Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE (Ahmednagar District): Sir, I think more light must be thrown on this transaction. It appears from the Blue Book on page 180 that the total amount which it has been proposed to borrow next year is Rs. 4,41,13,000. That is to say, we are ourselves not in a solvent condition and we are borrowing. This amount is going to be spent, among others, on "Lloyd Barrage, other irrigation, productive and unproductive." Under unproductive head, they want Rs. 62,21,000 as over-draft for land revenue deficit, for the Bombay Improvement Trust Rs. 38,41,000. Now, it is too true that the Bombay Improvement Trust had put in a notice in the newspapers advertising this particular loan. As it comes out they were not able to borrow and perhaps the public would have asked for more interest. I believe we charge them a little more interest than we pay. [Honourable Members: No, no.] We do not? This is another reason why this should not be paid. The Bombay Government get their loan from the Government of India at varying rates of interest. In order to cover up the difference in rates of interest, they were lending to the local bodies at a higher interest which varies from ¼ to ½ per cent. I am now told that we are lending to the Improvement Trust and to the bargain at the same rate of interest.

[Rao Bahadur G K. Chitale]

The Bombay Government make themselves as debtor to pay to the Government of India the loan which they take. Therefore I think that this amount which appears to be intended to cover up the deficit or perhaps intended to be sunk more in the improvement of land which is at present unsaleable in the hope that it will fetch better price later on is doubtful investment. It may be in the long run we may not lose the whole amount. As we are ourselves under bankrupt circumstances, I do not think one bankrupt should borrow and lend it to another. Here an honourable friend suggests that the Government of India is a bankrupt. I will not say it is bankrupt, because every year it gets 135 crores. Under the circumstances, it is a fact that the whole loan programme has been fixed up on this page. So, no loans will be available to the other cities in the mofussil for water-supply or anything else, because Government will have no more money. Under the circumstances, I would not go to the extent of not making the whole grant but the Government may halve it and see what they do with it in the next year and see in the bargain they become more and more solvent or err on the side of bankruptcy.

Mr. G. WILES: I am not sure Sir, whether this is really the occasion for a full dress debate on the situation of the Improvement Trust. As we find that the debate has tended to develop into such a one, I think I can in a very few words say why we propose to lend this sum in the current year. The situation of the Improvement Trust, as you must know from the reading of newspapers, has given considerable anxiety to the members of the Trust themselves and to the members of the Corporation. I am going to read an extract in order that the matter may not be exaggerated. I will just read a few lines from the report which was published 10 years ago about the Improvement Trust,—it is in the Annual Administration Report of 1920-21:

"It must, however, be recognised that during the next few years, while large works on hand are actually in progress, interest and sinking fund charges on our capital will increase materially and the revenue will not materially increase until the works are completed and plots available for disposal. We must therefore anticipate a material reduction and even temporary deficits in the revenue budget for the next few years, until the disposal of the developed plots yielding the estimated return on the capital expenditure."

In a few words it gives the situation of the Improvement Trust. They had 10 years ago reached a period when they were bound to have a series of deficit budgets. They had put money into the development and could not expect to get it back in the normal course of events for a good number of years. On the top of that has come the slump in land values, which has had a similar effect to that we have had in our provincial revenue. We have suffered even more cruelly in our own development plans in Bombay than the Improvement Trust. This annual deficit which began a few years ago, we cannot unfortunately see the end of unless the Bombay city will provide the revenue to meet this deficit.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Are we to lend until the annual deficits are met?

Mr. G. WILES: I hope the honourable member will understand the whole thing, when I have finished.

[Mr. G. Wiles]

A series of deficits has started which is bound to increase, unless the Bombay city supplies some revenue towards meeting the interest charges and the payment of debt. I do not propose to go into it at any length, because as you must know, there is an application before Government from the municipality for the amalgamation of the municipality with the Trust. That application has been followed by the request that certain additional sources of revenue should be given to the municipality. That cannot be done without legislation and legislation will have to come in due course before this House. But in the meantime, owing to the circumstances over which the Trust themselves have no control, they were unable to raise local money to cover their annual deficit. We all know the state of the money market in Bombay. The banks have been unwilling to give long term loans. They are willing to lend short term loans for six months or so, which do not meet the situation. Obviously, therefore, if they are to prevent what might be considered a considerable disaster to the city of Bombay, we must come to their rescue and assure the city of Bombay that money shall be raised and provided at reasonable terms for the Improvement Trust. That is all that Government are intending to do at present. They have assured the Corporation and the Improvement Trust that they will in the current year lend 35 lakhs and a similar sum next year. That is the only obligation we have undertaken at present. In consenting to do this, we have taken all reasonable precautions, as was required by the honourable member from Dharwar, that we will get our money back. This is not a gift and we shall in instalments get back the money. It will be given in the usual shape of a loan which will be recovered in a period of 30 years.

Without going into the merits of what is bankruptcy and what is not bankruptcy, I must say that the suggestion of the honourable member from Ahmednagar (Rao Bahadur Chitale) is not a practicable proposition. I have made it perfectly clear that what we give them must be sufficient to balance their budget in the next year. No half measures will be of any value. I do not think it is true to say that it will have any effect on the mofussil, because no loan has been demanded from any local authority outside Bombay city on good conditions which has been refused.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, the proposal is to give a loan of Rs. 35 lakhs to the Bombay City Improvement Trust. Sir, I oppose this grant. As I stand to do so, several honourable members from Sind request me not to oppose, as this concerns Bombay only. I tell them that this is wrong policy, because by remaining silent we pay Rs. 50 lakhs as interest from revenue for Back Bay and Development Schemes. As the Presidency members did not take any interest in the Barrage, we will suffer loss on that project in future. The Government of Bombay themselves are on the verge of bankruptcy, and yet they propose to give a loan of 35 lakhs to some other body. The honourable member Mr. Hoosenally Rahimtoola has told us that the Improvement Trust has to pay loans to the extent of fifteen crores. [An Honourable Member: Seven crores.] Seven crores. The honourable member also told us that the deficits of the Trust were due to the fall in the market value of land. We are also told that the Trust will continue to require additional finance for the next eight years. It is clear, therefore, that the Trust is going down from year to year. Is it the intention of Government to finance it continuously? They have already given it seven crores, and this 35 lakhs will be an additional loan. We must object to this loan being given at a time when owing to the fall in our revenues even grants given to district local boards for health and education are being cut. To me it appears that there is no prospect of getting back the money from the Trust within the next ten years. Therefore this loan should not be given to the Improvement Trust.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association): There is no doubt, Sir, that the growing liabilities and the general financial position of the Improvement Trust are such as might very rightly cause anxiety to those who desire to consider the stability of the Trust not only in relation to its own prosperity and existence, but also to those of the city of Bombay. But, Sir, we have got to bear in mind the facts that the Improvement Trust has on its hands very enormous areas of exceedingly valuable land, both undeveloped and developed, ready for sale, which, however, in view of the current slump in land, cannot possibly be disposed of and are consequently adding to the difficulties of the present unsatisfactory situation. Only the other day, in reply to a question asked by an honourable member of this House, the Government gave very valuable information relating to the areas of land in the City of Bombay belonging to the different public bodies, including the Improvement Trust. There you will find the exact extent of the area in the possession of the Improvement Trust. I am sorry that I cannot lay my hands on the answer now. But if I remember aright, the area now in the possession of the Trust was given as a little over 2,400 acres, or in other words, about half of the total area belonging to all other public bodies put together, viz. the Government, the Port Trust, the Railways, and the Development Department. These figures, I think, ought to be enough to give to the honourable members of this House an idea of the valuable land possessed by the Improvement Trust. Whether it will be possible to dispose of this enormous area or even a substantial part of it at present or even in the immediate future, for anything approaching a fair rate, is a matter which, I admit, is extremely debatable and shrouded in very great uncertainty. But, I have no doubt in my mind that at a not very distant date, it will be possible for the Improvement Trust to sell off at very remunerative rates the extensive areas of land which are now lying undisposed of in its possession.

All these vast areas together with the numerous buildings, chawls and other structures, which the Trust possesses, constitute the property and assets of the Trust. I am sure that these will be considered an adequate security for the payment of the loans the Trust now has and may hope to raise in the future. Personally, Sir, I am of opinion that this security is both exceedingly valuable and perfectly adequate. Until, however, these areas can be disposed of, the Trust must continue to exist and function, even though it may be, as it is now, an adjunct of the Municipality. Under these circumstances, it is inevitable that it should incur losses of and incidental to its existence and work. It is but fair that it should be financed in the meanwhile, to enable it to carry on the administration and to meet its statutory obligations. But even assuming for argument's sake that the Improvement Trust is ultimately unable to meet its liabilities, it must be remembered that under the Improvement Trust Act, it is the Bombay Municipality which is finally liable for the entire burden of the losses of the Trust and not the Provincial revenues. The Municipality is fully cognisant of this ultimate liability and is not very happy over it. But the position is there and it is no use disputing or denying it at this stage. In any case, the Government of Bombay and their revenues are not likely to be affected thereby in the remotest degree. But at the same time I must remind the House that the Government of Bombay have undertaken, under the Act, not only to finance the Trust from time to time but also to give it all facilities for raising loans for the purpose of carrying on its administration and meeting its liabilities until such time as it is able to make up the deficits, which it has unfortunately to incur at present. Until the trade depression passes off and the Trust is able to dispose of the vast properties and areas of land on its hands, the present position must continue, to the detriment of the Municipality, but certainly not to the disadvantage of the provincial revenues. The position is no doubt very unfortunate, but it cannot be helped. The Trust is at prsent suffering very heavy losses and the Government must help it in carrying on the administration. Unless that is done, all the money and labour that have been devoted towards the acquisition and development of these enormous areas of land, will be lost. That is a possibility that the House can never contemplate with equanimity or indifference.

For all these reasons, there is no alternative for the House but to support the demand under discussion.

Mr. A. B. ACHREKAR: In view of the fact that the Bombay Municipality will have to take over charge of the Improvement Trust, may I ask whether the Bombay Municipality has been consulted in the matter?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Yes, Mr. President. As there is also a cut of 37 lakhs proposed by the honourable member from Dharwar to the loan to be given to the Improvement Trust next year, I think it would be better to clear the position now. Honourable members wanted to know what the estate of the Trust was. I will read to them a short passage showing what estate the Trust has:

"The area developed by the Trust with the help of this expenditure comes to 1,030 acres; only 488 acres of this area, however, have been leased out bringing in an annual revenue of about Rs. 30 lakhs.....Apart from the developed land the Trust has in its possession undeveloped land to the extent of 1,543 acres. There are about 1,037 temporary buildings scattered over this area bringing in a net temporary revenue of 5·7 lakhs. The other works executed by the Trust include the construction of about 61 miles of roads at a cost of 2,15 lakhs, excluding cost of land. Of these about 48 miles of road have been handed over to the Municipality. The Trust has also constructed over 24,500 permanent tenements in chawls and over 1,800 semi-permanent structures for a similar purpose, at the total cost of 133 lakhs. The rental value of all these tenements is nearly nine and half lakhs though the actual realisations came to 8·84 lakhs in 1929-30. Besides this, the Trust has undertaken and completed a scheme of great utility to Government—the construction of sanitary dwellings for the Presidency Police. On this item the Trust has spent over 109 lakhs providing nearly 3,500 tenements. This includes the biggest scheme taken up by the Trust, Scheme No. 67 for Armed Police and Recruits."

[Sir Govindrao Pradhan]

Owing to the slump in the market the properties are not fetching proper rent.

Mr. V. N. JOG: What is the income from the tenements?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: The income from buildings is 5·7 lakhs; from tenements 8·84 lakhs; then there are the tenements given to the Police. We have got an account of the income and expenditure of the Trust. As the honourable member the Finance Secretary told the honourable House, it was all along expected that there would be deficit years in the Trust's career, because money has to be spent before there is a return. The properties that were developed were developed with borrowed money. After the properties are sold then the money will come in. As far back as 1921 it was expected that there would be a series of six or eight deficit years, but owing to the slump in the market price of land, it was expected that the period of deficits would be 10 or 12 years. Perhaps that period may also increase. But ultimately the Trust will be able to pay its way. The loan which is now wanted by the Trust is for this reason. The Trust floated a loan of 30 lakhs, but the whole loan was not covered. You cannot borrow money at ruinous rates of interest and you cannot allow the loan to be heavily underwritten. Therefore, only about Rs. 8,88,000 was realised. The Trust has in all 14 lakhs. But Rs. 13,97,000 was the interest payable to the Government of Bombay on the 1st of November 1931 for the Development Loan; then Rs. 22,95,000 is the interest payable to the Bombay Government for the loan of 4,16 lakhs to which the honourable member made a reference; and Rs. 12,50,000 is the instalment of that loan of 4,76 lakhs, these instalments being payable up to 1956. To make good the amount the Trust is asking for a loan of 35 lakhs.

As has been rightly pointed out, the Trust is not a bankrupt body. There is also provision in section 95 of the Act of 1925 that if the Trust defaults, then the Bombay Corporation can be called upon to make that payment; the Bombay Government can hand over the properties of the Trust to the Corporation and can also ask them to levy certain taxes which will go to clear off the debt. So, that is the position of the Trust. It is wrong to suppose that it is bankrupt; it is wrong to suppose that we are advancing money to them when we have none ourselves. We cannot allow such a useful body to be dissolved, because that will be the only alternative if no loan is to be advanced to them. Sir, I think I have made the position of the Trust quite clear. It has very large estates; those estates can be sold when prices improve. The position has not come as a surprise; the deficit years were expected as far back as 1921.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: What is the rate of interest that is going to be charged?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: The rate of interest would be what is charged by the Government of India, as was stated by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: How much do they charge?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Six and a half per cent. for productive loans and 6¾ per cent. for unproductive loans. That is the rate this year.

Question put, and agreed to.

Excess expenditure anticipated under "37, Miscellaneous Departments (Reserved)—Inspection of Motor Vehicles.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, I make a demand for a supplementary grant of Rs. 4,000 under "37, Miscellaneous Departments (Reserved)*."

Question put, and agreed to.

Payment of overtime allowance to the staff of the Posts and Telegraphs Department for overtime work done during the floods of 1929 in Sind.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Sir, I make a demand for a token grant of Rs. 10 under "43-A, Famine Relief (Reserved).†" I do not think the House will want me to explain this. It is a very old story. It was absolutely necessary that we should have all the telegraph offices open in Sind at all hours of the day and night during the floods, and when the men had to be on duty 24 hours instead of the usual 8 hours, it was necessary that they should receive some remuneration. We do not give them anything like the usual rate. After considerable correspondence with the Government of India, we got this bill for Rs. 7,090-10-0. The bill was paid, and I think the money was very well spent.

Question put, and agreed to.

DEMANDS FOR GRANTS

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 56,48,000 (C. E. page 308), Total, Loans and Advances by Provincial Government.

Question proposed.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, I beg to move:

Reduce by Rs. 100—Total, Loans and Advances by Provincial Government—Rs. 56,48,000 (C. E. page 308).

In moving this cut, the first point I wish to raise is that in the distribution of this loan money, all the parts of the Presidency and institutions and bodies which require greater help do not have their wants sufficiently met. Yesterday we discussed the matter of the loan to the Bombay Improvement Trust and you will be pleased to see, Sir, that out of a total of Rs. 4,41,00,000 which it has been proposed to borrow for next year, a large portion of the next year's budget provision for this loan money goes towards the expenses of the Lloyd Barrage and unproductive loans in which there is a provision to meet overdraft and revenue deficit and then out of the remaining amount, which is a very small sum, Rs. 38,41,000 goes to the Improvement Trust, and only a small portion of about 20 lakhs remains for all other purposes.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: May I interrupt the honourable member for a minute? Where does the Lloyd Barrage come in? If the honourable member will please look at page 308, White Book, he will see that the sum of Rs. 56,48,000 is for loans and advances to the Improvement Trust and other bodies, and the Lloyd Barrage does not come in at all.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Yes, Sir. The Honourable the Finance Member is right. I was showing, Sir, that a small percent of the loan money goes to the mofussil wants. You will be pleased to see, Sir, that the sum of Rs. 56,48,000 includes Rs. 9,69,000 for advances to cultivators, Rs. 1,02,000 only for loans to municipalities and district local boards and Rs. 8,77,000 for miscellaneous loans and advances. So, for the whole of the Presidency, the loans to be given to the local bodies amount only to one lakh, which is quite insufficient. Many of the works are held up in these local bodies and it is only owing to the financial stringency, which is the excuse given on all hands, that even if primary education schemes are launched, Government say they have got no money. My submission is therefore, Sir, that a larger provision ought to have been made for loans to local bodies.

With regard to advances to cultivators and to co-operative societies, you will be pleased to see, Sir, that the condition of cultivators this year is very bad and the loans which are to be given to cultivators (as given on page 179 of the Blue Book) come to about Rs. 9,69,000, including loans to co-operative societies. This amount is also insufficient. In this particular case, I wish to bring to the notice of the House the position of certain co-operative institutions. Just as in the case of the Improvement Trust, the position of some of the urban co-operative banks is very bad. Recently I became connected with some co-operative institution in Dharwar which had come into trouble in August last and that trouble, so far as I can see, was brought about by the lack of sufficient fluid resources, as they were pursuing the policy of advancing loans on lands and houses. Due to this policy, most of the amount received as deposits from the outside public was invested in giving loans for the maximum period of five years on immoveable property and on houses and, as in the case of the Improvement Trust, these co-operative institutions cannot now convert these properties into liquid resources, because when default in repayment of loans occurs and properties are brought to sale, we find that nobody comes forward to buy them. It is not that the properties are bad or that they have no intrinsic worth, but there is the depression all round in the property market. There have been instances of this kind in the Dharwar district. The co-operative institutions then buy the properties themselves and hold possession in the hope that better times will come when they can sell those properties to good advantage, and in the meanwhile, they collect the rents of these properties——

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: May I ask what those institutions are?

Mr. V. N. JOG: In Dharwar the urban co-operative bank with which I became recently connected and I am told also the Karnatak Central Bank branch at Gadag had to buy certain properties. When properties are brought to sale, these institutions buy them up, because there is no money with the public to pay for these properties. There may be similar instances in other districts also, but I am quoting those instances which I have come across in my own district. The whole difficulty arises from the fact that the depositors who have kept their money with such institutions, do not wait but they want to withdraw their deposits as soon as they mature. As, however, the funds of these institutions have been locked up in immoveable properties, they cannot be converted into liquid resources. My submission therefore is that, as the Government has been kind enough to go to the aid of the Improvement Trust and has helped that body to carry on for some years until it will be amalgamated with the Bombay Municipality when better circumstances will prevail, similarly I request the Honourable the Minister for Co-operative Societies to be pleased to come forward and grant loans to such institutions if he is satisfied that the loans which he may give are safe. No doubt, for the present the immovable properties may not be fetching their market value, but the period of depression is sure to go and then there is bound to be an improvement in the property market so that their value as security for loans advanced to the institutions will be enhanced and the loans will be rendered quite a safe proposition. I would even go a little further and request the Honourable Minister to get Government to borrow money, if it be necessary to do so, in order to help co-operative institutions, as, otherwise I am afraid the co-operative movement in some parts of the presidency will be in danger for the simple reason that the depositors do not agree to wait and the institutions have to find money anyhow. In fact, I know that many applications have been made to the Registrar of Co-operative Societies complaining that these societies are not paying up and should therefore be wound up——

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: May I know if any proper representations have been made in this matter?

Mr. V. N. JOG: I am not sure about that, but my point is that enough provision has not been made for loans to co-operative institutions. My submission therefore is that in the event of applications for monetary help going forward to Government from co-operative institutions, those applications should be viewed with leniency and not with strictness, because the circumstances of these various societies are also on a par with those of the Bombay Improvement Trust.

[Mr. V. N. Jog]

With these words, I move this cut.

Question proposed.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, yesterday we were told something about the bad condition of the financial position of the Bombay Improvement Trust, and the honourable members who are members of the Bombay Municipal Corporation have said that the work done by the Improvement Trust is such that there is every prospect of the loans being repaid when they become due. Sir, when I opposed the grant of loan to Bombay Improvement Trust yesterday, I had no copy of the Bombay Improvement Trust budget made available to me, but I managed to get a copy of the budget of the Bombay Improvement Trust for the year 1932-33 and had the benefit of talks with several members of that body. On going through the figures I doubt whether, even if they are able to sell off all their lands, they will be able to liquidate their debts. I find that there was a deficit of Rs. 28,00,000 in 1928-29 and this deficit has been rising every year and has reached a figure of Rs. 35 lakhs this year.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: I rise to a point of order. I beg to point out that the cut of Rs. 37,00,000 is not now before the House; that has not been moved. The honourable member seems to think that the cut of Rs. 37,00,000 is now under discussion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The motion is for a cut of Rs. 100 under the head "Loans and Advances by Provincial Government", and the honourable member is in order in referring to this matter.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: In 1929-30 there was a deficit of Rs. 26,00,000, and the deficits have gone on increasing to Rs. 29,00,000, Rs. 31,00,000 and Rs. 34,00,000. The amount of interest charges of the Improvement Trust is Rs. 90,00,000 every year. Their expenditure, with interest, is Rs. 1,11,41,000. Their total revenue is Rs. 67,00,000. How long is the Bombay Improvement Trust to be allowed to continue like this? I said yesterday that the total debt of the Improvement Trust was Rs. 15,00,00,000. My figure was not correct. The correct figure of their debt is Rs. 17,00,00,000, out of which Rs. 7,00,00,000 has been advanced by the Bombay Government and the rest has been raised in the market with the approval of Government. Honourable members on this side of the House may take it from me that after 15 years, even if their expectations with regard to the rise in the prices of land are fulfilled, the Improvement Trust will not be in a position to repay the loan. Calculating even at 7 per cent. interest, in the course of 13 years the debt will be doubled, and in the course of 20 years 17 crores will mount up to 42 crores. Sir, the Improvement Trust was created at a time when the land values were high. To-day, land does not fetch even a quarter of that price. Therefore, I submit that the honourable member the Finance Secretary and the Honourable the Finance Member should be very careful about this matter. Similarly, I do not think that my honourable friends on this side should sleep over this. They know what happened to the Bombay Development Scheme. Government then used to say that they would be able to sell the reclaimed land in Back Bay and make a huge profit of Rs. 30 crores out of it. But what is the position to-day ? Not less than 50 lakhs a year are paid in interest charges alone from our current general revenues. The position of the Improvement Trust will be worse than this. So, the time has come when the Improvement Trust must be abolished, and its operations handed over to the Bombay Municipality. Out of the 7 crores loan which has been advanced by Government to the Improvement Trust, even if they get back 4 crores, they may consider themselves lucky. Honourable members from Sind and from the Presidency proper should not consider that this is a matter which concerns the city of Bombay alone, and therefore they need not mind it. They must remember that the loan is advanced by the Government, and if it is not repaid, it is the finances of the presidency that will have to bear the burden. Sir, the complaint from all sides of the House is that enough money is not forthcoming for primary education, medical relief, etc. How can then Government spend enough on these losing concerns ? If this state of things is allowed to go on, the Presidency will be more bankrupt than it is to-day. Sir, in the Worli area land was at one time sold at Rs. 25 to Rs. 30 per square yard ; the price is now Rs. 6 per square yard. Even if the land is offered at Rs. 15 a square yard, there are no buyers. So, in my opinion, all these lands of the Improvement Trust must be sold even at Rs. 3 per square yard and the money realised. Sir, the people who took up the Improvement Trust plots and put up buildings on them are now crying. I came across one or two gentlemen who have put up such buildings, and they are wailing that they cannot get sufficient return to cover even the interest charges, and though they get Rs. 900 per mensem as rent out of which they have to pay Rs. 400 a month to the Improvement Trust and Rs. 400 to the municipality and the balance is absorbed by collection and repair charges. The position of all people who have purchased Improvement Trust lands is the same and further some unlucky ones who don't get tenants have to pay out of their pockets to retain the possession of the plots. Therefore, I say the Honourable the Finance Member should stop this business. He and the honourable member Mr. Wiles are expert financiers and I cannot imagine why they are continuing this losing concern and are heading for insolvency. I know, if he had been a member sitting on this side of the House, he would have raised a hue and cry about it. But he is now on the Government benches. However, I hope he will take steps to put an end to this Improvement Trust as early as possible.

Mr. A. N. SURVE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, this time last year, when I referred to the solvency of Corporations in the city of Bombay to which Government have been advancing loans, the Honourable the Finance Member contradicted me. Sir, the policy which the Government is pursuing in this matter requires to be attended to at the earliest possible moment. During the Poona session last year we had the Improvement

[Mr. A. N. Surve]

Trust Act Amendment Bill. At that time also I warned Government to make some provision by which the Improvement Trust would not be under the necessity of coming back to this House again. At that time my amendment was rejected; and what do we find now? Yesterday a supplementary grant for the payment of a loan to the Improvement Trust was passed, and to-day we find that another grant for the next year is required for a similar purpose. I am not opposed to the grant; I am merely criticising the policy of Government. To-day it is only the Improvement Trust that is in difficulties but in course of time the debts of the Improvement Trust are to be saddled on the Bombay City Municipal Corporation. To-day, with some difficulty the Municipal Corporation can manage to repay the instalments of its loans, but when the amalgamation of the Trust with the city municipality comes into operation, it will be the municipality that will experience the difficulty which is being felt by the Improvement Trust to-day. I warn Government that this sort of tinkering will in the end work disaster. I am afraid that these corporations will not be able to meet their liabilities, and Government will have to come to this Council to say that these debts must be met out of the revenues of the Presidency. Therefore, my humble suggestion to the Government is that they should expedite the amalgamation of these two corporations, and unless that is done and sufficient resources are set apart for these two corporations, a disaster is impending. I request Government to pay heed to the note of warning that I have uttered just now.

Mr. PESTANSHAH N. VAKIL (Ahmedabad City): Sir, I am tempted to offer a few remarks on the financial position of the Bombay City Improvement Trust. After the very full and frank explanation advanced by the honourable member the Finance Secretary and the equally emphatic assurance given by the Honourable the Finance Member, that all was well with the Bombay City Improvement Trust, it will be churlish to question the propriety of the present demand or to challenge the solvency or the financial position of the Bombay City Improvement Trust.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (in Urdu): If they go to the open market, they will not get a pie as they are apparently insolvents. But Government want to advance this money.

Mr. PESTANSHAH N. VAKIL: But, Sir, the occupants of the Treasury Benches are such confirmed optimists that we may be permitted to pause for a moment to examine the real position of the Trust, particularly in view of the history of the Back Bay Reclamation Scheme, the Bombay Development Scheme, and last but not least, the Sukkur Barrage Scheme. Yesterday, Sir, some members of the Bombay Municipal Corporation, who are honourable members of this House and presumably members of the Improvement Trust, spoke on this question, and their assurances are to be treated with the respect they deserve. But facts are stubborn things, and we may well pause to consider them a little more closely. The history of the Bombay

City Improvement Trust is so interesting that it reads very like a story from the Arabian Nights, but we need not concern ourselves with its past history except in so far as it gives us some indication of its future.

Sir, the total liabilities of the Trust up to date are in the neighbourhood of 17 crores of rupees, out of which anything between 7 and 8 crores are advanced by the Bombay Government. Now, taking interest at the conservative rate of 5½ per cent. per annum,—as a matter of fact the Honourable the Finance Member told us only yesterday that the Government of India now advance money at a considerably higher rate of interest—the interest charges alone would come to about 93 lakhs of rupees. To these charges are to be added the expenses of management and establishment and the taxes to be paid to the city municipality. They cannot be well under Rs. 15,00,000. Therefore, the total annual expenditure of the Bombay City Improvement Trust must be somewhere in the neighbourhood of Rs. 1,10,00,000. Now, as against this, the total revenues of the Trust are, we are told, something like Rs. 50,00,000. To this must be added Rs. 23,00,000, being the annual contribution of the Bombay Municipality. The total revenues of the Trust therefore amount to Rs. 73,00,000. There is thus a gulf of something like 35 lakhs of rupees between this figure and the figure of Rs. 1,10,00,000. The annual deficit of the Trust is always bound to be somewhere in the vicinity of Rs. 35,00,000.

Sir, these are the figures which I have worked out by the rule of thumb and they do not pretend to be very very accurate. There may be a difference of a lakh here or there, but they may be taken as accurate for all practical purposes. But the one important thing left out of consideration is the amount to be set apart for the liquidation of the debt and for the sufficient reason that the Trust has not the wherewithal to liquidate the debt. This, in a nutshell, is the financial position of the Trust. Now we may turn to the assets of the Trust as against its liabilities. What are the total assets? We were confronted with a portentous array of figures by the honourable member the Finance Secretary. There are 1,000 acres of developed land, half of which has been leased, 1,500 acres of undeveloped land, about 1,000 temporary buildings, 24,500 permanent tenements in chawls, and 1,800 semi-permanent structures. Besides this, the Trust has spent money to the extent of a crore of rupees on the construction of 2,500 tenements for the Presidency Police and has in addition constructed 61 miles of road at a cost of something like 2 crores and 15 lakhs of rupees. But this is not expected to bring in any money unless toll-bars are allowed to be put up thereon—a contingency which is beyond the reach of possibility. That is in brief the financial position of the Trust. I should now leave it to the honourable members to judge for themselves whether that is a position which we can view with equanimity. Is this what you would call a solvent position? Year after year the Government have got to come to the assistance of the Trust and advance loans out of which alone Government can recover the interest on the loans previously given.

[Mr. Pestanshah N. Vakil]

The sovereign remedy to which everybody looks is the fusion of the Trust with the Municipality. This expectation of course loses sight of the cardinal fact that it will permanently saddle the municipality with a total annual recurring charge of 28 lakhs of its revenues. If the fortunes of the two corporations are bound together, it may very well happen, though I do not associate myself with the very strong language used by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Chitale—that it is a case of one bankrupt (meaning Government) lending to another—and I say it may happen that in its gallant efforts to assist the other corporation, the Bombay Corporation may itself be dragged into the vortex of bankruptcy. For, what after all is going to be the price of this fusion? The ultimate burden will fall on the rate-payers of Bombay. There is a section of the Improvement Trust Transfer Act under which Government can call upon the Bombay Municipality to immediately assume all the liabilities and take possession of all the assets of the Trust in the event of the Trust becoming a defaulter in the matter of payment. There is also another section under which the Bombay Municipality, after ascertaining that there is no necessity any longer for the continuance of the Trust, can approach the Bombay Government with a request to permit them to take over all the liabilities and assets of the Trust. I understand a request has already been made by the Bombay Municipality for that kind of amalgamation. But the price of that amalgamation is the permission to levy certain forms of taxation, one of which is a passenger tax, another is an export duty of 4 annas on every bale of cotton—taxation which is expected to yield about 18 to 20 lakhs of rupees. So as the honourable member from Bombay, Mr. A. N. Surve, remarked, the tune is to be called by one party and the piper has to be paid by the citizens of Bombay. That, I think, will be the situation in the long run. At any rate the immediate consequence of the fusion will be a request by the Bombay Municipality to extend its borrowing limits. The total liabilities of the two corporations will be something like 35 crores which will considerably exceed the statutory limit, namely, double the rateable value of the premises assessable to property taxes. The Bombay Government will immediately permit the municipality to raise its borrowing limit. This is the situation. If, therefore, there is no statutory obligation on the part of the Bombay Government to advance these loans to the Improvement Trust, we can as well pause and take stock of the situation, particularly when we are not in a position to balance our own budget without seeking extraneous assistance. I have no desire to press for the total refusal of the loan to the Trust, but would request my honourable friend the Finance Member to reconsider the whole situation.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Mr. President, I do not want to inflict a speech on this cut, but I want to be enlightened on one or two points by the Honourable Member in charge of this Department. Yesterday, it was, I believe, the honourable member Mr. Petit who said that the Bombay Government has given an undertaking to provide funds to this Institution. I want to know whether what has fallen from the mouth of the honourable member is correct.

Another point was made out by one honourable member from Bombay that the Improvement Trust is a solvent body and therefore there is no danger in advancing any loan to that Institution. Sir, yesterday the honourable member the Finance Secretary pointed out in detail the properties held by the Improvement Trust, but he did not give the present market value of the properties held by the Trust at present. The solvency of an individual or an institution can only be measured by its liabilities and assets. Unless we know the market values of the properties held by the Trust at present, we are not in a position to know whether it is solvent or insolvent. But it is quite obvious and apparent that the Improvement Trust tried to raise a loan from the open market and it failed. Now, you know very well, that the solvent local bodies in the mofussil, whenever they want money, can raise loans on their own assets and credit. Take the instance of the Surat Municipality. Even in hard times like this, they wanted a loan of five lakhs which was over-subscribed by banks and individuals. So, I think that, if the Trust is in a solvent state, the merchants and rich people in Bombay could have easily subscribed for the loan. This side of the House has been assured that there need be no fear in the minds of honourable members about the repayment of the loan, because, under the Bombay City Municipal Act, it has been provided that the municipality shall have to meet the liability of the Trust and so the Government have a right to call upon the municipality of Bombay for the payment of this loan. Suppose the municipality of Bombay meets with the same fate as the Improvement Trust, I do not know how that body will be able to pay back the loan? Ultimately the citizens of Bombay will have to be taxed. There again, suppose the taxable capacity of the citizens of Bombay has already been reached, and they are not in a position to pay any enhanced tax, how will the Government of Bombay be in a position to recover these loans, if the property held by the Trust depreciates still further? It is all very well to say that the Trust has thousands of acres. There may be a gentleman here possessing thousand acres; but it does not mean that he is solvent. From the figures given by the honourable member who preceded me, I think that in 11 years the debt will double itself and at the end of 22 years it will be 68 crores, if there is no repayment of instalments of debts and interests. What is the object of advancing this loan? Yesterday, the Honourable the Finance Member informed us that in order to get back instalment of loan and interest, Government were advancing this loan. Government are advancing a loan to get back the instalment of loan and interest due to them from the Trust, in order to show that they have got back their instalment of loan and interest on it. Government have resorted to a moratorium for the repayment of their instalment to the Central Government. Why should they not advise the same course to the Improvement Trust to adopt? There is no meaning in lending and getting back again the payment of the existing debts. The honourable member Mr. Petit told us emphatically that this Improvement Trust was started on the undertaking given by Government that it would be financed by them. I understand that Sir Pherozeshah Mehta opposed when this Trust was started. He foresaw the result and said that this enterprise would not be to the benefit of the Bombay city but it would end in great financial loss to the Bombay city.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Sir, the Honourable the Finance Member said yesterday that several crores have already been advanced by Government to the Trust and in order to get back their instalment of the loan and the interest they were advancing this loan. He further said that the Bombay Corporation is as it were surety for the moneys advanced to the Improvement Trust. If the Bombay Corporation is a surety, why should you not recover the loan from the Corporation, without advancing loans like this and reappropriating them for interest and instalment of the loan? I think not only have they made up their mind to advance this amount, but they have promised more help of some magnitude. I think they are not realising the gravity of the situation which exists in the rural areas. Sufficient loans are not given to the co-operative societies. In our district there are 110 societies. Two or three villages are grouped together for each society. There are thousands of farmers who are not members of any of the societies. They have now stopped the system of takkavi altogether. Last year, they advanced takkavi to certain persons for purchasing cattle and seeds. If you go into the details, you will find that none of them had to purchase either cattle or seeds. All these advances were made because they had to pay arrears of land revenue. If a man had to pay land revenue of Rs. 33 he was given Rs. 35 and a man who had to pay Rs. 45, was given Rs. 50 and so on. These three years the people have continued to be extremely poor. For the first year they sold off their gold, the second year their chattel and the third year they took loans from Government to pay off land revenue. Last year they thus paid their revenue, but this year they cannot maintain themselves. So far as my district is concerned, there are 800 families maintained on doles of half a seer of rice or so every day. Under the circumstances, it is likely they may not be able to pay their instalments. If the Government benches are apprised of the gravity of the situation, they will have some soft corner in their hearts for these poor agriculturists also. Those who labour in the fields get no return for their labour. If what Government propose to spend on one institution—37 lakhs of rupees—is utilised for agriculturists, then lakhs of families in the villages will be saved. Therefore, I say that this advance to the Improvement Trust is not well advised in the present circumstances.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE (Ahmednagar District): Sir, the cut that is moved is only one of Rs. 100. It is intended to have the least effect on the amount; only the general policy underlying it is to be criticised.

My first point in respect of this is that a great injustice is being done to the mofussil, both to local bodies and to the cultivators in general. From page 179 (Budget) it will be found that in the year 1930-31, the cultivators paid back Rs. 12,69,000 and in 1931-32 they paid back Rs. 21,47,000; that is to say, in the last two years Rs. 34,16,000 has been paid back by these people. In the budget estimate for 1932-33, Government expect that they will pay back Rs. 22,27,000. So that, in the three years they will have paid back Rs. 56,43,000. If these figures are correct, then the provision made for advances to them of Rs. 8,89 lakhs is certainly very disproportionate, especially in view of the fact that from these resources Government always get interest at the rate of one per cent. more than what they themselves pay to the Government of India. In the case of the Improvement Trust I was informed yesterday that Government get nothing more than what they pay to the Government of India. In the case of the cultivators Government get at least one per cent. Really it gets more than one per cent., because they make up the accounts every three months and thus get compound interest with three months' rest. In view of the fact that the cultivators have paid back 56 lakhs in three years and Government themselves are not paying their instalment on the tagavi loan, which they are bound to pay to the Government of India, I do not think that justice is being done to the cultivators who are really in need of cash. The point of view that I wish to emphasize is this. There is no doubt that Government realise that the cultivators in general are in very bad condition so far as their cash position is concerned. The village sowcars and other bigger sowcars have also no cash with them. Not only that, even the bigger bagayatdars who go in for sugarcane cultivation and many other crops which require cash advances, are in need of cash, and this leads to the lesser and lesser cultivation of sugarcane. In these circumstances, I should think that Government should provide more money at least in the budget for advances to these cultivators, so that these poor people may not be told that the Council has not made any provision for them. That is point No. 1.

Point No. 2 relates to loans to local bodies on account of public works. It appears that here also Government propose to give them only a lakh and two thousand. The receipts under that head for the three years (including the budget year) come to about Rs. 8,04,000. I wish to lay down as a wholesome principle that in the case of these local bodies and the cultivators, as they pay a handsome interest and regular instalments, they should have the first claim on the finances of Government, because Government do not lose, but in a way gain. I know that there are several local bodies who have got schemes for water-works and other works of public utility. It is well known that they have to depend on Government for loans for carrying them out, because they do not get these loans locally. In these circumstances, the provision of a lakh of rupees for all the local bodies together is almost a laughable item. There are innumerable small municipalities, like Pandharpur and Jalgaon, which have been crying hoarse for water-works and small drainage schemes. Government of course take good care to see that their loans come back and that loans are given only to solvent municipalities. Therefore, there is no reason why a larger provision should not be made in the budget. I do not mean to say that you are bound to give them loans when you make a provision in the budget. That depends on circumstances.

My third point is much more important. Why do Government take it for granted that the next season is going to be a very prosperous season? Who knows what is going to happen? I think we have had a pretty long spell of good seasons, and I will not be surprised if we get a bad season the very next year. If it turns out to be a bad season, then in order that Government may not find an excuse for not giving loans freely to the cultivators and local bodies in the non-provision of funds in the budget, I think it is the duty of the opposition to point out to Government that they should make provision for this purpose in the budget. I know that in any emergency Government do find funds. But I do not know how they will find it this year. Usually they come for a supplementary grant in September or October. We are told there will be no October session this year. The course of a bad season is not revealed in July, but usually after failure of rains in September and therefore there will be no opportunity for Government to come in for a supplementary grant in July.

I hope my comments will be taken in the spirit in which they are made.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North): Sir, I had no intention of intervening in this debate, but I should like to say a word or two about what is said about the Bombay Improvement Trust. I congratulate my honourable friend from Ahmedabad for the accuracy of his figures. He is right in saying that the financial position of the Trust is indeed precarious. The honourable member from Surat (Rao Bahadur Naik) went into the history of the Improvement Trust. He is perfectly right in saying that the Improvement Trust was created against the greatest opposition of the Municipality of Bombay at the time. It was soon after the outbreak of plague in Bombay in 1896. There was military regime in Bombay city for some time and when that ended in 1898 the Trust was founded. For a good many years it was a semi-Government institution with an appointed Chairman. Gradually it was more popularized; and by the Improvement Trust Transfer Act of 1925 though the Trust was not actually transferred to the Bombay Municipality a closer union was effected.

