

SELECTION

FROM PAPERS RELATING TO

THE INTRODUCTION

OF

A GOLD CURRENCY IN INDIA.

CALCUTTA:

OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT, GOVERNMENT PRINTING, INDIA.

1899.

CALCUTTA:

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA CENTRAL PRINTING OFFICE,
8, BASTINGS STREET.

CONTENTS.

—:0:—

	Page
I.—Despatch to Honourable the Court of Directors of East India Company, No. 36, dated the 2nd July 1852 :—	1
Effect of the Notification of 1841 by which gold, though not legal tender, was receivable at the treasuries at the rate of £15 per Company's gold mohur (paragraphs 1 to 7)	ib.
Quantity of gold at the Indian Treasuries (paragraph 8)	ib.
Apprehended further importation from Australia (paragraph 9)	2
Gold might be used for remittance to England (paragraph 10)	ib.
Proposal to withdraw the Notification of 1841 (paragraph 11)	ib.
II.—Despatch from the Honourable the Court of Directors of the East India Company, No. 52, dated 20th October 1852 :—	3
Proclamation of 1841 not intended to be obligatory (paragraph 3)	ib.
Proposal to withdraw Proclamation approved (paragraph 4)	ib.
III.—Notification by the Government of India in the Financial Department, No. 26, dated 22nd December 1852 :—	5
Proclamation of 1841 withdrawn	ib.
IV.—Minute, dated the 25th December 1859, by the Honourable Mr. James Wilson :—	6
Gold would be preferred if currency system was to be begun de novo (paragraph 3)	ib.
Alteration of standard would affect contracts (paragraph 4)	ib.
Demonetisation of gold by Holland and Belgium and India (paragraphs 5, 6 and 7)	7
Action of United States and France (paragraphs 8, 9 and 10)	ib.
Gold demonetised in Germany (paragraph 11)	8
Refusal of England to change standard (paragraph 12)	ib.
Various proposals considered (paragraphs 13 to 28)	ib.
Well regulated paper currency preferable to gold currency (paragraph 29)	12
V.—Extract from a Minute by the Honourable Mr. Samuel Laing on the Paper Currency Bill :—	13
Paper currency contemplates absolute exclusion of gold from circulation (paragraphs 1 and 2)	ib.
Trade of India in Australia and United States taxed by non-acceptance of gold (paragraph 3)	ib.

	Page
The English system of gold standard universally admitted to be desirable if the system was begun de novo (paragraph 4)	13
Mr. Wilson's argument about breach of faith not valid (paragraphs 5 and 6)	ib.
Issue of notes against gold coin or bullion (paragraphs 8 to 10)	ib.
VI.—Extract, paragraphs 21 to 24, of a despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 75, dated 2nd May 1861 :—	15
Possible advantage of the introduction of the sovereign as the current coin in India, and the difficulties in the way of such introduction (paragraph 21)	ib.
If gold should become legal tender the reserve of banks should be in gold (paragraphs 23 and 24)	ib.
VII.—Extract from a Minute by the Honourable Mr. S. Laing, dated 7th May 1862 :—	16
Question of introducing gold (paragraphs 1 and 2)	ib.
Question of a double standard (paragraphs 3 and 4)	ib.
Issue of notes against gold (paragraphs 5 and 6)	ib.
VIII.—Minute, dated 8th March 1864, by His Excellency Lieutenant-General Sir W. Mansfield, K.C.B. :—	17
Chapter I.—The Memorial of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce should be supported. Mr. Wilson's opposition to a gold currency in India. Necessity for answering his objections	ib.
“ II.—The economy of gold as a medium of currency as compared with silver. The practical consequences	18
“ III.—The standard of value, whether change in the standard involves breach of faith either with regard to public or private creditor	22
“ IV.—Fallacy of the breach of faith argument.	25
“ V.—The “Double Standard of value.” In practice single standard alone exists. Illustration afforded by France and the United States	29
“ VI.—Effect of the demonetisation of gold subsequent to the gold discoveries. Breach of faith towards those on the debit side of obligations thereby involved	34
“ VII.—Justice can alone be done to the community of India by the introduction of a gold legal tender, and the consequent prevention of rise in the value of silver. Effect of the rise in value of silver on the very poor. Instance afforded by the incidence of the salt-tax. Loss caused to India by the compulsory importation of silver	39
“ VIII.—The introduction of a gold currency in India urgently required as a matter of convenience and economy to the people at large. A Paper Currency inoperative, owing to social causes. The introduction of gold currency demanded by the same social causes	44

