

UNIFORM WITH THE STANDARD LIBRARY,

BARBAULD'S (MRS.) SELECTIONS FROM THE SPECTATOR, TATLER, GUARDIAN, AND FREEHOLDER. In 2 Vols. 3s. 6d. per Volume.

1 BRITISH POETS, from MILTON to KIRKE WHITE. Cabinet Edition, comprising, in a very small but remarkably clear type, as much matter as the sixty volumes of Johnson's Poets. Complete in 4 Vols. Frontispieces. 14s.

2 & 3. RICHARDSON'S TRANSLATION OF DANTE. Extra cloth. 7s. 6d.

4 SITTERMOLE'S EVENINGS AT HADDON HALL. 24 exquisite Engravings on Steel, from Designs by himself; the Letter-Press by the BARONNE DE CALABRELLA. Post 8vo. 7s. 6d.

5 LINGWORTH'S RELIGION OF PROTESTANTS. 2s. 6d.

SIC TALES; comprising The Vicar of Wakefield, Elizabeth, Paul and Virginia, Gulliver's Travels, Sterne's Sentimental Journey, Sorrows of Werter, Theodosius and Constantia, Castle of Utranto, and Rascals. 18mo. 7 Portraits. 3s. 6d.

6 ETHENES. Translated by LELAND. Portrait. 3s.

7 AND MOWBRAY ON POULTRY, Edited by Mrs. LONDON, Illustrations by HARVEY (including the Cochon-China Fowl). 5s.

8 OVID'S METAMORPHOSES AND EPODES, translated literally and rhythmically, by the Rev. W. SHERIDAN. 3s. 6d.

9 IRVING'S (WASHINGTON) WORKS. Complete in 10 Vols., £1 15s., or 8s. 6d.

10 LAMARCA'S SCIENTIFIC DIALOGUES. Greatly Improved Edition, with Questions, &c., by PINNOCK. (Upwards of 600 pages). Woodcuts. 5s.

11 JOYCE'S INTRODUCTION TO THE ARTS AND SCIENCES. 5s.

12 LAMARTINE'S HISTORY OF THE RESTORATION. 4 vols., post 8vo., new Edition, with a General Index, and 6 additional Portraits, viz., Lamartine, Talleyrand, Lafayette, Ney, and Louis XVII. Cloth.

LAMARTINE'S THREE MONTHS IN POWER. Sewed, 2s.

LAMARTINE'S POETICAL MEDITATIONS AND RELIGIOUS HARMONIES, with Biographical Sketch. Portrait. Cloth, 3s. 6d.

LAWRENCE'S LECTURES ON COMPARATIVE ANATOMY, PHYSIOLOGY, ZOOLOGY, AND THE NATURAL HISTORY OF MAN. Frontispiece and Plates. 5s.

LILLY'S INTRODUCTION TO ASTROLOGY. A New and Improved Edition, by ZADEKEL, with his Grammar of Astrology, and Tables of Nativities. 5s.

LOUDON'S (MRS.) ENTERTAINING AND USEFUL NATURALIST, a Description of more than Five Hundred Animals, with Indexes of Scientific and Popular Names. With Woodcuts. BEWICK, HARVEY, &c. Revised and enlarged. 7s. 6d.

LOWTH'S LECTURES ON SACRED POETRY OF THE HEBREWS. 3s. 6d.

MICHELET'S HISTORY OF THE FRENCH REVOLUTION. 4s.

MILLER'S PHILOSOPHY OF HISTORY. Third Revised and Improved Edition, 4 Volumes, at 3s. 6d. per Volume.

MITFORD'S (MISS) OUR VILLAGE. 2 Vols., New Edition, with Woodcuts and beautiful Frontispieces on Steel, gilt cloth. Each Vol. 5s.

NORWAY. A Road Book for Tourists in Norway, with Hints to English Sportsmen and Anglers, by THOMAS FORSTER, Esq. Limp cloth. 2s.

PARKES' ELEMENTARY CHEMISTRY. New Edition, revised, 6s.

Dhananjayarao Gadgil Library

GIPE-PUNE-001669

BOHN'S CLASSICAL LIBRARY.

TACITUS.

THE WORKS OF TACITUS.

The Oxford Translation, Revised.

WITH NOTES.

VOL. II.

THE HISTORY, GERMANY, AGRICOLA, AND DIALOGUE ON ORATORS.

LONDON:
HENRY G. BOHN, YORK STREET, COVENT GARDEN.
1854.

V57e D055

A854.2

1669

CONTENTS OF VOL. II.

BOOK I.

State of Affairs at Rome—Galba's Entry into the City—Condition of the Provinces—Legions in Upper Germany revolt—Piso adopted by Galba—Galba's Address to Piso—Piso's Adoption announced—Otho plots against Galba—The Soldiers corrupted—Otho proclaimed by the Soldiers—Attempts to stay the Revolt—Galba leaves the Palace—Otho's Address to the Legions—End of Galba—Murder of Piso—Licence of the Soldiery—Titus Vinus—Origin of the Revolt under Vitellius—Vitellius, Verginius, and Cæcina—The Legions in Upper Germany revolt—Vitellius raised to the Empire—Indolence of Vitellius—Fend between Lyons and Vienne—Cæcina chastises the Helvetians—Cæcina advances into Italy—Vain Attempts at Accommodation—The Provinces declare for Otho—The Sarmatians defeated—Panic among the Soldiers—Otho's Address to the Troops—Prodigies and Omens—Public Feeling at Rome—Otho marches from Rome
1—67

BOOK II.

Temple of the Paphian Venus—Titus arrives in the East—False Report respecting Nero—Law against Public Accusers—Disorderly Conduct of Otho's Army—A Battle fought in Narbon Gaul—Spurinna reduces his Troops to Order—Unsuccessful Attack on Placentia—Abortive Stratagem of Cæcina—Mutinous Spirit of the Batavians—Characters of Cæcina and Valens—Otho's Affairs begin to decline—Conflicting Views of Historians—Battle near Bedriacum—Otho's Army defeated—Fidelity of the Prætorians—Death of Otho—Embarrassment of the Senate—Excesses of the Victors—Extravagant Conduct of Vitellius—Dolabella murdered—Insubordination of the Army—Vitellius visits the Field of Battle—Resources of Vespasian—Address of Mucianus—Vespasian proclaimed in Judea—Preparations for the War—Conduct of the Legions in Moesia—Progress of Vitellius—Courts the Favour of the Mob—Licentiousness of the Troops—News of the Revolt reaches Vitellius—Treachery of Cæcina 67—134

BOOK III.

Deliberations of the Flavians—Chiefs of the Revolt—The War commenced—Correspondence between the Generals—The Fleet declare for Vespasian—Antonius resolves on a Battle—Successes of the Fabian Army—Conflict in the Night—A Father slain by his Son—Assault on Cremona—Cremona taken—Sack and Destruction of the City—Death of Junius Blæsus—Indecision of Valens—Valens taken Prisoner—Pontus declares for Vitellius—Antonius advances toward Rome—Letter of Antonius to Vespasian—Imbecility of Vitellius—Consternation at Rome—Antonius attempts to calm the Troops—Sabinus, Brother of Vespasian—Vitellius abdicates—Sabinus seizes the Capitol—The Capitol stormed and burnt—Sabinus taken Prisoner—Sack of Tarracina—Antonius receives a Check—Conflicts before the City—Capture and Death of Vitellius. 135—194

BOOK IV.

Frightful Condition of Rome—Servility of the Senate—Notice of Helvidius Priscus—Debates in the Senate—Origin of the Revolt of Civilis—Civilis harangues the Batavians—Defeat of the Roman Troops—Progress of the Revolt—Assault on the Roman Camp—Reinforcements summoned from Gaul—Engagement at Gelduba—Civilis attacks the Old Camp—Attack on the Army under Vocula—Vocula neglects the Pursuit—Vespasian and Titus Consuls—Domitian addresses the Senate—Movement against the Informers—Mucianus defends the Informers—Proposal to raise a Loan—Murder of Lucius Piso—The Capitol rebuilt—Movements of Civilis and Classicus—Courageous Conduct of Vocula—The Legions submit to the Gauls—Sad Procession of the captive Soldiers—Conduct of the Agrippinians—Anxiety of Mucianus—Dissensions among the Gauls—Capital of the Treveri taken—Address of the Roman General—Deliberations of the Germans—The Agrippinians entreat Assistance—Alleged Miracles of Vespasian—Legend of Serapis—Domitian at Lyons 195—264

BOOK V.

Fabled Origin of the Jews—The Mosaic Institutions—Jewish Worship—Destruction of the Cities of the Plain—Various Rulers of the Jews—Fortifications of Jerusalem—Skirmish between Civilis and Cerealis—Battle on the Banks of the Rhine—Engagements at Grinnes and Vada—Civilis surrenders—Meeting of Civilis and Cerealis 264—285

A TREATISE ON THE MANNERS OF THE GERMANS.

Origin of the People of Germany—The German Hercules—Character of the Country—Description of Armour—Election of Kings—Respect paid to Women—Divination—Public Assemblies—Youths invested with Arms—Their Indolence—Their Clothing—Chastity of both Sexes—Ties of Relationship—Drunkenness—Slavery—Funeral Rites—Various Tribes—The Catti—Tencteri and Bructeri—The Chauci—The Cimbri—Battles against the Romans—The Suevi—The Hermunduri—The Lygian Tribes—The Suiones—Gathering Amber—The Peucini and Fenni	286—342
---	---------

THE LIFE OF CNÆUS JULIUS AGRICOLA.

Apology for writing the Life—Retrospect—In Britain, under Suetonius Paulinus—Joins the Party of Vespasian—Britain—Inhabitants of Britain—Climate and Soil—First Invasion of Britain—Defeat of Boadicea—The Ordovices of North Wales—He adopts a milder Policy—The Firths of Clyde and Forth—Great Battle in Caledonia—He reaches the Grampians—Calgacus's Address to the Britons—Agricola's Address before the Battle—Battle of the Grampians—Defeat of the Britons—His Recall from Britain—He retires from Public Life—His Death—Withdrawn from impending Evils—Concluding Reflections	343—389
---	---------

A DIALOGUE CONCERNING ORATORY, OR THE CAUSES OF CORRUPT ELOQUENCE	390—452
---	---------

INDEX	453
-----------------	-----

INDEX.

INDEX.

- ANDAGRES, the Parthian, his great power, i. 237; supports Tiridates, 237; is vested with the whole power of the party, 240; his unfortunate counsel to Tiridates, 241.
- Abdus, the eunuch, his authority in Parthia, i. 238; is poisoned by Artabanus, 238.
- Accusations, their progress under Tiberius, i. 131; how incessant and prevailing, 178; the most pestilent calamity of the time, 216; frequency of accusation, and baseness of many of the accused in the time of Nero, 421, 432.
- Accusers, what bloody and destructive instruments, i. 172; what powerful protection they find, 178; their fury continued, 198; law against them under Otho, ii. 75. See Inferna.
- Accusers, public, their safety in proportion to the public hate, i. 178.
- Aceronia, one of Agrippina's women, mistaken for her lady, and murdered, i. 356.
- Aceronius, Cneius, consul, i. 242.
- Achaia, the government of that province changed, i. 53.
- Achaia and Asia alarmed with a counterfeit Nero, ii. 74.
- Acilius, Marcus, consul, i. 309.
- Acratus, freedman to Nero, a pestilent instrument and spoiler, i. 424.
- Acte, Nero's mistress, i. 319; is introduced by Seneca, as an antidote against the enticements of Agrippina, 354.
- Actus condemned for treason, i. 243.
- Adgandestrius, prince of the Chatrians, offers to the senate to poison Arminius, i. 107; the reply, 107.
- Adiabemians, their sufferings and complaints, i. 394.
- Adoption of children for political purposes, i. 87.
- Adoptions, fraudulent, their prevalence and iniquity, i. 467; a decree of senate against the abuse, 467.
- Adorsians. See Buones.
- Adultery, punishment of, under Lex Julia, i. 86.
- Æduans, insurrection of the, i. 138; admitted into the senate, 264.
- Ægium, a Greek city, relieved of tribute, and why, i. 163.
- Æsculapius, his temple at Pergamus found to be a genuine sanctuary, i. 163. See Coes.
- Æstii, their customs, manners, and situation, ii. 338.
- Afer, Domitius, a zealous accuser, i. 190; arraigns Claudia Pulchra, 190; he is more-eloquent than upright, 190; pursues the profession of accuser, and attacks Quintilius Varus, 190; his vile motions, 199; his death and character, 199.
- Afranius. See Burnus.
- Africa, wars there, i. 37, 119; the forces there, 157.
- Africanus, Julius, accused, i. 216.
- Africanus, Sextius, i. 325; appointed to assess the Gauls, 332.
- Agerina, Agrippina's freedman, falsely charged with treason against Nero, and put in chains, i. 358.
- Agrestis, Julius, a senator, remarkable instance of his faith, fortitude, and firmness of spirit, ii. 170.
- Agricola, Cneius Julius, introduction to the history of his life, ii. 344; his birth and descent, 347; manner and place of his education, 348; his prudent behaviour and conduct while young, 349; marries Domitia Dec-

- diana, 350; his preferments, 350; his probity in all offices, 350; his address and behaviour to Cerealis, 352; is advanced by Vespasian to the rank of patrician, 352; and to the government of Aquitania, 352; his glorious character as a magistrate, 353; is called to the consulship, 353; his behaviour in Britain on his arrival there, 363; attacks the Ordoices, and defeats them, 363; conquers Mona, 364; his gallant behaviour thereupon, 364; he erects forts and garrisons throughout all the known parts of Britain, 366, 367; by his mild and gentle treatment of the Britons they are brought to love the Roman customs, 366; his skill in erecting forts, 367; passes the Frith, and subdues several nations, till then unknown, 368; places forces in that part of Britain fronting Ireland, 368; the disposal of his army to fight the Caledonians, 369; he fights and routs them, 370; leads his army to the Grampian Hills, 371; his animating speech to his army there, 374; he engages the Britons under command of Calgacus, 376; his behaviour and conduct, 376; entirely vanquishes them, 379; after the fight he receives hostages of the Britons, and orders his fleet and army into winter quarters, 379; he writes to the emperor a modest relation of these actions, 380; leaves the government of Britain, and arrives at Rome, 381; his reception by the emperor, 381; his behaviour and character, 381; by his signal merit he incurs the envy and hate of the emperor and his vicious courtiers, 382; is persuaded to petition the emperor to excuse his going as proconsul to Asia, 382; he dies, not without suspicion of being poisoned by Domitian's order, 384; glorious character of him, 385.
- Agrippa, king of Judæa, his death, i. 285.
- Agrippa, Asinius, consul, i. 176; his death and character, 196.
- Agrippa, Fonteius, offers to implend Libo Drusus, i. 72; why his daughter not made chief vestal, 106.
- Agrippa, Haterius, stands for the prætorship, i. 87; his severe sentence against Priscus, 137; his scandalous flattery, 142; his malice and debauched life, 214.
- Agrippa, Julius, banished, i. 441.
- Agrippa, Marcus, his character, dignities, and death, i. 3; all his children but one die a violent death, 119.
- Agrippa, Posthumus, banished by his grandfather Augustus, at the instigation of Livia, i. 4; his character, 4; the first sacrifice upon the accession of Tiberius, 6.
- Agrippa, Vibulenus, a Roman knight, poisons himself in the senate-house, i. 238.
- Agrippina, wife to Germanicus, her fruitfulness, chastity, love for her husband, and vehement but virtuous spirit, i. 25; is hated by Livia, 25; her mournful departure from her husband during a sedition of the army, 30; is pitied by the soldiery, who thence relent, 30; her magnanimity and kind treatment to the soldiers, 48; thence rouses the jealousy of Tiberius, 48; she embarks for Rome with her husband's ashes, and her children, 100; her virtue and forlorn lot, 100; her fleet meet that of Piso, 102; they each fear to engage, 102; she lands in Italy, 108; is received by a great confux of people, 108; her indiscretion, 102; she is deceived by the arts of Sejanus, 102; her incorruptible chastity, 162; the universal sympathy and mourning of the people, 162; her vehemence, 190; her just reproaches upon Tiberius, 191; she desires a second husband, to protect her from her enemies, 191; is further inflamed by the secret agents of Sejanus, 191; her haughty behaviour, 191; guards and spies placed about her, 200; is arraigned in the senate by bitter letters from Tiberius, 207; an insurrection of the people in her behalf, 208; her tragical death, 227; the shameful rage of Tiberius against her after she was dead, 227; her character, 227.
- Agrippina the younger, mother of Nero, writes Memoirs, i. 191; she is married to Cneius Domitius, 205; persecuted by Messalina, 255; recommended to Claudius for a wife, by Pallas, 273; caresses her uncle Claudius, and secures her marriage with him, 274; meditates a match between her son and his daughter, 274; her absolute sway, 277; her behaviour and character, 277; recalls Seneca from exile, and her reasons for this, 277; establishes a colony, and calls it by her own name, 287; what mighty power she assumes, 293; her management of the emperor, 295; removes Crispinus and Geta, captains of the guards, and in their room puts Burrus Afranius, 296; inveighs against Narcissus, 306; covets the gardens of Statilius Taurus, and procures his doom, 307; resolves on the death of Claudius, 310; procures the condemnation and death of Domitia Lepida, 310; employs Locusta to prepare poison for Claudius, 311; calls in the help of Xenophon, 312; affects great sorrow, caresses Britannicus and Octavia, 312; procures Nero to be declared emperor,

- 312; directs Julius Silanus to be murdered, 313; had directed the murder of his brother Lucius, 313; intends a torrent of slaughters, 314; her violent lust of dominion, and tempestuous spirit, 314; is created priestess to Claudius, 314; opposes the proceedings of the senate, 316; attempts to ascend the imperial tribunal, and to give audience to the ambassadors, 316; her fury against Acte, and against Nero, 320; she changes her arts, and even tempts him to incest, 320; waxes violent again, and reproaches him, 320; treats him with menaces, declares for Britannicus, regrets the murder of Claudius, and reviles Seneca and Burrus, 321; her consternation upon the murder of Britannicus, 323; caresses Octavia, amasses money, courts the officers and nobility, 324; is deprived of her guards, and forsaken by her wonted followers, 325; is charged with a conspiracy against her son, 325; heard in her defence, 326; the boldness of it, 326; insists on vengeance upon her accusers, and rewards to her friends, and obtains both, 327; tempts her son to incest, 354; her behaviour from her infancy, 354; is designedly shipwrecked, but escapes, 356; dissembles her apprehensions, 357; sympathy and concern of the populace upon discovering her danger, 358; her house beset with armed men, her domestics fly, the assassins enter, 358; her speech to them, her murder, 359; her humble funeral, 359; her end foretold, 359; shrieks said to be heard from her grave, 360; decrees of the senate against her memory, 361.
- Agrippinian colony, its foundation, i. 237; its people slaughter the Germans dwelling among them, ii. 257; their treacherous destruction of the Chaucian and Frisian cohorts, 257.
- Agrippinus, Paconius, accused, i. 460; his innocence, 461; and banishment, 463.
- Albanians, whence sprung, i. 234.
- Albinus, Luceius, governor of Mauritania, murdered, as also his wife, ii. 106.
- Albicilla, charged with devising charms against the life of Tiberius, i. 244; kills herself, 245.
- Aletus, Marcus, chosen by the senate to survey and relieve the Asiatic cities ruined by an earthquake, i. 65.
- Alexander, Tiberius, an illustrious Roman knight, an assistant to Corbulo in the East, i. 412.
- Alexander, Tiberius, governor of Egypt, ii. 9.
- Alliaria, wife of Sempronius Gracchus, i. 38.
- Allies, those of Rome, what forces they furnished, i. 157.
- Alphabetic characters, invention of, i. 256; the Roman-alphabet added to by Claudius, 256.
- Alphenus, Varus, abandons the army, i. 176.
- Alpinus, Montanus, captain of a cohort, confirms to the troops of Vitellius the fate of the battle at Cremona, ii. 218; conveys orders to Civilis to forbear war, 219.
- Alps, Maritime, their inhabitants presented with the privileges of Latium, i. 414.
- Altinus, Julius, banished, i. 455.
- Amber, where found, and by whom, ii. 339; conjecture about its production, 339; its nature and quality, 340.
- Amisia, the river and town of that name, i. 60.
- Ampius, Titus Flavianus, governor of Pannonia, ii. 124; is persuaded by Fuscus to join him, 137; in danger of being murdered by the soldiers, 141; is saved by Antonius, and departs from the army, 142.
- Ampsivarians, expelled by the Chaucians, seek a new settlement, i. 350; are forced to wander from place to place, and at last perish, 351.
- Ancharius, Priscus, accuses Cæsius Cordus, proconsul of Crete, i. 131.
- Andecavii, revolt of the, i. 133; suppressed, 133.
- Angli. See Longobards.
- Angrivarii, account of their country and customs, ii. 323; revolt, and are chastised, i. 60; they submit, and are pardoned, 68.
- Anicetus, Nero's freedman, commander of the fleet at Misenum, his contrivance for murdering Agrippina, i. 354; it miscarries, 356; undertakes to accomplish the murder, 358; after the murder of Agrippina, he is detested by her son, 393; yet prompted by him to feign an adulterous commerce with Octavia, 393; suffers a sort of banishment, and dies naturally, 394.
- Anicetus, freedman to king Polemon, his adventures, i. 166.
- Anicius, Cerialis, consul elect, moves for a temple to Nero, with the title of deification, i. 443; this motion why judged ominous, 443; his accusation and doom, 453.
- Annus, Vivianus, son-in-law to Corbulo, commands the fifth legion, i. 412.
- Anteius directs the building of a fleet, i. 59.
- Anteius, Publius, made governor of Syria, but detained from possessing it, i. 327; he is accused, and swallows poison, 451.

- Antioch, city of, cenotaph to Germanicus at, i. 105.
- Antiochus, king of Cilicia, i. 905.
- Antiochus, king of Commagena, his death, i. 81.
- Antistius, Sosianus, tribune of the people, his conduct censured by the senate, i. 331; when prætor, writes a bitter satire against Nero, 383; hence arraigned for treason, 383; condemned to exile, and his estate confiscated, 384; afterwards becomes an informer, 451; again banished, ii. 229.
- Antistius, Caius, consul, i. 154; his second consulship, 285.
- Antonia, the daughter of Claudius, espoused to Cornelius Sylla, i. 327.
- Antonia, the mother of Germanicus, i. 109.
- Antonius, Flaminius, convicted of extortion, and banished, i. 230.
- Antonius, Haterius, poor through prodigality, but supported by Nero, i. 334.
- Antonius, Lucius, an exile, his death and funeral honours, i. 185.
- Antonius, Primus. See Primus.
- Antony, his power swallowed up in that of Augustus, i. 2.
- Apamea, the city of, overthrown by an earthquake, ceased of tribute for five years, i. 806.
- Aper, Marcus, an orator, ii. 391.
- Aphrodisians, their claim to a sanctuary, whence, i. 145; what deity they worshipped, 145.
- Apicata, the wife of Sejanus, divorced, i. 156; discovered the murder of Drusus, 161.
- Apinius, Tiro, commands the revoltors at Misenum, ii. 172.
- Apion, king, bequeaths his kingdom to the Roman people, i. 365.
- Apollinaris, Claudius, commander of the fleet at Misenum, when it revolted to Vespasian, ii. 172; escapes from Terracina, 188.
- Apollo, Clarian, his oracles, how delivered at Colophon, i. 89.
- Aponianus, Duilius, joins Antonius Primus, and brings with him the third legion, ii. 141.
- Aponius, Saturninus, a general officer, ii. 140; narrowly escapes being murdered by the soldiers, 142; retires to Padua, 142.
- Appius, Appianus, for his vices degraded from the senate, i. 85.
- Apronius, Cæsius, drives Tacfarinas and his forces back to the desert, i. 120.
- Apronius, Lucius, a Roman knight, employed to carry the demands of the soldiery to Tiberius, i. 22; he is left behind by Germanicus to secure his retreat, 39; is distinguished with the ornaments of a triumph, 50; his flat-
 -tery, 74.
- Apronius, Lucius, governor and proconsul of Africa, his exemplary severity to the soldiers, i. 120; its influence, 120; protects young Gracchus, 163.
- Apronius, Lucius, governor of Lower Germany, attacks the Frisians with various success, i. 203, 206.
- Apuleius, Sextus, consul, i. 7.
- Aquila, Julius, a Roman knight, commands some forces in Bosphorus, i. 281; rewarded with the ornaments of the prætorship, 284.
- Aquila, punished for adultery, i. 183.
- Aquilius, a principal centurion, ii. 206.
- Ararius, Vulcatius, a Roman knight, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426.
- Arbela, the great battle there, i. 279.
- Archelaus, king of Cappadocia, under the displeasure of Tiberius, and why, i. 81; he is inveigled to Rome, accused, and dies, 61.
- Argius buries his former master, Galba, ii. 85.
- Argolicus, a noble Greek, falls by the cruelty of Tiberius, i. 223.
- Arians. See Lygians.
- Ariobarzanes, king of Armenia, killed by accident, i. 58.
- Aristobulus created king of the Lesser Armenia by Nero, i. 817.
- Armenia, contest about, between Rome and Parthia, i. 57; is evacuated both by the Romans and Parthians, 400.
- Armenians, how estranged from the Romans, i. 57; their fickleness and situation, 90; they are faithless and double-minded, 334.
- Armies, the mutinous, in Germany meditate an union, i. 27; a device to pacify them, but without effect, 28.
- Arminius, a German chief, his character, i. 38; how violently enraged with the captivity of his wife, and that of his child yet unborn, 40; inflames the Cheruskans to arms, and inveighs against the Romans and Segestes, 41; retires to the deserts, 44; engages and distresses the Romans in a morass, 44; the latter are supported by Germanicus, 44; his conference with his brother Flavius, 61; suborns the Roman soldiers to desert, 63; harangues his men, 64; his bravery and escape, 56; his activity falls him, 67; is a champion for liberty, 64; animates his men by a speech, 84; defeats Maroboduus, 84; aims to enslave his country, 107; falls by the fraud of his kindred, 107; he was the deliverer of Germany, and a great captain, 107; and never conquered, 107.
- Army, in Germany, mutiny in the, i. 17, 23; in Judæa and Syria, sworn to Otho, ii. 55; as is that in Africa, 55; the disposition of Otho's army, 64; it is commanded by Silvanus Titianus,

- 85; that led by Valens, its mutiny and insurrection, and how quelled, 87; both armies engage near Bedriacum, that of Vitellius obtains a victory, 95; Otho's army despatch deputies to treat of a peace, which is gladly embraced by that of Vitellius, 98; the meeting of the armies, 98; that of Vitellius let loose to spoil and ravage, 105; that of Otho, after his death, embarrasses Vitellius, 111; a great part of it discharged by him, 111; that in the East swears to Vespasian, 121; as does that under the command of Cæcina, 144; they expostulate, revolt, and put Cæcina in fetters, 144; they choose for leaders Fabius Fabullus and Cassius Longus, 144; are beaten by Antonius, 147; are strengthened by fresh legions, renew the battle, and are again overcome, 154; are totally routed at Cremona, 155; revolt to Vespasian, 163; a terrible account of the conquering army, 168; Vitellius's army desert and revolt, 175; that of Vespasian, under the command of Antonius, arrives at Rome, which, after much resistance, they enter, 191; their cruelty and licentiousness, 192; the armies of Vocola and Civilis engage, 221; that of Civilis beaten, but not pursued, 221; the army of Julius Sabinus beaten by the Sequanians, 246; that of Tutor routed by Sextilius, 250; that of Valentinus, at Rigodulum, vanquished, and he taken by Cerealis, 251; the meeting of the legions from the Mediomatriciæ with those of Cerealis, 252; the army under Cerealis entrench themselves, 254; in that of the Germans, different opinions prevail, 255; upon debate, the advice of Tutor to attack is approved, 255; the order of the German army described, 255; that under Agricola routs the Caledonians, 269; that of the Britons, under Galgacus, their number and order, 371; that under Agricola, its disposition and order at the Grampian hills, 376; that under Galgacus and that of Agricola engage, 377; the former routed, 378; that of Agricola retires into winter quarters, 379.
- Arpus, prince of the Cattians, his wife and daughter taken, i. 60.
- Arretinus, Clemens, appointed commander of the pretorian guards in the room of Varus, ii. 247; his character, 247.
- Arria, wife of Thrasea Pætus, desirous to die with him, i. 463.
- Arrius, Varus. See Varus.
- Aruntius, Lucius, incurs the displeasure of Tiberius, i. 12; is obnoxious for his great qualifications and fortune, 13; was accounted equal to the sovereignty by Augustus, 13; and thence doomed to destruction by Tiberius, 13; he is employed with Capito to restrain the Tiber within its banks, 54; is accused, 244; his fine and affecting reasoning, 244; kills himself, 245.
- Arasagata, a castle garrisoned by Cassennius Pætus, i. 401.
- Artabanus gains the kingdom of Parthia, i. 57; his embassy to Germanicus, 91; his arrogance and tyranny, 232; he despises Tiberius, and seizes Armenia for his son, 232; his politics, 232; his affairs ruined, and he flees from his kingdom, 235, 236; is accounted barbarously cruel, 239; is recalled by his subjects, 240; his activity and good conduct, 241; his success, 241.
- Artavasdes, king of Armenia, deceived by Mark Antony, put in bonds, and slain, i. 57, 58.
- Artaxata, the city of, burned and demolished, i. 340; a wonderful phenomenon there, 340.
- Artaxias, king of Armenia, slain by a conspiracy of his kindred, i. 58.
- Artaxias, or Zeno, made king of Armenia by Germanicus, i. 90.
- Arulenus, Rusticus, tribune of the people, a daring proposal of his in behalf of Thrasea Pætus, i. 459; suffers death, ii. 346.
- Aruseius, Lucius, put to death, i. 238.
- Asclepiodotus, Cassius, his faithful and signal friendship to Soranus to the last, i. 463; hence despoiled of his whole fortune, and banished, 463.
- Asis, twelve noble cities there overthrown by an earthquake, i. 85; they are relieved by Tiberius, 85; they decree a temple to Tiberius, the senate, and Livia, 164; contend for the honour of erecting the temple decreed to Tiberius and the senate, 191; their several pleas, 192; Smyrna preferred, 193.
- Asiaticus, an infamous freedman, knighted by Vitellius, ii. 105; his execution demanded by the soldiers, 130; his death, 203.
- Asiaticus, Valerius, accused and seized, i. 247; his voluntary death, 247.
- Asiaticus, Valerius, consul elect, ii. 198.
- Asinius, Caius, consul, i. 54.
- Asinius, Lucius, consul, i. 383.
- Asinius, Marcus, consul, i. 309.
- Asper, Sulpicius, the centurion, zealous in the conspiracy against Nero, i. 425; his reproach to Nero, fortitude, and death, 438.
- Asprenas, Calpurnius, governor of Gallia and Pamphylia, contrives the destruction of the counterfeit Nero, ii. 74.
- Asprenas, Lucius, proconsul of Africa, i. 38.

