THE COLLECTOR OF KHÁNDESH,

Survey Superintendent's Office, Sátára Districts, Camp Pimpáuda, 12th December 1887.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit, for the consideration of Government, proposals for the revision settlement of the Chopda Táluka of your Collectorate.

2. In the year 1856-57, when the survey settlement was first introduced, this táluka contained 176 villages, of which 173 were Government and 3 Inám. Twenty of the Government villages, lying among the Sátputa hills, were not surveyed in detail owing to their wild nature, and others of the original villages have subsequently been transferred elsewhere, with the result that 130½ Government and 3 Inám villages now remain in the Táluka. Of these 118 Government villages are now for revision settlement and form the subject of this report; 11½ have been absorbed in Sátputa Forest Reserve; and 1; which also lies in the Sátputás, has now been surveyed in detail for the first time and will be dealt with in a separate report; the 3 Inám villages will as usual be subsequently disposed of on the lines sanctioned for adjoining Government villages.

3. The 118 Government villages for which revised rates are now about to be proposed were all settled originally in 1856-57 under the sanction of Government conveyed in Government letter No. 1036 of March 27th, 1858.

4. The measurement operations preparatory to revision settlement were carried out on the partial system approved by Government for Khándesh, which has been described in detail in my report on the Sávda revision settlement. This system closely resembles that which has been employed in the Southern Marátha Country revision settlements for many years past, but is in some important respects more expeditious and less expensive. It provides for the separate measurement and demarcation of all recognised occupancies, the sub-division of the large block numbers and all others of unwieldy size, the separate record of irrigated areas, and the general bringing up to date of all boundaries; in carry-

3,335* old survey numbers comprising 66,675† acres have been re-measured, while in 7,751 old numbers and 115,458 acres the original survey record has been examined and confirmed.

* = 31 per cent.
† = 37 per cent.

* † N. B.—These figures exclude village sites, roads, &c.

Differences.

5. The differences of area found in individual fields re-measured are shown in the following table :—

Number of villages.	Total old Survey Numbers.	NUMBERS IN WHICH DIFFERENCE DID NOT EXCEED							Included in forest, village sites, &c.	Old numbers not re-measured
		5 per cent.	6 to 10 per cent.	11 to 15 per cent.	16 to 20 per cent.	21 to 25 per cent.	26 to 30 per cent.	Over 30 per cent.
118 ...	11,086	8,082	168	27	10	12	13	23	252	7,499

The differences, therefore, it will be seen, exceeded 5 per cent. in only 7.6 per cent. of the numbers re-measured. The causes of the larger differences, viz. those exceeding 15 per cent., will be found tabulated below :—

Total Numbers in which difference exceeded 15 per cent.	NUMBERS IN WHICH DIFFERENCE WAS DUE TO
	Alluvion and Diluvion.	Alteration in roads.	Errors in old area.	Doubtful Boundary marks.
58	49	1	3	5

From what has been said above it will rightly be inferred that the quality of the old work is very good, and that the revision operations have had a greater practical importance in supplementing omissions of detail and in bringing the old work up to date than in correcting original errors.

6. The re-classification operations were carried out on the partial system which has been adopted with the approval of Government in all recent revisions in the Southern Marátha Country, and which was found very suitable to the old work in the Chopda Táluka, viz. re-classification was carried out to the following extent :—

- (1) of numbers above 10 annas 6 pies old classification value, 15 per cent. of the 1st hundred and 10 per cent. of subsequent hundreds ;
- (2) of numbers below 10 annas 6 pies old classification, 25 per cent. of the first and 12 per cent. of subsequent hundreds ;

and from the knowledge thus gained of the old classification standard, the classification of the remaining numbers was adjusted in villages where the standard was found inaccurate, and where found satisfactory it was confirmed. Towards the close of operations it was found feasible to accept the old work at once in some villages where the work of the same old classer had been fully examined already elsewhere and found quite satisfactory.

7. In the 118 villages under report *3,934 old numbers comprising †64,237 acres were actually re-classed in the field, while * = 35 per cent. † = do. in 7,152 numbers and 117,896 acres the old classification was confirmed or adjusted. As a general result it is satisfactory to find that though the standard of the old classification in Khándesh is generally too low in the best descriptions of soil, yet it is uniform, and the work is carefully and accurately recorded in the old classification books. The amount of actual re-classification noted above is much less than it was found necessary to do in the Sánda Táluka, but for the revision of tálukas settled subsequently to that under report it has recently been decided that the amount of re-classification work may be still further very considerably reduced.

8. The Chopda Táluka lies on the northern border of Khándesh towards the North-east corner of the district ; it is bounded on the North by the Sátpuda range, on the South by the Tápti, on the East by the Sánda Táluka, and on the West by the Táluka of Shirpur.

9. In physical characteristics it closely resembles Sávda. The country lies in one even gentle slope from the foot of the Sápudás to the banks of the Tápti; along the foot of the hills the soil is somewhat coarse and its surface broken by small water-courses and often covered with brushwood; but from thence southward it may be generally described as a fertile plain of rich black soil, continuously cultivated, and well planted with trees. It is watered by numerous small streams most of which during their short course to the Tápti maintain some supply of water throughout the year, but are useless for irrigation from the fact that their beds lie deep below the surface of the adjoining country.

10. The climate is most favourable for the growth of all the best kinds of dry crops, the rainfall, as will be seen from the appendix, averaging $31\frac{1}{2}$ inches during the last 11 years, although the first of these was the famine year in which rain almost entirely failed.

11. The following table contrasts the area obtained by revision survey with that by original survey, under heads of cultivation :—

	By original Survey.	By Revision Survey.	Difference.
	Acres.	Acres.
Dry-crop	145,458	145,879	+ 426
Garden	78	795	+ 722
Unassessed, forest, &c.	86,607	35,654	- 958
Total	182,133	182,928	+ 195

The total difference is very trifling, as might be expected from what has been said above of the subsidiary nature of the operations necessary for revision purposes and the excellent quality of the old work. The increase in garden area is large proportionately compared with the former recorded area, but irrigation is quite unimportant in this Táluka, first because the regularity and sufficiency of the rainfall ensures a very profitable return from dry-crop cultivation, and next because the water stratum usually lies too deep to allow of remunerative irrigation from wells.

The streams, as has already been mentioned, do not admit of being utilised as irrigators owing to the height of their banks.

