RETURN of the Number of RECRUITS of the COMPANY'S ARMY now in England.

At the Depôt at Warley, as per last Return, dated 31 March 1858 - - - 737

Military Department, East India House, }
12 April 1858.

Philip Melvill,
Secretary Military Department.

MEMORANDUM showing the manner in which Recruits have been raised for the East India Company's Service; the PLACES where they have been principally obtained; and the Cost per Man of Recruiting, from 1842 to 1857 inclusive.

THE Act Geo. 3, c. 87, is the Act under which the Company are permitted to raise recruits for their service.

The men enlisted are subject to the provisions of the Mutiny Acts for Her Majesty's Forces whilst they remain in this country.

The Court appoint their own officers and serjeants to enlist the men. To enable them to do this, the officers hold commissions from the Queen, and the serjeants are enlisted under the Annual Mutiny Act.

The whole of the recruiting is carried on under the provisions of the Annual Mutiny Act, and Articles for War, and under the orders of the authorities of the Horse Guards; the rules laid down for the guidance of recruiting parties being applicable equally to Her Majesty's and the Company's officers, unless the Company's service is specially excepted.

From the year 1842 to 1845 inclusive, the East India Company raised recruits at five stations, viz., London, Liverpool, Dublin, Cork, and Edinburgh. In those years, 4,333 men were finally approved for the service; the London District supplying 52 per cent.; the Liverpool, 12 per cent.; the Irish Districts, 22 per cent.; and the Edinburgh District, 14 per cent.

In 1846, two new stations, viz., Bristol and Newry, were established; and from that date to 1857, inclusive, 22,670 men have been finally approved for the service.

The London District supplied	26½ per cent.
The English Districts*	23½	"	-	-
Making for England	50	"
The Irish Districts supplied†	35½	"	-	-
The Scotch	14½	"

{*Liverpool	-	14	}	23½
{Bristol	-	9½
{†Cork	-	17½	}	35½
{Dublin	-	12
{Newry	-	5½

The cost‡ of each recruit enlisted between 1842 and 1845 (exclusive of levy money), was 3 l. 7 s. 11 d. That of those subsequently enlisted (also exclusive of levy money), was 2 l. 16 s. 11 d.

The average cost of men raised, viz., from 1842 to 1857 (also exclusive of levy money), has been 2 l. 17 s. 2 d. per man.

The average amount of levy money for the whole period has been 5 l. 15 s. 6 d., which, added to the average cost of men raised, makes a total cost of 8 l. 12 s. 8 d. for each recruit.

The permanent standard height for the Company's artillery is 5 ft. 8 in.; for the infantry, 5 ft. 6 in.

The standard age for both corps is from 20 to 25 years. On any sudden demand for an increased supply of men, the standard height has been reduced, and men taken up to 30 years of age. The permanent standard height for the Queen's recruits of infantry is believed to be 5 ft. 6 in. This height is also reduced in times of emergent demands for recruits.

The standard age is from 18 to 25 years.
