PREFACE

THIS work has been prepared to meet the requirements of those who are engaged or interested in the study of practical library methods. No English book on this subject has been issued since Edwards dealt with classifications generally in his Memoirs of Libraries, published in 1859; and the literature of the subject consists of little more than papers on single schemes. Classification has never been a strong point in British libraries, and this has arisen partly from apathy on the part of librarians, but also from the difficulty of obtaining information about American and foreign schemes which have been successfully applied to libraries. Leaving out of view Petzholdt's list of classifications contained in his Bibliotheca Bibliographica (1866), I have been unable to find that any single work devoted entirely to a systematic examination of schemes has ever been issued in any country. This little book has been prepared, accordingly, to fill a well-defined space in library literature; and however inadequate or slight the attempt may be, it is earnestly hoped that it will in some measure help to stimulate interest in the subject of classification.

The "Adjustable Classification" has been prepared for the use of municipal public libraries chiefly; but it can be adapted to almost any variety of general library, provided arrangements are made for subdivisions. Two thousand two hundred and fifty divisions are provided, excluding general heads, while provision is made for four thousand five hundred divisions by means of blanks. Each of these divisions is capable of infinite sub-division. For most ordinary purposes the divisions printed will meet every need.

Suggestions and corrections will be gladly received from any one interested in the subject.

JAMES D. BROWN.