12. In Appendix B will be found, compiled in average of five years from the village papers, the areas sown with the different crops raised in the Táluka. The figures given refer to Government land only but may be taken to supply the proportions prevailing over the whole. The following table is a summary of the appendix :—

	Kharrif.	Rabl.
Cereals—Jowári 21·3, Bájri 15·06, wheat 10·9	36·9	10·9
Pulses—Tnr 0·5, Udid 0·3, gram 2·0	0·8	2·0
Oil-seeds—Sesamom 2·6, linseed 4·6	2·6	4·6
Fibre—Cotton 36·5	36·5	...
Miscellaneous—Tobacco 0·5, garden crops 0·3, indigo 0·2, &c.	1·2	...
	78·0	17·5
Total	95·5
Grass and Fallow	4·5

The remarkable fact in the above figures is the large proportion of valuable exports produced in the district. Cotton, wheat, linseed and sesamum cover, it will be seen, 54·6 per cent. of the cultivated area, and make up together a source of wealth, the importance of which will be at once evident. The food of the people and of their cattle is contributed mainly by the Jowári and Bájri, to raise which nearly 37 per cent. of the cultivated area is devoted. Indigo is still grown in a few villages, but only to a small and yearly lessening extent, and it is plain that the rough method of preparing the dye which is here practised, cannot at all compete with the scientific process elsewhere introduced by European enterprise. The ruined vats, however, which are still visible in many villages, show that in earlier times indigo was found a profitable crop in this part of the country.

13. The district under report has been greatly advantaged by the near approach of the railway, and with its natural facilities for raising valuable exports, has been from the first in a position to profit very largely by the direct communication with the Bombay market thus placed within its reach. Within this Táluka however, as in Sávida, internal communications still depend on the country tracks, which during the fair weather fulfil all wants fairly well. A made-road indeed from Chopda to Dharangaon, about 17 miles due South, whence roads from several railway stations converge, is in course of construction, and I believe at date of writing may be said to be practically complete: this will no doubt supply a great want and will much facilitate the carriage of produce towards the railway, but the flow of exports from this fertile district has hitherto had to force its way across the Tápti wherever ford or country ferry supplied an outlet, and in spite of all obstacles has swollen into a great stream of traffic, without any artificial aid from the Public Works Department. The villages in the East of the Táluka send their produce generally to Jalgaon Station which is distant thence about 18 miles; for the central part Dharangaon is the depôt where exports are collected, while from villages in the western extremity of the Táluka produce is often sent to Dhulia. In each case, however, the transit over the Tápti is difficult or risky, and during the monsoon months not practicable for a heavy traffic.

14. Chopda itself is the only market of importance in the Táluka and is the main depôt whence imports are distributed, besides being a large cattle-mart. Cotton cloth and clothing of all kinds, and groceries, form the staple of articles sold. The cattle are of excellent quality, and if not bred in the district are brought from Berár or the Sátputrás by Wanjári dealers. Besides Chopda, weekly Bázárs are held at the villages noted in the margin, but these are of only local importance and attract but little trade.

15. The export trade of the district does not appear in its markets, but is conducted through Daláls who travel from village to village, and buy either for merchants in Dharangaon or Dhulia, or for Bombay firms.

The main export is cotton, which is sometimes cleaned by hand-gins* before being sent away, but is more frequently sent in its rough state to Dharangaon, Jalgaon, &c., where it is cleaned and pressed before despatch to Bombay. Wheat is the next most important product, and linseed and sesamum are also exported to a very considerable extent. No information is available as to the quantities of produce exported, but, as more than half the occupied area is devoted to the growth of exportable products, the quantity must be very large and important.

16. The following table contrasts the condition of the 118 villages under report in the year of original settlement with that which they have now attained, the former figures being those of the survey census, while the latter are the outcome of a special census taken by the Collector's Department in July last:—

Statistics—Appendices D, F and J.

*There are 1,606 hand-gins in different villages—Vide Appendix G.

	Year of Settlement.	1886-87.	Increase.	Decrease.	Per cent.
Population	34,426	62,697	28,271	...	+82.1
Houses { Flat-roofed and tiled	4,426	9,447	5,121	...	+111.2
{ Thatched	2,593	3,693	1,100	...	+42.4

Horses and ponies	518	917	399	...	+77.0
Wells and Budkis	2,100	2,220	120	...	+5.7

17. Population has increased during the period of the lease by 82.1 per cent., and now represents a density of 215 to the square mile. There are now 2.2 occupied acres to each head of population, while in the year of settlement the proportion was but 1.7 acres; it will be seen therefore that the enormous increase in population is well provided for.

18. Houses of all descriptions are more numerous by 87 per cent., the increase in the better description of houses being as much as 111.2 per cent., which is most satisfactory.

19. Agricultural or working cattle have increased by 35.9 per cent. and represent the proportion of 1 pair to 14 occupied acres including Inám ... 139,939 acres of cultivation, a very high rate indeed for a district in which there may be said to be no irrigation. Deduct 4.5 per cent. ... 6,297
 ÷ 9,860 pairs of oxen = 14 acres per pair.

20. Milch and breeding cattle are found to be fewer now by 12.3 per cent than in the year of settlement—a fact which coincides with general experience in districts where there has been great increase of cultivated area.

21. Sheep and goats have also decreased somewhat in numbers (viz. by 7.3 per cent.) but their total is unimportant and must not moreover, owing to the nomad habits of their owners, be taken as strictly accurate.

22. Carts would seem to have always been numerous in this part of the country, and are habitually used by the people as a means of locomotion, but it is satisfactory to note that their number is now more than double what it was in the year of settlement.

23. Horses and ponies have also increased very considerably, and number now 917 against 518 in the first year of the lease.

24. There is, it will be seen, a small increase in the number of wells and Budkis, which may be said in this Taluka to be used almost entirely for drinking purposes. The old record does not distinguish between wells for different uses, but of the total number now existing only 264 were designed for purposes of irrigation and of these 250 are stated to be out of repair. The water stratum lies generally too deep for the remunerative irrigation of ordinary crops, and wells in this Taluka were probably used in former times for the cultivation of the poppy and the manufacture of indigo.

25. The tables now subjoined give the same figures which have just been commented on as a whole, re-compiled under heads by the different groups of villages for which different rates of assessment are proposed later in this report. These groups will be found separately coloured* in the accompanying map:—

* 1st Group Red, 2nd Group Blue, 3rd Group Green, Inám Villages Yellow.