	Page
Chapter IX.—Change of values in India. Disturbing causes of value. Increased demand for metallic circulation. Popular instinct has corrected an administrative defect. It is our duty to follow the lead thus given	50
„ X.—Caution necessary in the mode of introduction of the gold currency. Transition period of double legal tender. Token coinage inadmissible during such period	55
„ XI.—The denomination of the rupee to be retained as a matter of course. How sovereigns may be used. The equivalent of gold and silver declared in Act XVII of 1835 may be maintained. Legal tender of gold in addition to that of silver should be created on such a basis	58
IX.—Minute, dated 20th June 1864, by the Honourable Sir C. Trevelyan :—	63
Memorials of the various public bodies (paragraphs 1 to 6)	ib.
Minutes by the Members of the Bombay Government (paragraphs 7 to 10)	64
Nature of the late crisis—not a monetary crisis (paragraphs 11 to 20)	65
True remedy for the crisis (paragraph 20)	68
Both the precious metals should be equally available as articles of import (paragraphs 21 to 23)	ib.
Impending deficiency of the supply of silver (paragraph 24)	69
Impossibility of coining silver with sufficient speed (paragraph 25)	70
Probable consequences of a deficiency of silver (paragraph 26)	ib.
Gold should be restored to its place in the currency (paragraphs 27 to 30)	71
People of India never acquiesced in the exclusion of gold (paragraphs 31 to 36)	72
How the restoration of gold can be attained (paragraphs 37, et seq.)	74
Plan of issuing notes in certain proportion against gold (paragraphs 38 to 42)	ib.
Complications arising from the practice of issuing notes against silver bullion (paragraphs 43 to 52)	75
Past proceedings in reference to gold coinage in India (paragraphs 53 to 58)	77
Steps to be retraced (paragraph 59)	78
Mr. Wilson's objections. Breach of faith argument successfully answered by Sir W. Mansfield (paragraph 60)	ib.
Question of double standard. Double standard necessary during the period of transition (paragraphs 61 to 63)	79
Countries which passed through that stage before attaining a single standard (paragraphs 64 to 68)	ib.
Subsequent steps of the process (paragraph 70)	81
Advantage of an uniform standard of exchange (paragraph 71)	ib.

	PAGE
Assimilation of the English and Australian sovereigns (paragraphs 72 to 79)	81
How the sovereign should be rated in reference to the rupee (paragraphs 80 to 95)	85
Concluding observations (paragraphs 96 to 100)	89
X.—Minute, dated 4th August 1864, by His Excellency Sir William Mansfield, K.C.B. :—	91
Criticism of Sir C. Trevelyan's proposal to rate the sovereign at R10 (paragraphs 1 to 51)	ib.
XI.—Minute, dated 16th September 1864, by Mr. G. Arbuthnot :—	97
Complications of the proposals in Sir C. Trevelyan's minute (paragraphs 1 and 2)	ib.
Substitution of gold for silver, if it could be effected without derangement of business and depreciation of the measure of value, unobjectionable in principle in regard to its effect on existing contracts (paragraph 4)	ib.
All conjectures in regard to future supply of the two metals to be dismissed (paragraph 5)	ib.
Speculations as to the fitness of the different forms of currency to different stages in the growth of a nation to be dismissed (paragraph 6)	98
Effect of the gold discoveries (paragraphs 7 to 9)	ib.
Fortuitous character of the Eastern trade is the main cause of disturbance in the natural flow of bullion (paragraphs 10 and 11)	ib.
Whether high prices are an indication of the full stage of the circulation (paragraphs 12 and 13)	99
Proposal to rate the sovereign at R10 criticised (paragraphs 14 to 42)	ib.
XII.—Despatch from the Secretary of State (the Right Honourable Sir Charles Wood), No. 224, dated 26th September 1864 :—	106
Sir C. Trevelyan's proposal. Practical objections to the measure actually proposed. Rating of sovereign at R10 would be inoperative (paragraphs 8 to 29)	ib.
Receipt and paying out of sovereigns at the rate of R10 (paragraphs 30 and 31)	109
XIII.—Notification by the Government of India in the Finance Department, No. 3517, dated the 23rd November 1864 :—	110
Sovereigns and half-sovereigns to be received at treasuries at the rate of R10 and R5 respectively, and, when available, to be paid at the same rate to any person willing to receive them	ib.
XIV.—Notification by the Government of India in the Finance Department, No. 3518, dated 23rd November 1864 :—	111
Issue of currency notes against sovereigns	ib.
XV.—Minute by the Honourable Sir Richard Temple, dated 5th June 1868 :—	112
Further measures to be taken in reference to the introduction of gold currency. Notifications of November 1864 remained inoperative. Proposal to consult Local

