"IDEAL MONEY." "Universal suffrage can, if it likes, repudiate the whole debt; it can, if it likes, decree soft-soap to be currency."— The Louisville Courier-Journal .—From a cartoon by Thomas Nast published in Harper's Weekly , January 19, 1878	194
STANLEY MATTHEWS.—From a picture in Harper's Weekly , April 7, 1877, after a photograph by James Landy. Stanley Matthews was elected to the United States Senate in 1876 to succeed John Sherman. Various measures had been proposed in Congress during the session of 1877 to restore silver to its old place of honor. In 1878 the newly elected Senator Matthews secured the passage of a resolution providing for the payment of all public debts, including bonds, in silver dollars of 412½ grains each. The Bland bill, providing for a return to free coinage, had already been passed in the House, but was for the time superseded by the Matthews resolution, which was adopted on January 28, 1878, both in the Senate and the House by large majorities	196
"THE SOONER THE BETTER."—From a cartoon by Thomas Nast representing Uncle Sam and Silver; published in Harper's Weekly , December 14, 1878	198
REFORM WITHOUT BLOODSHED. GOVERNOR CLEVELAND AND THEODORE ROOSEVELT AT THEIR GOOD WORK.—From a cartoon by Thomas Nast in Harper's Weekly , April, 1884. This is the first appearance of Roosevelt in cartoons. Nast here significantly compliments Governor Cleveland for uniting with a strong-hearted young Republican like Theodore Roosevelt in certain legislation for reform	201
GEORGE HUNT PENDLETON.—From a picture in Harper's Weekly , April 4, 1885, after a photograph by C. M. Bell. He was United States Democratic Senator from Ohio and introduced a Civil Service Bill during Hayes's Administration, which was signed in 1883 by President Arthur. It provided for competitive examinations and classification of employees and declared that no official could be removed for failing to contribute "voluntary" assessments. It also provided that any government official convicted of soliciting or receiving such contributions should be subject to a fine of $5,000 or three years' imprisonment or both	205

THE INAUGURATION, 1885. PRESIDENT ARTHUR AND MR. CLEVELAND LEAVING THE WHITE HOUSE FOR THE CAPITOL.—From a drawing by T. De Thulstrup, published in Harper's Weekly , March 14, 1885	221
SENATOR JOHN H. REAGAN, OF TEXAS.—From a picture in Harper's Weekly , February 12, 1887, after a photograph by C. M. Bell. As far back as 1878 Reagan had introduced in Congress a railway-regulation bill which was now (1887) favored in the House. In 1885 the House passed the Reagan bill. The West and the South demanded that the two chambers harmonize their differences. As a result an investigation of railway evils was made by a Senate committee under the chairmanship of Senator S. M. Cullom, which reported that "the paramount evil" was unjust discrimination between persons, places, and commodities rather than exorbitant rates	233
SELBY MOORE CULLOM.—From a picture in Harper's Weekly , January 27, 1883, after a photograph by Deane. He was chairman of the Senate committee in 1886 appointed to investigate the railroads	235

ROGER QUARLES MILLS, OF TEXAS. —From a drawing by Paul Rénouard, published in Harper's Weekly , May 19, 1888. He was chairman of the Ways and Means Committee in the Congress of 1887-89, and reported in 1888 the Mills bill, prepared in the direction of tariff reform. The bill passed the Democratic House, but was defeated in the Republican Senate	257
MR. MCKINLEY, OF OHIO, EXHIBITING A TEN-DOLLAR "ALL-WOOL" BOSTON-MADE SUIT OF CLOTHES, WHILE DEBATING ON THE MILLS TARIFF BILL, MAY, 1888. —From a drawing by Paul Rénouard, published in Harper's Weekly , June 2, 1888	259
WILLIAM LYNE WILSON, OF WEST VIRGINIA. —From a drawing by Paul Rénouard, published in Harper's Weekly , May 19, 1888. Democratic member of the Ways and Means Committee in 1887 who took a leading part in the debate on the Mills tariff bill, which closed May 19, 1888. A member of Congress from 1882 to 1894, he was considered one of the best examples of the "scholar in politics." In 1893 he became chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and introduced the tariff bill that bears his name, which was adopted in 1894	261
JOHN GRIFFIN CARLISLE. —From a drawing by Paul Rénouard, published in Harper's Weekly , June 2, 1888. As candidate of the revenue-reform wing of the Democrats, he received the nomination and election to the office of Speaker of the House of Representatives in 1883. He was twice re-elected, serving until 1889. From 1890 to 1893 he was United States Senator. On March 4, 1893, he resigned his seat to enter President Cleveland's second Cabinet as Secretary of the Treasury	263