	Difference per cent ...	+509·0	+462·0	+190·0	+668·0	+441·0	+610·0

26. These figures show at a glance that the great progress in prosperity indicated by the total sum of the statistics has been felt alike in all parts of the Táluka. In the second and third groups of villages, which lie towards the Sát-pudás, and were at the time of first settlement very sparsely inhabited or entirely waste, progress, as might have been anticipated, is shown to have been proportionally greater than in the older settled parts, but even taken as a whole it will be admitted that these statistics indicate a complete change in the circumstances of the district.

27. The figures given in Appendix H are furnished by the Educational Department, and show that on the average 660 boys attend the 25 Government schools in the Táluka; private schools there are, it appears, none in the villages under report. From Columns 10 and 11 of Appendix D it seems that the percentage of readers and learners among the population is somewhat less at present than in the year of settlement, being now 6·6, whereas it was 7·4 per cent. In view, however, of the very great increase which has taken place in the numbers of the labouring class, this perhaps need not excite surprise.

28. Details are given in Appendix I as to the proportion of fields cultivated by the men in whose names they stand, and of those sublet. It appears that 87·8 of the total numbers are cultivated by the Khátédárs either singly or in partnership with others, while 6·1 are sublet for money rents and 0·1 for a share of the produce. In considering those figures it is to be borne in mind that the man recorded as Khátédár is often not the present owner, for transfers and sales frequently take place without any corresponding alteration being made in the village papers. This fact deprives the return of much of its interest.

29. The appendices noted in the margin are an abstract of all sale, lease and mortgage transactions which concern land alone registered during the last three years in the books of the Sub-Registrar of the district.

There are 513 cases of sale, and the prices paid seem to indicate a high value; but as the prices recorded may be affected by past transactions, the nature of which is not indicated, I prefer not to make any general calculation from the figures. Forty-four cases, however, are of sales made by decree of Court: these included 622 acres 33 Gunthás of land paying a total assessment of Rs. 892-11-3 or an average of Rs. 1-6-11 per acre, and realised Rs. 9,755-8-0 or an average of Rs. 15-11-6 per acre. It is notorious that land sold in this manner seldom or never realises a fair price, and the figures just given may be taken, therefore, as significant of a high value.

30. The figures obtainable for leases are likely to be unaffected by past dealings, and as such, may be taken to afford a valuable inference as to the true value of land. There are 110 cases recorded and the conditions are seen to vary considerably, the rent being sometimes paid down for the whole lease in advance (when of course some deduction will have been made for discount), while sometimes an annual sum is paid which includes or excludes the Government assessment as the case may be. The following figures are a précis of the whole information given in the appendix :—

Number of Cases.	Area.		Government Assessment.	Total annual Sum paid by Lessees.	Total Sum paid in advance in 15 cases for different periods.
	Acres.	g.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.
110	1,943	2	2,709 8 5	9,151 1 6	9,968 11 0

It appears from this that, without making any allowance for the fact that a large sum was paid in advance, the annual sum for which the land was sublet is 3·4 times the Government assessment, and the inference as to the lightness of the Government assessment is most important.

31. Mortgages are a class of transaction liable to be so mixed up with former dealings between the contracting parties, that it is not perhaps of much practical use to make any calculations from the figures presented in the appendix. It is noticeable, however, that in the great majority of the 514 cases recorded the land remains in possession of the mortgagor who merely pays interest to the mortgagee on the sum borrowed, and this seems to indicate a general independence on the part of the borrower.

32. It may well be inferred from the whole of the information brought together in this report that the condition of the people is exceedingly prosperous, and such a statement seems to me, after several visits to the Táluka, to need little modification. Comparing the Chopda population with that of Sávda, on which I had the honour to report recently, I should say that it is more purely agricultural, and that the number of persons, who after attaining an independent position continue to devote themselves to agriculture alone, is larger here than in Sávda, where a man with any small capital turns at once to trade. It is natural, no doubt, that this difference should exist, as Chopda lies further from the railway and has a population less dense than Sávda. Wages are slightly lower, I believe, in Chopda, but may be assumed, as pointed out in the Sávda Revision Settlement Report, to have risen about 100 per cent. during the existing settlement.

33. The subjoined table, condensed from Appendix N, shows in a concise form the course of prices during the period of the expiring lease. The figures have been supplied by the Mámlatdár and may be compared with those given for the Sávda market, which are also shown in the Appendix :—

Period.	Jowári.	Bájri.	Wheat.
Ten years before settlement, 1846-47 to 1855-56 ...	63	63	46
First decade of do. 1856-57 to 1865-66 ...	34	40	21
Second decade of do. 1866-67 to 1875-76 ...	28	29	18
Last eleven years of do. 1876-77 to 1886-87 ...	22	23	18

It is worth pointing out with regard to the above figures that the first decade of the lease may be divided into two periods, the prices of the latter 5 years being favourably affected by the American War :—

	Jowári.	Bájri.	Wheat.
First 5 years of 1st decade	45	46	29
Second 5 years of do.	22	33	14

Thus it is evident that the opening years of the lease, during which the suitability and moderation of the rates were evidenced by increase of cultivation no less than in subsequent years, were characterised by prices which ranged about 100 per cent. lower than those now obtaining.

It will be seen that the returns do not include any figures for cotton which is far the most important product of the district, and the price of which is known from the records of the Bombay market to have at least doubled within the past 30 years.

34. The revenue history of the lease now expiring may be traced from year to year in Appendix O. It presents however one unbroken progress throughout and calls for no special explanation or comment. It will be sufficient to note that in the year of introduction of the survey settlement there were 44,987 acres of Government land in occupation bearing an assessment of Rs. 67,245, and that during the 30 years ending with 1885-86—by gradual increase of cultivation, more rapid at first than subsequently but always continuous—the occupied area has approximately trebled, while the revenue has more than doubled, until the figures now stand at 127,663 acres and 1,57,426 rupees. The column of remissions shows no important item except that against the year 1871-72, when it seems that some Rs. 15,000 were remitted on account of land which remained unsown owing to the rain having fallen unseasonably. The items against 1876-77 and following years are temporary remissions of part of the assessment granted by the Collector in the case of lands newly reclaimed from the jungle.

35. The following figures furnished by the Mámlatdár show with what ease the revenue is collected :—

Year.	Number of Villages.	Number of Notices.	Number of cases in which distraint was resorted to.
1884-85	39	202
1885-86	29	145
1886-87	29	94

36. In summing up the whole of the information which has been given in detail above as to the former and present condition of this Táluka, and its history during the 30 years' lease, one can hardly fail to realise the greatness of the change which has come about in that period. Chopda, when the survey settlement was first introduced, was a half cleared, thinly populated tract, whose produce was protected with difficulty from the ravages of wild animals during its growth, and even then realised but scanty value owing to the great distance to the coast and the natural difficulties of transit. Chopda, now, is thickly populated and richly tilled from end to end; its products, which are among the most valuable raised in this Presidency, find ready access to the coast by a main line of rail which runs within some twenty-five miles of its borders: its cultivated area has trebled during the lease, while the revenue is realised with ease, and land is sublet on the average at 3 times the Government assessment.

