INDEX I.—TO WITNESSES.

	Page	Page
Mr. W. ALLAN:—The witness. Arbitration. Conciliation. Both systems are unsatisfactory. Strikes should be prevented rather than remedied. Causes of strikes—(a) Overtime; (b) Piecework. Eight hours' day	33
Mr. J. ANDERSON:—The witness. The Amalgamated Society of Engineers	27
Mr. C. BOOTH:—The witness. "Sweating" defined. Remedies immediately practicable. Wages and rents	25
Mr. S. B. BOULTON:—The witness. The London Labour Conciliation Board:—(a) Its origin and constitution; (b) Its functions; (c) Its methods. Conciliation. Arbitration. Extension of the sphere of the Board. Example of the London Chamber of Commerce followed by other Chambers instituting similar boards. The Arbitration Acts, 1867 and 1872. Legislature should aim at strengthening instead of superseding voluntary boards. State Board of Arbitration disapproved of	31
Mr. R. W. BRABROOK:—The witness. The classes of societies within his jurisdiction. Friendly societies:—(a) Independent societies, (b) Affiliated orders, (c) Dividing societies; (d) Societies in connexion with employers, (e) Societies in connexion with particular firms, but not supported by employers, (f) Societies in connexion with particular trades, (g) Collecting societies. REFUTATIONS.

OF MR MITCHELL'S EVIDENCE: (a) That the co-operative movement is a public benefit; (b) that from 10 to 15 per cent. is saved by dealing with co-operative stores, (c) that this sum represents the private trader's profit, 15 ii.

OF MR MAXWELL'S EVIDENCE (a) That co-operative production enterprises furnish continuous employment, 16 i; (b) that the way in which the accounts of co-operative societies are audited admits of no improvement, 16 ii

OF MR MANN'S EVIDENCE (a) That individualism disorganises industry; (b) that an eight hours' law would solve the difficulty; (c) that a public authority could usefully readjust the distribution of wealth; (d) that loss of our foreign trade could be met by growing our own food; (e) that a public authority can control the supply of labour without controlling the demand; (f) that a municipal body could with advantage manage the London Docks, 23 ii, 24 ii.

OF MR WEBB'S EVIDENCE. (a) That individualism can with advantage be eliminated; (b) that the use by Government servants of their political power against their employer is an advantage, (c) that municipalisation of the land of London is expedient; (d) that the system of indirect election was the cause of complaint at the Liverpool Docks, 24 ii.
