crime has remained undetected and more cases have been struck off; at the same time maliciously false complaints have been more numerous.

On the other hand dacoities and ordinary thefts have been fewer, less property was stolen and relatively not so many cases were pending at the end of the year.

In the detection of crime and the restoration of property stolen, the police have not been quite so successful, the ratio of "recoveries" having appreciably dropped. Fewer bad characters were proceeded against under Chapter VIII, Criminal Procedure Code, but with much more satisfactory results.

In dealing with cases and persons, the percentage of convictions has on the whole dropped though very slightly.

Resignations have inappreciably increased owing to the augmentation of the force and consequently the larger number of men in the recruit stage but in proportion to the strength of the force were practically the same; vacancies at the end of the year were fewer, the percentage of literates in the force has slightly risen and the situation as regards recruiting has much improved.

The Inspector-General's Annual Report on the work of the police and the statistical statements accompanying it embrace Sind; the effect of this is to give a presentment of general police efficiency and progress in the Presidency as a whole which is certainly appreciably below the standard prevailing in the districts and railways of the Presidency Proper. As I know from experience the local conditions in Sind are peculiar, there is a great dearth of good, particularly educated material willing to serve and remain in the force and police work is carried on under more difficult and in some ways disheartening conditions than in the Presidency Proper; nevertheless it seems necessary to explain the position for a proper understanding of the situation; otherwise conclusions less favourable to the police in the Presidency Proper than the circumstances warrant may be drawn from the combined statistics.

For instance, though true crime has increased during 1909, the rise in the Presidency Proper, in 19 districts and on 3 railways, is but slight—1.3 cases; the incorporation of the Sind figures, however, from 6 districts and 1 railway, advances the rise by 409 cases.

Again the ratio of undetected to true cases disposed of is for the Presidency Proper 39.1 against 40 per cent. in 1908; the inclusion of Sind figures at once raises this percentage for the entire Presidency from 44.5 in the preceding year to 45.3.

In the same way other important tests of progress and police efficiency, in the prevention, detection and disposal of crime in the Presidency Proper, are more or less adversely affected by the figures from Sind, improved working in the former being lost to view in the amalgamated figures for the whole.

But in spite of the fact that with few exceptions here and there the statistical tests for the whole Presidency again show some falling off from last year's standard, the all-round situation in the Presidency Proper is undoubtedly more satisfactory and hopeful, the pendulum, save in regard to the volume of crime and the recovery of stolen property, has begun to swing in the right direction and with the exception of the restoration of stolen property, results mostly creditable to the force have been obtained.

This is chiefly due to the satisfaction and contentment engendered among the rank and file by the action of Government during the latter half of the year in raising the pay of the head constables and constables, mounted and foot, and abolishing the incremental system of promotion in favour of promotion by merit which restored the stimulus to good work in a force that had become dispirited and was rapidly deteriorating on insufficient pay and practically no prospects.

Other minor but nevertheless important measures of reform have been introduced to raise the standard of efficiency all-round, but the most important of all in my opinion—and it came in the nick of time—was the one I have just referred to and the outlook now, so far as the Presidency Proper is concerned (I cannot speak for Sind) may be regarded as encouraging.

Success varies of course with local conditions in the districts and divisions of the Presidency and diversity of opinion is therefore met with in the district and divisional reports as to the standard of efficiency of the police in dealing with crime, but taking a general survey of the work of the police in the Presidency Proper as a whole since 1906, my own opinion is that the service is now more valued and sought after and that the quality of work is improving and will continue to do so, though perhaps slowly, as the reforms introduced since 1906 are better understood and mature and, as the result of practical experience improvement in details is effected.

As explained in my last year's report, the police have been passing through a critical period of reorganization and during a period when a wave of sedition and unrest has swept over the country; but notwithstanding these a great deal of excellent police work has been accomplished and the uniform loyalty of the force is, I venture to submit, a matter for satisfaction.