	Page
Governments about the rate to be fixed (paragraphs 1 to 11)	112
Possibility of coining gold (paragraphs 12 to 22)	114
XVI.—Notification by the Government of India in the Finance Department, No. 3287, dated 28th October 1868:—	116
Rate of receipt of sovereigns and half-sovereigns altered from R10 and R5 to R10-4 and R8-2 respectively	ib.
XVII.—Minute by the Honourable Mr. A. J. Arbuthnot, dated 30th November 1868:—	117
Notification of November 1864 would be ineffectual unless sovereign was declared legal tender. Varying seignorage on silver coinage. Any gold coin that may be introduced must be declared full legal tender. Whether that coin should be sovereign or any other coin. Objections to sovereign and new coin respectively. Sovereign preferred (paragraphs 1 to 17)	ib.
XVIII.—Despatch from the Government of India, to the Secretary of State, No. 333, dated 23rd December 1868:—	123
Causes of failure of the Notification of November 1864 to attract gold (paragraphs 7 and 8)	ib.
Rating fixed in that Notification to be revised. Rate fixed at R10-4 (paragraphs 9 to 13)	124
Financial Department to determine what to be done with the sovereigns (paragraph 15)	125
Prospects of sovereign as a current coin (paragraphs 15 to 19)	ib.
XIX.—Minute by the Honourable Sir John Strachey, dated 30th January 1869:—	127
Objections to Sir R. Temple's proposals. Notification of October 1868 could have no effect in bringing about the circulation of sovereign in India, unless declared legal tender. Same conclusion would apply to any other coin (paragraphs 1 to 4)	ib.
Object of the Notification of 1868 (paragraphs 5 and 6)	128
Coinage of gold (paragraphs 7 and 8)	ib.
Rating of gold (paragraphs 9 to 16)	129
Economic possibility of coining gold pieces under the Act of 1835 from gold received under the Notification of October 1868 (paragraph 17)	133
Quotations of prices of the various sorts of gold in Indian markets give indifferent standard for estimating the true value of gold (paragraph 18)	ib.
Steps to be taken to bring about the introduction of a gold currency (paragraphs 21 and 23)	134
Colonel Ballard's and Colonel Smith's proposal to put a heavy seignorage on silver coin (paragraphs 24 to 27)	136
XX.—Minute by His Excellency Sir William Mansfield, dated 9th February 1869:—	138
Criticism of Honourable Mr. Strachey's views about the relative values of gold and silver and the coinage of gold in the Indian Mints. Artificial enhancement of the value of silver by high seignorage objectionable. Mr. Strachey's proposal involves the depreciation of silver. In coinage the relative values of two metals to be adjusted as closely as possible	ib.

XXI.—Minute by the Honourable Sir Richard Temple, dated 12th February 1869 :—	147
Criticism of Honourable Mr. Strachey's minute	ib.
XXII.—Memorandum by the Honourable Sir Richard Temple, dated 19th June 1872 :—	149
Gold currency wanted in India. Superiority of gold over silver. Number of persons who would use gold in India is not so small as is supposed (paragraphs 2 to 22)	ib.
Exclusion of gold causes a rise in price of silver (paragraphs 26 and 27)	153
Use of gold would effect saving in minting charges (paragraph 28)	ib.
Other reasons why a purely silver currency is inconvenient (paragraphs 31 to 33)	154
Gold can be easily obtained (paragraphs 34 to 37)	ib.
Adjustment of balance of trade with Foreign countries, specially England (paragraphs 38 to 47)	155
There should be one standard for the two countries (paragraph 48)	156
Effect on the minds of the demonetisation of silver (paragraphs 49 to 51)	ib.
Question whether sufficient quantity of gold is available to justify its being declared legal tender (paragraph 52)	157
Relative values of gold and silver as represented by the gold coinage of India (paragraphs 53 and 54)	158
If gold currency is to be introduced, the Indian gold coins are to be preferred (paragraph 55)	159
Repugnance felt to gold currency in India because of the prospect of a universal gold coin being adopted by International Agreement (paragraph 56)	ib.
Objection as to National Debt and Paper Currency being calculated in rupees (paragraph 57)	ib.
Proposed receipt of sovereigns without restriction, whether tendered in payment of Government dues or in exchange for silver. Issue of currency notes in exchange for gold (paragraph 59)	ib.
Alteration of rating if necessary (paragraph 60)	ib.
Accompaniments of Sir R. Temple's memorandum, dated 19th June 1872.
XXII-A.—Letter from Mr. George Dickson, Secretary and Treasurer, Bank of Bengal, dated 10th August 1868	161
XXII-B.—Minute by Mr. George Dickson, dated 15th January 1872, on the expediency of a gold currency in India	165
XXII-C.—Second Minute by Mr. George Dickson, dated 7th February 1872, on Indian Gold Currency	174
XXII-D.—Note by Mr E. Gay, Deputy Comptroller General, dated 27th February 1872	185
XXII-E.—Note by Mr. R. B. Chapman, Financial Secretary, dated 27th March 1872	186