- Astrologers, a decree for driving them from Rome, i. 74; impudent deceivers, excluded by law, but entertained against it, ii. 18; banished out of Italy by Vitellius, 108; Thrasullus the astrologer, i. 224.
- Astrology, judicial, its falsehood, i. 194.
- Atilia, mother to Lucan, accused amongst the conspirators against Nero, i. 431; escapes trial, 441.
- Atilius erects a large amphitheatre at Fidena, i. 197; is banished for its falling, 197.
- Atimetus, a freedman, in a plot against Agrippina, i. 325; executed, 327.
- Atticus, Curtius, by Tiberius doomed to die, i. 219.
- Aufidienus, Rufus, insulted and abused by the mutinous soldiers, i. 17; his character, 17.
- Aurgy of divine protection revived, i. 285.
- Augusta, Nero's daughter by Poppæa, her birth, death, and deification, i. 409.
- Augustani, a body of young Roman knights, i. 363.
- Augustodunum, the capital of the Æduans, i. 133; all the noble youth of Gaul are instructed there in the liberal arts, 133.
- Augustus, how he acquired the sovereign power, i. 2; under what title he assumed it, 2; the spirit of flattery prevailing in his reign, a check upon truth and writers, 2; by what arts and gradations he engrossed all power, and with what ease, 2; his politics to strengthen his usurpation, 3; the latter end of his reign why so peaceable, 4; he secretly visits his grandson Agrippa in exile, and is thence thought to be poisoned by Livia, 5; his last will produced, its tenor, and who his heirs, 8; his several funeral honours, and by whom proposed, 8; reflections upon his funeral, 9; various reasoning upon his life and empire, 9; he adopted Tiberius without liking him, and why, 11; a temple and worship decreed to him, 11; the register and summary kept by him of the state and forces of the empire, 11; his counsel against enlarging the empire, and why, 12; plays in honour of him, by whom annually celebrated, 14; college of priests and public games instituted in his honour, 38; his politics in relation to Egypt, 92; is unhappy in his family, 121; turns adultery into treason, and violates his own laws, 122; institutes laws proper for a single rule, 124; is wont to travel accompanied with Livia, 129; his easy elocution, 815.
- Aulus, Plautius. See Plautius.
- Aurelius, Cotta, supported by Nero though a prodigal, i. 334.
- Aurelius, Marcus, consul, i. 109.
- Aurelius, Pius, the senator, obtains a recompense for the loss of his house, i. 52.
- Aviola, Acilius, commander of a legion, reduces some rebellious Gauls, i. 133.
- Aviones. See Longobards.
- Avitus, Dubius, commander in Germany, many, i. 349; his answer to Botocælus, and measures against the Ampsivirians, 351.
- БАДУЕНКА, slaughter of the Romans at, i. 204.
- Balbilius, Caius, made governor of Egypt, i. 327.
- Balbus, Domitius, a will forged in his name, i. 379.
- Balbus, Lelius, charges Acutia with treason, i. 243; his pestilent character and banishment, 245.
- Bardanes, a competitor for the crown of Parthia, i. 252; his great vigour, 252; he gains the monarchy, 252; victories, tyranny, and assassination, 253.
- Basilides, priest at Mount Carmel, ii. 119.
- Bassus, Annius, commander of a legion, his character, ii. 167.
- Bassus, Cesellius, a Carthaginian, upon the credit of a dream, promises immense treasure to Nero, i. 443; digs for it in vain, and after much labour spent kills himself in despair, 445.
- Bassus, Lucilius, commander of Vitellius's fleet, his conference with Cæcina, ii. 134; he revolts to Vespasian, 143; his management, 143.
- Bassus, Saleius, a poet, ii. 393.
- Batavi, account and character of the, ii. 203.
- Bathylus, the pantomime performer, i. 38.
- Battle in Germany, i. 39; others, 44, 65; in Narbon Gaul, between the forces of Otho and Vitellius, ii. 78; near Cremona, 84; of Castrum, 85; near Bedriacum, 97; another at the same place, 149; on the bank of the Rhine, 206; at Bonna, 210; at the camp near Gelduba, 219; between Julius Sabinus and the Sequanians, 246; between Cerealis and the Germans, 257; between Civilis and Cerealis, 277; between the Caledonians and Agricola, 369; between Galgacus and Agricola, 376.
- Bedriacum, a village famous for several battles, ii. 84, 97; Vitellius views the heaps of the slain there without the least emotion, 114; battle there between the forces of Vespasian and Vitellius, 149.
- Benefits, too large to be returned, their reward, ingratitude, i. 166.

- Berenice, Queen, supports Vespasian's interest, ii. 121.
- Bibulus, Caius, his reasonings in the senate against luxury, i. 138.
- Blæsus, in dread of Tiberius, dies by his own hands, i. 239.
- Blæsus, Junius, uncle to Sejanus, commands the legions in Pannonia, i. 15; his speeches and behaviour during their insurrection, 16, 17; his son deputed to the emperor by the soldiery, 17; he punishes some of the ring-leaders and puts them in bonds, 17; they are violently released by the rest, 18; he is in danger of being murdered by the soldiery, 18; named by Tiberius to the government of Africa, 130; his feats against Tacfarinas, 152; he is saluted Imperator by the legions, 153.
- Blæsus, Junius, governor of Lyonesse Gaul, furnishes Vitellius with a most magnificent train at his own charge, ii. 107; thus offends Vitellius, 167; his death sought by Vitellius, 160; is murdered by him, 160; his amiable character, 161.
- Blæsus, Pedius, expelled the senate for corruption, i. 365.
- Boadicea, a British queen, ignominiously used by the Romans, and her two daughters deflowered, i. 372; leads her people to war, ii. 361; commands the British army, i. 376; her speech to them, 376; is defeated, and ends her life by poison, 377.
- Boiocælus leads the Ampsivarians in quest of a new settlement, i. 350; his speech to Dubius Avitus, 350; his refusal of an advantageous offer to himself, and his resolute declaration, 351.
- Bolanus, Vettius, commander of a legion sent to succour Tigranes, i. 307; ruler in Britain, ii. 352; his conduct and character there, 362.
- Bonomia, the residence of Valens, who entertains Vitellius there, ii. 114.
- Brigantes, a people of Britain, reduced by Publius Ostorius, i. 290.
- Brigantius, Julius, commander of a squadron of horse, revolts to Vitellius, ii. 83; he joins Sextilius Felix, 249; he is slain at Vada, 281.
- Brinno, his character, ii. 206; is chosen leader of the Canninefates, 206.
- Britain, its situation and description, ii. 354; first discovered to be an island, 354; its people and inhabitants, 355; their religion and character, 356; its climate and fertility, 357; its produce, 357; invasion of, by Cæsar, 359; its princes restore the shipwrecked Romans, i. 69; commotions there, 288; revolts, ii. 163; a great slaughter of the Romans, 372; short history of affairs there, 163; it is subdued and settled by Claudius, 359; account of several governors, 359; Agricola's conquests at his first coming, 363.
- Britannicus, son of Claudius by Messalina, i. 254; not so popular as Lucius Domitius, afterwards Nero, 254; his forlorn condition, 286; is bereft of all his faithful servants and adherents, 296; he sings at a festival, and raises pity, 322; is poisoned, 322; his funeral, 323.
- Britons, their religious rites, ii. 356; their manner of making war, 356; their government, 356; oppressed by the Romans, fly to arms, i. 372; they attack the colony of Camalodunum, and raze it, 373; observe no law of war, 375; their extreme cruelty, 375; their immense host and fierceness, 375; they are routed with prodigious slaughter, 377; their improvidence, famine, and stubbornness, 378; they wonder that the victorious Romans should be subservient to slaves, 378; they would not endure ill treatment from their governors, 359; consult how to shake off their bondage, 360; take arms and assail the Romans, 361; but are again reduced by Suetonius Paulinus, 361; by the mild government of Agricola are brought to cultivate arts and sciences, 367; and adopt the Roman customs, 367; are in great dismay at the sight of the Roman fleet, 369; the Caledonians engage Agricola, and are routed, 369; are undaunted at that loss, and by embassies and confederacies draw together in great numbers on the Grampian hills, 371; Calgacus's speech to them there, 372; attack Agricola, and are utterly vanquished, 377; their desperate and furious behaviour after their defeat, 378.
- Bructeri, a German nation, described, ii. 323; fire their dwellings, are routed by the Romans, and their whole country laid waste, i. 42.
- Brutus, the founder of liberty and the consulship, i. 1.
- Burians. See Marsigni.
- Burrus, Afranius, an officer of great renown, made captain of the guards to Claudius, i. 296; he governs, with Seneca, the youth of Nero, 314; diverts Nero from slaying his mother, and pleads for leaving her defence, 326; is falsely accused, and acquitted, 328; what share he had in the death of Agrippina, 326, 357; praises Nero's acting, but grieves for him, 363; his death, and loss to the public, 365; is thought to be poisoned by Nero, and sorely lamented, 365; his death weakens the interest of Seneca, 365.
- Byzantium, the city of, its happy situation directed by Apollo, i. 309; its pre-

- tensions to favour, 309; is exempted from tribute for five years, 309.
- CABOTIA, the wife of Scævina, doomed to banishment unheard, i. 441.
- Cadmus, from Phœnicia, instructs the Greeks in letters, i. 256.
- Cæcilianus, the senator, punished for accusing Cotta, i. 216.
- Cæcilianus, Domitius, an intimate friend of Thrasea Pætus, acquaints him with his doom, i. 463.
- Cæcilianus, Magius, treason forged against him, i. 131.
- Cæcina, Alienus, an abandoned commander of a legion, ii. 38; joins Vitellius, 39; riots in spoil and blood, 46; seizes on the money of the Helvetians unjustly, and destroys many of them, 48; passes the Alps, 76; his behaviour changed for the better, 81; passes the Po, attempts to corrupt Otho's forces, and besieges Placentia, 82; is repulsed with loss, 83; repasses the Po, where more forces revolt to him, 83; vexed at his repulse, he meditates an ambuscade at Castoreæ, 85; the design betrayed to Otho's generals, 85; the greatest part of his army routed, 86; is joined by Valens, 88; favoured by the soldiers, and why, 89; derides Valens, yet joins with him for the service of the cause; 89; feigns a design to pass the Po, 91; his character, 105; entertains Vitellius at Cremona, 113; reasons for suspecting his fidelity to Vitellius, 130; his behaviour while at the head of Vitellius's army, 133; his conference with Lucilius Bassus, 134; encamps between Hostilia and the river Tartarus, 140; has it in his power to destroy the forces of Vespasian, 140; sends letters to them, and agrees to revolt to them, 140; on the news of the revolt of the fleet he assembles the principal officers, who all swear to Vespasian, 143; they again revolt, and he is put in irons by them, 144; is sued to at Cremona, to intercede for them with Antonius, 155; is despised by the conquerors, 155; Antonius sends him to Vespasian, 155; judgment passed against him in the senate, 158.
- Cæcina, Aulus, commands under Germanicus in the Lower Germany, i. 24; is forced to yield to the outrage of the soldiers, 24; is sent by Germanicus through the territories of the Bructeri to the river Arminia, 42; visits the scene of the defeat of Varus, 43; is beset by Arminius and the Germans at the causeway called the Long Bridges, 44; his brave counsel to his army in distress, 47; gains a victory over the Germans, 47; and is distinguished with the ornaments of a triumph, 50; directs the building of a fleet, 50; the ships described, 59.
- Cæcina, Severus, his speech against any provincial magistrates carrying his wife along with him into his province, i. 129; his motion eluded, 130.
- Cælius, Caius, consul, i. 60.
- Cælius, Cursor, a Roman knight, convicted of forging a charge of treason, i. 131.
- Cælius, Mount, consumed by fire, i. 197; its former name, and antiquity, 198.
- Cæsar, the dictator, a great orator, i. 315.
- Caia, a nickname, why given to Caligula, i. 215.
- Caius, Cæsar, grandson to Augustus, his untimely death imputed to the fraud of Livia, i. 3.
- Caius, Cæsar, settles Armenia, i. 58.
- Caius, Volusius, a soldier of the third legion, the first who entered Cremona, ii. 154.
- Caledonians, the, have recourse to arms, and advance against the Romans, ii. 368; they attack the Roman army, with success at first, but are vanquished, 369.
- Calgacus. See Galgacus.
- Caligula, son of Germanicus, why so called, i. 30; his nickname of Caia, 215; his history why falsified, 2; his encomium upon his grandmother Elvia at her funeral, 206; his marriage with Claudia, 224; his savage humour and distimulation, 224; his wild spirit, ambition, and dissimulation, 242; he is hated by Tiberius, yet left his successor, 242; history of his reign lost, 247; was a ready speaker, 315.
- Callipedes, a nickname given to Tiberius, i. 34.
- Callistus, a freedman, an old and wary courtier, i. 267.
- Calpurnia, an illustrious lady, praised by Claudia, and thence persecuted and banished by Agrippina, i. 284; recalled from banishment by Nero, 361.
- Calpurnia, a courtesan, denounces Messalina, i. 267.
- Calpurnius, an eagle-bearer, protects Minucius Plancus from the fury of the soldiers, i. 29.
- Calpurnius, Galerianus, his character, ii. 202; is murdered by Mucianus, 203.
- Calpurnius, Lucius, consul, i. 196.
- Calusidius, a common soldier, his brutal behaviour and boldness to Germanicus, i. 27.
- Calvina banished from Italy, i. 276.
- Calvisius instigated to accuse Agrippina, i. 325; is banished, 327; recalled from exile by Nero, 361.
- Calvisius, Caius, consul, i. 186.
- Camalodunum, a colony in Britain,

- planted by Publius Ostorius, i. 290; insolence and tyranny of the veterans there, 372; insatiable avarice of the priests, 372; terrible apparitions and presages, 372.
- Camerinus, Scribonianus, one who counterfeits that illustrious name proves to be a slave named Geta, and is put to death, ii. 115.
- Camillus, Furius, proconsul of Africa, routs the Numidians and Moors under Tacfarinas, i. 87; and retrieves the ancient renown of his family, 88.
- Camillus, Scribonianus, consul, i. 213.
- Camp, Roman, gates of the, i. 46; the Old Camp, siege of, ii. 211; its capture, 242; the Praetorian camp, i. 153.
- Campania desolated by a tempest, i. 450.
- Campanus and Juvenalis, Tungrian chiefs, ii. 246.
- Camurius, a soldier of the fifteenth legion, supposed to be the murderer of Galba, ii. 36.
- Cangians, a people in Britain, ravaged by Publius Ostorius, i. 289.
- Canninefates destroy or seize several of the Roman ships, ii. 258; also rout the Nervians, 258.
- Canopus, by whom built, and whence named, i. 92.
- Cantius, Publius, collects the tribute in Gaul, i. 59.
- Capito, Ateius, employed with Lucius Arruntius to restrain the Tiber within its banks, i. 53; his great accomplishments, and infamous flattery, 150; his death and great acquirements, 153; his preferences and obsequiousness to power, 153.
- Capito, Cossutianus, accused by the Cilicians and condemned, i. 334; he accuses Antistius the praetor, 383.
- Capito, Fonteius, once proconsul of Asia, accused and acquitted, i. 178.
- Capito, Insteius, praefect of the camp to Corbulo, his exploits, i. 338.
- Capito, Lucilius, the emperor's procurator in Asia, accused by that province before the senate, i. 164; disavowed by Tiberius, and condemned, 164.
- Capito, Valerius, recalled from exile by Nero, i. 361.
- Capitol, by whom added to Rome, i. 285; burnt, ii. 103; ordered by Vespasian to be rebuilt, 235; direction of the work given to Lucius Vestinus, 235; the consecration, 235.
- Cappadocia reduced to a province, i. 81; its taxes lessened, 90.
- Capreae, retreat of Tiberius to, i. 197; its natural strength, and fine climate, 199; its antiquity, 199.
- Capua, that colony strengthened, i. 333.
- Caractacus, a British king of great renown, at war with the Romans, i. 290; boasts himself advantageously, and harangues his men, 290; is routed by Publius Ostorius, 292; flees to Queen Cassismandua, is by her delivered to the conquerors, and sent to Rome, 292; his great character, and solemn reception there, 292; his undaunted behaviour and speech to Claudius, 292; is pardoned with his wife and brother, and pompous decrees passed upon taking him, 293.
- Casinas, Secundus, a creature of Nero's, learned, but void of virtue, i. 424.
- Cariovalda, captain of the Batavians, after a brave resistance, is slain by the Germans, i. 62.
- Carmel, Mount, account of the oracle there, ii. 119.
- Carrhenes espouses the cause of Meherdates, i. 279; his bravery and defeat, 280.
- Carsidius Sacerdos banished, i. 245.
- Cartismandua, queen of the Brigantes, delivers up King Caractacus to the Romans, i. 292; is at war with Venusius, once her husband, and supported by the Romans, 295.
- Casperius, a centurion, his honest spirit and behaviour, i. 299; is sent by Corbulo to Vologeses, and delivers his message sternly, 398.
- Cassius, Caius, governor of Syria, conducts Meherdates to the Euphrates, i. 278; his civil accomplishments and strict military discipline, 278; his good advice to Meherdates, 279; his just observation in the senate, 340; his speech for the execution of all the slaves in a family, where one of them had murdered his lord, 380; without any guilt he is accused by Nero, 447; ridiculous and false charge against him, 447; is banished into Sardinia, 448.
- Cassius, Charea, a centurion, escapes in a mutiny by his courage, i. 24; afterwards kills Caligula, 24.
- Cassius, Longus. See Longus.
- Cassius, Lucius, marries Drusilla, granddaughter to Tiberius, i. 221; his family and character, 231.
- Cassius, Severus, his petulant writings, their effect, i. 50; his virulent spirit, 169; dies in exile, 169.
- Castorum, battle at, ii. 85.
- Cato, Porcius, a tool of Sejanus, i. 200.
- Catonius, Justus, a principal centurion, employed to carry the demands of the soldiery to Tiberius, i. 22.
- Catti, their territories, customs, manner of making war, &c. described, ii. 320; their territories invaded by Germanicus, they are surprised and slaughtered by him, i. 38; their ravages in Germany, 267; they are routed, 287; are at war with the Hermundurians, their bloody vow and defeat, 351.

- Catualda, a Gothic chief, drives out Maroboduus, i. 94; is himself expelled, and received under Roman protection, 94.
- Catulinus, Blitius, banished, i. 441.
- Catus, Firmius, a senator, base conduct of, i. 71; is expelled the senate, 175.
- Catus, procurator in Britain, his rapaciousness, and escape into Gaul, i. 374.
- Celer, Domitius, prompts the ambition of Cneius Piso, i. 101; attempts to corrupt the legions, 102.
- Celer, Propertius, liberality of Tiberius to, i. 53.
- Celer, Publius, a Roman knight, poisons Junius Silanus, i. 313; he is accused by the province of Asia, 334; though guilty, protected by Nero, 334.
- Celer, Publius, an accuser, his character, ii. 202; convicted and sentenced, 225.
- Celsus, Julius, a Roman knight, doomed to death, i. 221; he breaks his neck, 221.
- Celsus, Marius, commands a legion under Corbulo in the East, i. 411; narrowly escapes being murdered, ii. 32; is appointed by Otho commander of foot and horse, 64; signal exploits by him, 85; is preferred to the consulship under Vitellius, 107.
- Centurions, murder of, by the Roman soldiery, i. 19, 24; bravery in meeting death of those who conspired against Nero, 438.
- Cepio Crispinus, an informer, i. 51; his charge against Granius Marcellus, 52.
- Cerealis, Turullus, revolts to Vitellius, ii. 83.
- Cerealis, Petilius, routed by the Britons, but escapes, i. 374; in danger from Vitellius, ii. 174; he fails in an attack against Vitellius's forces, 189; is appointed commander of the army against the revolted Germans by Mucianus, 247; arrives at Magontiacum, 249; is impatient of delay, and in three marches reaches Rigodulum, 251; there takes Valentinus and many other illustrious Belgians, 251; rebukes the soldiers who were for razing that city, 251; his speech to the legions that had revolted, and were returned to their duty, 252; to the Treverians and Lingones, 252; receives letters from Civilis and Classicus, assuring him of the death of Vespasian, and offering him the empire of the Gauls, 254; despatches the bearer of those letters to Domitian, 254; is surprised by the enemy, 256; and in danger of being vanquished, when by his own personal bravery he gains the victory, 256; his speech to the deserters, 256; by a hasty march he arrives at Agrippinian colony to protect it, 257; attacks Civilis at the old entrenchment, 277; his encouraging speech to the army, 278; his troops defeat the enemy, 280; his conduct greatly censured for the loss of his ships, 282; fits out a fleet, and attacks Civilis, 283; ravages the islands of the Batavians, 283; his army in great distress, 283; his address in gaining the Germans to submit to the Romans, 283; is appointed governor of Britain, 352; his exploits there, 362.
- Cestius, Caius, becomes an informer under Tiberius, i. 216.
- Cethegus, Cornelius, consul, i. 165.
- Chærea, Cassius. See Cassius, Chærea.
- Chalcedon, the folly of its founders, i. 309.
- Chaldeans. See Astrologers.
- Chamavi, a German nation, their country and customs, ii. 325.
- Chariclea, the physician, his art to discover the illness of Tiberius, i. 245; informs Macro of the approaching end of Tiberius, 246.
- Chaucians, the noblest German tribe, ii. 325; taken into the service of the Romans, i. 42; they commit hostilities against them, 258; their country and manners, ii. 325.
- Cherusci, the, their country and manners, ii. 326; roused by Arminius to arms, i. 39; endeavour to cut off Cæcina and his legions, 44; their device in a battle, 64; they are attacked and routed, 65; are at war with the Suevians, 83; seek a king from Rome, 257.
- Christ, our blessed Saviour, put to death under Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judæa, i. 423.
- Christians, Tacitus's account of them, i. 423; are barbarously murdered by Nero, 423.
- Cibyra, an Asiatic city, being overthrown by an earthquake, released from tribute for three years, i. 163.
- Cilicians, their insurrections and depredations, i. 304; they defeat Curtius Severus, with a body of horse, and are reduced to peace by king Antiochus, 305.
- Cilo, Jólilus, the Roman procurator in Pontus, carries Mithridates to Rome, i. 283; rewarded with the consular ornaments, 284.
- Cimbri, account and character of them, ii. 327.
- Cincian Law, revival of the, i. 250.
- Cinethiana, a people of Africa, i. 87.
- Cinna, his domination but short, i. 2.
- Circus, particular places allotted in it to the Roman knights, i. 414.
- Citizens, Roman, their number under Claudius, i. 265.
- Civilis, Claudius, his royal descent and

- character, ii. 204; his speech to his army, 205; destroys the Roman forces on the Rhine, and takes twenty-four ships, 207; courts the alliance of the Gauls, 207; his speech to them, 207; engages Lupercus, and vanquishes him, 208; becomes master of a regular army, 211; besieges the Old Camp, 211; letter from Antonius to him by Montanus, 218; his speech and direction to Montanus, 219; despatches the bravest of his force to surprise Vocula, 219; his artifice to deceive the enemy, 220; cruelty to a Roman soldier, 220; throws off all disguise, and avows hostilities against the Roman people, 236; cuts his hair, which he had worn in pursuance of a vow, 242; his great cruelty, 242; his ambitious views, 242; his reason for forbearing the plunder of the Agrippinian colony, 244; determines to gain the neighbouring cities, 245; his speech to the Tungrians, 246; he traverses the Belgic deserts in search of Claudius Labeo, 249; he and Clasicus send letters to Cerealis, asserting the death of Vespasian, and offer him the empire of the Gauls, 254; advises to delay engaging Cerealis, 255; his counsel overruled by Tutor and Clasicus, 255; his army is defeated, 257; he supplies his army in Germany, and pitches his camp in the old entrenchments, 277; he diverts the course of the Rhine, 277; is attacked by Cerealis, 278; his order of battle, 278; his speech to the army, 279; is again defeated by Cerealis, 280; rallies again, and skirmishes in several places, 280; his fleet attacks that of Cerealis, and captures many vessels, 282; by the artifices of Cerealis he is obliged to yield himself to the Romans, 285; his speech to Cerealis, 285.
- Classicianus, Julius, procurator in Britain, envies and traduces Suetonius, i. 378.
- Classicus, commander of Treverian horse, his character, ii. 237; tenders the oath of sovereignty to the Gauls, 241; the direction of the war shared between him and Julius Tutor, 241; his arts to reduce the Old Camp, 241; elated with success, 243; is immersed in sloth and ease, 249; joins with Civilis in sending letters to Cerealis, 254; advises to attack Cerealis, 255; is defeated by him, 257; defeats some horse sent by Cerealis to Novesium, 258.
- Claudia, daughter of Marcus Silanus, married Caligula, i. 224; her death, 242.
- Claudia Pulchra, a cousin of Agrippina, condemned, i. 190; Agrippina endeavours to save her, 190.
- Claudius, the emperor, brother of Germanicus, i. 118, 243; his history why falsified, 2; means well, but his understanding defective, 243; succeeds to the empire, 247; settles the fees of pleaders, 250; restores Mithridates to the kingdom of Armenia, 251; is blind to the lewdness of his wife, 255; performs the office of censor, adds new letters to the Roman alphabet, brings water to Rome, 256; his representation concerning the college of soothsayers, 257; his speech in behalf of the Gauls, 263; his reformation in the senate, as censor, 264; he checks the flattery of Vipsanius the consul, 265; hears at last the infamy of his wife, 265; his family alarmed upon the empress's marrying Silius, 266; his terrible affright upon that marriage, 267; he inclines to relent towards her, but is hardened by Narcissus, 269; his affection returns, 270; always abandoned to the dominion of his wives, 272; has no discernment nor passions of his own, 274; marries his niece Agrippina, 274; his advice to Meherdates, 278; and to the Parthians, 278; adopts Nero, 286; the adoption confirmed by the senate, 286; his fifth consulship, 295; boasts his mercy without showing any, 302; degrades certain senators, 303; his absurd praises of Pallas, 303; is pushed by Agrippina upon all the measures of cruelty, 306; he raises the power of his freedmen as high as his own, or that of the laws, 307; his compliment and favour to his physician Xenophon, 308; his death portended by several presages, 309; a saying of his, in his drink, fatal to him, 310; is poisoned by the direction of Agrippina, 312; his death some time concealed, 312; his deification, and funeral praises, 313, 314; was capable of elegance of expression, when he studied the same, 315.
- Claudius Labeo, commander of a Batavian squadron, and competitor with Civilis, sent prisoner to Frisia, ii. 209; escapes, and joins Vocula with a few forces, 238; skirmishes with, and defeats the Canninefates and Marsacians, 238; at the head of some new-raised forces, opposes Civilis, 246; is defeated, and escapes, 246.
- Clemens, a slave of Agrippa Posthumus, his bold design and artifices, i. 79; he is seized by a device of Sallustius Crispus, and dispatched privately, 80.
- Clemens, Julius, a centurion, i. 19; induces the mutineers in Pannonia to submit, 22.
- Clemens, Sallienus, accuses Junius Gallio, but is restrained by the senate, i. 442.

- Cleonicus, a freedman of Seneca, i. 424.
 Cleopatra, a courtesan, i. 267.
 Citizens, revolts of the, i. 239, 304.
 Cluvius Rufus, Marcus, governor of Spain, his character, ii. 6, 110, 229; congratulates Vitellius, 110; is accused by Hilaricus, and acquitted, 110.
 Coletæans, a people of Thracia, i. 131.
 Coenus, the philosopher, exhorts Flautus to die, i. 391.
 Corfidurus, a king of the Britons, and friend of the Romans, ii. 359.
 Colonies, those of Italy, with what respect they attended the ashes of Germanicus, i. 109; their sorrow and zeal, 109; the manner of planting them of old, 371; how much corrupted, 371.
 Cornet seen, observations of the vulgar upon it, i. 367.
 Cornutus, Caius, convicted of a libel against Tiberius, i. 174; is pardoned at the suit of his brother, 174.
 Comitia, policy of Tiberius regarding the, i. 56.
 Confarration, that ceremony when used, i. 165.
 Considus Æquus, a Roman knight, convicted of forging a charge of treason, i. 131.
 Conspiracy against Nero, its suddenness and strength, i. 425; the reality of it questioned by the people, but asserted by Tacitus, 442; it is followed by many flattering decrees of senate, 443.
 Conspirators, those against Nero governed by secret interest, i. 426; their slowness and procrastination, 427; are animated by a woman, 427; propose to dispatch Nero at Baie, but are opposed by Piso, 428; Piso's pretended and real motives, 428; agree to slay Nero in the circus, 429; are vastly numerous and faithful, 429; at length betray all their dearest friends and relations, 431; many executed, 434.
 Consuls, their election under Tiberius, how uncertain, i. 56; his strange artifices in recommending or opposing candidates, 56; his plausible declarations upon that occasion, 56.
 Consulship, by whom founded, i. 1.
 Coos, Isle of, the people of, claim a right of sanctuary to the temple of Æsculapius, i. 163; their pretensions to the friendship of Rome, 163; they are exempted from all impositions by Claudius, 308; the island sacred to Æsculapius, and friendly to the Roman people, 308.
 Corbulo, Domitius, his complaint against Lucius Sylla, i. 126; he has satisfaction made him, 128; and is appointed to inspect the repair of the public roads, 127; his severity in that office, 127; he is appointed governor of Lower Germany, 258; lays there the foundation of his future fame, and defeats Gannascus the pirate, 259; the great severity of his discipline, 259; he terrifies the barbarians, and settles the rebellious Frisians, 259; he is envied and recalled, 260; yet allowed the decorations of triumph, 260; he cuts a canal between the Rhine and the Meuse, 260; is appointed by Nero to command in the East, 317; his great estimation and experience, 318; his variance with Numidius Quædrstus, 318; his difficulties in restoring discipline to the army, 335; his proposal to Tiridates, 337; prosecutes the war with success, 338; his wary march, 338; takes and razes the city Artaxata, 339; his exploits and able conduct, 360; escapes great danger, 369; rescues Armenia from the Parthians, and establishes therein Tigranes the Cappadocian, 370; withdraws to his government of Syria, 371; his counsels and measures against Vologeses, 397; his embassy and remonstrance to Vologeses, 398; reasoning of the people upon his behaviour, 399; lays a bridge over the Euphrates, and baffles all the designs of the Parthians upon Syria, 400; advances to succour Pætus, 402; laments the disasters and misconduct of Pætus, 406; his demands on Vologeses, 408; is invested with unlimited power in the East against the Parthians, 410; assembles his army at Melitene, 411; appoints certain centurions to confer with the Parthian ambassadors, 412; his ravages in Armenia, and reputation in the East, 412; meets Tiridates, 413; persuades him to resign the royal diadem, 414; feasts him sumptuously, and fills him with admiration of the Romans, 413.
 Corcyra, Isle of, i. 108.
 Cordus, Casius, accused of public rapine by the Cyreneans, and condemned, i. 131, 150.
 Cordus, Cremutius, the historian, arraigned for praising Brutus and Casius, i. 176; his noble defence, 177; he ends his life by abstinence, 177; his books are condemned to be burnt, 178, yet continue dispersed and read, 178.
 Cornelia chosen chief vestal, i. 165.
 Cornelia, of the Cossian family, made a vestal, i. 409.
 Cornelius accuses Mamerus Scaurus, i. 231; he is convicted of bribery, and banished, 231.
 Cornelius Laco, minister to Galba, his character, ii. 5; shares the sovereignty with Titus Vinius, 5, 10; his ignorance and obstinacy, 23; meditates the death of Vinius, 29; is murdered by command of Otho, 33.