The Commissioners, in concluding their reviews of the District Reports, make the following general observations:—

The Commissioner, Northern Division:

"The year is marked by an increase in the number of offences, a diminished percentage of convictions in the Sessions Court, a diminished percentage of stolen property recovered, and a distinct increase in the worst forms of serious crime—murder, attempt to murder and highway robbery. There is no reason for the falling off. The season was good and the police of this Division are happily spared—generally speaking—from the labour which has fallen to the police elsewhere, in connection with sedition."

The Commissioner, Central Division:

"The Acting Commissioner has taken charge after the close of the year and has been out of touch with actual police administration for the last 4½ years, during which there have been many changes in the character and composition of the force; consequently his knowledge of details is limited to what he has been able to glean from the reports. The tone of the latter, however, is decidedly hopeful and there would seem to be every reason to believe that the past year has been one of progress and that notwithstanding the heavy strain placed on them by the necessity of repressing sedition, the officers of the force have been successful in coping with ordinary crime and in maintaining the efficiency of the department at a higher level than before."

The Commissioner, Southern Division:

"The record of the year's work shows that there is still room for improvement in the detection of crime. Personally, however, I doubt if the best police in the world would be able to do much better in the conditions which obtain in India; in every European country pretty well every member of the public is willing to give all the help in his power in the detection of crime and the maintenance of Law and Order. In India a large proportion of the public side with the criminal and the rest are indifferent. The clues obtained by the police from private persons are generally due, not to any sense of public duty on the part of the latter but to the fact of their having some private grudge against the criminal. The share the public take in the matter of police work is generally confined to grumbling at the want of success for which their own supineness is mainly responsible. Substantial improvement in the work of the police may be expected when the average citizen shall become imbued with some sense of public duty."

The Commissioner in Sind :

"The work of the Riverain Police suffered from unavoidably frequent changes of the officer in charge . . . . The efficiency of the Railway Police continues to be greatly impeded by the presence in the force of men who properly belong to the Punjab Police, but for whom the authorities of that province have not so far managed to provide. The matter is under correspondence, and it is hoped that the necessary arrangements will not be much longer delayed. Vigorous efforts, which promise to be most successful, have been made since the close of the year to cope with the serious evil of thefts from trains, and there is every reason to hope that materially improved conditions will be shown in the next report.

"Except for a period of short leave, the office of Deputy Inspector-General was again held throughout the year by Mr. Gibbs, whose valuable services have been repeatedly acknowledged by the Commissioner, and whose transfer since the close of the year is a great loss to the province. His successor, Mr. MacTier, by whom the report is submitted, has distinguished himself by his efficient superintendence of the Karachi District, and has made an excellent start with his new duties. Of other officers it is only necessary to say that the prevailing high standard of zealous and loyal devotion to duty has been maintained with a remarkable degree of uniformity."

In the month of November, His Excellency the Viceroy visited Bijapur and travelled practically over the entire length of the railways in the Presidency. The tour threw a great deal of work and responsibility on the police and was marked by the outrage, still, to the mortification of the police, an undetected crime, at Ahmedabad.

The year closed with the cowardly assassination in Násik City of the late Mr. A. M. T. Jackson, I. C. S., Collector and District Magistrate of Násik, and the discovery in Násik of a grave criminal conspiracy. Thanks to the resources and initiative shown at the time by Mr.—now Ráo Bahádur—M. P. Toradmal, Deputy Superintendent of Police, and his subsequent valuable assistance during the enquiry, Mr. Guider's detective ability, his skilful and patient investigation and handling of the cases and the District Superintendent of Police, Mr. Cooke's wholehearted co-operation and help the police were able to detect both cases, the former of which has, since the close of the year, ended in the conviction of all 7 accused by a special Tribunal of the High Court, the latter is still pending.

In connection with the unravelling of these two important and difficult cases, the Criminal Investigation Branch staff and Násik District Police have done splendid work deserving of the highest commendation.

