THE STUDENT; AND ASMODEUS AT LARGE.

"Poet, Essayist, Orator, Statesman, Dramatist, Scholar, Novelist—he had been all these, and this not like the fickle profligate satirised by Pope, who tried all things and never finished any; for whatever the character Lord Lytton essayed to fill, he worked at the object he put before himself with conscientious thoroughness until he had completed his design. . . . The vigour, wit, and polish of 'St. Stephens' entitled him to high rank in the masculine school of Dryden and Pope; the 'Lost Tales of Miletus' have charmed scholars with their playful fancy, and the translations from Schiller have been vouched by Mr. Carlyle as the versions an English reader should consult who wishes to know the lyrics of the great German author. Those who are most familiar with Lord Lytton's essays are most fond of them, and are most persuaded that they have never received fit recognition. Certain it is, that among the earliest collected of his writings of this kind—'The Student'—are some papers of singular power and beauty which have never been adequately appreciated. The author of the 'Lady of Lyons' was flattered by the preference of every actress on the stage for the part of Pauline; and the audience in the most fastidious of our theatres have welcomed 'Money' every night for more than six months past."—Times, Jan. 20, 1873.