It seems plain then that the State is bound now on behalf of the community to claim the full share of increased value of produce which the standing orders of Government allow, and I will proceed to explain the measures by which it seems this may best be attained.

37. Shut in as the Táluka is on the North by the wild forest country of the Sátputás, all approaches for trade are from the South across the Tápti. For this reason; and because as a consequence of it the plain country along the Tápti, earliest settled, was found in a more advanced stage than the rest when the survey rates were introduced, the villages were ranged under maximum rates which decreased with the distance to the foot of the Sâtpudâs. It will be noted that climate, being equally favourable throughout the district, did not affect the question. No change is now required in this general scheme of grouping, for the railway has followed the old line of traffic South of the Tâluka and the direction of the feeding lines from Chopda remains unchanged. The only modification called for is in the case of nine villages in the extreme South-west corner: these, which from their backward and uncleared condition at the time of original settlement were then put under the second class, I now propose to include in the first, where by position they naturally belong. They have long ago been thoroughly cleared, and are now among the most thriving villages in the Tâluka.

38. It is proposed then that there should be 3 groups of villages now, as at original settlement, after the manner explained below and shown in the accompanying map.

Group I, 82 villages, Maximum dry-crop rate Rs. 2-12-0.—These villages extend over the whole length of the Tâluka from East to West, and from the Tâpti on the south to a line nearly parallel with the Sâtpudâs and about 4 miles distant from their foot. The group thus comprises that part of the Tâluka which is nearest to the railway and in which internal communications are most easy. The old maximum rate in these villages was Rs. 2-4-0 except in the nine above alluded to, where it was Rs. 1-14-0.

Group II, 27 villages, Maximum dry-crop rate Rs. 2-4-0.—These villages stretch in a line from east to west along the northern border of the first group. They are farther from markets, somewhat rougher in surface, and in a less advanced state than the villages South of them. The old maximum rate was Rs. 1-14-0.

Group III, 9 villages, Maximum dry-crop rate Rs. 1-6-0.—These villages lie along the foot of the Sâtpudâs, are somewhat unhealthy and still only partly cleared, while a general scarcity of drinking water makes some of them uninhabitable and only cultivable from a distance: they labour therefore under natural disadvantages which call for a considerably lower rate than those adjoining them on the south. The old maximum rate was Rs. 1-2-0.

39. The garden area recorded at original settlement was 73 acres, of which 71 acres were Government land and were assessed at Rs. 143, or an average of Rs. 2-0-3 per acre. The area now irrigated is 795 acres, of which the Government portion is 696 acres, and will be assessed under the proposed rates at Rs. 1,267. The whole of this is from wells, there being no irrigation from streams in any part of Chopda Tâluka. In the matter of water stratum, and the unremunerativeness of well irrigation, the circumstances of Chopda are identical with those of Sâvda, and following the course adopted with the approval of Government in the latter Tâluka, I have put no additional assessment whatever on account of irrigation on the trifling area watered from wells.

40. The estimated result of the proposed rates is given in the following table which is a précis of Appendix P. :—

Group.	Maximum Dry-crop Rate.	Number of Villages.	BY FORMER SURVEY.		BY REVISION SURVEY.						Percentage Increase.
			Government Occupied Land.		Government Occupied Land.		Government Waste Land.		Total Government Land.
			Acres.	Rs.	Acres.	Rs.	Acres.	Rs.	Acres.	Rs.
I ...	2-12	82	84,208	1,18,959	84,359	1,57,691	4,723	4,794	89,082	1,92,365	32-5
II ...	2-4	27	33,210	33,096	33,113	43,307	1,564	2,003	34,677	45,310	30-9
III ...	1-6	9	10,249	5,433	10,280	6,861	448	201	10,728	7,062	26-3
Total...		118	1,27,667	1,57,488	1,27,752	2,07,759	6,735	6,998	134,487	2,14,757	31-9

The total increase, it will be seen, amounts to Rs. 50,271, which is equivalent to 31-9 per cent. on present collections. This is distributed equably over the 3 groups, though it is somewhat higher proportionally on the first group than on the second, and on the second than on the third.

41. A reference to column 34 of Appendix P, which contains full details of the area and assessment of each individual village, will show that the proposed assessment does not in any one village exceed the prescribed limit of 66 per cent.

42. The results of the original and proposed settlements are contrasted below under every head :—

	By Original Survey.		By Revision Survey.		Judl.
	Acres.	Rs.	Acres.	Rs.
Government occupied land ...	127,667	1,57,488	127,752	2,07,759	...
Government unoccupied land ...	5,629	5,572	6,735	6,998	...
Inám	12,230	18,133	12,187	22,949	8,873
Unassessed, forest, &c. ...	36,607	...	35,654
Total ...	182,133	1,81,193	182,328	2,37,706	8,873

43. By the original settlement the assessment on Government occupied land averaged Rs. 1-3-9 per acre; by the proposed rates it will be Rs. 1-10-0, which is equivalent to an increase per acre of Re. 0-6-3.

44. In conclusion I have only to recommend that, if the proposed rates should meet the approval of Government, they should be introduced during the current revenue year and be guaranteed for the usual period of 30 years. In cases where the enhancement of assessment on an individual holding exceeds 25 per cent., the temporary remissions ordered by Government to be allowed in all revision settlements will be notified.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

W. M. FLETCHER,

Superintendent, Poona & Násik and S. M. C.

W. M. FLETCHER,
Superintendent, Poona & Násik and S. M. C. Revenue Surveys.

To

THE COMMISSIONER, C. D.

Camp Sávda, 3rd February 1888.

SIR,

I have the honour to forward the report of the Survey Superintendent on the revision settlement of the Chopda Táluka. Mr. Fletcher's full and clear statement explains accurately the condition of the Táluka and the reasons for the settlement he now proposes, and leaves little to be said. As, however, I had never been in the Táluka, I thought it better to postpone forwarding the report until I had seen something of the country myself. I have spent the last fortnight there, and have been all over the Táluka, and as I have done the Jamábandi, I have had every opportunity of meeting the cultivators and hearing what they had to say. The objections to the new assessment came almost entirely from the more lowly assessed villages, viz., those bordering on the Sátpurás, and those in the south-east corner of the Táluka. I think some at any rate of the objections were based on a mistaken idea of the meaning of a maximum rate, and that the people fancied that the maximum rate was the actual rate assessed on their lands.