Several honourable members inquired about the assets of the Improvement Trust, especially as to their value. If they had only looked at the Council Proceedings of 1st October 1931, they would have found the figures given in reply to a question by the honourable member Mr. Wadke. There it is definitely stated that the assets on the 1st April 1931 were Rs. 15,69,00,000 and the liabilities Rs. 16,38,00,000. That is the true state of affairs on that date. So, in spite of the waste lands, that my honourable friend from Surat said were in thousands of acres, the waste lands, the buildings, chawls, and other assets are equivalent to Rs. 15,69,00,000.

Then, Sir, you cannot blame the Improvement Trust for extravagance. If you look at the figures for establishment and management charges, in 1930-31 they were Rs. 8,62,000. The Trustees decided on a lump cut of Rs. 2,80,000; the management exceeded the Trustees and made a cut of Rs. 2,97,000. Another cut of Rs. 30,000 occurred this year, and there is a further Rs. 21,000 cut during next year. So that from Rs. 8,62,000 they have come down to Rs. 5,34,000 from which there will be a further saving of Rs. 21,000. That is the retrenchment purely on management and establishment. They could not go any further than that.

Then, Sir, look at the way in which the Calcutta Improvement Trust is treated by the Bengal Government. The revenue resources are the same, as was mentioned by the honourable member from Ahmedabad, namely, sales of land, ground-rent of land and contribution from the municipality. But in addition to that they get a duty on the transfer of property, which brings them 5 lakhs and three thousand, a terminal tax which brings them Rs. 2,50,000 and a duty on jute which brings Rs. 10,89,000. So that from these taxes they get Rs. 18,43,000. And Government themselves contribute annually Rs. 1,50,000; and this is in spite of the fact that the accounts of the Calcutta Improvement Trust show a surplus of 20 lakhs. They are solvent to the extent of 20 lakhs and still Government give them a money grant. On the other hand, the Government of Bombay gives the Trust nothing.

Of course, we cannot question the fact that the financial position of the Trust is very serious. One cannot question the figures of my honourable friend. But what is to be done? They have to pay Government three crores of rupees in 1935. I do not know where the Improvement Trust is going to get that money. I find that the Improvement Trust have got a good deal of property, property for which they cannot at the present moment get any value in the open market. But the Honourable the Finance Member will, I believe, tell the House that their estimates have been made and it has been shown that in a few years, if the remedy that has been proposed is carried out, the Trust will be solvent and the deficits will be wiped out. These estimates have been worked out several times by various officers of the Improvement Trust. If the Improvement Trust is handed over to the Bombay Municipality and the municipality is given certain additional sources of revenue, then within a few years the Bombay Municipality can bring the Trust into a solvent position. If this is not done, then the only way that is open to Government and this honourable House is to liquidate the debt at the present moment. That means that the Government of Bombay stand to lose 7 crores, which is half of their revenue——

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: Let us begin with three crores——

Dr. M. D. GILDER: If the honourable House is willing to scrap that amount and let it go, the Improvement Trust and the Bombay people would be very happy. I do not see any other way out of it. [Interruption.] The responsibility lies on the Bombay Municipality and the Bombay Municipality is quite willing to undertake that responsibility, provided, of course, new sources of revenue are given. I trust that the fusion between the Improvement Trust and the municipality would be accelerated by the Government. Apart from this, it is quite possible—I should say it is probable—that there would be another retrenchment of 2 lakhs per annum in the expenditure after the amalgamation. With these words, I oppose the cut, at least as regards the Bombay Improvement Trust.

Mr. V. N. JOG: I have nothing to say in reply, Sir.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Sir, in the first place, I will clear the ground as regards the Improvement Trust. This honourable House is aware, as was pointed out by the honourable member Dr. Gilder, that the Improvement Trust was started when Bombay was visited by bubonic plague. There were several dirty spots in Bombay; the roads were narrow. There were spots and places where the dire disease had taken its hold; and in order to improve the condition of Bombay, this Trust was started. The name connotes that—it is called the Improvement Trust.

The honourable member Mr. Vakil said that the Bombay Municipality is to be called upon to shoulder its responsibility; and he also said that one man calls the tune and the other pays the piper. I ask how? This Improvement Trust has beautified the city. It has constructed the broad roads, roads which the Bombay public and others who come to visit the city use. If these roads had not been constructed by the Improvement Trust, the Bombay Municipality would have been obliged to do that; the Bombay Municipality would have been obliged to remove all the spots where this disease had taken its hold. The Improvement Trust has not only beautified Bombay, but in fact it has already removed the disease from the soil. This Improvement Trust is a sort of sister to the Bombay Municipal Corporation, and in the Act of 1925 it has been distinctly provided that if the Trust fails to pay any amount which it is bound to pay, the Government may call upon the Corporation to make the payment; and taking possession of the Trust's properties, hand them over to the Bombay Municipality. Government may, under the Act, also sanction certain taxes out of which the Corporation may recoup itself. How can you ask this body to be wound up?

I can understand the remedy suggested by some honourable members, namely, to hasten the amalgamation. That is certainly what we intend to do. The Bombay Municipality has approached Government with the proposal for amalgamation of the two bodies. But they say that there would be a deficit of 28½ lakhs of rupees. So, they have pointed out certain additional sources of revenue. They say that if we sanction all or some of them, they will be able to meet the deficit. These deficits, however, will go on for some years. These deficits are not unexpected, as I pointed out yesterday. As far back as in 1922, when estimates were made, though the Trust was then working at a profit, these deficits were all along expected because the capital was being spent on purchasing properties and developing them. Necessarily the return on that capital will be delayed. There would be some years during which there would be deficits. Unfortunately, owing to the slump in the market, this period of years is being prolonged. That could not be helped, but that was not foreseen. But all the same, a time will come when these deficits will disappear and the Bombay Municipality (there will then be no Trust in existence) will be able to balance the budget. So, there is absolutely no other help. What is the remedy that the honourable House can suggest? Are the properties to be put to auction in order to pay off these debts? Is the whole body to be wound up? What is the remedy? The remedy has been provided in the Act of 1925, and that remedy is amalgamation. The amalgamation will take place very soon. So far as I am able to say, in the next session a Bill will probably be introduced for the amalgamation of these two bodies. In the meanwhile, the details will be settled. We are still in that process. I welcome the suggestion from some honourable members that this should be done. In fact, that is the only remedy by which we can carry on the functions of the body.

Coming to the other criticisms which were made as regards this item let me remove one misunderstanding on the part of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale. He asked why we are not making a very large provision for giving advances to local bodies. I invite the attention of the honourable member to page 179 of the Blue Book. There he will find that the advances made on account of Provincial Loans Account are out of borrowed money. Before knowing the requirements of the local bodies, does he want this Government to borrow from the Government of India and go on paying interest charges? The trouble is that many of the local bodies who want water works and drainage to be carried out come to us and say that they want 50 per cent. or at least 33⅓ per cent. grant-in-aid of their estimates. Very few are contented with a grant-in-aid of 28 per cent. But the Bombay Government is now in such a predicament that it finds it very difficult to accede to their request. Many of these local bodies are poor and naturally look to Government for help and ask for 50 per cent. grant-in-aid. That is why some schemes have not been undertaken. As regards the amounts which are put in the budget according to the requirements of the different bodies, these requirements are communicated to Government beforehand. Government also find out what their requirements are and then inform the Government of India that during the ensuing year they will require so many crores or so many lakhs, and they borrow that amount. This is a time when it is not in the interests of local bodies to undertake any works and borrow at a high rate of interest. In the case of local bodies like the Poona Municipality, or Karachi Municipality or Hyderabad Municipality, we allow them to float their own loans on favourable terms. If there is a slump in the market, as it happened in the case of the Improvement Trust, the loan is underwritten. Under such conditions it is not advisable to go in for such loans. As regards this identical loan of Rs. 1,02,000, Rs. 40,000 is for the Nandurbar Municipality, Rs. 52,000 for the District Local Board, Kolaba, for the construction of a bridge and Rs. 10,000 has been put down for unforeseen demands.

The honourable members from Dharwar and Kanara complained that co-operative societies were in a difficult condition. I am sorry I could not follow the honourable member Mr. Jog. I do not know whether he wants Government to undertake the responsibility of running these different properties which are purchased by different co-operative societies. The honourable member will see that on page 179 of the Blue Book provision has been made under different heads. The first item is "Loans to cultivators", 8,89. This amount is divided thus:

		Rs.
Loans to cultivators	in Sind	3,92,000
Do.	in Northern Division	1,44,000
Do.	in Central Division	1,00,000
Do.	in Southern Division	2,27,000

An amount of Rs. 2,000 has been provided for allotment placed at the disposal of the Criminal Tribes Settlement Officer for giving advances to the members of the Criminal Tribes Settlement. An allotment of Rs. 24,000 has been placed at the disposal of the Chief Agricultural Officer, Sind, for giving advances to haris for the multiplication of pure cotton. That is the total amount provided.

Against the second item "Loans through co-operative societies and banks" you will find an amount of Rs. 75,000. This amount is placed at the credit of the Registrar of Co-operative Societies. You will find that entry on page 179 of the Blue Book. This amount is placed in the Provincial Co-operative Bank and is utilised for loans to be made to co-operative agricultural societies for land improvement work. In accordance with the Co-operative Societies Land Improvement Loans Rules, 1922, this amount is earmarked for that particular purpose.

Mr. V. N. JOG: On a matter of explanation, Sir. What I wanted to suggest is this: just as the Improvement Trust is in difficulties, so there are certain societies which have no new resources. They have property enough, but they are unable to meet the depositors, unless they sell these properties which they hold on mortgage or which they have themselves bought. In such cases, the aid which has been given to the Improvement Trust is also necessary in the case of co-operative societies. This amount of Rs. 75,000 is nothing if you take into consideration the number of co-operative institutions.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: This amount of Rs. 75,000 has been provided for a specific purpose. This is provided for land improvement work in accordance with the Co-operative Societies Land Improvement Loans Rules, 1922.

[Sir Govindrao Pradhan]

Then the third item "Loans for the purpose of Co-operative Societies Act." An amount of Rs. 5,000 has been shown against this item. This has been provided for giving loans to ordinary producers' societies, weavers' societies and co-operative buyers' societies in accordance with the rules framed under the Co-operative Societies Act. The maximum loan payable to any society is Rs. 2,000 and is free of interest for three years.

Mr. N. N. PATIL: No amount for credit societies?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: No.

Then I come to Co-operative Housing Societies for which an amount of 4 lakhs has been provided. This loan is given for the encouragement of house-building on approved sanitary lines. But in the present state of the finances, Government's general policy is to restrict the advances of loans to those societies who have already got their schemes in operation.

Then comes the item "Loans under the State-aided Building Scheme," against which an item of Rs. 4,75,000 has been shown in the Blue Book. This is for encouraging the sales of land in the Bombay Suburban District. The rule is that if the land is sold to private persons, they are given a loan amounting to three-fourths of the value of the land and 50 per cent. of the value of the house. The whole amount is payable within 15 years. If the land is sold to Government servants, 90 per cent. of the value of the land and the house is given as loan, although it varies according to the salary of the Government servant. The maximum amount of loan given to Government servants is about Rs. 24,000 or Rs. 25,000. As regards the rate of interest to which reference was made by the honourable member from Ahmednagar (Rao Bahadur Chitale), I must point out to him that the rate of interest which we charge for the takavi loan does not enable us to make any profit whatever. We have got to meet establishment charges. As a matter of fact, if the whole amount is worked out, you will find that there is some loss. But even assuming that as regards takavi loans there is no direct loss, there is a certain amount of loss in other matters; but the loss, merely taking into consideration the establishment charges, pays itself. There is no profit whatever.

As regards loans taken through co-operative societies, there are three intermediate bodies, the Presidency Bank, the Urban Bank and the society. Each charges ·25 as commission over the interest. We charge interest at the rate of $8\frac{1}{2}$; they charge interest at the rate of $6\frac{1}{2}$ or $6\frac{3}{4}$. Adding these to the ·25 of these three bodies, it nearly comes to the same rate of interest. So, it is wrong to suppose that Government, by taking a little higher rate of interest for takavi loans, make any profit. We make no profit whatever. That is not the intention of Government, to make any profit.

I suppose these were the only points that were raised in the debate and that I have explained them all.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Will the Honourable the Finance Member enlighten me on one point, namely, whether an undertaking was given by the Bombay Government to the Improvement Trust when it was started that Government would advance loans to that body?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: I have not read the original Act, but, as the honourable member is aware, Government have made advances of loans to the three bodies operating in Bombay, namely, the Bombay Municipal Corporation, the Bombay Port Trust and the Bombay Improvement Trust, and the Improvement Trust has been given a further loan, but latterly these bodies have taken to floating their own loans in the market. As a matter of fact, the Improvement Trust did float a loan of 30 lakhs, but got only about 8½ lakhs because the terms offered were not very advantageous. So, they float their own loans now.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Another point, Sir. Has any assessment been made of the Improvement Trust properties at the present market rate?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: It is so very difficult to make an estimate of properties because of the slump in the land market. To attempt to make any such assessment would be mere speculation, it would be mere speculation to say when the market would improve and when the properties would be sold, because, as was pointed out by the honourable member Mr. Baloch, the amount of Rs. 100 at 6 per cent. will be Rs. 200 in 13 years. So, what the rate would be when the property is sold and all that would be nothing but speculation, and to indulge in speculation of this sort at a time when there is such a slump in the market would be to make a speculation which will never come true.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: Is there no other way of giving the Bombay Municipality two or three crores for the purposes of the Improvement Trust, because it is the Bombay Municipality and the Bombay public who have benefited as the result of the working of the Improvement Trust?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: The Improvement Trust was started for the benefit of Bombay and the Bombay Municipal Corporation. I do not know why Government should shoulder three crores as an additional burden.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable the mover of the motion wishes to withdraw it.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Demand put, and agreed to.

Commuted Value of Pensions.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 8,94,000 under 60-B, Payments of Commuted Value of Pensions—Provincial, Reserved.

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 1,53,000 under 60, Capital Outlay for Civil Works (Public Works Department)—Transferred.

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 3,25,000 under 56-A, Capital Outlay on Improvements of Public Health.

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I move a grant of Rs. 1,02,28,000 under 55, Irrigation Works, Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction, Reserved.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I move that the total demand of Rs. 2,02,28,000 be reduced by five lakhs.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I hope the honourable member understands that he will have to justify the cut, and that there will be no general discussion. There is a specific and a very big amount which has been proposed to be cut from the demand, being Rs. 5,00,000. Cuts of big amounts are not moved for raising a general discussion. If the honourable member has that in view, he may wait till the general discussion comes on.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I will wait, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member is not moving it then?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: No, Sir.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, I wish to move my motion for cut—

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: No general discussion.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Very well, Sir; but the difficulty is that in such a big amount I cannot put my finger on particular items and say that so many items should be removed. Since the work of the Barrage is over and the establishment is going to be consolidated with the Public Works Department, so far as the province of Sind is concerned——

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: That is coming later on under 41.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Even the barrage during this year has been included for that purpose in the Public Works Department, and my submission is that as the various works are now stopped——

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Not stopped—there lies the honourable members' mistake.

Mr. V. N. JOG: There is still a portion to be completed. The point I am going to make is this that the work is going to be completed during the course of this year.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: No, the honourable member is not right there either. There is a provision of over Rs. 119 lakhs made for it.

Mr. V. N. JOG: That is with regard to Lloyd Barrage, Reserved. The point which I am making is that as this department is now combined or amalgamated with the Civil Works (the general Public Works Department) in Sind, and as the barrage is now nearing completion, there is no need for so many Chief Engineers, Superintending Engineers——

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: May I inform the honourable House that the establishment is under 41? The honourable member can move any number of cuts he likes at that time and discuss the establishment. If he likes, he may start now; I do not object.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): I wish to move:

Reduce by Rs. 100 the total demand under 55, Construction of Irrigation Works—Reserved.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I should like to point out one thing. I notice the unwilling mood in which the honourable member finds himself with regard to this motion. He need not move it at all.

Mr. V. N. JOG: The difficulty is this: we wish to go on, as far as possible, to the more important grants. That is the view which I take, because this year the demands are taken from the bottom going up to the top. But the difficulty is that some of my honourable friends from Sind have not given notice of any cuts under this head, and they have made a request that they want to say something with regard to this head. It is in order to give them some opportunity to raise a discussion that I was going to move my motion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I should not like to prevent them having a chance to do so. But they could have themselves given notice of a cut. However, I leave it to the honourable member.

Mr. V. N. JOG: I do not wish to proceed with the motion.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (speaking in Urdu): I wish to say, Sir, that we have come here to discuss the budget. We get the budget two or three days before the session. We are not experts. The expenditure on the Barrage establishment and works is shown as Rs. 1,33,00,000. I could have understood it if the Honourable the General Member had made a demand for Rs. 1,33,00,000.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: The honourable member does not seem to understand that it is votable and non-votable combined.

Question, "That a demand of Rs. 1,02,28,000 under 55, Construction of Irrigation Works—Reserved—be granted," put, and agreed to.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: You, Sir, once decided that, even if there is no motion for a cut, a general discussion could be raised on the total demand. Can that be done on the present occasion?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Certainly; that can be done.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: That is what the honourable member Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch wanted to do.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member did not rise in his seat at all. I would not prevent any honourable member following that procedure; it is their privilege.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I move a grant of Rs. 14,06,000 under 55, Construction of Irrigation Works.

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I move a grant of Rs. 5,94,000 for "Expenditure in England, Secretary of State—Reserved and Transferred; High Commissioner—Reserved and Transferred.

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 5,33,000 under 47, Miscellaneous—Transferred.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, the motion that I wish to move is as follows:

Reduce by Rs. 100 the total demand of Rs. 5,31,000 under 47, Miscellaneous—Transferred.

In moving this cut, I simply want to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government to the fact that the financial condition of local bodies has gone from bad to worse year after year, and in spite of that there is a cut in the statutory grant for Chief Officers and Engineers, who are appointed by the local bodies with the sanction and approval of Government. In my opinion, this is a great hardship imposed on the local boards. The local boards have engaged some of the Chief Officers and Engineers for a particular period on a contract basis, and now if Government were to reduce their quota in the shape of statutory grants, which they have been paying all these years, by 10 per cent., the local bodies will be compelled to find this extra revenue from their general balances, which they have not got. In the same way, Government contributed an amount of Rs. 5,000 as a grant for the establishment, the clerical staff, etc., of local boards, which they have reduced by Rs. 25 per cent. from the current year. In this instance also, I may say that the local boards, in the expectation that they would get the fixed permanent grants which they had been getting from Government, had maintained a staff, and now they find it very difficult to meet the cut which Government have thought fit to make. I would, therefore, like to know from the Honourable Minister in charge of this department whether these cuts are permanent cuts or simply emergency cuts, that is, for the current year and next year only. I believe, when the administration of local boards was handed over to non-officials, Government had fixed these grants, viz. Rs. 5,000 for the establishment and two-thirds of the expenditure over either the Chief Engineer or the Chief Officer, with the proviso that the appointment should be sanctioned and approved by Government. I maintain, Sir, that it is a clear statutory contract between the local boards and Government, and Government cannot at this stage, by reducing the grant by 10 per cent., back out of their share, because although the Government try to back out of it, the local boards cannot back out of their obligations towards their servants whom they have taken on contract. With these words, I move the motion.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: Sir, I fully sympathise with my honourable friend in his natural desire to see the cut of 25 per cent. in the grant for establishment, which has been given ever since the transfer of control from the Collector to the district local board, restored. But I suppose he himself will realise that this 25 per cent. means only Rs. 1,250 to each district local board; and I do not think that the incidence will cause any hardship to any district local board at all. On the other hand, from the point of view of Government, it means a saving of about Rs. 30,000, because there are 27 district local boards which get a grant of Rs. 5,000 each, and at the rate of Rs. 1,250 for each district local board it comes to about Rs. 30,000.

With regard to the cut of 10 per cent. in the grant towards the salaries of chief officers and engineers of district local boards, this is a cut which Government have inflicted upon their own officers, upon all Government servants, and I do not see why the district local boards also should not follow suit and inflict a cut of 10 per cent. in the salaries of servants employed under them. It will mean a saving to them also, and I do not think that a measure which is contemplated to encourage district local boards indirectly to have a kind of retrenchment will not be approved by the district local boards themselves. In fact, only this morning I had a deputation from several gentlemen from Sind, and they went one step further and suggested that Government should issue a circular to all district local boards with the view that they may be encouraged to appoint committees for retrenching their own expenditure. I think that such a step on the part of Government would be welcomed by the district local boards, because it will give them a sort of handle to inflict a cut of 10 per cent. upon their own men, which they otherwise in all probability will find very difficult to do.

Of course, my honourable friend wants an assurance from me as to whether these two cuts are in the nature of a temporary measure of retrenchment or a permanent one. Of course, as we all know, most of these cuts are to be regarded in the light of temporary measures of retrenchment and as long as we find ourselves placed in a financially embarrassing position, I suppose we shall have to continue these cuts; but as soon as we find that no necessity exists for continuing the cuts, Government would be only too willing to see whether the same could not be restored.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Can I have a say, Sir?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think the Honourable Minister has replied.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: My point is that the grants are given to the local bodies for their chief officers and engineers, who are appointed with the approval of Government. Under the provisions of the Local Boards Act, Government are bound to give their share of the expenses. Unless Government amend the Act, they cannot cut down these grants. If the local boards reduce the pay of these officers, Government can also reduce their share, but not otherwise.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: Does the honourable member mean to say that in every case the local board engineers and chief officers are appointed on contract and not from year to year?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Whenever these officers are appointed, the local board concerned will have to get the sanction of the Government. If Government give sanction, they have to bear two-thirds of the expenditure. Therefore, I say it is not legal on the part of Government to cut this grant, unless they amend the Act itself.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: So far as the cut of 25 per cent. is concerned, it is not a statutory obligation; but with regard to the other point, I understand that the question was examined legally and Government are under no obligation not to reduce this grant also.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I shall withdraw the motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 7,33,000 under 47, Miscellaneous (Reserved).

Question proposed.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, I beg to move:

"Reduce by Rs. 50,600—Total Demand—Rs. 6,60,000 (C. E. page 294)."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member has to justify the cut.

Mr. V. N. JOG: I shall give justification for this cut.

With regard to this demand, as we are in financial stringency, I would begin by saying that "charity begins at home." When we ourselves are not in a position to balance our budget, I submit, Sir, that the various charities which have been included in this demand should be curtailed. There are mentioned many institutions which have been given various sums. They appear on page 295 of the Budget Estimate. To begin with, the demand of 4 lakhs of rupees which are guaranteed to the Railway Board against loss in working Sind Left Bank Feeder Railways is included in this demand. This appears on page 298. With regard to the railway, the amount of 4 lakhs is to be given as guarantee against any loss. From this amount, the sum of Rs. 50,600 can be deducted without difficulty. The point which I wish to make is this. This railway is in Sind and Sind is shortly to be separated according to the wishes of the Sind members. As this railway is intended to develop the Barrage areas, it would be right and proper if this amount is spent from the capital instead of from the general revenues. Though I have not specifically asked for this, I suggest that it would be proper to debit this amount to the capital expenditure on Barrage.

[Mr. V. N. Jog]

Apart from this, I wish to draw the attention of the honourable members to the distribution of money to charities which appear on page 296. These are maintenance of destitute persons in the various parts of the presidency; what poor donations are reserved for them in comparison with the other donations on pages 295-297! The city of Bombay gets Rs. 900, Northern Division Rs. 10, Central Division Rs. 60 and Southern Division Rs. 110 for maintenance of destitute persons. This is the way in which the distribution has been made. It is a simple farce to give Rs. 10 to the Northern Division in this respect. Why should you not omit this Rs. 10 altogether? Let us see how the funds are distributed in other ways: St. Joseph Foundling Home, Rs. 4,000; the Bijapur Orphanage, Rs. 400. Here the racial discrimination is shown. On pages 295 and 296, the figures that are given will speak for themselves. No arguments and no insinuations are required. If you only read the figures, the racial discrimination will be quite evident. I will read some of them: European vagrants, Rs. 4,095; Poor Box, Presidency Magistrate's Court, Rs. 1,000; Grant to Salvation Army, Rs. 1,800; whereas for the Pandharpur Orphanage, Rs. 500; Strangers' Friends' Society, Rs. 3,000; Bombay League of Mercy, Rs. 13,610; Charges for interring paupers in the city of Bombay, Rs. 4,840. I protest, Sir, against the racial discrimination that has been shown here. Therefore I submit to the House that the sum of Rs. 50,600 should be reduced from the amount of charitable contributions which come to Rs. 1,45,000. I am sure as a protest this House will carry this motion.

Question proposed.

Mr. C. N. PATEL (Kaira District): Sir, I am inclined to support this cut, though I feel that the result will be nothing. I have marked here one thing and that is that cuts are moved and never pressed for a division. We are simply here to talk for nothing and waste our breath. To talk here before the Government Benches is in vain. That is my opinion. The honourable mover of the cut has drawn the attention of the Government Benches to the inequitable distribution that has been made to the different sections of inhabitants of this presidency. He has referred to the munificent contributions received by institutions in Bombay as compared with the contributions received by the institutions in the mofussil. Again he has shown the discriminations that have been made between the various classes. What I feel is that this side of the House is responsible to a certain extent for this discrimination. We are aiding Government in this discrimination by our own action. I think the Northern Division has been neglected. If you look to the figure allotted for the Northern Division, you will find that it is only Rs. 10. These ridiculous figures will be found even for the other divisions also. If this House has any self-respect, where such discrimination has been made, it should not vote a grant of this nature. I would request this side of the House at any rate to support this cut and pass it.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Sir, I would like to support the honourable member Mr. Jog. First of all, I would like to be informed why columns 3, 4 and 5 at page 296 are blank. We have no information to show what was spent out of the ten or twenty rupees provided last year or the year before last. I think there is some clerk maintained to fill up the figures, and whether or not anything is spent on charity he has to fill up the column by inserting these figures. Otherwise, I cannot see why Rs. 10 for the Northern Division is there and to whom it will be paid.

As to discrimination and distinction between societies, my honourable friend Mr. Jog has pointed out everything, and I do not wish to add anything more.

I shall now come to page 294. Under head D there is one item "Rewards for destruction of wild animals." I would like to know what those wild animals are, where they are and how this amount is spent; whether it is for killing wild elephants, tigers, leopards or anything else and if so in which particular village or taluka or district. I want also to know why a cut of Rs. 100 has been made in the provision made last year of Rs. 400. The Minister in charge of that is also the Minister for Agriculture and Forests. He knows that he reserves a large portion of the forests where no man is allowed to go and shoot these wild animals. The wild beasts can leave those reserves and enter our fields and work havoc, but even people who have a gun licence cannot enter the reserves without being hauled up for trespass. To kill these wild animals Government maintain a huge establishment at a cost of Rs. 300, though the destruction by wild animals of cattle and crops comes to several lakhs of rupees every year and even lives of human beings are taken by these wild animals. On the floor of this House questions have been asked as to estimated loss caused by these wild animals and it has been repeatedly stated that it amounts to lakhs and lakhs. Look at the figures. It was Rs. 400 last year; they have reduced it by 33⅓ per cent., and the budget figure is Rs. 300. That is for killing wild animals and for freeing us from all the havoc wrought by them. I would rather that the whole item is wiped out and no hope held out that wild animals will be killed. I think that a Government which cannot protect its subjects from the havoc done by wild animals may even forfeit its claim to allegiance from its subjects. It is the primary duty of the Government to protect us (our lives and property) from the havoc wrought by wild beasts.

With these words I support the honourable member Mr. Jog's cut.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: I want some explanation. At page 294 the total budget estimate for 1932-33 is Rs. 6,60,000, whereas in the previous years the accounts were only Rs. 2,99,000.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Four lakhs for the railways have been added. See page 298.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: I wanted an explanation, because there was a big increase.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Sir, this cut deals with rather a mixed bag. It is composed of items each of which deals with only a few thousands or hundreds. I do not quite understand how my honourable friend Mr. Jog arrived at this cut of Rs. 50,600 : he did not explain to us exactly how that sum was fixed or which particular items he wished to be omitted to make up the cut. As it cannot affect the four lakhs guaranteed to the railways, it must go a long way to wipe out a good deal of the charitable contributions. I think perhaps it would help us on this bench if honourable members, when they do move a specific cut of this kind, would explain how it is to be distributed amongst such a many-headed item as this particular item. But I am only concerned for the moment with the item of four lakhs for railways. The honourable member, I think, suggested that this should be set against the capital account of the Lloyd Barrage. I do not think myself that it is possible, from the point of view of accounts, to debit to Irrigation a railway head. I am afraid that these items must stand, because we are committed to the Railway Board to that extent, but I would assure the House that even if we do have to pay this guarantee, we may look forward to very quick returns. In this matter, I speak for the moment as an expert in land values in Sind, and I can assure my honourable friend over there (Mr. Jog) that it is going to make all the difference in the world when we come to sell lands in Sind that we have these railways. And it is quite impossible for us to omit this item.

An Honourable MEMBER : Will this guarantee be taken into account at the time of the financial readjustment ?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON : Of course. I am coming to that. I am sure that when the separation of Sind takes place, this will be one of the items for which Sind will have to bear the burden. There can be no question about that, but I do not know what the readjustment will be. This item is not likely to be overlooked when the readjustment takes place.

I am not quite sure whether I am responsible for the maintenance of destitute persons. But as regards the criticism made as to the disparity between the allotments to the various Commissioners, I think it is quite clear that these allotments are based on past actuals. If the Commissioner of the Northern Division has told us that he has only spent Rs. 10 on destitute persons in the last three years, then I am glad to congratulate the representatives of Gujarat upon the wealth and prosperity of their province. Should the Commissioner, however, find it necessary to spend more than Rs. 10 under this head in the coming year, I have no doubt that we shall be able to make the necessary reappropriations.

As regards the grants-in-aid to institutions, I do not think the House would wish us to cut out these charitable grants, some of which at any rate—all of which, I may say—are doing very useful work. Some of them belong to one department and some to another, and I will leave it to my honourable colleagues to elaborate any details which have arisen in the course of this debate.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS : Sir, it is not often that this side of the House has an opportunity of ventilating a grievance against the opposite benches, and, Sir, I am glad to have that opportunity now.

[Mr. G. A. Thomas]

I must agree with my honourable colleague the Honourable the Revenue Member that it would be very much easier for us in dealing with a head of expenditure, which he has described as a mixed bag, if honourable members on the opposite benches, when they suggest cuts as in this case—Rs. 50,000 out of 7 lakhs—would say in what particular items they want the cut to be made. The honourable mover of this motion for reduction has, I am sorry to see, made an attack upon certain charitable institutions, and he has alleged that Government discriminates between Europeans and Indians. Well, I have added up the items which pertain to the Home Department, and I calculate that they amount to Rs. 1,18,000, and I find that only Rs. 9,000 of that deals with Europeans —"Labour Home for European Vagrants," Rs. 5,000 (page 295) and "Other Vagrant Charges," Rs. 4,450 (page 297), which make up a total of Rs. 9,000. With regard to the item "Other Vagrant Charges," the sum of Rs. 4,095 is spent in deporting Europeans from Bombay. If these Europeans are not deported, they will have to be supported—they will have to be sent to the Vagrants' Home. It is simply transferring expenditure from one item to another. As regards the other item, Rs. 5,000 for the Labour Home for European Vagrants, this labour home is only provided for Europeans who are absolutely down and out. If that were to go, either we have to deport them at a higher cost or send them to jail. I think no one would like that they should be starved or turned out into the streets. It will not be cheaper to send them to jail, because the cost at the Vagrants' Home is not so much as the cost of sending them to jail.

The charitable institutions under the head "Home Department" (page 295) total up about Rs. 94,000, of which Rs. 73,000 is absorbed by two items, "Children's Aid Society," and "Societies for the prevention of Cruelty to Animals." As against the item of Rs. 41,000 provided for societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals, we get receipts which are larger than this sum. The practice is, in the case of some societies to assign to them 90 per cent. of the fines recovered, and in the case of other societies, to assign 50 per cent. of the fines. Thus, the receipts are always in excess of the actual expenditure. So, this is not an unproductive item of expenditure. If we cut out this, there will be a corresponding reduction on the revenue side. I do not think my honourable friend wants any reduction in the amount provided for the Children's Aid Society. That society has done splendid work, and upon it entirely depends the working of the Children Act.

An Honourable MEMBER: What about the Strangers' Friend Society, Rs. 3,000?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I am not responsible for that, and I am afraid I do not know anything about it. That is not in my department.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: Sir, the honourable member from the Kanara District, in his criticism, referred to the figure of Rs. 300 provided for "Rewards for the destruction of Wild Animals." He complained that that was a very insufficient amount to be offered as rewards for the destruction of wild animals. But if he were to compare this figure with the accounts of 1930-31, he will find that the actual amount spent in 1930-31 was only Rs. 130. The provision of Rs. 300 for 1932-33 is nearly two and a half times the amount spent in 1930-31 and so is more than sufficient for the purposes of this item. It is useless to make a provision which is not likely to be spent. If we did so, Government would be charged with the fault of over-estimating. The honourable member (Mr. Gangoli) rose to support the motion of the honourable member from Dharwar, but actually opposed it in a way. He said that this amount of Rs. 300 is insufficient. He wanted to have this amount increased.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: We cannot increase it.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: The fact is that he did not support the cut moved by the honourable member from Dharwar. He stated that the sum should be increased and in stating so he opposed the cut-motion.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: I will only make a brief reply, Sir. If the honourable member will please turn to page 296 of the White Book, he will find that the accounts of 1930-31 show the expenditure to be Rs. 17,539. Basing the calculations upon the actual expenditure, provision has been made in column 2 of Rs. 19,585. I do not think we are wrong if we make provision in the budget according to the expenditure actually incurred during the previous three years.

As regards the other items, all the criticisms have been replied to by the members concerned. All the same, if honourable members will turn to page 295, they will find that the budget estimate last year was Rs. 1,59,000 under "Donations for Charitable purposes." This year it has been brought down to Rs. 1,25,000. As has been pointed out by the Honourable the Home Member, if the amount provided under "Vagrants, etc." is not utilised for that purpose, the expenditure to Government would be more.

There are several charitable institutions for which small sums have been given by Government. Will any honourable member in this House say that any of these items should be reduced or that the amounts should be reduced? How can Rs. 50,000 be cut of this grant? Out of this grant Rs. 4 lakhs is guaranteed to the railways. Out of 2 lakhs there is a good deal to be spent on establishment charges and some amounts for charity. How can anybody advise Government to reduce any amount reserved for charities?

Mr. V. N. JOG: I do not want to press this cut, Sir. I beg leave of the House to withdraw it.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Original demand put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 13,40,000 under 46, Stationery and Printing—Partly Reserved and partly Transferred.

Question proposed.

Sir, we have got a general complaint about the supply of Government resolutions which are published. They are not supplied to local bodies. Orders are being issued to local bodies to carry out certain resolutions, but the preamble and the subject matter of the resolution is not at all communicated to local bodies. Therefore, they are not in a position to take action on such resolutions, with the result that now and then conflicts between the Collector and the President of the District Local Board or Municipality arise. This was brought to the notice of Government, so far as I remember, last year and also year before last, but the procedure has not yet been changed. I maintain that a resolution pertaining to a local board or a school board or a municipality should be communicated to that body entirely and not only 4 or 5 lines of the resolution. The whole resolution should be communicated, so that the local body will know the circumstances under which it was passed.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: How is this relevant, Sir? "Stationery and Printing" has nothing to do with the issue of resolutions. I am not in charge of Local Self-Government. It is a question of policy, and the whole of Government comes in.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: It is both reserved and transferred. The honourable member can raise that point under this head.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I did not follow the Honourable the General Member, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The Honourable the Leader of the House said that the question of supply of certain documents is a question which affects the policy of Government as a whole. I said that the honourable member moving the cut was in order because he can raise that question under this head. The whole Government is represented here and if any one Member is inclined to reply, he can.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Thank you, Sir. This is the way in which we are prevented from discussing important questions. They come to us for a grant——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There was no attempt to prevent discussion.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: We are not concerned to whom this subject belongs. We represent this matter before the whole Government that this is a grievance of the local bodies which has been brought to the notice of Government last year and also year before last, but no attempt has been made to remove it. Local bodies are asked by Collectors and Commissioners to carry out certain resolutions, and though they ask them to supply copies of those resolutions, they do not get them. Without the resolution before them, how can they expect the local bodies concerned to carry out the orders contained in it? The local bodies used to get these resolutions formerly. But Government have changed their policy for reasons best known to themselves. Now only the last four or five lines of the resolutions are communicated to the local bodies and they are asked to carry out the orders. They do not know the preamble of the resolution, they do not know why Government want them to take the action. It is, therefore, fair and proper on the part of Government to send copies of these resolutions which affect the local bodies. All such resolutions should be communicated to the local bodies in their entirety as used to be done in the past. With these remarks I move the cut.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I thought that the honourable member who proposed the cut would speak about the Stationery and Printing Department, but he wanted to ventilate a grievance about the supply of resolutions, with which I have nothing to do. The Honourable the Minister in charge of Local Self-Government has heard the complaint of the honourable member representing the Surat District (Rao Bahadur Naik) that formerly they used to get resolutions in their entirety but now they only get a small summary of them.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: Is it due to retrenchment in the cost of printing?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: It might partly be due to that. The honourable member has not made it clear whether they do not get the sum and substance of the resolutions. I do not know whether he wants to get all the confidential papers embodied in the resolution. He has himself admitted that the local bodies get the sum and substance of the general orders of Government, but perhaps he wanted details which he has not specified. However, I hope the Honourable the Minister in charge of Local Self-Government has taken note of what has been said about the sending of resolutions to local bodies.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I do not want to press the motion, Sir, and I beg leave of the House to withdraw it.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Original demand put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 1,68,000 under "45-A, Commutation of Pensions financed from ordinary revenues—Reserved."

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 70,96,000 under "45, Superannuation Allowances and Pensions—Reserved."

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 3,67,000 under "42, Bombay Development Scheme—Reserved."

Question put, and agreed to.

(After recess)

ELECTION OF REPRESENTATIVES FOR RAILWAY ADVISORY COMMITTEES.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. The election to the Railway Advisory Committees will now proceed.

Rao Saheb V. S. PATIL: I beg to withdraw my nomination for the G. I. P. Railway Advisory Committee, Sir.

Mr. J. G. MORE: I beg to withdraw my nomination for the M. & S. M. Railway Advisory Committee, Sir.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL AZIZ: I beg to withdraw my nomination for the G. I. P. Railway Advisory Committee, Sir.

Khan Bahadur ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: I too beg to withdraw my nomination for the G. I. P. Railway Advisory Committee, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: So, the nominations of the honourable members Mr. A. C. Owen, Rao Bahadur D. R. Patil and Mr. J. G. More for the G. I. P. Railway Advisory Committee stand.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: I withdraw my nomination for the North-Western Railway Advisory Committee, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: In that case, there will be no election for the North-Western Railway Advisory Committee and the honourable member Khan Bahadur M. A. Khuhro is declared duly elected to that committee.

The scrutineers will be Major W. Ellis Jones and Mr. P. N. Vakil.

We shall now go on with demands for grants.

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—resumed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: Sir, I move for a grant of Rs. 1,27,90,000 under 41, Civil Works, Partly Reserved and Partly Transferred.

Question proposed.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, I move that item No. 25, Budget page 215, Rs. 1,92,987 be omitted.

My object in moving this is that this amount is shown as expenditure with regard to the reorganisation of the Public Works Department in Sind in view of the amalgamation of the Barrage with the ordinary Public Works Department, for the reason that the barrage work is completed at present. I maintain that the scheme that has been submitted for retaining the Public Works Department staff at present in Sind is undoubtedly excessive inasmuch as the detailed proposals on the budget page 215 and onwards show clearly that Government have decided to retain two Chief Engineers in Sind (one Chief Engineer and another Joint Chief Engineer), five Superintending Engineers and 23 divisions of Executive Engineers. To this my objection is that for a province like

[Khan Bahadur M. A. Khuhro]

Sind it is quite enough if there is only one Chief Engineer to run the whole show and to be at the head of the Public Works Department. At present, Sir, if the proposal, as it stands, is accepted, there will be an administrative difficulty and at the same time unnecessary cost. The difficulty to my mind is this, that if there are two Chief Engineers, the Joint Chief Engineer will only take the position of Personal Assistant to the Chief Engineer, or, in the alternative, if he is not reduced to the position of becoming Personal Assistant to the Chief Engineer, he will have to be given a separate charge of certain Circles. At present, I understand that the idea is to divide Sind into two parts, Right Bank and Left Bank, and the Chief Engineer will retain the Right Bank and the Joint Chief Engineer will retain the Left Bank, and this will reduce the two Chief Engineers to the position of the old Superintending Engineers. Formerly, Sind had two Superintending Engineers, one for the Right Bank and the other for the Left Bank. In the present case, the only difference made is this, that these two Chief Engineers will divide and take over the charges of the previous two Superintending Engineers with exorbitant salary that they draw as Chief Engineers. In the alternative, if the Joint Chief Engineer is reduced to the position of Personal Assistant to the Chief Engineer, that will also be a waste of money. At present, an officer of Executive Engineer's rank, although of Imperial rank, who is Personal Assistant to the Chief Engineer, is managing the office quite efficiently, and if an officer of Executive Engineer's rank is retained in the post of Personal Assistant, I have absolutely no doubt that the office work will run quite efficiently as at present. Therefore, to spend such a large amount and to retain an officer of such senior grade as that of Chief Engineer in that position is absolutely undesirable.