In the annual district report of 1908 for the Násik District, the local officers recorded a very unfavourable opinion regarding the Násik Police, vide paragraph 52 (page 27) of my Police Report on the Bombay Presidency for 1908. I am glad to be able to record that the District Magistrate, Násik, commends the Násik Police for its efficiency in 1909 both in respect of its ordinary duties as well as the special work connected with the Sinvhast Festival and the unrest which culminated in the murder of the late Mr. Jackson.

More cognizable crime, reported as well as true, was returned in 1909 than any of the three preceding years. My observations and enquiries lead me to the conclusion that this may be ascribed to the following causes:—

- (a) the marked and steady rise in the cost of living,
- (b) better registration, and freer reporting of offences owing to the creation of more police stations,
- (c) increased traffic over railways,
- (d) the Sinvhast fair which lasted for a year and ended in August 1909,
- (e) the restricted use of Chapter VIII, Criminal Procedure Code,

(f) the withdrawal of the additional police force on the B. B. & C. I. Railway and in the Kaira District, imposed to keep in check the highly criminal Dharalas who are responsible for a large amount of crime on the B. B. & C. I. Railway from running trains,

(g) the depredations of upcountry criminals facilitated by the spread of communications, and

(h) the comparative failure of the police to do better detection.

In my last year's report, paragraph 62, it was explained how the personnel of the all-important Sub-Inspector's rank had been affected by reorganization with the result that the district investigating staff was appreciably less efficient by the substitution of many untried young Sub-Inspectors from the school for the old and capable men who had been promoted to higher posts or had been transferred to the Criminal Investigation Branch. As the new system of recruiting and training Sub-Inspectors grows older and is improved on and the officers appointed under it acquire age and experience, the district and railway investigating staff as a whole will be more successful than it is just at present in the investigation of crime.

The introduction of the district and railway reorganization schemes for an increase of establishments and the redistribution of stations and outposts must of course await the provision of funds, but when a start can be made, the B. B. & C. I. Railway where efficiency is greatly retarded by leaving the investigation of crime and the control of police stations in the hands of incompetent head constables, Kaira, Násik, East Khándesh, Dhárwár, part of Bijápur and West Khándesh should, in my opinion, first be taken in hand.

As I have already submitted to Government an annual report on the working of the Central Police Training School and am forwarding a review on each of the three railway police reports which have to go to Government, I have not thought it necessary to refer in this report in any detail to the police work on railways or the administration and progress of the training school.

In the Range and Railway Deputy Inspectors-General of Police of the Presidency Proper and in my Personal Assistants, I have been fortunate in a body of helpers who have materially lightened the task of administering the department during a very strenuous year, and to them my acknowledgments are due.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

M. KENNEDY,

Inspector-General of Police.

for Inspector-General of Police.

Annual and Periodical Reports.

Report on the state of crime and working of the police in the Bombay Presidency, including Sind and Railways, for the year 1909.

No. 4094.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 14th July 1911.

Memorandum from the Inspector-General of Police, No. 9759-D, dated the 1st July 1910—
Forwarding, with his remarks, a copy of a letter No. 2113, dated the 21st June 1910, from the Principal, Central Police Training School, Nasik, containing a report on the working of the school for the year 1909-10.

Letter from the Inspector-General of Police, No. 12823-A, dated the 22nd August 1910—
Forwarding—

- (1) Police Administration Report of the Bombay Presidency, including Sind and Railways, for the year 1909.
- (2) Reports of the Superintendents of Police of the several Railways in the Presidency proper with his Review thereon.

RESOLUTION.—The increase in the figures of all crime and of cognisable crime in particular which began in 1908 continued in 1909. The police had to deal with 34,526 cognisable cases during the year, the increase of about 900 being distributed over all the divisions except Central Division where there was a fall of nearly 800. In Sind there was an increase of 863. Of the more serious forms of crime, murders and cases of lurking house trespass were more numerous than in any of the past five years. Ordinary thefts were fewer than last year, but still above the average, and the only satisfactory decline is in the number of dacoities. The decrease in cattle thefts, which formed a subject for congratulation in 1907 and 1908, has ceased. In 1909 such offences were more numerous than in either of those years, though still far below the numbers in 1905 and 1906. The explanations suggested for the general increase vary; there is, however, considerable reason to believe that the recent orders about the registration of crime are bearing effect. The police refused investigation in twice as many complaints as in 1908 and four times as many in 1907, and it is probable that the knowledge of their power to act freely under section 157 (b) of the Code of Criminal Procedure encouraged them to register many complaints which formerly would have been burked. It is possible also that the introduction of the new class of Sub-Inspectors tends towards greater strictness in the registration of cases.

