

HISTORY OF THE
ENGLISH REVOLUTION

SOC

FROM THE ACCESSION OF CHARLES I.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH OF

M. GUIZOT,

PROFESSOR OF HISTORY IN THE FACULTY OF LITERATURE AT PARIS,
AND MINISTER OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION IN FRANCE.

BY LOUISE H. R. COUTIER.

VOL. II.

Dhananjayrao Gadgil Library

GIPE-PUNE-001750

OXFORD: D. A. TALBOYS,

AND 113, FLEET STREET, LONDON.

M DCCC XXXVIII.

V3:51-K5

A838-2

1750

CONTENTS

OF THE SECOND VOLUME.

BOOK THE FIFTH.

1643—1645.

State of parties and rise of the Independents, 1; dispositions of the court at Oxford, 16; the king concludes a truce with the Irish, 20; parliament at Oxford, 29; death of Pym, ib.; campaign of 1644, 35; battle of Marston-moor, 46; bad success of Essex in Cornwall, 51; discord between the presbyterian leaders and Cromwell, 63; attempts at negotiation, 69; self-denying ordinance, 80; trial and death of Laud, 82; treaty of Uxbridge, 85; reorganization of the parliamentary army, 93; Fairfax appointed general, ib.; Essex resigns his commission, 96.

BOOK THE SIXTH.

1645—1646.

Formation of the army of the Independents, 99; Cromwell retains his command, 102; campaign of 1645, 103; alarms of parliament, 105; battle of Naseby, 108; the parliament seizes the king's private correspondence and publishes it, 114; decline of the royalist party in the west, 116; flight and anxiety of the king, 121; Montrose's victories in Scotland, 124; the king attempts to join him but without success, 126; defeat of Montrose, 129; the king's sojourn at Newark, 130; he returns to Oxford and seeks to renew negotiations with the parliament, 136; fresh elections, 137;

the parliament refuses, 142 ; the king treats with the insurgent Irish, 143 ; the treaty discovered, 144 ; defeat of the last royalist troops, 148 ; the king escapes from Oxford and seeks refuge in the Scottish camp, 153, 154.

BOOK THE SEVENTH.

1646—1647.

Anxiety and intrigues of the Independents, 157 : the king's sojourn at Newcastle, ib. ; he refuses to comply with the proposals of parliament, 168 ; the parliament negotiates with the Scots to induce them to give up the king and retire from the kingdom, 171 ; they consent to it, 179 ; the king is conducted to Holmby, 181 ; discord between the parliament and the army, 182 ; conduct of Cromwell, 184 ; he causes the king to be seized and taken from Holmby, 196 ; the army marches against the parliament and impeaches eleven of the presbyterian leaders, 206 ; they retire from parliament, 209 ; abode of the king at Hampton Court and negotiations with the army, 213 ; commotion in the city in favour of peace, 218 ; a great many members of both houses retire to the army, 223 ; they are brought back to London, 227 ; defeat of the Presbyterians, 228 ; Republicans and Levellers, 230-232 ; the king's sojourn at Hampton Court, 234 ; Cromwell suspected by the soldiers, 235 ; they mutiny against the officers, 242 ; Cromwell's skill, 244 ; alarm of the king, 252 ; he flees to the Isle of Wight, 255.

BOOK THE EIGHTH.

1647—1649.

The rendezvous of Ware, 262 ; Cromwell subdues the agitators and then reconciles himself with them, 264-266 ; the parliament addresses four bills to the king containing the preliminary conditions of peace, 268 ; the king rejects them and secretly treats with the Scots, 270 ; the parliament votes that no further communications be held with the

CONTENTS.

vii

king, 272-277; general discontent, and reaction in favour of the king, 277-280; perplexities of Cromwell and the independents, ib.; breaking out of the second civil war, 282; Fairfax's campaign in the east and round London, Cromwell's in the west, Lambert's in the north, 295; siege of Colchester, 296; the Scots enter England, 301; Cromwell marches against them, 304; battles of Preston, Wigan, and Warrington, 306; Cromwell in Scotland, 308; the Presbyterians regain the ascendancy in London, 308-311; the parliament again renew negotiations with the king, 310; treaty of Newport, 313-318; changes in the situation of parties, 318; the army seizes the king and takes him from the Isle of Wight, 329; he is removed to Hurst castle, 332; and then to Windsor, 344; last efforts of the Presbyterians in his favour, 347; the king's trial and death, 354; monarchy abolished, 383.

ELUCIDATIONS AND HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS.

- I. Inedited pieces and despatches relative to the extraordinary embassy sent to London, January, 1649, from the States-general of the United Provinces, to intercede with the parliament in favour of Charles the First; taken from the archives of the Hague 385