2. Mr. Fletcher has given an accurate description of the physical aspect of the Táluka, its soil and crops, in his paragraphs 9 to 12. It is a very fertile stretch of country, and even the poorer parts are well suited for growing cotton and Kharif crops, while in the richer soils, wheat, gram, and linseed grow readily as well as cotton. The soil in the east is poorer than in the west, though owing to the mango groves which are common from A'dáwad eastward, the country in that direction is pleasanter to the eye than the west of the Táluka which is a rather bare black soil plain. Near the Tápti and to a less extent near the A'ner the country is a good deal cut up by ravines. Towards the hills the soil is coarser, the ground more undulating and the cultivation rougher, while the people complain of the damage done to their crops by wild animals, especially pig. This state of things cannot easily be cured, for the ground is now cleared up to the edge of the forest, and the more successful conservancy is, the more cover will there be for wild animals.

3. There is not much likelihood of any great extension of garden cultivation, for as Mr. Fletcher says the streams are useless for irrigation, and though in some parts, especially in the east, water is not more than 25 to 30 feet from the surface, still cotton and other crops yield so good a return that the cultivators do not care to undertake the initial expense and labour required for well irrigation. Throughout the east of the Táluka the level of the water has risen in a very remarkable manner, and this is the case also in the Sávda Táluka. The rise has been especially noticed during the last 2 or 3 years, and is estimated at from 10 to 20 feet in different villages. I was shown several Nálás now flowing strongly, where I was assured 3 years back there used to be no running water, and in A'dáwad I was told that grain-pits long in use had latterly become damp and useless. This state of things is put down to heavy rainfall in recent years. As a matter of fact the rainfall in 1882, 1883, and 1884 was much above the average, while in 1885 it was much below it. In 1886 there was an average fall, and last year a heavy fall.

4. I have little to add to what Mr. Fletcher has said about communications. There are no made-roads in the Táluka; a road has been made from Dharangaon to Sávkheda on the south bank of the Tápti, but there are 10 miles still to be made to the north of the Tápti. During the fair season loaded carts can get all over the Táluka without difficulty: during the rains cart traffic is practically suspended. The real markets, however, are outside the Táluka, and to get at them all produce has to cross the Tápti, and much of it to cross the Girna as well, and in this matter Chopda is at a great disadvantage as compared with Sávda. No doubt it is very much better off than it was in 1859, for now there is a station at Jalgaon 12 miles from the ford at Pimpri, and a station at Sávda 25 miles from the eastern border of the Táluka. Still the Tápti is a serious hindrance to the trade of the Táluka. There are 7 fords in the limits of the Táluka, of which 4 can be used by loaded carts for 5 or 6 months, and the others for 3 or 4 months in the hot weather. Loaded carts are also ferried across at Vitner, where there is no ford. At the best fords the banks are steep and the pull over the sand and gravel is very heavy. At Vitner I found 28 carts waiting to be ferried across; the process would take the better part of the day, and each cart paid 6 annas. In the rains no heavy traffic is possible across the river.

5. A factory with 40 gins has been started at Chopda, and is working partially. Most of the cotton in the Táluka will now go there to be cleaned, previous to going to Jalgaon. I found some cotton in the east going to Faizpur in the Sávda Táluka.

6. Except a little weaving in Chopda, there are no manufactures in the Táluka; the trade consists in the export of grain, cotton, some timber and cattle, and in the import of articles required by an agricultural population, cloth, molasses, oil, &c. I agree with Mr. Fletcher in thinking that the population is a more purely agricultural one than in Sávda and that there is less subletting of land. I find that in the year 1886-87 there were 436 leases of immoveable property registered in Sávda as against 85 in Chopda.

7. The figures given in Mr. Fletcher's 16th paragraph show what a wonderful improvement there has been in the material condition of the people during the last 30 years. I suppose a better example of the success of our revenue administration could hardly be found. If we go further back the contrast between the past and present condition of the Táluka is even more striking. Mr. Mansfield writes in 1857 that "in Chopda a little less than 4 per cent. of the arable land was under the plough when Khándesh became a British possession" in 1818. Unlike Sávda and Yával, it had not been under the protection of any powerful Chiefs, and it had suffered most severely from the ravages of the Bhils, and of the A'rabs kept by the Thokde Jáhírdár of Lásur. The cultivated area varied for years from 14,000 to 20,000 acres and only rose very gradually as the country quieted down. What the population was at first, we have no means of ascertaining, but as the whole of Khándesh was estimated to have a population of about 330,000, it is not probable that Chopda had more than 10,000 people. Now the population is 62,697, and 1,27,752 acres of Government land are cultivated. The increase in houses and plough cattle is equally satisfactory; the decrease in cows is only what was to be expected in a Táluka where there is now hardly any waste land.

8. I agree with Mr. Fletcher in thinking that the general condition of the people is satisfactory. They have seldom had a really bad year, and the revenue is collected without difficulty, while the statistics of the registry office show that the land has a good value. There is a good deal of house building going on, especially in the west, and the villages have generally a thriving appearance. There is no doubt a good deal of indebtedness, especially in the villages near the hills and in the east, and there are many well-to-do cultivators, more in the west than elsewhere. In some of the villages near the hills the houses are poor, and the cultivation is rather rough. The people there moved and took up new land on borrowed capital, I fancy, in many cases, and have not been able to clear themselves yet.

9. There is hardly any arable waste land left in the Táluka, with the exception of the "Gat" numbers, 2 in Cháhárdi and 1 in Lásur, with an area of 3,000 acres. This land has now been divided into numbers, and will be taken up directly the rates have been declared. I think, however, that as there is so little grazing land available, especially near Cháhárdi, that some of these numbers should be kept for grazing, and I would recommend that 500 acres in Cháhárdi and 300 acres in Lásur should remain uncultivated for that reason. Most of the other assessed waste consists of numbers lying among the ravines of the Tápti and A'ner and other large Nálás; the land is hardly fit for cultivation and is more useful for grazing and standing ground for the cattle than for cropping.

10. I approve of the grouping proposed by Mr. Fletcher. The nine villages in the south-west corner of the Táluka are, as he says, among the most thriving in the Táluka, and have been rightly put into the first group. The villages now in the 2nd and 3rd groups are distinctly inferior in position to those in the 1st group; and, as I have said in my 2nd paragraph, they suffer a good deal from the ravages of pig and other animals.