Then, Sir, comes the question of the five Superintending Engineers. In a letter that we addressed a few weeks ago to His Excellency, which was signed by many honourable members from Sind, we clearly showed that it is not necessary to have more than three Superintending Engineers. One of the arguments advanced against it is that the present charge of the Public Works Department outside the Barrage zone requires exclusively one Superintending Engineer viz., in the North Begari canal, in the South Karachi canal, etc. My suggestion is that it will be quite in the fitness of things to have the charge of the entire Barrage zone and whatever else is left outside it, divided between three Superintending Engineers. The work will go on quite efficiently, and there will be absolutely no loss of efficiency. The Superintending Engineer who is at present in charge of the Western Circle has under him the Dadu canal, the Rice canal and the Warah branch; the Warah branch is a small canal, because it branches out from the North-Western canal. He has got four Executive Engineers under him, and practically speaking he has got only one district viz., Larkana in his charge—I mean the old district of Larkana, including the present Dadu district. This charge could easily be extended by adding to it either Karachi district or some portion in the north from Sukkur district. Similarly, the Begari canal can be transferred easily to the charge of the Superintending Engineer in charge of what is known as the Northern Circle; and for the Left Bank, I mean the Nawabshah district and Thar Parkar, one Superintending Engineer will be enough. Since the Karachi district and the Begari Canals district go into the charge of the two Superintending Engineers that I have just mentioned, therefore practically only the Barrage zone on the Left Bank will be left in charge of the third Superintending Engineer.

As regards Executive Engineers, I maintain that the present charges of Executive Engineers are certainly small. They could with advantage be extended and the number of divisions brought down to something like 15 or 16. I need not worry the House with the details of cusecs etc., but I have sufficient knowledge of facts to state that in other provinces like the United Provinces and the Punjab they have Executive Engineers who hold much larger charges, and the volume of water which they control is much larger than the volume of water laid down for the Executive Engineers here according to the present scheme. What I want is to impress these facts upon the mind of the Honourable the General Member, because, rightly speaking, this question concerns him, although I do not know by what arrangement the Honourable Minister for Agriculture has moved for this grant. But I would rather draw the attention of the Honourable the General Member to these facts. He comes from Sind, he knows Sind conditions and the actual work. He has recently toured in Sind, and he must have heard from various representatives of the people that there is no necessity for retaining such an elaborate staff for the Public Works Department in Sind in the present times, when every conceivable economy has to be exercised. I maintain, Sir,—and most of the members of this Council coming from Sind are at one with me in holding that opinion,—that the suggestion made by the Chief Engineer in Sind is rather an extravagant one; and without any loss of efficiency and without any deterioration in the administration I can safely say that the expenditure on the staff could be reduced by one-third by the adoption of the suggestion that I have made, viz., to abolish one of the two Chief Engineers' posts, two Superintending Engineers' posts and maintain only three of them, and to abolish seven or at the most eight divisions of Executive Engineers in Sind. We find, Sir, from the note that the appointments of two Personal Assistants of the Chief Engineer, who are from the Imperial Service, have been abolished, and he suggests maintaining in their place one officer of Executive Engineer's rank from the Provincial Service for the post of Personal Assistant. But, Sir,——

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: Lest the House may be misled, the post of the Imperial Service Executive Engineer who is my Personal Assistant has not yet been abolished. That will come in 1933-34.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: That only strengthens my argument. Of course, from what I read in the note I got that impression, and many other honourable members must have got a similar impression. A suggestion is made for the abolition of that post.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: That is for next year.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: I do not know whether it is next year or the year after that. But if that officer is retained in the post of Personal Assistant, I think there is all the more justification to say that there is no need to have a Joint Chief Engineer who will practically do, as I have explained, the duty of Personal Assistant, or who will take over a portion of a charge, say for instance the Left Bank, and will look after it.

Sir, everybody, even a layman who has sufficient experience of administration, or who comes into contact with the various departments of Government, will realise that it is very difficult for two Chief Engineers to run the show at the same time. One man has to be responsible for the administration and to be the head of the administration. Two Chief Engineers cannot work independently of each other, and the second Chief Engineer has necessarily to occupy an inferior position between the two, and therefore that reduces him to the position of Personal Assistant, and to retain an officer of a very senior grade, drawing a high salary, in that position clearly indicates an absolute waste of money. Under the circumstances, I hope the Honourable the General Member will consider this question very carefully and will not permit this extravagant expenditure to be incurred in Sind.

I find in the note it is stated that this gentleman is temporary or something like that. It has not been stated for what reasons this expenditure is justified, even on temporary basis and whether it is going to be for one year, or two years or three years. There is absolutely no limit of time given in the note.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I may inform the honourable member that it is for one year. Next year it will again be placed before the House.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: Are we to understand that it is only for one year?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Yes, Sir.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: I wanted to clear that issue also, so that the House may know where it stands in the matter of this expenditure, and I thought it would be better if the Honourable Member could make a saving in this expenditure.

Question proposed.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, I rise to support the motion moved by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Khuhro. I think all honourable members from Sind know very well that there is no necessity for two Chief Engineers in Sind. Up to 25 years ago, there was only one Chief Engineer in Sind. After that, they were having one Chief Engineer and two Superintending Engineers. Sir, in the olden days, an Irrigation officer could only cover on an average 12 miles a day while on inspection, and after that he had to take a couple of days' rest along with their Memsahibs and children. It was for that reason, I believe, that they had one Chief Engineer and two Superintending Engineers. But now by using a motor car which can now go to every nook and corner of culturable Sind, an officer out on inspection can cover even 100 miles a day and still find himself fit for office work and next day's trip, and yet we find there is a proposal for the appointment of two Chief Engineers and six Superintending Engineers. I do not know the reason for it. Perhaps, the present proposals are put forward in order to give a permanent footing to some of the officers who will be either without jobs as the barrage works are completed or acting Superintending Engineers will have to revert from posts carrying Rs. 2,500 to Executive Engineer's post on about Rs. 1,400. This will be a great loss to officers who are all Europeans. The idea is to retain them in these highly paid posts. Sir, in my opinion, it is enough to have three Superintending Engineers under one Chief Engineer. My honourable friend Khan Bahadur Khuhro says that it is proposed to retain five Superintending Engineers, but in the Public Works Department book six are shown. I do not know which figure is correct, 5 or 6. I am referring to page 34 of the Public Works Department budget, item 3. Formerly there were 2 Superintending Engineers, now 6 are proposed. But in the Government press note issued in December last only five Superintending Engineers were sanctioned temporarily. Under them again, there are Executive Engineers and Assistant Engineers as the vicious circle once starting from top must go up to the bottom. If you have three Superintending Engineers it will be sufficient to have one Chief Engineer; but if you have two Chief Engineers you will have to maintain six Superintending Engineers to justify it. If there is only one Chief Engineer, you cannot keep more than two or three Superintending Engineers under him. But as they must have six Superintending Engineers they have doubled the number of Chief Engineers.

There were only 13 Executive Engineers in Sind in 1931-32 but in 1932-33 they have raised the number to 29. Similarly the number of Assistant Engineers is raised from 32 to 126 and so on till the bottom of the Engineering establishments. All have been trebled and quadrupled.

If we decide to have only one Chief Engineer instead of two, the natural result will be that all other grades will have similar reduction in number and the cost of establishment reduced from Rs. 40 lakhs to Rs. 20 lakhs only with consequence of happy relief to both Sind and Bombay people.

The original estimate for Barrage provided only Rs. 2 crores for all sorts of establishments. But it was revised once and then again for the second time. The second revised recapitulation has raised the provision for establishment to Rs. 2·88 crores including pensionary charges (Blue Book page 170). It means an increase of 44 per cent. But in spite of all this estimated rise the expenditure on establishment of the Barrage Circle Rs. 3·16 crores by end of 1932-33 is an excess of Rs. 28 lakhs. But if you observe the figures of cost of works, on the same page, you will find that the revised cost of works is shown to be Rs. 19·22 crores (vide column 4). Further you will observe from columns 5, 6 and 9 (same page) that the total expenditure in works uptil end of 1932-33 will be only Rs. 15·61 crores. That shows that though works amounting to Rs. 3·61 crores will remain to be executed after 31st March 1933, the total revised cost on establishments will have been already exceeded. This is a matter for very serious consideration by this honourable House. At this rate they will require at least Rs. 75 lakhs more for establishments to complete all works. That is, total excess on establishment will be 90 per cent. Therefore it is very high time to curtail expenditure on establishments drastically.

At the risk of repetition I beg to draw the attention of the honourable members of this House to the figures of expenditure given per each Circle on page 112 of the Blue Book. It will be observed that in the Lloyd Barrage Circle the expenditure during 1932-33 as proposed is only Rs. 3·76 lakhs. It was all right to keep a Superintending Engineer with 4 Executive Engineers in this circle when the annual expenditure on works was Rs. 70 lakhs on an average, but how can we defend this extravagance of retaining same staff when the expenditure is less than Rs. 4 lakhs? No private builder will ever imagine to employ a Superintending Engineer and four Executive Engineers on such a small job. Even Government of Bombay with its scandalous record of past extravagances never did it. But it is going to beat its own record this year. When the Karachi High Court building was under construction which cost Rs. 30 lakhs in four years, only one Assistant Engineer (not even an Executive Engineer) was considered sufficient.

I give here the next year's expenditure in each of the circles of six Superintending Engineers in Sind:

	Works in progress.	Works not commenced.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Lloyd Barrage Circle	3,76,000		3,76,000
Northern Sind Circle	15,22,200	5,00,200	20,23,000

Six Superintending Engineers are going to be appointed for six of these circles. I have already pointed out that the Superintending Engineers did not tour more than 10 or 12 miles before the advent of the car in Sind; before they proceeded two or three camps they had to take rest. Now there are motor cars plying about everywhere, and an officer can easily cover 100 miles in a day. There was no necessity for second Chief Engineer in Sind. One Chief Engineer with three Superintending Engineers under him can manage the whole thing. I appeal to my honourable friend Mr. Lane, in whom we had put great hopes, to take note of what I say and effect retrenchment. At present the Chief Engineer in Sind is generously granted whatever he wants. There is not proper scrutiny of his estimates either by the Secretary of the Public Works Department or by the Minister. Whatever is proposed by Chief Engineer in Sind (formerly Lloyd Barrage) has been sanctioned till now without any alteration. Can the honourable member Mr. Lane point out one case where he has cut down the proposals of Sind Chief Engineer? The cost after amalgamation should be less than the current expenditure. But here in this wonderful Sind administration it continues to be the same.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member's time is up.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I shall stop here and say what all I have to say further in connection with the cut proposed to the sum of Rs. 1,27,00,000.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Mr. President, I would like to offer a few remarks at this stage. I am afraid the last speaker's speech may have caused confusion in the minds of honourable members. Therefore I want to clear the air. Honourable members will see that the very heading of item No. 25, to which a cut has been moved, is "Provisional reorganisation of Sind establishment." I have informed the Finance Committee and also the mover of this cut that this provision is only for one year. The next year we will place before the Honourable House a reduced figure for establishment. The last speaker said that we were maintaining an extravagant establishment which has no work to do. But the honourable members of this House, and especially the honourable member who spoke last, must know that we have yet to carry out, in addition to the regulation of water, capital works to the tune of Rs. 1,19,00,000 on the Sukkur Barrage. Both the last two speakers have lost sight of that important feature of this demand. In addition to the ordinary duties of regulating and distributing the water of the canals of the Barrage and of the ordinary Public Works Department, they have to carry out additional works of 1,19 lakhs on the Barrage. The honourable member (Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch) remarked that none of us looks into the proposals that are made by the Chief Engineer, neither myself, nor the Secretary, nor any one else in the Public Works Department. I regret that statement has been made. Myself and my Secretary deserve well of this honourable House. If honourable members see the establishment charges of last year, both of the Barrage and of the regular Sind canals, they will find that they amount to 60 lakhs of rupees.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: No.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Take it from me. If the honourable member likes, I will read out the figures for the benefit of the

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

House. The figures for 1931-32 are—Lloyd Barrage, 35,45,700; Sind Works, 14,97,300; total, 50,43,000. Then we have the revenue establishment; pensionary charges; special establishment, Lloyd Barrage Project; the Revenue Officer and his establishment; Medical Establishment; and so on. That brings it to Rs. 60,64,000. Now, what have we provided in this budget? We have reduced that establishment to nearly 49 lakhs, and this 49 lakhs includes another important new item of Rs. 3,86,000 for the revenue establishment, canal assistants and abdars. That means that 12 to 13 lakhs have been reduced from the establishment charges of last year.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Does that include any reduction of the personnel?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Yes, a very large reduction. I will just give the honourable House an idea. We had two superintending engineers for the ordinary Public Works Department and five superintending engineers for the Barrage. That means seven. Now, we have reduced those to five, as I shall show you presently. A sixth we have kept for the regular Barrage up to June, when we are going to abolish that post. That means we have done away even this year with two superintending engineers by amalgamating the two, the Barrage establishment and the ordinary Public Works Department establishment. Even as regards the executive engineers, a large number of hands have been reduced.

Then, honourable members must take into consideration another important matter, that out of this 49 lakhs, we will debit to the Barrage Rs. 28,11,000 for establishment and Rs. 1,96,000 for pensionary charges; that is nearly 30 lakhs.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: What about Rs. 5,60,000 —item No. 8 on revenue establishment being added?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We are talking now of reduction in establishment. So, honourable members will see that we are carrying out the Sukkur Barrage works and we are debiting to the Sukkur Barrage loan 30 lakhs approximately. We have also reduced our expenditure on establishment charges from 60 lakhs to 49 lakhs, which includes a new item of Rs. 3,82,000 for abdars and canal assistants. This will show that we are in right earnest. Besides this provision is only temporary for the next year. We will again make some cuts and place the budget before the House next year. We are not going to hide these things. On the contrary, the Public Works Department deserves well of this House. They have made real reductions in establishment. I do not therefore want to dwell any more on this subject.

Mr. A. N. SURVE: On a point of information. The item that is shown at page 250 (Budget), namely, Rs. 1,92,000, is that going to be charged to the provincial revenues; or is it to be charged to the Barrage project?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I will just find out. Nearly 30 lakhs will be debited to the Barrage, because we have yet to carry out works to the tune of 1,19 lakhs.

Mr. A. N. SURVE: My doubt is not cleared. If this item is going to be a charge on the provincial revenues, then the House will have to consider it.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I will just find out.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I find that only one superintending engineer is being reduced.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: No, two superintending engineers and some executive engineers will be reduced.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: Why have you then provided here in the budget for 1932-33 six Superintending Engineers?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: One will be retrenched in June, and only five will remain.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: Sir, may I clear the honourable member Mr. Surve's doubt? If he will look at page 78 of the Blue Book, paragraph 196 will solve his difficulty.

Rao Bahadur S. N. ANGADI: On a point of information, Sir. Out of this large staff of 5 or 6 Superintending Engineers and 23 Executive Engineers, how many are Indians?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not think that is relevant here.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District): Sir, I am not going to enter into the labyrinth of statistics quoted by my friend Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch, but I have stood up simply to endorse the feelings given expression to on behalf of the people of Sind in criticising this item. Sir, genuine anxiety is felt by the inhabitants of Sind to see that Government is always economical in spending every pie on this project hereafter. They have always trusted their experience and expert knowledge, but now, since the future of the project is entwined with the future of the province itself and the destinies of the people inhabiting that province, we are naturally very anxious to watch the actions of Government, whether administrative or financial, with regard to this project. Sir, no consolation was extended to us by the words of the Honourable the General Member when he declared just now that he has been able to reduce only two Superintending Engineers. The Honourable Member has forgotten that he has thrust upon our head another Chief Engineer for whom there is no necessity.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We have two for the present.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH: We could distinguish between the duties imposed upon the two Chief Engineers before they were amalgamated. One was concerned with ordinary Public Works Department work carried on under old conditions and that very Chief Engineer's place has been occupied now by the honourable member Sir Charlton Harrison. His predecessors represented to Government that there was no necessity for maintaining a Chief Engineer in Sind.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: I never said that.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH: His predecessor said that.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: I had no predecessor.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH: I mean Mr. Satarawala, Chief Engineer in Sind. He was of that opinion and many other experts occupied with the work of the project and the system of irrigation in Sind were of opinion that there was no necessity either of maintaining a Chief Engineer or two Superintending Engineers who acted as post offices. Therefore, there has not been much economy in the direction of appointments of Chief Engineers or Superintendents. I do not know what earthly reason there is to maintain two Chief Engineers who will be sitting in their offices in Karachi. If there had been two headquarters, it would have been possible for us to imagine that one Chief Engineer would be supervising the work in the north and the other in the south. But the headquarters of both will be located at Karachi and they will be disposing of their ordinary post like Superintending Engineers from headquarters. In the past, works to the extent of crores of rupees have been carried out by these officers, as my honourable friend the General Member said. I fail to see, therefore, why three Superintending Engineers cannot supervise the remainder of work when they have got expert executive engineers, expert assistant engineers and expert supervisors and numerous other officers who would be on the spot supervising the works actually. I fail to see the reason for appointing 5 Superintending Engineers in a small province like Sind. I know that expert advice can be tendered even by correspondence. If the officers on the spot ever require any expert advice, my honourable friend the Chief Engineer and the three Superintending Engineers would be in existence and will be tendering advice to their subordinate staff under whose direct supervision the work will be carried out. In these times of financial stringency, in the face of the colossal debt which is going to be thrown on the shoulders of Sindhis and their posterity, I fail to see if Government have got any feeling, human feeling, towards the inhabitants of Sind. If they have got any feeling, they would economise in this department and in this department alone. Fears have been expressed by experts that this project is going to be a failure so far as its financial side is concerned. We might take this opportunity to give credit to the Chief Engineer who has carried out the technical side of this project. We have no doubt about that, but we are not concerned only with its technical side. We are more concerned with its financial aspect, whether it is going to be a paying proposition. From that point of view we are very anxious to see that not a single pie is extravagantly spent on this Barrage. There will be a time when we can reasonably look forward for the separation of Sind, and this burden is not going to be borne by the Presidency but by Sind alone. I think it is high time that before the expert committee for reorganisation is appointed, Government should themselves think they are experts and set their own house in order themselves. Without waiting for the advice of the expert committee, they should themselves find out where to apply the axe of retrenchment. The whole department is in a melting pot and this is the time when they should economise in this department and appoint the minimum establishment necessary for the maintenance of this project.

Sir, I might not be misunderstood if I refer to the opinion of my honourable friend Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch. Of course, I do not attempt to speak in the same tone, nor do I mean anything derogatory to the position or to the intentions of those who are responsible for appointments in this Department. Yet we have got a great grievance with regard to the question of recruitment. My honourable friend said just now that these posts are maintained for the purpose of continuing some officials as long as possible. We are grieved to see that highly paid officers with inferior qualifications are being recruited and that there is no tendency on the part of this department towards Indianisation. I think it is high time that Indianisation was taken in hand. I think I give expression to the feelings of this side of the House when I say that though the Honourable the General Member belongs to this country, he is not paying adequate attention which we all expected from him in this direction. He must assert himself and make a beginning in history so that posterity will always send blessings to his memory. With these few remarks I again emphasise the point on behalf of the people of Sind as a whole that the Honourable the General Member should take pretty good care to economise in this department so that he may not add a single pie unnecessarily to the already colossal cost of the Project which posterity will have to pay.

Mr. C. M. LANE: Sir, in the first place, if I may, I would like to refer to the speech of the honourable member the Finance Secretary on Friday last during the general discussion on the budget. The point to which I want to refer relates to the revenue from the Barrage canals in Sind. The honourable member Mr. Wiles said that he understood from the engineers that during the first year water cannot be given through these new canals for irrigation purposes, because it would be soaking the banks of the canals. Now, that is not exactly the case, and I am afraid that it may lead to false hopes on the part of some zamindars and misapprehension on the part of others. The water will be available for irrigation purposes. At present it is being used for strengthening the banks and it is also at present used for irrigation. The reason why a bigger credit has not been taken in our estimates on account of extra revenue from the Barrage canals is that in the present situation with low prices Government are advised that it is possible that the first kharif demands may not be realised during the current year. If they are realised, we will get the revenue. But if we do not get it this year, we will get it next year. The statement that water would not be available for irrigation will, I hope, not lead to zamindars stopping their arrangements for cultivation. Also I hope that it will not lead other zamindars to assume that this water will be available and not charged for. It will be charged for.

Now, I come to the remarks of the honourable the mover of this cut. He stated—I do not think he stated it on this occasion, but he has stated it on other occasions—that in the United Provinces the Executive Engineer's charge of perennial irrigation comprises 6,000 or 7,000 cusecs and four or five such charges make one Superintending Engineer's Circle. I can assure him he is wrong. The honourable member Sir Charlton Harrison will no doubt give details at a later stage and fully justify our demands for establishment. But I would like to point out now, that the Jamrao Canal is the only perennial canal we have in Sind as a guide for our future requirements. It is our only perennial canal. It carries 3,200 cusecs and comprises two divisions, each Executive Engineer being in charge of 1,600 cusecs. This has been going on for many years, and I have not heard a murmur from the honourable mover or any other zamindar that it is too light a charge. I have held charge of the Jamrao Canals for more than three years and I found it a very heavy charge.

Next, coming to what the honourable member Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch said, I do not know that I need say very much as his reverberations have been treated very light-heartedly by this honourable House. The honourable member referred somewhat cryptically to a letter addressed to His Excellency the Governor. That letter is not before the House. If I may, however, I should like to read an extract from a letter from the honourable member to the Editor of the "Sind Observer", the last paragraph of which letter reads as follows :—

"I am afraid that the junior staff and the temporary staff is likely to suffer due to the transfer of the barrage works to the Public Works Department. I therefore take this opportunity to inform such members that if they feel that they are being unjustly dealt with, they should supply me with the facts of their cases when I hope to take them up with Government."

I do not know if this entirely disinterested and magnanimous appeal has met with any response, but I should like to point out that if any Government servant thinks that he is being unjustly dealt with there is the regular official channel through which he must send his representation.

The general trend of remarks of the honourable members from Sind is that they cannot afford to pay for what they describe as this extravagant administration, but I should like to point out that if our superior establishment is cut down to a dangerously low level, then, if not the taxpayer, the zamindars themselves will have to pay, because if the zamindars are left at the mercy of the lower subordinate establishment and the lower canal and revenue establishment without adequate and efficient supervision by superior staff, they will get mulcted and they will pay indirectly if not directly. We must have sufficient superior establishment to keep the lower establishment up to their work and under control.

[Mr. C. M. Lane]

I do not think I need say any more because the honourable member the Chief Engineer, Lloyd Barrage, Sir Charlton Harrison, will give all details and a complete justification for this establishment.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE (Ahmednagar District): Sir, lest my Sindhi friends may think that we on this side do not wish to support them in their just demands, it is necessary to add a few words to remove their anxiety especially as they are separating, or at least they hope to separate, very soon and they want our help in seeing that the burden is lightened as much as possible. When the barrage was being constructed during the last ten years—and it had to be constructed within a scheduled time and the thanks of this House are due to the honourable member the Chief Engineer, Lloyd Barrage, for the way in which it has been constructed almost to time when it was said it would be finished—I can understand that a very large number of officers and other establishment was necessary, and perhaps it was also increased latterly in order that the work might be completed in as short a time or in as reasonable a time as was possible. But now that the work is completed almost 95 per cent. and 18 crores have been spent and only about a crore is to be spent, it does strike one as rather an extravagant establishment which costs the barrage 36 lakhs of rupees. It does appeal to me that at present looking at the problem from a broader point of view, and especially from the point of view that you cannot get retrenchment from the people who are themselves interested in not being retrenched, the position does seem rather incongruous. That is the position. The position is that the Engineering Department deserves to be retrenched from the general point of view, but the persons concerned would not certainly like to be retrenched in such a manner as would appear to be equitable or reasonable to outsiders. There is no outside agency, for instance, a secretariat out of this cadre of engineers who could be an arbiter of their destinies, but rather the Chief Engineer who himself was serving perhaps in Sind for some years now comes back and acts as Secretary and thinks there is no room for retrenchment in Sind. The point of view I would like to urge on the honourable member the Chief Engineer, Lloyd Barrage, Sir Charlton Harrison, and even on the Honourable the General Member, is this that it does strike me that, as it is, the establishment appears to be a bit extravagant in this sense that as the main barrage project is completed and the main distribution of the work, either of the water or the revenue which may be coming, will be the only work that will have to be looked after, I would be completely at one in submitting that perhaps a larger establishment on the revenue side will be necessary, because the system in Sind is that there is no land revenue fixed, but after the water is given and taken, land revenue, without the water rate, as we have here, has to be charged and therefore that establishment may have to be strengthened. I have therefore no quarrel about the additional increase in the revenue establishment, but as regards this small cut of one lakh, I should like the honourable member Sir Charlton Harrison or the Honourable the General Member for the matter of that, to satisfy this side of the House by accepting that cut in an expenditure of 49 lakhs of rupees. Surely, nobody can say that the estimate is so exact to the last pie that even retrenchment to the extent of 1/50th cannot be effected. I think it is beyond human competence to say that as a matter of fact there is no room for retrenchment; that, even taking for granted the usual five per cent. contingencies or some kind of allowances which are also given or the maintenance and repair charges for buildings which have been constructed so far, I refuse to believe that there is no room under that establishment of 49 lakhs for a cutting down of only one and a half lakhs. That is the general point of view from which I am looking at it, and when we come to the general question, I am going to make a fighting speech on the matter of the establishment. I do note here that having regard to the basis on which the establishment charges of the Irrigation Department are run in other provinces like the Punjab or the United Provinces, which are getting a handsome return of revenue, even they find that our establishment in the Public Works Department or, for the matter of that, the Irrigation Department for the present is on a scale which at least to a lay mind appears to be a bit extravagant. The honourable member Sir Charlton Harrison seems to have made up his mind that the amount cannot be retrenched, and therefore I think this honourable House will be very well advised in voting solid or almost en bloc in favour of this cut.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: I hope to be able to satisfy the honourable member, by the statement that I shall make, that he is wrong in the comparison he makes with the other provinces.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: I am prepared to admit that my comparison may be wrong, but the honourable member Sir Charlton Harrison may take it from me that I never speak without my book. I would ask him, however, to remember that after a particular irrigation work was completed and was in working order whether the proportion of the establishment that was kept on it after it was in working order was on the same scale as we have, namely, five Chief Engineers or so many Superintending Engineers and so on. I know that on the revenue side it has been much more extravagantly staffed, because it was necessary for the reason that in the Punjab more revenue was coming in, and naturally, when there is more revenue coming it is no use our honourable member the Secretary, Public Works Department, saying that there is revenue but we have not shown it because we are very modest. I do not think they are modest because they themselves are not sure whether revenue would be flowing in from next June. That is another point. The point that I am making, broadly speaking, is this, that the mentality of the official benches is that they are always in the right and this side of the House is always in the wrong. They think that, as soon as we go away from this Budget session, they are absolutely free agents and they are not under our thumb. I should think, therefore, that this House would be very well advised, as it did last time, in voting a cut of Rs. 5,00,000. It does not matter how they manage it, but let them once for all know that they cannot have what they want every time. As I said, if they cannot make a cut of Rs. 1,00,000 in an expenditure of Rs. 50,00,000, with our consent, then I think they are not worth the job. If you give me Rs. 100 or Rs. 50 and ask me to save a rupee or two from it, I think I am not worth the job if I cannot do it. They are given Rs. 49,00,000 to play with, and surely the Honourable the General Member, or for the matter of that the Secretary, must have a lot of lakhs up their sleeves from which they can surely make this cut. But I should like to hear what Sir Charlton Harrison has to say. Of course, we are not satisfied with the speech of the Honourable the General Member. I wanted to say a lot with respect to the establishment charges, but I am reserving my remarks with regard to them, and I am giving ample notice of it. Apart from it, I should think that this side of the House would be well advised in voting for the cut.

Rao Bahadur S. N. ANGADI (Belgaum District): Sir, I do not dogmatise in matters technical. I do not know whether there is really very extravagant expenditure in the maintenance of the establishment, but when I put a question to the Honourable the Leader of the House, it looked as if he did not listen to it very seriously, and I was very glad when I found that my honourable friend Syed Miran Mahomed Shah made a grievance about the same thing. As regards recruitment he pointed out that Indianisation has not been taking place rapidly, and he made a grievance of it. So far as that is concerned, I entirely endorse the sentiments and feelings of my honourable friend Syed Miran Mahomed Shah, and I want the Honourable the Leader of the House to take note of it and see to it that that grievance is redressed as quickly as possible; and when my honourable friend made a grievance about it, it only means that there must be candidates who are qualified available; otherwise he would not have made a grievance about it at all. If properly qualified Indian candidates are available, there is no reason why they should not be taken up. Indianisation is a very necessary thing, and I do hope that the Honourable the Leader of the House will take a note of it, and see to it, and assert himself in redressing that grievance.

Mr. A. N. SURVE (Bombay City, North): Sir, the implication of item No. 25, so far as I understand it, is that a new service is being created, and our sanction to its creation is being sought. The second point that I would like to mention is that up to now whatever money was expended on the Sukkur Barrage project came out of loan funds, but when we pass this item, it will mean an ultimate annual recurring expenditure of Rs. 2,20,000, and it will have to be paid out of revenue. As long as the money was to come out loans, this side of the House has not any grievance, but when an inroad is going to be made on the provincial revenue, and that too to carry out the Sukkur Barrage scheme, which up to now was being financed out of loan money, this side of the House must be very cautious in sanctioning this new service.

Mr. C. G. FREKE: May I rise to a point of correction, Sir? I think it would simplify matters if I remove this misapprehension which is created. The honourable members' attention has already been drawn to paragraph 196, page 78 of the Blue Book, which points out the basis on which the establishment charges are debited to various budget heads. The estimated establishment charges of the Barrage are shown under this budget head, and at the end of the year they are debited in proportion to works to the Barrage by the Accountant General's office. It is impossible at this stage to separate out the particular items, but the all-over charge is debited pro rata at the end of the year. In other words, the establishment charges debitable to the Barrage will be debited to loan funds at the end of the year. There will be no establishment employed on the Barrage construction work that will be debited to revenue.

Mr. A. N. SURVE: I have read the notes on page 78 of the Blue Book, and there we are told that the distinction cannot be made. Still, there is this point that hereafter this item is to be debited to the ordinary Public Works Department account, and the Public Works Department account is a charge on the revenues; it is not a charge to be met out of loan money.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I have already explained to the House that out of the total amount Rs. 28,00,000 for establishment will be debited to the Sukkur Barrage and the remaining to the Public Works Department. We have shown here all the establishment charges. The Accountant General will, at the end of the year, distribute it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Then why not give a plain reply that none of this would be debited to revenue?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I have plainly stated that Rs. 28,11,000 will be debited to the Barrage, out of the total establishment charges, excluding pensionary charges, and we have shown that in the budget.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That statement means, I suppose, that none of that expenditure will be debited to revenue.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We cannot say what the exact amount will be. We spent certain amount on establishment. Then, at the end of the year, the pro rata distribution is made by the Accountant General. For instance, the total expenditure on the Sukkur Barrage for next year is over a crore. Out of that Rs. 28,00,000 is for establishment and the rest for works, etc.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member may argue that there is a fear that some of it will fall on revenue.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I do not think so.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Then there is no definite statement.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: The position is quite clear. These are the estimates which we have placed before the Council.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: Perhaps, Sir, I might assist the honourable member by saying that these points, as the honourable member Mr. Freke said just now, are dealt with by the Accountant General. It is the Accountant General's duty to see that capital and revenue charges are not mixed up. It is the Accountant General who has to adjust these charges at the end of the year. The honourable member can rest assured that the Accountant General in his responsible position will see that no charge that is properly debitable to capital is charged against revenue. I think that is the simplest way I can put it.

Mr. A. N. SURVE: I am thankful to the honourable member Sir Charlton for the assurance that he has just given, but the statement in the Blue Book is very ambiguous. On page 78 of the Blue Book, paragraph 196, it is stated:

"On account of the amalgamation of ordinary Public Works Department charges in Sind with those of the Lloyd Barrage and Canals Construction Project, it is not now possible to distinguish the establishment and tools and plant which are employed solely in connection with the Project."

That is one statement. Then, in the remarks against item No. 25 (page 215 of the Blue Book) it is stated:

"Government have sanctioned provisionally the amalgamation of all running charges in Sind with those of the Project."

That is to say in one case that the expenses are to be debited to the Barrage Project. And again on page 78 it is stated that this charge would be borne by the ordinary Public Works Department. These statements are clearly conflicting. If it is to be debited to the ordinary Public Works Department, it is a creation of a new service, whose burden will fall upon the provincial revenue. If the burden is to fall on the provincial revenue, this side of the House has to be very cautious. That is the only point I wish to make.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, it looks from the statement which has been made on page 215 that it is a debt charge. If according to the expectation of Government, Barrage is to be completed before the end of this year, there is then no recurring charge. The first sentence on page 215 is:

"Government have sanctioned provisionally the amalgamation of all running charges in Sind with those of the Project."

If all the running charges are to be amalgamated in Sind, it will be a charge on the revenue. Otherwise I cannot understand why it should be a recurring charge. If it is only temporary until the Barrage is completed, there is no meaning in saying that it will be a recurrent charge. If it is to be a charge on the general revenues and as it is a new service, I think that the House will have to see that no permanent burden is placed on the general revenues.

Mr. J. S. KADRI (Northern Division): Sir, I endorse the grievances of my Sind friends, in so far as they relate to the big Mahomedan section of the population in Sind and also on general grounds. The Mahomedans in general have got a grievance that their representation in public services is very meagre, and this is particularly so in Sind. In Sind, where a large establishment is maintained for the Public Works Department and Sukkur Barrage, the representation of Mahomedans in the Public Works and Irrigation Departments is very meagre indeed. This is a matter for sincere regret. When Indianisation is being undertaken in right earnest and promoted even by Government, there is no reason why Mahomedans who form the bulk of the population of Sind should not have a due share in various services in Sind. I find that in many places, retrenchment has proved to be the sword of Damocles on the heads of Mahomedans and backward classes. I say this from my own experience. To cite some concrete instances, I would quote some cases of retrenchment of Muslims in the Public Works Department of Ahmedabad and Ratnagiri districts. I have heard harrowing tales of some Muslims with several years' service to their credit in the Public Works Department having been thrown out of employ——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I may point out that, in connection with this item, the grievance of paucity of Mahomedans in that particular service is the point to be discussed and not the general question of recruitment.

Mr. J. S. KADRI: Sir, what I wish to urge is that Mahomedans are not treated fairly in the various services. When so much expenditure is incurred upon a big establishment as that of the Sukkur Barrage which provides employment for a large number of people, the Mahomedans should get a fair share of representation in that service. I hope that Government will see that the orders issued by them for giving adequate representation to Mussalmans in various services, particularly in the Public Works Department, are carried out. On another occasion, I shall take an opportunity of showing that Mahomedans have been often put in the background in the matter of patronage in Government service, on account of the lack of sympathy on the part of the heads of departments in many cases. Coming to the question of expenditure on the Sukkur Barrage establishment, the decrease of only 11 lakhs from its ordinary expenditure, is not at all a matter for congratulation to Government. I think if retrenchment were seriously attempted there ought to have been a bigger cut in the Public Works Department budget of Sind. The honourable members from Sind are justified in objecting to the extravagant expenditure budgeted for the Barrage establishment this year. With these words I support the motion for the cut.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH (Sukkur District): Sir, I have heard with interest some of the speeches of honourable members who referred to the representation of Mahomedans in services. But when that question is mixed up with the object with which the cut has been moved, the cut loses its grace. I think, Sir, it is hardly the object of any honourable member in this House that the establishment should be retained, provided due share is given to the Mussalmans or the backward communities. That is hardly the intention of honourable members on this side. The question is whether the expenditure that is now incurred on the establishment is justified or not. That is the only question which requires careful consideration of this honourable House. Sir, first of all, I would like to bring to the notice of the members on the official benches, particularly to the Honourable the General Member, that he should have an idea of the establishment—the Barrage establishment and the establishment of the running canals. These two establishments have nothing to do with each other. One is for the purpose of constructing the Barrage canals and as soon as the construction is over, this establishment has nothing to do with the running of the canals. So, we have to consider the establishment for the construction of the canals on its own merits. For instance, if today, I construct two bungalows and engage the necessary number of carpenters and masons, it does not follow that I should retain the same number of carpenters and masons, after the completion of one of the bungalows. So, when the Barrage canals begin to work, the establishment engaged for the construction of them will have to be considered on its own merits.

Coming to the question what would be the minimum establishment necessary to work these canals, I would like to impress on the honourable members of this House that after the opening of the Barrage canals a large area commanded by these canals will come under cultivation, after 15 or 20 years' time. But that does not in any way change the situation because within the Barrage zone we are practically scrapping the old canals and replacing them by new Barrage canals. It is not a question of bringing in any new area which at present is not being cultivated or looked after by the Public Works Department. The area is the same. It may be that in a taluka where we are now cultivating 50,000 acres we may, after the opening of the Barrage, cultivate 70,000 or 80,000 acres. The cultivation figures may thus go from 50,000 acres to 70,000 acres. It does not mean that the area of the taluka is increased; it is within the same area. The area of Sind is not going to increase.

Coming to the question of what the minimum establishment necessary for the Barrage is. My honourable friend Mr. Lane referred to the Jamrao Canals area, and he argued that from the Barrage that canal drew a discharge of only 2,300 cusecs and yet it had two divisions and none of the honourable members had murmured about that. Well, Sir, the times are changing. If an evil exists, it does not follow that we should allow it to exist for ever. In reply to his argument, I would like to bring to his notice that in fixing a division two main factors to be taken into consideration are (1) what discharge of a canal an executive engineer can efficiently manage, and (2) what length of a canal and its branches an executive engineer can efficiently manage. These are the two main factors on which the question of establishment should be decided. Now, I must admit that the honourable member Mr. Lane is an experienced officer of Sind; he has remained in Sind as Superintending Engineer. He will bear me out when I say that the district from which I come is comprised of three main canals. The first is the Desert Canal, the discharge of which is more than 3,000 cusecs. It is a model canal with regulators, distributaries and so on, but it has no modules. The second is the Begari Canal, with a discharge of about 8,000 cusecs. The third is the Unharwah Canal with a discharge of about 2,000 cusecs. Now, all the canals of that division draw a discharge of about 12,000 to 13,000 cusecs.

Mr. C. M. LANE: May I point out, Sir, that they draw their discharge for only about three months in the year?

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: I am coming to that. I draw from it an inference quite the contrary of what the honourable member implies. The establishment that you require for distributing such a big discharge within a short time must be bigger than the establishment you should require when you have a smaller discharge flowing throughout the year in an automatic manner. In fact, that is my point.

Now, Sir, coming to the length of the canals. The length of the Begari Canal—the main Begari Canal—I am not taking into consideration its branches—will be about 104 miles. Its branches, Nurwah, Sonwah and Choiwah, which have a discharge of about a thousand cusecs and a total length of 60 miles. So that, that one canal with its three main branches has a length of about 160 miles, with a discharge of about 8,000 cusecs. In the same way, the Desert Canal has a length of about 100 miles—including its branches, perhaps more—and a discharge of 3,000 cusecs, and the Unharwah Canal with a length of about 50 miles and a discharge of 2,000 cusecs. Now, I ask my honourable friends who are at the helm of affairs, is it proper, when you have at present only one executive engineer to distribute this discharge of 12,000 to 13,000 cusecs and to maintain a canal length of about 300 miles, is it proper that Government should appoint an executive engineer to distribute a discharge of only about 3,000 cusecs? My honourable friend Mr. Lane pointed out to me that the canals in my district are worked only for three months in the year. He forgets the fact that with an inundation canal it is not so easy to distribute the discharge as with the Barrage canal, because the number of sectors will be larger. Sometime Sir, very early in the abkalani we get our water, and then there is a drop in the river and there is no water late in the season. The water that is available should be distributed among the zamindars in order to save the crops, and it becomes a difficult task in the abkalani season when the river drops early and there is no water to distribute. That is the difficulty. In the case of the Barrage, you have got the canals working with regulators at every place. I believe the Barrage authorities will be in a position to maintain the levels without any difficulty and to distribute the water. This goes to show that there is no justification whatever to incur such an expenditure on this establishment.