- Cornutus, Cæcilius, accused, but innocent, i. 172; yet dies by his own hands, 172.
- Corsica, Isle of, kept under obedience to Otho, ii. 79; nigh brought to destruction by Decimus Pecarius, the governor, 79; the people kill him in his bath, 80.
- Corvinus, Messala, once governor of Rome, i. 177.
- Cossus, Cornelius, consul, i. 176.
- Cosentianus, the pleader, defends pleading for hire, i. 250.
- Cossutianus, Capito, his villanous spirit, and hatred to Thræsea, i. 455; his inflammatory speech against him to Nero, 456; begins the charge against Thræsea in the senate, 459; his reward, 463.
- Cotta, Aurelius, the consul, his motion against Cneius Piso, i. 117; 118.
- Cotys, king of Bosphorus, his alliance with Eunones, prince of the Adorsians, against Mithridates, i. 281.
- Cotys, one of the kings of Thrace, his peaceable character, i. 95; is deceived and murdered by Rhescuporis, 96.
- Counsel, that of a woman the worst, i. 430.
- Crasus, his power swallowed up in that of Cæsar, i. 2.
- Crasus, Scribonianus, his character, ii. 224.
- Cremona, battle at, ii. 84; Cæcina entertains Vitellius there, 113; is besieged by Antonius, 153; ravaged, burnt, and utterly destroyed, 156.
- Crescens, Tarquinius, a centurion, bravery of, i. 402.
- Crete, pretends to a right of sanctuary, i. 146.
- Cretonius, Caius, his judgment of the mutinous legions, i. 32.
- Crispilla, Calvia, who had instigated Clodius Macer to revolt, and laboured to famish the people of Rome, her death demanded, ii. 53; she eludes the prosecution, and escapes her doom, 53.
- Crispinus, captain of the guards to Claudius, distinguished with the prætorship, and a great reward in money, i. 249; his accusation and death, 453.
- Crispinus, Rufus, why banished, i. 441.
- Crispinus, Varius, a tribune of the prætorian guards, inadvertently the occasion of a dreadful tumult, ii. 58; is murdered in it, 58.
- Crupellarii, what sort of forces, i. 134; are defeated, 136.
- Cuma, shipwreck of the galleys there, i. 424.
- Cananus, Ventidius, governor of Galilee, his crimes and punishment, i. 394.
- Cartisius, Titus, heads an insurrection of slaves in Italy, i. 171; is taken prisoner, 172.
- Curtius, Atticus, a Roman knight, accompanies Tiberius in his retirement, i. 194.
- Curtius, Rufus, his rise, character, and adventures, i. 260.
- Cyprus, people of, claim a right of sanctuary to three of their temples, i. 145.
- Cyrenians, their charge against Acilius Strabo, i. 365; its issue, 365.
- Cyzicus, city of, loses its liberties, i. 178.
- DACIANS in arms, are quelled by Mucianus, ii. 164.
- Dalmatia, two legions stationed there, i. 157.
- Damaratus, the Corinthian, instructs the Etruscans in the use of letters, i. 256.
- Dandarides. See Mithridates.
- Danube, what legions guarded it, i. 137.
- Deaths, voluntary, why so common in Rome, i. 230.
- Decemvirate, how long it lasted, i. 2; why created, 123.
- Decimation, instances of the punishment of, i. 120.
- Decrius, a Roman officer, his signal bravery and death, i. 119.
- Deities, Tacitus's reproach upon them, i. 463.
- Demetrius, the philosopher, his discourse with Thræsea Pætus, i. 463; attends him at his death, 464.
- Demetrius, an advocate for Publius Celer, one of the sect of the Cynics, ii. 235.
- Demianus, Claudius, a convict employed to accuse Lucius Vetus, and released by Nero, i. 448.
- Densus, Sempromius, centurion of a prætorian cohort, bravery of, ii. 31.
- Deputies from the senate to Germanicus, obnoxious to the soldiers, i. 28.
- Diana, her temple at Ephesus, its immunities, and whence derived, i. 145.
- Dictators, when chosen, i. 1.
- Didius, the Roman commander in Bosphorus, i. 280.
- Didius, Aulus, governor of Britain, his difficulties and proceedings there, i. 294.
- Didius, Gallus, governor of Britain, ii. 360.
- Dolabella, Cornelius, his ridiculous flattery, i. 136, 149.
- Dolabella, Cornelius, a relative of Galba, his confinement, its cause, ii. 64; slain by order of Vitellius, 109.
- Dolabella, Publius, proconsul in Africa, his successful exploits against Tacfarinas, i. 171; is ungratefully treated, but his glory increased, 171; is drawn in to accuse his kinsman Quintilius Varus, 199; his motion concerning the questors, 261.

- Domitia, Decidiana, wife of Agricola, her birth and character, ii. 350.
- Domitia, Lepida, aunt to Nero, her greatness, and evil character, l. 310; is accused and condemned to die, 310.
- Domitian, son of Titus, kept in custody by Vitellius, ii. 174; escapes at the burning of the capitol, 186; is saluted Cæsar by the soldiery, and carried to his father's house, 194; his debauchery, 195; his carriage before the senate modest and graceful, 225; proposes all honours to be restored to Galba, 225; advises an amnesty, 229; proceeds against the Gauls, 247; persuaded by Mucianus to retire to Lyons, 263; he relinquishes all functions of government, and, to hide his designs, feigns a love for learning and poetry, 263; grows remarkable only for his debaucheries, 351.
- Domitian, become Emperor, stung with envy at the news of Agricola's conquests in Britain, ii. 380; yet causes triumphal honours to be decreed to him, 380; his conduct in regard to Agricola, 383; is suspected of poisoning him, 384; his horrid cruelty, 386.
- Domitius Afer, an orator, i. 190.
- Domitius, Celer. See Celer, Domitius.
- Domitius, Cneius, marries the younger Agrippina, i. 205; his family and descent, 205; he is consul, 212; is accused, but escapes, 244.
- Domitius, Lucius, his quality, exploits, and death, i. 185.
- Domitius, the only remaining male descendant of Germanicus, l. 254; betrothed to Octavia, the daughter of Claudius, 277; adopted by him, 286; styled prince of the Roman youth, 295; his marriage, 306. See Nero, the emperor.
- Doryphorus, the imperial freedman, his death, i. 395; supposed to have been poisoned, 395.
- Druids prophesy the destruction of the Roman power, ii. 236; their direful curses upon the Roman army, i. 372; their barbarous superstition and human sacrifices, 373; their groves cut down, 373.
- Drusilla, the daughter of Germanicus, l. 109; married to Lucius Cassius, 221.
- Drusus, father of Germanicus, his high preferment and death, i. 3; his great popularity, and its cause, 25; the canal cut by him in Germany, and the altar raised there, 60; his manes invoked by his son, 60; how pompously buried, 110.
- Drusus, son of Germanicus, i. 109, 156; imprisoned, 211; starved to death, 226; a counterfeit Drusus appears in Greece, 211.
- Drusus, son of Tiberius, l. 5; sent by his father to pacify the mutinous legions in Pannonia, 19; their stern behaviour, 19; reads his father's letters to them, 20; his offers do but enrage them, 20; takes advantage of the superstition of the soldiery, 21; the reasonings of those employed by him to reclaim them, 22; with what spirit he spoke to them, 22; debates arise in his council, whether to exercise rigour or mercy, 22; he inclines to the former, 22; is consul, 38; presides over an entertainment of gladiators, and manifests a delight in blood, 53; lives in friendship with Germanicus, notwithstanding the division amongst their friends, 83; is sent into Illyricum, and why, 83; sows feuds amongst the Germans, 93; avocation decreed to him, 95; meets the ashes of Germanicus, 109; goes to the army in Illyricum, 111; his answer to Cneius Piso, 112; by whom dictated, 112; returns to Rome, 113; triumphs, 119; his second consulship, 126; he mediates a difference between two senators, 127; professes his delight in travelling accompanied with his wife, 129; his justice and popular behaviour, 131; is excused for his love of pleasure, 131; his letters to the senate deemed arrogant and haughty, 144; is kind to the children of Germanicus, 156; his complaint of the power of Sejanus, 159; all his secrets betrayed by his wife, 159; is poisoned by the direction of Sejanus, 159; his splendid funeral, 160; his death falsely related, 161; reflections upon it, 161; not chargeable upon Tiberius, 161.
- Drusus, a counterfeit one, in Greece and Asia, i. 211.
- Drusus, Claudius, the stepson of Augustus, l. 3.
- Drusus, Libo, accused of attempts against the state, l. 71; kills himself, 73.
- Duillius, Caius, the first who signalized the Roman power at sea, l. 86.
- Duillius, Aponianus, leader of the third legion, joins Antonius Primus, ii. 141.
- EAGLES of Varus's legions, recovery of, i. 42, 69; temple raised on the occasion, 80.
- Earthquake in Asia, l. 85; relief extended to the sufferers, 85.
- Earthquakes and famine, in the time of Claudius, l. 297.
- East, what legions there, l. 157.
- Eclipse of the moon, daunts the mutinous soldiery, l. 21.
- Egnatius, Publius, the Stoic, appears as an evidence against Barea Soranus, his patron and friend, l. 402; his sanc-

- timonious outside, and false heart, 462.
- Egypt, its remarkable antiquities, i. 92; visit of Germanicus to, 92; the forces there, 157.
- Egyptians, their religious solemnities abolished at Rome, i. 106; numbers of them are banished to Sardinia, 106; the rest ordered to depart out of Italy, or renounce their profane rites, 106; the inventors of letters, 256.
- Eleazar, commander of the temple at Jerusalem, ii. 276; is murdered by John, surnamed Bargioras, one of the governors of that city, 276.
- Elianus, Plautius, the pontiff, consecrates the floor of the capitol, ii. 235.
- Elianus, Pompeius, convicted of a fraud, i. 879.
- Eloquence, the prize of it adjudged to Nero, ii. 367.
- Elysii. See Lygians.
- Emilia, Lepida, charged with imposing upon her husband a supposititious birth, and with adultery and treason, i. 120; her great quality, 120; she is pitied by the people, convicted, and banished, 121.
- Emilia, Musa, her estate claimed by the exchequer, but by Tiberius surrendered to Emilius Lepidus, i. 85.
- Emilian family, its character, i. 229.
- Emilius, with Stertinius, relieves the Batavians, i. 62.
- Emilius Longinus, a deserter from the first legion, murders Vocula, by command of Classicus, ii. 241; is himself butchered by a squadron of horse called Picentina, 243.
- Emperors, Roman, dispense with the laws, i. 219; the pernicious consequence of this, 249.
- Ennia, wife of Macro, prostituted by her husband to Caligula, i. 242.
- Ennius, Lucius, a Roman knight, the strange treason charged upon him, i. 150; protected by Tiberius, 150.
- Epaphroditus, a freedman of Nero, i. 430.
- Ephesians, their plea for a sanctuary, i. 144.
- Epicharis, her part, seal, and arguments in animating the conspiracy against Nero, i. 427; is accused to Nero by Volusius Proculus, 427; baffles her accuser, yet is kept in bonds, 428; vehemently tortured, yet resolutely denies all, and hangs herself in her girdle, 432; praise of her magnanimity, 432.
- Epiphanes, king, wounded at Castorum, ii. 86.
- Épponnia, wife of Julius Sabinus, ii. 246.
- Erato, queen of Armenia, quickly driven out, i. 58.
- Eryx, Mount, the temple of Venus there, its antiquity and decay, i. 184; it is repaired by Tiberius, 184.
- Eudemus, physician to Livia, a wicked instrument of Sejanus, i. 156.
- Eudoses. See Langobards.
- Eunones, prince of the Adorsians, supports Cotys, king of Bosphorus, against Mithridates the late king, i. 281; but intercedes with Claudius for Mithridates, 283; Claudius's answer to Eunones, 283.
- Eunuchs in great esteem amongst barbarians, i. 232.
- Euodius, a freedman, commissioned to see Messalina put to death, i. 271; his insolent reproaches to her, 272.
- Euphrates, the river, i. 157, 236, 370; ii. 273.
- Evander, the Arcadian, instructs the native Latins in the use of letters, i. 256.
- Exchequer, the Roman, its various regulations, i. 81.
- FABATUS, Rubrius, arraigned for despairing of the Roman state, i. 221; escapes through oblivion, 221.
- Fabianus, Valerius, convicted of a fraud, i. 379.
- Fabius Fabullus, commander of the fifth legion, chosen one of the leaders of Vitellius's army, ii. 144.
- Fabius Maximus believed to die by his own hands, through dread of Augustus, i. 5.
- Fabius Paulus, consul, i. 229.
- Fabius Rusticus, the historian, praises Seneca, i. 326.
- Falanus, a Roman knight, strange sort of treason charged against him, i. 51.
- Faustus, Annius, tried and put to death under Otho, for being an accuser in the time of Nero, ii. 75.
- Faventinus, Claudius, occasions the revolt of the fleet at Misenum, ii. 172; his character, 172.
- Favourites of princes, why apt to decline in favour, i. 126.
- Felix, freedman to Claudius, governor of Judæa, his great power, fortune, and villany, i. 304; his crimes and impunity, 304.
- Felix, Sextilius, commands a squadron of horse, ii. 138; forces an entrance through Rhætia, 249.
- Fenius Rufus. See Rufus, Fenius.
- Fenni. See Peucini.
- Festus Martius, a Roman knight, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426.
- Festus, Valerius, commander of the legion in Africa, his character, ii. 232; murders Lucius Piso, proconsul there, 233.

- Fidenæ, calamity there from the fall of the amphitheatre, i. 197.
- Firminus Catus, expelled from the senate for forging treasonable crimes against his sister, i. 174; Tiberius saves him from banishment, 175.
- Firmus Plotius. See Plotius.
- Flaccilla, Antonia, accompanies her husband in exile, i. 441.
- Flaccus, Cornelius, lieutenant to Corbulo, his exploits, i. 338.
- Flaccus, Hordanius, commander of the army in Upper Germany, his character, ii. 7; Vitellius commits the defence of the Rhine to him, 106; is well disposed to Vespasian, 204; orders Luperus to advance against Civilis, 208; escapes being murdered, 213; for his own defence introduces an ill custom, 214; tenders the oath to the soldiers in behalf of Vespasian, 218; they hardly repeat it, 218; he is murdered by the soldiers, 222.
- Flaccus, Pomponius, i. 96; captures Rhesuporia by treachery, i. 97.
- Flattery, an ancient evil in the Roman state, i. 74.
- Flavianus. See Ampius.
- Flavius, brother to Arminius, fights for the Romans, i. 61; his conference with his brother, 61; his son Italicus made king of the Cherusci, 257.
- Flavius Subrius, the tribune, zealous in the conspiracy against Nero, i. 425; his purpose to kill Nero in the theatre or in the streets, 427; how defeated, 427; offers to slay Nero during the examination of the conspirators, but is checked by Fenius Rufus, 428; judges Caius Piso unworthy of the empire, 437; is charged with the conspiracy, and at first defends himself, at last glories in it, and reviles Nero to his face, 438; and his contempt of death, 438.
- Fleets, the Roman, where kept, i. 157.
- Florus, Julius, animates the Gauls to rebel, i. 132; his speech to them, 132; is routed, and dies by his own hands, 133.
- Fonsteius, Caius, consul, i. 353; his murder, ii. 6.
- Foreigners, tyrants chiefly confide in them, i. 432.
- Fortunatus, freedman to Lucius Vetus, robs his lord, then accuses him, i. 448; his recompense, 450.
- Fortune, Equestrian, her temple, where, i. 150.
- Fosians, a German nation. See Cherusci.
- Freedmen, their insolence to their lords, i. 329; reasons alleged for recalling the freedom of such as abused it, 329; their rights, as a body, secured, 330.
- Fregellanus, Pontius, expelled from the senate, i. 245.
- Friends, falling at variance, become the greatest enemies, i. 39.
- Frisii, their country described, ii. 324; their sore oppression and revolt, i. 203; their exploits and renown, 204; they are settled, and their state modelled by Corbulo, 259; change their dwellings, 349; are threatened by Dubius Avitus, commander in Germany, and send their two chiefs to supplicate Nero, 349; their petition rejected, 350.
- Frontinus, Julius, a governor in Britain, his signal fame and actions there, ii. 362.
- Fronto, Octavius, arraigns in the senate the prevalence of luxury, i. 74.
- Fronto, Vibius, general of horse, puts Venones in bonds, i. 97.
- Fuscus, the lake of, a naval combat exhibited there by Claudius, its pomp described, i. 305; as also a combat of gladiators, 305.
- Furnius condemned for adultery, i. 190.
- Furnius, an ancient orator, ii. 420.
- Fuscus, Cornelius, joins Vespasian, ii. 124; his character, 124; is second in command of the forces under Antonius Primus, 137; is appointed praetor, 198.
- Fusius, Geminus, consul, i. 206; a favourite of Livius the elder, 207; his character, and why hated by Tiberius, 207; his fate, 218.
- Gabulus, Licinius, recalled from exile by Nero, i. 361.
- Galba, Caius, once consul, terrified by a letter from Tiberius, falls by his own hands, i. 239.
- Galba, Servius, consul, i. 224. See Galba, the emperor.
- Galba, the emperor, his accession predicted by Tiberius, i. 224; his history, ii. 35; succeeds Nero, 4; his severity, 4, 64; his court compared to Nero's, 6; deliberates concerning the adoption of a successor, 10; adopts Piso, 12; his speech to him on that occasion, 12; declares it to the soldiers and to the senate, 14; orders nine-tenths of Nero's donations to be restored, 16; discharges several commanders, which alarms the soldiery, 16; is warned of a treasonable plot against him in the presence of Otho, 20; receives the news of Otho being presented to the soldiery while sacrificing, 21; calls a council, 21; sends Piso to the camp, 25; receives false information from the crowd, 26; and from Julius Atticus, 26; his remarkable answer to him, 26; is in great distress and suspense, 29; his death, 30; his head carried on a pole, 31; his body, after many cruel indignities, is by Argus his former slave interred in his own garden, 35.

- Galeria, wife to Vitellius the emperor, her character, ii. 110.
- Galgacus, a leader of the Britons, famous for his valour and descent, ii. 372; his speech to his army on the Grampian Hills, 373.
- Galla Arria, wife to Caius Pisa, her character, i. 434.
- Galla Sosia, wife to Caius Silius, arraigned with her husband, i. 167; is condemned to exile, 167.
- Gallio Junius, brother to Seneca, his motion in favour of the prætorian soldiers resented by Tiberius, i. 213; is expelled the senate, and banished, 213; brought back to Rome, and imprisoned there, 314; his fears and perils, 442; is accused by Saliens Clemens, but protected by the senate, 442.
- Gallus Annius, appointed commander by Otho, ii. 64; Vestricius Spurinna joined with him, 76; is informed by Spurinna of Cæcina's repulse from Placentia, and marches to Bedriacum, 84; is appointed commander of an army against Civilis, who then headed the revolted nations in Germany, 247.
- Gallus Asinius, incurs the displeasure of Tiberius, how, i. 12; he had married Vipsania, formerly wife to Tiberius, 12; his ambition, 12; opposed to the licence of the players, 54; his flattery, 74; defends the prevailing luxury, 74; his dispute in the senate with Cæcius Piso, 76; his dispute with Tiberius there, 76; is starved to death, 226; hypocrisy of Tiberius, 226.
- Gallus Caninius, one of the college of fifteen, i. 220; reproved by Tiberius, 220.
- Gallus Clitius, banished for his friendship to Seneca, i. 441.
- Gallus Herennius, commander of the first legion, and governor of Bonna, ii. 210; he attacks the Batavians, 210; is taken into a share of the command with Vocula, and narrowly escapes being murdered by the soldiers, 215.
- Gallus Publius, a Roman knight, banished for his intimacy with Feniur Rufus and Lucius Vetus, i. 449.
- Gallus Rubrius, obtains pardon for the cohorts at Brixellum, ii. 103.
- Gallus Tognolius, his extravagant flattery derived by Tiberius, i. 213.
- Gallus Vipsanius, prætor, his death, i. 87.
- Games, quinquennial, instituted by Nero, i. 365; celebrated at Rome, 444; the foolish and pompous panegyrics made there upon Nero's reign, 444.
- Games, secular, celebrated under Claudius, i. 253; as also under Augustus, 254; and under Domitian, 254.
- Gannæus, a deserter and pirate, heads the rebellious Chaucians, i. 258; is seized and slain, 259.
- Garamantes, king of the, succours Tacfarinas, i. 170; his ambassadors, a singular sight at Rome, 171.
- Gaul, insurrection in, i. 132; suppressed, 135.
- Gauls, a nation rich and unwarlike, i. 262; their nobility claim a share in the public honours of Rome, 262; reasonings against their pretensions, 262; they are admitted into the senate, 264; a general tax imposed upon them, 382.
- Gemiinus, a Roman knight, doomed to the pains of treason, i. 221.
- Geminus Ducentius, i. 184.
- Geminus Verdius, sent by Vespasian, destroys Anicetus and his followers, ii. 166.
- Germanicus, the son of Drusus, adopted by Tiberius at the desire of Augustus, and the aim of Augustus in this, i. 4; commands eight legions upon the Rhine, 4; acquires the proconsular power, 14; the armies in Germany desire him for their emperor, 23; he is unjustly hated by his grandmother Livia, and his uncle Tiberius, 25; and beloved by the Romans, 25; he promotes the establishment of Tiberius, 25; his behaviour and reasonings to the mutinous legions, 25; he hears their complaints, 26; has the empire offered to him, and shows his indignation, 26; his life threatened, 26; his perplexity, 27; he is forced to satisfy the unruly soldiers from his own coffers, 27; brings those in Upper Germany to swear allegiance to Tiberius, 28; expostulates with the mutinous soldiers, 28; is censured for not withdrawing from them, 29; dismisses Agrippina, 29; his speech to his army, 30; its efficacy, 32; examines the conduct of the centurions, 32; prepares to fight the soldiers who persist in their sedition, 33; his stratagem to reclaim the mutinous soldiery, 34; it succeeds, and they butcher one another, 34; what terrible havoc they made, 35; he laments this, 35; and leads them against the Germans, 35; a triumph decreed to him, 38; his conduct against the Germans, 39; he is saluted Imperator by the army, by the direction of Tiberius, 41; how universally he is esteemed, 49; his tenderness and generosity to the soldiers, 49; a show of gladiators exhibited in his name, 53; deliberates how to prosecute the war in Germany, 53; his proceedings, 59, 60; passes the Visurgis, 61; learns the designs of Arminius, 62; traverses the camp in - disguise to know the sentiments of the soldiers, 62; hears his own praises, 62; his propitious dream, 63; his speech to the army, conduct and exhortations, 63; his good intelligence, 66; his wife's conduct and bravery, 66; he raises a monument of arms with a proud inscription, 67; embarks with some legions, and suffers a terrible shipwreck, 82; hence his great grief and melancholy, 82; he invades the Marsians, and recovers one of the eagles lost with Varus, 69; ravages the country, and routs the foe, 69; his great bounty to the soldiers, 70; his triumph, 80; the love and fears of the people for him, 80; the provinces beyond the sea decreed to him, 82; lives in friendship with Drusus, notwithstanding the division of their friends, 83; is consul for the second time, 88; visits Greece, 88; as also the coasts of the Propontis, 89; consults the oracle of Apollo at Colophon, 89; his generosity to Piso, his enemy, 89; proceeds to Armenia, 90; creates Zeno king of that country, 90; his humane and forgiving spirit, 91; his difference with Piso heightened by officious friends, 91; his noble and modest behaviour to the ambassadors of the Parthians, 91; the court paid to him by their king, 91; he travels to Egypt, 92; his popular behaviour there, and thence blamed by Tiberius, 92; he visits the Egyptian antiquities, 92; is thwarted and affronted by Piso, 98; he falls ill, and is believed to be bewitched, 98; his apprehensions and complaints, 98; he renounces all friendship with Piso, 98; his affecting speech to his friends, 98; his advice to Agrippina, 99; he expires, 99; his amiable character, 100; he is universally lamented, 100; compared to Alexander the Great, and surpassing him in virtue, 100; his body exposed to public view, 100; whether poisoned, a question, 100; honours decreed to his memory, 105; his ashes attended by the magistrates of Italy, and carried by tribunes and centurions, 109; his remains deposited in the tomb of Augustus, 110; his funeral thought not sufficiently magnificent, 110; his death revenged, 118.

- Germans, their original, li. 287; their registers and histories, what, 288; their make, form and complexion described, 291; their character, 291; their riches consist in numbers of cattle, 291; they have not the use of silver or gold, 292; but exchange one commodity for another, 292; those bordering upon the frontiers of the Romans excepted, 292; they are supposed not to abound in iron, 293; their armour, and manner of making war, 293; their greatest disgrace, what, 295; their manner of choosing kings and generals, 295; none but their priests allowed to inflict punishment, 295; their usual custom of forming their armies, an incitement to valour, 296; their women useful and assisting even in battle, 296; their worship, and deities, 297; method of divining by lots, 299; they have divine presages and admonitions from horses, 300; their method of divining in affairs of the highest consequence, 300; their manner of reckoning time, 300; their manner of assembling their diets, 300; their manner of proposing and debating affairs there, 301; crimes and punishments, 301; their method of choosing rulers and officers of justice, 303; their notions of honour, and manner of bestowing it, 303; they cannot brook repose, yet have an aversion to labour, 305; they have no cities, 306; their manner of building, 306; the dress of their men and women, 307; their laws of matrimony, their punishment of adultery, 309; their custom of educating their youth, 310; their manner of making up quarrels of one family with another, 312; they are famous for their liberality and hospitality, 312; their usual way of spending their time, 312; and manner of consulting, 313; their excess in drinking, 313; their food and manner of living, 314; their public diversions, 314; they are exceedingly addicted to gaming, 314; their manner of treating slaves, 315; are strangers to usury, 315; their tillage and husbandry, 316; their funeral solemnities, 316; the original of several nations of them, 317; their great power and bravery, in comparison of other nations, 327.
- Germans, whilst under the effect of a debauch, attacked by Germanicus with infinite slaughter, li. 80; their counsels how to deal with the Romans in distress, 47; they attack the Romans with assurance of victory, 47; are defeated and slaughtered, 48; their principal advantages against an invader, 50; their mighty defeat and slaughter, 66; they are enraged by a Roman trophy, 66; though defeated they try another battle, 66; their advantageous post, 66; they are routed and slaughtered, 67; their courage, 67; they are unfit for a close engagement, 67; they reckon the Romans invincible, 69.
- Germany, its bounds and situation, li. 206; its lands productive of grain, but not kindly to fruit-trees, 291; all the cattle there small, 291; near lost to

- the Romans, 164; but upon the approach of the Roman armies that country submits, 249.
- Germany (so called), a part of Gaul, i. 23; disturbances in, 24; how suppressed, 34; war with Arminius, 41.
- Geta, a slave and an impostor, doomed to die for being at the head of a conspiracy against Vitellius, ii. 115.
- Geta, Lucius, captain of the prætorian guards to Claudius, a man of uncertain faith, i. 269.
- Gotarzes, king of Parthia, his barbarities, i. 251; is forced to abandon his kingdom, 252; recalled, he plays the tyrant again, and is again forsaken by his people, 253; his detestable tyranny, 277; routs Meherdates, and cuts off his ears, 280; his death, 280.
- Gothi, their situation and government, ii. 335.
- Gothinians. See Marsignians.
- Government, how many kinds of, i. 175; one equal and mixed, how rare, 175.
- Governor of Rome, his office, what, and when appointed, i. 219.
- Gracchi, Sempronius and Caius, styled excieters of the people, i. 123; character of Gracchus as an orator, ii. 416.
- Gracchus, Sempronius, his character and doom, i. 37; the adulterer of Julia, 37; thence banished to Cercina, and assassinated by order of Tiberius, 37; he dies bravely, 38; his son Caius, 163.
- Græcilius, Ælius, his envious conduct, i. 348.
- Græcina, Pomponia, accused for embracing a foreign superstition, and acquitted, i. 333; her great age and affection, 333.
- Graius, Munatius, a Roman knight, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426.
- Granius, Quintus, accuses Calpurnius Piso, i. 168.
- Graptus, Nero's freedman, a subtle and wicked courtier, i. 345; forges a plot against Cornelius Sylla, 345.
- Gratianus, Tattius, charged with treason, and executed, i. 238.
- Greeks admire chiefly their own exploits, i. 107; their freedom of speech, 177.
- Griphus, Plotius, a senator, ii. 169; appointed prætor in the room of Tertius Julianus, 224.
- HÆMUS, Mount, winter begins suddenly there, i. 189.
- Halicarnassus, no earthquake felt there in 1200 years, i. 192.
- Haliotus, the eunuch, administers poison to his master Claudius, i. 311.
- Haterius, Decimus, consul, i. 138.
- Haterius, Quintus, offends Tiberius, i. 13; obtains protection from Livia, 13; vindicates the players, 54; arraigns the luxury of the Romans, 74; his death and quality, 196; character of his eloquence, 196.
- Helius, the imperial freedman, a poisoner, i. 313.
- Hellusii, a fabulous account of them, ii. 342.
- Helvicones, ii. 335.
- Helvidius Priscus. See Priscus.
- Helvius Rufus, saves a Roman citizen, i. 120; his reward, 120.
- Heralds and priests, question of the rank of, i. 146.
- Hercules, his pillars reported to be standing, ii. 324; he of Egypt the oldest of all, i. 93; he of Mount Sambulos, his hunting horses, their miraculous feats, 279; appears to his priests in their sleep, 279.
- Herennius, commander of a legion, is slain by order of Valentinus and Tutor, ii. 250; their reasons for his murder, 250.
- Herennius Senecio, put to death, and why, ii. 346.
- Hermunduri, their character and situation, ii. 333; their contest with the Catti about the property of a river, i. 351; they prove conquerors, 352.
- Hierocæsarea, its inhabitants claim a right of sanctuary, whence, i. 145.
- Hilarius, freedman to Vitellius, his charge against Cluvius Rufus, governor of Spain, ii. 110; is himself doomed to punishment, 110.
- Hispo, Romanus, an accuser, i. 51; himself condemned, 395.
- Historian, duty of the, i. 147.
- History, that of the free state, how abounding in agreeable matter, i. 175; the use of it, 175; the folly and infamy of suppressing it, 178.
- Hormus, freedman to Vespasian, advanced to the equestrian dignity, ii. 224.
- Hortalus, Marcus, grandson to the orator Hortensius, his great quality and poverty, i. 77; his speech to the senate for support, with his address to Tiberius, 77; the senate favourable to him, 78; how treated by Tiberius, 78.
- Hyrcanians, at war with Parthia, i. 370; send ambassadors to Rome, 370.
- IBERIAN, whence sprung, i. 234.
- Icelus, freedman to Galba, vested with the equestrian dignity, and new-named Martianus, ii. 10; his great sway in the ministry, 10; he combines with Laco, 10; is executed by command of Otho, 33.
- Icenians, a powerful people in Britain, i. 290; their bravery and defeat, 290.