a Chinese Embassy and a treaty was ratified at Washington, July 28, 1868, concerning "trade, consuls, religious toleration, and emigration." The Embassy proper was composed of Mr. Burlingame and the two Chinese dignitaries who appear in the engraving seated on his right and left. These are Chih-tajin and Sun-tajin, mandarins of the second rank in the Flowery Kingdom. They are called "Mandarins of the Peacock's Feather," from the fact that they are entitled to wear that emblem of nobility. The attachés of the Embassy consist of J. MacLeavy Brown, First Secretary of Legation, Monsieur Edward de Champs, second Secretary of Legation; six native interpreters—two speaking English, two French, and two Russian—and a native physician and two writers of the Embassy—the treaty recognized the "inherent and inalienable right" of man to change his home and allegiance and also the mutual advantage of the free migration and emigration of their citizens and subjects respectively from the one country to the other for purposes of curiosity, of trade, or as permanent residents. The treaty was received with every manifestation of favor by the American people	273
JAMES B. ANGELL. —From Harper's Weekly , July 31, 1880. Mr. Angell was appointed in 1880 by President Hayes as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to China. With John F. Swift and William H. Trescott, the other two members of the commission whose portraits are given on another page, he was despatched to China by President Hayes, and at Peking, November 17, 1880, the three commissioners secured from the Chinese government a modification of the Burlingame Treaty of 1868, which permitted the United States to "regulate, limit, or suspend," but not absolutely prohibit, the coming of Chinese laborers, whenever their coming or their residence affected the interests of the United States or endangered the good order of any section of the country	275
JOHN F. SWIFT. —From Harper's Weekly , July 31, 1880. Member of the Chinese Commission appointed in 1880 by President Hayes to negotiate a new treaty with China .	277

JOHN L. STEVENS.—From Harper's Weekly , February 25, 1893. United States minister to the Hawaiian Islands, appointed by President Harrison in 1889. In 1893 Queen Liliuokalani, who attempted to proclaim a new constitution in the direction of absolute power, was opposed by her ministers, who organized a provisional government and deposed her. Sanford B. Dole was at the head of the provisional government, and it is a disputed question whether the revolution was accomplished independently of the aid and encouragement offered by Minister Stevens, who, acting without instructions, had proclaimed a protectorate of the United States over the islands	289

JAMES H. BLOUNT, COMMISSIONER TO THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.—From Harper's Weekly , March 27, 1893, after a photograph by Bell. Appointed in March, 1893, by President Cleveland to report on the conditions which led to the overthrow of the kingdom of Hawaii and the establishment of an American protectorate over the islands. The first results of his investigation was an order to remove the American flag from the Government House, and for the withdrawal of American marines from Honolulu. These actions created much excitement in the United States and led to the resignation of Minister Stevens, and the appointment of Mr. Blount to succeed him, and to a renewed agitation for the annexation of Hawaii both in Washington and in Honolulu	293

WILLIAM EUSTIS RUSSELL.—From Harper's Weekly , July 25, 1896. Three times elected Democratic Governor of Massachusetts (1890, 1891, and 1892). Early in 1896 his nomination for the Presidency was strongly advocated in the Eastern States, but his outspoken views in favor of the gold standard made his nomination impossible. His name was considered for the Presidency on a Democratic gold-standard platform, but his sudden death shortly after the Chicago convention in 1896 checked the movement	311