Another point. With the inundation canals, the difficulty is that as soon as these canals have stopped working, that is, after the abkalani season, it becomes necessary to clear the canals for the next working season. Naturally, when these canals have to be cleared, you want more establishment to take the levels, to prepare estimates and carry out the ordinary repairs to the canals. After the opening of the Barrage, however, there will be no such difficulty. The canals are perennial canals working all the year round, and you will require no establishment to clear the canals or carry out any ordinary annual repairs. That goes to show that there is no justification whatsoever to maintain such costly establishment for the Barrage.

Now, coming to the financial aspect of the project. Sir, every honourable member knows that the future of Sind, whether it is with the Presidency or is separated, depends on its financial position. Certainly, if the Barrage is going to fail, then it will be very difficult to steer out of the difficult position in which this Presidency will be involved. This side of the House is justified in asking the Honourable the General Member to place a statement in the hands of honourable members of this House showing what the income out of the Barrage is going to be after it has started working. That is one point on which we are entitled to be enlightened. [Interruption.] My honourable friend Mr. Lane asks at what rate.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Is the honourable member likely to take long?

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: Yes, Sir.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF RESULT OF ELECTIONS TO RAILWAY ADVISORY COMMITTEES.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I have now to announce the result of the elections. Before I do that, there is a very small matter to which I wish to refer. It is the peculiarity of the English language that I thought I might bring to the notice of honourable members. Notice was once taken officially as to why in the Official Reports the error was not corrected. That error is this: when honourable members refer to other members of the House, or outside officers, who are Knights, without the Christian names before them, the English language does not permit it. It is usual to say, for instance, "Sir Charlton Harrison" and not "Sir Harrison," "Sir Ernest Hotson" and not "Sir Hotson." If honourable members do not know the Christian names of the gentlemen, they should take the trouble to find out.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: It is ordinary grammar, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Now, as to the result of the elections:

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—resumed.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH (Sukkur District): Sir, I hope I have been able to convince the honourable members yesterday that, taking the facts as they are into consideration, the expenditure on establishment in the reorganised Public Works Department in Sind is out of all proportion to the needs. A few years ago, Sir, it was considered that the post of Chief Engineer in Sind was not necessary and that it should be abolished.

Mr. C. M. LANE: When?

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: About eight years ago, when Mr. Shoubridge was Chief Engineer in Sind. However, it was decided to retain the post at that time for the performance of two main duties. The duties which the Chief Engineer in Sind performed before the opening of the Barrage were, firstly, to control the expenditure on repairs to canals and their branches, and, secondly, to inspect the heads of the canals and the river. These were the two main duties, to perform which it was considered necessary to retain the post of Chief Engineer. Now, after the opening of the Barrage, as most of the canals take their heads above the Barrage, it would not be necessary to alter their heads every year or every four or five years, as had to be done before. That has stopped now. Secondly, on account of the perennial supply within the Barrage zone, it would not be necessary to carry out annual repairs to the canals, such as silt clearance and other repairs which are necessary to inundation canals. Therefore, Sir, one fails to understand why two chief engineers are necessary in place of the one that existed before, unless the Government benches can explain that the duties of a Chief Engineer are going to be different from what they used to be in the past.

Then, coming to the duties of the Superintending Engineer, the duties of the Superintending Engineer prior to the opening of the Barrage were to sanction estimates and plans up to Rs. 50,000. After the opening of the Barrage, it would not be necessary to carry out repairs to canals on such a large scale as they had to undertake when the canals were inundation canals. In any case, there is no necessity to retain so many superintending engineers. One fails to understand what these half a dozen superintending engineers will do. Sir, one is surprised when one looks at the Blue Book: practically for every district we have one superintending engineer. Take the Larkana District, for example, which was comprised of two divisions, the Garh Canal Division and the Western Nara Division. These two canals, the Garh Canal and the Western Nara, drew more discharge prior to the opening of the Barrage than now. The area is practically the same now. These two divisions have been split up into four divisions, each in charge of an executive engineer, and there is a superintending engineer over these four executive engineers. Now, I ask Government in all seriousness why they require four executive engineers in place of the two and also one superintending engineer over them for one district only? [Interruption.] According to the Blue Book, there are four divisions and four executive engineers. Why should Government split up the original two divisions into four divisions and have a superintending engineer to control the four executive engineers in charge of those divisions ? I hope the Chief Engineer in Sind will enlighten us on the point. As I have stated, Sir, before the opening of the Barrage, when the supply was unregulated—there were no modules, no regulators and distributaries and the supply was not assured—when at any time the river might drop, the executive engineer had to take the trouble of inter-rotation to give water to certain areas, take water from one reach of the canal and give it to another and distribute the water. But now when the Barrage is there, the levels are maintained, the regulators are there, it is a regulated supply, one cannot understand why this establishment is required. [Interruption.] I do not believe in the use of the motor service. Personally, I would prefer our reverting to the old system of riding on horses or camels. The reason is this. When an officer goes in a motor car, if any zamindar has any grievance, it is difficult for the Sahib to stop and hear that grievance; whereas, if he goes on horse-back or camel-back, a man can go to him and get his grievances redressed.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Issue a general circular to all officers.

KHAN BAHADUR ALLAHBAKSH: Sir, I have often found some of the non-official members as well as official members comparing the figures of expenditure in this province with the other provinces. To my mind, Sir, it appears that it is not proper that we should compare the figures of expenditure in this province with those in other provinces. I have got my own reasons for making this statement. Yesterday, my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Khuhro quoted some figures to show that an executive engineer in the United Provinces was controlling about 6,000 cusecs. His statement was repudiated by my honourable friend Mr. Lane. I feel, Sir, that it is not fair to either side of the House to make these comparisons without knowing what the conditions are under which the expenditure is incurred. Conditions governing that expenditure are an important factor. Sir, I remember that four or five years ago the question of duty was discussed on the floor of this House; some of the honourable members from Sind thought that the duty in Sind was too high, while the honourable member the Chief Engineer in Sind said that, compared to the duty in Punjab, it was not high. Sir, I took the trouble of going to Lahore and ascertaining things for myself. I was informed that in the Punjab there were various duties for various canals. There were certain parts where there was rainfall; the duty there was really low. In other parts, where there was no rainfall, the duty was higher than even in Sind. So, Sir, there can be no comparison. Coming to the question of the expenditure on the establishment of the Public Works Department in the Punjab and United Provinces, we do not know what the duties of the executive engineers in those provinces are. I am informed that in the Punjab—that might be so in the United Provinces as well—the executive engineers have to perform some duties which they do not have to in Sind. In the Punjab they perform the duties of the Revenue Department in the matter of remissions and many other things. There is yet another important factor to be taken into consideration, namely, that both the Punjab Government and the United Province Government incur large amounts of expenditure on roads and buildings, which is not the case in Sind. Naturally, the attention of the Public Works Department officers in those provinces has to be devoted to roads and buildings also. So, Sir, it is no use either the Government benches or the non-official benches drawing comparisons in this manner, irrespective of the conditions obtaining. We have to decide the case of establishment in Sind on its own merits, irrespective of what is done in other provinces of India.

Sir, I hope I have been able to convine this honourable House that at present there are certain divisions in Sind in which an executive engineer is able to control more than 10,000 to 12,000 cusecs of water and to supervise 400 miles of canals and distributaries. That being the case, I would beg of the honourable members on the Government benches not to bring in, for comparison with Sind, other parts of India about the prevailing conditions of which we do not know anything. The Jamrao Canal cannot be made a rule simply because it suits the official benches.

Coming now to the financial aspect of the project, I think, Sir, that at this stage the House is entitled to ask Government what will be the return from the Barrage. It is an undoubted fact, Sir, that there has been an abnormal fall in the prices of agricultural commodities. Apart from the question of remissions and revision of rates necessitated by this fall, we have got to consider the effect of this fall on the estimated returns from the project. There are some interesting figures given by the Sind Financial Enquiry Committee in this connection. When one looks at these figures, one is convinced that the Finance Department of the Government of Bombay has not exercised its full control. From the year 1918 the expenditure on irrigation in Sind has been going up. The result is that there is very little saving left. The expenditure was by way of establishment and repairs to canals. When the financial forecast of the Barrage was prepared, it was shown that the net saving out of the canals in Sind was 40 lakhs, that is to say, putting the expenditure on the one side and the total revenue from the canals on the other and deducting the expenditure from the revenue, the net saving from the canal irrigation within the Barrage zone was 40 lakhs when the financial forecast of the Barrage was prepared.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Was it from the old canals?

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: Exactly; old canals, which now come within the Barrage. The net revenue from those canals was 40 lakhs. And in the financial forecast it was estimated that the income over and above this 40 lakhs, after the opening of the Barrage, would yield a return of 6 per cent. rising to about 12 per cent. The point is we are entitled to take into account these 40 lakhs which we used to get when the Barrage project was being prepared. We have, Sir, incurred an expenditure of about 20 crores on the Barrage. The interest on these 20 crores would be about a crore. That means to say, we expect a revenue of 1,40 lakhs from the Barrage. Over and above that, there are these establishment charges which amount roughly to about 50 lakhs. Therefore, until we get two crores from the Barrage, we cannot say that the Barrage project is a paying concern. I would draw the attention of the Honourable the Finance Member and the Honourable the General Member to that. I say that 40 lakhs was the net return of these canals and that is shown in the financial forecast submitted by the Government of Bombay to the Secretary of State for India. Roughly, taking the figures as they are, it has been stated that the area at present cultivated in the Barrage zone is 18 lakhs of acres, and in the first few years the area coming under cultivation would be 24 lakhs of acres. Now, Government will have to revise their rates of assessment, because people cannot afford to pay the estimated rates. Taking the rates all round and taking the maximum rates that people will be able to pay, taking all crops together, I think you cannot go beyond Rs. 4 an acre. Now, 24 lakhs of acres cultivated every year, with an average assessment of Rs. 4 per acre will bring in a revenue of about 96 lakhs. Now, the expenditure side, as I have already shown from the figures supplied by Government, will be about two crores. Therefore, there will be a loss of about a crore of rupees every year. I stand subject to correction, and I would request my honourable friend the Chief Engineer in Sind to tell me if he has any doubts about these figures, as otherwise I will have no chance of replying to him. He should contradict me now so that I may have a chance of explaining. Roughly speaking we expect to get an income of Rs. 96 lakhs or a crore as assessment from the Barrage. We used to get 40 lakhs as our net revenue from the pre-Barrage canals, as has been admitted by the Government of India in their financial forecast. Now, there comes the question of 60 lakhs. The expenditure on establishment alone comes to about 55 or 60 lakhs—the least is shown as 42 lakhs. I ask the Honourable the General Member to consider whether he should not cut his coat according to his cloth. When the revenues have gone so low, are we to go on spending money in the way in which it is proposed? Whatever we get from the Barrage is hardly sufficient to pay for the establishment. When are we going to get the interest? This is the position which I am placing before this honourable House. In connection with the reorganization of the Public Works Department establishment in Sind, we must take the facts as they are into consideration. Would it be proper to incur an expenditure of 50 or 60 lakhs on establishment when that is the annual income we expect during the first years of the working of the Barrage?

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: Did the honourable member say that 50 or 60 lakhs is, or is to be, the expenditure?

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: Yes. Do you want to correct it?

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: I will do it when I speak.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: Now, Sir, we have to divide the expenditure on the canals in Sind into two categories, (1) expenditure for maintaining these canals, and (2) the expenditure on establishment. If we have to reduce the rates of assessment and adjust them to the present conditions, it is also possible for us to reduce the expenditure under maintenance and repairs of canals, because as there has been a fall in the prices of agricultural commodities the rates for clearance, repairs to canal banks and such other things have gone down as also the cost of the establishment such as abdars, muccadams and coolies. If we also adjust our expenditure on establishment to the present conditions, devise some means by which we can reduce the number of chief engineers, superintending engineers, executive engineers and assistant engineers, we may keep the net revenue of the project to a certain extent the same as the estimates. But we find that the figures given in the Blue Book of the establishment for the Barrage to be out of all proportion to the needs. It will not be proper, therefore, for this side of the House to give consent to such an abnormal expenditure.

Sir, yesterday, my honourable friend Mr. Lane pointed out to this honourable House that if the House did not sanction this establishment, the zamindars would suffer. Sir, I have not been able to understand the logic of that conclusion. I do not understand how the retrenchment of a chief engineer and a few superintending engineers is going to affect the zamindars in Sind. There have been a few appeals in Sind from the decisions of the executive engineers, but very few of them have been upset by the higher authorities, namely, the superintending engineer and the chief engineer. And yet there have been no grievances on that score. The policy is that the superintending engineer should not upset the decisions of the executive engineers and the chief engineer should not upset the decisions of the superintending engineers. [Interruption.] It is so. I mean the policy is laid down in that way and it is very rarely that the higher authorities upset the decisions of the lower officers. If the argument of my honourable friend is that control is necessary, then I ask where the necessity is of keeping the headquarters of the superintending engineers at Karachi. [Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch: "Now at Sukkur."] If the idea is that the superintending engineers should remove the grievances of zamindars within their circle, why is it that their headquarters are located at Karachi? The supply is now perennial; water is flowing throughout the year; and a zamindar may have a complaint to make at any time of the year. When the canals were inundation canals, there were grievances only during the abkalani season; now, a zamindar may have to complain at any time. Why should he go to Karachi to see the superintending engineer to get his grievances redressed? If there is any need for the superintending engineer to control the executive engineers, then it is necessary that the headquarters of the superintending engineer should be located within his circle. Now that we have a superintending engineer for each district, the headquarters of the superintending engineer should be within the district itself. Larkana and Dadu (originally one district) have got one superintending engineer and his headquarters are at Karachi. What is the use of having the headquarters at Karachi ? He should have headquarters within the district, if the object is to control expenditure and redress grievances. The headquarters of the Superintending Engineer, Northern Circle, which comprises the Sukkur District, part of Jacobabad District, and part of Larkana District, if I may put it correctly, is also at Karachi. For six months, or more than six months, in the year he has to remain at Karachi. Now, what control can he possibly exercise over his executive engineers when he is sitting at Karachi ? One is unable to understand what the grounds are to having such a large establishment under the pretence that it is for redress of the grievances of the zamindars. We have not grievances to such an extent that we should give our aproval to the appointment of five superintending engineers and two chief engineers in Sind. It is out of all proportion to our requirements. Sir, the savings that they will effect, the control which they will exercise, and the appeals they will upset are so negligible that it is unnecessary to incur such expenditure. Therefore, I would request the Honourable the General Member and the Honourable the Finance Member to co-operate with this side of the House and control the expenditure in Sind. It is a question of recurring expenditure. The Honourable the General Member said that some works had still to be carried out. It is true that the project has not finally been completed. If they find that the completion of the project requires some more establishment, then it would be proper for the Government benches to ask for that expenditure in a form different to that they have put forward. They could have said, we have to carry out works amounting to 50 lakhs or two crores (whatever it may be) and we require so much extra establishment to carry out those works, and that after that has been completed, which may be after a year or two years, the permanent expenditure required to work these canals will be so much. It is no use bringing in vague demands from which one is not able to understand how much is really required to complete the Barrage scheme proper and what ultimately will be required to work these canals.

With these words I support the cut.

Mr. M. M. KARBHARI (Thana and Bombay Suburban Districts): Sir, I have not been able to understand the grant demanded by Government. I cannot possibly say whether or not these two chief engineers and five superintending engineers, and their establishment are a necessity for the Barrage, after the construction of the Barrage has been completed. But reading the explanation that has been given by the Government, I find that it is a clever attempt on the part of Government to include the existing incumbents in the services already employed in the permanent civil works establishment. I find that two new posts of chief engineers are to be created. It is stated :—

"The charges of Superintending Engineer, Indus Right Bank Circle, and Superintending Engineer, Indus Left Bank Circle, should be held in abeyance and the works in these charges should be divided among the five superintending engineers' charges as proposed for the post-Barrage establishment in Sind."

That means in the cadre of superintending engineers three more additions are to be made, and in the cadre of the chief engineers two more additions are to be made.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: Quite wrong.

Mr. M. M. KARBHARI: Though this grant is being asked for this year and it has been suggested that if it is necessary the grant will have to be asked for again next year, even then the impression that is created in my mind is that some temporary hands who are now working and who will have to go away after the construction is over have got to be provided for and, therefore, I believe, Government have under the guise of maintaining the works come forward to provide for these people and have asked for a grant. It is therefore very necessary for this honourable House to consider the case on its merits. I believe that we will be justified in not supporting this grant.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: Sir, the honourable member from Larkana, who started this debate, has unconsciously given the service to which I have the honour to belong very great praise. I say "unconsciously", because I do not think he has really attempted to see what is done in other provinces and what we propose to do in Sind. I think all will agree that if circumstances are approximately the same, and in one area you require a certain number of men to do a particular job of work and in another area you require a lesser number of men for the same unit—I think, for purposes of comparison, acreage of irrigation is the best unit—you have got to admit that those who work with the lesser number are the more efficient. Now, the honourable member has not attempted to study facts. I would ask honourable members whether they have studied the White Book "Sind and the Lloyd Barrage". I do not think many have, certainly none of those who spoke. If they will turn to that book, they will see, as an appendix at the end, a chart which will give them a lot of information which will, I am certain, make them alter their views.

Then we come to the honourable member from Karachi (Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch). He seems to have arrived here somewhat late and therefore has probably been very rushed. He seemed to me to be in a chaotic rush as regards his statement of facts. This honourable member has, as usual, failed accurately to assimilate the facts. In his hurry not being able to assimilate the real facts he has attempted to create his own facts.

I would now refer to the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale's criticisms. He said that possibly there were misapprehensions and he would like to have them cleared. He threatened us with a violent attack later on, on the question of general administration, but I think we will await that. He did not seem to have studied this particular White Book on Sind. I am certain that, if he had, he would not have said a great deal of what he did say yesterday. I would ask honourable members, if they have the White Book in their hands, really to study it now and set themselves right.

Then I come to a very efficient zamindar of Upper Sind whom I had also expected to be efficient with regard to his facts when he comes to a debate in this House. But he has fallen away from his high efficiency, and it struck me that he was, perhaps, attempting to talk out time. He knows the real facts about the establishment required in Sind, and I have never seen anyone skate around the facts so successfully as the honourable member from Shikarpur. He, I think, should have taken up the trade of a shopkeeper, because knowing the goods that he has in his shop he attempts to get the very best of them put in the shop-window so as to entice others to come in and see how he can mulct them.

I would like to return to the detailed criticisms made by the honourable member Khan Bahadur Khuhro and by other honourable members from Sind. The honourable member Khan Bahadur Khuhro said, along with others, that one Chief Engineer was enough. It is very easy to say a thing like that because he has never been the Chief Engineer. Now, I have been Chief Engineer of the Barrage and Canals Construction, and I am now the Chief Engineer in Sind. I have not only to carry on the duties of Chief Engineer, Barrage, but I have also to undertake additional duties which have fallen on my shoulders as Chief Engineer in Sind. The honourable member has more than once visited me in my office and I do not think he has ever found me in a long chair, with my legs cocked up, reading a novel. I think he generally found me pretty busily occupied. He says that if you have two Chief Engineers, then one has got to be subordinate to the other. There is certainly no harm in that. Where the duties conflict in any way with two officers on one job, one has to be subordinate to the other. That is probably a very good thing from the point of view of efficiency. I cannot, therefore, accept that as a strong argument in favour of abolishing one of the Chief Engineers. He says that because of that the Joint Chief Engineer really becomes the Personal Assistant to the Chief Engineer. The honourable member is really not as ignorant as he would lead us to believe from the facts he tried to place before the House. He has more than once discussed this question with me and he knows fully what the real facts are. He knows perfectly well that even at the present moment with two Chief Engineers, there has not been the slightest sign of falling off of work and there cannot be. I have on more than one occasion said in this House that one of the most difficult periods is the change-over from construction to new perennial irrigation; from old inundation conditions to new perennial irrigation. The honourable member attempts to make out that the times are so easy now for the Chief Engineer that you can easily abolish one Chief Engineer and give the other Chief Engineer a Personal Assistant and all will be well. I know that in his heart of hearts he realises that such is not the case. He has been to me more often during the last six or eight months than he has ever before, and several other well known zamindars in Sind have come to me and to the Joint Chief Engineer. Why? Because they want to know exactly how they stand and they have got to find that out. Where will they go to? They cannot go to the sub-divisional officer, they must go to the heads and rightly so. When you want proper information, always go to the fountain head. That honourable member has done that and so have a great many other honourable members from Sind.

The honourable member from Larkana then referred somewhat cryptically to a letter that has been addressed by him and others to His Excellency the Governor. That letter is unfortunately not before the House, but I understood from what he had to say that they had got some extraordinary basis of "cusecs" as the method by which the Executive Engineers' charges and the Superintending Engineers' charges should be apportioned. I will deal with that in somewhat greater detail when I refer to the extraordinary figures that are given us by the honourable member from Shikarpur. But let me tell the honourable member this that if he cares to proceed with this comparison of cusecs as the basis of a "charge", he will find that he has got an extraordinarily poor case. I just give that information because the point has been brought out in the discussion and the particular letter in question is not before us.

The honourable member then referred to Executive Engineer's charges in general terms. I would like to give a few facts as to what happens in other provinces. As I have said, we may take it that we are all equally efficient, or inefficient, in the different provinces. Next, the Punjab is as near as possible equal to Sind in general conditions. As regards the Superintending Engineers, we find, working on "average" figures, that in the United Provinces one Superintending Engineer has to look after 2 million 437 thousand acres of cultivable area. The annual irrigated area under a Superintending Engineer in the United Provinces is 891 thousand acres. In the Punjab, a Superintending Engineer has in his circle a cultivable area of 1,564,000 or in round figures, 1½ million acres, and the annual irrigable area, or the area irrigated annually under full development, is 1 million 31 thousand acres. In Sind, under the proposals that I have submitted to Government, and which have been most carefully considered by me for the last eight or ten years, it is proposed that a Superintending Engineer's circle shall comprise 1 million 863 thousand acres of cultivable area and that the anticipated annual area of cultivation in a Superintending Engineer's charge will be 1 million 330 thousand acres. That is nearly 50 per cent. more than in the United Provinces and 33 per cent. more than in the Punjab. In comparison, then, I think that there is little to cavil at as regards the Superintending Engineers.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: What is the revenue?

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: That is a question with which my Sindhi friends are very intimately concerned. If they are prepared to bear the water rates the Punjab Government impose on the zamindars of that province, then I will talk about that.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: What will be the area in Sind?

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: One million 330 thousand acres is the average area which a Superintending Engineer will have to look after.

Now I will take the Executive Engineer. In the United Provinces an Executive Engineer has in his charge a gross cultivable area of 512 thousand acres, or say half a million acres. The annual area irrigated is 195 thousand acres or, call it 200 thousand acres. In the Punjab he has 422 thousand acres of cultivable area with 278 thousand acres of irrigation. We propose for Sind that the Executive Engineer's charge shall be 465 thousand acres of cultivable area with 332 thousand acres of anticipated annual irrigation. If honourable members have jotted down these figures, they will not, after glancing at them, hesitate to agree with me that our proposals bear a very favourable comparison with the other two provinces. The United Provinces have a greater area of cultivable gross acreage per charge, in that their irrigation is scattered; we have for Sind omitted areas that have no irrigation. I have therefore given the most favourable figures for the United Provinces. We stand, I say, vindicated by the figures I have just quoted.

Let me now deal with the Chief Engineers. I have not lost sight of that. Probably honourable members think that I omitted them, in the first instance, on purpose. The figures are not at all favourable to Sind. I will explain the reason for that because I desire to be entirely frank with honourable members. In the United Provinces the Chief Engineer's charge of cultivable area is 6 million 200 thousand acres and he has 2½ million acres of irrigation under his charge. In the Punjab, he has nearly 8 million acres gross cultivable area and he has 5 million acres of annual irrigation. In Sind we propose for the two Chief Engineers an average each of 4 million 657 thousand acres of cultivable area and 3 million 325 thousand acres of annual irrigation. That is to say, a Chief Engineer's charge in Sind, based on the anticipated annual area of irrigation, will be roughly ⅔rds of a similar charge in the Punjab—

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: What is expected to be the actual?

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: We hope to have even better figures than those I have mentioned. I will try to give the honourable members a few more figures. There is no question of my trying to hide anything.

As regards the Chief Engineer's charges, they are, as I have said, about ⅔rd the size of a Punjab Chief Engineer's Charge. It was not so long ago that the Punjab had only two Chief Engineers, but their irrigable area was soon so much larger, that they could not carry on with two Chief Engineers; they now have three. If we had one Chief Engineer, we should have something like 10½ million acres of cultivable area under one Chief Engineer. I ask, supposing the efficiency is the same in all the provinces, is it fair to expect us to start off with an entirely new system of irrigation with the Chief Engineer in charge of an area which is 25 per cent. bigger than a Chief Engineer's area in the Punjab and 33 to 40 per cent. bigger than that of a Chief Engineer in the United Provinces? Their charges have been built up gradually, very, very gradually indeed. It has taken 40 years to build up the irrigation systems in the Punjab to the present acreage. Are we expected to start straight-off and be infinitely more efficient and infinitely more hard-working and infinitely more capable in every way than our confrères in other provinces? I take it as a compliment that we are expected to be so, because it means to say that the honourable members of this House have a very high opinion of the efficiency of the Public Works Officers in Sind. But, Sir, I think we have got to be practical. The very first persons to howl against any inefficiency in the administration will be the honourable member from Larkana and the honourable member from Shikarpur. They have got as great interests as, or greater interests than, most of the zamindars in Sind. The small zamindar is noisy enough, but the big zamindar, when things go wrong, is noisier still.

I will not for the moment refer to the remarks of the honourable member from Karachi; his interests are purely urban, although he tries to pose, at times, to be an agricultural expert.

Now, Sir, the honourable member from Larkana posed as an expert. I think these "experts" are most dangerous people; I say the honourable member from Larkana posed as an expert. He said "We from Sind know Sind conditions." Well, Sir, I am sure he will agree with me that he knows really very little about what the post-Barrage conditions are going to be, because he has never experienced them. I do not think he has ever really been even once over the Jamrao area, nor even over a part of that area, since the inception of so-called perennial irrigation in that area. I cannot accept, nor do I think honourable members will accept, that he is an expert, nor that he can speak with the authority with which he thinks he can speak. Mayhap he will be an authority on Sind conditions in ten years' time, under the post-Barrage conditions, but he is certainly not one now. The honourable member then proceeded to say that he is absolutely certain that there would be no loss of efficiency if the staff is reduced by one-third. Now, Sir, the figures before honourable members of this House are not the figures that we originally contemplated. I know as well as any other honourable member of this House that we are faced with acute financial stringency, and as such I have, along with officers in all other departments, attempted to cut everything down to the bone. Now, Sir, it is very easy to say, as the honourable member from Larkana has said, "Let us cut down our establishments by one-third." It is very simple to say that; it is the easiest thing in the world, but honourable members have got to realise that we shall have sunk, by the end of next year, 19 crores of rupees in these new canals. Are we going to spoil the ship for a ha'penny worth of tar?

Our ship is far too valuable to be spared that ha'penny worth of tar. If things go wrong in the beginning, it is going to take a very long time to correct them. We are dealing with a business concern of very great capital value, and I am sure there is not a single honourable member in this House who has any claims to business ideas and efficiency who would contemplate starting a big concern without seeing that he has got a really good organisation to back him up in his efforts, especially during the first few years. The honourable member is attempting to undermine our business position. I am absolutely convinced that a great deal of what we have heard now has been, more or less, an attempt—and I think an unsuccessful one-at "window-dressing"; I cannot subscribe to that attempt; it will simply lead us into a position of false security.

Let me now deal with the honourable member, an urban representative from Sind, the honourable member from Karachi (Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch). He stated that 25 or 30 years ago, there was no Chief Engineer in Sind and that there were only 2 Superintending Engineers. Now, Sir, he has again let himself down badly. He has not got hold of facts at all. Thirty years ago, there were 3 Superintending Engineers in Sind. It is on record that Government found the arrangement working unsatisfactory. That is why they created a Chief Engineer in Sind and abolished one Superintending Engineer. That is for any one to read who cares to attempt to get some idea of how the province has been run in the past. The honourable member said that if there is only one Chief Engineer, he can dash about the country in a motor car, if there are only 3 Superintending Enginers, they can dash about the country in motor cars, and that 12 or 13 Executive Engineers also can dash about the country in motor cars. I was very glad to hear one of the honourable members on the other side appreciate the fact that motor cars are not probably the very best things for getting into touch with the people. I have issued orders—I issued them some months ago—that every Executive Engineer and every Sub-divisional Officer will be required to keep either a horse or a camel, and, in addition if he likes, a motor car; because without using a horse or a camel it is impossible for the Executive Engineers and the officers under them to get into the fields, and it is there and there alone that they can get into touch with the people. It has often been overlooked, but it is a fact that it is essential that Executive Engineers on irrigation should be in the closest possible touch with the cultivators. The Executive Engineer should not expect the cultivator to go and meet him on the main canal. Honourable members opposite might know perfectly well the system that I insisted upon in the Pravara Canals District, that the Executive Engineer shall be constantly in the cultivated area and not outside the cultivation. The honourable member, therefore, is advocating a thing which would go entirely against the interests of the cultivators in Sind. He probably thinks in that manner, because, I daresay, most of his experience of a car has been running about in it in the streets of Karachi, people merely stepping out of their houses to meet him on the way. But let me tell him that that is not the situation in irrigated areas. I do not, and I do not think other honourable members will, advocate that method of economy. His cry is: "Cut down the number of Executive Engineers, give them bigger charges, and they will be able to do their work efficiently." That method will lead to gross inefficiency, and the creation of discontent among the people and severe loss of revenue to Government.

The honourable member then went on to try and prove, perhaps successfully only in his own mind, that I was trying to increase the number of Assistant Engineers first of all, so that I could get an increased number of Sub-divisional Officers, and an increased number of Executive Engineers in the proportion of so many Executive Engineers under a Superintending Engineer to justify 6 Superintending Engineers; and then, as he said, 6 Superintending Engineers in order to justify 2 Chief Engineers. I really thought at that moment he was merely attempting to evoke laughter in this House; but he did not succeed, until he started his usual method of tub-thumping by saying that the Divisional Officer refers one to the Executive Engineer, who refers him to the Superintending Engineer, who refers him to the Chief Engineer. I think that is too well-worn a theme for us to laugh over. He then went on to say that he did not really understand the meaning of the word "amalgamation", but as far as he could make out, it should stand for a reduction in the cost of establishment. The honourable member often pleads ignorance of English, but, Sir, no one in this House could have put it better; I quite agree with him. The result of amalgamation should in this case mean reduction in cost. If the honourable member can read a chart, I would invite him to come and study my chart afterwards. I have here a chart which I think most of the honourable members can see from their seats. The figure of round about 60 lakhs of rupees was the cost before amalgamation of the Barrage and the Sind establishments. If any man is worth his salt, the moment amalgamation takes place he will see to it that costs are cut down. In the years between 1929-30 and 1932-33, we have brought down the overhead costs from 59 lakhs and odd to Rs. 49,70,000. As the Honourable the General Member pointed out (he included pensionary charges, but I do not include them), we hope ultimately to bring the figure down to Rs. 44,00,000. That is as far as we can see at present. I in my own mind believe that it will be possible to bring it down still further, because of the fall in the cost of living, and the general reduction that will probably continue to take place in the cost of wages. But it is sufficient, I think, to make a forecast up to two years from now. The forecast shows a reduction to Rs. 44 lakhs; actuals may be even below that. That, Sir, is a fairly good reduction. It is a reduction of some 16 lakhs of rupees, which is no small amount.

The honourable member got himself entirely involved and muddled over the figures of cost of establishment and of work. At that point I rather lost interest in what he was saying, and when I looked at the opposite benches I felt certain most of the honourable members had done the same.

Sir, I would take this opportunity, which is probably my last in these Budget discussions, of raising a protest at the attitude adopted by the honourable member from Karachi, Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch. I think this is his second term in this Council. Ever since he has been in this Council he has done nothing but belittle the efforts of the officers connected with the construction of the great barrage and canals. I had hoped that he would have eased the situation by saying something for them, now that the works are nearing completion, and, as the general impression seems to be, a successful completion. I had hoped that he would have had the grace to say that many of his most ill-informed strictures in the past had been totally unjustified. He has not done that, and I personally feel resentment that such an attitude should have been continued over so long a period. When we get on our feet we may sometimes be carried away by rhetorical efforts, but if vilification is continuously to persist, then one feels that there must be something rather more than real, free and well-meant criticism behind it. I would like to give expression to that feeling, because I personally resent it. I do not particularly mind what is said about myself, but I do feel a certain measure of praise is due to the very large staff, who have worked so well with me, for their good work.

The Honourable the General Member cleared a certain number of misstatements. He showed, as I have said, that there has been a very considerable drop in expenditure since the amalgamation started. I have stated that that would probably continue.

I would now turn to the remarks of the honourable member from Hyderabad District, Syed Miran Mahomed Shah. He says that in the past the honourable members from Sind had always trusted Government that their demands were reasonable, and had therefore passed those demands. He says he now proposes to alter that attitude, because the question of the separation of Sind is now becoming really critical. I think the honourable member really accuses himself of a measure of slackness in the past, and now that he and his confrères may have to bear the burden, he wants to tighten up his belt and wishes Government were not so extravagant. But he gave credit for the very good work—and I thank him very heartily for it—done in connection with the construction of the Lloyd barrage and canals, and I thank him on behalf of the staff for his kind remarks. But, Sir, his main song was the burden of debt. He said, what he wanted is relief by increased revenue. He continues harping on the same idea as that of the honourable member from Larkana, that the way to be prosperous is to continue cutting down the staff. Let me tell him that if we are to run the Barrage and the new canals under post-Barrage conditions as a commercial concern, he had best be very careful about cutting down the directing staff. Otherwise, he will still have to sing his song about the burden of debt, and he will not be able to turn to the tune of "relief by increased revenues."

[Sir Charlton Harrison]

He then touched on the question of recruitment. He made a statement which I must categorically refute. He stated that the policy had been to recruit outsiders of inferior qualifications in preference to the local product. That is a complete misstatement of the facts and he cannot produce one instance in support of that statement.

I thank the honourable member, Rao Bahadur Chitale, for the reference he made to the efficiency of the establishment connected with the construction of the Barrage canals. That will be very much appreciated by the staff. But he said that he had some doubts about the extent of the establishment and that this cut of one lakh could easily be accepted! I do not think that is really the reason for this debate—the cutting of expenditure by one lakh of rupees. This debate is really to elicit facts so that members may be put wise on the question of the irrigation establishment in Sind. The honourable member said just now that we may have pruned down our demand very considerably. I can tell him this; the demand was personally cut down by me by over three lakhs of rupees before the budget went up to Government. I would ask him and others to continue to place in us their trust, as they have done in the past. I do not think I can be accused of having been grossly extravagant in dealing with the Barrage scheme. If we are able by any possible means to save one lakh, one lakh will be saved. Every member has that assurance that if possible one lakh will be saved and more than one lakh. We ask in the usual manner that the grant be made. If, with the best of our efforts, we are not able to save one lakh, then honourable members will realise that it is really impossible to do so. I trust therefore that it will not be considered by honourable members that we are unreasonable if we oppose this cut of one lakh. Other honourable members also stated that the staff was extravagant. I have given sufficient figures about the Punjab to show that our proposed staff is not extravagant, but is merely what is required. It seems to me that every honourable member opposite assumes that our estimate of the staff is final. If honourable members study the White Book, they will see how we have been reducing the staff. In December 1931, there were two chief engineers, 6 superintending engineers, 31 executive engineers and 121 sub-divisional officers; that was when the amalgamation took place. Since then, up to the coming April, we expect to have 2 chief engineers, 6 superintending engineers, 28 executive engineers and 113 sub-divisional officers. I have reduced 3 executive engineers in the last month and a half. The sub-divisional officers will have been reduced from 121 to 113. By the 1st July next, we expect to decrease the staff by one more superintending engineer,—the executive engineers for that short period remain the same,—and one sub-divisional officer. Further, the forecast for 1st April 1933 is that there will be two chief engineers, 5 superintending engineers, 25 executive engineers; that is, a reduction of 6 executive engineers within 15 or 16 months, and 109 sub-divisional officers, that is to say a reduction of 41 which we expect within 15 or 16 months.

[Sir Charlton Harrison]

I think this is going very fast. If honourable members bear in mind that we have got to proceed steadily until we find our feet in our new conditions, I think they will agree with me that we are making every effort to cut down the staff.

Now, Sir, a remark was made by the honourable member Syed Miran Mahomed Shah about recruitment and the honourable member Rao Bahadur Angadi also raised the plea for Indianisation. I must accuse him of not having really studied the staff employed in the Irrigation Department in Sind. I accuse him of having paid no real attention to it; otherwise he would not have said that Indianisation had not proceeded rapidly and that the position was unsatisfactory. Let me tell him—I have left behind the papers—as far as I remember, there are over 60 assistant engineers, out of whom only one is a European, and he is senior in service. The rest are Indians or Anglo-Indians. [An Honourable Member: Superintending Engineers?] There are, at the moment, six European Superintending Engineers who have reached this position by promotion according to seniority, combined with efficiency. Four years ago, there were five Europeans and two Indian Superintending Engineers. Fifteen months ago 100 per cent. of the Chief Engineers in Sind were Indians. [Interruption.] These figures vary from time to time. Amongst the sub-divisional officers—there are 113 at present—there is not a single European. The honourable member will see that he is at least misinformed when he says that Indianisation is not proceeding apace. It has gone on extremely fast. I think honourable members from Sind will find from the press reports in connection with the opening of the Sukkur Barrage and its successful completion that it has been quoted as a wonderful example of close co-operation between Europeans and Indians in carrying out a very large irrigation scheme.

I now come to the remarks of my honourable friend Mr. Kadri. I think he made an attack on the alleged paucity in the number of Mahomedans on the Sind irrigation establishment. I would like to be frank to honourable members as to our policy in that direction. We all know we have got to face a very great reduction in the temporary staff, among whom there are Mahomedans, employed on the Lloyd Barrage and canals. On account of that a certain number of temporary men have had and will have to be reduced. A great many will have to go. I am sure honourable members will agree with me that this must be in the interests of Government. Bearing in mind communal representation, we have been and are doing our very best; we are taking the very pick of these temporary men and retrenching the others. Honourable members from Sind know what orders I have already issued. When there is an enormous number of candidates, we have to take into consideration whether they are Sindhi Mahomedans, Sindhi Hindus, non-Sindhi Mahomedans, non-Sindhi Hindus, Presidency Mahomedans, Presidency Hindus and other classes. We have got to see whether if he comes from the Punjab, or from other provinces, say Bengal or Madras, he is likely to be assimilated in Sind.

[Sir Charlton Harrison]

I have for adjudging efficiency made 5 classes A, B, C, D and E. I have laid down that every single Mahomedan classified down to class D should primarily be retained. This has given them a distinct advantage straightway. I may mention that class C is average and class D is below average. Still, I am accused of laxity in carrying out the policy of filling up vacancies first by selecting Mahomedans in Sind, then Mahomedans from the Presidency. I maintain that I have gone a good deal further than Government contemplated. I said that I would consider non-presidency Mahomedans, provided they were efficient and provided they had learnt the Sindhi language during the 7 or 8 years they have been working in Sind. The simple test has been that they must have a working knowledge of the language; the simple test of reading a piece out of a Sindhi newspaper and conversing intelligently in Sindhi with a peon! If a so-called foreigner goes to work for some years in another country, surely the least that can be expected of him is that he can converse simply in the language of that country? On that principle I decided that I would consider Punjabi Mahomedans who are not below "D" class. I repeat that when a non-presidency Mahomedan whether he belongs to B class, C class or D class, can read a Sindhi newspaper and converse with a peon with some degree of intelligence, that man will receive preference. Now, I cannot be more lenient in the matter, yet I was attacked in a newspaper by an honourable member for my lack of sympathy in dealing with Mahomedans in the question of filling up vacancies. No attempt was made to come to me to enquire what had been done in that connection. There is not a single person in Sind who can justly accuse me of lacking in goodwill in the efforts to increase the number of Mahomedans in the Engineering service. I have been dealing with the engineering staff.

I will now turn to the clerical staff. There are very few men in that class who normally get into touch with the people in the course of their official duties. If they are efficient men, I propose to keep them on.