11. I do not think the rates now proposed are at all excessive. Prices have risen very much in the last 30 years and are not now likely to fall; the railway has been brought near the Táluka and the average rate on cultivated land will not be nearly as high as the average rate in force before the survey. I believe the western villages would bear a heavier assessment without much difficulty, and the figures given in Appendix P show that in the east the average rates are not high. It is true that owing to the very low rates sanctioned for Sávda, we have the anomaly of a maximum rate of Rs. 2-10-0 in that Táluka, through which the railway passes, while in Chopda we have a maximum rate of Rs. 2-12-0, but I think the Chopda rates are nearer the correct standard. In Shirpur to the west under the original settlement some villages had a maximum rate of Rs. 3, and have always paid the assessment with ease.

I have, &c.,

No. 335 of 1888.

FROM

T. H. STEWART, Esquire,
Survey and Settlement Commissioner;

To

THE CHIEF SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,
Revenue Department.

Poona, 14th February 1888.

SIR,

I have the honour to forward a report No. 1908, dated 12th December 1887, from the Superintendent, Poona and Násik and Southern Marátha Country Surveys, on the proposed revision settlement of 118 villages of the Chopda Táluka of the Khándesh Collectorate, together with a letter from the Collector of Khándesh, No. 845, dated 3rd instant, forwarding the proposals and commenting upon them.

2. The Chopda Táluka has been re-surveyed on the principles recommended by me for the earlier settled Tálukas of Khándesh in my letter No. 1714, dated 3rd September 1882, and sanctioned in Government Resolution No. 6592 of 23rd September in the same year. These principles were first put into practice in the revision of the Sávda Táluka recently settled under Government Resolution No. 3342 of 8th May 1886. How very rapidly the necessity for field operations of an extended nature is disappearing may be judged from the fact that, whereas in Sávda it was necessary to re-measure 57.4 per cent. and to re-class 63.5 per cent. of the area of the Táluka, in Chopda it has sufficed to deal with in the field 37 per cent. and 35 per cent. respectively. Owing to my recent deputation on important duties elsewhere I have not been able to re-visit Khándesh since 1886; but the prediction I made in that year in paragraph 4 of my report on the revision settlement of the Sávda Táluka as to the gradual contraction of field work which was to be expected has been already justified by results. I have every reason to think that a parallel reduction will be found in the case of the next Táluka to be re-settled, as the recently adopted plan of confirming areas classed by the same old classer, provided his work has been satisfactorily tested and found accurate, is certain to produce a saving on the Southern Marátha Country method by which the work of each and every village was subjected to separate test for ascertainment of standard. The new plan was recommended by me as particularly applicable to Eastern Khándesh, where there is but little diversity of soils and where the standard of a classer, if once accurately attained, is not likely to become confused or variable. In carrying out the system the Superintendent must of course be on his guard to provide for further tests of the old classer's standard, if villages are come upon with great diversities of soil and physical characteristics.

3. The papers relating to the original settlement of the Chopda Táluka will be found at page 159 of the Compilation of the Bombay Government Records No. XCIII, New Series. In the Government Resolution sanctioning the original settlement the táluka was described as in a more backward state as regards cultivation than the neighbouring districts of Sávda and Yával which had recently come under settlement, though possessing great capabilities. How greatly these capabilities have been availed of will be judged from the statistical returns which accompany the report. A glance at Appendix O will show what a complete transformation has taken place in the agricultural condition of the tract. In 1856-57 the area of arable land under occupation was but 31 per cent. of the total area available: in 1886-87 we find only 4 per cent. of the arable area remaining unoccupied. If, as is certain, the Sávda Táluka at the date of original settlement had an immense start of the Chopda Táluka, it is equally certain that the progress of the latter during the period of the lease has been so much more rapid that it now lags but little behind in all the elements of agricultural prosperity. One of the chief wants of these villages at the early settlement was the inadequacy of population; this has been met by an increase of 82 per cent., so that there are now 215 souls to the square mile. Houses of the better sort have increased by 111 per cent. Agricultural cattle have increased by 35.9 per cent. till there is now a pair of working cattle to every 14 acres—a proportion in excess of that of the Sávda Táluka wherein the revision settlement report showed a proportion of 1 pair to every 17 acres. The number of carts has more than doubled—a sure sign of increasing agricultural wealth. If we look, moreover, at the crops annually produced there is nothing to betoken any inferiority in the condition of Chopda. On the contrary, some of the most valuable crops for export, such as cotton and wheat, are produced on a larger area in Chopda than in Sávda. Where Chopda is really more backward than the neighbouring Táluka is in the matter of position as regards facilities of export by road and railway. Its comparatively isolated position has preserved its markedly agricultural character, while to the same cause must be attributed the want of progress observable in such an important matter as education, vide Appendix D.

4. I think it will be unnecessary for me to follow Mr. Fletcher through all the details by which he seeks to establish the ripeness of the Táluka for a substantial increase in the rates of assessment. I should simply be ringing the changes on the same note, as the Collector has fully corroborated the descriptions given under each head and has come to the conclusion that “a better example of the success of our revenue administration could hardly be found.” The whole report presents a uniformly favourable picture of agricultural progress and prosperity.

5. Looking at all the facts in the light of the great rise in prices since the years which preceded the original settlement and upon which the revenue demand was fixed for the period of the lease, I have no hesitation in recommending that the increase proposed of 31.9 per cent. be adopted. I quite recognize that it would be a vast pity if by too suddenly or inordinately raising the revenue demand we were to impose any check upon the tide of prosperity which is continuing to flow into the Táluka; but I have no fear that such will be the case. Although the present proposals raise the rates of Chopda more nearly to their proper level than could be managed in the Sávda Táluka, where the artificial limit of 33 per cent. compelled a large foregoing of the strictly just demand, the same limitation causes a fair margin to be left in this Táluka also. This perhaps is not to be regretted, as at the next revision it is probable that in both Tálukas the equilibrium may be brought about. It is one of the anomalies forced upon us by the hard-and-fast limitation order that the first group of villages in the Sávda Táluka should be rated at 2 annas less than the corresponding group in the Chopda Táluka, when the reverse should more properly have been the case.

