ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is my pleasure to express immense gratitude to my guide Dr. S. N. Tripathy, Professor of Economics, Gokhale Institute of Politics and Economics (GIPE), Pune for his continuous guidance, constant inspiration, support, and encouragement, which has led to the completion of this thesis successfully and in time. Even amidst of his busy schedule, the amount of time he has spent with me to introduce me with the finer nuances of the subject and the different insights of the topic. In due course of time he has brought different aspects of the issue into through discussions that simply unbelievable in sharpening my skills. Really, I do not have words to express my gratefulness to him.

I wish to express my gratitude to Prof. Rajesh Pachuaire, acting Director and Co-ordinator, Ph.D. programme at GIPE, to provide this opportunity. Thanks are deserving to my co-guide, Dr. Nagarajan, Associate Professor of the Institute, for his continuous support, constant inspiration and encouragement at all levels during these periods. I am equally indebted to my teacher for his valuable suggestions and guidance throughout my research work. I also extend thanks to the faculty members of the institute especially, to Mr. Ganesh. I do extend my thanks to Mrs. Kher and Mrs. Chandrachuda, in-chager of Ph.D. section of the institute for their kind support during the course work.

I also express my sincere thanks to Prof. Arup Maharatna, head of the Population Research Center (PRC) of the institute. His constant inspiration, valuable suggestions and inimitable inputs during the early phases of my research work improved my research skills on the issue.

I would like to thank all the library staffs, particularly to Dr. Rath, Chief Documentation Officer and Mr. Jadav, Documentation Officer of the institute and Mr. Despande, the Librarian of the same institute for their unconditional support particularly, in searching the related literature at the institute.

I will be failing my duty, if I don't express my thanks to all my seniors and fellow classmates of the International Institute for Population Sciences (IIPS), Institute for Social and Economic Change (ISEC), Bangalore and IIT, Roorkee especially, to Manas Ranjan Pradhan, who were always there with helping hands, for boosting moral and academic support at each step during the study. My thanks are also due to my friends Mr. Sangram Panigrahi and Mr. Varun Sharma at GIPE, Pune for their unrestricted and unconditional support during my research work. I would like to thank all the family members of the INDEPTH NETWORK (www.indepthnetwork.org) particularly, Dr. Osman Sanko and Dr. Ayaga Bwaha, the Executive Director and Principal Research Associate respectively at the INDEPTH NETWORK, Accra, Ghana for their continued support for the successful completion of this work. Further, I would like to thank all staffs of Health Demographic Surveillance System (HDSS), Vadu, Rural Health Programme (VRHP) - a division of KEM Hospital Research Center (KEMHRC), Pune, for their support during the preparation of the work.

I would like to thank my teachers who were outside the campus of GIPE, but has always been a source of inspiration, as a mentor, to pursue this work on time. To name a few, Dr. Aditya Kumar Patra, faculty of Economics of Kalinga Mahavidyalaya, a constituent college under Berhampur University, Dr. Murtunjaya Mishra, faculty of Economics at Banaras Hindu University and Dr. Sanjay Kumar Mohanty, faculty of Fertility & Nuptiality at IIPS, Mumbai. Finally, I would like to thank Shri Lokanath Bisoyi, my primary school teacher, for his kind words of inspiration and encouragement to complete this work. Special thanks to Mr. Sudam Panigrahi and Ajay Kumar Jena for their continued support in the collection of primary data from the field.

Last but not the least, I would like to express my deep gratitude to my parents and relatives; particularly, my elder brother, Mr. Nilachala Acharya who has also been a constant source of support and inspiration. His love, affection and blessings inspired me to complete this work on time.