2. Except in part of the Southern Division there was no famine or scarcity during the year, and the conclusion of the Sinhast fair removed another abnormal cause of crime. Mr. Starte's special work among the criminal tribes of the Bijapur District is meeting with remarkable success, but the Presidency is still victimised by gangs of criminals from elsewhere in India. The occupation of these gangs is, however, becoming more precarious yearly. There was a regrettable decrease everywhere, except in the Southern Division, in the number of persons against whom action was taken under Chapter VIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The Governor in Council considers that the statistics for 1909 confirm the inference drawn in the review on the report for 1908, that there is a direct connection between the restricted use of Chapter VIII and an increase in crime. District Magistrates and District Superintendents of Police should, therefore, devote special attention to these preventive measures.

3. The Governor in Council is glad to observe that the advice which has repeatedly been given to the Magistrates and to the police not to overlook the provisions of section 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, is beginning to have effect. These provisions were used in 156 cases in 1909, a total which, though nearly 50 per cent. above the 1908 figures, is still trifling in comparison with the number of cases in which the section would have been applicable. The connected but more serious problem of the treatment of maliciously false cases seems as far from solution as ever. In 1909, 1,418 cases were classed under this head, but sanction to prosecute was given only in 438 of these and only 113 convictions were obtained. It is difficult, as the District Magistrate, Poona, remarks, to see how more thorough co-operation between the Magistrates and the Police can be established, but it is certainly easier for the Magistrates to move than for the Police,

There are two other matters to which the Magistracy would do well to pay attention—the classification of cases as true or false, the principles of which are still misunderstood by some Magistrates, and the treatment of habitual criminals, whom it is useless to send repeatedly to prison for short periods.

4. The ratio of true crime remaining undetected rose again in 1909 and has now reached 45 per cent. over the whole Presidency. The state of affairs is worse in Sind than in the Presidency proper, and the reason is no doubt that police re-organisation has proceeded more slowly there than elsewhere. When the detective power of the force is so low, it is the more incumbent upon the superior officers, the Superintendents, their Assistants and Deputies to take part in or supervise the investigation into serious cases, whenever possible. The Governor in Council regrets to see that there is still much room for improvement in this matter, and particularly that some Superintendents are failing to insist upon their Assistants and Deputies devoting a proper share of their attention to this most important branch of their duties.

5. The large increase in the number of punishments is no doubt, as the Inspector-General of Police says, due to the large number of young constables in the service. Resignations were more numerous than in 1908, but proportionately fewer than in the preceding years. The theory that the incremental system with the first increment after three years encourages men to stay in the force has still its supporters, but on the whole the Governor in Council is satisfied with the results, so far as indicated in this report, of the reversion to the old system of grades for the constables. The increase in the minimum pay of constables from Rs. 9 to Rs. 10 may be expected to induce a better class of recruits to come forward, and the raising of the maximum pay of head constables from Rs. 20 to the old figure of Rs. 35 ought to prove a great inducement to remain in the service. The number of constables was increased by 923 in the Presidency proper and 231 in Sind, and several new police stations were created. The new General Provident Fund, though only in existence for the last half of the year, attracted a considerable number of members.

6. The Police Training School has been moved from Bhámburda to Násik. Its work during the year was satisfactory, but it has been found that the Sub-Inspector's course is too short. The Inspector-General of Police proposed to lengthen it to 18 months and Government have accepted this proposal since the close of the year. Arrangements have also been made to improve and extend the training in riding.

Under Secretary to Government.
