N.B. — In estimating the proportion of persons professing each religion to the total population, the religion has not been separately shown in districts where it is followed by less than one in ten thousand of the people, but is included there under the head of "Others" in the last column of this part of the Table. Similarly, in the second part of the statement the respective proportions of the sexes have not been shown for districts where the religion is followed by fewer than ten thousand persons.

* This proportion does not in all districts represent that of the tribes, as many members of the latter, especially in Thana, are returned as Hindus.

Comp. 1 of 4 to Jews and 2 of Buddhists, Unitarians, Theists and unspecified.

*In this Table are entered only such castes, &c., the numerical strength of which is returned in the Presidency of Bombay either at, over, or near 100,000, or which is expected to exceed that number in the aggregate of India. The Roman numerals attached to the name of each caste in the column heading denote the class to which that caste belongs in social estimation. After Brāhmins and Happuts (including Kshatrias), come other castes of good social position, and, lastly, those of lower social position. As the forest tribes of aboriginal origin have been returned partly as Hindus partly as Aborigines by religion the present Table contains only the number of each tribe that was returned as Non-Hindu. † In Sind very few castes were recorded separately in the course of abstraction.

* A village in which any person was enumerated on the census, is, for the purpose of this Table, taken as inhabited, whether it contains any habitual residents or not.

† In this Table each of the two cantonments of Poona and Kirkee has been counted as a separate town. In two towns adjacent hamlets have been included, as in 1872, but as the population without this supplement would not be 5,000, the true municipal population only has been entered in class C. of Table XIV. Neither of these towns has been included in the urban class in Tables I. and XII.

‡ In Sind the District has been taken by the Commissioner as the unit for this Table, and this accounts for the difference between the numbers of this census and those of the last, as the territorial division of the District frequently includes many village areas, or Mafkas.

NOTE.—Every fairly compact group of houses containing a population of 5,000 and over, and as a rule, every municipality containing that population, has been considered a town unless the Collector of the District is of opinion that it is merely an overgrown village, and that the urban population of the neighbourhood is gathered into some other place near. Conversely, in thinly peopled districts, or owing to some special reason, there are places which contain an urban population though below the standard in numbers. These have been included amongst the towns. Cantonment limits have been excluded from this Table, but shown in Tables I. and XII.

* The comparatively small numbers of the Aboriginal tribes in British territory is owing to the large number included amongst Hindus. The total strength of the Thakur, Warri and Kathodi tribes in British territory is respectively 96,601, 79,700 and 64,567, including those of both religions.

† In the Rewa Kantha, Mahi Kantha and the Jawhar State the tribes of Muhammadans have not been separately returned.

APPENDIX C.

SUPPLEMENTARY RETURNS.

PRESIDENCY OF BOMBAY.

CLASSIFICATION.

1. The names of Hindu castes as abstracted from the schedules are arranged after preliminary revision, in alphabetical order. The classification† to which the Roman numerals in Column 4 refer is as follows :—

I. Bráhmans.	VIII. Fishers and sailors.
II. Rajputs and Kshatrias.	IX. Domestic or personal servants.
III. Writers.	X. Minor professions.
IV. Traders.	XI. Devotees and religious mendicants.
V. Craftsmen.	XII. Depressed classes.
VI. Agriculturists.	XIII. Labouring, miscellaneous and wandering classes.
VII. Herdsmen, &c.	XIV. Forest and other aboriginal tribes.

2. The names of the castes and divisions which are of enough importance numerically to be shown separately in Table VIII. of the Imperial series are printed in thick type, those that will probably be distinguished in the Provincial Returns are marked with an asterisk.‡

3. The Division in which the caste is chiefly found, or where it is indigenous, is denoted after the name.§ Where no Division is mentioned the caste is either spread over most of the Presidency, or belongs to another part of the Continent. The castes found in Bombay City are not distinguished, as they all belong to one or other of the continental divisions. This list does not apply in detail to Sind, where only the main castes mentioned above in para. 2 have been tabulated separately.

* This list includes, in addition to those castes and sub-divisions which have been universally returned as Hindu, the tribes of aboriginal origin which have been returned sometimes as Hindu sometimes as aboriginal in different blocks. It also includes the Brahmo Samáj, which have returned themselves as Bráhmans or Wánias as the case may be.

† The classification is very probably defective as regards the divisions of Lingáyats in the Karnátic, as it appears from the Occupation Tables that there are many returned under one denomination who pursue agriculture and weaving or trade indifferently. No satisfactory classification of Muhammadans has been discovered. In Gujarát the class of local converts can be distinguished from the Muhammadans of foreign origin, but the distinction is obliterated throughout the greater part of the Deccan and Marátha Country, where the terms Shaikh and Pathán cover every sort of distinction.

‡ In column 5 is shown the social grade to which it is considered that the caste belongs in general estimation, viz., after Bráhmans and Rajputs come 3—other classes of good social position, followed by 4—those of inferior position, and 5—Forest or Aboriginal Tribes.

§ Thus Guj. = Gujarát, Konk. = Konkan, Decc. = Deccan, and Kann. = the Kánarese Division.

* Amongst the unoccupied are included prisoners and except, in the case of Brahmans, mendicants; unless these latter form a very considerable proportion of the community as in Castes like Nos. 57, 58 and 59.
‡ This heading includes in the case of the Agricultural class all occupations combined with agriculture, but in that of other classes the occupation entered in column 2 as the hereditary one of the caste, is here excluded.

§ The distribution of these two classes is omitted because the members of them are almost exclusively employed in their hereditary occupations of literary and commercial pursuits respectively.

DETAILED OCCUPATION TABLE II.

Showing the Distribution by Districts of the Chief Occupations returned.

PART A.—MALES.

N.B.—The totals as here given differ in many instances from those in the preceding statement, because in the latter the system of classification adopted allowed of the combination of several occupations under a single general designation. In this statement too, several occupations followed by a single class of persons, and which are shown elsewhere in separate groups, are entered consecutively.

PART B.—FEMALES,

N. B.—The totals here given differ in some instances from those in the preceding statement, because in the latter the system of classification adopted allowed of the combination of several occupations under a single general designation. In this statement too, occupation, followed by the same class of persons, shown elsewhere in separate sub-orders, are taken as a single item.