- Illyrium, the legions there recruited, i. 450.
- Imperator, its original meaning, & 3; who the last general saluted by that name, 153.
- Incondarics, how readily delivered to punishment by their brethren, i. 23.
- Incest, laws against, i. 276.
- Indus, Julius, a Gaul, an enemy to Julius Florus, i. 133.
- Informers, rise of, i. 51; their activity, 112, 131; styled the guardians of the laws by Tiberius, 174.
- Inguomerus, a German leader, his advice fiercer than that of Arminius, and thence better liked, i. 47; how he escaped upon a defeat, 65; his intrepidity, 67; he deserts to Maroboduus, 83.
- Inschians, a people friendly to the Romans, i. 336.
- Ireland, its situation, size, soil, and climate, ii. 268; a petty king from thence under the protection of Agricola, 368.
- Italian allies deceived by promises from Rome, i. 124.
- Italicus; son of Flavius, and nephew to Arminius, sent from Rome to rule over the Cherusci, i. 257; the beginning of his reign popular, but distressed with factions, 257; is intoxicated with good fortune, and grows tyrannical, 268; is expelled, but restored, and continues to afflict the Cherusan state, 264.
- Italy, how guarded, i. 157; a Servile War there, how checked, 171; from the Po to the Alps, possessed by the troops of Vitellius, ii. 80.
- Iturea annexed to the province of Syria, i. 284.
- Iturius, instigated to accuse Agrippina, i. 325; banished, 327; recalled from exile by Nero, 361.
- Izates, king of the Adiabeniens, deserts Mcherdates, i. 280.
- JERUSALEM, its description and situation, ii. 274; its strong fortifications, 275; their alleged cause, 275; its sumptuous Temple, 275; the command of the city divided between Simon and John, surnamed Bargioras, 275; the defence and command of the Temple in the hands of Eleazar, 276; the city is besieged by Titus, 276.
- Jews, their rise and antiquity, ii. 268; their religious ordinances, 267; their peculiar ceremonies and customs, 268; their various lot since the time of the Assyrian empire to the siege of Jerusalem by Titus, 272; their religious solemnities abolished at Rome, i. 106; a great number banished to Sardinia, 106; they are obliged to leave Italy, or renounce their national rites, 106; their insurrections in the time of Gallula and Claudius, 304.
- John, surnamed Bargioras, one of the governors of Jerusalem, employs assassins, who murder Eleazar, ii. 276; he takes possession of the Temple there, 276.
- Jordan, that river described, ii. 270.
- Juba, king of Mauritania, i. 157.
- Judaea, that province prays an abatement of taxes, i. 81; annexed to the government of Syria, 284; all except Jerusalem reduced by Vespasian, ii. 70; its boundaries described, 270; its natural history, 270; a summary of its government from the Assyrian empire till the siege of Jerusalem by Titus, 272.
- Julia, daughter of Augustus and Augustus, Tiberius, her character and intrigues, i. 37; banished by Augustus, and doomed to perish through want by Tiberius, 37.
- Julia, daughter of Drusus, married to Nero, i. 125; her imprudence, 196; her second marriage, 228; her death caused by Messalina, 333.
- Julia, daughter of Germanicus, birth of, i. 88; brought to Italy, 108; her marriage, 221.
- Julia, granddaughter to Augustus, banished, i. 122; dies in exile, 203.
- Julia Augusta, mother of Tiberius, i. 206; her death and funeral, 207; change in the conduct of Tiberius, 207.
- Julia Calpurnia accused of incest, i. 274; banished, 276.
- Julianus Tertius flees for fear of being murdered, ii. 123; appointed by Vitellius to reclaim the soldiers, and goes over to the side of Vespasian, 172; his character, 167; commands at Terracina, is taken by Lucius Vitellius, and murdered by him, 188.
- Julianus Tertius degraded from the pretorship by the senate, ii. 224; is restored, 225.
- Julius Auspex, dissuades the people of Rheims from revolt, ii. 248.
- Julius Florus, an insurgent in Gaul, i. 132; kills himself, 133.
- Julius Frontinus. See Frontinus.
- Julius Mansuetus killed by his son at the battle of Bedriacum, ii. 161.
- Julius Martialis, the tribune, suspected of the conspiracy against Galba, ii. 21.
- Julius Sabinus. See Sabinus, Julius.
- Julius Sacrovir, an insurgent in Gaul, i. 132; his device, 133; his successes, 133; is defeated, 135; kills himself, 136.
- Julius Tutor. See Tutor.
- Junia, sister of Marcus Brutus, death of, i. 163; her will, 153.
- Junius, a dealer in ename, i. 72.

- Junius Decimus, consul, i. 366.
 Jupiter, his priest, generally confined to Rome, i. 143; what immunities he enjoyed, 165.
 Justus Fabius, a speaker in the Dialogue on Oratory, ii. 390.
 Juvenales, sports instituted by Nero, i. 363; in them men of all ranks debase themselves, 363.
- KINGS were the original magistrates of Rome, i. 1.
 Knights, Roman, not suffered to associate with actors, i. 54; their oblation upon the recovery of Livia, 150; account of their judicial power, 367.
- LABRO, Antistius, his accomplishments, i. 153; not a flatterer of power, and thence checked from rising to the first dignities, 152.
 Labeo, Asconius, once tutor to Nero, distinguished with the consular ornaments, i. 319.
 Labeo, Claudius. See Claudius.
 Labeo, Pomponius. See Pomponius Labeo.
 Labeo, Titidius, accused for not punishing the adulteries of his wife, i. 166.
 Lacedaemonians claim a right to the temple of Diana, i. 183; their plea, 183.
 Laon, a noble Greek, falls by the cruelty of Tiberius, i. 223.
 Laco. See Cornelius Laco.
 Ladies, decree against such as married slaves, i. 303; many of illustrious quality enter the public lists as gladiators, 415.
 Læmia, Ælius, proconsul of Africa, protects young Græchus, i. 163; his death, employments, and character, 228.
 Langobardi, a people few in number, but brave, ii. 331; their religion, 332.
 Laodicea, city of, overthrown by an earthquake, i. 371; it recovers again, 371.
 Lateranus, Plautius, restored by Nero to the rank of a senator, i. 319; when consul elect, conspires against Nero, 426; his precipitate doom, 434; he dies magnanimously, 434.
 Latiaris, Latinus, a tool of Sejanus, i. 200; his treachery to Titius Sabinus, 200; is impeached, 214.
 Law of violated majesty, perversion of, i. 51.
 Laws, made by faction, i. 123; their number, the sign of a corrupt state, 124.
 Laws, Roman, their impotence, and why, i. 3; they are vanquished by favour, 87; their history, 123; their sovereignty preferred to that of kings, 123; those of the Twelve Tables, how collected, 123.
 Læcinius, a soldier suspected of the death of Galba, ii. 30.
 Læcinius, Caius, consul, i. 415.
 Lelia, the vestal, her death, i. 469.
 Lemovians, ii. 385.
 Lenax, Vipontinus, condemned, i. 332.
 Lentulus, Tarentinus, a Roman knight, convicted of a fraud, i. 373.
 Lentulus, Cæsius, narrowly escapes being murdered by the soldiery, i. 21; softens the sentence against Caius Silanus, 149; his death and character, 165.
 Lentulus, Gellulcius, consul, i. 186; commander of the legions in Upper Germany, and accused, 231; his bold letter to Tiberius, and his accuser condemned to exile, 231.
 Lepida, mother of Messalina, i. 271; present at her death, 271.
 Lepida, Emilia, exiles and condemnation of, i. 120; kills herself, 229.
 Lepidus, the triumvir, his power swallowed up in that of Augustus, i. 2; his turbulent pursuits, 124.
 Lepidus, Marcus, guardian to the children of king Ptolemy, i. 97; in the judgment of Augustus, is qualified to reign, but not fond of it, 113; pleads for Cæsius Piso, 113; defends his sister Emilia, 120; is sent governor to Asia, 127, 246; his character, 127; is named by Tiberius to the government of Africa, 130; declines it, 130; his speech against executing Lutorius Præseus, 137; it prevails not, 138; restores the monuments of his family, 151; his wisdom and moderation, 167; his death and nobility, 229.
 Letters, by whom first invented, i. 256.
 Lewdness and immodesty, their encouragement under Nero, i. 363.
 Lex Julia, its provisions, i. 73, 96.
 Lex Majestatis, perversion of, under the emperors, i. 51; punishment of Lætanus, 137.
 Lex Popæi Popææ, mitigation of its enactments, i. 122.
 Libanus, Mount, described, ii. 270.
 Libels forbidden by the law of the Twelve Tables, i. 50; the penalties increased by Augustus, 56; conduct of Tiberius, 51.
 Liberty, Roman, founded by Lucius Brutus, i. 1.
 Libo, Drusus, maliciously seduced by Firmius Catus, falls under the charge of treason, i. 71; the deceitful countenance of Tiberius towards him, 72; is deserted by his friends, and why, 73; the strange and extravagant articles against him, 73; his slaves examined by torture, being first sold, 73; finds Tiberius obdurate, 73; is terrified by a guard of soldiers, 73; and falls upon his sword, yet the prosecution

- carried on after his death, and his fortune given to the accusers, 73; decrees of the senate against his memory, 74.
- Libo, Lucius, Marcus, consul, i. 56.
- Licinius, Marcus, consul, i. 196; ii. 415.
- Licinius Mucianus. See Mucianus.
- Ligur, Varius, bribes his accusers, i. 231.
- Liguria, a woman of, her great intrepidity, and resolute answer to the plundering soldiers, ii. 77.
- Lingones defeated by the Sequanians, ii. 246.
- Livia, mother of Tiberius, i. 3; wife of Augustus, 3; her enmity to her step-sons, 3; her absolute sway over Augustus, 4; suspected of his death, 5; her management upon the death of Augustus to secure the sovereignty to Tiberius, 6; styled Augusta, 8; flattery of the senate towards her, 13; Tiberius is jealous of her credit, 14; she appears not at the funeral of Germanicus, and why, 109; is seized with a violent distemper, 146; lives upon ill terms with her son, 146; flattering decrees of senate upon her illness, and supplications for her recovery, 146; jealous of her power, 162; at variance with her son, 194; her ambition, and reproaches to him, 194; destroys most of the family of Augustus, and affects to show kindness to the rest, 203; her great age, death, and character, 206.
- Livia, wife of Drusus, i. 83; delivered of male twins, 105; joy of Tiberius, 105; debauched by Sejanus, 156; plots against her husband, 156; her jealousy of Agrippina, 162; urges Sejanus to marry her, 180; her death, 227; decrees against her statues and memory, 213.
- Livilla, wife of Drusus. See Livia.
- Livineius, Regulus, banished, why, i. 365.
- Livy, the historian, his many encomiums upon Pompey, i. 176; he reviles not the enemies of Caesar and Augustus, but often commends them, 176; friendship of Augustus, 176.
- Locusta, the poisoner, an instrument of imperial rule, i. 311; she prepares a deadly potion for Claudius, 311; and for Britannicus, 322.
- Lollia, Paullina, recommended to Claudius for a wife by Callistus, i. 273; crimes being framed against her by Agrippina, she is doomed to banishment, and compelled to kill herself, 284; her great quality, and immense wealth, 284.
- London, the city of, a noble mart, i. 374; abandoned by Suetonius, 375.
- Longinus. See Emilius Longinus.
- Longus, Cassius, chosen leader of Vitellius's army by the soldiers, ii. 144.
- Lucan, the poet, ill used by Nero, i. 426; hates him, and conspires against him, 426; persists long in denying, at last, upon promises of pardon, owns the conspiracy, 431; informs against his mother, 431; is sentenced to die, and nobly undergoes the pains of death, 440.
- Lucilius, a centurion, put to death by the soldiers, i. 19.
- Lucilius Bassus. See Basus.
- Lucilius Longus, a constant friend to Tiberius, his death affects the emperor, i. 164; his funeral honours, 164.
- Lucius, Caesar, grandson to Augustus, his early death imputed to Livia, i. 3.
- Lucius Piso, proconsul in Africa, his murder, ii. 231.
- Lucius Publius, his flattery, i. 74.
- Lucius Vetus. See Vetus, Lucius.
- Lupercus, Mummius, advances against Civilis, ii. 208; is obliged with his legions only to escape to the Old Camp, 209; which he fortifies, but neglects to secure provisions, 211; is besieged by Civilis, 211; is taken and sent to be presented to Velela, but in the journey thither he is slain, 242.
- Lupus, Curtius, questor, suppresses the Servile War in Italy, i. 171.
- Lupus, Junius, the senator, accuses Vitellius, but is himself banished, i. 297.
- Lupus, Numisius, joins Antonius Primus, and brings with him the eighth legion, ii. 141.
- Lutorius, Caius Priscus, put to death, i. 137.
- Luxury, that of Rome declaimed against, i. 74; defended, 74; its prevalence, 139; censured by Tiberius, 139; how hard to be cured, 140; how at last restrained, 141.
- Lycurgus compiled good laws for Sparta, i. 123.
- Lydia, whence so called, i. 192.
- Lygdus, the eunuch, poisons his master Drusus, i. 159.
- Lygians, their situation and customs, ii. 335.
- Lyons, city of, damaged by fire, i. 450; bounty of Nero, 450.
- ACKNOW, the government of that province changed, i. 53.
- Macer, Clodius, his assassination, for raising commotion in Africa, ii. 6.
- Macer, Martius, battle fought by him near Cremona, ii. 84; is in danger of being murdered by the soldiers, 92.
- Macer, Pompeius, the praetor, i. 50.
- Macerina, Pompeia, the strange crime alleged against her, and her banishment, i. 223.

- Macro, captain of the guards to Tiberius, i. 221; his mischievous spirit, 231; his excessive power, 242; he pays court to Caligula, 242; his villanous practices against the lives of illustrious men, 244; his notorious enmity to Arruntius, 244; he is worse than Sejanus, 244; he murders his master, Tiberius, 246.
- Mæcenas, first favourite to Augustus, i. 126.
- Mæcenas, Cilnius, once governor of Rome, i. 219.
- Magicians and astrologers expelled from Italy, i. 74.
- Magistrates, choice of, transferred from the people to the senate, i. 14.
- Magistrates, provincial, why prohibited from presenting public shows, i. 333.
- Magnesia ruined by an earthquake, i. 85.
- Magnesian, their claim to a sanctuary, whence, i. 145.
- Magontiacum, siege of, ii. 223.
- Majesty, violated, that law revived, i. 50; how different it was of old, 50; is perverted by Augustus, 50; by him libels made treason, 50.
- Malori, i. 349.
- Malovendus, general of the Marsians, i. 69.
- Maluginensis, Servius, though priest of Jupiter, demands the government of Asia, i. 143; his suit disallowed, 150.
- Manlius banished Italy for adultery with Varilia Apuleia, i. 86.
- Manlius, Patruitus, a senator, complains to the senate of insults and indignities from the magistrates of Sienna, who are convicted, and suffer capitally, ii. 229.
- Marcellus, son-in-law of Augustus, i. 81.
- Marcellus, Asinius, convicted of a fraud, i. 379; his quality and character, 379; accounts poverty the worst of all evils, 379.
- Marcellus, Claudius, nephew to Augustus, a mere youth, highly preferred, i. 3.
- Marcellus, Eprius, created prætor for one day, i. 274; accused by the people of Lycia, 334; but acquitted through faction, 334; his furious speech against Thræsea in the senate, 459; his mighty rewards for accusing Thræsea, 460; dispute between him and Helvidius concerning sending ambassadors to Vespasian, ii. 202; his artful speech on that occasion, 202.
- Marcellus, Granius, prætor of Bithynia, accused of treason, but acquitted, i. 51.
- Marcomanni, their bravery, ii. 334; ravaged by Catualda, i. 94.
- Marcus, a Boian of mean birth, takes upon him the title of a god, ii. 108; at the head of eight thousand men invades the Æduans, 108; is taken and thrown amongst wild beasts, but not hurt by them, 108; is put to death in the presence of Vitellius, 148.
- Marius, Publius, consul, i. 383.
- Marius, Sextus, condemned and executed for incest, i. 223; his great riches proved his bane, 223; these seized by Tiberius, 224.
- Maroboduus, king of the Suevians, unpopular at home, i. 83; his speech to his army, 84; he is vanquished by Arminius, 84; and invokes the aid of the Romans, 84; his power broken, 94; what a terrible enemy to the Romans, 94; he grows old in exile at Ravenna, 94.
- Marriage, various forms of contracting, at Rome, i. 165; marriage with slave, edict against, 303.
- Marsians, their forces routed by Cæcina, i. 39.
- Marsigni, their situation, speech, and dress, ii. 335.
- Marsus, Vibius, i. 100; accuses Piso of the death of Germanicus, 102.
- Marsus, Vibius, summons Piso to his trial at Rome, i. 102.
- Martia, wife of Fabius Maximus, i. 5.
- Martialis, Cornelius, the tribune, feared by Nero, and dismissed, i. 440.
- Martianus, Granius, the senator, charged with treason, i. 238; he dies by his own hands, 238.
- Martina, an infamous woman, i. 100; sent to Italy on suspicion of poisoning Germanicus, 100; her sudden death, 111.
- Marullus, Junius, consul elect, his severe sentence against Antistius, i. 383.
- Massa, Bebivus, a procurator in Africa, one of the assassins of Lucius Piso, ii. 233.
- Maternus, Curvilius, ii. 391; his tragedy of Cato, 391.
- Mattiaci, their territories and customs described, ii. 319; a silver mine opened in their country, i. 260.
- Maturus, Marius, governor of the maritime Alps, attempts to repel the forces of Otho, but on the first shock his people are dissipated, ii. 77; the rage of the soldiery, 77; kindly receives Fabius Valens in his distress, 162.
- Mauricus, Junius, moves Domitian to communicate the registers of the late emperors, thence to discover the accusers, ii. 226.
- Maximilla, Egnatia, accompanies her husband in exile, i. 441.
- Maximus, Cæsonius, doomed to banishment unheard, i. 441.
- Maximus, Fabius, death of, i. 5.
- Maximus, Trebellius, appointed to assess the Gauls, i. 382; governor of Britain, discarded, and his place supplied by Vettius Bolanus, ii. 110; his con-

- duct and character whilst in Britain, 362.
- Mazippa, general of the Moors in Africa, i. 87.
- Meherdates, called to the crown of Parthia, i. 253; is sent by Claudius to take possession of the kingdom, 278; his ill conduct, 279; his confederates revolt, 280; is routed, and his ears cut off, 280.
- Mela, Ammeus, a Roman knight, brother to Seneca, and father to Lucan, accused, and dies by his own hands, i. 452; his great consideration and authority, with his immense legacy to Tigellinus and Cosutianus Capito, 463.
- Memnon, a colossus in Egypt, i. 92.
- Mennius, prefect of the camp, his boldness in quelling an insurrection of the veterans, i. 20.
- Merula, Apidius, why struck from the list of senators, i. 163.
- Merula, Cornelius, death of, i. 143.
- Messala, Corvinus, gloried in having served under Cassius, yet exalted by Augustus, i. 177.
- Messala, Valerius, consul, i. 334; his poverty and good character, 334.
- Messala, Valerius, artful flattery of, i. 8.
- Messala, Vipstanus, his character, ii. 140; his conduct in the field, 147; gains vast applause in the senate by pleading for his brother Aquilius Regulus, 226.
- Messalina, the empress, her rapaciousness and raucour to Valerius Asiaticus, i. 248; she procures the death of Poppa Sabina, the elder, 248; is bent to destroy Agrippina, 255; her desperate passion for Silius, 255; her boldness in the pursuit of it, 255; her extravagant lewdness, 265; in the absence of her husband she marries Silius, 265; her nuptials publicly and formally celebrated, 266; her frantic riot and voluptuousness, 266; she is threatened with the vengeance of the emperor, 268; yet ventures to meet him, 269; her importunate entreaties to Claudius, 269; is put to death by a tribune, 272; decree of the senate, 272.
- Messalinus, Cotta, his flattering motion against the memory of Libe Drusus, i. 74; his odd motion, 168; his forwardness to gratify the cruelty and tyranny of Tiberius, 207; he is arraigned in the senate, 214; his crimes detested, 215; his character, 215; he appeals to Tiberius, and gains his protection, 215; his accuser punished, 216.
- Messalinus, Valerius, his speech in defence of magistrates who carried their wives into the provinces, i. 129.
- Messentians claim a right to the temple of Diana, i. 183; their plea, 185.
- Miletus, people of, pretend a right to a sanctuary there, i. 146.
- Milichus, a traitorous freedman, urged by his wife, betrays his lord, and first discovers the conspiracy against Nero, i. 430; his rewards, 440.
- Milvian Bridge, the nightly revellings there, i. 345; massacre at the, ii. 5, 37.
- Minos gives good laws to Crete, i. 123.
- Minutius, Thermus, accused and condemned, but turns evidence, i. 216.
- Miracles, some said to be performed by Vespasian, ii. 259.
- Mithridates, king of Pontus, caused a general massacre of the Romans in Asia and the isles, i. 163.
- Mithridates, of Bosphorus, he gathers forces and seizes the kingdom of the Dandaries, 280; his desperate fortune and great distress, 282; he throws himself upon the mercy of Eunones, 282; is carried to Rome, 283; the boldness of his behaviour there, 288.
- Mithridates, the Iberian, favoured by Tiberius, i. 238; gains the kingdom of Armenia, 252; his violent administration, 252; is dethroned and murdered by Rhadamistus his nephew, and the husband of his daughter, 300.
- Mnester, freedman to Agrippina, slays himself at her funeral pile, i. 359.
- Mnester, the comedian, i. 206; put to death, 271.
- Moesia, two legions there, i. 157.
- Moneses, appointed general by Vologeses, i. 397; hastens into Armenia, but finds Tigranes ready to receive him, 397.
- Monobazus incites Vologeses to war, i. 396.
- Montanus, Alpinus. See Alpinus.
- Montanus, Curtius, accused, i. 460; his virtue, innocence, and writings, 460; his sentence, 463.
- Montanus, Curtius, the senator, proposes that public honours be paid to the memory of Piso, ii. 225; his speech in the senate against Regulus, one of the accusers, 228.
- Montanus, Julius, a senator, assaulted by Nero in the dark, repulses him, and thence forced to die, i. 328.
- Montanus, Traulus, a lovely youth, debauched by Messalina, i. 270; put to death, 271.
- Montanus, Votienus, a man of celebrated wit, accused of invectives against Tiberius, i. 183; he is condemned, 183.
- Moses, his address to secure the subjection of the Jewish nation to himself, ii. 267.
- Mucianus, Licinius, his character, ii. 8; rules over Syria, 70; his speech to Vespasian, 116; administers to his soldiers the oath of allegiance to Vespasian, 119; his speech to the people of

- Antioch, 120; holds a council at Berytus, 121; is appointed leader against Vitellius, 122; his disposition of the fleet, 122; his base art to raise money, 122; is stung with envy at the sudden victories of Antonius, 169; his treachery to him, 189; in his letters boasts to the senate of his services, 197; arrives in Rome, and bears universal sway, 202; murders Calpurnius Galerianus, 202; his artful address and management in regard to Antonius, 224; harangues the senate in behalf of the accusers, 229; his disposal of the soldiery, 230; sends over Papius, a centurion, to Africa, to murder Lucius Piso the proconsul, 232; he makes choice of Gallus Annius and Petilius Cerealis for command of the army in Germany, 247; makes changes and promotions, 247; orders the son of Vitellius to be slain, 258; cannot endure that Antonius should attend Domitian in the intended expedition, 258; when informed of the success of the Romans against the Treverians, he advises Domitian to retire to Lyons, where they arrive, 262.
- Mummus. See Lupercus.
- Musonius, Rufus, banished for his signal reputation by Nero, i. 444; derided and abused by the soldiery, for recommending the blessings of peace, and enlarging on the calamities of war, ii. 190; accuses Publius Celer of having, by false witness, procured the death of Barea Soranus, 202; obtains sentence against him, 225.
- Musulianians, a people of Africa, i. 87.
- Mutilus, Papius, his flattery, i. 74.
-
- NAHARVALI, their situation and religion, ii. 335.
- Naples, the vast influx of people there to hear Nero sing on the stage, i. 415; the theatre falls without hurting anybody, 415; Nero's inference from this, and great joy, 415.
- Narbon Gaul, privilege allowed to the senators of that province, i. 284.
- Narcissus, a freedman, i. 267; suborns two courtesans to accuse Messalina to Claudius, 267; confirms the charge of her marriage with Silius, and frightens the emperor, 267; of his own accord orders Messalina to be executed, 271; his public reward, and pestilent sway, 272; inveighs boldly against Agrippina, 306; his griefs and complaints, 310; is doomed by Agrippina to perish in prison, 313; is beloved by Nero for his vices, 314.
- Narisci, ii. 334.
- Nasica, Cæsius, commands a legion in Britain, i. 296.
- Nase, Valerius, chosen to supervise the building of a temple to Tiberius in Asia, i. 193.
- Natalis, Antonine, a Roman knight, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 436; is the great confidant of Caius Piso, 436; is terrified with the rack, and confesses, 431; is pardoned, 440.
- Nauportum, plunder of, by mutineers, i. 17.
- Nen, the river, ii. 289.
- Nepos, Flavius, the tribune, feared by Nero, and dismissed, i. 441.
- Nepos, Marcus, for his vices degraded from the senate, i. 85.
- Nero, the emperor, accession of, i. 312; his title reckoned unjust by the populace, 313; his humour profuse and rapacious, 314; above the control of slaves, 314; makes a funeral panegyric upon Claudius, composed by Seneca, 314; the first Roman emperor who needed another man's eloquence, 315; he wanted not some grounds of science, 315; his first speech to the senate, and scheme of future government, 315; makes preparations for the war in Parthia, 317; refuses compliments and statues, restrains accusations, does acts of mercy, and professes great clemency, 319; falls in love with Acte, 319; is consul, 319; his pleasures why indulged by his ministers, 319; loathes his wife Octavia, 319; surrenders himself entirely to Seneca, 320; is aware of his mother's arts, 320; makes her a mighty present, 320; dismisses Pallas, 321; is jealous of Britannicus, 322; causes him to be poisoned, 322; affects to lament his death, 324; gives vast gifts to his friends, 324; his wild nocturnal rambles and revellings in Rome, 328; bereaves his aunt Domitia of Paris her freedman, 334; is consul a second time, 332; erects a wooden amphitheatre in the field of Mars, 332; is consul a third time, 332; is proclaimed Imperator, 340; the many flatteries of the senate to him, 340; falls in love with Poppæa, 344; removes Otho from Rome, 345; his villainess and suspicions, 345; dreads Cornelius Sylla, and drives him into banishment, 345; his purpose to abolish all taxes, 347; the reasonings of the senate against this, 347; resolves to kill his mother, 352; is transported with a passion for Poppæa, and instigated by her arts, 353; avoids his mother, 354; finds it difficult to dispatch her, and wheedles her out of Rome, 354; his prodigious falsehood, and show of filial tenderness, 355; his fears when his mother escaped, 357; urges