Coming to the recruitment of Canal Assistants and abdars, the honourable member from Hyderabad did not mention the fact, which he knew perfectly well, that this time last year I had already issued orders that 60 per cent. of the candidates for the canal candidates for these two establishments should be Mahomedans. [Interruption.] Government in their orders have laid down a figure of 50 per cent. for Mahomedans—I have exceeded that percentage. I cannot justly be accused—the honourable member who accused me is not here—of lack of sympathy with Mahomedan aspirations for posts in the irrigation department in Sind.

Now, Sir, I come to the remarks made by the honourable member from Shikarpur (Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh) who is also the President of the District Local Board, Sukkur. The honourable member, frankly, disappointed me. He has skated on thin ice, he has made his ice as thin as possible and he has fallen through it. He advanced the same arguments as did the honourable member from Larkana (Khan Bahadur Khuhro) with which I have already dealt, about the question of Chief Engineers. He then says, "Let us decide on the merits of the case as regards the number of Executive Engineers required for perennial irrigation." The honourable member tried to disprove the few remarks made by the honourable member the Secretary, Public Works Department (Mr. Lane), by citing the Begari Canals Division charge. First of all, I think he cited the instance of one of the canals in which he is interested—the Desert Canal—with a discharge of more than 3,000 cusecs. That was the old figure and it has been increased to 5,000 cusecs. The second instance he gave was that of the Begari canal with a discharge of 8,000 cusecs, and the third instance was that of the Unhar canal with a discharge of 2,000 cusecs—giving a total according to him of 13,000 cusecs; according to me it is 15,000 cusecs. He says that Executive Engineers should be in charge of divisions on a 'cusec' basis equivalent to the above figures in the Begari canals division. If that is so, Sir, I request the honourable member to think carefully arithmetically; if an executive engineer is given a charge based on a total discharge of 15,000 "cusecs" of water, the Barrage Canals having some 46,000 "cusecs" would require only 3 such officers." Three Executive Engineers to look after the whole perennial irrigation in Sind! I ask him: does he really believe that such a proposition is possible? I think he has delivered himself into my hands.

The honourable member went on to the question of mileage. Mileage plays really no important part at all in the question of divisional charges. For instance, take the Rohri canal. The first division of the Canal covers about 60 miles of main canal of which 47 miles is in the Khairpur State. There he can use a motor car as the honourable member Mr. Baloch advocates. But we cannot take mileage into consideration in all cases.

The honourable member from Shikarpur then dwelt on the dangers of ill-informed comparisons. Well, there also he is on very thin ice. I feel absolutely certain that he has not read the latest edition of the White Book on Sind, nor has he read the budget notes carefully. Nor has he, Sir, assimilated the facts that he should have assimilated when he made that journey to the Punjab which he mentioned. He said he had got facts; I am afraid he has returned with a lot of fiction. The honourable member made out that an Executive Engineer in the Punjab is not only in charge of irrigation, but he has also got a lot of other work, that he has also to look after roads. He will be very surprised to know that an Executive Engineer in charge of irrigation in the Punjab looks after no roads and buildings whatsoever except ordinary buildings on canals. There is an entirely different department for roads and buildings.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: Inspection roads in the Punjab which are open to the public. It is not the same.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: Those are peripatetic roads. They have nothing to do with the roads of a province as we understand them in Bombay or any other place. I shall read the note from a statement that I submitted to Government. In that note I drew the attention of Government to the fact. I shall read the note:

"In Sind, in addition to irrigation works, Public Works Department officers are also in charge of provincial roads as well as civil and provincial buildings. All such work in the Punjab and United Provinces is done entirely by the Roads and Buildings branch of the Public Works Department and not by the Irrigation branch. In addition to roads and buildings, the Public Works Department officers in Sind have long lengths of river bunds in their charge, whereas in the Punjab and the United Provinces there are none of importance."

I admit that in Sind they are for the greater part provincial roads in name only. Still, our officers are in charge of civil buildings as well as provincial roads. We have no separate roads and buildings branch as such, barring just in Karachi itself. As regards the river bunds, the honourable member well knows what it meant to us two years ago when there was failure to stop leaks in certain places. We all know what a crisis there was in Sind two years ago. There was a dropping off in efficiency there and we paid very, very dearly for it. I think the honourable member will now agree with me that the information I have given him as regards the Punjab and the United Provinces is entirely in favour of Sind.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: There is no comparison.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: The honourable member says there is no comparison. I think those who know the Punjab and Sind will realise that they are very closely similar in every possible way. I think we cannot have a closer comparison.

Then the honourable member went into a long explanation as to what his idea of the forecast of the Barrage should be. I am afraid I could not follow him. He quoted an extraordinary lot of figures. He says we used to get 40 lakhs of revenue in the pre-war days in the Barrage zone on a Rs. 4 assessment. I am going to place two sets of figures before honourable members. The pre-Barrage irrigation in the area commanded by the Barrage canals is, in round figures, over an average of 10 years, 18 lakhs of acres. Let us for the moment set aside the question of assessment. Acreage is the best unit. Under post-barrage conditions we expect to have 51 lakhs of acres——

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: In how many years?

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: Fifteen to twenty years. One enterprising gentleman has come forward with a scheme for cultivating 80 per cent. of an estate of 20,000 acres within three years.

If the honourable member from Larkana and others will emulate the excellent example of that enterprising gentleman, it will be not much more than four or five years before we reach our final figures.

There is a difference of 33 lakhs—I do not think we need elaborate the point. Taking it at Re. 1 an acre, we will have 33 lakhs, at Rs. 2 we will have 66 lakhs and at Rs. 3 we will have 99 lakhs increase in revenue. The honourable member certainly cannot contradict our acreage figures.

[Sir Charlton Harrison]

He went on to make his case still worse by taking inaccurate figures, and asked why we should continue a staff costing 50 to 60 lakhs of rupees? The honourable member knows as well as I do that his figures are entirely wrong. The figure in the pre-amalgamation days was Rs. 59 lakhs, and, as has already been pointed out by the Honourable the General Member, it is estimated to be 49·7 lakhs this year. We hope to get down to 44 and eventually to Rs. 41 lakhs. This makes a difference of 50 per cent. on his figures.

The honourable member then went on to say, "Reduce the expenditure on maintenance and repairs." He is quite right, and I have already got on to that question of reducing expenditure on maintenance and repairs. I have made a close study during the last two months of my general control in Sind and I am having the figures tabulated so that I can get to the root cause of the high incidence of maintenance and repairs of the old canals. I think the honourable member would not be very pleased if the investigation results as I expect it will, because I hope that it will be possible to reduce maintenance and repair by tightening up the efficiency of the control of water. He has overlooked that point. Water is slopped about without the slightest idea of economical use, and that is why an Executive Engineer at present can deal with 13,000 cusecs on inundation canals. If the honourable member expects the maintenance and repairs to be reduced, then the whole question of the efficiency of the canal has carefully to be considered; and I think he will find it will mean a very great tightening up so far as the distribution of water is concerned; it will mean very much greater control.

The honourable member then said that in his opinion the Chief Engineers and Superintending Engineers can do very much more work. I am very surprised to hear that from the honourable member Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh, who has been in close touch with the Superintending Engineers and Chief Engineers, and who has more than once expressed sympathy with me on the amount of work that I have had to do. Now, I think he is advocating the abolishment of the men at the head. This has been advocated before and duly criticised. Does he suggest that because a bandmaster does not necessarily himself play an instrument that the band should function without a bandmaster? The result would be that each bandman would play his instrument when and how he liked. The result would be chaos. Because the captain of a ship does not actually steer the ship or scrub the decks it does not mean that he should be done away with. The honourable member, I am sure, would be the first to have him at the helm if he found himself a passenger on a ship which was heading straight for the rocks.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: We have too many captains.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: I think not, Sir. I have already covered the points raised by the honourable member from Thana, except his reference to his impression that we were creating more posts so as not to get rid of temporary hands. Well, Sir, if we allowed our ideas of mercy to have the better of us, it would be true. But if he was in my position and had to do the heartrending work that I have to do in getting rid of the men that cannot be absorbed in the service, he would realise that I have been giving very careful consideration to this subject. If I had attempted to do what he suggests, there will be a less number of men in Sind seeking new posts. I have not attempted to keep on a single man because, although I know that he will be thrown on to the streets and possibly left to starve, I have not hesitated to remove him if I found him unnecessary.

I trust I have said enough to convince honourable members of this House that we have done our utmost to effect economy. It is very easy to accuse us of not having effected sufficient economy. But I do not know what else one can do than to feel that one has been entrusted with a responsible post and to give a clear assurance and certain facts and figures in support of his point of view that he has done his best. I am sure that honourable members of this House will accept the assurance that I have gone to the utmost limit without endangering the efficiency of the scheme. Sir, we all look forward to prosperity in Sind but we cannot buy prosperity at a reduced or 'sale price'. We cannot, without bitter disappointment, expect to get something for nothing in this world, and if only honourable members will remember that, then I feel certain that the prosperity of Sind will be assured and that if Sind is not separated from this Presidency, Bombay will be only too pleased to keep it within its fold. [Applause.]

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: Sir, the honourable member the Chief Engineer has not been able to enlighten us as to why the headquarters of the Superintending Engineers should be at Karachi and not at Sukkur or any other place.

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: That point was very carefully considered. I think the honourable member from Larkana (Khan Bahadur Khuhro) and the other honourable member, Sir Shah Nawaz Bhutto, will agree with me that it is no fun for an elderly man to have to live in Sukkur. An Executive Engineer, or a Collector or an Assistant Collector can be expected to put up for some time, with the rigours of a really rigorous climate like that of Sukkur; but when a man is getting on in years, he is bound to decrease in efficiency if you expect him to stay in Sukkur, especially during the hot weather. There are certain periods when zamindars do want to get into touch with the Superintending Engineers. They can do that easily during the period from September to May. During the critical period (June to September) when the river is in flood, the Superintending Engineers do go out and see things for themselves, and can easily be met whilst on their abkalani tours. I am sure this House will not grudge Superintending Engineers a certain amount of comfort in being in Karachi. It costs Government no more because we have got buildings. We can provide office accommodation for all in one place. In fact by doing so we are in a position to get rid of a hired building in Karachi.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: What about the daily allowances and the travelling allowances?

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: They are all on permanent allowances; whether they live in Sukkur or in Karachi, there is no question of daily allowance or travelling allowance to Superintending Engineers. This matter has, I repeat, been very, very carefully considered. I have discussed it with the Honourable the General Member in great detail, and he and I were satisfied, as also were the Lloyd Barrage Standing Committee, that in the interests of efficiency the Superintending Engineers should have their headquarters in Karachi. Let us remember that in the Punjab and the United Provinces and all these other provinces, every single Superintending Engineer has a hill station recess. The officials there are allowed to go up to their hill stations for a considerable period during the hot weather. We have no such hill station in Sind.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: Then why did you build so many bungalows at Sukkur and spend lakhs of rupees?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: The honourable member the Chief Engineer, Lloyd Barrage, said that he had consulted the honourable member Sir Shah Nawaz Bhutto, who however says he was never consulted about it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member Sir Charlton Harrison did not say that he had "consulted" the honourable member Sir Shah Nawaz Bhutto.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, in my final remarks on this question, I would like first to deal with the remarks made by the honourable member the Chief Engineer in Sind in which he has made an answer to the various speakers who supported the motion. At the very start he misquoted me by saying that I stated in my speech that I was opposed to the retention of two Chief Engineers in Sind on the ground that the second Chief Engineer would be reduced to the position of a Personal Assistant. I merely quoted two alternatives in case the House agrees to the retention of two Chief Engineers. The alternative to which the honourable member the Chief Engineer perhaps looks forward is that he will divide Sind half and half, taking the right bank and giving the other, i.e. the left bank to the second Chief Engineer, and what I said in my original remarks was that should such be the case, he would be controlling the same jurisdiction that one Superintending Engineer controlled in the past and the other Chief Engineer will do the same thing. That means that two Chief Engineers will take the place of two Superintending Engineers that existed before.

Then as regards the main argument that he tried to make out that there is a necessity for two Chief Engineers because the work has increased and that it is more than what one Chief Engineer can carry on, the honourable member the Chief Engineer told us that some expenditure has yet to be incurred and that the barrage is not yet finally completed. We must, Sir, examine that statement closely.

A statement has been made that the work is yet to be carried on, and we have therefore to see how much expenditure has yet to be incurred on that work. We find that it is only about a crore of rupees still to be expended on this work. We know that we retained only one Chief Engineer in charge of the barrage works. The whole project was intended to cost 20 crores of rupees and only one Chief Engineer was retained for the expenditure of that 20 crores, and now for the remaining construction work of only a crore of rupees, there is absolutely no justification—no single member will support the suggestion that for the remaining expenditure of one crore there is need to retain two extra Superintending Engineers and one Chief Engineer.

As regards the work, the whole work, it seems, after amalgamation, will run under the same administration, and it is rather in the interests of administration that there should be only one Chief Engineer and not two. For the whole Presidency of Bombay, barring Sind, you have one Chief Engineer who is not only Chief Engineer but the Secretary to Government also, and yet for Sind, which is hardly one-fourth part of the Presidency, you are retaining two Chief Engineers. Nobody will disagree in this conclusion that it is pure waste of money. As long ago as 1923, the Retrenchment Committee suggested that there is no need even to retain one Chief Engineer in Sind and that Committee, as every honourable member in this House knows, suggested as an alternative that there is no need to retain two Superintending Engineers in case you retain one Chief Engineer because there was not sufficient work for them. After that, I have got reliable information to state that the late Chief Engineer Mr. Satarawalla, who acted as Chief Engineer in Sind, wrote to Government that there was absolutely no need for the appointment of Chief Engineer in Sind, because there was not enough work for him. I have given the name of the Chief Engineer who made that report and I challenge any Government member to contradict my statement if it is not correct.

As regards the question of the Superintending Engineers, the honourable member the Chief Engineer has quoted certain figures and given a comparison of the Punjab and United Provinces with Sind and in the course of that comparison he quoted certain figures in order to justify his opinion that it is necessary to retain five Superintending Engineers. But, Sir, the argument advanced by my honourable friend from Sukkur still holds good and that has not been contradicted by the honourable member Sir Charlton's arguments, namely, that at present you have practically one Superintending Engineer for one district in Sind, I mean the district that previously existed (now by cutting Larkana into two, you have created two districts). That is another waste of money. In that case, it is undoubtedly true that for a small area, which is held by four Executive Engineers for about 12,000 or 13,000 cusecs, you have one Superintending Engineer. This is really unjustified. An argument was advanced—and the honourable member the Chief Engineer himself agreed to it—that the Begari Canals district has got one Executive Engineer for 15,000 cusecs of water, and the honourable member the Chief Engineer went on ridiculing that proposal by suggesting that because there is one Executive Engineer for 15,000 cusecs, for the whole barrage, there being only 40,000 cusecs of water, should there be three Executive Engineers? That is hardly any argument at all. I for one am unable to understand his point of view. The argument that was advanced by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh was that for 15,000 cusecs you have got one Executive Engineer at present in Begari Canals and he is efficient enough to control it and do the work properly. But that does not imply that we are going to ask the Council that there should be only three Executive Engineers for the whole Barrage on that ratio; but what we do really ask the Council is that there should be a reasonable number of Executive Engineers and in my opening remarks I said that there should be 15 Executive Engineers. That is a sufficiently large number that I have suggested in my remarks, namely, 15 i.e. three times the number that the honourable member the Chief Engineer put by way of ridicule. What I suggested was that there should not be 23 but 15, and in fact if I remember aright, the honourable member the Chief Engineer repeated that I suggested reduction of the staff by one-third.

As regards the figures he quoted for the retention of two Chief Engineers, he himself agreed and frankly admitted that the area or the cusecs of water, etc., were much less than what the Chief Engineer in the Punjab or in the United Provinces held control of.

One argument that he gave in favour of retaining 23 Executive Engineers and five Superintending Engineers was that there should be a sufficiently large number of Superintending and Executive Engineers so that they would be able to go round and meet people on the fields and talk to the agriculturists and try to redress their grievances. And yet in the same breath he says that these five Superintending Engineers should be allowed to remain in Karachi. Now, Sir, when these Superintending Engineers go and live in Karachi, how is it possible for them to go and meet people on the fields? These Executive Engineers and Superintending Engineers live in nice bungalows at headquarters. The real reason given by the honourable member is that of climate, they want to avoid the heat and so they want to go and live in beautiful bungalows in the beautiful climate of Karachi and enjoy comfort and luxury. That is at the bottom of the whole thing and there is no other reason for it. They built such nice bungalows at Sukkur at a cost of lakhs and lakhs of rupees, and at one time the honourable member the Chief Engineer himself stated he would be able to turn out more value from them, but now they are lying absolutely vacant and no use will be made of them. Then what for were they built at such huge cost? There is no market for them; nobody is going to buy those bungalows. It is really a very important and a very correct suggestion made by my honourable friend from Sukkur that these Superintending Engineers must live in their own circles. When you have got one Superintending Engineer for Larkana, it is but necessary that he should live in Larkana, or at Dadu, to be able to meet people. The Collector of Larkana, who is a Civilian and also a European, does live in Larkana and, if he can do so, I do not see why the Superintending Engineer should find it difficult to take up his residence in Larkana as well. The arguments advanced by the honourable member the Chief Engineer were really fallacious and contradictory to each other. At one place the honourable member says that these officers are to go round and meet the people working on the fields and in the same breath he says that they should be allowed to go and live in Karachi, some 300 to 400 miles away from Upper Sind.

As regards attending to the grievances of the people, certain remarks were rightly made on this side of the House that as a rule none of the decisions of the Executive Engineers are upset by the higher authorities in appeal. I would really put that question to the honourable member in all earnestness at my command. I make bold to state on the floor of this House that in 99 per cent. of cases, the decisions given by the Executive Engineers are upheld in appeal by the superior authorities on the principle of trusting the man on the spot. Whatever the Assistant Engineer or the Executive Engineer writes is accepted and not disturbed by the superior authorities because these superior authorities have got rare opportunity of going out and meeting the people as they do not take the trouble of visiting the site and they go on the theory that whatever the Executive Engineer writes must be correct and should not be upset. Of this we have got actual and practical experience. It is no use ridiculing. I have never stated that I am an expert. I did not say while making my statement in moving this cut that I was an expert on engineering problems or an expert on any other question. I merely stated that we have got sufficient experience as zamindars, as we have to deal with these officials, and I do know how the actual administration is run, and so, we come to know about it and therefore we are justified in making the complaints that we make here or in making the suggestions that we make here for the removal of those grievances. It is therefore a sound and a practical suggestion that the officers should live within their jurisdictions and not at Karachi or elsewhere. But, Sir, the Chief Engineer claims to be an expert on this question. Time will show whether that expert knowledge of his is beneficial to this Presidency or to Sind when it is separated, and whether this huge expenditure on establishment is justified, or whether it is going to make this Presidency as well as the Province of Sind bankrupt provinces. It is very necessary to see how much expenditure is justified under the circumstances.

Then, Sir, my honourable friend quoted figures for Sukkur to give an idea of the net revenues of the province of Sind. That was really an important argument, which the Chief Engineer just passed over by saying that he could not properly follow. The argument in a nutshell——

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: I think I quoted figures.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: He did not reply; he said that he did not follow the figures. Of course, I would not like to repeat them as I do not want to take much time of the House, but I would only like to say in a few words that what my honourable friend meant was that before the Barrage came into effect there was 40 lakhs net revenue from the Province of Sind, after deducting all the expenditure incurred on the Public Works Department. Now, you have to take out those 40 lakhs from the net revenues that you expect after the Barrage comes into force next year. He gave the figure of 24 lakhs of acres of cultivation. The Chief Engineer says that there will be 51 lakhs of acres. But I would like to ask him, in how many years? These 51 lakhs of acres are on paper only, and that area is expected to be cultivated in from 15 to 25 years, when all the land is taken up and when all the land, according to expectations and according to the scheme, is brought under cultivation. But we have very grave doubts whether that scheme will materialise in practice, whether all the land is going to be taken up and cultivated. We have to go on the facts of the cultivation at present being undertaken. The question is whether the present figures of cultivation justify all this establishment. Taking the highest figure of my honourable friend of 24 lakhs of acres, he gave a net revenue of 96 lakhs of rupees at the rate of Rs. 4 an acre. That is what he says. Now the argument which perhaps the Chief Engineer would like to object to is as regards the assessment, but I myself would not like to go into that controversy. So, I have given the highest figure of revenue. Rs. 1,10,00,000 which may be taken as the revenues from the province of Sind, out of which you will have to deduct Rs. 40,00,000 being the revenue before the Barrage comes into force. That practically leaves you 60 to 70 lakhs. Out of that you want to absorb half a crore only on establishment. The balance is 10 to 15 lakhs, and out of this amount you want to pay up the huge amount of interest, aggregating to something like a crore of rupees per year. So, what I strongly object to, and what the honourable members from this side should really object to, is this huge expenditure of half a crore on establishments in Sind. It is a pure and simple waste. This department has been allowed to run so freely. If their statements and their proposals are accepted in toto by Government as gospel truth, coming from experts, then ruin will stare this Presidency in the face, and we must look at it with great concern, now that we are on the threshold of separation. But leaving aside the question of separation, whether we are part of the Presidency or whether we are separated from it, the question of finance must be one of vital concern to the honourable members in this House. They know the financial position of this Government. They know there are no extra funds to be frittered away like this. The Finance Department must really exercise sufficient control over the expenditure in the Public Works Department. I think I have answered all the arguments of the honourable member the Chief Engineer in Sind.

Sir, the Honourable the General Member, when he spoke yesterday, said that this establishment had been sanctioned only temporarily, and he would bring it up again before the Council next year. Now, Sir, this is rather a vague statement. The expenditure over every department does come before this House every year. But at present, when we are going to accept a new policy of re-organisation of the Sind Public Works Department, this is the proper time when the Honourable the General Member and the Government should really very carefully scrutinise and see whether all this expenditure is justified. The statement of the Honourable the General Member does not at all make it clear whether he is prepared to cut down this expenditure even after one year, or whether some excuse will be found for retaining the same extravagant establishment. We should like to know from him whether, after this one crore is spent, he is going to curtail the establishment by 1 Chief Engineer, 2 or 3 Superintending Engineers and 7 or 8 Executive Engineers, as I have suggested.

The question of the representation of different communities in the service really does not concern this question, because here I have dealt only with the question of the re-organisation of the Public Works Department in Sind and the reduction of expenditure over the department. The question of representation of various communities in the service could only be discussed when there is a general discussion on the lump cut of Rs. 100 or Rs. 1,000 under 41, Civil Works, or a similar head. The Chief Engineer went on discussing that question here. He expressed a good deal of sympathy for the backward classes and his intention of supporting the recruits from the backward classes and retaining their proper proportion in Government service. I am very thankful to him for his remarks, but we have to go by results. The results in Sind with regard to the representation of different communities and classes in his department do not go to prove his sympathies as genuine. I am sorry to remark that the number of Mussalmans and backward class persons in service in that province is very, very low. However, Sir, I would like to deal with this question in greater detail at another opportunity when it comes up. Therefore, I will leave it at that.

In the end, I would make an appeal to the Honourable the General Member to enlighten this House as to what is going to be his policy and that of Government hereafter in connection with these Public Works Department establishments in Sind. With these remarks, I resume my seat.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Mr. President, my task has been much lightened by the lucid speech of the Chief Engineer for the Lloyd Barrage, Sir Charlton Harrison. Sir, we have on one side the opinion of experts that they require certain establishment for the efficiency of the administration of the Public Works Department in Sind, and on the other side we have the opinion of lay gentlemen, my honourable friends the non-official members from Sind in this Honourable House. When there is a difference of opinion between the two, whatever the difference may be, I must look somewhere else: and where can I look? I can only look to other provinces where there are similar conditions and where the irrigation system is nearly the same as in Sind or almost identical. Such a province is the Punjab, where there are similar conditions, and where there is perennial irrigation. The honourable member the Chief Engineer informed this House that in the Punjab there are not only 2 Chief Engineers but 3, and he gave us the details of the work of each Chief Engineer in the Punjab. Taking that into consideration, when we have asked for only 2 Chief Engineers in Sind, I do not think our demand is at all excessive. Again, taking the remaining establishment and comparing it with that of the Punjab, I think our establishment can favourably compare with that of the Punjab.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu): Punjab is eight times larger than Sind.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: The Chief Engineer has actually quoted the figures of the total acreage and the area which each Executive Engineer, Superintending Engineer and Chief Engineer has to look after. Well, Sir, it is impossible—I am also a layman—to convince those who refuse to be convinced.

Now, Sir, when I spoke last, I made it very clear to this Honourable House that my demand for establishment was for next year only, and that we would again place the details of our establishment before this House. The Honourable House may rest assured that I and the officers of my department are trying our best to reduce the expenditure on establishment, and our bona fides is clear. We have reduced expenditure on establishment to the extent of 11 lakhs, and every year, every few months, we will go on reducing it, without impairing efficiency.

Now, Sir, we should not confuse the issue. The issue before the House is whether we require for the next year the establishment that has been proposed. When I once again come before the House with proposals for establishment, that is in 1933-34, then the Honourable House may again criticise me if the establishment at that time is excessive. At present, no honourable member has been able to show that it is excessive, because in addition to the ordinary duties of the Public Works Department, we are carrying out capital works of Rs. 1,19,00,000. I have not heard from honourable members a single word to show that for the next year, for which this establishment is intended, it is excessive. When I bring it up again, if they find it excessive, by all means they may do what they like.

Then, with regard to the headquarters of the Superintending Engineers, honourable members said that these officers will stay at Karachi, enjoying the cool climate of the place. But, Sir, I might tell them that they will tour from September to May, and those honourable members who come from Sind know that every officer of the Public Works Department in Sind goes out on an abkalani tour even in summer. So, almost throughout the year they will be accessible to the zamindars.

Another criticism that I heard from the members of this House was that we are not Indianising. Sir, I have been connected with the Public Works Department both as Minister in charge of Roads and Buildings and later as Member in charge of Irrigation, since 1921, and I assure honourable members that we have been carrying out the policy of Indianisation. I feel proud to tell him that we had an Indian Secretary in the Public Works Department, not once but twice—Mr. Framji and Mr. Moraes. Then coming to Sind, we had two Indian Chief Engineers, Mr. Vartak and Mr. Satarawalla. We had two Superintending Engineers. So, it is not the case that we are not Indianising. Even the few Europeans we have, are excellent officers. No less a personage than the honourable member Sir Shah Nawaz Khan Bhutto bestowed encomiums on them at the Round Table Conference sub-committee. I would like to read the following passage from it:

"In 1929, in my own province of Sind, we had an abnormally heavy rainfall, and the river rose to 80 feet, the gauges recording the highest maximum ever attained on the River Indus. But in this important district we had fortunately European—English—engineers in charge. All the people of Sind were in a state of anxiety, because it was feared that almost the whole of our Province would be drowned, that it would scarcely be possible for us to save our lives, while property we never expected to save. What we found was that these European engineers, with their subordinate staff, maintained a constant watch on events and set up defensive bunds, with the result that, fortunately, the whole Province was saved from a disaster which none of us expected to escape. Unfortunately the system prevails of lending officials to other Provinces—unfortunately from our point of view, because in the following year almost all the best engineers had been taken away. In 1930 we were left with almost all the important charges in the hands of Indian engineers, and though they were very efficient engineers, they lacked a certain sense of responsibility, which we Indians have not as yet realised to the same extent as our European colleagues. In 1930, however, we had not the abnormally heavy rains which we experienced in 1929, the river rose only comparatively slightly and yet all the bunds gave way. Some of the Indian engineers were having a very pleasant time, and apparently could not make up their minds to surrender their comforts and go and watch the bunds day and night as the European engineers had done. On one occasion I found a European engineer maintaining the watch by himself..... .....as a result of that calamity,.....in one district about 300 villages were drowned; in another district about 250, and in a third about 150."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: How were the Round Table Conference interested in this?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: So, honourable members will see that the small band of Europeans in Sind are doing very good work. As has been pointed out, we have been Indianising; but the very few Europeans we have there are very good officers. Now, I assure this Honourable House that I have listened with great interest to their speeches and criticisms. I will bear everything in mind, and when the honourable member the Chief Engineer brings his proposals for establishment again, I will look into every item and try to give satisfaction to this House. With this assurance, I hope the honourable member will withdraw his motion.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: I am glad to hear the assurance given by the Honourable the General Member that he will scrutinise carefully and curtail the expenditure for the next year. In view of that assurance, I withdraw the motion. I had thought that he would easily accept this small cut of about 2 lakhs as it would not affect him much; but since he does not agree to that and gives the assurance to reduce expenses next year, I withdraw my motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI (Poona District): Sir, I beg to move:

"Reduce by Rs. 100. Irrigation Development and Research Circle—(d) Total—III—Superintending Engineer—Voted—Rs. 20,800 (Public Works Department, E. Page 31)."

My object in moving this cut is to place before this House the feelings of the irrigators of the Deccan about the working of this Department. This so-called beneficial work was started in 1915. One sub-division was formed at that time calling it a new scheme. Then afterwards this was converted into a separate division in the year 1917 and in 1927 this was called by the bombastic name of "Irrigation Development and Research Circle." This has remained for the last 15 years or more at an expense of 29 lakhs of public money. This circle is in charge of one and the same officer for years together and this research and development circle has not availed itself of the co-operation with the Agricultural Department or with the heads of the special branches that have been started in that Department. I asked a question to secure information about the educational qualifications of this special officer, who is entrusted with this important work which costs us above 28 lakhs of rupees at this bad time of financial stringency. Not only that, the Department causes the greatest inconvenience to the irrigators and at the same time takes the credit of decreasing the revenue of Irrigation. This expert has not been transferred from the present place for the last 10 years. As I am told I really do know his educational qualifications, which are only as ordinary as any one else in the Department. He is a B.A. And what other qualifications has he? He is a B.A.I. which qualification has been acquired, I can see, by many other engineers also: His qualifications do not stop here. He has once gone to America and stayed there for a long period of 40 days. He has taken 40 days' education in America and on the strength of that, he has been appointed a special officer on a salary of Rs. 1,950, overseas allowance of £13 and a travelling allowance of Rs. 90 per month.

What precious work is done by him? I do not know his work but it is given in the Review of the Administration of the Bombay Presidency, 1929-30: ".....examine and supervise Rain and River gauge works." That is the first work of this expert. Another work of his is the classification of soil and sub-soil and to work out the drainage work in water-logged lands. This work is being done meritoriously by the experts working under the Agricultural Department. Where remains the need to burden this presidency's finance with the heavy costs of this officer? The great and meritorious achievements of this officer is what is called Block formation and revision of blocks. This is the great achievement reported to his credit. But this has decreased the revenue and caused the greatest inconvenience to the irrigators. This system really speaking has become very unpopular——

Sir CHARLTON HARRISON: The block system was initiated by Sir M. Visvesvaraya some 30 years ago and not by Mr. Inglis.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: I know, but Sir M. Visvesvaraya initiated it in a different line and Mr. Inglis adopted it in such a strange way that it causes the greatest inconvenience and loss to the irrigators of Deccan.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I have not yet been able to catch the honourable member's point—whether his objection refers to the officer or to the post itself.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: I take objection to the continuing of the office at least in the way in which it is at present working. If it is to be conducted in this way, it is better that it should be abolished once for all. I do not want to make any remarks against the officer holding that office personally, but the office being altogether useless and very costly is fit to be abolished.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I thought the honourable member went into the qualifications of the officer.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Because this officer has been posted there as a specialist. He has been working there for the last 10 years and yet I do not find any special qualifications in him.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think what the honourable member wants to convey to this House is that there is no need of this post.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: The development and research methods followed by this department are responsible for so many inconveniences. I am not the only person to complain about this, but there are thousands of applications against the working of this Department. They have been sent to the Secretary to Government and other responsible officers. I am sorry to say that these applications made their way in the waste paper basket. When questions are asked in this connection, elusive answers are given by the Government and all our efforts are baffled thereby. There is a decrease of crores of rupees in the income from irrigation revenue, while we are told that it is slightly decreasing. Government reports and resolutions say that there is a loss of only half a crore of rupees on this investment. (Vide Government Resolution, Public Works Department, No. 2353/27 dated 26th January 1931.)

All of the grievances of the people against this department have been narrated in the applications which have been sent now and then to Government. They have also ventilated their grievances in the conferences of irrigators held recently. Government have not yet cared to look into them. I shall refer to the few grievances which were put forward by the applicants repeatedly.

(1) That the charge of water is recovered in the case of Rabi crops even in the cases where actually not even a drop of water is taken.

(2) In case of overlapping crop of sugar cane, the charge is levied in the first instance for the block in which it stands and a separate charge is taken for the overlapping crops of sugar cane.

[Rao Saheb P. D. Kulkarni]

(3) Though blocks are not utilised for crop by the irrigator yet the charge is required to be paid for the same when there is the application for getting water to his block in the beginning.

(4) The rates of water are not changed, though the prices of jaggery, sugar and all produce from sugar cane have gone down.

My another grievance is this: By the control of this Department the irrigators are placed in the position of a servant who has two masters to serve. It is very difficult to please two masters at one and the same time. The Executive Engineer, Deccan Irrigation Circle, is one of the two masters of the Irrigators in the Deccan and the Superintending Engineer, Research and Development Circle, is another one. They are both controlling the area and the irrigators who want to get water have to labour under very unfavourable circumstances. This double government is the worst type of the kind and the irrigators have to swallow these quinine pills. In order to have this grievance redressed, resolutions after resolutions have been passed by many conferences, many questions have been asked in the Council, but nothing has been done up till now to give relief to them. I, being the representative of those irrigators of my district, am expressing their grievances. Not a single grievance has been exaggerated by me in my speech here. Last time we were told that a committee would be appointed to investigate into the grievances of the irrigators and that the irrigators would be afforded an opportunity to place their grievances before this committee. But, alas, what sort of committee was appointed by the benign Government? The committee appointed was asked to see how the income of Government from irrigation could be increased. All our grievances were set aside. There was not a single word in the terms of reference of that committee that was brought into existence to investigate into the grievances of the irrigators.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Is that so?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Yes. I spoke to a responsible member of that committee and was told that the committee was only to see how the income could be increased. I was invited to give evidence before the committee, but I had nothing to do with the problem before the committee and eventually cared not for their work. At the time of the discussion of my resolution I was told that a committee would be appointed to give a patient hearing to the grievances of irrigators in Deccan. That committee, it seems, has not been appointed as yet. At least it is not functioning on the promised line. That is my grievance. This is the only place where I can ventilate my grievances before the public and the Government where there is some chance of getting the grievances redressed. I request my honourable colleagues to support me in this effort and help me in getting this wrong of irrigators redressed which I cannot get redressed elsewhere. With that intention in my mind I tabled my motion of this cut. Last time in Poona Session when I opened this question there was no supporter to me. Perhaps that was one of the reasons why the grievances were not considered then and there. I do not know if Government intend to appoint some committee or at least some responsible officer to make the necessary enquiries in the matter. If they do so, and prove that the grievances are not real but are told in an exaggerated way, I shall take back my allegations made on this floor and express my regret for wasting the time of the House. But I have full confidence that the time of the House will be very well spent and will be very helpful to improve the present state of the irrigators and the contentment of the people will be helpful also in recouping the deficit in the revenue seen in the recent years. With these words, I move the cut motion.

Question proposed.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: Sir, I was just looking round to see whether any honourable member who advocates the question of looking into the grievances of the irrigators would be in the House to support the motion of the honourable member, Rao Saheb Kulkarni. I regret none is present here.

So far as I am concerned, I regret to say I cannot share the view which the honourable member holds in respect of the Research Circle. And in stating his case, I fear, Sir, he has entirely missed the issue. The Research Circle is no doubt responsible for making certain rules for the equitable distribution of water to irrigators. The honourable mover of this cut has made it a grievance that the committee which has now been appointed to look into the finances of the Deccan irrigation did not look into the question of irrigators' grievances about these rules. Speaking on behalf of this Financial Improvement of Irrigation Committee, let me assure my friend that it was absolutely outside the purview of that committee to go into the question of the working of those rules which apply to the irrigators. But so far as the specific grievances about distribution of water are concerned, I do think, so far as my knowledge of the question goes, that it is not true that these grievances were not enquired into by some other conference or committee. I remember some 6 or 7 years back I had the privilege of presiding over a conference of irrigators at Baramati; and ever since then I believe the irrigators both in the Baramati tract and the Ahmednagar district and other tracts of irrigation have been agitating over the question of the rules about distribution of water. And further, so far as I know, various conferences have been held between Government and the irrigators of the various tracts, through their representatives—either presidents or secretaries of the irrigators' associations,—and they have been heard and in a good many respects the rules have been modified. That is with reference to the rules and the grievances under the rules.

But, as I said, Sir, the honourable mover has missed the whole issue. The issue is: is the Research Circle necessary or not? The issue is not whether the rules are necessary. In any case whether you have the Research Circle or not, the rules would be necessary. Whether the special officer in charge of Research Circle goes or remains, there will have to be certain rules for the distribution of water. There will have to be some control, as there is some control everywhere. If I understand the objects of research rightly, I for one hold that the Research Circle is absolutely necessary. That point has been emphasised——

Rao Saheb KULKARNI: If the work is conducted in the present way, then the Department is certainly unnecessary.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: The importance of research in irrigation matters has been emphasised by the Royal Commission on Agriculture. For the information of the honourable members of this House who do not probably realise the importance of research in irrigation matters, I may tell them that wherever there is a system of distribution of water as in the Deccan, there is bound to be one evil, namely, waterlogging and what is called salt efflorescence of the land. A good many people must have seen how lands, which get too much of flow-water and which are practically flooded for the purpose of sugarcane irrigation, get a sort of a salt surface on the land and the land becomes so damaged and useless for agricultural purposes that it practically goes out of use, and if there is no research to remedy this evil such as by drainage or other methods, the loss to the irrigators themselves and to the lands would be enormous.

I have recently had occasion to inquire into the question of the damage by waterlogging to various lands in the Deccan and I find that on the Nira Left Bank Canal no less than 9,000 acres of land which could be irrigated have become damaged and gone out of use; similarly, on the Godavari no less than 17,000 acres have gone out of use because of the damage done to them. The same thing is perhaps true of the Pravara Canal. On the whole, something like 40,000 acres would be irretrievably damaged if there is no research circle to find out how to reclaim the lands and bring them back to use. That is the value of research. This question was discussed by the recent Retrenchment Committee and this is their verdict. With reference to this Research Circle, the Retrenchment Committee say on page 19 of their report:

"46. We have considered a proposal to abolish the Irrigation Development and Research Circle. Evidence has been given to us that this Department has been instrumental in saving large sums in construction both in Sind and the Presidency."

So far as the Deccan is concerned, I may quote one instance where the Research Circle has been able to effect economy, namely, in the case of the Vir Dam, which I expect the honourable mover knows about. This dam was thought at one time to be necessary and something like 99 lakhs of rupees or a crore of rupees was provided for the construction of that dam. But owing to the results of the work of the Research Circle it was found that the water could be so utilised that probably this dam would be unnecessary, and thus 99 lakhs of rupees will be saved. I think that is due probably to the research work done by the Research Circle. Furthermore, the majority of the Retrenchment Committee goes on to say:

"Hydrodynamic experiments carried out by the Superintending Engineer in charge of this circle have led to the more economical designing of aqueducts and sluice gates and have gone a long way towards solving problems connected with the deposit of silt which occur on most canals but are of particular importance in Sind. In the Deccan successful methods have been evolved of dealing with the menace of water-logging and salt. Drainage schemes have been carried out and salt land has successfully been reclaimed and its fertility restored....."

Finally, the Report says it would not be wise to interrupt the research work of this Department. Recently, in connection with the Committee in which we are investigating certain problems of irrigation finance, I had the privilege of going round the Deccan Canal tracts and wherever we went, evidence was coming forth asking for drainage channels for the purpose of reclaiming these water-logged lands; cultivators came forward and frankly admitted that drainage schemes are necessary. Not only that, but they even went a step further and said that they would be willing, if their lands could be reclaimed for them and made fertile again, to bear some of the cost of reclamation. That is to say, they fully appreciate the advantages of cutting drainage channels into their lands, taking out the excess water and so reclaiming the land that it is rendered fit for use again. That proves the value of drainage and therefore of the research circle. On the whole, therefore, a case has been made out that the research circle ought to stand, and if my honourable friend has got at the back of his mind the idea that by giving this motion for a cut the whole of this circle should be abolished, then I think he is either labouring under a misapprehension or perhaps he is ignorant of facts.