	PAGE
XXII-F.—Note by Mr. H. Sandeman, Offg. Comptroller General, dated 28th March 1872	191
XXIII.—Note by the Honourable Sir R. Temple, dated 8th July 1873. Measures to be taken for introducing a gold currency	192
XXIV.—Resolution by the Government of India in the Financial Department, dated 7th May 1874 :—	197
No present steps to be taken for the recognition of gold as a legal standard of value in India	ib.
XXV.—Note by Mr. R. B. Chapman, dated 13th July 1876 :—	198
Effect on the finances of India of the fall in the value of silver (paragraphs 1 to 10)	ib.
Effect on trade (paragraph 12)	200
Effect on European officers (paragraph 13)	ib.
Effect may extend over the whole body politic (paragraph 14)	ib.
Right diagnosis necessary (paragraph 15)	ib.
Disturbance of equilibrium may be due to several causes (paragraph 16)	ib.
Different treatment for different causes (paragraphs 17 to 23)	201
Best method of ascertaining the true cause is to compare the values of gold and silver, respectively, with those of other principal commodities (paragraph 24)	202
The conclusions to be deduced from a study of the prices (paragraphs 25 and 26)	ib.
How far the facts of the case à priori tally with those conclusions (paragraphs 27 to 37)	203
India cannot help the consequences unless other nations reconsider their policy of demonetising silver (paragraph 40)	206
How far such reconsideration is possible (paragraphs 41 to 48)	ib.
How far it is possible to solve the problem if all nations agree (paragraphs 49 to 51)	207
What action India should take if Europe and America hold on their own way (paragraphs 52 to 72)	208
XXVI.—Memorandum by Mr. R. B. Chapman, of subsidiary arguments and investigations relating to the question of the effect on the finances of India of the change in the relative value of gold and silver :—	213
Section I.—Value	ib.
" II.—Exchanges	214
" III.—A standard of value	215
" IV.—What constitutes value	ib.
" V.—Money	219
" VI.—Object of the employment of money	223
" VII.—Changes in the value of standard money	229
" VIII.—Value of the precious metals	233
" IX.—Supply of gold and silver	237
" X.—Future value of gold and silver	245
" XI.—Method of changing the standard of value	246
" XII.—Balance of trade	247

	PAGE
XXVII.—Minute by the Honourable Sir William Muir, dated 6th September 1876 :—	250
Coinage of Native States to be taken into consideration in considering any proposal for the closure of the mints to the coinage of silver	ib.
XXVIII.—Resolution by the Government of India in the Finance Department, No. 3044, dated the 22nd September 1876 :—	252
Fall in the value of silver (paragraph 2)	254
The fall affects Government transactions with England adversely (paragraph 3)	ib.
It also affects Government officers and commerce adversely (paragraph 4)	ib.
Causes of the disturbance in the equilibrium of the pre- cious metals (paragraph 6)	255
Proposal of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce and Cal- cutta Trades Association to close the mints to the free coinage of silver (paragraphs 7 and 8)	ib.
Objections to such a course (paragraphs 9 to 17)	256
Causes of fall in the value of silver (paragraphs 18 to 25)	257
No steps at present necessary beyond economy in finances (paragraph 29)	260
XXIX.—Despatch to the Secretary of State for India, No. 368, dated 13th October 1876 :—	262
Effect of the fall in the value of silver on the finances (paragraphs 1 to 6)	ib.
Question of enhancing the value of the standard (para- graphs 7 to 10)	263
How such enhancement can be effected (paragraph 10)	264
Cost of such enhancement (paragraphs 11 to 18)	ib.
To raise the value of the standard would be a breach of public faith (paragraph 14)	265
State has no right to change or enhance the standard of unit of value for the benefit of the public revenues, or of any class or classes of community (paragraph 15)	ib.
Who should bear the cost (paragraph 19)	266
Relative advantages of enhancing the value of the standard by adding fine silver to the rupee and by introducing a gold standard. Also the possibility of raising the value of the standard by increasing the seignorage (para- graphs 22 to 33)	268
Future value of silver in relation to gold (paragraphs 34 to 38)	271
Whether any concerted action amongst the nations is possible (paragraph 39)	272
If not, India should take some action alone (paragraph 40) But no immediate action necessary beyond economy of expenditure (paragraphs 41 to 46)	ib.
Sterling obligations to be avoided as much as possible (para- graph 47)	274
How Home charges are to be reduced (paragraphs 48 and 49)	ib.
Guarantee of Indian loans by the British Government (paragraph 50)	275

	Page
Method of consolidating Indian and English accounts (paragraphs 51 and 52)	275
XXX.—Demi-official correspondence of 1876 between General Strachey and Mr. R. B. Chapman, Secretary to the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department, on the possibility of introducing a gold standard while retaining the present silver currency :—	277
Major-General Strachey's demi-official, dated 28th September 1876	ib.
Major-General Strachey's letter to the Pall Mall Budget , dated 10th August 1876	279
Mr. Chapman's demi-official No. 414, dated 26th October 1876	283
Mr. Chapman's demi-official, dated 2nd November 1876	286
Major-General Strachey's demi-official, dated 28th November 1876	292
Mr. Chapman's reply	296
XXXI.—Note dated 9th February 1877 (sent to the Secretary of State with Despatch No. 49, dated 9th February 1877) :—	297
(1) Effect of the fall in the price of silver on trade and remittances and on prices	ib.
(2) Applications made to the Government of India for measures in remedy of the effects of the fall in the gold price of silver ; and the action taken thereon	300
XXXII.—Despatch from the Government of India, to the Secretary of State for India, No. 423, dated 9th November 1878 :—	310
Conclusions in the Despatch of 13th October 1876 were of a negative character, although the general result was to point out the impracticability of adopting a gold standard and the incompleteness and uncertainty of adding pure silver to the rupee (paragraphs 2 and 3)	ib.
Notice taken of the proposal to adopt a gold standard without a gold currency, but dismissed (paragraph 4)	ib.
Probable fall in the value of silver brings the subject again up (paragraphs 5 and 6)	ib.
Fall in exchange is due to a considerable extent to the special position of political and commercial affairs. This fall to be distinguished from variations in par of exchange (paragraph 7)	311
Further fall expected from action of other nations (paragraphs 8 and 9)	ib.
Serious disturbance caused in Indian finance (paragraphs 10 to 14)	ib.
Effect on the value of Government security of the fall in value of silver (paragraphs 15 and 16)	312
Effect on the trade of the country (paragraph 17)	ib.
Other difficulties (paragraphs 19 to 23)	313
Question of closure of the mints to silver and adoption of a gold standard further to be considered (paragraphs 24 to 39)	314
Breach of faith involved in altering the standard (paragraphs 40 and 41)	317