Anicetus to finish the murder, 357; his horror and agonies afterwards, 359; affects great sorrow for her death, 360; transmits to the senate many heavy charges against her, 360; receives flattering compliments upon the death of his mother from the officers, 361; and from the senate, 361; his profligate court, 361; after the murder of his mother fears to return to Rome, 362; but is there received with flattery by all, and thence abandons himself to all iniquity and wiliness, 362; his propensity to the harp, and apology for that diversion, 362; diverts himself with chariot-driving, at first privately, at last in the face of the people, 362; engages several noble Romans by money to perform upon the stage, 363; mounts the stage as a public singer and player upon the harp, 363; is addicted to poetry, 364; likes to hear the disputes of philosophers, 364; is the fourth time consul, 365; his voluptuousness and sickness, 368; institutes a wrestling school, 382; is suspected of causing Burrus to be poisoned, 385; is attached only to mischievous and wicked men, 385; his deceitful speech to Seneca, 388; his many caresses to him, and extreme malice, 389; dooms Sylla to die, 390; jests upon seeing his bloody head, 390; orders Plautus to die, 390; what he declared upon seeing his head, 391; complains of both to the senate after their death, 391; banishes his wife Octavia from his bed, and espouses Poppæa his mistress, 392; suborns Anicetus to declare himself Octavia's adulterer, 393; publishes an edict against her, and dooms her to exile, 394; and to death, 395; boasts his management and frugality, 407; his statue is melted by lightning, 409; a daughter is born to him by Poppæa, 409; his transport of joy upon this occasion, and of grief for her death, 409; his behaviour to Thrasea, 410; his raillery upon Casennius Pætus, 411; he sings upon the public stage at Naples, 415; purposes to visit Greece, there to gain the victory in song, 415; in the midst of his gaieties he riots in feats of blood, 416; but professes clemency, 416; purposes to visit Egypt and the East; but is dismayed and changes his mind, 416; his popular declarations, 416; his riot well-pleasing to the populace, 417; banquets frequently in public places, 417; his abominable pollutions, 417; personates a woman, and marries Pythagoras, 417; relieves and assists the people after the burning of Rome, 419; but is supposed to have caused it, and to have chanted

the destruction of Troy during the fire, 419; builds an immense palace, 421; attempts works impossible, 421; causes Rome to be rebuilt, and directs the manner of building, 421; the new and the late city compared, 422; to acquit himself charges the Christians with having burnt Rome, 423; and treats them with many horrible cruelties, 423; exhausts the empire, spoils Italy, the Roman provinces, the allies of Rome, cities, temples, deities, and all things, 423; attempts to poison Seneca, 424; is wont to expiate omens by illustrious murders, 425; universally detested, and his destruction sought, 425; his tyranny threatens the empire with dissolution, 426; his great dismay upon discovering the extent of the conspiracy against him, 432; his rage against Seneca, 435; dooms him to die, 435; but prevents the voluntary death of Paulina, Seneca's wife, 436; his earnestness to destroy Vestinus the consul, 439; his intimacy with him, his dread of him, and resentment for his bitter sarcasms, 439; can charge him with no crime, yet dooms him to perish, 439; is an insulting tyrant, and sports with the misery and fears of men, 439; his mighty donative to the soldiery, after he had suppressed the conspiracy, 441; his friendship for Cocceius Nerva and Tigellinus, and his favour to Petronius Turpilianus and Nymphidius, 441; his discourses to the senate and edict to the people, 442; he publishes the evidence against the conspirators, but is sorely reproached by the public voice, 442; accidents seeming to presage his sudden fall, 443; becomes the jest of fortune, 443; is infatuated with hopes of mighty treasure to be found in Africa, 444; hence his fresh feats of prodigality and waste, 444; enters the public theatre as a competitor for the prizes there, 445; his great assiduity in acting, and court to the judges, 445; is shamefully applauded by the commonalty of Rome, 446; such as do not applaud him beaten by the soldiers, 446; he employs observers to watch the faces of the audience, 446; many are punished for neglecting to applaud him, 446; his acting continued night and day, 446; kills his wife with a kick, 446; pursues the destruction of Caius Cassius and Lucius Silanus, 447; his rancour towards Lucius Vetus and his family, 448; is petitioned by Vetus's daughter in his behalf, but is inexorable, 449; his mock mercy to them after they were dead, 449; lives in continual dread, 452; his cruelty his strongest appetite, 454; his vengeance

- to Silia, whence, and her doom, 455; gratifies the bloody vengeance of Tigellinus, 455; is bent to extirpate virtue from the earth, 455; and to destroy Thrasea and Soranus, 455; sends a speech in writing to the senate against Thrasea, without naming him, 459; his death, and what public joy it caused, ii. 4; his wild profuseness, 16; a counterfeit Nero appears, 74.
- Nero, son of Germanicus, i. 109; favoured by Tiberius, 125; his marriage, 125; his modesty and gracefulness, 164; his danger from Sejanus, 164; his imprudence, 195; formal accusation against him, 207; his death, 209.
- Nerulinus, son to Publius Sullius, arraigned and acquitted, i. 942.
- Nerva, Cocceius, his dignity and accomplishments, i. 194; accompanies Tiberius in his retirement, 194; in perfect health he chooses a voluntary death, affected with the sadness of the times, 228.
- Nerva, Cocceius, prætor elect, distinguished with the ornaments of triumph, i. 441.
- Nerva, Silius, consul, i. 200; a second time consul, 425.
- Niger, Brutidius, i. 147; his accomplishments and wayward ambition, 148.
- Niger, Vicianus, the tribune, his trembling and consternation in executing Subrius Flavius, i. 438; boasts his own cruelty, 438.
- Nile, an artificial lake for the reception of its waters, i. 93.
- Nobility of Rome, bribed into bondage, i. 8.
- Norbanus, Caius, consul, i. 38.
- Norbanus, Lucius, consul, i. 92.
- Novius, Cneius, a Roman knight, his design upon the life of Claudius, i. 261; he is vehemently racked, but does not disclose his accomplices, 261.
- Nuceria, that colony supplied, i. 333; quarrel of this colony with that of Pompeium, 364; its inhabitants are defeated, and numbers of them slaughtered and maimed, 364.
- Nuthones, ii. 332.
- Numantina, accused of exercising charms, and acquitted, i. 169.
- Numistius Lupus. See Lupus.
- Numisius Rufus, commander of a legion at the Old Camp, besieged by Civilis, ii. 211; is slain by command of Valentinus and Tutor, 250.
- Nymphidius Sabinus, distinguished with the consular ornaments, i. 441; his birth and rise, 442; his designs upon the sovereignty, ii. 4; perishes, 4.
- OBULTRONIUS Sabinus, quæstor of the exchequer, censured by Helvidius Priscus, i. 331.
- Occia, chief vestal, her death, age and holiness, i. 106.
- Octavia, the daughter of Claudius by Messalina, i. 268; she is betrothed to Lucius Silanus, 274; but withdrawn from him, 274; and betrothed to Nero, 277; is forced to dissemble her sorrow and surprise upon the murder of her brother Britannicus, 323; is falsely accused of adultery, her maids racked, and her innocence asserted, 392; the passionate affections of the people towards her, 393; a further false charge against her, 394; her banishment, and forlorn lot, 394; is doomed to die, and executed, 395; her head presented to Poppæa, 395.
- Octavius Sagitta banished at the motion of Mucianus, ii. 229.
- Odryseans, a people of Thrace, i. 131.
- Olenius, a centurion, oppressive conduct of, i. 203.
- Omens. See Prodigies.
- Opsius, Marcus, his infamy, i. 200; meets his just doom, 200.
- Oracles, their style dark and doubtful, i. 89.
- Orators, question of the payment of, i. 250.
- Oratory, dialogue concerning, ii. 390; its utility, 394; pleasure of its exercise, 395; fame of the orator, 397; neglect of the poet, 399; reply, 403; are the modern inferior to the ancient orators? 410; Roman orators enumerated, 412; criticisms on Cicero, 416, 422; on Corvinus, 418; reply, 426; criticism on the moderns, 430; discipline of the ancient orators, 434; Demosthenes, 439, 447; course of study, 440; the Rhetoricians, 442; absurd questions debated by them, 443; oratory thrives best in troubled times, 444, 447; no limit imposed on the ancient orator, 448; condition of the pleader in the courts, 449; true eloquence the offspring of licentiousness, misnamed liberty, 450; therefore not to be met with in an orderly state, 452.
- Ordovicians, a people of Britain, under revolt, attacked by Publius Ostorius, i. 290; they are defeated, 291.
- Orfitus, Servius Cornelius, consul, i. 295.
- Ornospades, the Parthian, his great power and command, i. 236.
- Orodes, son of Arabanes, commands the Parthian army against Pharasmanes, i. 234; his speech to his men, 234; is routed, 235.
- Orphitus, Pactius, fights against the orders of Corbulo, and is defeated, i. 336; he is doomed with his men to notable disgrace, 336.
- Oscan, the farce so called, what tumults it caused, i. 164.

- Osil, a German nation, ii. 335.
- Ostorius Scapula, Marcus, son of the general in Britain, acquires the civic crown, i. 289; a satire upon Nero said to have been read in his house, i. 383; denies to have heard it, 383; is accused, 451; dies by his own hands, 451.
- Ostorius Scapula, Publius, pro-prætor in Britain, ii. 359; routs and slays the revoltors there, i. 289; disarms all such as he suspects, 289; his successful battle against the Icenians and their confederates, 289; reduces the Brigantes, settles a colony to bridle the conquered nations, and marches against the Silures, 290; attacks them with the Ordovicians and other confederates, 290; the great difficulties which he found, 290; yet gains a signal victory, 291; sends their general, Caractacus, with his wife and brothers, prisoners to Rome, 292; and is distinguished with the triumphal ornaments, 293; his misfortunes and losses, anxiety, and death, 294.
- Otho, his intimacy with Nero, i. 319; his passion for Poppæa, 344; marries her, and extols her beauty to Nero, 344; governs Lusitania with great honour, 345; his various character, 345; ii. 11; Nero's confidence in him, ii. 11; his course of life riotous and expensive, 17; his rage against Galba, and envy of Piso, inflame his inordinate ambition, 17; his fears for his life, 17; believes in an astrologer, 18; his artifices with the soldiery, 18; commits the direction of his treason to Onomastus, 19; is saluted emperor by twenty-three prætorians only, 21; his behaviour to the soldiery, 26; his inflammatory harangue to them, 27; orders the common armoury to be thrown open, 28; the ill effects of this, 28; he commands the soldiers to march into Rome, 29; receives news of the death of Piso with the utmost delight, 31; orders the murder of Laco and Icelus, 33; tribunitian authority, and the name of Augustus, are decreed to him, 34; grants leave to bury the heads of slain, 34; his known vices make him dreaded, 36; he suspends his pleasures, dissembles his luxury, and causes Celsus, whom he had confined, to be pardoned, 51; dooms Tigellinus to death, 52; his letters to Vitellius first deceitful, then abusive, 53; attempts to destroy Vitellius, 54; appoints consuls, and makes other promotions, 56; is suspected to have intended public honours to Nero, 57; his joy on the victory in Mœsia, 58; is struck with fear from an outrageous tumult, 59; speaks to the soldiery, and calms them, 60; his disposal of his army sent against Vitellius, 64; urged by the approach of Cæcina, he leaves Rome, 66; commits to his brother, Salvius Titianus, the management of the empire and city, 67; the first motions of the war propitious to Otho, and four more legions join him, 75; his forces in Narbon Gaul have the advantage over those of Vitellius, 77; he is made uneasy by false news, sends for his brother Titianus, and to him commits the direction of the war, 85; is bent upon engaging Cæcina and Valens, 91; returns to Brixellum, 91; his motions no secret to the army of Vitellius, 91; his army defeated near Bedriacum, 95; is determined in his purpose, and waits undismayed for an account of the battle, 99; his speech and calm behaviour before he dies, 99; his death and funeral, 101; some of his soldiers, from affection to him, kill themselves, 101; his character, 102.
- Otho, Junius, prætor, a creature of Sejanus, i. 147; he is condemned to exile, 343.
- Otho, Salvius, consul, i. 302; father of the emperor, ii. 102.
- Oxiones, ii. 342.
- PACARIUS, Decimus, governor of Corsica, his attempt to engage the Corsicans for Vitellius, ii. 79; kills Claudius Pyrrhicus and Quintius Certus for opposing him, 79; is himself killed in his bath, 80.
- Paconianus, Sextus, a tool of Sejanus, i. 214; accused by Tiberius, 214; makes satirical verses against him, and is strangled in prison, 238.
- PACORUS occupies the realm of Media, i. 397.
- PACTIUS, Africanus, charged with having accused the two brothers of the Scribonian house, endeavours to evade the punishment of his guilt by showing others as guilty, ii. 226.
- PÆTUS, one infamous for accusations and informing, condemned to banishment, i. 327.
- PÆTUS, Cæsenius, sent to command in Armenia, i. 399; his forces, boasts, and folly, 399; sad presages upon his passing the Euphrates, 400; his ill conduct and vainglory, 400; he is not furnished with intelligence, nor with firmness, 400; his foolhardiness and cowardice, with his rashness in dispersing his forces, 401; his forces defeated, 402; deserts all the duties of a captain, and sends humble entreaties to Corbulo for succours, 402; his consternation and that of his men, 4-3; their despair, 403; exposes rates by letter with Vologeses, 404; desires a conference

- with him, 404; his interview with Vassaces, 404; his scandalous treaty and concessions, 405; his soldiers insulted and treated like captives, 405; his oath and covenant with the Parthians, 405; his march like a fight, 405; he and his men meet Corbulo and his at the Euphrates, 405; the sorrowful interview of the two armies, 405; he urges Corbulo to proceed to Armenia, 406; withdraws to Cappadocia, 406; returns to Rome, 411; his dread of punishment, but escapes it, 411.
- Pæta, Cæsonius, consul, i. 372.
- Pallas, a freedman, a reigning favourite with Claudius, i. 267; his authority with Claudius, 286; advises him to adopt Domitius (Nero), 286; his intrigue with Agrippina, 286; public honours and extravagant present devised for him, 303; his immense wealth, 303; is dismissed by Nero, but without passing any account, 321; is charged with a conspiracy, but innocent, 328; his arrogance, 328; his death, 395; supposed to have been poisoned by order of Nero, on account of his vast wealth, 395.
- Pammenea, a famous astrologer, in exile, i. 451.
- Pandus, Latinus, prætor of Mœsia, i. 96.
- Pannonia, the legions there mutiny, i. 15; they are unruly and debauched, 15; the revolt suppressed, 22; how many legions there, 157.
- Papia Poppæa, the law so called, what, i. 122; its rigour softened by Tiberius, 124.
- Papinius, Sextus, consul, death of, i. 245.
- Papirius, a centurion, one of the murderers of Clodius Mæcer, ii. 233; sent by Mucianus to destroy Lucius Piso, proconsul in Africa, is executed by command of Piso, 232.
- Paris, the player, charges Agrippina with a conspiracy against her son, and alarms him, i. 325; is the instrument of the emperor's debauches, 327; the emperor's partiality to him, 327.
- Parthia, commotions in, i. 56; ambassadors from, 232; intrigues in, 233; war with Armenia, 235; civil wars in, 251, 278.
- Parthians, the, seek a king from Rome, i. 56; are dissatisfied with him, and then expel him, 57; send ambassadors to Tiberius to seek Phraates for their king, 232; are not expert in sieges, 398.
- Passeius, a famous observation of his concerning Caligula, i. 224.
- Passions, that of reigning the most vehement of all, i. 429.
- Patruus. See Manlius.
- Patuleius, a rich Roman knight, leaves part of his estate to Tiberius, who resigns it to Servilius, i. 85.
- Paulinus, Pompeius, commander in Germany, perfects the dam for restraining the overflowing of the Rhine, i. 348.
- Paulinus, Suetonius, appointed commander by Otho, ii. 64; his character, 64; signal exploits by him, 85; his discourse on the state of the war, and the concurrence of Celsus and Gallus with him, 90; is pardoned by Vitellius, 107; governor of Britain, 360; quells a revolt there, 361.
- Paulinus, Valerius, a brave officer, and fast friend to Vespasian, diverts Valens from his designs, ii. 162; sends after him, and takes him prisoner, 163.
- Paulina, wife to Seneca, resolves to die with her husband, and has her veins cut, but is restrained from dying by Nero, i. 436; ever reverences the memory of her husband, nor lives long after him, 436.
- Paulus, Venetus, the centurion, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426.
- Paxea, wife of Pomponius Laëbe, dies by her own hands, i. 230.
- Pedo, commander of the cavalry sent by Germanicus along the confines of the Frisians, i. 42.
- Pelago, the eunuch, superintendent of Nero's cruelties, i. 391.
- Pelignus, Julius, the emperor's buffoon, made governor of Cappadocia, his absurd attempts and vile behaviour, i. 301; he becomes the hireling of the usurper Rhadamistus, 301.
- Peloponnesus divided amongst the descendants of Hercules, i. 184.
- People, those of Rome, their grief and lamentation at the funeral of Germanicus, i. 169; their prayers for Agrippina and her children, 110; why not sorry for the death of Drusus, 162; their fondness for the house of Germanicus, 162; their extreme debasement, 205; their licentious behaviour towards Tiberius, 220; they are reproved by a decree of senate, 221; their descantings upon the war with Parthia, in the beginning of Nero's reign, 316; how sensibly they feel the many evils of war, ii. 65.
- People of Vienne, their humble submission and application to the army, ii. 47.
- Peroennis, an incendiary amongst the legions in Pannonia, i. 15; his character and harangue, 15; he is executed by the command of Drusus, 22.
- Petilius Cerealis. See Cerealis.
- Petina, Ælia, recommended to Claudius for a wife by Narcissus, i. 273; she was once married to the emperor before, but divorced, 273.
- Petræ, two illustrious Roman knights

- of that name, and brothers, put to death under Claudius for a dream, i. 249.
- Petronius, Caius, his luxury and accomplishments, pleasures and abilities, i. 453; is acceptable to Nero, thence hated by Tigellinus, 454; is actused, seized, and opens his veins, 454; his manner of dying, 454; his remarkable will, 454.
- Petronius. See Turpilianus.
- Peucini, their situation and customs, ii. 340.
- Pharasmanes, king of the Iberians, espouses the interest of Tiridates, i. 233; leads an army into Armenia against the Parthians, 233; gains the city of Artaxata, 234; his speech to his army, 235; he attacks Orodes, and defeats him, 235; his advice to his brother Mithridates, 251; his treacherous designs and cruelty towards Mithridates and family, 298; he aids the Romans, 336.
- Philadelphia ruined by an earthquake, i. 85.
- Philippopolis, the city of, by whom founded, i. 132.
- Philopater, king of Cilicia, his death, i. 59.
- Phœbus, Nero's freedman, his insolence and menaces to Vespasian, i. 446.
- Phœnicians, first brought the use of letters into Greece, i. 256; but had them from Egypt, 256.
- Phœnix, one seen in Egypt, i. 229; the several accounts of that bird, 229.
- Phraates, what court he paid to Augustus, and why, i. 56; is destined by Tiberius to the Parthian diadem, but dies in Syria, 233.
- Phrixus, the oracle of, in Colchis, i. 234.
- Physicians, Roman, dark picture of the, i. 156.
- Pilate, Pontius, i. 423.
- Piso, Caius, a conspirator against Nero, his popularity and noble descent, his great accomplishments, and his vices, i. 425; is jealous of Lucius Silanus, 428; of Vestinus the consul, 428; the brave advice given him when the conspiracy was first detected, 433; neglects it, and dies by opening his veins, but in tenderness to his wife flatters Nero in his will, 433.
- Piso, Cneius, his dispute in the senate with Asinius Gallus, i. 76; is a man of a violent spirit, and preferred to the government of Syria in despite to Germanicus, 82; his character, 82; he reproaches Germanicus, 89; insults and hates the Athenians, why, 89; his behaviour to Germanicus, 89; hastes to Syria, and corrupts the army there, 90; his insolence and disobedience to Germanicus, 91; parts from him in open enmity, 91; his intemperate joy and exultation for the death of Germanicus, 101; is flattered by the centurions, 101; is prompted by Domitius Celer, 101; his letter to Tiberius against the conduct of Germanicus, 102; he raises forces, 102; his disdainful answer to Marsus, 102; seizes a castle and harangues his men, 103; his forces flee, 103; is forced to abandon Syria, 103; is doomed to vengeance by the public voice, 111; his son is civilly received by Tiberius, 112; he arrives with his wife Plancina at Rome, 112; their magnificent entrance resented by the populace, 112; is arraigned, and by whom, 112; his trial, 112; the charge against him, 114; his defence impotent, except in one instance, 115; his judges implacable, and why, 115; the fury and indignation of the people towards him, 115; he finds all things threatening and boding, 116; waves all further defence, 116; and is found dead in his chamber with his throat cut, 116; his crimes thought to be suborned by Tiberius, who in the senate recites a letter from him, and affects to complain of his manner of dying, 116; his son acquitted by the emperor, 117; his sons defend their mother, 117; their favour from the emperor, 117; the sentence awarded against him, 117; it is softened by Tiberius, 118.
- Piso, Lucianus, his extraction, character, and adoption by Galba, ii. 11, 34; his modest behaviour, 14; his speech to the cohort upon duty at the palace, on occasion of the insurrection of Otho, 22; is sent to the camp, 25; returns, and is encountered by numbers of mutineers, but by the assistance of Sempronius Densus escapes to the temple of Vesta, 31; by order of Otho, he is murdered in the porch, 31; is buried by his wife Verania, and his brother Scribonianus, 34.
- Piso, Lucius, consul, i. 332; he, Ducenius Geminus and Pompeius Paulinus set over the public revenue, 406.
- Piso, Lucius, governor of Spain, assassinated there, i. 185; desperate spirit of the assassin, 185.
- Piso, Lucius, pontiff, his death and character, i. 219; a public funeral decreed to him, 220.
- Piso, Lucius Calpronius, his boldness in the senate, and prosecution of Urgulania, i. 75; he pleads for Cneius Piso, 113; is charged with treasonable words, 168; kills himself, 168.
- Piso, Marcus, son of Cneius, i. 101, 102; his reception by Tiberius, 112; screened by him from punishment, 117.

- Pitunnus, Lucius, a magician, cast from the Tarpeian rock, i. 74.
- Placentia, besieged by Cæcina, ii. 82; gallant behaviour of the besieged, 82.
- Plancia, wife of Cneius Piso, instructed by Livia to persecute Agrippina, i. 82; her unseemly behaviour and invectives against Agrippina and Germanicus, 90; her arrogant joy for the death of Germanicus, 101; returns to Rome, 112; secures the protection of Livia, 115; her trial, 117; screened from punishment by Tiberius, 118; again accused, kills herself, 228.
- Plaucus, Minutius, a senator of consular dignity, in danger from the soldiers, i. 29.
- Plautius, Aulus, the first governor of Britain of consular quality, ii. 359; triumphs for his exploits there, i. 333.
- Plautius Quintus, consul, i. 238.
- Plautus, doomed to be murdered in Asia by order of Nero, i. 390; is advised to resist, 390; but peaceably submits to die, 391; his head presented to Nero, 391; is degraded from the rank of senator after his death, 391.
- Plautus, Rubellius, his great quality, i. 325; is mentioned in a plot, 325; but not questioned, 327; his nobility and virtues, 368; is destined to succeed Nero by the public voice, and thence obliged to retire to Asia, 368.
- Players, their factions, i. 38; they are exempt from stripes, according to the judgment of Augustus, 54; are laid under restrictions, and their wages limited, 54; their insolence, 103; they promote private debauchery, and disturb the public, 104; are driven out of Italy, 164.
- Pleaders, how mercenary, i. 249; are debarred by law from taking fees, 250; are attacked in the senate, 250; their apology for themselves, 251; their fees ascertained, 251.
- Plotius Firmus, a common soldier, chosen as commander of the prætorians, ii. 32; his devotion to Otho, 99.
- Pœnius, Posthumus, præfect of the camp in Britain, slays himself, and why, i. 377.
- Pollio, Annus, charged with treason, i. 218; his trial postponed, 218; is banished for his friendship to Seneca, ii. 255.
- Pollio, Asinius, his daughter made chief vestal, i. 106.
- Pollio, Asinius, the historian, praises Brutus and Cassius, yet in favour with Augustus, i. 177.
- Pollio, Cælius, a Roman commander in Armenia, his perfidiousness and venality, i. 99.
- Pollio, Julius, tribune of the guards, his part in the murder of Britannicus, i. 322.
- Pollio, Memmius, consul elect, his motion in the senate for the marriage of Nero and Octavia, 277.
- Pollio, Vinicianus, charged with treason, i. 218.
- Pollutia, widow of Rubellius Plautus, doomed to destruction by Nero, i. 448; her sorrowful widowhood, and supplications for her father, Lucius Vetus, 449; she advises him to die, and dies with him, 449; they are condemned after death, 449.
- Polyclitus, a manumitted slave of Nero, sent to inspect the state of Britain, i. 378; his amazing state and retinue, 378; is an object of derision to the Britons, 378.
- Pompeium, that colony checked by a decree of senate, i. 365; overthrown by an earthquake, 409. See Nuceria.
- Pompeius, a Roman knight, doomed to the pains of treason, i. 221.
- Pompeius, the tribune, feared by Nero, and dismissed, i. 440.
- Pompeius, Macer, prætor, i. 50.
- Pompeius, Sextus, consul, i. 7.
- Pompeius, Sextus, his reproaches upon Marcus Lepidus, i. 127.
- Pompey, his power swallowed up in that of Cæsar, i. 2; is chosen to correct the public enormities, 124; his remedies worse than the disease, 124; his theatre, burnt and restored by Tiberius, 151; retains its old name, 151; was the first founder of a permanent theatre, 366.
- Pomponius, Flaccus, his flattering motion against the memory of Libo-Drusus, i. 74; is preferred to the government of Mœsia, 96; deceives and seizes Rhescuporis, 97; dies prætor of Syria, 228.
- Pomponius Laber, governor of Mœsia, i. 186; kills himself, 250.
- Pomponius, Lucius, consul, i. 80; commander in Upper Germany, defeats the invading Catti, 287; is rewarded with a triumph, 287; he is celebrated poet, 287.
- Pomponius, Quintus, the accuser, his notorious impudence, i. 223.
- Pomponius, Secundus, accused, i. 210; his character, 210; outlives Tiberius, 210.
- Pomponius Silvanus, proconsul in Africa, accused of mal-administration, i. 348; how acquitted, 348.
- Ponticus, Valerius, banished for a fraud, i. 379.
- Pontius, Caius, consul, i. 242.
- Poppæa Sabina the Elder, her death procured by Messalina, f. 248.
- Poppæa Sabina the Younger, her descent, character, and mischievous charms, i. 344; marries Rufius Crispinus, but is carried away by Otho,

- 344; she manages and intoxicates Nero, 344; inflames him against his mother and his wife, 353; rules him implicitly, 392; is married to him, 392; forges a charge of adultery against Octavia, 392; her statues thrown down by the populace, 392; her artful and inflammatory discourse to Nero, 393; is delivered of a daughter, 409; the servile vows and zeal of the senate upon her pregnancy and delivery, 409; assists Nero in his cruelties, 435; her death and pæanistic, both by Nero, 446; her pompous and royal funeral, with the popular joy for her death, 447.
- Poppæus Sabinus. See Sabinus, Poppæus.
- Populæ, at Rome, their resentments and complaints towards Tiberius and Livia, about Germanicus, i. 117; their tumult during a famine, 297; their vile behaviour in the contest between Galba and Otho, 24; they rejoice at the murder of the emperor, 32; many present memorials to Otho for rewards for their crime, 32; just punishment of the authors by Vitellius, 32; their dread and anguish, occasioned by two such princes as Otho and Vitellius, 36; they raise a terrible tumult, 58; are filled with suspicion and distrust, 63; want bread, and employment to earn it, 68; some of them elated by the public commotions, 65; they rejoice when Vitellius is proclaimed, 104.
- Porcius, Cato, his infamous practice, i. 200.
- Præneste, a tumult of the gladiators there suppressed, i. 424; it causes public terror, 424.
- Prætorian guards, their institution, i. 7; collected into one camp by Sejanus, 155; honours proposed for them, 213; place Otho on the throne, ii. 21; sent on active service by him, 64, 66; their treatment by Mucianus, 230.
- Prætors, Tiberius reserves to himself the nomination of four, i. 14; they manage the treasury, 52; are employed to punish unruly spectators at the theatre, 54.
- Prasutagus, a British king, leaves the emperor joint heir with his own daughters, i. 372; the policy of this, 372.
- Primus, Antonius, convicted of a fraud, i. 379; his daring spirit, 379; expelled the senate, 379; his revolt to Vespasian, and character, ii. 124; his speech for despatch and pushing the war in Italy, 135; is leader of the army into Italy, 137; acquires great fame by ordering the statues of Galba to be restored, 139; assaults the enemy, 140; is reinforced by the seventh legion, 140; and by the third and eighth, 141; appeases a tumult, and saves Ampius Flavianus from being murdered, 142; is suspected to occasion the seditions which obliged Flavianus and Saturninus to retire, 142; when informed of the distractions of the enemy, he determines to engage them before Valens could head them, 145; encamps at Bedriacum, and is informed of the enemy's approach, 145; his disposition of his army, and his gallant behaviour, 146; obtains the victory, 146; is joined by the whole power of Vespasian's army, who are for attacking Cremona instantly, 147; but restrained by his address and eloquence, 148; is informed of the approach of the enemy with six legions, 149; the disposal of his army, 149; his behaviour and management, 150; be- sieges Cremona, 153; orders the most sumptuous buildings without the city to be burnt, 154; on sign of submission he orders all violence to be stayed, 155; is supposed to have given orders for burning the city, 156; is struck with shame, and orders that none should hold as a captive any citizen of Cremona, 157; oppresses Italy, debauches the army, and commits rapine, 167; finds himself ill-used by Mucianus, and writes to Vespasian, 169; his speech to pacify the soldiers at Caraulæ, 175; his behaviour to the revolted, and disposal of them, 177; is suspected of treachery, 188; he advances along the great Flaminian road, 189; and approaches Rome, 191; is principal in authority there, 99; obtains the con-ular dignity, 198; his power and authority quite sunk by the arrival of Mucianus, 202; is reported to have persuaded Scribonianus Crassus to assume the sovereignty, 224; goes to Vespasian, 258; his reception and treatment, 258; grows daily more despised and despicable, 258.
- Princes, in what sense the representatives of the gods, i. 131; the force of their example, 141; their death ever accompanied with diemal tales, 161; their passions and prejudices unaccountable, 168; how dangerous to upbraid them, 173; they may easily distinguish true applause from flattery, 174; their most lasting monuments, 179; always remember sharp raileries, 207; how they behold the instrument of their cruelties, 393.
- Priscus, Ancharius, implends Cæsus Cordus, i. 140.
- Priscus, Caius Lutorius, his celebrated poem upon the death of Germanicus, and its reward, i. 137; is accused by