Having said that, let me also say in frankness that there is a certain amount of plausibility in what he urged. If, as I said just now, cultivators have appreciated the value of drainage to their lands, it is also true, as the honourable the mover has pointed out, that there has been, throughout the Deccan Canals, a great deal of discontent with reference to the rules and how these rules are framed and in a way enforced either by the officer who is now the Superintending Engineer or by the subordinate staff of the other Circle. That is a fact which I cannot deny; but, Sir, the discontent by the enforcement of rules is removable and can be removed by carrying the matter to the Honourable the General Member in charge. The remedy is either to get the rules modified or relaxed or, as has been suggested, Government can in its own way remove these serious hardships under which the irrigators are labouring. For instance, the Superintending Engineer in question is perhaps the author of what is called the Block system and the Bund Rule system. What happens in actual practice is that, although the object of the rules is perfectly good and intended for the benefit of the cultivators themselves, in the actual carrying out of these rules, there is a certain amount of a lack of elasticity or discretion on the part of those who carry out the rules, viz., the subordinates and the lower officials of the department. For instance, these rules lay down that the whole field should be cut up into half an acre plots if water is not to be wasted. These half-acre or 20-guntha plots are very difficult for the illiterate cultivator to arrange. While, therefore, the cultivator is unitising his plots, if it so happens that the half-acre plot exceeds even by a few feet or a few yards the exact prescribed size, then probably the subordinate official of the department refuses to give him water in proper time either because the plot has fallen short by a few gunthas or exceeded by a few gunthas, and the cultivator suffers in his crop. Naturally this causes a great deal of discontent and it is this discontent which is reflected perhaps in the large number of petitions to Government to which the honourable member referred. While, therefore, there is a case to remove this discontent by looking into the rules and making the rules so simple and intelligible to the cultivators that they can easily follow them, and to introduce a certain amount of elasticity into these rules, I do not think there is a case for entirely abolishing the research circle. This is the real distinction between the right view and the view of the mover. I therefore think that men who have been conversant with this problem should take the view that, while research is quite necessary for the future benefit of the cultivators themselves, all that is necessary now is so to simplify the rules that they can be followed easily without a great deal of effort by the cultivators, bulk of whom are illiterate, but for whose benefit the department is really working.

I would therefore urge the department and the Honourable the General Member to look into the rules and so modify them, if necessary, as to make them easily followable by the illiterate cultivators, rather than entirely remove the Superintending Engineer or do away with the research circle altogether.

Mr. N. E. NAVLE (Ahmednagar District): Sir, as this is a cut of only a hundred rupees and the general policy of the department is under discussion, I wish to offer a few remarks with regard to the administration of the block system which is obtaining in the Deccan Canal tracts. Sir, this House remembers very well that I had tabled a resolution in the June-July session at Poona recommending to Government the abolition of the block system. Government very well knows what great difficulties the agriculturists under the Deccan Canals have been put to owing to the introduction of the block system in the Deccan Canals. I think it was only yesterday that to a question put in this House the reply given by the Honourable the General Member was that in nearly 500 acres yearly, though sugarcane is not cultivated, still the water cess is being levied by Government. If we were to calculate at the rate of Rs. 66 per acre, which is the rate obtaining at present, we can easily see what a large amount is being recovered by Government without sugarcane being cultivated on such a vast area as 500 acres.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Did they not apply for it?

Mr. N. E. NAVLE: They may have applied for it, but is it not a fact that it is because the block system is obtaining under the Deccan Canals that you are entitled to recover your duties for these 500 acres? Had there not been the block system obtaining in the Deccan Canals, you would not have been able to recover your dues for these 500 acres, because there is no cultivation, and in justice you are not entitled to recover your dues for acres which are not cultivated.

Sir, the evil of the block system is patent. The irrigators have complained against it times out of number, by holding conferences and passing resolutions and sending deputations. The Honourable the General Member knows it very well that he has received several deputations from time to time, and strong complaints have been made against the block system. I was talking about the resolution I had tabled at the July session; the Honourable the General Member was very kind and the Secretary to Government, Irrigation Department, was very sympathetic in accepting my resolution on behalf of Government. But what is the effect of the acceptance of that resolution? They have not given effect to it. The promise is on record that they would start an experiment of stopping the block system at least as far as the Godavari and Pravara canals are concerned. What is the good of a promise if it is not acted up to? I ask the Honourable the General Member what is being done about that promise?

Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Kamat rightly referred to the bund rules also. Sir, the injustice of these rules is quite patent. The agriculturists are put to great difficulties, and they are being harassed over the bund rules. These rules are not modified. Government knows that the agriculturists find it very difficult to follow the various intricate rules in practical working. So, in view of the promise to stop the block system at least as an experimental measure, they should start that experiment straightway by doing away with the system at least in the Godavari and Pravara canals, and amend the rules of the bund system in such a way that the agriculturists will be satisfied with them.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE (Ahmednagar District): Sir, I believe I will be right in thinking that the object of the motion is not so much to ventilate grievances as to see that the research division disappears. At least, that is the view that I take of it, and there are very cogent reasons as to why in these days of financial stringency we ought not to have this luxury, if as a matter of fact it is proved that it is a luxury to the satisfaction of this House.

Now, Sir, the honourable mover of the motion has given the history as to why and how this research circle was started. It was started, I believe in 1915, and the term is being renewed every five years, and my impression is that the present period of appointment of the officer expires in September 1932. If that is correct, and I know that it is correct, then it is for the Government to make out a very strong case indeed as to why, in these days of financial stringency, the post of this special officer should be continued after September 1932. I believe, Sir, departmentally, perhaps negotiations might be going on for the continuance of it, but we know nothing of it, and I would like to take this opportunity to say that Government will be very well advised in retrenching for the present at least that circle. That does not mean retrenching the particular officer, whose services may perhaps be made available for the solution of the larger questions which are pending in Sind under Barrage conditions. The work that he was doing so long has been almost completed. There were certain works budgeted for, which were intended to occupy this officer for some more time, but we find that the dam at Vir, costing 90 lakhs, has been abandoned by Government on further advice, and, looking to the present estimates of expenditure on works for this circle, so far as the Deccan is concerned, I find that there are about a lakh of rupees worth of works or it might be works of Rs. 1,20,000 to be executed by the agency of the research circle, out of which I believe that the expenditure on the officers and other charges comes to about a lakh. Now, Sir, the point of view that I would like to press on the attention of Government is this, that every bit of the work that this officer was expected to do, viz., classification of all the lands fit for sugarcane and for other crops, or perhaps the classification for other crops and part of the work of rectangulation on a smaller scale, has been done, and is almost mapped out. Not only that, but almost all the schemes of drainage—and drainage is one of those subjects which requires some kind of expert knowledge, not very much expert knowledge, but we will assume for the sake of argument that it does require expert knowledge—are now ready. But it is also certain that the Government is financially not in a position to finance these schemes. On the Pravara, on the Godavari and on the Nira Left Bank, these drainage schemes are ready, but no funds for them have been or could be allotted owing to the present stringent times. Now, we have this research circle under a Superintending Engineer. He has an Executive Engineer under him and a lot of other assistants, and the usual establishment, including the works that are to be executed comes to about Rs. 1,20,000. Now, Sir, he was entrusted no doubt with the work of remodelling the Nira Left Bank, in order to bring more acreage under irrigation. That work at the sanctioned cost is also finished, and it is to his credit that we have got about 19,000 acres of new land which is now brought under irrigation. That result would have been satisfactory also if as a matter of fact there was a demand for more irrigation. But the demand for irrigation is also lessening on the usual scale, and is now down by at least about one-fourth. Under these circumstances, I should think that Government has to make out a very strong case for the maintenance of this circle.

Now, there is another point which I would like to make. It may be said, as has been said, that a lot of lands are going out of cultivation, because they are spoiled by water-logging, thus becoming unfit for cultivation, or that they are spoiled by some kind of salts getting mixed up with the soil. They are either water-logged or spoiled by salt efflorescence. No doubt, there is a large acreage of that due to want of drainage at the proper time. Then again, the result is that parts of these lands are reclaimed at a cost which varies from Rs. 100 to Rs. 150. It might be said, from the point of view of Government, that they are at present worth at least Rs. 400 an acre. But these are all book values.

What is the use of saying that some lands to the extent of 200 acres they have reclaimed are worth about 8 lakhs when there are no buyers? Not only that, but when the area of irrigation is actually contracting on account of various economic factors and other difficulties which are coming to surface, mostly on account of this method, it may be given up. I know that the bagayatdars are utterly discontented and dissatisfied, maybe for good reasons or bad reasons. But the fact is there. You must not shut your eyes to that. If you want that your scientific method should succeed, it is commonsense that you should meet that particular factor. No doubt, some lands are reclaimed and some money also is being made out not on field conditions but on demonstration farms in which the officers themselves keep account. They say that the expenditure meets the income. But the bagayatdars do not admit. They say that it may be so for one year, but if you take the results for a continuous period, the value of the reclaimed plot and the plot in a virgin area in which irrigation has been going on for years will not be the same. I cannot say how; but, I will say this much. If Government's policy is to run this as a business concern, you must sell out the reclaimed lands, even at the cost price, so that you can invest this money for another programme. But the present methods of Government are unbusinesslike and they go on spending at one end in order to show expansion and the existence of the scientific methods, oblivious of the other end whether it brings in any revenue or not. So far as I know, these lands are not being sold. Neither are these lands let out nor do they bring in any money. You are not able to find purchasers, and at least if you let out the lands for at least Rs. 50 an acre, it will be encouraging. But you do not. You departmentally manage these lands and keep accounts departmentally. You have got your establishment charges, skilled labour and all these which go to make up deficiency in ordinary field conditions which do not operate there. Therefore, your results are not correct.

There is another point. There are certain methods demonstrated as a result of the existence of this department in designing drainage schemes, but it is no use going in piecemeal. You must have drainage right through, which would benefit the whole strata of these fields, of which the subsoil level will be such that the water will be drained off in the nearest nullah. That is the correct system. I think the cultivators or bagayatdars have no objection to that. I know also this that several schemes have been made, but I am asking across the table why you have stopped the finance this year. You have no finance. You cannot have finance for a considerable number of years. Your own property to the extent of 19,000 acres was spoiled. You cannot improve unless you are put in possession of funds on the basis of Rs. 250 of expenditure per acre. Where is the good of maintaining a department and an officer of his rank, at least to cater for him, particularly when it amounts to a great hardship to the bagayatdars? This is not realised by the officers and, for the matter of that, by Government. You know that applications for

lands which are brought under irrigation have to go through two officers,—the research officer and the superintending engineer. It is too true to say that the application takes a longer time than otherwise was the case before this department was started. The cultivators are delayed in planting the sugarcane for which they have to go in for the concession of overlapping and the rest. The point at issue is whether this circle is needed or not. If this circle is needed, you must give them sufficient financial help, in order that they might execute these works. If you lop off the drainage schemes of the Deccan and if you lop off a lot of other works which were going on on the Nira Left until the extension works, which you find after experience are not bringing in any revenue, may I ask where is the commonsense in continuing the policy which you find neither popular with the people nor brings you any money worth the name? Government will be very well advised in economising every little pie. I thank the honourable member Sir Charlton Harrison for stating that in irrigation matters you must economise and economise to the last pie. You must not spend it; you must not spend it with your bad agents or incompetent agents. I agree with you. That is the correct thing to hear; when we find that we have no funds at the present moment, a splendid opportunity has come to us, namely, that the period of the Research Circle which was started five years ago, is coming to an end in September 1932. Why should not the Honourable the General Member and the Finance Department, under the conditions I have mentioned, abolish it altogether, or if not abolish it altogether, keep it in suspended animation? The officers would be available; they might work somewhere else. Then, when finances are available, you might restart it. I admit that. But to have a luxury of this kind—this is not the time for it. This part of the House does not indulge in recriminations. They do not pay. It is too true that the other side is too strong for us. They can invent reasons and put us into such a mess by an array of figures that it is not possible to give any effective reply. But I am sure that if the Finance Department, which is the arbiter at least of the purse-strings, take it into their head to look into this department, they will agree with us. I am quite sure myself that if this department, or this particular branch of it, goes to the pruning knife of investigators like Sir Frederic Gauntlett, their eyes will catch this particular luxury. And even though Sir Frederic might not be in favour of pruning it altogether, I am sure that he will spare us at least this expenditure. I know it becomes very difficult for the Finance Department, especially when the matter comes from experts, to cut it down, when the experts say that it is necessary and desirable to have that department. Naturally in such cases the Finance Department do not have the last word. The Secretariat comes forward and says, "We want it. The Department is doing such useful work and therefore it must be retained." But even then,—that is the second string to the bow,—why should you have a Superintending Engineer in our attenuated condition? Why can you not get along with smaller funds, with an Executive Engineer? The Executive Engineer in charge of Research has been there for a number of years; he belongs to the Imperial Service. He must have picked up his business. After all, it is not so technical. In that case there is no reason why you should not do away with the Superintending Engineer. I do feel very strongly that this is waste which cannot be justified this year.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (in Urdu): On a point of information. In the demand the 10 per cent. cut in salaries has been shown. Has the travelling and house rent allowance been increased by 20 per cent.?

Mr. C. M. LANE: Sir, the honourable mover of this cut has stated that his intention is to criticise the office, not the officer. Well, the last honourable speaker was not, I think, in the House when the honourable House was addressed by the honourable member Mr. Kamat. The very well-informed and able exposition of the case which was presented to us provides an adequate answer to the criticism which has subsequently been made.

The first criticism was that this was in 1918 a sub-division and it has now become a circle. Well, everything begins in a small way and grows with subsequent development. This Circle is doing most extraordinarily useful and valuable work. That has been admitted by the Retrenchment Committee which was recently appointed by this House and Government, I think, are in a very strong position in continuing this Circle with their recommendation behind them. This recommendation reads, "The examples quoted illustrate reasons which have led the majority of us to come to the conclusion that it would not be either wise or economical to interrupt the scientific researches and practical application of experiments carried out by the Superintending Engineer." This will be the ground on which, in due course, when the time comes, we will apply to the Secretary of State for renewing his sanction to this Circle.

The honourable member Mr. Kamat, though he supported retention of the Circle, subsequently criticised our rules. I absolutely agree that something has to be done about our irrigation rules. For the past three years I have been trying to do something in the direction of simplifying them. I claim that something has been achieved. But I now hope that we will be able to go further and I am awaiting with interest the report of the Deccan Canals Financial Improvement Committee which, I know, is going to be of extraordinary value to Government and is going to help us in simplifying the rules and their application. That, Sir, is one of the particular points which we are taking up and which we will keep in view.

The honourable the Deputy President (Mr. Navle) referred again to the question which was lately asked in this House touching on the area not cultivated in blocks. He said that it works very hard on certain cultivators—500 acres not cultivated but charged for. Well, Sir, I do not think his was a correct statement of the case, because it absolutely ignores the block rates. The block rates are concessional rates. We do not charge in a block for each acre at Rs. 60. The actual block rate is somewhere about Rs. 21 per acre. In the case of cane outside the blocks we charge Rs. 45. So the area in the blocks is charged Rs. 21 as against Rs. 45 charged for the area outside them. The honourable House will agree that we are not therefore so harsh towards the cultivators, as the question and subsequent comments seemed to indicate.

The honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni said that he had no objection to the person holding this appointment, but he expressed some doubt about his qualifications. Mr. Inglis is a Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor in the Engineering Arts of the Dublin University, which is not a common degree. He is also a Member of the Institution of Civil Engineers. Those are his academic qualifications. Apart from that, Mr. Inglis has devoted a lot of time, while on leave and sometimes on deputation out of India, to research work in America and elsewhere. He is in touch with experts in this particular line all over the world and he is generally recognised as an authority; certainly as far as India is concerned, he is accepted as an expert and an authority. He has recently been in Sind doing work in connection with the Barrage and at the present moment he is in Lahore meeting other research officers.

I do not think I need say anything further as regards the justification of the appointment concerned and I hope that, in view of the very well-reasoned and authoritative exposition of the case which the honourable member Mr. Kamat gave, the honourable mover will see his way to withdrawing the motion.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI (Poona District): Sir, as is presumed by the opposite side, it is not the case that I do not realise the importance of development and research work in these matters. What I want to say is that it is not now necessary to have an independent and costly department for that small work in these days of financial stringency. The work is already there and there is another department which has taken the same subjects in their hands. That department has already made its own progress along the same lines. It has so many specialist officers who can very well take the place of this research circle with some amount of economy and advantage. The Agricultural Department has got in their hands drainage schemes and irrigation development work. And all these matters can be worked efficiently by the experts from the Department. The line of work is given in that department's Administration report. From the report it can be safely said that the activities of the development and research circle can be very well placed in the hands of the Agricultural Department. The Department can make much progress along the desired lines. There are several officers in that department quite competent to take this work in hand and there will thus be no need to maintain another independent officer and his establishment. We can do away with this Superintending Engineer and Executive Engineers under him and their staff also. Many schemes are lying idle for want of funds. The money saved by doing away with the Research Circle could be utilized in financing those schemes. When we have no money to finance the existing schemes, ready with the Department, then what is the good of preparing new schemes without the hope of getting them financed in the near future? The work of draining etc. can be very well conducted by the Agricultural Department which is sufficiently equipped to take it up in their charge.

These are all things told in the report of the Department that there is a chemist, and soil physicist and an expert in drainage and water-logging work. These works have been already taken in hand by the Department as can be seen by a reference to the second chapter of the report under the head "Agricultural development." You will find there that this work is already taken in hand by that Department seriously.

As to the other thing which is said about the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee, I may say that I do not think that any member—except one—has gone and actually seen the irrigation and seen the circle and studied the works going on there. I do not think that the members of the Retrenchment Committee have, from their own experience, recorded their judgment in the Report, of which much is done here. There was only one member on that committee who had first-hand knowledge of the working of the circle, and that honourable member has given his own opinion in the concluding part of his speech made before us,—I mean the honourable member Mr. Kamat. He has given his own opinion about the working of the irrigation rules at the hand of this Superintending Engineer and about the ways and modes in which the rules are applied in the Deccan Irrigation Circle and about the methods which are in use there now.

My request is that the Honourable the General Member, who has got sympathies for the public, should consider this question more sympathetically. He should take the grievances of the people as his own. Sir, at the time of reply it may be said, "Do they not apply for getting water in the blocks?" Yes, they do apply for it. But there lies the real root of the grievance. The people who apply for the irrigation of their blocks have not got enough foresight of the future things, and Government should not take undue advantage of their illiteracy. The old system of giving water on the presentation of passes should be restored. We must allow some margin for the illiteracy of the agriculturists. So many forecasts of even educated people, we are told, proved to be totally wrong. Will not this little margin be allowed to illiterate people for miscalculating their forecasts of their crops? And because they happen to make a mistake in their forecasts, are they to be fined with such a large amount, in the way now narrated by the honourable the Deputy President in his speech on the motion moved by me?

To put the whole thing in a nutshell; firstly, Government should come forward quite prepared to abolish this circle; secondly, its activities should be transferred to the Agricultural Department with no extra establishment given to them; thirdly, the application of the irrigation rules should be made in such a way as to be beneficial, first to the irrigators and then to the Government also. These three things can easily be achieved, I think, if the Honourable the General Member will take it into his mind and give a promise that he will look into the grievances of the people. The committee as promised will be appointed to look into the grievances of the irrigators. He must not go on increasing the debt of promises. I hope that the promise given in the matter will be soon realised. Requests made by the irrigators may not be kept on an upper shelf just like his promise of abolishing the block system on the Godavari and Pravara canals. So, I am going to see my way to solve the problem provided a satisfactory reply is forthcoming from the Honourable the General Member.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, the honourable mover of the cut has himself admitted the utility of this circle; but he suggests that instead of continuing this Division, the work should be transferred to the Agricultural Department. As far as my knowledge goes, there is no officer in the Agricultural Department who can take up this scientific research work in regard to drainage, waterlogging, etc. Therefore, the suggestion that this work should be transferred to the Agricultural Department is impracticable.

Now, Sir, the very good work that this division has been doing has been admitted by all, especially by my honourable friend Mr. Kamat. Now, in addition to the present work that this officer is doing in the Deccan, we are utilising his services for the Sukkur Barrage, in connection with the big drainage schemes and waterlogging there. Hence, there are more allowances shown in the budget for this officer, because he has to travel from the Deccan to Sind.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: He used to do it before?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Never. He has to go from Poona and come back again to Poona. Naturally, taking into consideration the distance between Poona and Sind, there is an increase in his travelling allowance charges.

As regards agriculturists, I have the greatest possible sympathy for them. Whenever they have asked me for interviews, I have granted them, and I and my staff have held conferences with them. I have listened to their grievances every time, and I myself admit that some of the rules are very complicated, and we are trying our best to simplify them. In fact, before this also we have redressed many of their grievances. I am sorry that none of the honourable members mentioned the grievances that have been redressed. Now, Sir, as soon as we get the report of the committee that we have appointed, we will consider the various rules and try to simplify them, and I hope that will meet the wishes of the irrigators.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Sir, I ask for leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The House is now adjourned to 2 p.m., on Monday, the 29th February 1932.

BOMBAY: PRINTED AT THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL PRESS.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: In reply to part (7) it is stated that a copy of the circular is available in the Reading Room of the Members of the Legislative Council. I enquired in the Reading Room, but I could not find it there. Will the Honourable Minister please put a copy on the Council table?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: A copy will be supplied to the Library.

GRAZING FEES.

*Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether grazing fees are recovered as arrears of land revenue;

(b) whether the Collector of the district has any voice in levying or ascertaining the amount payable as grazing fees, or whether he is merely an agent of the Forest Department for the recovery of the same;

(c) whether it is a fact that every person who owns cattle has to pay the grazing fees;

(d) who is to decide the question, in case of dispute, as to whether any cattle do or do not graze in a particular forest area;

(e) what is the procedure to be followed in such a case?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: (a) Yes, when necessary.

(b) The Collector of the district has full power to decide such matters in respect of cattle which graze solely in areas in charge of the Revenue Department. Forest Officers are competent to decide such matters in respect of areas in charge of the Forest Department.

(c) No, only in forest villages the grazing fees are ordinarily levied on all cattle.

(d) The Collector of the district.

(e) If any person is aggrieved with the decision of the Divisional Forest Officer, he may represent the matter to the Collector.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: With regard to part (b) it is stated: "The Collector of the district has full power to decide such matters in respect of cattle which graze solely in areas in charge of the Revenue Department. Forest Officers are competent to decide such matters in respect of areas in charge of the Forest Department." Has the Collector no authority over the Forest Department?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: If the honourable member reads the reply to part (e) of the question, it is stated there: "If any person is aggrieved with the decision of the Divisional Forest Officer, he may represent the matter to the Collector."

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: Even prior to the decision of the Forest Officer?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: The Collector does not decide in regard to areas which are within the Forest Department.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: With regard to part (c), may I know whether we are to pay the fee whether there is grazing area or not?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I do not know really. I should not think so.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: With regard to (d), the Forest Advisory Committee, consisting of the Collector, Assistant Collectors, the Divisional Forest Officers, President of the district local board and a member of this Council, came to the conclusion that the Collector must have power to grant relief?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I do not remember. Perhaps the honourable member has a copy of the report. He himself must know the answer to his question.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: I was one of those persons on that body which came to the conclusion that the Collector must be authorised to grant relief in such cases.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Has the Honourable Minister in charge any information?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: Sir, I did not follow him.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: An application was sent to the effect that the Collector should be authorised to receive complaints in regard to such matters.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: If the honourable member gives me notice, I will find out.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: The advisory committee consisted of the Collector, Assistant Collectors, the President of the district local board and an M.L.C. They came to the unanimous conclusion, that if people are to be taxed, even though there is no grazing area, the Collector should have the authority to decide such matters. The Collector said that he has no such authority at present and unless Government give him that authority he cannot do so. This we reported to Government in November last. Have Government received such a report from the Collector, and what is their decision?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: If the honourable member gives notice, I will find it out.

CURRENCY NOTES: EXCHANGE.

(a) whether of late currency notes cannot be freely exchanged for coins in towns and mofussil areas;

(b) whether it is a fact that in the Sirsi and Siddapur talukas on market days villagers had to return the commodities purchased for not possessing monies less than the smallest currency notes as traders had not the coins to pay the difference;

(c) whether they are aware that merchants charge an amount up to Rs. 2 for payment of cash to exchange a Rs. 100 currency note as watav;

(d) if they are not, whether they will institute an inquiry to ascertain the fact and remedy the evil;

(e) whether it is a fact that in all sub-treasuries mostly currency notes and not coins are held in balance;

(f) whether it is a fact that circulars or orders have been issued by them not to pay out coins in disbursements?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: This subject pertains to the Central Government and the Honourable Member's question should be asked in the Central Legislature.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: Cannot the Government take the initiative in the matter to ease the situation?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: This has been brought to the notice of the authorities concerned and they have taken steps.

LIQUOR SHOP NEAR MOSQUE, NADIAD.

*Mr. J. S. KADRI (Northern Division): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received any fresh complaints from the Mussalmans of Nadiad (District Kaira), regarding the continuance of a country liquor shop in the vicinity of their mosque, in spite of clear orders of Government for its removal;

(b) whether the local excise inspector has been conniving at the non-removal of the shop;

(c) what steps have been or are to be taken by Government for securing prompt compliance with their order?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) Inquiry is in progress regarding the selection of a new site for the shop.

Mr. J. S. KADRI: With regard to (c) it is stated that an inquiry is in progress regarding the selection of a new site. May I know, Sir, who is responsible for finding out the site?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: The Department is finding out another site as the municipality is objecting to give the site selected.

Mr. J. S. KADRI: Will it take long to select the site?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: That I cannot say.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: What is the distance between the liquor shop and the masjid?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: That has all been replied to in the last session.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: It is not so. I put that question. The Honourable Minister wanted notice. I gave notice of the question in August 1931 and it has not been replied to as yet.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: When the answer is received to that question, the honourable member will get the information.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: In the meanwhile I want to know what the distance is. An inquiry must have been made by this time and the distance may be known to Government?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: I cannot say.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: Is it a fact that those applicants who object to the location of the shop at the present site used to lease the very Masjid premises for the liquor shop?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: The honourable member must understand that Government have decided to remove this shop.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: It may be that Government have decided to remove the shop. I want to know whether it is a fact that those Mussalmans who objected to the location of the shop did lease their masjid area for the liquor shop in the past?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: I do not know. I am not concerned with that.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: May I know the reason?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: That is immaterial to the question of the honourable member.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: Does not the question arise as to whether it is a fact that the Mussalmans who objected to the location of the shops had willingly leased their own premises for the shop? My information is that these very masjid people used to let their premises for the location of the shop?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The Honourable Minister has informed the House that Government have decided that the shop must be removed.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: I understand that the liquor contractors in the Broach District or at least some of them are Mahomedans.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: I want notice.

IRRIGATION CESS: FORFEITURE OF LANDS FOR DEFAULT IN PAYMENT.

*Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI (Poona District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the lands of those who make default in paying irrigation cess in time are confiscated by Government;

(b) if so, how many acres of land have been thus acquired by Government in the area irrigated under the Deccan Canals;

(c) whether it is a fact that the Credit Co-operative Societies have to purchase the lands in case of failure of payment of the arrears due to them by the irrigators of the lands under Deccan Canals;

(d) if so, how many acres of land have been secured thus by the societies in this District particularly out of the land under the command of the Deccan Canals?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: (a) No. In case of default the right, title and interest of the defaulter are put for sale under section 155 of the Land Revenue Code. When this is done, it may happen that the land is bought by some third party, but if not, it may be bought in by Government for a nominal amount, and brought on to the Government khata. In this latter event, the land may remain on the Government khata, or it may after a greater or less interval be put up to sale by auction or it may again be restored to the former occupant on his paying an amount equal to the arrears for which the land was originally put up to sale.

(b) The compilation of the figures regarding the area of land brought on to the Government khata would involve an amount of labour incommensurate with their importance and Government are therefore not prepared to answer this clause.

(c) Yes.

(d) The compilation of the figures required would involve an amount of labour incommensurate with their importance and Government are therefore not prepared to answer this clause.

MARCHING OF TROOPS: COSTS.

*Mr. N. N. PATIL (Kolaba District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) by whom the cost incurred on account of the movement of the troops through the villages and cities in the mofussil during the past few months was borne;

(b) the total cost so incurred;

(c) at what places and by whom were the troops entertained in the Kolaba district?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: (a) By the military authorities.

(b) Government have no information.

(c) So far as Government are aware, the troops were entertained at the following places by certain non-official gentlemen:—

Taloge Budrukh.
Panvel.
Jasai.
Urun.

Mr. N. N. PATIL: With regard to part (b) am I to understand from the reply that Government did not get any information from the Military Authorities? Or they did not give it?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: The answer is given there: "Government have no information."

Mr. N. N. PATIL: My point is this: whether the Government tried to get this information when it was asked for?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: The Military Authorities are not under the control of this Government. If the honourable member wants the information he can apply to the Military Authorities.

Mr. N. N. PATIL: Will not Government be pleased to disclose the names of the non-officials who entertained the troops?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Government are not pleased.

Mr. N. N. PATIL : May I know whether it is a fact that the troops were entertained at Vindhana, a village near Chirner ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS : I have given all information in my possession.

PROVINCIAL SERVICE : PENSION.

* Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID (Karachi District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of officers from the Provincial Service, who have put in service for 25 years or more ;

(b) whether they intend to send these officers on pension ; and fill their vacancies by such persons as would otherwise be removed from service ?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN : (a) In view of the answer to (b) it is considered unnecessary to collect the information required which is not readily available.

(b) It would be inconsistent with the policy of retrenchment to pension such officers who are still capable of useful service unless it is intended at the same time to abolish their posts.

SESSIONS CASES, TATTA : PUBLIC PROSECUTOR.

* Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID (Karachi District) : Will Government be pleased to state —

(1) whether sessions cases of Tatta Division, Karachi Division, are tried and disposed of in the Sessions Court of Hyderabad, Sind ;

(2) whether Mr. Parsram Tolaram, Assistant Public Prosecutor of Karachi, attends to these cases at Hyderabad ;

(3) the cost separately for travelling allowance and fees paid to him during 1929-30 and 1930-31 ;

(4) why Government do not send all Tatta cases for Hyderabad Sessions to some Public Prosecutor at Hyderabad ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS : (1) No.

(2), (3) and (4) Do not arise.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu) : Where are the sessions cases of Tatta tried ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS : At Tatta.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : Are not these cases tried at Hyderabad ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS : I have already said 'No' to the first part of the question.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH : Is it not a fact that some Tatta sessions cases are tried at Hyderabad ?

RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS ACT, 1863: APPLICATION TO BOMBAY PRESIDENCY.

* Mr. J. S. KADRI for Mr. SYED MUNAWAR: Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) why the Imperial Act XX of 1863 (an act to enable Government to divest itself of the management of religious endowments) has so far been applied only to the District of Canara under Bombay Act VII of 1865 and rules made thereundef;

(b) how the management of religious Endowments and appointment of committees for the same under the said Act of 1865 has been working;

(c) whether they are in a position to state that 65 years' experience of the working of the Act in Canara has been sufficient to point to the desirability of bringing the Act into force in other parts of the Presidency;

(d) if so, when Government intend to apply the Act to the rest of the Presidency?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: (a) Act XX of 1863 was specifically enacted for the purpose of relieving the Boards of Revenue in the Presidencies of Bengal and Madras of the administration of land and benefits arising therefrom granted for the support of mosques and Hindu temples and for other religious uses. When the Act was enacted, the district of Kanara was a part of the Madras Presidency and so it applied to that district. On the transfer of that district to the Bombay Presidency the Act was made applicable to it by special legislation in virtue of its previous application. As the Act of 1863 was intended to apply only to the presidencies of Bengal and Madras it was not applied to the other parts of the Bombay Presidency.

(b) The working of the Act has not been very satisfactory, first because of some of the defects inherent in the Act itself and secondly because of the apathy of the Committees and the indifference of the community to launch and finance civil suits to enforce better management.

(c) and (d) As the whole question of the better management of the Wakfs and Religious Endowments is under the consideration of Government the object embodied in the suggestion of the Honourable Member would receive due attention.

TEXT BOOKS: ENCOURAGEMENT TO AUTHORS.

* Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): (a) Will Government be pleased to furnish details of the special scheme inaugurated for the encouragement of authors of text-books in the vernaculars?

(b) When was the scheme inaugurated?

(c) What results have so far been achieved from it?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: (a) and (b) In 1924 Government published the following notice for general information:—

"The question of encouraging the production of books in the Vernaculars suitable for literate adults who wish to continue their education has for some time past been under the consideration of Government. Books are required on the following subjects :—

"(1) Agriculture, including the subsidiary subjects of Botany, Zoology, Veterinary Science, and Meteorology ;

(2) History and Geography ; Administration ; Economics, Political Science.

(3) Domestic Science, including Hygiene and First Aid, Common Diseases, Nursing, etc.

"2. Applications are invited from persons competent to write on any of the above subjects in any of the Vernaculars of the Presidency. Applicants should supply evidence of their fitness to undertake the work. The applications should be submitted to the Director of Public Instruction, Bombay Presidency, Poona.

"3. Government are prepared to give to selected authors a subsidy up to Rs. 2-4-0 per octavo page. They, however, reserve to themselves the option of acquiring the copyright of any of the publications on payment of a sum equal to the original subsidy after the first edition is exhausted, and selected authors will have to enter into an agreement in this connection."

Government also appointed Committees of experts in each of the three groups of subjects mentioned in the notice, which were to consist of a President and two members. Each Committee was to lay down the course to be followed in the books to be printed so as to serve the object in view, viz. to provide books in the vernaculars suitable for adults who as children only attended school upto the vernacular standard IV. The Committee was authorised to select suitable authors from among those desirous of writing books on these terms. A copy of a Press Note of 1928 on the subject is placed on the Council table.

(c) Five books, written as a result of this scheme have already been printed or are in the Press. The scheme is temporarily in abeyance as a measure of economy.

(Press Note.)

With the compliments of the Director of Information, Bombay.

Government have appointed three Committees to select suitable authors to compose books in the vernacular on the subjects of (1) Agriculture, etc., (2) History, Geography, etc., and (3) Domestic Science, etc. It has been decided that (1) Each Committee should lay down the course to be followed in any book or in each book of any series of books on the subject entrusted to them so as to serve the object in view, namely, to provide books in the vernaculars suitable for adults who have left school after completing Vernacular Standard IV and who know the vernacular only or whose knowledge of English is very slight, (2) Each Committee should select the author who, in their opinion, is best fitted to write a suitable book or series of books, (3) Each Committee will recommend the rate of subsidy to be given by Government to the selected author, the rate not exceeding Rs. 2-4-0 per octavo page, (4) After any book has been finally approved by the Committee the President of the Committee should require the author to print and publish it within the stated period. The limit of expenditure for the production of books on the subject entrusted to the Committee should be Rs. 2,000. If more funds are required the sanction of Government will have to be obtained. The following persons have been nominated to serve on these Committees—

RENT CONTROL, BOMBAY.

* Mr. B. P. WADKE (Bombay City, South): (a) Are Government aware that the tenants in the city of Bombay are suffering great hardships on account of heavy rents, unemployment and depression of trade and industry?

(b) Do Government intend to take any relief measures in the matter?

(c) If so, what immediate measures do Government intend to take in the matter of rents?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) The matter has been brought to the notice of Government.

(b) and (c) After careful inquiry and consideration, Government have come to the conclusion that there is no case for the revival of the Rent Act in the City.

Mr. B. P. WADKE: Is it a fact that the Bombay Municipal Corporation and Bombay Tenants' Association have requested Government to take measures in that direction?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: They have. But Government have taken their decision after careful enquiry and consideration.

Mr. B. P. WADKE: Government have stated that after careful enquiry and consideration Government have come to the conclusion that there is no case for the revival of the Rent Act in the city. May I know what that 'careful enquiry and consideration' is?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: They have themselves made enquiries. I may draw the attention of the honourable member to the enormous increase in the 'To Let' boards in the city within the last few months.

Mr. B. P. WADKE: Already existing premises are occupied with heavy rents and the poor citizens are asking relief from Government. Would it not be better if Government help them at this juncture by introducing the Rent Act for reduction of rents in the city by 25 per cent.?

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

SHEEP AND CATTLE BREEDING.

Khan Bahadur D. B. COOPER (Satara District): (a) Will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken to put into effect the following resolutions passed at the meeting of the Provincial Board of Agriculture in Poona on the 26th and 27th September 1927, page 58 of the proceedings, resolutions Nos. 3 and 4:—

"3. Adequate facilities should be given to irrigators to start cattle breeding and sheep breeding and small dairies which would supply large amounts of bulky manures."

"4. Railway authorities should be requested to lower rates for transport of manure by rail, in proportion as they lower the rates for other commodities"?

(b) If this has not been put into effect, what are the reasons therefor?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: (a) The first recommendation is somewhat vague and general. If any concrete proposals are put forward the Agricultural Department would consider them favourably. The Director of Agriculture has at the July 1931 Irrigation Conference stressed the importance of fostering the livestock industry, in any suitable form, on the Deccan Canals, as development is governed very largely by the manure supply, and has recommended that a development policy for the Canal Areas should be formulated comprising, inter alia, the promoting of Agricultural Industries, such as, sugar-making, dairying and fruit-farming.

As regards lowering of rates for transport of manure by rail, the Railway authorities have been approached from time to time with requests to reduce the rates. As a result, the rates have been reduced. A statement showing the reduced rates is placed on the Council Table. In 1925 the Madras and Southern Maratha Railway stated that they could not quote lower rates. Government considered the resolution of the Provincial Board of Agriculture in 1927 and decided that a good case for further reductions could not be prepared.

(b) Does not arise.

AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING SECTIONS: ORGANISATION.

Khan Bahadur D. B. COOPER (Satara District): (a) Will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken on the following recommendation of the Royal Commission on Agriculture in India, page 109, paragraph 106 of their Report:—

"Research into problems connected with agricultural machinery and implements will not take that place in the estimation of the Agricultural Departments which is justified by its intrinsic importance unless the Agricultural Engineering Section of the Departments is completely reorganised"?

(b) What reorganisation has taken place in the Agricultural Engineering Section of this Province?

(c) If no reorganisation has been carried out, what are the reasons for not doing so?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: (a), (b) and (c) The recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Agriculture on the point were considered by Government but they were unable to give effect to the proposals for the reorganisation of the agricultural engineering section in view of financial conditions.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS AND MACHINERY.

Khan Bahadur D. B. COOPER (Satara District): (a) Will Government be pleased to state what action has been taken on the following recommendations of the Royal Commission on Agriculture in India, page 109, paragraph 104 of their report:—

"The second essential is that the pumping and boring operations should be completely separated from work on agricultural implements and machinery"?

(b) As the boring work has been stopped in this Presidency, what steps are to be taken by the Agricultural Engineering Section to carry out researches in improved implements to replace the existing 1,188,000 antiquated wooden ploughs which are in use in the Presidency proper at present?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: (a) The Honourable Member is referred to the reply given to his question No. 2 above.

(b) The Agricultural Engineer has been giving his special attention to designing a seed drill suitable for cereals, cotton and other crops and capable of sowing through a wide range of depths and widths and a winnowing machine for dealing with jowar, bajri, wheat and rice. He has been permitted by Government to take out patents on behalf of Government for—

(1) a modified Orient plough,
(2) an improved plough share, and
(3) a seed drill.

Power cultivation with tractors and tractor implements have received considerable attention and the Department of Agriculture has been co-operating with a firm in the Dharwar District which has undertaken contract work. Classes for drivers of (a) oil engines and (b) tractors have been held.

LAND REVENUE COLLECTIONS.

Mr. A. N. SURVE (Bombay City, North): (a) With reference to Press Note, No. P. 217/12th September 1931, of the Director of Information under the caption "Land Revenue Collections", will Government kindly state if a press note of this kind is issued annually?

(b) If not, what are the reasons for its issue this year?

(c) Will Government state explicitly what is meant by the last sentence of the said note, commencing from "When the circumstances of the year" and ending with "land revenue staff under their control"?

(d) What were the amounts of the total demands and the collections for the Presidency proper for the year 1929-30 as against the total demand of Rs. 387 lakhs and collections Rs. 383 lakhs for the revenue year 1930-31?

(e) Did the prices of all agricultural commodities sink to a lower level than they did during the year 1929-30?

(f) Will Government state, in a tabular form for each of the divisions and for the years 1928-29, 1929-30 and 1930-31 (1) the amounts of—

(i) remissions and suspensions;

(ii) Takavi advances;

(iii) suspensions of Takavi;

(2) the number of coercive processes under sections 152, 148, 154, 155, 153 and 157 of the Land Revenue Code?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: (a) A press note of this kind was issued for the first time in 1930.

(b) These press notes have been instituted in order to give the public early information on the subject since the Land Revenue Administration Report which gives fuller information requires several months for its preparation and publication.

(c) The meaning of the sentence is already clear.

(d) Demand 385 lakhs.

Collection 373 lakhs.

(e) Yes.