	PAGE
How prices in India have been affected by the fall (paragraph 42)	318
The rate to be adopted in fixing the gold standard (paragraphs 43 to 46)	ib.
In closing the mints to silver measures should be adopted for the free expansion of the currency. What measure should be taken. To undertake to give silver in exchange for gold, or to open mints to coinage of gold, not advisable. The object should be attained by allowing coinage when rupee reaches 2s. and charge a high seignorage (paragraphs 48 to 51)	319
Amendment of paper currency law necessary (paragraph 52)	320
No interference with coinage under the Native Coinage Act (paragraph 53)	ib.
Import of coined silver to be prohibited (paragraph 54)	ib.
Bullion imported before prohibition to be admitted to coinage (paragraph 55)	ib.
Power to terminate the law by executive order (paragraph 56)	ib.
Subsidiary powers and measures (paragraphs 57 to 64)	ib.
Effect on export trade (paragraphs 65 to 67)	322
Fall in the value of the hoarded silver (paragraph 69)	323
Results of the action proposed (paragraphs 70 to 73)	ib.
XXXIII.—Despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 502, dated 18th December 1879 :—	325
Reply to the foregoing despatch. Circumstances have changed since the above was written. No change in the currency system be authorised now. But the question remains open (paragraphs 1 to 6)	ib.
XXXIV.—Memorandum, dated 2nd June 1880, by Mr. R. B. Chapman, on an International Bimetallic Standard measure of value :—	336
Prefatory remarks (paragraphs 1 and 2)	ib.
Distinction between a standard and an instrument of exchange (paragraph 3)	337
Distinction between substantive and representative money (paragraph 4)	ib.
Value of material of standard. Object of a standard (paragraph 5)	ib.
Instability of existing standards (paragraph 6)	ib.
Causes of their recent disturbances (paragraph 7)	339
Conclusions in 1876 that the value of gold and even silver had risen (paragraph 8)	ib.
Subsequent phenomena confirm the conclusions of 1876 (paragraphs 9 and 10)	ib.
Conclusion confined to facts apart from their causes (paragraph 11)	339
Fall of value of one commodity implies rise of that of its correlative (paragraph 12)	ib.
Value of silver and gold still higher than in 1873. Future of silver still doubtful (paragraph 13)	ib.
Loss to India from enhancement of her fixed gold obligations estimated at 2½ crores of rupees (paragraphs 14 and 16)	ib.

	PAGE
Advantages expected from International bimetallic standard (paragraph 17)	340
Fluctuations of exchange. Their main causes. Advantages of their elimination not to be over-rated (paragraphs 18 and 19)	341
International bimetallic standard existed under French Law of 1803 (paragraph 20)	ib.
Its effect upon the stability of exchange (paragraph 21)	ib.
Bimetallic standard not essential to stability of exchange (paragraph 22)	342
Stability of standard. Injurious consequences of its recent disturbance. Should not be liable to disturbance by action of one nation (paragraphs 23 to 26)	ib.
The best international standard measure of value (paragraph 27)	343
Such a standard must be gold, silver, or a combination of the two (paragraph 28)	ib.
Stability of standard to be distinguished from stability of exchange (paragraph 29)	344
Causes of values of precious metals (paragraph 30)	ib.
Uses of gold and silver. Waste in works of art insignificant. Use of precious metals for active money creates but small permanent demand upon stocks. Value of precious metals wholly dependent upon their uses for storing value (paragraphs 31 to 34)	ib.
True use of precious metals always to store value (paragraph 35)	345
Distinction between active and passive money (paragraph 36)	346
Pressure of demand upon precious metals for storing indefinite (paragraph 37)	ib.
Their efficiency for this propose not intrinsic, but dependent upon human laws (paragraph 38)	ib.
Recent practical examples of their truth (paragraph 39)	ib.
Precariousness of their value under present conditions (paragraph 40)	347
Relative values of precious metals are under human control	ib.
Production and stock of the precious metals (paragraph 42)	ib.
Effect of German demonetisation upon their relative values (paragraph 43)	ib.
Gravity of the risks lest other communities should follow suit (paragraph 44)	348
Inferior stability of monometallic standard (paragraph 45)	ib.
Various forms of the bimetallic standard (paragraph 46)	ib.
Existing correlation of gold and silver (paragraph 47)	ib.
Inefficiency of the existing correlation, even if it could be made permanent (paragraph 48)	ib.
Guarantee of status quo rejected. Also the method of election or amalgamation. Also that of associating the two metals in fixed proportions (paragraphs 49 to 51)	349
Other possible methods. These serve to illustrate principle and show efficiency of human laws (paragraphs 52 and 53)	ib.