- an informer for preparing another upon the death of Drusus, when it should happen, 137.
- Priscus, Fabius, leader of the fourteenth legion from Britain, takes the Nervians and Tungrians under the Roman protection, ii. 258.
- Priscus, Helvidius, sent to regulate the disorders in the East, and his prudent management there, i. 301; why suddenly recalled, 301; is accused, 460; his innocence, 460; his banishment, 464; his discourse and sentiments gain him great glory in the senate, ii. 198; his great character, 198; speech of his, 199; as praetor he consecrates the floor of the capitol, 235.
- Priscus, Helvidius, son of the above-mentioned, executed under Domitian, ii. 387.
- Priscus, Julius, commander of an army under Vitellius, ii. 171; abandons the camp, 176; on the death of Vitellius, and reduction of Rome to Vespasian, he kills himself, 203.
- Priscus, Nonius, a friend of Seneca, and for this banished by Nero, i. 441.
- Priscus, Petronius, banished, i. 441.
- Priscus, Tarquitius, condemned for public rapine in Bithynia, i. 382.
- Proculus, Cervarius, a Roman knight, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426; his confession and pardon, 440.
- Proculus, Cestius, accused and acquitted, i. 332.
- Proculus, Censidius, suddenly charged with treason, and executed, i. 223; Seneca, his sister, banished, 223.
- Proculus, Licinius, captain of the praetorian guards to Otho, advises to engage Cassia and Valens, ii. 91; is pardoned by Vitellius, 107.
- Proculus, Volusius, helped to murder Agrippina, Nero's mother, i. 427; discontented with Nero, and threatens vengeance, 427.
- Prodigies observed at Rome, i. 297; many and various, with their supposed portent, 426.
- Prapertius, Celer, a poor senator, relieved and supported by Tiberius, i. 53.
- Prostitutes of old punished only by infamy, i. 106.
- Province Roman, why not averse to the sovereignty of one, i. 3; a decree for preventing their application to the senate for public thanks to their governors, i. 403.
- Proximus, Statius, the tribune, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426; is pardoned, but offends again, and dies, 440.
- Ptolemy, son of Juba, king of Mauritania, -l. 170; honours paid to him by the senate, 171.
- Pulchra, Claudia, accused and condemned, i. 189.
- Puteoli, dissensions between the senate and the populace there, i. 346; dignified by Nero with the title of a colony, 371.
- Pyramids of Egypt, their immense bulk and situation, i. 93; by whom raised, 93.
- QUADI, governed by kings, ii. 334.
- Quadratus, Numidius, governor of Syria, i. 290; he connives at the usurpation and cruelty of Rhadamistus, yet seems to oppose him, 300; composes the trouble in Judaea, and protects Felix, 304.
- Quadratus, Seius, accused, i. 216.
- Quæstorship, origin of the office, and how supplied, i. 261.
- Quietus, Cluvdienus, banished, i. 441.
- Quinta, Claudia, the vestal, her statue twice spared by the fire, i. 198.
- Quintianus, Afranius, the senator, a man of evil fame, but active in the conspiracy against Nero, i. 426; he denies the charge long, 431; is corrupted by a promise of pardon, and informs against Glitius Gallus, 431; suffers death with resolution, 440.
- Quintilianus, tribune of the people, his motion concerning one of the Sibyl's books, i. 220.
- Quirinalis, Clodius, his conviction, and voluntary death, i. 332.
- Quirinius, Sulpicius, husband to Emilia Lepida, his mean character, i. 136; his public funeral at the request of Tiberius, 136; his merits towards the emperor, 136; his warlike exploits and unpopularity, 137.
- RED SEA, the boundary of the Roman empire, i. 93.
- Regulus, the consul, his quarrel with Trio, i. 211, 214.
- Regulus, Aquilius, charged as the accuser and destroyer of the illustrious house of the ancient Cræsi, and that of Orphirus, ii. 227; his horrid cruelty set forth in a speech of Curtius Montanus, 227.
- Regulus, Livineius, pleads for Cneius Piso, i. 112.
- Regulus, Memmius, his death and illustrious character, i. 382; Nero's opinion of him, 382.
- Remmius, a veteran soldier, slays Vonnus, i. 97.
- Reudigni, ii. 332.
- Revels, popular, censured, i. 266; defended, 266.
- Rhadamistus, son of Pharasmanes, king of Iberia, his ambition and guile, i. 293; by force and fraud he seizes Ar-

- menia, the kingdom of Mithridates, his father-in-law and uncle, 298; and causes him and his wife (sister to Rhadamistus) to be murdered, as also their children, 300; is driven out of Armenia with his Iberians, 301; recovers it once more, and is more bloody than ever, 301; the people incensed, and he forced again to flee, 302; his love and barbarity to Zenobia, his wife, 302; he renounces all further struggles, 316; is put to death by his father, 336.
- Rhamsees, an Egyptian king, his wide conquests, i. 93.
- Rhemetales, a king of Thrace, i. 95; another, 97; besieged in Philippopolis, and relieved by the Romans, 132; serves with them against his countrymen, 186.
- Rhescuporia, a king of Thrace, his treachery, i. 96; his imprisonment and death, 97.
- Rhine, its course described, i. 59; how many legions guarded it, 159.
- Rhodes, the city of, often loses and recovers its liberties, i. 306.
- Rhoxolanians, a people of Sarmatia, invade Mesia, ii. 57; their character, and overthrow by Marcus Antonius, 57.
- Riots connected with the theatre, i. 53; factions of the players, 38.
- Rivers, to alter their courses reckoned unholy, according to the opinion of the Latins, i. 55.
- Roman dominions, extent of the, i. 157; fleets and legions, 157.
- Roman government, various forms of the, i. 1, 175; change in its character, 4.
- Romans, lost all spirit of liberty under Augustus, i. 4; their reasonings and fears about his successor, 4; under the conduct of Germanicus, their great victory over the Germans, 65; their generosity to their foes, 107; they chiefly delight to magnify ancient exploits, 107; are alarmed with the revolt in Gaul, 134; inveigh against Tiberius, 134. See Populace.
- Rome, city of, its first magistrates were kings, i. 1; excessive servility and flattery there upon the accession of Tiberius, 7; extreme public sorrow for the death of Germanicus, 104; and expostulations of the populace, 104; what forces guarded the city, 157; mutual fears amongst all men there, whence, 201; many bloody executions, 238; great fires, 197, 241; its circumference enlarged by Claudius, 285; its ancient bounds, 285; false rejoicings there, 406; state of public provisions, 406; terrible conflagration, 418; terrors and misery of the people, 419; the flames wilfully heightened by incendiaries, who allege authority for their behaviour, 419; Nero suspected for the author of this calamity, 420; many public buildings and monuments destroyed, 420; public supplications and devotions after the fire, 422; public rejoicings and inward mournings, 428; a terrible pestilence, 450; is entered by the forces of Vespasian, ii. 192; the terrible havoc which ensues, 192; calamitous condition of the city after the death of Vitellius, 195; uneasinesses and terrors there, lest Africa should rebel, 223; the city restored to her pacific form, 225.
- Rome, office of præfect of, i. 219.
- Romulus, arbitrary in the administration of justice, i. 123; his wisdom, 263.
- Roscius, Regulus, appointed consul for a day only, ii. 159.
- Rubellius Blandus, marries Julia, the daughter of Drusus, i. 228.
- Rubellius Geminus, consul, i. 206.
- Rubrius, a Roman knight, strange sort of treason charged against him, i. 51.
- Rufilla, Annia, her remarkable insolence, i. 130.
- Rufinus, Vincius, a Roman knight, convicted of a fraud, i. 379.
- Rufius, Crispinus, husband to Poppæa, i. 344.
- Rufus, Aufdidenus, præfect of the camp, ill-treatment of, i. 17; driven out, 19.
- Rufus, Curtius, history of, i. 260.
- Rufus, Fenius, made superintendent of public provisions, i. 327; captain of the guards to Nero, and in credit with the public, 386; hence disliked by the emperor, 386; his authority depressed, 389; is one of the conspirators against Nero, 426; his constant danger from Tigellinus, 426; his violent behaviour in examining the other conspirators, to prevent being suspected himself, 432; is accused of the conspiracy, and seized, 437; dies meanly, 438.
- Rufus, Numisius. See Numisius.
- Rufus, Petilius, a tool of Sejanus, i. 200.
- Rufus, Trebellianus, appointed to administer the government in Thrace, i. 97; accused, and kills himself, 238.
- Rufus, Verginius, consul, i. 409.
- Rugii, ii. 336.
- Ruminalis, the tree so called at Rome decays and revives, i. 352.
- Rusticus, Arulenus. See Arulenus.
- Rusticus, Junius, keeps a journal of the proceedings of the senate, i. 208; warns them against prosecuting Agrippina and Nero, 208.
- SABINUS, Calvisius, charged with treason, i. 218; commander of a legion

- under Cæsenius Pætus in the East, i. 400.
- Sabinus, Flavius, brother to the emperor Vespasian, consul elect, appointed by Otho to command in Macer's room, ii. 92; with the forces under his command, he goes over to Vitellius, 103; draws up all the forces in Rome, who are by him sworn to Vitellius, 104; he is persuaded to leave Vitellius, 175; is suspected to envy his brother's fortune, 177; his character, 178; he attacks a party of Vitellius's men, but is forced to retire, and shuts himself in the capitol, 181; sends to Vitellius to expostulate, 181; is besieged in the capitol, 183; is taken and murdered, 186; funeral honours are paid to him as censor, 231.
- Sabinus, Julius, one of the Lingones, values himself as being descended from Julius Cæsar, ii. 237; causes himself to be proclaimed Cæsar, 246; leads a huge host of his countrymen, the Lingones, to invade the Sequanians, 246; he is put to flight by them, and thence the war is stayed, 247.
- Sabinus, Ostorius, accusæ Barea Soranus, i. 457; as also his daughter, Servilia, 461; his charge against her, 461; his great rewards, 463.
- Sabinus, Poppæus, governor of Mœsia, i. 55; his successful exploits against the Thracians, 106; his death and character, 238.
- Sabinus, Publius, captain of the prætorian guards to Vitellius, ii. 128; put in chains, 158.
- Sabinus, Titius, a Roman knight, i. 166; his faithful adherence to the family of Germanicus, 201; by what vile fraud circumvented, 201; he is condemned and executed, 202; his last words, 202.
- Sacerdos, Carsidius, once prætor, banished, i. 245.
- Sacroviv, Julius, incites the Gauls to revolt, i. 132; speech to them, 132; his deceit, 133; his great forces, 133; he holds as hostages all the noble youths of Gaul, 133; harangues his army, 135; is routed, and slays himself, 136.
- Sagitta, Octavius, his extravagant passion for Pontia, i. 343; he murders her, and is condemned, 343; the generous spirit of his freedman, 343.
- Sallustius, Crispus, his credit at court, and counsel to Livia, i. 6; aids Tiberius by his counsel, 79; his death, favour, and character, 126.
- Salonina, wife of Cæcina, ii. 82.
- Saloninus, Asinius, his death and illustrious descent, i. 153.
- Salt, singular way of producing, in Germany, i. 351.
- Salvianus, Calpurnius, accuses Sextus Marius unseasonably, i. 178; and thence banished, 178.
- Salvius, Titianus. See Titianus.
- Samos, the people of, claim a right of sanctuary to the temple of Juno, i. 63.
- Sancia, banishment of, i. 223.
- Sanctuaries, rights of, examined, i. 144; limited by the senate, 146; other claims, 163.
- Sanquinius, Maximus, his speech in the senate, i. 214; governor of Lower Germany, dies, 258.
- Sardis, the city of, destroyed by an earthquake, i. 85; it claims a right to a sanctuary, 146.
- Sariolentus, Vocula, expelled the senate for endeavouring to introduce the practice of accusing under Nero and Vitellius, ii. 226.
- Sarmatians, manners of the, ii. 341; their wars with the Romans, 2, 57, 151; engage for pay on different sides, i. 234; their conduct in battle, 235.
- Satrius Secundus, an agent of Sejanus, i. 176; betrays his conspiracy, 244.
- Saturnius, a turbulent tribune, i. 123.
- Saturnius, Aponius, commander in Mœsia, attempts to murder Tertius Julianus, ii. 123.
- Scævinius, Flavius, the senator, a vicious man, active in the conspiracy against Nero, i. 426; his behaviour and preparations observed by Milichus, his freedman, 430; is by him accused, and thence brought before the tribunal, 430; his bold defence, 431; suffers death with resolution, 440.
- Scapula. See Ostorius.
- Scarus, Mamerus, offends Tiberius, who conceals his own rancour, i. 13; his quarrel with Lucius Sylla, 127; prosecutes Caius Silanus, 147; is accused of adultery and magic, 231; kills himself, 231.
- Scarus, Maximus, a centurion, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426.
- Scipio, husband to Poppæa the Elder, his temper and address, i. 249.
- Scipio, Cornelius, his monstrous flattery to Pallas, i. 303.
- Scipio, Publius, his courteous demeanour in Sicily of old, i. 92.
- Scipio, Publius, consul, i. 328.
- Scribonianus, Camillus, takes arms in Dalmatia, i. 302.
- Scribonianus Crassus declines the offer of Antonius, ii. 224.
- Scribonianus, Furius, doomed to exile, why, i. 302; Junia his mother involved in his crime, 302; he soon dies, 302.
- Scribonii, the two brothers of that name compose the troubles at Puzoli, i. 346.
- Sea-fight, mock, exhibited by Claudius, i. 305.

- Secular games, exhibition of the, i. 253.
- Secundus, Julius, ii. 391.
- Secundus, Pedaneus, governor of Rome, murdered by one of his slaves, i. 380; all the rest executed, 382.
- Segetes, a German chief, in alliance with the Romans, i. 38; his advice to Varus, 38; his affinity to Arminius, and variance with him, 39; he prays relief from Germanicus against his own countrymen, 39; is rescued by Germanicus, 40; his daughter wife to Arminius, her behaviour and great spirit in captivity, 40; his speech and apology to Germanicus, 40; his desertion, how variously it affected the Germans, 41.
- Segimund, son to Segetes, a deputy from his father to Germanicus, i. 40; a priest among the Ubians, 40; had once revolted from the Romans, but is graciously received, 40.
- Sejanus, commands the prætorian guards, i. 154; his origin and character, 154; appointed governor to Drusus, 19; his great credit with Tiberius, 19; his arts to incense him against Agrippina and others, 46; marries his daughter to the son of Claudius, 125; this resented by the people, 125; his aspiring views, 125; a statue erected to him by the senate, 151; the partiality of Tiberius to him, 151; his mighty sway with Tiberius, 154; how ruinous to the state, 154; his designs against Drusus, 155; debauches his wife, 158; divorces his own, 156; at first recommends himself by good counsels, 150; studies to destroy the house of Germanicus, 162; his wicked artifices and instruments, 162; he continually instigates Tiberius against Agrippina, 162; his excessive power and infatuation, 166; he seeks Livia (the widow of Drusus) in marriage, 180; reply of Tiberius, 181; is alarmed, and urges the emperor to leave Rome, 182; his views in this, 183; he exposes his life for Tiberius, 195; hence the increase of his power, 195; sets himself to destroy the offspring of Germanicus, 195; no access to honours but through his favour, this purchased only by iniquity, 200; how he managed the prince's cruelty, 203; his great power and insolence, 205; his conspiracy and death, 209; his two children executed, and their bodies exposed, 210; his effects how disposed of, 213; all these under accusation of any attachment to him put to death, 224.
- Seleucia, the city of, by whom founded, i. 239; its government, and flattery to Tiridates, 239; it baffles the whole power of the Parthian monarchy for seven years together, 253.
- Semnones, their religious customs, ii. 331; their authority, 331.
- Senate, the Roman, discussion in, on the funeral of Augustus, i. 8; humiliating importunity to Tiberius, 12; its conduct in the affair of Libo, 72, 74; independence of Piso, 76; application of Hortalsus, 77; they meet the ashes of Germanicus, 109; their adulation, 142; they retain a shadow of their old jurisdiction, 144; why not sorry for the death of Drusus, 162; their fear and flattery, 205; their suppleness, 208; their sycophancy to Claudius, 275; they legitimate his marriage with his niece, 276; infamous flights of flattery upon the murder of Octavia, 296; their care to avert Nero's public shame, 445; but to no purpose, 445; more flattering acts to Nero, 449; decree tributary authority, and the name of Augustus, to Otho, ii. 34; are insulted by the soldiers, 103; and in suspense and terror at the death of Otho, 103; all turn their thoughts and obedience to Vitellius, 103; are frightened by Cæsus, a freedman of Nero, 104; decree all honours at once to Vitellius, 165; pronounce judgment on Cæcina, 158; decree to Vespasian all titles and prerogatives, 197; and the consulship, with Titus for his colleague, 197; also the prætorship and consular authority to Domitian, 197; award thanks to the generals, to the armies, and confederate kings, 224; appoint Plotius Griphus prætor in the room of Tertius Julianus, 224; devise an oath, by which they averrally appeal to the deities, that they had in no degree sought the damage or life of any person, 226; their abhorrence of accusers, 226.
- Senators not suffered to enter the house of an actor, i. 54; many of them fight upon the stage as gladiators, 415.
- Senators, poor, some relieved by Tiberius, i. 77; others expelled, or allowed to retire, 85.
- Seneca, Annæus, resailed from banishment, i. 277; his great abilities, 277; is appointed with Burrus to govern the youth of Nero, 314; his accomplishments, and fine genius, 314; composes speeches for Nero, 319; is reviled by Sullius, 340; his share in the death of Agrippina, 357; incurs popular censure, 357; is traduced to Nero by wicked counsellors, 385; their charge against him, and their flattery to Nero, 385; his speech to the emperor, 386; offers to resign all his wealth and power, and begs to retire, 386; avoids the court, 424; his constant danger and abstemious life, 424; his destruction sought by Nero, 424; his accusation, defence, and firmness

- of mind, 434; his great calmness when doomed to die, 435; is anxious for the lot of his wife, 435; his exhortations to her, 436; orders all his veins to be opened, but without effect, and utters excellent discourses, 436; swallows poison, but in vain, 437; is suffocated in a hot bath; his last words, and plain funeral, 437; a purpose among the conspirators of transferring the empire to him, 437.
- Senecio, Claudius, his intimacy with Nero, i. 319.
- Senecio, Tullius, a Roman knight, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426; is intimate with him, 426; informs against Anniius Pollio, 431; suffers death with resolution, 440.
- Sentius, Cneius, becomes governor of Syria, on the death of Germanicus, i. 100; defeats the attempts of Piso, 103.
- Septimius, a centurion, murder of, i. 24.
- Septimius, Portius, his character, ii. 138.
- Sequanians, the, ravaged by Caius Silius, i. 134; obtain a victory over the Lingones, ii. 246.
- Serapis, god of the Egyptians, sends a man to Vespasian to be cured of blindness, ii. 259; another to be cured of lameness, 260; history of this deity, according to the archpriests of Egypt, 260.
- Serenus, Annesus, cloaks Nero's passion for Acte, i. 390.
- Serenus, Caius Vibius, joins in the prosecution of Libo, i. 72; offends the emperor by his remonstrances on that occasion, 173; condemned and banished, 163; accused of treason by his son, 172; condemned to death, but his life spared by Tiberius, 173.
- Serenus, Vibius, the younger, threatened by the populace, flees from the city, but is brought back, i. 173; his false accusation against Fonteius Capito, 178.
- Servus, Quintus, governor of Comma-gena, i. 91; is accused, and condemned, 216; saves himself by accusing others, 216.
- Servilia, the daughter of Soranus, accused with him, i. 461; risks her own life to save his, 461; her affecting speech and behaviour in the senate, 462; is permitted to choose her own death, 463.
- Servilius accuses Mamercus Scaurus, i. 231; takes a bribe, and is banished, 231.
- Servilius, Marcus, consul, i. 232; his death and character, 265.
- Servitude, with peace, preferred to a perilous struggle for liberty, i. 3.
- Servius Galba. See Galba.
- Servius Tullius, commended for his laws, i. 322.
- Sestius, Caius, his complaint in the senate against turning the statues of the emperors into sanctuaries, i. 130; is consul, 232.
- Seyern, the river, i. 289.
- Severus preferred to pontifical honours, i. 119.
- Severus, Cæcina, his motion in the senate against the influence of women, i. 128.
- Severus, Titus Alledius, a Roman knight, his strange court to Agrippina, i. 276.
- Severus, Verulanus, commander of a legion sent to succour Tigranes, i. 397.
- Sextia, wife to Mamercus Scaurus, persuades her husband to die, and dies with him, i. 231.
- Sextia, mother-in-law to Lucius Vetus, accused, 448; kills herself, 449; is condemned after death, 449.
- Sextilia, mother to Vitellius, ii. 110; her good character, 110; her death, 179.
- Sextilius. See Felix.
- Sibylline books not suffered to be consulted, i. 53; they are suppressed by authority, and called in, 220.
- Sicily, privilege allowed the senators of that province, i. 284.
- Sido and Italicus, kings of the Suevians, join Vespasian's army, ii. 133, 149.
- Siege of Cremona, by Antonius, ii. 152; of the Old Camp, 211; of Magontiacum, 223; of Placentia, by Cæcina, 62.
- Sigimer, brother of Segestes, surrenders himself, with his son, to Stertinius, i. 49.
- Silana, the wife of Caius Silius, divorced to oblige Messalina, i. 255, 325; her character, 325; forms a plot against Agrippina, 325; is banished, 327; returns to Italy, and dies at Tarentum, 361.
- Silanus, Appius, charged with treason, i. 218.
- Silanus, Caius, proconsul of Asia, accused of robbing the public, i. 147; guilty, but hardly used, 148; and doomed to exile, 149.
- Silanus Creticus, governor of Syria, i. 58; removed by Tiberius, because of his friendship and affinity to Germanicus, 82.
- Silanus, Decius, banished under Augustus, i. 121; is restored under Tiberius, 121; but arrives at no preferment, 121.
- Silanus, Junius, consul, i. 200; is poisoned, by whom and why, 313; his innocence and great quality, 313.
- Silanus, Lucius, engaged to Octavia, the daughter of Claudius, i. 274; unjustly accused of incest, and degraded from the rank of a senator, 274; deprived of Octavia, and divested of his pretorship, 276; kills himself, 276.
- Silanus, Lucius, the younger, his emi-

- ment character, i. 447; accused by Nero, 447; is doomed to exile, 448; is murdered by a centurion and band of soldiers, 448; dies like a brave man, 448.
- Silanus, Marcus, his flattery of Tiberius, i. 142.
- Silanus, Torquatus, his accusation, and voluntary death, i. 416.
- Silia, why doomed to banishment, i. 455.
- Silius, Caius, commands under Germanicus in Upper Germany, i. 23; is distinguished with the ornaments of a triumph, 50; directs the building of a fleet, 60; invades the Cattians, 60; takes their prince, with his wife and daughter, 60; is despatched with an army against the Catti, 69; sends forces against the revolted Gauls, 133; the alacrity of his men, 134; his speech to them, 135; routs Sacrovir, 135; is arraigned, 166; the friendship of Germanicus fatal to him, 166; hurts himself by boasting his services, 166; kills himself before condemnation, 167; yet his estate confiscated, 167.
- Silius, Caius, the younger, consul elect, his speech against mercenary pleaders, i. 250; is obliged by Messalina to divorce Silana, his wife, 255; the danger of this amour, 255; his desperate intoxication, 265; he marries the emperor's wife, 266; his riot with Messalina, 268; is alarmed with the approach and menaces of Claudius, 268; is presented before the tribunal, 270; begs a despatch of his doom, 270; his accomplices executed, 270.
- Silures, a people of Britain, very fierce and hard to be reclaimed, i. 250; are defeated, 294; yet continue implacable, 294; are repulsed by Didius, 294.
- Silvanus, Granius, the tribune, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426; is pardoned, but falls by his own hands, 440.
- Silvanus, Plautius, the prætor, murders his wife, i. 169; and dies by opening his veins, 169.
- Silvanus, Poppæus, governor of Dalmatia, ii. 167.
- Simon, one of the governors of Jerusalem, ii. 275.
- Simplex, Cæcilius, appointed consul, ii. 108.
- Sinnaces, his great credit in Parthia, i. 236; supports Tiridates, 237.
- Sirpicus, a centurion so called, the cause of a quarrel between two legions, i. 19.
- Sisenna, a centurion, flees from the counterfeit Nero, ii. 74.
- Sitones, their situation and government, ii. 340.
- Slaves, a regulation concerning them, i. 333; their doom, where one of them killed his lord, 362.
- Smyna, the city of, claims a right to a sanctuary, i. 146; its claim not proved, 146; its antiquity, and early friendship to Rome, 192.
- Sofonius Tigellinus. See Tigellinus.
- Sohemus, king of Iturea, his death, i. 285.
- Sohemus created king of Sophene by Nero, i. 317; joins the party of Vespasian, ii. 121.
- Soldiers, those newly levied in Rome, debauch the rest, i. 24; their fury and excesses, 24; their barbarity to the centurions, 24; how stubborn in their sedition, 24; after a sedition they deliver up the authors to execution, 32; their behaviour to Galba, ii. 42; to Otho, 26; their terrible march into Rome, 29; they destroy many citizens, and murder Galba, 30; and Titus Vinius, 30; all things transacted by their will, 32; they insist upon being exempt from paying fees to their centurions, 33; advance Flavius Sabinus to the government of Rome, and choose their officers, 33; reflections on them, 37; some in Germany break in pieces the image of Galba, to whom just before they had sworn, 40; terrible instances of their fury, cruelty, and madness, 42, 45; they insist on destroying the Helvetians, who are saved by the eloquence of Claudius Coesius, 58; horrible instance of their rage, frenzy, and cruelty, 58; are calmed by a speech of Otho's, 60; those in Judæa, Syria, and Egypt, are uneasy that they have no share in the disposal of the empire, 72; they burn, plunder, and lay waste, without distinction, their own country, 77; their insolence to Annius Gallus, especially of those who had murdered Galba, 84; those of Vitellius let loose to spoil and ravage, 105; their outrageous behaviour at Ticinum, 112; great numbers of them discharged, 111; they magnify their service to Vitellius, 114; their behaviour in regard to Vespasian, 123; many cruel murders committed by them, 125; a great mortality among them, 129; they doom to death Titus Ampius Flavianus, 141; are kept from murdering him by Antonius Primus, 142; they then assail Aponius Saturninus, 142; those of Vitellius go over to Vespasian, 176; their insolence and baseness, 190; a cruel instance of their outrage to Gallus, 215; they murder Hordeonius Flaccus, 222; and are disappointed of murdering Vocula, by his escape, 222; put themselves again under the command of Vocula, 223; and again they take the oath to Vespasian, 223; new sedition, 230; quieted by Mucianus,

- 230; their bravery and fortitude in the Old Camp, 241; their destruction, 241; agitation at Novesium, 243; as they are led by Claudius Sanctus, a squadron of horse go off from him, and meeting Longinus they butcher him, 243.
- Solon, the Athenian lawgiver, i. 123.
- Soothsaying, edict of the senate respecting, i. 256.
- Sophene, region of, bestowed on Sohemus by Nero, i. 317.
- Soranus, Bareas, consul elect, his flattery to Pallas, i. 303; is destined to destruction by Nero, 455; his excellent government in Asia, and benevolent behaviour there, matter of jealousy and hate to Nero, 457; is accused, 461; imputations against him, 461; tenderness and generosity of his daughter Servilia, 461; his concern for her, 462; is permitted to choose his own death, 463.
- Sosianus, Antistius. See Antistius.
- Sosibius, tutor to Britannicus, his treacherous counsel to Claudius, i. 247; rewarded, 249.
- Spaniards allowed to build a temple to Augustus, i. 54; they are desirous to build one to Tiberius and his mother, 178; not allowed, 179.
- Spartacus never admitted to treat with the Romans, i. 151.
- Speech, freedom of, how insecure under Tiberius, i. 107.
- Speech of Tiberius, on the trial of Piso, i. 113; refusing divine honours, 179; of Germanicus, to his soldiers, 30; on his death-bed, 98; of Seneca to Nero, 387; Nero's reply, 388; of Galba to Piso, upon his adopting the latter, ii. 12; of Piso to the cohort upon duty, upon the first revolt of the army, 22; of Fabius Valens to Vitellius, 39; of Otho to the soldiers, 27, 60; and a remarkable one before his death, 99; of Mucianus to Vespasian, 116; and to the people of Antioch, 120; of Antonius to his army, 148; and to his soldiers at Carsule, 175; of the leading men of Rome to Sabinus, 177; of the followers of Vitellius to him, 178; of Helvidius Priscus in the senate, 199; of Eprius Marcellus there, 200; of Civilis to the Batavians, 215; a glorious one of Curtius Montanus in the senate, 227; of Vocula to Classicus and Tutor, 238; of Vocula to the soldiers, 239; of the ambassador of the Tenecrians to the Agrippian colony, 244; their answer, 245; of Civilis to the Tungrians, 246; of the soldiers of Cerealis, 251; of Cerealis to his army, 278; of Civilis to Cerealis, when the former submitted to the Romans, 285; of Calgacus to his army, 372; of Agricola to his army at the same time, 374.
- Spurinna, Vestricius, appointed commander by Otho, ii. 76; commands in Placentia, 80; he defends the place against Cæcina, 82; sends word of the siege being raised to Annus Gallus, 84; leaves Placentia and joins the army, 92.
- Stadius, Domitius, the tribune, feared by Nero, and bereft of his command, i. 441.
- Statues, those of the emperors, become the sanctuaries of profligates, i. 130.
- Stella, Arruntius, receives the submission of Sigimer, i. 49; appointed to direct public shows, 327.
- Stertinus routs the Bructeri, i. 42; takes vengeance on the Angrivari, 60; with Æmilius relieves the Batavians, beset with a host of Germans, 61.
- Strabo, Acilius, complaints of the Cyrenæans against, i. 365.
- Strabo, Seius, captain of the prætorian guards, i. 7.
- Stratoniceans, their claim to a sanctuary, whence, i. 145; what deity they worshipped, 145.
- Suardones, ii. 332.
- Suetonius, Caius, consul, i. 451.
- Suetonius, Paulinus, a general of renown, governor of Britain, i. 372; ii. 360; gains a great victory in Mona, i. 373; his vigour and strength of men, 374; he embattles his army, 375; harangues them, 376; gains a mighty victory, 377; his army recruited, 378; his devastations throughout Britain, 379; is maligned and misrepresented by Julius Classicianus, the procurator, 378; ordered to resign his command, 378.
- Suevia, the riches of that kingdom, i. 288.
- Suevians, at war with the Cheruscans, their country and customs, i. 83.
- Sullius, Cæsonius, an abandoned accuser, i. 271; he takes an immense reward, yet betrays the cause, 249; defends pleading for hire, 250; is arraigned, 341; his mischievous spirit and stubbornness, 341; inveighs against Seneca, 341; the many charges against him, and his impotent defence, 342; is convicted and banished, 342.
- Sullius, Marcus, consul, i. 285.
- Sullius, Publius, sells judgment for money, is convicted and banished, i. 174; proves afterwards a mischievous minister under Claudius, 248.
- Sulones, their situation and power, ii. 337; their ships, and manner of working them, 337; their government, 337.
- Sulpitius, Caius, consul, i. 133.
- Sulpitius, Camerinus, proconsul in