(f) The information for the years 1928-29 and 1929-30 will be found in the appendices to the Land Revenue Administration Reports for those years, copies of which are in the Council Library. Information for the year 1930-31 is not yet ready, but will be published in the annual report in due course.

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—(resumed).

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I move—

Reduce by Rs. 1,000 "Grants-in-aid, Rs. 8,45,000 (Civil Estimates, page 281)".

Sir, the object of moving this cut is to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister in charge of this department that the grants-in-aid to district local boards for communications have been greatly reduced. In the year 1921-22, the grant made to district local boards in the presidency for communications was 15 lakhs and odd. It was then increased to 19 lakhs in the time of my honourable friend the Leader of the House who was then Minister, that is, in the year 1925-26. The grant remained at that figure for four or five years and then was reduced in the time of Dewan Bahadur Harilal Desai to 16 lakhs. During the current year, it was reduced from 16 lakhs to 11½ lakhs; and for the ensuing year the budget grant is Rs. 8,45,000. It was stated the other day by the Honourable the Finance Member that the cuts had been made proportionately in all the departments and no department had suffered more or less in comparison with another department. Now, I ask the Honourable the Finance Member whether this reduction of more than 120 per cent. in the grants for communications is in the same proportion to the retrenchment effected by Government in other grants. This grant, Sir, represents the only direct service which the villagers receive for what they pay in the shape of taxation. The keeping of roads in good repair and increasing the mileage of roads should form an important item in the budget of this presidency. It has also a great bearing on the land revenue of the presidency. If the roads are in good condition, the villagers get better marketing facilities for their produce than when the roads are bad. This grant now represents only 1½ per cent. of the total land revenue of the presidency. I would ask the Honourable Minister in charge whether it would be possible to maintain the roads of the district and taluka local boards from this meagre amount. Government have in their possession 6,346 miles of metalled roads and 3,026 miles of unmetalled roads, and they spend about Rs. 500 per mile for the maintenance of metalled roads and about Rs. 150 a mile for the unmetalled roads. According to the grants which they propose to allocate to the district local boards, the district local boards will get about Rs. 100 a mile for metalled roads and Rs. 30 a mile for unmetalled roads. I do not want to weary the House with details of the figures for unmetalled and metalled roads for the various districts and municipalities. This is the figure I have taken from Government records. I will, however, take the instance of Gujarat. Out of the total provincial roads of more than 9,000 miles in the presidency, Gujarat has got only about 800 miles. Compare this with the Deccan—I do not grudge the Deccan its length of provincial roads—which has a total mileage of provincial roads of 5,400. My only object is to bring this disparity to the notice of the Honourable Minister who must have noticed the condition of roads in Gujarat, as he hails from there. Take also the instance of Surat, whose district local board has got a road mileage of about 500. The Surat district local board used to get a grant of one lakh of rupees a year, which comes to Rs. 200 per mile, for the maintenance and repairs of roads. It was then reduced to Rs. 86,000 in 1929-30; then to Rs. 76,000 in 1930-31; and during the current year to Rs. 46,000. From Rs. 200 per mile, it has now come down to less than Rs. 100 per mile. I maintain, therefore, Sir, that the district local boards have been very badly treated. The roads, Sir, are maintained for the benefit of the agriculturists and it is up to Government to see that the grants for roads are increased and not decreased.

In connection with the question of grants to district local boards for roads, there is another point which I wish to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister in charge. Recently his department has been fond of issuing circulars to district local boards, some of which it is not possible for the boards to carry out. I do not want to take the time of the House by giving the details of all the circulars, but I will cite one. A circular has been issued to the boards saying that estimates and programmes for works of communications should be submitted to the Executive Engineer of the District monthly, so that the Executive Engineer might report on the works. I do not mind the Executive Engineer or any big Government officer looking after the interests of the general tax-payer by seeing to it that the money is properly spent. But the Executive Engineer will ask his sub-overseer, who may be drawing Rs. 150 or Rs. 100 per month, to inspect the works carried out by the qualified engineers of the district local board. Is this a position that the Honourable Minister in charge would like? The qualified engineers of the district local boards would not like their works being scrutinized and criticised by the sub-overseers of the Public Works Department. Moreover, Sir, as I said, there are certain directions given in Government circulars and orders which it is not possible for the board to carry out. It is no use issuing orders and circulars which it will not be possible for the board to carry out. Such orders will hamper the progress of works and lead ultimately to the grants lapsing. Recently there is a tendency on the part of the Local Self-Government Department to interfere more and more in the administration of the district local boards. If they have no confidence in the district local boards and think that they are not efficient and capable enough to carry on their administration, I would prefer Government taking back the administration from the district local boards to their interfering at every stage with the details with which the boards are primarily concerned. This cut pertains to the grants-in-aid given to the local boards, and, therefore, I am not going to deal with other subjects which I propose to take up later on. I would only impress on the Honourable Minister that the cutting down of the grants-in-aid for the maintenance and repairs of communications is not a judicious and wise step. The roads will go from bad to worse as the years go on, and, ultimately, future Governments will have to spend greater sums of money than now to repair them. Government always ask for our co-operation in the passage of taxation Bills. But what are we to say to the people whom we represent if they tell us, "The reward for your going to co-operate with Government is that the grants which stood at 19 lakhs in the year 1921-22 have been reduced to 8 lakhs, more than 120 per cent.?" The Honourable the Finance Member says that the cut has been proportionate. I am very much surprised that the Honourable Minister in charge of this department did not press forward his claim strongly and firmly. Perhaps he did not look into the point very seriously: if he had done so, I am sure he would have stood firmly on this question.

With these words, I move my cut.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City): Sir, I support the cut moved by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik. I find that the grants-in-aid have been reduced from Rs. 19 lakhs to 16 lakhs, then to 11 lakhs and again to 8½ lakhs in 1932-33. When the grants were 19 lakhs, Sind got 4 lakhs; when they were 16 lakhs, Sind got 3; when they were 11 lakhs, Sind's portion was only Rs. 2,15,000; and we do not know what Sind is going to get when the grant is being reduced to 8½ lakhs. The Karachi district local board got Rs. 39,000 when the grant was 19 lakhs, Rs. 27,000 when it was 16 lakhs and Rs. 18,000 when it was 11 lakhs and what it is going to get now we do not know. The total length of District Local Board roads in Karachi District is about 1,700 miles, and the grant which the Government gave last year is not even Rs. 10 per mile. With this grant, how can you expect the local bodies to keep the roads in a good condition? Government receive wheel tax, petrol tax and so many other taxes from Sind. Why should they not spend the whole amount on the improvement of roads? The best remedy for all these ills is to separate Sind from the Presidency. It is nearly now 5 years that I have been complaining about the condition of roads in Sind and inadequacy of provision of funds for improvements and maintenance. The last Honourable Minister when told about these had replied that it was for want of metal that in Sind it was so. But I had informed him half of the Western Sind possessed quarries all along and everywhere and that it was only an excuse for not doing anything for Sind. The petrol tax has provided Bombay Government with Rs. 56 lakhs, out of which Sind received only Rs. 6·52 lakhs. Major portion, Rs. 3·76 lakhs, was spent on improvements to Kotri Railway bridge only. It leaves only Rs. 2·76 lakhs out of Rs. 56 lakhs for Sind roads. What an injustice? It is quite clear from this that Government officers do not intend doing anything for Sind roads.

The province of Sind has been entrusted to the care of P. W. D. officers, and they spend lakhs of rupees yearly on the construction of motor roads by widening bunds on the Indus river and canals. Formerly these bund tops used to be 6 to 8 feet. Now the P. W. D. officers have constructed bund tops measuring from 10 to 12 feet. If they can spare lakhs of rupees on the construction of these bund roads for use of officers only, why should they not allot a proportionate amount for the improvement of other public roads? These bund roads are not open to the public. They are to be used only by officers and recently Members of the Council have been allowed to ply their cars on them. What sin have the public of Sind committed to be prevented from using these bund roads when they pay for them and roads are enjoyed by officers only? I hope the Honourable Minister will reply to these questions and do the needful.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, in response to the appeal of the honourable member who spoke last, I would like to make a few observations. I must admit that this grant has been cut down from 19 lakhs to 16 lakhs, from 16 to 11, and now from 11 to 8 lakhs. But regarding this accusation against Government that they have not proportionately cut down the grants for roads, I must explain. This grant appears under 41, Civil Works, which is in charge of the Honourable Minister for Roads and Buildings, and the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government is not concerned with it. But if honourable members see the grant under 41, Civil Works, they will find that there has been a proportionate cut in that grant also. Again, if honourable members scrutinise and see what Government have provided for their roads and buildings, which are worth crores of rupees, they will find that it is only Rs. 36 lakhs for the whole Presidency. It used to be—I am speaking from memory—Rs. 54 or 55 lakhs formerly. Honourable members will therefore see that there has been a proportionate cut under both heads. Under one head, it has been reduced from 11 lakhs to 8½ lakhs; under the other, it has been reduced from 54 to 36 lakhs.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : It has been reduced from 19 to 8½ lakhs.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : We are talking of the last figure. Honourable members will now see that the cut has been proportionate. Government have not got money enough even to maintain their own valuable buildings and roads.

The argument which the honourable member from Surat (Rao Bahadur Naik) advanced, namely, that the local board roads would go out of repair, applies also to Government roads as well as to Government buildings. However, I admit that the demand is a reasonable one, and I shall request the Honourable the Finance Member—who is not here now—to try to increase that grant as soon as we get a windfall.

Rao Bahadur S. N. ANGADI : I hope the Honourable the Leader of the House will not forget to inform him.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : As regards the roads in Sind, the Honourable Minister in charge will reply to the complaint made by the honourable member Mr. Baloch. But I will reply to his complaint about bunds. I have myself seen those bunds. They are kacha bunds. They are maintained by the Public Works Department for the purpose of inspection and not for joy rides. If we had no bunds, we would require more establishment. Otherwise, how could we go on inspecting the canals ? We have, as a special case, given permission to honourable members of this House to use those bunds. If we allow everybody to use them, they will soon get out of order. That means the Council will have to give us more money for maintaining them. In the interests of economy, we are not allowing every one to use them. If honourable members undertake to give us a larger amount, we will keep them open for the public. But that will interfere with the inspection work.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH : Title-holders are allowed to use them.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : And all of you gentlemen come in.

Once again, I assure the House on behalf of Government that Government will seriously reconsider this question.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH (Sukkur District) : Sir, one grievance of district local boards, not only in the Presidency but in Sind, is regarding the policy of Government in interfering with the administration of the district local boards. Recently, Government have issued a Resolution whereby they have allowed officers of the Public Works Department in Sind to inspect the works of local boards. Well, Sir, the spirit in which Government have issued the Resolution is commendable and laudable. But the question is whether it is practicable for the staff of the Public Works Department to supervise the work of the local boards. The grant to local boards is very meagre. Each district local board gets Rs. 30,000 or Rs. 40,000. This grant is utilised for the purpose of spreading grass on the roads—Rs. 5 here, Rs. 10 there and so on. Now, in the beginning of every month, the district local board has to send returns to the Public Works Department. When the officers come to inspect the work, there is nothing to inspect. The Public Works Department officers do not know what work was done; they only come and have a look at the roads. Secondly, it is not possible to know whether 100 bundles of grass were spread at a particular place or whether 10 bundles were spread. Even if the officers were to know it, we are not able to understand what use it will be to Government. The argument might be advanced that there might be some leakage which might be stopped by the Public Works Department officers.

Rao Bahadur S. N. ANGADI : There is greater leakage in the Public Works Department.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH : That is exactly the point. There are black sheep in every department of Government. I do not say that the staff of the local board is above board. Local boards are in the same position as Government themselves in this respect. But the non-official office-bearers—presidents, vice-presidents, presidents of taluka local boards, vice-presidents, managing committees of taluka local boards—all these are in a better position to know the facts and stop any leakage. But Government have only got their officers—Executive Engineers, Sub-Divisional Officers, Overseers, etc. If there is any leakage in expenditure incurred by Government, how can Government detect it ? There is no supervision at all. In the case of local boards there is strict supervision. Big officers of the Public Works Department like Superintending Engineers, Chief Engineers and so on, come only once a year. But even if they come, they do not check the work ; they are not supposed to check it. [Interruption.] I do not say that. They do not check the work. Therefore, what is the use of asking the district local board to send returns every month to the Public Works Department ? Moreover, the local board has to engage extra staff. It is not possible to check works costing Rs. 1,000 or Rs. 2,000. Extra staff has to be engaged to prepare these returns. That is one grievance. If these returns were going to serve some useful purpose, then we would have said, " All right ; let us give Government some satisfaction." But if Government are not going to trust their own district local boards, then I would say that it is much better that we should have no reforms. It is much better that we should have no district local boards, if Government cannot trust their own corporations. [Interruption.]

[Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh]

I now come to another point, namely, the question of the treatment which is meted out to district local boards. There are certain roads which are known as provincial roads. Some portions of provincial roads are maintained by Government and some portions are maintained by district local boards. That is to say, some of the provincial roads are transferred to district local boards. They do not vest in the local boards, but for the sake of maintenance, they are transferred to the local boards. Now, the amount that is spent on provincial roads maintained by Government, though they are kacha roads, varies between Rs. 300 to Rs. 500 per mile, whereas the amount of grant to district local boards for maintaining the provincial roads transferred to them is between Rs. 15 to Rs. 20 per mile. If there is any criticism about the condition of the roads it should be faced by the local boards. On that question I made a representation to Government, suggesting that the best thing for the Government to do would be to take back these provincial roads from the local boards, or that the grant given to the district local boards should be the same as that given to the Public Works Department. To that representation I received a reply from Government that they cannot afford to continue this grant.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI : What else could you expect ?

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH : This is the treatment that is meted out to the district local boards not in Sind only, but all over the Presidency.

Another grievance which my honourable friend Mr. Baloch just made was that the inspection paths should be opened to the public. The Honourable the General Member replied that we would in that case require more establishment to maintain those inspection paths and bunds. It is true that Government may have to spend more money, but it will pay Government in an indirect form, because certain tracts in Sind are not being properly cultivated at present for want of communications. The district local board has got no money to maintain them, Government cannot afford to do so, and therefore the best thing would be to open these inspection paths to the public. In the past it was customary for such inspection paths to be left open to the public and the left bank inspection path was always open to the public when there were camels and tongas, but after the introduction of motor traffic, naturally the right bank of the canal has been made motorable and it is open now only either to the officers of the Public Works Department, or Government gazetted officers or title-holders and members of this honourable House. If that statement is not contradicted that these inspection paths were open in the past to the public, then I see no reason why the inspection paths should not be put in proper order—I mean the left bank of the canal—and allowed to the public. In the Punjab, Sir, the banks of the canals are open to the public. When at every stage, the Government of Bombay make comparison (when it suits them) with the Punjab Government and point out that they themselves have so much establishment and have so much expenditure as compared with the Punjab Government, I see no reason why in this particular instance, Government should not follow the Government of the Punjab.

With these few remarks, I support the cut moved by my honourable friend.

Sir SHAH NAWAZ BHUTTO (Larkana District): Sir, I also would like to record my protest by associating myself with previous speakers. It is possible that most of the honourable members concerned with district local boards may not be fully aware how this Government Resolution came into existence. One junior officer, unfortunately, who did not have enough experience of the working of the local boards, how they managed to put particular roads in fine order on special occasions when high officials are to pass on them or even of administration, when he went about touring in his division did not find the same comfort that special repairs provide, he took it into his head that money was not properly spent, and so he made a reference to Government through his superior officials and suggested that this kind of check is necessary. When the opinions of the district local boards were invited on his suggestion, I for one suggested to Government—at least I made the recommendation—that it would be nothing short of a scandal if works done and supervised by district local board officials, who are almost as responsible as Executive Engineers or Assistant Executive Engineers, should be open to criticism by a petty sub-overseer. It is not possible for an Executive Engineer or even for an Assistant Executive Engineer to go about inspecting works worth Rs. 200 or even Rs. 500, as, according to the limits laid down by the Public Works Department themselves, the Executive Engineer only inspects work of the value of 5 or 10 thousand rupees. I am not quite positive about this, but my honourable friends may be knowing a good deal more about this, namely, that works costing Rs. 200 or under Rs. 500 are inspected only by the petty subordinate officials such as sub-overseers. I submitted my own views that it would be better for the district local board to let Public Works Department officials carry out repairs of roads and other works out of the grant received from the Government. Would Government be prepared to spend money on construction and maintenance of roads and to make their own officials obtain a certificate from the district local board? I would like to know how Government officials would feel if they were put in that position. I believe they would not consent to it.

I just took charge the day before I left Larkana for the Council session, and before I left I understood that my district local board has refused to provide all the copies of estimates that are called for every month. To prepare copies of plans and estimates for these small works, they will have to employ three or four additional clerks which district local boards cannot afford to do. They have asked the Public Works Department to send their own staff to the district local board office to copy out these estimates and other details because the district local board is not in a position to comply with it. I understand, however, that some of the Executive Engineers have reported to their own superiors or to the Commissioner in Sind that it is not practicable at all to carry out the Government Resolution under these circumstances, as they have not got the requisite establishment to send to district local board offices for the work of collecting all these details. Under these circumstances, it is just reasonable that the Honourable Minister should see his way to have this absurd Government Resolution cancelled as soon as possible. Nobody objects to control if some practicable method is suggested.

As for the grants, even my district local board some years back received about Rs. 1,09,000, but during the last three years it has been gradually reduced out of all proportion; last year we received Rs. 35,000 to Rs. 38,000. We have got about 1,600 miles of roads and every time any high officials of Government such as Honourable Ministers or Executive Councillors have gone about on my roads, they have given preference to these roads over the roads maintained by the Public Works Department. What an anomaly that we can maintain these roads by spending only 100 rupees a mile while it costs the Public Works Department five hundred rupees! That is a department where there is considerable leakage and Government should at least now open their eyes and be more careful if they are serious to effect savings. If they are really keen to stop leakage, that is the department which needs effective control. It is certainly distressing that the roads which, with the help of Government, we have spent lakhs and lakhs of rupees on are now going from bad to worse and it will not be possible, without spending huge sums, to bring them up to a condition in which they are now, when better days return, if they are once allowed to go bad. It will be very hard on the district local boards if Government continue their miserly policy towards the grants which are made to district local boards, which are more or less dependent on these Government grants to maintain them in order.

With these words, I fully associate myself with the remarks made by the honourable members who have preceded me.

Rao Bahadur S. N. ANGADI (Belgaum District): Sir, I do not wish to make a very long speech, but I would like to point out that I am partly amused and partly provoked by the kind of circular which has been recently issued. I say that the Public Works Department should be the last department to be entrusted with the work of inspecting works done by district local boards. It is notorious that the Public Works Department is the worst manager of its own works. I found, and it will be found, that even the establishment charges of the Public Works Department are infinitely higher than the establishment charges of the district local boards. That is a matter of common experience and every one knows that the Public Works Department has been very extravagant and its extravagance is being criticised very often here and, as I pointed out, if there is any leakage, it is in the Public Works Department itself and instead of a circular being issued to the district local boards in this fashion, I should have expected Government to issue a circular to the Public Works Department to have their roads inspected by the engineers of the district local boards. That would be a good thing to show how economical the district local board engineers are and how extravagant their own people are. I have seen many Public Works Department roads and I find that there is an expenditure of Rs. 500 on maintenance of metalled roads, and if such roads are compared with those prepared by the district local boards, one would be simply staggered, and I can assure this House that if this sum of Rs. 500 is spent on district local board roads, I might guarantee that our roads would be absolutely better than the roads in the possession of the Public Works Department. I know, of course, that for swelling the charges the highly paid officers are also to a certain extent responsible, but even apart from that I do find that the Public Works Department's administration is certainly far less satisfactory than that of the district local boards.

Why I said that I was partly provoked was that, as was pointed out by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik, you cannot expect an Executive Engineer to go and see every little work done by the district local board and that the only men whom he would find it possible to send around to go and see these small works would be the sub-overseers or some one who is superior to the sub-overseers. When the district local boards are maintaining engineers on Rs. 500 or Rs. 600 or Rs. 700 or Rs. 800, do you want your overseers or sub-overseers drawing Rs. 100 or so to go and inspect the work done by the district local board engineers ? If Government have a sense of prestige, does not the district local board also have a sense of prestige ? Or is it that the district local boards are supposed to have no prestige, and no self-respect and no pride ? This ought to be understood by Government. At any rate, it is not that only from this stand-point I criticise this particular circular. It is absurd to ask the Public Works Department's sub-overseers to go and inspect work done by the district local board engineers. So I think the sooner the Honourable Minister sees his way to withdraw the circular, the better for him and better for the Government.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District): Sir, I associate myself with the feelings given expression to by my honourable colleagues who represent district local boards here. You will, Sir, excuse me if I cannot avoid a little repetition of arguments because it has become so necessary to impress upon the minds of Government who are always adamantine to the demands of local bodies and they want always to impose their own wish upon the local bodies——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: A method must now be found out to do without repetition of arguments.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH: We have just listened to speeches by honourable members coming from the Presidency to the effect that it is possible for local boards to carry on their work efficiently without supervision by Government officers. Lest it should be said that it is only from a particular quarter that they are receiving complaints and not from others, I can even quote instances by which I can show the comparatively low prices that we have incurred for the maintenance of our roads. I have just constructed a road of 7 miles across Ganja Hill just close to Hyderabad town and it cost me only Rs. 400 and, although it was rocky, I have made it so nice as compared with the road constructed by the Public Works Department that the Executive Engineer, who had only a couple of months before criticised my administration severely, came and saw it and gave me a compliment by calling it a Royal Road.

Apart from the principle of local self-government under which we are carrying on our institutions, it is even impracticable to impose this condition upon us that we should supply Government departments with innumerable estimates that we prepare for minor works. There are classifications under which work of Rs. 500 has to be inspected by a sub-overseer, work of Rs. 1,000 by a particular sub-divisional officer and work of Rs. 5,000 by Executive Engineer and so on, but under the district local board the engineer carries out all works, small or big, and it is certainly preposterous that work done by our duly qualified engineers should be inspected by Government officials of the status of sub-overseers, especially where our engineers are of the same status as the Executive Engineers of the Public Works Department. So that, I would earnestly urge upon the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government that, as early as possible, he should withdraw this circular, which is not practicable and which is creating any amount of discontent and resentment in the minds of the local bodies all over the Presidency.

Rao Bahadur S. K. BOLE: Sir, I am not a member of any district local board. So I had no intention of participating in the debate, but it is said that there is much leakage in the Public Works Department. I admit that, but I say there is some leakage in the district local boards also; and the way in which the district local boards are constructing their roads is very peculiar. I shall cite one instance. In the Alibag Taluka of the Kolaba District, there is a road which is called the "javai" road, because the road was constructed for the convenience of the son-in-law of the gentleman who happened to be the President of the Taluka Local Board of Alibag at the time. That road was not wanted by the public; still, it has been constructed. In this way the presidents of district local boards and taluka local boards are having the roads constructed. Sir, there is a village called Thal in the Kolaba District. There are two roads there. Sanction has to be given by the district local board to the taluka local board for the construction of the roads. One road leads through the locality of the advanced classes and the other road leads through the locality of the masses. More grants are given to that road which leads through the locality of the advanced classes.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH: Is all this relevant, Sir? It has nothing to do with the point under discussion.

Rao Bahadur S. K. BOLE: What I am saying is relevant. When they criticise the Public Works Department, I am entitled to criticise the expenditure of the local boards on roads. There may be more leakage in the Public Works Department, because it is a vast Department, but it must be admitted that there is some leakage in the local boards also.

Sir, when the people of Thal village ask for a grant for the road leading through the locality of the masses, only meagre grants are provided for it; their requests are not heeded. In this way some of the district local boards are carrying on their business.

I want to draw the attention of the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government to one other thing. I am told that sub-overseers get Rs. 100 salary. I do not know what the overseer gets, but if an inventory is made of the properties that are made by some of these overseers and sub-overseers in the districts, it will be seen what amount of wealth they possess.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: These remarks are more relevant to the general discussion.

Rao Bahadur S. K. BOLE: I have brought it to the notice of the Honourable Minister.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: This is the season for leakage.

Rao Bahadur S. K. BOLE: With these remarks, Sir, I resume my seat.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, I have had 12 years' connection with the local boards, and I know the manner and the enthusiasm and keenness with which the members are attempting to do the local board work. But I would agree that some sort of outside inspection and control by the Government is essentially necessary. Of course, it is true that the inspection may be done by officers of sufficiently high rank, and should not be entrusted to overseers of low rank. As far as my experience goes such inspection has generally been found to be wholesome and helpful though there are stray cases in which the inspection has degenerated into interference, but these are rare cases, and I do not think it has caused much trouble to the district local boards at least in the Northern Division. I do not know what the experience of my honourable friends from Sind is, but as far as the Northern Division is concerned, I do not know of any such instances where there was any trouble on account of this inspection.

Sir, I support the honourable mover of the motion, Rao Bahadur Naik, in his protest against the rather unjust treatment that is given to the Northern Division in the matter of the grant for roads. Government should at least hold the balance even and pay sufficient grant to the Northern Division, at least in proportion to the high amount of land assessment which the Northern Division pays, granting that the roads are made for the convenience of the agriculturists who directly pay these assessments. If we scrutinise these figures, it would appear that the

Northern Division has always been paid less than its due, and I trust that Government will look to these inequities and try to set matters right.

As far as the general administration of these roads is concerned, it is no doubt true that the management of roads by the local bodies has been more economical than management by the Public Works Department and hence the interference of the Public Works Department should be avoided as far as possible. With these words, I support the protests raised by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL rose.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable mover of the motion has the right to reply. If the Honourable Minister is going to wind up the debate, then a chance must be given to the honourable mover of the motion.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I have nothing much to say in reply to the various criticisms offered by honourable members from the mofussil. But I should like to take up the thread of the argument of the Honourable the Leader of the House. He said that there is also a reduction in the grants for provincial roads. I do admit that there is a reduction in the grant for provincial roads. Let us take the year 1930-31. The grant to provincial roads in that year was Rs. 50,00,000, and this year it is about Rs. 37,00,000. Let us, on the other hand, take the grants to local boards. In 1930-31 the amount was Rs. 16,00,000, and it has now been reduced to Rs. 8,45,000. In one case the reduction is from Rs. 50,00,000 to Rs. 37,00,000, and in the other case it is from Rs. 16,00,000 to Rs. 8,45,000. I therefore maintain that the reduction in the grants to provincial roads and to district local boards is not in equal proportion. Moreover, even at the reduced grants which are allocated for the ensuing year for provincial roads, it comes to Rs. 500 per mile for metalled roads and Rs. 150 per mile for unmetalled roads, whereas the reduced grant to the local boards gives us Rs. 100 a mile for metalled roads and Rs. 30 a mile for unmetalled roads. I again repeat it, in districts like Surat and Broach, where there is black soil, where there is no metal available, I ask will even the Chief Engineer in Sind (Sir Charlton Harrison) be able to repair a metalled road at Rs. 100 a mile ? So, there is a reduction in the grants, but the reduction is not proportionate in both the cases. Therefore, the reduced grant to the local boards should be immediately restored by finding out another 8 lakhs. In a big budget of 14 crores for the Presidency, if Government will take upon themselves to make up this grant, I am quite sure they will be able to find the 8 lakhs from somewhere.

Sir, I do not deny the right of Government to inspect the local board works. I admit that the expenditure of the taxpayers' money should be properly looked after. Perhaps, my honourable friend from Kaira did not follow me on this point. He has got a very long connection with the district local board there, and with due deference, I say we have no objection to the inspection by Government engineers, or even by higher officers of Government. But the circulars which have been issued are absurd in themselves. They want every month the estimates of all the works that are being carried out by the taluka and district local boards and the progress reports of those works to be submitted to the Executive Engineer. Sir, these roads are not being constructed out of only Government funds. The district local boards have also to provide certain funds of their own for the purpose, and therefore I say some of these circulars are absurd, which, with all their care and caution, no district local board will be able to carry out. I think it has rightly been pointed out by some of the honourable members from Sind that this is very much resented. No self-respecting president of a district local board would swallow such circulars as have recently been issued, nor would a qualified engineer put up with such things. It is not the sub-overseers alone who will inspect the works, but even mistries will do it, where the Public Works Department engineer has no time to do it; and what will the engineer do? He will say ditto to what the road clerk, or the mistry, or the sub-overseer has to say. Therefore, I say these circulars should be withdrawn. Moreover, it causes unnecessary interference and delay in the execution of works. There should not be any unnecessary interference, so far as the district local boards are concerned. As I say, as far as the expenditure of the taxpayers' money is concerned, Government have every right to watch over it. I do not say that there is no leakage in the district local boards. There may be some leakage,—it is in every department; but I think the district local boards are more economical than the Public Works Department. There is no doubt about it at all. As an experimental measure, let Government give over some of their roads to the district local boards, who maintain their qualified engineers, for a couple of years and see how these roads are maintained more economically.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: Sir, I can assure this honourable House that there can hardly be anybody present here who is more keen than myself to see the cut of Rs. 3,00,000 restored in the grant to local bodies for the maintenance and repairs of roads. In fact, when this question of retrenchment in general was under the consideration of Government some months ago, I had made a very strong minute, pointing out the great desirability of reducing no further this particular grant, and I think that I had made out then a much stronger case than my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai Naik is able to do to-day. And, Sir, having been very intimately associated for many years with the district local boards and their administration, no representation on this particular occasion from the members of the district local boards and no criticism or commentary, however convincing it may be, and no appeal to the Government's sense of fairness and equity are necessary—I can assure this honourable House —to awaken me to the realisation of the fact that the financial resources of the district local boards are very limited, very inadequate to meet their ordinary needs and requirements without the Government's grant-in-aid. In fact, I can also admit that this cut on the top of the cessation of boring operation activities is really very hard. But this honourable

[Sirdar Sir Rustom Jehangir Vakil]

House has to look to the other side of the question also. During the last decade all the departments of Government have been thrice retrenched. Recently the Honourable the Finance Member, on behalf of the Government, appointed the Retrenchment Committee. They have done their little bit. After that, Government of their own accord effected very appreciable retrenchments which were not contemplated or which were not possible for the Retrenchment Committee to do. After that, Government passed general orders to reduce the expenditure to the extent of 10 per cent. on establishment. Even then, as you have already been informed by the Honourable the Finance Member, we have not been able to balance our budget, with the result that several money Bills which are on the anvil now have had to be restored to. Assuming for argument's sake that all these money Bills get the sanction of authority of this honourable House and passed into law, even then we are told by the Honourable the Finance Member there is going to be a great deficit. In the Retrenchment Committee's Report on page 16, Public Works Department, we stated :

"We have given this subject much thought. It would seem that, as financial considerations have greatly reduced the number of new works which can be taken up there should be a corresponding decrease in the establishment charges and in the total expenditure."

This is on page 17.

"We are agreed that it should not be less than 14 lakhs."

They are referring to a cut.

"The cut may be found not only by the discharge of establishments but by reduction of grants for repairs both of the Irrigation and Road and Building branches of the department. We know that certain risks will be run in reducing the maintenance grant for canals and that too long postponement of repairs to roads and buildings must involve heavier charges in the future. We consider .....that this risk should be faced."

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Has the Retrenchment Committee recommended reduction in the grants to local bodies ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL : Not to local bodies. What I am trying to make out is that even at the risk of loss of efficiency, even at the risk of increased expenditure in future years, the Retrenchment Committee has recommended that certain risks ought to be undertaken by Government and have proposed a cut of 14 lakhs of rupees. Is it not then fair that the district local boards also must try and retrench their expenditure even at some risk ? That is my point. If they did that, probably this cut of 3 lakhs of rupees may not cause them as great hardship as they seem to think it would.

Sir SHAH NAWAZ BHUTTO : Within the last three years the cut amounted to Rs. 11 lakhs.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL : We are considering only the last 12 months.

In spite of all the efforts on the part of Government to effect all possible retrenchment, this honourable House has been clamouring for further retrenchment. You, Sir, will admit that unmistakable outbreaks of zeal and enthusiasm for retrenchment at any cost have occurred in this House. Now, what do we see to-day? We are told that we are parsimonious, we ought to spend more than what we are doing. I can assure this honourable House that, though it is not possible to get any money from the Honourable the Finance Member to bridge this gulf, I shall try my very best, I will watch the position, and will seize the first opportunity of re-opening the question with a view to see whether any more money could be got, so that I may be able to contribute towards making up this cut of 3 lakhs of rupees.

Sir, with regard to Sind, I must confess my ignorance of that beautiful country. I did make up my mind to visit Sind about three months ago, because I had recognised the great advantages of visiting this place and making acquaintance with the people on the spot; but this very question of retrenchment came in my way and I had to give up the idea of visiting Sind. But I shall take the first opportunity of visiting Sind, after which I hope I may be able to render a better account of myself than I am able to do in connection with all questions pertaining to the province of Sind. [Rao Bahadur S. K. Bole: Before separation.]

There has been a complaint with regard to the interference on the part of Government, so far as supervision is concerned. The honourable members who complained must realise that so long as Government continue to contribute any amount towards the maintenance and repairs grants, they are entitled to have a certain amount of supervision, in order to see that the money which they give is well spent. I do not think there can be any resentment on the part of district local board authorities for legitimate supervision which Government should and will exercise at all times. If this kind of supervision is really an interference, as it is made out by some honourable members, then certainly it is desirable that the man in charge ought to look into the matter. I promise to go through the resolution again and see whether the interpretation that some honourable members of this House put upon it is possible, in which case I can assure this honourable House that the resolution would be suitably modified.

With regard to the handing over of Government roads to the district local boards, I may assure this honourable House that this recommendation also of the Retrenchment Committee is receiving consideration at the hands of Government. In view of this explanation that I have been able to tender and in view of the assurance which I have given this honourable House, I may be permitted to hope that the honourable mover will be good enough not to press this cut.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: In view of the sympathetic reply given by the Honourable Minister, I wish to withdraw my motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I must inform honourable members, perhaps they are aware, that the discussion under this head will go on till 5-12 this evening. There are yet a few more cuts, some of which may not be moved. Those honourable members who wish to move their motions must understand that the question must be put at 5-12.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District) : Sir, I beg to move :

"Reduce by 5 lakhs—Total Demand—Rs. 1,27,77,000 (B. Page 12)."

The whole demand is for Rs. 1,27,77,000—partly Reserved and partly Transferred. In moving this cut of 5 lakhs I wish to bring to the notice of this House that the expenditure on the Public Works Department including Irrigation and Civil Works is too high and it is quite possible to reduce it by 5 lakhs. No doubt, the Honourable Minister just now told this House that there is a great enthusiasm on the one hand for retrenchment and on the other hand there is a complaint that certain reductions in the grants to the local bodies have been made and so more money should be found out. That would apparently seem inconsistent. The whole situation arises because right sort of retrenchment has not been made. Wherever retrenchment is possible, it has not been cared for at all ; wherever retrenchment is not possible, there it has been made. From this point of view I am going to place before the House certain considerations. With regard to this, Sir, I will point out that the expenditure on original works and repairs has been considerably reduced. Compared to this reduction the charges for establishment are very heavy. So, it is quite possible, at least for some years to come, to keep a less costly establishment.

I am also going to say that certain other reductions can be made with regard to various other items ; for instance, tools and plant. Up to the year 1926-27 on tools and plant only 1½ per cent. was charged ; now the practice is to charge 3 per cent. on tools and plants. So also, the expenditure on establishment. Up to a certain year, the charge was 21 per cent. ; recently it was increased to 24 per cent. I am here speaking of the average. In individual circles and individual works, it is probably more, and in some cases abnormally high. We were reminded in this House the other day about the fallacy of averages and per capita figures. In this case, the Public Works Department have slipped into this fallacy ; they have been budgeting for heavier establishments than are necessary. I will take first "41, Civil Works." At page 4 of the Civil Works Budget Estimate, you will find that the provision for "Original works in progress and new works," including "Communications" is only Rs. 20,82,700, and that for "Repairs" Rs. 36,99,000. The total is about 57 lakhs. Just below that, the provision for establishment is shown as Rs. 31,33,000. So the cost of establishment on works costing 57 lakhs is 31 lakhs.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Has the honourable member seen the foot-note ?

Mr. V. N. JOG : Even taking Rs. 3,82,000 shown in the foot-note, it comes to 27 lakhs or 28 lakhs. So, taking only Civil Works, the establishment cost comes to more than 50 per cent. The average cost of establishment should on the other hand only be 24 per cent. To meet this argument they may say that the establishment carried under Civil Works is the residue left after apportioning the cost to other major works under XIII, 55-Irrigation, etc., and that is why it works out to a higher figure than 25 per cent. Even taking that into consideration, I will just beg the attention of the House to page 46 (Civil Works Budget Estimate), where the figures of establishment for Roads and Buildings and for Irrigation from 1921-22 up to 1930-31 are given. It will be seen that the establishment expenditure on Roads and Buildings was 19·26 per cent. of the total outlay on works and repairs; it went up to 24·96 in 1927-28, when the rule that 24 per cent. should be charged for establishment charges was made. The percentage went on rising to 25·03, 25·26 and in 1930-31, it was 32·35. My point is that the expenditure on establishment in the Roads and Buildings branch has gone on rising, and there is room for curtailment under this head. Then, you will be pleased to note why this 24 per cent. charge for establishment was made for the Irrigation branch. It seems to me it was because the average of the previous years was taken. The honourable member the Chief Engineer is laughing, but I will wait for his explanation if my reasoning is in any way faulty. I find from the table mentioned that from the year the construction of the Lloyd Barrage was begun, the cost of establishment charges under irrigation went up, due to the high salaries paid to the irrigation officers. In 1921-22, "Construction of Irrigation, Navigation, Embankment and Drainage Works" cost in establishment Rs. 11,53,734, and "Percentage on the total outlay on works and repairs in the Irrigation branch" was 33·59. "Total establishment charges" in the Irrigation branch in 1921-22 was Rs. 32,11,115; it went on increasing to 64 lakhs, 66 lakhs and so on, until it reached 69 lakhs in 1929-30. Compare then the percentage charges shown under Roads and Buildings with the percentage charges under Irrigation (columns 8 and 14 respectively). While the percentage charge under Roads and Buildings has been going up, the percentage charge under Irrigation has been going down, although the expenditure column under Roads and Buildings establishment has been going down instead of going up. The combined percentages of expenditure on establishment under Roads and Buildings and Irrigation have been in 1921-22, 24·26; 1922-23, 25·38; 1923-24, 25·87; 1924-25, 24·35; 1925-26, 21·23. These figures have remained more or less constant, and that is why 24 per cent. was taken as the average, I think. I submit, Sir, that this system of taking averages is faulty. In 1921-22, the average cost on establishment under Civil Works was only 19·26. I want to lay emphasis on this, because with the completion of the Lloyd Barrage and the reduction of the high cost of establishments under that head, the time has come to reconsider what percentage establishment under Public Works Department should bear to the total outlay on works and repairs. Just as it has been brought down on the irrigation side, it should also be brought down on the Civil Works side. No doubt, the reason for the higher percentages on the Civil Works side has been explained in the footnote. But there is also a sentence "The question of devising a more accurate formula to measure establishment charges is under consideration." The point I am making in moving this specific cut is this: Government have always been telling us that this question will be considered and attention paid to it, but for some reason or other the matter is being postponed and no serious attention is being paid to the real cut which has to be made.

During the discussion of the last item but one, which took place on Friday and Saturday, it was stated that Government had made considerable reduction in establishment. I have gone through the several figures, but I find that the reduction is not so very prominent as it was claimed to be. If you simply take the figures, there is a case made out that there is a reduction of about 8 lakhs. But what the Retrenchment Committee and the members on this side of the House meant by reduction was real reduction in establishment and not reduction in pay. I will show later that the reduction in establishment is very small. I will crave the indulgence of the House while I refer to page 45 of the Civil Works Budget Estimate. There Government say that 8 lakhs have been reduced; the Honourable the General Member also stated that 8 lakhs had been reduced. But you will find, Sir, that that reduction of 8 lakhs is not due to retrenchment in establishment but due to the cut in the pay by ten per cent. Paragraph 2 on page 45 gives the total net estimated cost of all Public Works Department establishment charges for 1932-33 as Rs. 90,01,100. Then it gives the various figures for the various years. Then there is a note under paragraph 3 which says:

"Even considering that the next year's demand is inclusive of the saving of about Rs. 7,21,000 resulting from the temporary cut in pay of establishment in this Department it compares very favourably with the budget and revised estimates for 1931-32 and actuals for 1930-31 and 1929-30."