	PAGE
The French method. Its efficacy in maintaining the stability of exchange and of the standard measure of value (paragraphs 54 and 55)	350
Stability of such standard. Effect of its general adoption upon creditors by existing gold standard (paragraph 56)	ib.
Proper ratio between gold and silver in such a standard (paragraph 57)	351
Proposed Union (paragraph 58)	ib.
Conclusions recapitulated (paragraph 59)	ib.
International Mint Regulations (paragraph 60)	352
Subsidiary currency reforms (paragraph 61)	ib.
Effect of international bimetallic standard upon metallic currency (paragraph 62)	ib.
Gold might possibly disappear from active circulation. But too much weight not to be allowed to this disadvantage (paragraph 63)	ib.
Additions to the stock of the precious metals since 1851 have caused no lasting loss of their value (paragraph 64)	353
Concomitant increase of human wealth (paragraph 65)	ib.
Probable connection between these phenomena (paragraph 66)	ib.
Threatened contraction of supply of the precious metals (paragraph 67)	ib.
Cosmopolitan character of the question. Interests of India. Importance of the problem (paragraphs 68 to 70)	354
XXXV.— Note by Mr. T. C. Hope, Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, dated 9th April 1881 :—	358
Proposed representation of India at the Bimetallic Conference to be held in Paris	ib.
XXXVI.— Minute by the Honourable Sir Evelyn Baring, dated 19th April 1881 :—	366
Bimetallicism is not to be supposed as opposed to views of competent authority (paragraphs 2 to 5)	ib.
Inconvenience of depreciation of silver not greatly felt in England (paragraph 6)	367
Indian interests. What are true Indian interests. The degree to which Indian treasury is affected (paragraphs 7 to 10)	ib.
But a false step might lead to greater evils. Remarks on bimetallicism. What is the true cause of the divergence in the values of the two metals (paragraphs 11 to 14)	369
Present currency system of India. What it would be if she were to join the Bimetallic Union. Fundamental principle of bimetallicism (paragraphs 15 to 19)	371
Main argument adduced against bimetallicists accrued (paragraphs 20 and 21)	372
No economic fallacy in theory of universal bimetallicism (paragraphs 22 to 32)	374
XXXVII.— Note by Mr. T. C. Hope, dated 12th May 1881 :—	380
Further note on the representation of India in the Bimetallic Conference. Proceedings of the Conference as reported in newspapers. Proceedings sheets not unfavourable	ib.

	Page
XXXVIII.— Note by the Honourable Sir E. Baring, dated 13th May 1881 :—	386
Attitude of the India delegates at the Conference. Views of the Government of India must be definitely placed before the Conference	ib.
XXXIX.— Despatch to the Secretary of State for India, No. 143, dated 10th June 1881 :—	388
Proposal that India should join a Bimetallic Union. Importance to India of the subject. India should join the Union if it is necessary	ib.
XXXIX-A.— Minute by His Excellency the Governor General (Lord Ripon), dated 10th June 1881, enclosed in the above despatch	392
XL.— Despatch to the Secretary of State, No. 45, dated 2nd February 1886 :—	394
Uncertainty regarding the future value of gold and silver. Its effect on Indian finance. Further depreciation apprehended by the repeal of the Bland Act. The consequences would be serious. The question of a Bimetallic Union should again be raised.	ib.
XLI.— Despatch from the Secretary of State for India, No. 194, dated 8th July 1886, forwarding correspondence with Her Majesty's Treasury on the subject of the Indian currency :—	401
(1) Letter from Sir A. Godley, to the Treasury, dated 17th March 1886	ib.
(2) Letter from the Treasury, No. 1728—4707, dated 31st May 1886	ib.
(3) Letter from Sir A. Godley, to the Treasury, dated 7th July 1886	407
XLII.— Despatch to the Secretary of State for India, No. 277, dated 4th September 1886, criticising the views of the Treasury :—	409
Importance to India of the question of the settlement of exchange (paragraphs 1 to 4)	ib.
Possibility of maintaining stability of relative value of gold and silver (paragraphs 5 to 10)	410
Question of gain or loss to India from the fall in the rate of exchange (paragraphs 11 to 14)	413
Omission to answer the arguments employed by the Treasury against the proposals of 1878 (paragraphs 15 and 16)	416
Possibility of relieving the finances by reduction of expenditure (paragraphs 17 to 22)	417
Nature of the remedy proposed (paragraphs 23 and 24)	421
XLIII.— Memorandum by Lieutenant-General R. Strachey, dated 31st March 1886 :—	423
Fall in exchange can be arrested either by the cessation of the fall of the relative value of silver to gold in the world generally, or by the adoption of gold standard (paragraph 2)	ib.
Impossibility of the first course (paragraphs 3 and 4)	ib.