- Africa, accused of maladministration, and acquitted, i. 348.
- Sumptuary law, discussion on, in the senate, i. 74; remarks on, 139.
- Superstition, its force upon ignorant minds, i. 23.
- Sygambrians, the, subjected by Tiberius, i. 70; serve against the Thracians, 187.
- Sylla, the dictator, his domination not long, i. 2; his regulations, 124.
- Sylla, Cornelius, for his vices degraded from the senate, i. 85; mentioned in a plot, 327; his splendid descent and alliance, 327; falsely accused and banished to Marsilles, 345; suddenly murdered at Marsilles by order from Nero, 390; his head presented to the emperor, 391; degraded from the dignity of a senator after his death, 391.
- Sylla, Faustus, consul, i. 302.
- Sylla, Lucius, his contests with Domitius Corbulo, i. 127; he becomes consul, 221.
- Syracusans, a decree in their favour, i. 346.
- Syria, that province prays an abatement of taxes, 81; the legions there how much debauched, 335.
- TACPARTHAS raises war in Africa, i. 87; his progress and strength, 87; the revolt suppressed, 88; renews the war 119; his arrogant embassy to Tiberius 151; is distressed, pursued, and forced to retire, 152; his strength and stratagems, 169; his forces surprised and defeated, 171; he dies bravely, 171.
- Tacitus, his design in writing these Annals, what, i. 2; declares his impartiality, 2; laments the subject of his history as melancholy and confined, 175; is one of the quindecemviral priesthood under Domitian, 254; and prætor, 254; laments so many tragical deaths under Nero, and the passiveness of the Romans, 452; his advancement by Vespasian, by Titus, and by Domitian, and his design to write of Nerva and Trajan, ii. 2; his digressions on the state of affairs, 2, 93; and on the burning of the capitol, 184; during the consulship of Agricola, he is contracted to his daughter, 353; his account of Britain, 353; his reflections on the prudence and moderation of Agricola, 383; his relation of the death of Agricola, 388.
- Tanfana, a celebrated temple of the Germans, razed, i. 36.
- Tarquitius Priscus accuses Statilius Taurus, and is expelled from the senate, i. 307.
- Taurians, a barbarous people, slay some of the Romans, i. 282.
- Taurus, Sienens Stacilius, consul, i. 56.
- Taurus, Statilius, once governor of Rome, i. 220; he accusation and voluntary death, 306.
- Tax, that of the hundredth penny confirmed, i. 54.
- Taxes, regulations about gathering them, i. 347; the true measure of public taxes, 347.
- Tax-gatherers, complaints against them, i. 347; their power restrained, 347.
- Telesinus, Lucius, consul, l. 451.
- Temple, that of Venus at Paphos, its tradition and customs, ii. 69; that of Jerusalem described, 272.
- Tencherians, embassy of them, ii. 244; their territories, manners, customs, described, 222.
- Tenca, isle of, its claim to a right of sanctuary, i. 146.
- Terentius, Marcus, a Roman knight, accused for his friendship with Sejanus, i. 217; his bold defence, 217; is acquitted, and his accusers banished, 218.
- Tertius Julianus. See Julianus Tertius.
- Teutoburgium, the forest of, contained the bones of Varus and the legions there slain, i. 42; the monuments there described, as also the slaughter, 42; the bones buried by the army, 43.
- Thames, phantoms seen in its marshes, i. 373.
- Theatre at Rome, dissensions and bloodshed there, i. 53; the usual guard removed from thence, 328; and recalled, 329.
- Theatres, formerly erected occasionally, 366; Pompey founded the first permanent one, 366.
- Thebes, in Egypt, its mighty opulence of old, i. 93; obelisks and ancient characters there 93.
- Theophanes of Mitylene, l. 223.
- Thermus, Numicius, once prætor, his innocence and bloody doom, i. 455.
- Thrace, Roman interference in, i. 95, 97; commotions in, 131.
- Thracians, uneasy under the Roman government, and revolt, l. 131; are routed, 131; their fresh insurrection, 186; their defiance and warlike songs, 187; their misery and distress, 188; their despair and furious onset, 189; their defeat, 189.
- Thrasea, Pætus, opposes a decree of the senate, i. 346; invectives of his enemies against him, 346; his apology for his conduct, 347; he provokes the vengeance of Nero, 361; his speech about punishing Antianus the prætor, 383; his great influence in the senate, 384; his firmness and credit, 384; his speech upon the trial of Timarchus of

- Crete, 408; is warned of Nero's vengeance, 410; his undaunted spirit, 410; is destined to destruction by Nero, 455; forbid even to attend Tiridates' entry into Rome, 457; offers to vindicate himself, 457; his great spirit and free speech hateful to Nero, 458; reasonings of his friends for and against his repairing to the senate, and attempting a defence, 458; his advice to Arulenus Rusticus, 459; the senate beset with armed men upon his trial, 459; dismay of the senators, 461; his composed and noble behaviour, when apprised of his doom, 463; his conversation with the philosopher Demetrius, his concern for his friends, and advice to Arria his wife, 463; his veins opened, his magnanimity and noble discourse, 464.
- Thrasullus, the astrologer, l. 224; a signal proof of his skill, 224; he is dear to Tiberius, 225; his son foretold the empire to Nero, 226.
- Throsobor heads the rebellious peasants in Cilicia, l. 304; is put to death, 305.
- Thumelicus, a son of Arminius, l. 41.
- Tiberius, the Emperor, his history why falsified, l. 2; his favour and great command, 4; his dissimulation upon the murder of young Agrippa, 6; he would seem to decline the sovereignty, yet acts as sovereign, 7; affects to derive all his authority from the commonwealth, 7; his fear of Germanicus, 7; his resolution, and its causes, 8; his speech against assuming the sovereignty, 11; he is naturally obscure and distrustful, 11; is blamed at Rome for not going in person to quell the insurrection of the armies in Germany, 33; determines not to leave Rome, 33; yet feigns to go, 34; he repines at the glory of Germanicus, though glad of his success, 37; extols him in the senate in a style very pompous and insincere, 37; his temper and politics different from those of Augustus, 38; displeased at the proceedings of Germanicus, 43; affects self-denial, but gains no public esteem, 50; is exasperated by satirical verses, 50; his letter to the senate, 51; is assiduous in the tribunals of justice, 52; private justice promoted under him, but public liberty overthrown, 52; what virtue he long retained, 63; his austereness, 53; he suppresses all inquiries, human as well as divine, 53; his absence from popular entertainments, to what ascribed, 53; his policy in prolonging provincial governments, 55; not fond of eminent virtue, yet hated vice, 55; why pleased with the commotions in the East, 58; is proclaimed Imperator by the army, 66; urges Germanicus to return to Rome, 71; he discourages the restraint of luxury, 75; his prudence and moderation, 76; he helps some necessitous senators, 77; opposes the application of Hortalus to the senate for relief, 78; is suspected of evil purposes toward Germanicus, 81; studies to remove him far from Rome, and finds a pretence, 81; proposes to the senate to send him into the East, 82; encourages no wills in his own favour, but often rejects inheritances, 85; finishes and consecrates certain temples, 86; is consul for the third time, 88; his pacific policy, 95; his art and dissimulation, 96; he turns all things to his own glory, 105; lessens the price of grain, 106; refuses flattering titles, 106; appears not at the funeral of Germanicus, 109; checks the people by an edict, for their excessive grief for Germanicus, 110; his artful speech to the senate about the trial of Cretus Piso, 118; is proof against the temptation of money, 118; his strange subtlety and variations, 120; his fourth consulship, 126; his dark spirit and distrusts, 131; his firmness against popular reproaches, 134; his reasons to the senate for not repating to the war, 136; his affected moderation, his policy and rigour, 138; his letter to the senate about the cure of luxury, 139; desires the senate to confer upon his son Drusus the tribunitial power, 142; his modest character of Drusus, 142; restrains the honours decreed to Drusus, 144; censures extravagant flattery, 144; his exclamation against the servile spirit of the senate, 147; his rigour in the trial of Caius Silvanus, 148; yet moderates his punishment, 149; much affected with the arrogance of Tacfarinas, 151; instructs Blæsus how to seduce his followers, 152; grows more tyrannical, 154; reckons the death of Germanicus a blessing, 154; blind to the designs of Sejanus, 155; his reign moderate till the death of Drusus, 159; shows no concern for the death of his son, 159; his speech to the senate, 159; recommends to them the sons of Germanicus, 160; his admonition to the latter, 160; his hollow proposal to restore the commonwealth, 160; his speech about creating a priest of Jupiter, 165; encourages zeal for things divine, 165; cloaks his acts of tyranny under venerable names, 167; grows rapacious, 167; his vengeful and unforgetting spirit, 168; how long he retained his wrath, 173; he mitigates a severe motion, 173; is a shameless advocate for the accusers, 174; an

- instance of his mercy applauded by the public, 174; his discernment, yet a tyrant, 174; though usually wary and slow of speech, yet in pleading he spoke readily, 174; his wise reasoning against admitting divine honours, 179; variously construed, 180; his artful answer to Sejanus, 181; he praises and disappoints him, 182; what determined him to shun all assemblies of the Fathers, 183; grows more cruel, because charged with cruelty, 183; makes no answer to the suit of Agrippina, and why, 191; retires from Rome, 193; his pretence for this, 193; the true causes of his retirement, 194; his life threatened by an accident, 195; his bounty to such as had suffered by fire, 198; his statue unhurt by the flames, 198; shuts himself up in the isle of Capreae, 199; in what fear he pretends to live, 202; he protects the ministers of his cruelties from others, but sometimes crushes them himself, 202; is solicitous to hide his purposes, 203; his neglect of his mother in her sickness, 206; abridges the honours decreed to her, 207; grows a complete tyrant, 207; is animated by Sejanus, 208; his prodigious pollution and lewdness, 212; his agonies, and the horrors that haunted him, 215; the sadness of the times under him, 216; avoids returning to Rome, 221; he commands horrid massacre, 224; his extreme tyranny, 224; his presage concerning Galba, 224; is addicted to astrology, 224; avows his cruelty to his grandson, 226; knows how much he is hated, 232; is insatiable of blood, 237; approaches Rome, as it were to behold the many tragical executions there, 238; his bounty, 242; he is sparing in buildings, private and public, 242; various new honours decreed to him, 242; in settling the succession he is regardless of the public weal, 243; he wavers about it, 243; foretels the cruelty and bloody reign of Caligula, 243; is taken ill, but conceals his condition, and continues his voluptuousness, 243; ridicules physicians, 243; is near his end, yet feigns perfect health, 243; is seized with a deep swoon, but recovers, 246; is smothered by Macro, 246; his character, 247.
- Tigellinus, Sofonius, captain of the guards to Nero, polluted with every abomination, i. 385; his great sway with the emperor, whence, 386; his power grows more mighty, 389; he inflames the emperor's cruelty, and incites him to the murder of Sylla and Plautus, 389; urges Octavia's maids to accuse their lady of adultery, 392; his prodigious entertainment made for Nero on the lake of Agrippa, 417; the monstrous scenes of lewdness seen at it, 417; by forged crimes he labours the destruction of Penuus Rufus, 426; is minister of blood to Nero, 435; is distinguished with the ornaments of triumph, 441; suborns one of the slaves of Caius Petronius to accuse his master, 454; a summary of his life and wicked character, ii. 52; he is doomed to die, and kills himself, 52.
- Tigranes, king of Armenia, reigns not long, i. 58; is put to death under Tiberius, 239.
- Tigranes, the Cappadocian, created king of Armenia by Nero, i. 370; his nobility, education, and servile spirit, 370; he overruns the Adiabeniens, 396.
- Tigranocerta, surrendered to Corbulo, and spared by him, i. 369; its citadel forced to yield, 370; possessed by Tigranes, 370; its situation and strength, 370; well garrisoned and victualled, 370.
- Tigris, the river, i. 237, 279.
- Timarchus, Claudius, of Crete, his accusation and trial, i. 407.
- Tiridates destined by Tiberius to the crown of Parthia, i. 233; his progress and strength, 236; he passes the Euphrates, and takes possession of several cities, 239; the hopes conceived of him by the Parthians, 239; his ill conduct and miscarriage, 240; he is deserted, and retires into Syria, 241.
- Tiridates, brother to king Vologeses, gains the kingdom of Armenia, i. 301; speedily loses it, 301; his efforts to gain Armenia prove abortive, 337; he expostulates with Corbulo, 337; his fraudulent dealings and retreat, 337; his perplexity and distress, 339; his impotent assaults, 339; marches away, 339; is bereft of all hopes of Armenia, 370; his advice to Vologeses, 396; is crowned by his brother Vologeses, 397; meets Corbulo, 413; lays his diadem at the feet of the statue of Nero, 413; undertakes to sue for the same to the emperor in person, 413; gives his daughter as an hostage, and writes a suppliant letter to Nero, 414; arrives in Rome to receive from Nero the crown of Armenia, 457.
- Titianus, Salvius, brother to Otho, ii. 67; has the whole command committed to him, 85; advises to engage Cæcina and Valens, 91.
- Titus, son of Vespasian, promoted the author, ii. 1; is sent by his father to congratulate Galba, hears of his murder, and stops in Greece, 68; visits the tem-

- ple of Venus, at Paphos, 69; consults the oracle there, has an auspicious answer, and returns to his father, 70; is decreed colleague to his father in the consulship, 197; is left by his father to command the army, and to prosecute the war against the Jews, 234; his speech to his father at parting, 234; his winning behaviour to his soldiers, 264; his army described, 264; encamps near Jerusalem, 264; besieges the city, 274.
- Torquata, a vestal, her sanctity and interest, i. 149.
- Trade, duties upon, regulated, i. 347.
- Treason, how common a charge, i. 161; the bulwark of all accusations, 131; what minute and harmless things pass for it under Nero, such as looks, smiles, and accidents, 432.
- Trebellianus, Rufus, made administrator of Thrace during a minority there, i. 97.
- Trebellius, Lieutenant to Vitellius in Syria, overcomes the rebellious Clitæans, i. 239.
- Trebellius Maximus. See Maximus Trebellius.
- Treveri, insurrection of the, i. 133.
- Triaria, wife to Lucius Vitellius, her wicked character, ii. 109; an instance of her barbarity, 188.
- Tribunes, military, with consular authority, lasted not long, i. 2.
- Tribunes of the people, their jurisdiction restrained, i. 331.
- Tribunitial power, a title devised by Augustus, and why, i. 142.
- Trio, Fulcinus, an informer, i. 72; he accuses Libo Drusus, 72; arraigns Cneius Piso, 112; advice of Tiberius, 119; is consul, 211; his quarrel with Regulus, 212; he leaves a will full of invectives against Tiberius and his ministers, 237.
- Triumphal arch raised near the temple of Saturn for the victories of Germanicus, i. 80.
- Troxobor, a chief of the Clitæans, i. 304, 305.
- Tubero, Seius, commands the horse under Germanicus, i. 66.
- Tugurinus, Julius, a Roman knight, one of the conspirators against Nero, i. 426.
- Turonis, insurrection of the, i. 133.
- Turpilianus, Petronius, consul, i. 372; is governor of Britain, 378; his lifeless administration, 378; is distinguished with the ornaments of triumph, 441; put to death, ii. 5.
- Turranius, Caius, the intendant, i. 7.
- Tutor, Julius, the Treverian, his character, ii. 237; commands the Treverians, and shares the direction of the war with Classicus, 241; neglects to fortify the bank of the Rhine, 249; is routed by Cerealis, 250; advises to attack Cerealis instantly, 265; is defeated, 267.
- Tyrants, how miserable and insecure, i. 215; how readily forsaken by their servile adherents, 236.
- Tyrrenians, whence their name, i. 192.
- USURERS, calamity to the, i. 352.
- Urgulania, a friend of the empress Livia, i. 75; a suit against her prosecuted by Piso, 75; deference shown to her, 76; advises suicide to Plautius, her grandson, 169.
- Uspiti, memorable adventure of a cohort of them, ii. 370. See Tencterians.
- Uspes, city of, besieged, stormed, and its inhabitants put to the sword, i. 281.
- Usurers attacked by the accusers, i. 223.
- Usury, the laws against, i. 223; its excesses and evil consequences, with the expedients to remove them, 223.
- VALENS, Fabius, commander of a legion, his speech to Vitellius, ii. 89; revolts with the first legion, and salutes him emperor, 42; is suspected of taking a great sum for saving Vienne from being sacked, 48; his prodigality and venality, 48; sends letters to the prætorian bands, and city cohorts, 54; sends forces under Julius Classicus to defend the coast of Narbon Gaul against Otho's fleet, 78; a battle ensues, when the victory inclines most to Otho's side, 79; quells a mutiny and insurrection, 87; joins Cæcina, 89; derides him, yet to promote the same cause concurs with him, 89; is infamous for pillage and feats of rapine, 105; resides at Bononia, and there exhibits a combat of gladiators, 115; advances at the head of a huge host against Antonius Primus, 161; his scandalous behaviour, 161; embarks, and is well received by Marius Maturius, 162; is taken prisoner, 163; he is slain in prison, at Urbinum, 176; his character, 176.
- Valens, Manlius, commander of the Italic legion, ill used by Fabius Valens, ii. 46.
- Valentinus, Tullius, an ambassador of the Treverians, and promoter of the war, ii. 248; his harangue at Rheims, 248; is opposed by Julius Auspex, 248; his character, 249; joins Tutor, and they put to death Herennius and Numisius, commanders of legions, 250; their reasons for it, 250; is vanquished at Rigodulum, and taken by

- Cerealis, 251; his wonderful fortitude and intrepidity at his death, 263.
- Valerius Asiaticus. See Asiaticus. ●
- Valerius, Marcus, consul, l. 109.
- Valerius, Paulinus. See Paulinus.
- Vangio and Sido, joint kings of Suevia, at first beloved by their subjects, afterwards hated, l. 288.
- Vannius, king, a Quadian, l. 95; made king of the Suevians, l. 287; popular in the beginning of his reign, 287; he grows insolent with power, and provokes a conspiracy, 288; fights bravely, but is overthrown and flies, 288; is allowed a settlement by Claudius, 288.
- Vardanes, the son of Vologeses, seeks to dethrone his father, l. 317.
- Varia, Apuleia, charged with opprobrious words against Augustus, Tiberius, and his mother, and with adultery, l. 86; is banished from Rome, 86.
- Varini, ii. 333.
- Varro, Cingonius, his severe motion against freedmen, l. 382; consul elect, slain by Galba, as an accomplice in the conspiracy of Nymphidius, iii. 6.
- Varro, Vibidius, for his vices degraded from the senate, l. 85.
- Varro, Visellius, governor of Lower Germany, l. 133; he sends forces against Sacrovir, is consul, the tool of Sejanus, 167.
- Varus, Alphenus, routs a body of gladiators, and attacks the forces of Otho in flank, ii. 97; is appointed commander by Vitellius, 171; abandons the army, 176.
- Varus, Arrius, his character, ii. 138; accompanies Antonius Primus, 138; is appointed at Rome commander of the pretorian guards, 195; and pretor, 198; is displaced by Mucianus, and set over the public grain, 247.
- Varus, Quintilius, the emperor's kinsman, accused, l. 198; his trial postponed by the senate, 199.
- Varus, Quintilius, l. 4; scene of the defeat of, 43; Germanicus buries the dead, 43.
- Vasaces, general of horse to Vologeses, his conference and stipulations with Cæcennius Pætus, l. 404.
- Vatinus, a favourite of Nero, an upstart buffoon, and wicked instrument, l. 415; presents Nero with a combat of gladiators at Beneventum, 415.
- Veleno, Fabricina, his invectives against the senate, l. 384; is convicted of selling the emperor's favours, and banished, 384.
- Veluda, a German virgin and prophetess, ii. 242; is treated as a deity, 245.
- Velleius, Publius, routs the Thracians, l. 132.
- Venedi, ii. 340.
- Venusius, a British general, l. 295.
- Verania, wife to Lucianus Piso, buries him, ii. 34.
- Veranius, Quintus, governor of Cappadocia, lessens the public taxes, l. 90; prepares a charge against Piso and Plancina, l. 100; accuses Piso for the death of Germanicus, 112; is preferred to pontifical honours, 119; governor of Britain, ii. 360; his death and great reputation, l. 372; the servile strain of his last will, 372.
- Verginius, slow in declaring for Galba, ii. 7; is applied to by the soldiery to accept of the sovereignty, 103; refuses it, 103; is with much difficulty saved from the fury of the soldiery by Vitellius, 112.
- Verginius, the rhetorician, banished for his great fame by Nero, l. 441.
- Verona, city of, possessed by Antonius Primus, ii. 139.
- Verritus and Malorix, heads of the Frisians, go with a petition to Rome, l. 349; their behaviour in the theatre there, 349; are created Roman citizens, but their petition rejected, 349.
- Vesulamium, the slaughter there, l. 375.
- Vesularius, Flaccus, a Roman knight, his part in the ruin of Libo Drusus, l. 71; is by Tiberius doomed to die, 218.
- Vespasian, his frugality, its effect, l. 141; his life in danger for having killed whilst Nero acted, 446; serves in Britain, ii. 369; commands the army against the Jews, 8; his great character as a general, 70; agrees with Mucianus by means of Titus, 73; deliberates on the business of war and arms, 115; is encouraged by the speech of Mucianus, and the propitious answers of oracles, and determines to strive for the empire, 119; is acknowledged emperor, and has allegiance first sworn to him at Alexandria, 119; all the forces in the East, with the provinces, swear allegiance to him, 121; establishes a council, 121; and promotes many deserving men, 121; invites all to join him who were discharged by Vitellius, 122; several legions revolt to him, 123; despatches are sent to Britain, Spain, and Gaul, 125; his forces, led by Antonius Primus, arrive in Italy, 134; they obtain a victory at Bedriacum, 145; and at Cremona, 149; is informed of the battle of Cremona, and hastes to Alexandria, 166; his scheme for distressing the enemy, 166; his sovereignty confirmed by the senate, 197; commences consul a second time, 223; receives news of the victory at Cremona, and fate of Vitellius, 234; ambassadors from Vologeses offer to assist him with forty thousand Parthian horse, 234; hears the reports of Domitian, and commits to Titus the

- army for subduing the Jews, 234; their discourse at parting, 234; he arrives at Rome, and gives orders for restoring the capitol, 235; said to work many miracles, 259.
- Vestals went to attend the tribunals, when their evidence was required there, i. 76.
- Vestilius, Sextus, accused by Tiberius, though lately his friend, i. 218; he dies by his own hand, 218.
- Vestinus, Atticus, consul, i. 425; is not concerned in the conspiracy against Nero, 428; not trusted by the conspirators, 439; intimate with Nero, and scorns his vile spirit, 439; a great guard sent against him, with his quick and manly death, 439.
- Vestinus, Lucius, the restoring of the capitol committed to his care, ii. 235.
- Vetricius. See Spurius.
- Veterans, concessions made to them during their mutiny cancelled, i. 54.
- Vettius Bolanus. See Bolanus.
- Vettonianus, Funisulanus, commander of a legion under Cæsenius Pætus in the East, i. 400.
- Vetus, Antistius, a principal nobleman of Macedonia, accused, and condemned to exile, i. 131.
- Vetus, Lucius, commander in Germany, makes a canal between the rivers Arar and Moselle, i. 348; the prosecution of the work marred by the envy of Ælius Gracilis, lieutenant of Belgic Gaul, 348; his destruction sought by Nero, 448; dies by his own hands, 449; condemned after his death, 459.
- Vibidia, the chief vestal, intercedes for Messalina, i. 268.
- Vibilius, captain of the Hermundurians, i. 94, 287.
- Vibius Caius supports the charge against Libo Drusus, i. 72.
- Vibius, Secundus, a Roman knight, condemned to exile for public rapine, i. 372.
- Vibius, Serenus, the younger, accuses his father of treason, i. 172; is threatened by the populace with the pains of paricide, flees, but is forced to return, 173.
- Vibulenus, his speech to the mutinous soldiers, i. 18; executed by the command of Drusus, 22.
- Vibullius, the pretor, his judgment confirmed by the senate, i. 331.
- Viniccius, Marcus, marries Julia, granddaughter to Tiberius, i. 221; his character and descent, 221.
- Vinius, Titus, colleague in the consulship with Galba, ii. 134; is minister to Galba, 5; his character, 5; the more powerful he grows, the more detestable he is, 10; shares the sovereignty with Cornelius Laco, 10; is in the interest of Otho, 10; his advice to Galba, 24; is opposed by Laco, 25; is killed by Julius Carus, 30; his head carried on a pole round the camp, 31; is buried by his daughter Crispina, 34.
- Vipsania, formerly wife of Tiberius, married to Asinius Gallus, i. 12; her death, 119.
- Vipsanius, Lenas, condemned, i. 332.
- Vipsanius, Lucius, consul, i. 242.
- Vipstanus, Caius, consul, i. 353.
- Vistilia, a lady of great quality, publishes herself a prostitute, i. 106; banished, 106.
- Vitellia, her firmness, i. 137.
- Vitellius, Aulus, consul, i. 262; sent by Galba to command in the Lower Germany, ii. 7; above a hundred and twenty distinct memorials of the murderers of Galba fall into his hands, all claiming rewards, 32; he causes the authors to be put to the sword, 32; tidings of him put the people of Rome under the greatest consternation, 36; rise and cause of the commotion and revolt begun by him, 37; a short character of him, 38; gratifies the cruel revenge of his soldiers, 42; dooms to destruction four centurions, for adhering to their duty, 43; many forces join him, 43; his stupidity and slothfulness, 45; sends letters to Otho, treats him absurdly, and abuses him, 53; attempts the death of Otho, 54; writes to Otho's brother with menaces, 54; some of his forces in Narbon Gaul worsted by Otho's, 78; his forces under Cæcina repulsed at Placentia, 82; they are routed, and forced to fly at Castorum, 85; which loss rather reforms than dismays them, 87; is joined by Valens, 89; his army under Cæcina and Valens obtain a victory near Bedriacum, 96; the senate and people swear allegiance to him, 105; all honours decreed him, 105; his army let themselves loose to spoil and ravage, nor dared their general to restrain them, 105; receives intelligence of the victory at Bedriacum, and of the death of Otho, 105; dignifies his freedman Asiaticus with knighthood, 106; he takes no notice of the murder of several great men, nor makes inquiry into any affairs, 106; celebrates the praises of Valens and Cæcina, 107; orders his son to be brought, and names him Germanicus, 107; he puts to death all the centurions who had been faithful to Otho, 107; hardly admits Paulinus and Proculus to trial, but pardons them, 107; punishes Hilaricus for falsely accusing Clivius, 110; discharges the prætorian cohorts, 111; with difficulty saves Verginius from the soldiery, 112; views the field of battle near Bedriacum without any sign of remorse, 114; his

- train of followers described, 114; his partiality in the disposal of the consulship, 114; upon news that the eastern provinces had sworn to him, he becomes abandoned to all the excesses of cruelty, lust, and rapine, 116; grows daily more stupid and slothful, 125; his followers described, 125; cities consumed to furnish him provisions, 125; his entry into Rome described, and his public speech, 127; all the functions of sovereignty administered by Cæcina and Valens, 128; they both dread and despise Vitellius, 128; he humours the common soldiers, and by that means ruins his army, 130; solemnizes the obsequies of Nero, 130; his prodigality, 131; hears of the first revolt, 131; sends for succours, 131; the remissness of his commanders, 131; he orders Cæcina and Valens to take the field, 133; resigns himself to voluptuousness, 158; upon receiving news of the revolt of the fleet and of Cæcina, he puts Sabinius in chains, 158; murders Blesus, 159; feigns that all his proceedings prosper, and murders those who contradict it, 170; orders an army to secure the passes of the Apennine, 171; himself, accompanied by a vast number of senators, arrives at the camp, 171; his irresolute behaviour there, 171; returns to Rome, 172; sends his brother Lucius Vitellius to quell the insurrection in Campania, 173; wants to assume the title of Cæsar, is ashamed, terrified, and forsaken, 174; his troops desert and go over to Vespasian, 176; he is deaf to all magnanimous counsels, 179; his abject demeanour, 179; he raises pity and compassion in all, and offers to abdicate, 180; but he is not permitted, 181; attempts to escape from Rome, 193; his tragical death, 194; his character, 194.
- Vitellius, Lucius, father of the emperor, consul, i. 229; is set over the East by Tiberius, 233; his variable character, a good governor, a slavish flatterer, 233; his management of the Parthians, 235; his advice to Tiridates, 236; he is the tool of Messalina, 248; his great hypocrisy and falsehood, 248; his silence and reserve, 269; engages in the counsels of Agrippina, 274; falsely accuses Lucius Silanus, 274; his servile spirit, 274; he prostitutes the office of censor, 274; brings the senate to legitimate the marriage of Claudius with his niece to Agrippina, 275; is accused, but protected by Agrippina, and his accuser banished, 297; his spirit slavish and insolent, 384.
- Vitellius, Lucius, brother of the emperor, follows undistinguished in the train of Otho, ii. 65; presents himself to the senate to be flattered, 104; proposes judgment against Cæcina for his revolt, accuses Blesus, is appointed to take care of the city, 171; storms and takes Terracina, 187; his infamous spirit, 188; delivers himself up to Vespasian's party, 196; is put to death, 198; his character, 198.
- Vitellius, Publius, his dangerous march, i. 48; collects the tribute in Gaul, 59; a friend of Germanicus, 100; his speech against Piso, 114; receives pontifical honours, 119; his death, 210.
- Vitellius, Quintus, for his vices degraded from the senate, i. 86.
- Vitia, an aged woman, executed for bewailing the death of her son, i. 218.
- Vocula, Dillius, commander of the eighteenth legion, sent to raise the siege of the Old Camp, ii. 218; a signal instance of his intrepidity and courage, whence he obtains the command in chief, 214; is surprised by the enemy in the camp at Gelduba, 219; is blamed, 220; engages Civilis, and routs him, but makes no pursuit, 220; thence suspected of intention to prolong the war, 221; obtains a victory, and narrowly escapes being murdered by his own soldiers, 222; in distress he is obliged to use dissimulation with the enemy, 238; his speech to Classicus and Tutor, 238; he returns to Novesium, 239; speech to the soldiers, 239; is restrained by his own slaves from putting a period to his life, 240; is murdered by Emilius Longinus at the command of Classicus, 241.
- Volcatius, Moschus, dies in exile at Marseilles, and to that city leaves his estate, i. 184.
- Vologeses, king of Parthia, i. 280; he seizes Armenia for his brother Tiridates, 301; loses it again, 301; meditates fresh war against Armenia, 308; is animated by Monobazus, governor of the Adiabeniens, and by his own brother Tiridates, 308; his speech to his council, 397; crowns Tiridates, and commands his general Moneses to drive Tigranes from Armenia, 397; intends to head a great army against the Romans, 397; is afraid of the Romans, his many disappointments and misfortunes, 398; his answer to Corbulo, 399; his ambassadors to Nero unsuccessful, 400; advances against Armenia with a great host, 401; overthrows the forces of Pætus, 402; besieges him in his camp, 403; his answer to Pætus, 404; takes possession of the Roman fortresses and stores, 405; raises a pompous trophy, 405; his message to Corbulo, and the answer of the latter, 406; sends other ambassadors to

- Rome, 410; his letters and offers, 410; the ambassadors dismissed with presents, but without success, 411; demands a truce, 412; his tenderness for the honour of Tiridates his brother, and request to Corbulo on his behalf, 414.
- Volusius, Lucius, his death, preferments and character, i. 126, 332.
- Volusius, Quintus, consul, i. 328; is appointed to assess the Gauls, 382.
- Vonones, king of Parthia, his unpopularity and expulsion, i. 57; he finds a retreat and a crown in Armenia, 58; but is forced to relinquish it, 58; he is held a captive by the Romans, 53; is removed to Pompeiopolis, in Cilicia, 91; his great court and presents to Plan- cina, 92; he escapes, is taken and slain, 95.
- Vonones, governor of Media, created king of Parthia, i. 281; his short reign, 281.
- WAHAL, a branch of the Rhine, i. 59.
- Wives, those of provincial magistrates generally sharers in the guilt of their husbands, i. 128; apt to meddle in affairs, and to be corrupted in the absence of their husbands, 129.
- Women, British, their frantic behaviour in their armies, i. 372; the German, ii. 308.
- Women, laws against the licentiousness of, i. 106; their counsel the worst, 430.
- Writers, their punishment gains credit to their writings, i. 178.
- Writings, obnoxious and forbidden, are eagerly read, i. 384; otherwise neglected, 384.
- XENOPHON, physician to Claudius, his credit, i. 308; helps to poison his master, 312.
- ZEAL, popular, too mighty for magistracy and laws, i. 144.
- Zeno of Pontus, made king of Armenia by Germanicus, i. 90.
- Zenobia, wife to Rhadamistus, wounded by her husband and thrown into the river Araxes, i. 302; saved by some shepherds, and entertained by Tiridates, 302.
- Zorsines, king of the Siracians, i. 281; assists Mithridates of Bosphorus, 282; deserts him, and submits to the Romans, 282.