6. The grouping of the villages now proposed by Mr. Fletcher was explained to me in November last and received my full approval. The graduation of the rates is in every respect suitable. The fact of the rates for the Sáyda Táluka having been fully discussed in 1886 and conclusions come to, which have received cordial approval from all quarters, supplies us with a standard revision settlement which will considerably facilitate the future revision work in Eastern Khándesh, as for some years to come the tracts to be settled will be purely dry-crop districts of the same type and character. The principles applied originally to Sáyda and now to Chopda both as regards dry-crop lands and the limited area under well irrigation will be applicable to a wide area.

7. As predicted by Mr. Loch the breaking up into easily workable survey numbers of the block or "Gat numbers" in the villages of Cháhárdi and Lásur and the application of the revised rates will be doubtless followed by applications for the occupation of the land. His suggestion that certain of these lands should be reserved for grazing in a tract where grazing is scarce, deserves consideration, and the Superintendent will be directed, when announcing the rates in due form, to take into consideration the wants of the people in this respect and to make a note in the Settlement Register against any numbers which he may think should not be given out for cultivation in the ordinary way.

8. The Collector has not forwarded with his remarks any petitions from villages against the rates as provided for under Government Resolution No. 7447, dated 21st October 1886. It is possible that no such petitions have been received, but he will be communicated with and any doubt in the matter set at rest.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

T. H. STEWART,

Survey and Settlement Commissioner.

Through the Commissioner, C. D.

No. $\frac{R}{714}$ OF 1888.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Poona, 23rd February 1888.

Submitted to Government.

2. Mr. Fletcher's report is an unmixed record of the beneficial changes brought about during the 30 years' administration of the district since the introduction of the original survey settlement, and presents few points for discussion or controversy.

3. The remeasurement and reclassification was carried out on the same method that was sanctioned for the Sáyda Táluka in which revised rates were introduced in 1885-86, and the results given in paragraphs 5 and 7 of Mr. Fletcher's report are on the whole satisfactory.

4. As in Sáyda the climate and rainfall show no variations in different parts of the táluka; in fact the two tálukás may be regarded as almost indetical in their geographical and topographical features.

5. The chief crops in the order of the extent to which they are grown are cotton, jwári, bájri, wheat, linseed, and sesamum. Of these cotton, linseed and sesamum are exported, while the remaining three are almost all consumed in the táluka itself.

6. Facilities of communication with the centres of trade are not so good as might be desired. The north side being barricaded by the Sápuda range of hills, the whole of the traffic finds its way to the south on which side the Tápti is a serious stumbling block. The railway station at Jalgaon is, however, not more than 18 miles from Chopda, and a large portion of the export trade of the táluka is doubtless carried away by rail.

7. The statistics supplied in Mr. Fletcher's report afford ample evidence that the resources of the táluka have vastly developed during the term of the expiring lease. Cultivation shows an enormous extension: out of the assessed unoccupied area of 102,463 acres at the beginning of 1856-57, there remain now 5,629 acres only that are unoccupied. Agricultural cattle have considerably increased in number, while population and houses have almost doubled. Appendix O of the report further shows that except in 1871-72, a year of drought, no regular remissions had to be given during the 30 years' lease, the small sums in column 5 merely representing a few straggling cases which arise everywhere. Column 17 of the Appendix also shows that except in the very same year, viz. 1871-72, outstandings are almost unknown.

8. Mr. Davidson, who proposed the original rates in 1858, divided the táluka into three classes according to the distance of the villages from the hills and the liability of the crops to be injured by wild animals (page 175 of the Selections from Government Records, No. XCIII, New Series). Mr. Fletcher has followed the same plan save in the case of 9 villages, which he has, for good reasons, transferred from the second to the first class.

9. The subjoined table will show how the original and the revised rates compare under each class:—

Class.			Maximum Original Survey.	Maximum Revision Survey.
			Rs. a.	Rs. a.
I	2 4	2 12
II	1 14	2 4
III	1 2	1 6

10. Mr. Loch has correctly pointed out that the maximum rates for Class I in Chopda and Sávda are in an inverse ratio to the relative conditions of the two tálukas. The apparent anomaly is, however, fully explained by Mr. Stewart in paragraph 5 of his letter.

11. The area irrigated is very small, and the whole of it being under command of wells, no extra assessment has been put on it.

12. The net result of the proposals is a direct increase of Rs. 50,271 to the revenue—an increase which is fully justified by the circumstances of the táluka.

13. The report has been carefully reviewed by the Collector and the Survey Commissioner, the former officer having seen the country and conversed with the people before forwarding it. The Commissioner himself recently visited the táluka and has no hesitation in recommending the proposals for the approval and sanction of Government.

14. The Survey Commissioner has already taken action on the Collector's suggestion to assign for free grazing suitable portions out of the waste lands in Cháhárdi and Lásur.

15. The further communication regarding petitions of objections promised by the Survey Commissioner will be handed on to Government when received.

Revenue Survey and Assessment: Introduction of a revision settlement into 118 villages of the Chopda Taluka of the Khândesh District.

Memorandum from the Commissioner, C. D., No. R.—714, dated 23rd February 1888—

Letter from the Superintendent, Poona and Násik and Southern Marátha County Revenue Surveys, No. 1908, dated 12th December 1887.

Letter from the Collector of Khândesh, No. 845, dated 3rd February 1888.

Letter from the Survey and Settlement Commissioner, No. 335, dated 14th February 1888.

Submitting the papers noted in the margin, containing proposals for the introduction of a revision settlement into 118 villages of the Chopda Taluka of the Khândesh District.

Memorandum from the Commissioner, C. D., No. R.—954, dated 8th March 1888—Forwarding one, No. 440, dated 1st idem, from the Survey and Settlement Commissioner, with copy of one from the Collector of Khândesh, No. 1444, dated 29th February 1888.

RESOLUTION.—Revised survey rates were two years ago introduced under the sanction of Government, contained in Government Resolution No. 3342 of the 8th of May 1886, into the Sávida Taluka of the Khândesh District, by which its total assessment was enhanced 32.5 per cent. His Excellency in Council has now before him similar proposals for the adjoining Taluka of Chopda, the physical and other circumstances of which bear for the most part a close resemblance to it; with this noticeable exception, that, whereas the former taluka is directly traversed by the railway, the latter is situated at some little distance from its line, and all traffic to reach it has to cross the River Tápti, by ford or ferry, as may be practicable.

2. The original survey settlement was introduced into the taluka in the year 1856-57. Of the 176 villages which it then comprised 42½ have since been transferred to other sub-divisions, 11½ merged in the Sátpuda forests, and one is now fully surveyed for the first time and will be separately dealt with hereafter. Three of the villages are inám; and there remain therefore 118 for which orders have now to be passed.