How far the second alternative is practicable. Interference with standard of value is only justifiable in case of extreme urgency. Examination of the relative growing of the evils which are likely to be produced by the change or policy of inaction (paragraphs 7 to 11)	424
The remedy is to give India a gold standard without a gold coinage provision being made for the expansion of the currency to meet requirements of trade. What steps should be taken for this end (paragraphs 12 to 20)	425
Such a system can be introduced with very little interference with existing course of trade. Demand for silver for trade purposes (paragraphs 21 to 33)	427
Appreciation of gold in relation to merchandise would increase taxation to meet India's gold obligations. Nature of the difficulties of the Indian Government (paragraphs 34 and 35)	430
Stimulation of export trade due to fall in exchange. Import trade how affected (paragraphs 36 to 41)	ib.
Objections to inconvertible token currency (paragraphs 42 and 43)	432
XLIV.—Memorandum by Mr. R. Hardie, Secretary and Treasurer, Bank of Bengal, dated 22nd May 1886, criticising General Strachey's proposals	433
XLV.—Memorandum by Mr. J. Westland, Comptroller and Auditor General, dated 24th May 1886, criticising General Strachey's proposal	437
XLVI.—Memorandum by Mr. D. Barbour, Secretary to the Government of India, Finance Department, dated 11th June 1886 :—	440
Examination of the grounds on which the change of standard proposed by General Strachey would be justified (paragraphs 1 to 3)	ib.
Effect of the fall in exchange on European officers (paragraph 4)	441
Increased burden on India for meeting gold obligations. Effect of the proposed change on the public finances (paragraphs 6 to 14)	ib.
Artificial enhancement of taxation. Effect of the change on the revenue and expenditure of Government (paragraphs 11 to 18)	444
Effect on contracts. Effect on wages and tea industry (paragraph 15)	446
Other minor points (paragraphs 19 and 20)	449
XLVII.—Minute by the Honourable Sir Auckland Colvin, dated 6th July 1886, on General Strachey's memorandum :—	451
Whether there is any extreme urgency to justify the change of standard (paragraphs 3 to 6)	ib.
Comparative advantages of action and inaction (paragraphs 7 and 8)	456
Bearing of the measure in its relation to the Indian taxpayer and to Indian trade (paragraph 10)	459

	PAGE
XLVIII.—Despatch to the Secretary of State for India, No. 68, dated 23rd March 1892 :—	461
Consideration of the silver question owing to possible action by the United States if an International Agreement is not arrived at	ib.
XLIX.—Despatch to the Secretary of State, No. 160, dated 21st June 1892 :—	462
International Conference to consider measures for the rehabilitation of silver (paragraphs 1 to 3)	ib.
Effect of United States abandoning the attempt to maintain the use of silver as standard. Effect on finances and European Officers (paragraph 4)	ib.
India to close her mints if International Agreement, or a direct agreement between India and United States, is impossible (paragraph 8)	464
L.—Minute by the Honourable Sir David Barbour, dated 21st June 1892 :—	465
Distinction to be drawn between active circulation and the total number of rupees in existence (paragraph 1)	ib.
Even with a gold standard a large portion of the circulation would consist of silver coins. People would use silver coins (paragraphs 2 and 4)	ib.
Measures required for introducing a gold standard (paragraphs 5 to 7)	466
The ratio to be adopted for change from silver to gold (paragraph 8)	467
Contraction of the rupee currency necessary in certain contingencies (paragraphs 10 to 12)	ib.
Possible accumulation of gold. How to be dealt with (paragraph 13)	468
Estimate of the additional demand for gold (paragraphs 14 and 15)	ib.
An International Agreement for the free coinage of both silver and gold would be far better. If this cannot be obtained and if United States does not adopt free coinage of silver, India should attempt to establish a gold standard (paragraphs 16 and 17)	469
LI.—Notifications Nos. 2662, 2663, 2664, dated 26th June 1893 :—	471
(1) Receipt of sovereigns at the Mint	ib.
(2) Receipt of sovereigns in Treasuries	ib.
(3) Transfer of sovereigns to Paper Currency reserve	ib.
LII.—Extracts from minute by the Honourable Sir D. Barbour, dated 16th October 1893 :—	472
Deficit in Budget Estimates for 1893-94. Steps taken to secure equilibrium. Stoppage of free coinage of silver not followed by a rise in exchange. On the contrary trade with China seriously affected, and reduction in opium revenue must be expected (paragraphs 5 and 6)	ib.
Mere closing of the mints would hardly bring about the establishment of gold standard (paragraph 9)	ib.
Speedy establishment of gold standard most desirable (paragraph 10)	473