LONDON:

R. CLAY, PRINTER, BREAD STREET HILL.

BOHN'S CLASSICAL LIBRARY.

A SERIES OF LITERAL PROSE TRANSLATIONS OF THE GREEK AND LATIN CLASSICS, WITH NOTES AND INDEXES.

Uniform with the STANDARD LIBRARY, 6s. each (except Thucydides, Æschylus, Virgil, Horace, Cicero's Offices, Demosthenes, Appendix to Æschylus, Aristotle's Organon, all of which are 3s. 6d. each volume).

1. HERODOTUS. By the REV. HENRY CARY, M.A. Frontispiece.
- 2 & 3. THUCYDIDES. By the REV. H. DALE. In 2 Vols. (3s. 6d. each). Frontispiece.
4. PLATO. Vol. I. By CARY. [The Apology of Socrates, Crito, Phædo, Gorgias, Protagoras, Phædrus, Theætetus, Euthyphron, Lysis.] Frontispiece.
5. LIVY'S HISTORY OF ROME, literally translated. Vol. I., Books 1 to 8.
6. PLATO. Vol. II. By DAVIS. [The Republic, Timæus, and Critias.]
7. LIVY'S HISTORY OF ROME. Vol. II., Books 9 to 26.
8. SOPHOCLES. The Oxford Translation, revised.
9. ÆSCHYLUS, literally translated. By an OXONIAN. (Price 3s. 6d.)
- 9* ——— Appendix to, containing the new readings given in Hermann's posthumous edition of Æschylus, translated and edited by G. BURGESS, M.A. (3s. 6d.)
10. ARISTOTLE'S RHETORIC AND POETIC. With Examination Questions.
11. LIVY'S HISTORY OF ROME. Vol. III., Books 27 to 36.
- 12 & 14. EURIPIDES, literally translated. From the Text of Dindorf. In 2 Vols.
13. VIRGIL. By DAVIDSON. New Edition, Revised. (Price 3s. 6d.) Frontispiece.
15. HORACE. By SMART. New Edition, Revised. (Price 3s. 6d.) Frontispiece.
16. ARISTOTLE'S ETHICS. By PROF. R. W. BROWNE, of King's College.
17. CICERO'S OFFICES. [Old Age, Friendship, Scipio's Dream, Paradoxes, &c.]
18. PLATO. Vol. III. By G. BURGESS, M.A. [Euthydemus, Symposium, Sophistes, Politicus, Laches, Parmenides, Cratylus, and Meno.]
19. LIVY'S HISTORY OF ROME. Vol. IV. (which completes the work).
20. CÆSAR AND HIRTIUS. With Index.
21. HOMER'S ILIAD, in prose, literally translated. Frontispiece.
22. HOMER'S ODYSSEY, HYMNS, EPIGRAMS, AND BATTLE OF THE FROGS AND MICR.
23. PLATO. Vol. IV. By G. BURGESS, M.A. [Philebus, Charmides, Laches, The Two Alcibiades, and Ten other Dialogues.]
- 24, 25, & 32. OVID. By H. T. RILEY, B.A. Complete in 3 Vols. Frontispiece.
26. LUCRETIUS. By the REV. J. S. WATSON. With the Metrical Version of J. M. GOOD.
- 27, 30, 31, & 34. CICERO'S ORATIONS. By C. D. YONGE. Complete in 4 Vols. (Vol. 4 contains also the Rhetorical Pieces.)
28. PINDAR. By DAWSON W. TURNER. With the Metrical Version of MOORE. Front.
29. PLATO. Vol. V. By G. BURGESS, M.A. [The Laws.]
- 33 & 36. THE COMEDIES OF PLAUTUS, By H. T. RILEY, B.A. In 2 Vols.
35. JUVENAL, PERSIUS, &c. By the REV. L. EVANS, M.A. With the Metrical Version of GIFFORD. Frontispiece.
37. THE GREEK ANTHOLOGY, translated chiefly by G. BURGESS, A.M., with Metrical Versions by various Authors.
38. DEMOSTHENES. The Olynthiac, Philippic, and other Public Orations, with Notes, Appendices, &c., by C. RANN KENNEDY. (3s. 6d.)

BOHN'S CLASSICAL LIBRARY.

30. SALLUST, FLORUS, and VELLEIUS PATERCULUS, with copious Notes, Biographical Notices, and Index, by the Rev. J. S. WATSON, M.A.
40. LUCAN'S PHARSALIA, with copious Notes, by H. T. RILEY, B.A.
41. THEOCRITUS, BION, MOSCHUS and TYRTÆUS, by the Rev. J. BARKES, M.A. With the Metrical Versions of CHAPMAN. Frontispiece.
42. CICERO'S ACADEMICS, DE FINIBUS and TUSCULAN QUESTIONS, by C. D. YONGE, B.A. With Sketch of the Greek Philosophy.
43. ARISTOTLE'S POLITICS AND ECONOMICS, by E. WALFORD, M.A., with Notes, Analyses, Life, Introduction, and Index.
44. DIOGENES LAERTIUS. LIVES AND OPINIONS OF THE ANCIENT PHILOSOPHERS, with Notes by C. D. YONGE, B.A.
45. TERENCE and PHÆDRUS, by R. T. RILEY. To which is added SMART'S Metrical Version of Phædrus. Frontispiece.
- 46 & 47. ARISTOTLE'S ORGANON, or, Logical Treatises, and the Introduction of Porphyry, with Notes, Analysis, Introduction and Index, by the Rev. O. F. OWEN, M.A. 2 Vols., 8s. 6d. per Vol.
- 48 & 49. ARISTOPHANES, with Notes and Extracts from the best Metrical Versions, by W. J. HICKIE, in 2 Vols. Frontispiece.
50. CICERO ON THE NATURE OF THE GODS, DIVINATION, FATE, LAWS, REPUBLIC, &c., translated by C. D. YONGE, B.A.
51. APULEIUS. [The Golden Ass, Death of Socrates, Florida, and Defence or Discourse on Magic]. To which is added a Metrical Version of Cupid and Psyche; and Mrs. Tighe's Psyche. Frontispiece.
52. JUSTIN CORNELIUS NEPOS and EUTROPIUS, with Notes and a General Index, by the Rev. J. S. WATSON, M.A.
- 53 & 56. TACITUS. Vol. I. The Annals. Vol. II. The History, Germania, Agricola, &c. With Index.
54. PLATO Vol VI., completing the work, and containing Epinomis, Ariochus, Eryxias, on Virtue, on Justice, Sisyphus, Demodocus, and Definitions; the Treatise of Timæus Loerus on the Soul of the World and Nature; the Lives of Plato by Diogenes Laertius, Mevichius, and Olympiodorus; and the Introductions to his Doctrines by Aleinous and Albinius; Apuleius on the Doctrines of Plato, and Remarks on Plato's Writings by the Poet Gray. Edited, with Notes, by G. BURGE, M.A., Trin. Coll., Camb. With general Index to the 6 Volumes.
- 55, 56, 57. ATHENÆUS. The Deipnosophists, or the Banquet of the Learned, translated by C. D. YONGE, B.A., with an Appendix of Poetical Fragments rendered into English verse by various Authors, and a general Index. Complete in 3 Vols.
59. CATULLUS, TIBULLUS, and the VIGIL OF VENUS. A literal prose translation. To which are added Metrical Versions by LAMB, GRAINGER, and others. Frontispiece.
60. PROPERTIUS, PETRONIUS ARBITER and JOHANNES SEKUNDUS, literally translated, and accompanied by Poetical Versions, from various sources; to which are added the Love Epistles of ARISTÆNETUS. Edited by W. K. KELLY.
61. THE GEOGRAPHY OF STRABO, translated, with copious Notes, by W. FALCONER, M.A., and H. C. HAMILTON, Esq. In 3 Vols. Vol. I
62. XENOPHON'S ANABASIS, or Expedition of Cyrus, and MEMORABILIA, or Memoirs of Socrates, translated by the Rev. J. S. WATSON, with a Geographical Commentary by W. F. ALNSWORTH. Frontispiece.
63. ——— CYROPEDIA and HELLENICA, by the Rev. H. DALZ, and the Rev. J. S. WATSON.

BOHN'S CLASSICAL LIBRARY.

- 64, 67, 69, 72, & 78. PLINY'S NATURAL HISTORY, with copious Notes, by Dr. BOSTOCK and T. H. RILEY, in 6 volumes. Volumes I, II, III, IV, and V.
65. SUETONIUS. Lives of the Cæsars, and other Works. THOMSON'S Translation, revised by T. FORSTER.
66. DEMOSTHENES ON THE CROWN, AND ON THE EMBASSY, by C. RANN KENNEDY.
68. CICERO ON ORATORY AND ORATORS, by the Rev. J. S. WATSON, M.A. * * This volume completes the Classical Library edition of Cicero.
70. GREEK ROMANCES. Heliodorus, Longus, and Achilles Tatius.
- 71 & 76. QUINTILIAN'S INSTITUTES OF ORATORY. By the Rev. J. S. WATSON, M.A. Complete, with Notes, Index, and Biographical Notice. 2 volumes.
73. HESIOD, CALLIMACHUS, AND THEOGNIS, in Prose, by BASKS, with the Metrical Versions of ELTON, TYTLER, and FREER.
74. THE GEOGRAPHY OF STRABO. Translated by FALCONER. Vol. 2.
75. DICTIONARY OF LATIN QUOTATIONS, including Proverbs, Maxims, Mottoes, Law Terms and Phrases; with a Collection of above 500 GREEK QUOTATIONS.
77. DEMOSTHENES AGAINST LEPTINES, MIDIAS, ANDROTION, AND ARISTOCRATES. By CHARLES RANN KENNEDY.

BOHN'S ANTIQUARIAN LIBRARY.

Uniform with the STANDARD LIBRARY, price 6s.

1. BEDE'S ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY, & THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE.
2. MALLET'S NORTHERN ANTIQUITIES. By BISHOP PERCY. With Abstract of the Erbyggia Saga, by SIR WALTER SCOTT. Edited by J. A. BLACKWELL.
3. WILLIAM OF MALMESBURY'S CHRONICLE OF THE KINGS OF ENGLAND.
4. SIX OLD ENGLISH CHRONICLES: viz., Asser's Life of Alfred; the Chronicles of Ethelwerd, Gildas, Nennius, Geoffry of Monmouth, and Richard of Cirencester.
5. ELLIS'S EARLY ENGLISH METRICAL ROMANCES. Revised by J. ORCHARD HALLIWELL. Complete in one vol., Illuminated Frontispiece.
6. CHRONICLES OF THE CRUSADERS: Richard of Devizes, Geoffry de Vinsauf, Lord de Joinville. Complete in 1 volume. Frontispiece.
7. EARLY TRAVELS IN PALESTINE. Willibald, Sæwulf, Benjamin of Tudela, Mandeville, La Brocquiere, and Maundrell. In one volume. With Map.
- 8, 10, & 12. BRAND'S POPULAR ANTIQUITIES OF GREAT BRITAIN. By SIR HENRY ELLIS. In 3 Vols.
- 9 & 11. ROGER OF WENDOVER'S FLOWERS OF HISTORY (formerly ascribed to Matthew Paris.) In 2 Vols.
13. KEIGHTLEY'S FAIRY MYTHOLOGY. Enlarged. Frontispiece by CRUIKSHANK.
- 14, 15, & 16. SIR THOMAS BROWNE'S WORKS. Edited by SIMON WILKIN. Portrait. In 3 Vols. With Index.
- 17, 19, & 31. MATTHEW PARIS'S CHRONICLE, containing the History of England from 1235, translated by DR. GILES, with Index to the whole, including the portion published under the name of ROGER OF WENDOVER, in 3 Vols. (See 9 & 11). Portrait.
18. YULE-TIDE STORIES. A collection of Scandinavian Tales and Traditions, edited by B. THORPE, Esq.
- 20 & 23. ROGER DE HOVEDEN'S ANNALS OF ENGLISH HISTORY, from A.D. 753 to A.D. 1201. Translated and edited by H. T. RILEY, Esq., B.A. In 2 Vols.
21. HENRY OF HUNTINGDON'S HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH, from the Roman Invasion to Henry II.; with The Acts of King Stephen, &c. Translated and edited by T. FORSTER, Esq., M.A.

BOHN'S ANTIQUARIAN LIBRARY.

22. PAUL'S LIFE OF ALFRED THE GREAT. To which is appended ALFRED'S ANGLO-SAXON VERSION OF OROSIUS, with a literal translation. Notes, and an Anglo-Saxon Grammar and Glossary, by B. THORPE, Esq.
- 24 & 25. MATTHEW OF WESTMINSTER'S FLOWERS OF HISTORY, especially such as relate to the affairs of Britain, from the beginning of the world to A.D. 1307. Translated by C. D. YONGE, B.A. In 2 Vols.
26. LEPSIUS'S LETTERS FROM EGYPT, ETHIOPIA, and the PENINSULA OF SINAI. Revised by the Author. Translated by LEONORA and JOHANNA B. HORNEM. With Maps and Coloured View of Mount Barkul.
- 27, 28, 30 & 36. ORDERICUS VITALIS. His Ecclesiastical History of England and Normandy, translated, with Notes, the Introduction of Guizot, Critical Notices by M. Deille, and very copious Index, by T. FORSTER, M.A. In 4 Vols.
29. INGULPH'S CHRONICLE OF THE ABBEY OF CROYLAND, with the Continuations by Peter of Blois and other Writers. Translated, with Notes and an Index, by H. T. RILEY, B.A.
32. LAMB'S SPECIMENS OF ENGLISH DRAMATIC POETS of the time of Elizabeth; including his Selections from the Garrick Plays.
33. MARCO POLO'S TRAVELS, the translation of Maradon, edited, with Notes and Introduction, by T. WRIGHT, M.A., F.S.A., &c.
34. FLORENCE OF WORCESTER'S CHRONICLE, with the Two Continuations; comprising Annals of English History, from the Departure of the Romans to the Reign of Edward I. Translated, with Notes, by T. FORESTER, Esq.
35. HAND-BOOK OF PROVERBS, comprising the whole of Ray's Collection, and a complete Alphabetical Index, in which are introduced large Additions collected by HENRY G. BOHN.
36. ORDERICUS VITALIS. Vol. 4. (See 37).

BOHN'S PHILOLOGICO-PHILOSOPHICAL LIBRARY.

Uniform with the STANDARD LIBRARY, price 6s. per Volume.

1. TENNEMANN'S MANUAL of the HISTORY of PHILOSOPHY, revised and continued by J. R. MORRILL.
2. ANALYSIS and SUMMARY of HERODOTUS, with synchronistical Table of Events, Tables of Weights, Money, &c.
3. TURNER'S (DAWSON W.) NOTES TO HERODOTUS, for the use of Students. With Map, Appendices, and Index.
4. LOGIC, or the SCIENCE OF INFERENCE, a popular Manual, by J. DEWEY.
5. KANT'S CRITIQUE OF PURE REASON, translated by MEIKLEJOHN.
6. ANALYSIS and SUMMARY OF THUCYDIDES, by T. WHEELER. New Edition, with the addition of a complete Index.

BOHN'S BRITISH CLASSIC SERIES.

Uniform with the STANDARD LIBRARY, price 5s. per Volume.

- 1, 3, 5, 8, 11 & 14. GIBBON'S ROMAN EMPIRE (with a Memoir of the Emperor) Unabridged, with various Notes, including, in addition to a GLOSSARY OF TERMS, those of Guizot, Wenck, Niebuhr, Hugo, Neander, and one of the Eminent Scholars. Edited by an ENGLISH CHURCHMAN, with Portrait and Engravings on Steel.
- 2, 4, & 6. ADDISON'S WORKS, with the Notes of BISHOP HURD. With Portrait and Engravings on Steel.
7. DEFOE'S WORKS, Edited by SIR WALTER SCOTT. Vol. 1. Containing the Life, Adventure, and Piracies of Captain Singleton, and the Life of Colonel Jack. Portrait of Defoe.
9. DEFOE'S WORKS, Vol. 2. Containing Memoirs of a Cavalier, Adventures of Captain Carleton, Dickory Cronke, &c.
10. PRIOR'S LIFE OF BURKE, (forming the first Volume of BURKE'S WORKS), new Edition, revised by the Author. Portrait.
12. BURKE'S WORKS, Vol. 1, containing his Vindication of Natural Society, Essay on the Sublime and Beautiful, and various Political Miscellanies.
13. DEFOE'S WORKS, Edited by SIR WALTER SCOTT. Vol. 3. Containing the Life of Moll Flanders, and the History of the Devil.
15. BURKE'S WORKS. Vol. 2, containing Essay on the French Revolution, Political Letters and Speeches.
16. ADDISON'S WORKS, with the Notes of Bishop Hurd. Vol. 4.
17. DEFOE'S WORKS, Vol. 4. Roxana, or the Fortunate Mistress; and Life and Adventures of Mother Ross.
18. BURKE'S WORKS, Vol. 3. Appeal from the New to the Old Whigs, &c., &c.
19. BURKE'S WORKS, Vol. 4, containing his Report on the Affairs of India, and Articles against Warren Hastings.
20. GIBBON'S ROMAN EMPIRE, Vol. 7, with a very elaborate Index.
21. DEFOE'S WORKS, Vol. 5, containing the History of the Great Plague of London, 1665; the Fire of London, 1666 (by an anonymous writer); the Storm; and the True Born Englishman.
- 22 & 23. BURKE'S WORKS (in Six Volumes). Vols. 5 & 6.
- 24 & 25. ADDISON'S WORKS. Vols. 5 & 6.
26. DEFOE'S WORKS, edited by SIR WALTER SCOTT. Vol. 6. Containing Life and Adventures of Duncan Campbell; Voyage Round the World; and Tracts relating to the Hanoverian Accession.

BOHN'S ECCLESIASTICAL LIBRARY.

Uniform with the STANDARD LIBRARY, price 5s. per Volume.

1. EUSEBIUS' ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY, Translated from the Greek, with Notes.
2. SOCRATES' ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY, in continuation of EUSEBIUS, with the Notes of VALERIANUS.
3. THEODORET AND EVAGRIUS. Ecclesiastical Histories, from A.D. 383 to A.D. 437, and from A.D. 431 to A.D. 544. Translated from the Greek, with General Index.
4. THE WORKS OF PHILO JUDEUS, translated from the Greek by C. D. Yonge, B.A. Vol. 1.
5. PHILO JUDEUS, Vol. 2.
6. SOZOMEN'S ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY from A.D. 384-440: and the Ecclesiastical History of PALLADIOS, translated from the Greek, with a Memoir of the Author, by E. WALFORD, M.A.
- 7 & 8. PHILO JUDEUS, Vols. 3 & 4, with general Index.

BOHE'S ANTIQUE ILLUSTRATING SERIES.

OF ALFRED THE GREAT. Double Volumes, are 1s. 6d.

1. EMERSON'S REPRESENTATIVE MEN.
2. IRVING'S LIFE OF MAHOMET!!
3. THE GENUINE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.
4. WILLIS'S PEOPLE I HAVE MET.*
5. IRVING'S SUCCESSORS OF MAHOMET.*
6. ——— LIFE OF GOLDSMITH.*
7. ——— SKETCH-BOOK.*
8. ——— TALES OF A TRAVELLER.*
9. ——— TOUR ON THE PRAIRIES.
- 10 & 11. — CONQUESTS OF GRANADA AND SPAIN. 2 Vols.*
- 12 & 13. — LIFE OF COLUMBUS. 2 Vols.*
14. ——— COMPANIONS OF COLUMBUS.*
- 15 & 16. TAYLOR'S EL DORADO; or, Pictures of the Gold Region. 2 Vols.
17. IRVING'S ADVENTURES OF CAPTAIN BONNEVILLE.*
18. ——— KNICKERBOCKER.*
19. ——— TALES OF THE ALHAMBRA.*
20. ——— CONQUEST OF FLORIDA.*
21. ——— ABBOTSFORD AND NEWSTEAD.
22. ——— SALMAGUNDI.*
23. ——— BRACEBRIDGE HALL.*
24. ——— ASTORIA (Portrait of the Author). 2 Vols. in 1. 2s.
25. LAMARTINE'S GENEVIEVE; or, The History of a Servant Girl. Translated by A. R. SCOBLE.*
26. MAYO'S BERBER; or, The Mountaineer of the Atlas. A Tale of Morocco.
27. WILLIS'S LIFE HERE AND THERE; or, Sketches of Society and Adventure.*
28. GUIZOT'S LIFE OF MONK, with Appendix and Portrait.*
29. THE CAPE AND THE KAFFIRS: A Diary of Five Years' Residence, with Advice to Emigrants. By H. WARD. Plans and Map of the Seat of War. 2s.
30. WILLIS'S HURRY-GRAPHS; or, Sketches of Scenery, Celebrities, and Society, taken from Life.*
31. HAWTHORNE'S HOUSE OF THE SEVEN GABLES. A Romance.
32. LONDON AND ITS ENVIRONS; with Historical and Descriptive Sketch of the Great Exhibition. By CYRIL REDDING. Numerous Illustrations. 2s.
33. LAMARTINE'S STONEMASON OF SAINT POINT.*
34. GUIZOT'S MONK'S CONTEMPORARIES. A Series of Biographic Studies on the English Revolution. Portrait of Edward Lord Clarendon.
35. HAWTHORNE'S TWICE-TOLD TALES.
36. ——— The same, Second Series.
37. ——— SNOW IMAGE, and other Tales.
38. ——— SCARLET LETTER.
39. EMERSON'S ORATIONS AND LECTURES.
40. UNCLE TOM'S CABIN; or, Life among the Lowly; with Introductory Remarks by the REV. J. SHERMAN.
41. THE WHITE SLAVE. A new picture of American Slave Life.
42. DAYS OF BATTLE; or, Quatre Bras and Waterloo. By an ENGLISHWOMAN, resident at Brussels in June, 1816, (author of Rome in the Nineteenth Century).

BOHN'S SHILLING SERIES.

43. GERVINUS' INTRODUCTION TO THE HISTORY OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY, translated from the German (with a Memoir of the Author).
 44. CARPENTER'S (DR. W. B.) PHYSIOLOGY OF TEMPERANCE AND TOTAL ABSTINENCE, being an Examination of the Effects of the excessive, moderate, and occasional use of Alcoholic Liquors on the Human System (or on fine paper, bound in cloth, 2s. 6d.)
 45. IRVING WOLFERT'S ROOST, AND OTHER TALES, 1s.; or on fine paper, with Portrait, 1s. 6d.
 46. IRVING'S LIFE OF WASHINGTON, Vol. 1. Early Life and Adventures. Five Portrait, 2s. 6d.
 47. ————— Vol. 2. The American War, Invasion of Canada, &c. 2s. 6d.
 48. ————— Vol. 3. The American War during the years 1777, 1778, and 1779, boards, 2s. 6d.

BOHN'S MINIATURE LIBRARY.

Pocketsize 12mo, elegantly bound in morocco cloth.

- BARBAULD AND AIKIN'S EVENINGS AT HOME. Frontispiece. 3s.
 BOURRIENNE'S MEMOIRS OF NAPOLEON. Portrait and Frontisp. 3s. 6d.
 BUNYAN'S PILGRIM'S PROGRESS. With a Life and Notes by SCOTT, containing all in Southey's Edition, 25 Woodcuts, by HARVEY, Frontisp. &c. 3s. 6d.
 ————— CHEEVER'S LECTURES ON, Frontisp. 2s. 6d.
 BYRON'S POETICAL WORKS, in 1 thick Volume, including several suppressed Poems not included in other editions. Beautiful Frontispiece. 3s. 6d.
 ————— DON JUAN, complete. Frontispiece. 2s. 6d.
 COLERIDGE'S SELECT POETICAL WORKS. 2s.
 COWPER'S POETICAL WORKS, with Life by SOUTHEY, including all the copyright Poems (700 pages). Beautiful Frontispieces after HARVEY, by GOODALL. 3s. 6d.
 DRYDEN'S POETICAL WORKS, complete in 1 Vol., with a Portrait, Frontispiece, and Fugette Title. 3s. 6d.
 ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF MANNERS AND ETIQUETTE, comprising an improved edition of Chesterfield's Advice to his Son on Men and Manners. 2s.
 HEBER'S (BP.) & MRS. HEMANS' POETICAL WORKS. 3 Vols. in 1. Fronts. 2s. 6d.
 HERRICK'S POETICAL WORKS, complete. Frontispiece. 3s.
 JOE MILLER'S JEST BOOK. Frontispiece. 3s.
 LONGFELLOW'S POETICAL WORKS, viz.—Voices of the Night—Evangeline—Seaside and Fireside—Spanish Students—Translations. Portrait and Frontisp. 2s. 6d.
 ————— PROSE WORKS, viz.—Outre-Mer—Hyperion—Kavanagh. 2s. 6d.
 MILTON'S POETICAL WORKS, with Life and Notes by DR. STREBBING; and DR. Channing's Essay on Milton. Frontispiece. 3s. 6d.
 NEW JOE MILLER, a Selection of Modern Jest, Witticisms, Droll Tales, &c. 2s. 6d.
 OSSIAN'S POEMS, with Dissertations by MACPHERSON and Dr. Blair. Frontisp. 3s.
 POPE'S HOMER'S ILIAD. Essay on Homer. Notes and Essays. Frontispiece. 3s.
 ————— ODYSSEY, (uniform). Frontispiece. 3s.
 SCOTT'S POETICAL WORKS, and Life, in one volume. Port. and Frontisp. 3s. 6d.
 STURM'S REFLECTIONS ON THE WORKS OF GOD. Frontisp. 3s.
 THOMPSON'S SEASONS. With his Castle of Andolence, 4 beautiful Woodcuts. 2s.
 VATHEK, AND THE AMBER WITCH. 3 vols. in 1. 2s. 6d.