• 3. The history of the taluka under the expiring settlement has been one of marked progress. Writing at the time of its introduction the then Superintendent of Survey, Mr. A. F. Davidson, speaks of the large tracts of uncultivated land to be met with, the want of inhabitants to clear them, and the general appearances of poverty among the rayats of the district. Since that time population has increased 82.1 per cent. The occupied area of Government land has increased from about 45,000 acres to about 128,000, and the revenue from Rs. 67,000 to Rs. 1,57,000. Cattle used for agricultural purposes give a proportion of one pair to every 14 acres under cultivation, a high figure for a district in which there may be said to be no irrigation. What the actual increase in agricultural cattle has been cannot in the opinion of His Excellency in Council be accurately estimated. The settlement report of 1857 gives 9,701 as the number of cattle used "for agricultural purposes" and 6,306 as used for "other purposes," in 153 villages. Mr. Fletcher for the reduced area gives the return of "agricultural cattle," i.e., cattle "used for carts or ploughs" as 13,773 in the year 1857 and 13,721 in the year of this report. It would seem that he has included among agricultural cattle those shown in 1857 as kept for "other purposes." In a district which then contained many Brinjári cattle-breeders and carriers, the returns do not afford accurate data for comparison. The number of carts, always great, has more than doubled, while that of ponies and horses has multiplied almost at a similar rate; and although the nearest railway station is eighteen miles distant, with the River Tápti, as above stated, to be crossed en route, the inhabitants cannot be said to be wanting in facilities for the export of the valuable crops of cotton, wheat, linseed and sesamum which occupy 54.6 per cent. of the cultivated area, and are grown for that purpose. It is also worthy of note that not a single case of distraint for non-payment of revenue has occurred during the last three years, for which alone figures in this connection are given. Mr. Stewart is no doubt justified in calling attention to the marked transformation in the condition of the taluka, thus sketched in outline, and in his conclusion that except in the one matter of railway communication it is in no way behind Sávda in all the elements of agricultural prosperity.

4. The re-measurement and re-classification of the taluka have been carried out upon the partial system as in Sávda. The differences discovered in the course of the former were slight; but considerable changes were made in the breaking up of large and unwieldy survey numbers, with the result that the total number has been increased from 11,086 to 14,730. The progress of the early survey establishments in skill and accuracy is shown by the rapidity with which the necessity for field operations of an extensive nature is disappearing at successive revision surveys. Whereas in Sávda the percentages of area re-measured and re-classed were 57.4 and 63.5 respectively, in Chopda it has been found sufficient to deal with 37 and 35 per cent. of the land only.

5. The taluka has hitherto been divided into three groups, which it is now proposed to maintain, with this modification that nine villages, which by their position belong to the 1st group, but were, owing to their backward condition, entered at the original survey in the 2nd, are now to be transferred to that group to which they naturally belong. The existing maximum dry-crop rates for the three groups are Rs. 2-4-0, Rs. 1-14-0 and Rs. 1-2-0 respectively. These it is now proposed to raise to Rs. 2-12-0, Rs. 2-4-0 and Rs. 1-6-0. No special rate is proposed for garden lands, which are insignificant in extent, the irrigated area only covering 795 acres in all. The estimated result of the introduction of the proposed rates is given below:—

Group.	Maximum dry-crop rate.	No. of Villages.	BY FORMER SURVEY.		BY REVISION SURVEY.		Increase per cent.
			Government occupied land.		Government occupied land.
	Rs. a.		A.	Rs.	A.	Rs.
I. ...	2 12	82	84,208	1,18,959	84,359	1,57,591.	32.5
II. ...	2 4	27	33,210	33,096	33,113	43,307	30.9
III. ...	1 6	9	10,240	5,433	10,280	6,861	26.3
		118	127,667	1,57,488	127,752	2,07,759	31.9

6. The total increase in the revenue demands will thus amount to Rs. 50,271, an equivalent to 31.9 per cent. upon the present collections. It will be distributed with approximate equality, in no group exceeding the prescribed limit of 33 per cent., whilst the highest rate of enhancement in any one village is 55.5. Mr. Fletcher's proposals meet with the full concurrence of the Survey and Settlement Commissioner and of the Collector, who has between the time of their receipt and his forwarding them to Government, been at some trouble in personally visiting the taluka and enquiring into its circumstances, and the ability of the cultivators to bear the suggested enhancement of assessment. As a result of these enquiries he fully endorses the satisfactory account of the district given by Mr. Fletcher, giving it as his opinion that "the rates are not at all excessive," and that "the western villages would bear a heavier assessment without much difficulty." He further points out with justice that the advanced rates now shown compare favourably with those in force before the original survey, which were on an average higher in each group than the maximum rates now suggested. There is abundant evidence that the original assessment was designedly pitched at a very low rate; these facts, coupled with the continued upward tendency of prices, which has brought them to about double their average during the opening years of the expiring settlement, and which, with the existing facilities for export and exchange of produce, is likely to maintain a range far above the prices of 1857, afford a strong proof of the comparative lightness of the proposed rates.

7. Only one written petition against the proposed changes was received by the Collector, which being unsigned was returned. Some oral petitions were made to that officer at the time of the annual jamábadi, and it is presumed that the explanations which he then gave were satisfactory to the people, who have not taken any further steps towards memorialising Government in the matter.

8. The question of the scarcity of grazing land raised by Mr. Loch in paragraph 9 of his letter is one of some importance in connection with the decrease in the number of non-agricultural cattle, sheep, goats, &c., and the consequent diminution in the supply of animal manure. The unoccupied arable Government land in the táluka amounts to only 6,735 acres in all, of which almost half is situated in the two villages of Lásur and Cháharvádi. It is all now broken up into assessed numbers of a workable size, and the probability is that much of it will soon be applied for for purposes of cultivation. The Collector proposes that 800 acres of this area in these two villages should be retained for grazing, and the Commissioner of Survey and Settlement remarks that "the Superintendent will be directed when announcing the rates to take into consideration the wants of the people in this respect, and to make a note in the settlement register against any number which he may think should not be given out for cultivation in the ordinary way." As however ample facilities for grazing are provided in the forest lands of the táluka it does not seem advisable to assign arable land for this purpose unless a higher price than the amount of the assessment can be secured annually for the grazing on such land.

9. The classification and rates proposed are sanctioned, and should be introduced at once, and the revised assessments levied from the ensuing year, with a guarantee of their continuance for 30 years. No date is suggested by the Collector as that up to which notices of relinquishment of land may be received, but the period may be extended to June 30th.