	PAGE
The task has been undertaken under specially unfavourable conditions. Various devices put forward (paragraphs 11 and 12)	473
Only sound method is the reduction of the rupee currency. The task will also be facilitated if remittances to England are reduced (paragraphs 13 and 14)	474
LIII.—Minute, dated the 17th October 1896, by the Honourable Sir James Westland, discussing the propriety of altering the rate at which gold should be received in exchange for rupees from 1 s. 4 d. to 1 s. 3 d.	475
LIV.—Minute, dated 22nd October 1896, by Mr. J. F. Finlay, on Sir James Westland's proposal to alter the gold point 1 s. 4 d. to 1 s. 3 d.	483
LV.—Despatch from Secretary of State, No. 129 (Financial), dated 5th August 1897 :—	490
Proposal to re-open the Indian Mints to free coinage of silver as part of a contemplated arrangement under which France and the United States will open their Mints to silver as well as to gold	ib.
LVI.—Despatch to the Secretary of State, No. 261, dated the 16th September 1897, containing the views of the Government of India on the proposals of France and the United States	492
LVII.—Notification No. 4071, dated 11th September 1897. Receipt of sovereign at the Reserve Treasuries	501
LVIII.—Despatch to Secretary of State, No. 70, dated 3rd March 1898 :—	502
Contraction of currency was the main principle on which the legislation of 1893 was based. Stoppage of additions has differentiated the value of the rupee from that of silver. If circulation can be put back to the condition in which it was a few years before 1893, rupee would be raised to 16 d. The scheme of 1893 contemplated this. Stoppage of annual additions was expected to bring about the desired result before long. But various causes operated to prolong the period. Still further affected by abnormal state of trade (paragraphs 1 to 7)	ib.
Accumulation of gold reserve not likely to be automatically attained. Process should no longer be prolonged. Steps should be taken to accumulate a reserve. Redundancy of rupee currency to be removed. Amount that should thus be reduced. How reduction of currency to be effected. This can be effected by suspension of Council Bills. But this is not advisable. The rupees should be melted and bullion sold. The advantages of this course (paragraphs 8 to 15)	504
Creation of gold reserve. This should be done by borrowing in England. Power should be taken from Parliament to borrow up to 20 millions sterling. Five millions to be borrowed at once and shipped to India (paragraphs 16 to 18)	506

	Page
The uses to which the gold reserve would be put. It would first replace deficiency in rupee currency due to sale of melted rupees. Gold would flow into the country under certain conditions. The gold reserve would not be parted with until these conditions are reached (paragraphs 19 and 20)	507
When that stage is reached sovereigns will be recognised as current coin of the Empire. Operation of trade would raise exchange to a point at which gold will flow into the country (paragraph 21)	ib.
Taking of active steps by Government would restore confidence and gold will be imported (paragraph 22)	503
Operation of ebb and flow of gold will take place through the Government remittances (paragraph 23)	ib.
Estimate of the cost of the operation (paragraph 24)	509
Help by Her Majesty's Government (paragraph 25)	ib.
Measures would be welcomed by the mercantile communities and the public of India (paragraphs 26 and 27)	ib.
Examination of Mr. Lindsay's scheme (paragraph 28)	ib.
Examination of Mr. Probyn's scheme (paragraphs 29 and 30)	510
LIX.—Minute by the Honourable Sir James Westland, dated 18th January 1898, examining the currency scheme proposed by Mr. A. M. Lindsay, of the Bank of Bengal	512
LX.—Minute by the Honourable Sir James Westland, dated 1st October 1898 :—	517
Remarks on the system of management of the Government balances in India (paragraphs 2 to 17)	ib.
Remarks on the suggestion that Government wishes to force gold into the country by creating artificial stringency (paragraphs 18 to 21)	523
Remarks about the allegation as to the prevalence of illicit coinage (paragraphs 22 to 24)	524
LXI.—Despatch from the Secretary of State for India, No. 140 (Financial), dated the 25th July 1899 :—	526
Summary of Currency Committee's Report (paragraphs 1 to 5)	ib.
General concurrence in the recommendations of the Committee (paragraph 6)	527
Policy of closing Mints to free coinage of silver to be maintained. British sovereigns to be declared legal tender and Mints opened to free coinage of silver. Rating of the rupee to the sovereign (paragraph 7)	ib.
Management of gold reserve (paragraph 8)	ib.
Improvement and concentration of banking facilities (paragraph 9)	ib.
Opinion against sterling borrowing (paragraph 10)	ib.
Further observations invited (paragraph 11)	ib.
LXII.—Despatch to the Secretary of State for India, No. 301; dated the 24th August 1899 :—	528
Receipt of Secretary of State's despatch acknowledged and general gratification expressed at the report of the Committee (paragraphs 1 and 2)	ib.

xviii

	PAGE
Summary of Committee's recommendations (paragraph 3).	528
Concurrence expressed to the several recommendations of the Committee with some reserve as regards the proposal to borrow in gold. Although actual borrowing may not take place, power to borrow may be obtained. Possession of such powers would strengthen public confidence (paragraphs 4 to 11)	529
Mr. Hambro's proposal for the establishment of a strong Bank (paragraph 12)	532