It will look like a saving in establishment, but if we analyse the whole position, it is not really a saving in establishment. Rs. 7,21,000 have been saved by means of the cut of 10 per cent. and the remaining amount saved can be ascribed to the reduction of establishment in the sense in which the Retrenchment Committee and members of this House required. When large amounts were being spent on original works and communications, the maintenance of this establishment was justified. But now when there are no original works and there is no possibility for years to come to take up new works, there is no necessity of maintaining such a large establishment. Even up to this date so many temporary establishments have been maintained, and they naturally add to the expenditure on establishments.

Then, Sir, you will see that certain deductions have been made in sub-head 2 in paragraph 2 (page 45 of the Public Works Department Estimates). That shows that Government have not been getting what they used to get from other Governments, Departments, etc., for services rendered. A sum of Rs. 2,81,000 has to be deducted. Formerly the deduction amounted to Rs. 4,62,300 and the actuals for 1930-31 were 5 lakhs. But we have deducted only Rs. 2,81,000 for the coming year. That shows that we are not getting from the other departments and Governments what we used to get for services rendered to them. That possibility of our hands being used by other Governments or Departments has also disappeared. A note has been taken of this in paragraph 3 which says :

[Mr. V. N. Jog]

"The result would have been more favourable had the estimate of recoveries from other Governments, Departments, etc., for establishment charges on works carried out by this Department on their behalf not dwindled."

While other departments have been curtailing their programmes this Department has not seen its way to curtail its establishment charges on account of financial stringency. In this connection, I wish to bring to the notice of this House the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee. If you turn to page 17 of the final report, you will find that the total retrenchment which they had suggested was Rs. 14 lakhs. They also say in paragraph 46 (page 20) :

"The majority of the non-official members wish to put on record their opinion that no further reduction should be made in this grant (Grants to Local Bodies for Public Works)."

But we see that 3 lakhs have been cut down from the local board grants. On page 16 of the report they say :

"It would seem logical that, as financial considerations have greatly reduced the number of new works which can be taken up, there should be a corresponding decrease in the establishment charged and in the total expenditure."

The recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee that expenditure on further works should be curtailed has been accepted, but with regard to the corresponding decrease in expenditure in establishments, their recommendation has not been accepted.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI : Will the honourable member please read the next sentence ?

Mr. V. N. JOG : I have read that. It says :

"We are aware that there have been heavy reductions in establishment amounting to over Rs. 8 lakhs in the last few years and that the staff now in existence is claimed by the Department to be the minimum necessary to maintain the existing works."

So that is the case put forward by Government. But I have not been able to see that actually 8 lakhs have been curtailed from the year 1923-24 I went through the figures but I could not arrive at the figure of 8 lakhs. I will be very pleased if the other side shows that from the year 1923-24 up to date the total retrenchment in the expenditure on establishment is Rs. 8 lakhs—retrenchment in the sense the Retrenchment Committee meant it—in the personnel, leaving aside the cut of 10 per cent. in pay and the reductions in pensionary charges. I know how the figure is made up, and if anybody who goes through the figures is not careful enough, he is likely to be deceived. I have gone through these figures. I confess that I have not been able to arrive at this figure of 8 lakhs claimed by Government.

Now, pursuing the point from where I left it, I shall refer the House to Statement No. I which shows the action taken by Government on the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee. On page 29 of that statement you will find that they have reduced 14 lakhs under the head "Repairs". The whole amount saved is Rs. 20,97,400 which is made up thus :

	Rs.
Works in progress	3,17,700
New major works	1,24,700
Discretionary grants	2,54,000
Repairs	14,01,000

They reduced this 14 lakhs only under Repairs and not under Establishments. The statement also says :

"A total cut of Rs. 28,18,400 has been made of which Rs. 20,97,400 is under Civil Works and Rs. 7,21,000 is in Establishment."

Again, that will rather put us off our guard. The cut is not in establishments ; it is in pay.

I submit that the Government have not given effect to all the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee. The Retrenchment Committee of 1924 made various suggestions and only some of those suggestions have been accepted, but the suggestions with regard to the cutting down of the personnel have not to an appreciable extent been accepted. Government themselves had appointed an officer to go into this question. When the Retrenchment Committee of 1924 made certain suggestions, they were not acceptable to Government. Government appointed their own officer to go into the whole question, and one Mr. Shah was appointed. I do not want to take the time of this House. His report is very clear. He has suggested in all a cut of Rs. 11,77,000. You will find that on pages 105 and 106. He has also given a list of officers to be retrenched. Government are still considering the report. In this statement in the column headed "Action taken by Government" Government say that the reorganisation committee will go into this question. It simply means that they want to postpone action on the recommendations. They have got experts in their own department. If they seriously try I am sure that they can give effect to the recommendations, but, I submit, Sir, that the mentality has to be changed. Government are trying to find out a way to defend their own expenditure and they have no intention of exploring avenues of retrenchment. They are satisfied that the depression will last for some years to come and that we cannot find money enough to maintain this department. It is therefore time that they should effect some genuine retrenchment.

As you, Sir, have asked me to substantiate this cut without going into the question of policy, I will broadly suggest how the cut that I have suggested can be made. The total establishment charges including pensionary charges come to 90 lakhs. If establishment charges are reduced from 24 per cent. to 21 per cent. we get 2¼ lakhs. Then I come to the next item "Tools and Plant". The officer who was deputed to look into this question has stated that there must be a cut of 1½ per cent.—instead of 3 per cent. it should be brought down to 1½ per cent. I am reading from page 3 of Mr. Shah's recommendations:

"I have pointed out that the present reduction in tools and plant charges of 3 per cent. is double of what used to be accepted right till 1927 and in view of the fall in prices of tools and machinery, it is no longer justified. It is higher than that of some of the other provinces of India and should be brought down by strictest economy." I have suggested that the tools and plant charges which stand at about 5 lakhs per annum should be reduced by Rs. 2·34 lakhs by reducing the expenditure on carriage and repairs of tools and plant by 50 per cent., by reduction of expenditure on the other heads by 40 per cent. and by transfer of expenditure on office furniture from the tools and plants grant to the ordinary contingent grant of the various officers concerned."

This has not been done. There was also a suggestion that ·8 should be reduced. Even that it seems,—I am not certain—has not been done.

There is a note to which I would also like to refer in passing. The figures of tools and plant are given on page 47 of the Civil Works budget. An abstract is given there. No doubt, as Mr. Shah has found, it was Rs. 5,24,000. So, it is rather quite possible that an error may have crept in and that there is a reduction, but it is on account of the reduction in original works or reduction actually on communications, etc., that the whole of that has really come, and it is Rs. 3,47,000. At page 47, the note is:

"These amounts represent 3 per cent. on the provisions made for works and repairs."

So, practically there is no reduction at all——

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: From 5 lakhs to 3 lakhs.

Mr. V. N. JOG: That is because the original works have been reduced and therefore the percentage has been reduced but there has been no reduction of a real character in the cost percentage itself. I think I have made myself clear. What I suggest is that we can reduce this charge to 1½ per cent. as prices have fallen all round. The 1½ percentage was actually there till 1926-27. Owing to the post-war conditions there may have been a rise in prices, but those prices have gone down in various ways, and it is therefore quite possible to reduce this percentage still lower. The honourable member the Chief Engineer, Public Works Department, shakes his head and indicates that he does not agree to what I state, but here his own officer has gone into the question and has shown that it is quite possible and therefore if we can halve this figure of Rs. 3,47,000, we can get the figure of Rs. 1,73,500 a year. All that has been given at the end of Mr. Shah's report and Mr. Shah has come to the conclusion that a reduction of 11 lakhs is feasible, and my demand is only with respect to five lakhs. My demand I wanted to put at a cut of 10 lakhs, but I did not like to make such a heavy cut and therefore I have reduced it to half. If Government seriously think about this and if the Honourable Minister for the Transferred Department and the Honourable Member for the Reserved Department, who are both our own men, put their heads together, they can relieve the position of the Honourable the Finance Member who is sitting between the two now looking to the one and now to the other and wondering who will come to his aid, and in this way the Honourable the Finance Member will be relieved of some of his embarrassments.

[Mr. V. N. Jog]

The point which I wish to make again is that we can make enough reduction if we only have the will to do so. The answer may be given to us that this is only a matter of accounting and that it will not give us any real or appreciable reduction, but when we take out this money and lock it up here there is a general outcry that the other departments are not getting sufficient money. Therefore, if we can relieve some of this burden and effect some saving, then, I submit, Sir, the grievances of the other departments could be certainly removed. I will quote only one instance to show how and where savings are possible. It has been said up to this time that charges on the Irrigation Department are being increased on some excuse or other. In the pensionary charges up to this time in the Irrigation Department they were charging 14 per cent. and there were charges for allowances and pension charges, superannuation charges. This is what appears on page 45 :—

"The rate of adjustment was 14 per cent. till now. This rate was considered excessive and hence the Government of India have directed that it should be decided with reference to the rate of interest on the loan taken from that Government in a particular year."

Why I am laying stress on this matter of accounts is that if these departments are given more money than they require then as was complained by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Angadi, there is bound to be leakage. There are leakages in every department, but we must try to see that the scope for leakage is reduced——

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : How can we infringe the orders of the Government of India ?

Mr. V. N. JOG : You may represent to the Government of India that this rate is considered excessive, as that Government have directed that it should be decided with reference to the rate of interest on the loan taken from that Government in a particular year.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : We were first asked to provide 14 per cent., and now we have been asked to lower it, and therefore we are charging 7½ per cent.

Mr. V. N. JOG : The Government of Bombay can make out a case again for still further reducing it. May I enquire whether the Government of Bombay are paying 7·25 per cent. ? Is it not 6 or 6·5 per cent. in certain cases ? Still Government wants to tax this province with 7·25 per cent., i.e. one per cent. more.

Mr. C. G. FREKE : Sir, may I explain ? The percentage which is debited to the Irrigation Department is dependent upon the rate of loan money, but it is not at all the same. If the rate of loan money rises, the pensionary charge falls. It depends also upon the life-tables upon which actuarial calculations are based. A pensionary charge is the amount set aside such that, accumulating at compound interest, it will, at the end of a man's service, be sufficient to provide his pension, and consequently, if the rate of interest rises, the amount which you have to set aside each year falls and vice versa. It is not at all the same as the rate of interest charged upon the loan money. The reason for the change is also a revision of the life-tables.

Mr. V. N. JOG : This 7·25 per cent. is an average.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN : It is not the rate of interest at all. It is based upon the life-tables.

Mr. V. N. JOG : The Government say " the rate of interest on the loan taken from that Government in a particular year." My point is, has the Government of India up to this time charged more than 7 per cent. or more than 6½ per cent. interest ?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN : That is not the rate of interest.

Mr. V. N. JOG : I would only say in passing that if you say that you cannot reduce the permanent establishment, you may at least reduce the temporary establishment which I see mentioned on almost every page. I particularly refer to temporary establishments on pages 17-18, 28 and 29, which can certainly be cut in half. If you make a reduction there, you may be able to get some money there.

I believe I have sufficiently shown how I came to this 5 lakhs, the amount which is suggested even by the Retrenchment Committee. That committee has also suggested the retrenchment of one Superintending Engineer's Circle, Mechanical or some portion of the Special Officer's establishment, and if all these various sources of retrenchment are considered by Government, then I see no difficulty in their being able to effect a savings of 5 lakhs. They have given assurances in the past that they will make an attempt at reduction and I hope they will give us another assurance in this matter also, in the manner in which they did when the cut of salaries was moved here. On a cut like this only we can force the Government to make retrenchment and not on a cut on general policy, and therefore I have tried to offer a few suggestions in favour of the motion I have made. With these remarks, I commend this cut to the House for its acceptance.

Question proposed.

Mr. P. L. BOWERS : Sir, the honourable member from Dharwar made a sweeping statement regarding our alleged failure to effect any economy or any reduction in our establishments and claimed that he could show the way by which we could make a reduction of 5 lakhs. By a reference to page 45 of the Civil Works Budget, he points out that our reduction in establishments of 7 lakhs is entirely due to the cut of 10 per cent. in pay, but he does not take into any consideration the reductions in establishments which have already been carried out while we have been investigating what retrenchment is possible after considering Mr. Shah's report. If he looks at the statement on page 45 he will see that the actuals for establishment in 1930-31 were Rs. 1,04,98,104, for 1930-31 and the revised estimate for 1931-32 was Rs. 99,39,500 and our estimated demand for 1932-33 is Rs. 90,01,100. So, we have reduced our establishment charges by 14 lakhs in the last two years, out of which 7 lakhs, as he points out, is due to the ten per cent. cut in pay. This has been effected by making a very considerable number of reductions in our district establishments. During the last two years we have closed down or amalgamated several district establishments, which naturally has resulted in a large reduction in pay and we have now got what we consider the safe limit. It is quite unfair to say that because we are spending so much less on works, we can therefore make a corresponding reduction in establishments. Our establishments, for the most part, are district establishments looking after a number of works scattered over a vast area, and as a man can only look after a certain area he can only carry out repairs or maintenance work and such new works as are required in that area. If all new works in the area are cut out, he has still to cover that area in looking after repairs and maintenance works. It might be possible to give him new works up to the value of 2 lakhs without having to increase his establishment by the smallest percentage, but as he must keep moving about in his charge looking after such repairs as are in progress it is not possible to effect economies by increasing the size of his charge on account of the reduction in cost of new works in his charge. You cannot for example expect a mustering clerk on a bicycle to travel 40 miles, instead of the average of 20 miles or so a day because you have reduced the amount of money to be spent in his charge, and therefore you cannot fix for every man the extent of his charge in terms of the amount of money to be spent in it. I think that the reductions that we have carried out, are as far as we can go for the present, but the Superintending Engineers have been asked to make further investigations. We have given them all a figure by which they are to try and bring down their expenditure on establishments, and they are reviewing the whole of their establishments very carefully. Certain additional cuts may be possible, but I am afraid that we shall not be able to reach the figure which the honourable member from Dharwar held out as the goal which we should aim at.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Begin with the mentality that you can do it, and you will be able to do it.

Mr. P. L. BOWERS: We have examined it so often; it is rather difficult to find out any way of doing it.

I may point out, if I am allowed to refer to the speeches of honourable members who spoke on the question of the local board grants, who criticised the grant to the Public Works Department and the amount of grant to the local boards, that next year the Public Works Department grant of Rs. 37,00,000 is only 74 per cent. of last year's grant, while the local board grant is 80 per cent. of the previous year's grant. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik has also pointed out that they could work very much cheaper than——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is not relevant to the point under discussion. The honourable member should have got up then.

Mr. P. L. BOWERS: I had not the opportunity, I will now stop if you require me to.

Mr. C. M. LANE: Sir, I am afraid I was not able to follow the honourable member Mr. Jog very closely. He seemed to me to run about from one end to the other of this 41, Civil Works budget. He then went on to refer to Mr. Shah's report and then to the Retrenchment Committee report, copies of which I am afraid I have not got with me here.

As regards the incidence of establishment charges, Sir, I personally am directly concerned with the Irrigation branch. I think we in this Branch have done, in fact I am convinced that we have done, all that we can actually do in the way of reducing establishment up to date. We are still being driven to it, and under protest I am making further reductions, but I think we are now reaching a dangerous limit. I hoped that the honourable member Mr. Jog would throw some flowers to me or give me congratulations for it, but I am afraid that they are not forthcoming. If he will look at column 14 of the statement on page 46 of the 41, Civil Works budget that he referred to, he will see that our establishment charges have fallen in the last four years on Irrigation from 26 per cent., 25·51 per cent., 23·26 per cent., finally to 21·60 per cent. I think that is a fairly valuable contribution to the economies of this Government.

Mr. V. N. JOG: I have referred to it.

Mr. C. M. LANE: It is impossible to bring them down much further and it is impossible to lay down any fixed percentage figure which they shall be.

The honourable member referred also to the statement on page 47 of the same 41, Civil Works budget. This was in connection with the tools and plant provision, the total of Rs. 3,47,900 under all heads; and he drew attention to the footnote which says "These amounts represent 3 per cent. on the provisions made for works and repairs." But I would point out that the footnote has an asterisk, and the asterisk appears only against 6 items. The whole of our provision is not calculated at 3 per cent. and we are working on a very much lower figure generally. Mr. Shah was appointed to go into this question. Mr. Shah, a Deputy Accountant General, was put on special duty to examine and make suggestions as regards such economies as he considered practicable. Mr. Shah made suggestions, which were considered by Government, and as far as we found it practicable we have carried them out. We carried out and effected all such economies recommended by Mr. Shah as we found possible. But I, being responsible for my department, was entirely unable to agree that all of Mr. Shah's suggestions were practicable. The figure of provision for tools and plant is very largely swelled by an item of Rs. 1,75,400, Construction of Irrigation and Navigation, under 55. That is largely for the Barrage. If that came out, our figure would be much reduced. I do not know if the allocation of tools and plant charges is clearly understood by the Finance Department. I have tried very often to find out how this allocation is made, but I am afraid it is beyond me. I can only say, Sir, that we are, as I have said, cutting down establishment absolutely to the bone, and as regards contingent grants and tools and plant, we have made such reductions as are possible.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: Sir, the honourable member representing Dharwar district (that is my own district), seems to be under the impression that the Public Works Department is not doing its best in cutting down expenditure, as required under the present financial stringency. In this respect, I may frankly tell him that he is entirely in the wrong. The expenditure of the Public Works Department was specially examined by a very competent officer, Mr. Shah. His recommendations had been for some time under the examination of Government, and such of them as could in the opinion of the Government be carried out have been carried out. When I asked my honourable friend to read the second sentence in the paragraph relating to the Public Works Department in the Report of the Retrenchment Committee, my honourable friend was rather unwilling to read it, but when I pressed him a second time to read it, he did so, and further made a certain comment upon it. I shall read the sentence, which is very significant, and though the Retrenchment Committee, which was appointed inter alia to go into the expenditure of the Public Works Department, has been graceful enough to admit the broad and and plain truth contained in that sentence, my honourable friend is not inclined to admit that truth. Here is the sentence:

"We are aware that there have been heavy reductions in establishments amounting to Rs. 8,00,000 in the last few years."

Here is an admission made by the Retrenchment Committee, but my honourable friend refuses to give credit to this admission. I do not know what sort of admission will please him. If the Retrenchment Committee's statement is not to the liking of my honourable friend, I do not think any statement from me or any other person in this House will satisfy him, as he appears to be determined not to be satisfied with any statement of facts.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: Is that saving not due to the completion of certain irrigational works?

Mr. V. N. JOG: I would request the Honourable Minister to give us details of how these 8 lakhs are made up.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: Then, with regard to the percentage charges, the honourable member, the Chief Secretary, Public Works Department, has pointed out that it is a little bit difficult to explain the same in the short time at our disposal.

Then, Sir, I come to the last part of the honourable member's speech. He pointed out that there are certain departments dealing with expert business which can safely come under the retrenchment axe. I may take it that he referred to the Consulting Architect to Government and his department. I may inform him, Sir, that very important reductions have been made in this department, and the saving of a sum equal to Rs. 4,000 a month has been effected in that department. This was done after the report of the Retrenchment Committee.

Mr. V. N. JOG: It is Rs. 48,000 a year.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI : It will be seen, Sir, that the saving is nearly more than half of the expenditure incurred over that department. Then, Sir, the Retrenchment Committee, on page 17 of their report, say :

"We are not at one as to the extent to which a reduction of expenditure can be enforced but we are agreed that it should not be less than 14 lakhs. The cut may be found not only by the discharge of establishments but by the reduction of grants for repairs both in the Irrigation and the Roads and Buildings branches of the Department."

With regard to this, I would assure my honourable friend that we have carried out a reduction of not less than 14 lakhs in the budget under discussion in this Department.

Mr. HOOSENALLY RAHIMTOOLA : In repairs alone, and not in establishments also ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI : The Retrenchment Committee did not recommend the reduction in "Establishment" alone. I believe my honourable friend was a party to the Retrenchment Committee's report. He is aware that they did not recommend that the reduction must be in establishment alone ; it may be from any other source also.

Then, Sir, the Retrenchment Committee have made certain recommendations, which will cost more than the existing expenditure. That they have admitted in paragraph 40 of their report. They want to put the whole department under a Civilian, and they admit that such a course will in the first few years cost more than the actual expenditure now incurred. Sir, such a costly experiment cannot be made now under such a financial stringency. I assure the honourable member that we have been doing our best in the matter of reducing expenditure in this department. But I am afraid he is not going to be satisfied with any assurances. He seems to be determined to take this cut to a division, in which case, Sir, he may take his chance. However, I may inform him once more that we are very sincere in our attempts to reduce expenditure in the Public Works Department.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (speaking in Urdu) : On a point of information. I want to ask the Honourable Minister whether it is not a fact that in 1921-22 the establishment charges were 19 per cent., whereas in the budget for the next year the charges are 50 per cent.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, we cannot apportion particular establishment to particular expenditure. It is impossible for us to do that. Now, Sir, honourable members must realise that the works of the Public Works Department in the shape of roads and buildings are scattered all over the Presidency. How can we then say that because we are spending 5 lakhs on a particular work, therefore the establishment for that work ought to be in proportion to the 5 lakhs ? No particular establishment can be apportioned to any particular roads and buildings in various parts of the Presidency. That is impossible. Therefore, that cannot be the proper criterion of judging the expenditure under Civil Works. You ought to take into consideration the fact that our roads and buildings are scattered all over the Presidency.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (speaking in Urdu): In column 8 of the statement on page 46 of the P. W. D. Budget Estimates for the next year the establishment charges for 10 years are given. I want to ask Government whether it is not a fact that in 1921-22 the charges were 19 per cent., in 1930-31 32 per cent., and now the charges are 50 per cent.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I have already replied to that.

(After recess)

Mr. V. N. JOG: I wish to make a request. In this discussion, we have not had full two days, as on Saturday last we had one hour less; instead of 4½ hours, we had 3½ hours. I request that the time may be extended by one hour.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: We have always counted one sitting, whatever the period, as a full day.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We are prepared to carry out the wishes of the other side.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Shall we carry it on till 5-30? That would mean half an hour only, if we carry on this discussion till 5-30. There are two honourable members who want to speak and they should manage it within 10 minutes each. Under the law the discussion should be finished within two days.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE (Ahmednagar District): Mr. President, on this matter I do not think that it can ever be considered that the Retrenchment Committee's proposals, even in the way the Honourable Minister read out, are binding on this House. Apart from that phase, I should think it does look rather very important that the working expenses of our Public Works Department including Irrigation are such as cannot be justified, having regard to the working expenses in the other similar provinces. It must be a very anxious concern to Government itself, because the House will realise that we are getting only a margin of about 9 lakhs of rupees by way of profit. As there is no time to refer to the books, I will speak from my impression that there is a margin of 9 lakhs of rupees between the revenue and the working expenses. I believe the Honourable the Finance Member will bear me out. With a heavy expenditure of about 13 crores on irrigation works, the revenue we get is altogether disproportionate with the investment we have made so far, even apart from the question of Lloyd Barrage and other schemes it involves. Thus it is also necessary to bear in mind that it is too true that you cannot reduce your establishment all at once. There is no doubt also that the establishments which are on permanent footing cannot be taken away or reduced. But I may as well draw the attention of this House to the tendency of bringing the men who are on the temporary staff for several years on the permanent cadre and thus swelling still more the cadre of permanent people. This is a vicious circle indeed. Apart from intrinsic considerations, I will put it to the House that, if they were to read Mr. Shah's criticisms on the working of this Department, they will find that it is quite true that we have plenty of room for retrenchment, even to a possible limit of several lakhs of rupees.

Then, one more point I would like to make. At all times it is an incongruity, as they have always been saying, that the department which is to be retrenched is to be retrenched on the authority of the people who are supposed to be affected by it. Naturally, therefore, we cannot make out a case to the satisfaction of those people who are likely to be retrenched. Government also are in a pitiable position in this sense that the Honourable Minister who is in charge of this department is always new to the various working, but we might say that with all his great abilities, whatever he may be, it is not possible for a layman in the position of a Minister to make headway against the dead weight of the vested interests. However skilful he might be and however clever he might be, and however much his sympathy towards this side of the House, it is too much to expect him to be quite a match to the weight that they would bring to bear on him. Therefore, the Honourable Minister's position in such discussions on the floor of this House must be one of indifference—indifference in this sense that he is also one of us, though he may be for the time being on the other side. He knows his own limitations and we know ours. Though he has all sympathies with us, instead of saying ex cathedra what Government have done is right and what we suggest is all wrong, I do emphasise that in such matters the popular Minister, as one responsible to this side of the House, should not merely rest with seeking assistance from his official secretaries; he may bring to bear upon the question his own considered view, so that it might convince us. So far as the discussion has gone on in this House, it must be said to our regret that the Honourable Minister, whenever he stands, whoever he may be, does not rise to that height which is necessary to justify a particular position which he wants to take on behalf of Government. That is our complaint. It must not be misunderstood that we are insisting on a particular proposal being put before the House and even take it to a division. It does not mean that a particular censure motion should be passed on our Minister. What we insist on is this. We do honestly think that there is enough room for retrenchment and, therefore, those of us at least who have studied these subjects, come with an open mind, and when we move a particular motion, we do so with the best of motives, which cannot be cavilled at. At least so far as this side of the House is concerned, it will do well for the Honourable Minister not to challenge it because he has got the weight of vote behind him and ask us to go to a division. It is absolutely absurd.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: The honourable member has misunderstood me.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: The words are there.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: My statement was made in response to the honourable member Mr. Jog's statement in his speech.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE : May be a misfortune. But I should like that the Honourable Minister who happens to be a popular Minister ought not to take up that attitude, which of course sometimes is capable of being misunderstood. But we do expect that the Honourable Minister who is one of us on that side ought to assist us. He must marshal facts which are within his knowledge and which are not open to us. For instance, when my honourable friend challenged him in so many words, let the Honourable Minster satisfy this House how this cut of 8 lakhs has been made. The Honourable Minister's position was that he should have come forward with facts and figures and satisfied us. Instead of doing that, he asked him to read the Retrenchment Committee's proposal, but he himself did not read the sentence which is next to it. As far as I know, the Retrenchment Committee says distinctly :

"They state that there is a minimum beyond which it is not possible to go with safety and that the existing staff is included in and not additional to the necessary minimum."

The next sentence is this :

"We hold, however, that in view of the paramount necessity of reducing expenditure a further cut must be made."

Therefore, that position which has been taken up by the Retrenchment Committee should have been elucidated by the Honourable Minister. When we expect that an earnest effort is made to cut down expenditure on establishment, Government may take it that it does carry conviction to a certain extent. I think it is his duty to convince us. As a matter of fact, when he was asked to say how that 8 lakhs of rupees was made up, I think it is his duty to convince us. It will not do to challenge us. What would the outside world think and say ? They will say : "The popular Minister who should be on the popular side does not belong to the popular party, but he has merged himself in the reserved part of Government and stands on their own legs and backed by the official bloc." That official bloc is going to disappear. It ought not to be the position of the Honourable Minister, who must take up every problem from his point of view with sympathy and attention and then come to a certain conclusion.

As regards the general question of establishment, I think there is enough room and I am absolutely sure, if Sir Frederic Gauntlett were to go into it, he is sure to cut. They have no case. There are certain matters which are quite open and I think, Sir, the Honourable Minister will do well in assuring this part of the House that he will do his best to cut down the expenditure to the bone.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu) : Sir, I support the cut proposed by the honourable member Mr. Jog. But before I give facts, figures and arguments in support of this cut, I beg permission of this honourable House to take this opportunity to reply to the irrelevant observations of honourable members on the Government benches in answer to my speeches in this House. Whenever I have attempted to expose the maladministration in any Government Department or tried to bring up here the question of excesses committed by officers on the spot, it was said by Government members that I was a resident of Karahi and so could not understand the affairs of rural Sind. I strongly protest with all my force against this conduct of Government. It is really surprising that the honourable member the Public Works Department Secretary read from a cutting of newspaper some portion of a letter of mine, but why has he omitted to read the other cutting sent to Government exposing scandals and corruptions in the Department? Will he permit me to send that too to the press? It is nearly six years since I came to this Council and for the last seventeen years I have been an elected member of the Karachi municipality. There is no place of any importance in Sind in rural areas which I have not visited or that there is any grievance of rural people chich I do not know. In connection with Council and Assembly election campaigns, I have visited every village in Karachi and Hyderabad Districts and am fully aware of the scandals of different departments and specially Public Works Department. And more, I make bold to state that no other non-official member of this Council has taken so much interest as I have done in the construction work and administration of Lloyd Barrage. In spite of all this, the Chief Engineer, Barrage and Secretary to Government, Public Works Department, when unable to meet my criticism based on facts and figures, simply try to throw dust by saying that I live in Karachi and do not know anything about Sind. I am further surprised at Sir Charlton Harrison's speech when he states that even all other members who had the misfortune to take him to task for extravagant expenditure, are also as ignorant as myself about Barrage affairs. And he alleges that they have not seen this book or that book. But what about the consistent supporters of Government who have differed from Sir Charlton Harrison? They are big Jagirdars and Zamindars of Sind, who pay thousands of rupees as annual land assessment to Government. They have been considered sober and informed people, and titles have been conferred on them. Are they also ignorant like me? I say this with emphasis that it is Government officers and pillars of Government who are really ignorant about conditions and needs of Sind. They come from 7,000 miles and have become conversant with Sind, while we the inhabitants of the soil do not know our conditions and needs!

Will the honourable member Sir Charlton Harrison kindly inform this House as to what reply he has given to the statements of facts and figures placed before this honourable House by the honourable members Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh and Khan Bahadur Khuhro? They know intimately the conditions obtaining in all the parts of Sind. They are the supporters of Government and Government have made them Khan Bahadurs. Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh has shown that the working expenses of barrage will be equal to the income. At least their remarks ought to carry weight with Government. Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh stated the other day that before the Sukkur Barrage was taken up the net income from irrigation in Sind was 40 lakhs from the Barrage zone.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member has got very limited time. He should speak to the motion before the House. This is not a general discussion.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: The Barrage establishment is included in this grant.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The temporary establishment is being continued. It has to be pointed out how retrenchment to the extent of 5 lakhs can be made.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I wish to ask the honourable members of Government benches, namely, the General Member, the Chief Enginer in Sind and Public Works Department Secretary to please inform me and this House whether it is a fact that the net income was 40 lakhs. And, if so, for how many years before the opening of Barrage Canals has Government been receiving this net revenue of Rs. 40 lakhs? Further, I desire to know from these gentlemen as to when again the Barrage zone will pay even this Rs. 49 lakhs as net income after commencement of working of Barrage Canals. The capital cost of the work is Rs. 30 crores including establishments, accumulated interest charges. Government will have to pay even interest on capital by further borrowing, debiting the capital cost. Another most important point for consideration is that the cost of establishment provided in the original estimates was only Rs. 2 crores. It was revised and raised in the 2nd revised recapitulation to Rs. 2·88 crores. But the actual expenditure on establishment up till end of March 1933 will be Rs. 3·16 crores. The Works would still have to go on for 3 years more before they can be completed. That is, total cost on this head will be Rs. 4 crores nearly which is double the cost provided in the original estimates. Why this 100 per cent. increase, please? Will the honourable member Sir Charlton Harrison answer the query?

Mr. V. N. JOG rose.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member said that he did not want to give a reply.

Mr. V. N. JOG: I do want to reply. I said I did not want to move the next item in my name.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: How much time will he take?

Mr. V. N. JOG: Only five minutes. Sir, with regard to the statement that the Honourable Minister made that the Retrenchment Committee had accepted Government's case that a reduction of 8 lakhs was made, I have made it quite clear in my speech that the figures which were before the Retrenchment Committee are not before the House. I requested the Honourable Minister to place before us the figures which were before the Retrenchment Committee. The only figure he quoted was a cut of Rs. 4,000 per month, which means only Rs. 48,000.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: Sir, I said that that figure was with regard to the Specialist department, namely, the department of the Consulting Architect to Government, the reduction of the establishment of which was carried out in accordance with the recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee.

Mr. V. N. JOG: If Government had the figures with them they ought to have put them before us. As only one instance has been cited, I submit that Government have no figures to lay before us. I am not saying this merely from inference. At page 46 (Civil Works Budget Estimate) figures have been given showing the expenditure on establishment on Civil Works. You will be pleased to see that they give figures for ten years. From these figures, you will see that there is only a retrenchment of about Rs. 33 lakhs. It was brought down 31 lakhs for two years and again it was 34 lakhs in the year 1921-22; now it is Rs. 29,91,000. I have stated that on account of the Sukkur Barrage the figures were rising on the side of Irrigation. The total establishment charges both for Irrigation and for Roads and Buildings was 100 lakhs and odd in 1928-29 and for 1930-31 Rs. 97,13,342. In this connection I will also show that the previous Retrenchment Committee had recommended seriatá various reductions. The saving estimated by that committee was Rs. 14,82,170, but the approximate saving effected was only Rs. 3,80,664. The present Retrenchment Committee have repeated the suggestions made by the Committee of 1924. At the most the saving is Rs. 3 lakhs. I may be allowed, even at this stage, to know how this sum of 8 lakhs has been made up. I submit that the case has not been made out against this cut.

With regard to other matters also, the Secretaries have not been able to satisfy us with facts and figures. Therefore, I request that the Honourable the General Member and the Honourable Minister should accept this cut and seriously set to work to effect retrenchment to that extent.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Mr. President, before I deal with the arguments that have been advanced by the honourable mover of this cut, I will assure honourable members on behalf of these benches, whether belonging to the reserved or transferred departments, that we have always felt and continue to feel responsible to the other side.

The honourable mover of the cut has suggested three sources to meet this sum of 5 lakhs—firstly, establishment (permanent and temporary); secondly, tools and plant; and thirdly, pensionary charges.

First I will deal with establishments. I refer the honourable member to page 45 of the Estimates. We have provided for 1932-33, for establishment, excluding pensionary charges, recoveries etc. Rs. 89,65,400. In 1931-32 it was Rs. 1,02,57,800. Now, this figure of 89 lakhs includes new revenue establishment which costs Rs. 3,86,000. Honourable members will thus see that the actual establishment for 1932-33 will be 86 lakhs as compared with Rs. 1 crore and odd in 1931-32——

Mr. V. N. JOG: That is budget estimate.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Actuals also. If the honourable member turns to page 45, he will see that the revised estimate was 1 crore, whereas the demand for 1932-33 is 86 lakhs. That means, we have asked for 14 lakhs less. We have cut down to the tune of 8 lakhs. That is included in this. The other day when we were discussing the Irrigation Budget, I pointed out to the honourable members that before the amalgamation there were 7 Superintending Engineers, and now we are providing for only 5 and one for three months. There was a large number of Executive Engineers, and we have reduced the number to the minimum. Again, if the honourable member turns to page 46, he will find that the percentage on the total outlay on works and repairs in the Irrigation Branch is 21·60 for 1930-31. We should not calculate it on the capital expenditure, because though you might spend a little, there is the management and distribution of water, for which we have to maintain establishment. It is not that because we spend 5 lakhs therefore the establishment should be in proportion to that amount. That ought not to be the criterion at all.

Coming to roads and buildings, honourable members should bear in mind that this time we have a very small capital expenditure. That is, we have reduced the expenditure to be incurred on new works and works in progress and repairs. But honourable members should remember that we have to carry out these works throughout the Presidency. Therefore, you cannot say that because we have reduced this expenditure we must also reduce the establishment. Besides, this establishment for roads and buildings includes the Secretariat charges. The Electrical Engineer's department is included in this establishment. The Electrical Engineer does not carry out repairs or construction of roads or buildings. Yet his department is included in the establishment. Again, the Consulting Architect and his establishment; that is included under this establishment. If you exclude all that, you will see that the establishment charges come to much less. The Electrical Engineer and his establishment do not carry out the actual execution of work. Honourable members will thus see that the establishment charges are not extravagant. To satisfy the other side of this House further, we are referring this whole question of P. W. D. establishment to the expert committee, and we shall instruct that committee to give this honourable House or their representatives an opportunity to give evidence before that committee. I assure the House that, as far as my department is concerned, I have been carefully scrutinising my establishment charges. Besides, next year I am going to place all items before you as new items of expenditure.

Coming to the question of tools and plant charges, my honourable friend Mr. Jog quoted the recommendations of Mr. Shah. If he cares to come round to the Secretariat, I will convince him that we have adopted the recommendations of Mr. Shah and have actually reduced the expenditure as regards tools and plant. I am speaking from memory, but I am sure I am right. The figures which the honourable member quoted were recoveries which we make from other departments at the rate of 3 per cent.—we do not actually spend. If honourable members turn to page 47 of the Estimates, they will find the item "50, Military Works (Central) Rs. 200" and other items which are central grants. We include tools and plant charges because we carry out works for other departments and charge the Central Government at the rate of 3 per cent. on account of that. It does not mean that we are actually spending 3 per cent. on tools and plant. Actually, we are spending much less than that. I am as sure as anything that we have given effect to Mr. Shah's recommendations and cut down expenditure on tools and plant to nearly 2 per cent.

Now I come to pensionary charges. The complaint is that the percentage was 14 and now it has become 7. I may remind the honourable member that at this time the rate of interest is higher and we have to provide less for pensionary charges. If the rate of interest is lower, we have to provide a larger amount. Those are the rules laid down by the Audit Department as well as the Government of India, and we have to follow them. Therefore, we have provided 7 and odd per cent. under pensionary charges.

I am sure honourable members of this House will agree with me that there is absolutely no room for the cut of 5 lakhs proposed by the honourable member Mr. Jog. We have already cut down establishment charges, we have cut down tools and plant charges. The honourable member is under a wrong impression with regard to pensionary charges. After my explanation, I hope he will withdraw his motion.

Question put, and negatived.

37, Miscellaneous Departments (Reserved).

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 4,47,000 under "Miscellaneous Departments, Reserved."

Question put, and agreed to.

35, Industries (Transferred).

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 3,67,000 under "35, Industries—Transferred."

Question proposed.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI (Poona District): Sir, I move:

"Reduce by Rs. 100—A-6, (5) Grants-in-aid, Contributions + Donations—Expenditure in connection with the Committee of Direction for Industrial and Technical Schools—Rs. 15,603 (C. E. page 271)."

My reasons for moving this cut are these: The population of this presidency mainly consists of agriculturists. Their percentage is about 60 and the relation which agriculture bears to industry is very close. They are two sides of one coin. One is the obverse and the other is the reverse of the coin. To have an efficient Industries Department is a great necessity. But I am constrained to make my remarks against the present way of working of the department and hence I move the motion of cut. This Department is proved to be useless. It is not giving any useful service to the public which is expected from it in the time of real need.

Looking to the working of this department, I remember one Marathi proverb "मिळमिळीत सौभाग्यापेक्षा ढळढळीत वैधव्य बरें" which means that it is better to be an out and out widow rather than have an old and useless husband. Instead of having an unworkable department of industries like the present, I say, it would be better not to have any such department at all. The Director of Industries is supposed to be the head of the department and yet some subjects which ought properly to be under his control have been withheld from him. All technical schools and institutions of professional education are controlled by the Director of Public Instruction independently. So also all professional colleges and schools and arts schools are under the charge of the Director of Public Instruction, and their curriculum is settled by certain other officers. In their working the Director of Industries has got very little hand. Let me cite an instance in point, namely, the supervision of working of the Factories and the inspection of boilers. These two works are managed by the Collector of Bombay and the person who is particularly fit for the work, namely, the Director of Industries, is barred from taking charge of these works. The Director of Industries is the proper person who should inspect all the boilers and the factories working. He would have an opportunity, thereby, of getting good experience of the working. Then he will be able to conduct his own work more ably if he were put in charge of factory inspection and inspection of boilers. Not only that but he would be able to give the benefit of his experience to the other persons conducting those factories in this part of the country. This suggestion has been made to Government by the committee long ago but no ear was turned to it. A committee is in existence for fixing the curricula. After so many complaints were received the Director of Industries has recently been admitted as one of the ordinary members of the committee. In fact he must be the Chairman of that Committee. Non-official members who are experts in various branches of the Industries and who have got real experience of their working must have got place on the committee. But the committee is mostly formed of official members and no non-official expert elected by the public is represented thereon at present. This committee is not supposed to do what the public really wants from it. They have made very little progress in the way of improvement of their industries. The real reason is as long as the foreign industries are to be kept in a flourishing condition then the policy of the Government in safeguarding of interests of these industries is sure to come in the way of the improvement of the industries that are here in India. Therefore to remedy the matter the first step is to make majority of non-official element in that committee. Otherwise, there is no hope of improving this department.

The department of Industries in India was opened in 1917, but it is making no progress, to tell the truth it is receiving an Irish promotion at the hands of Government. The other important point is unless we get for our industries State-aid, there is no hope of any improvement in the present state of things. There is no instance where an industry has prospered without such aid. Look to the report of the Director of Industries in this connection and you will find that out of many hundred factories and industries in this Presidency, only two were willing to come forward with applications for State-aid and the result is one never returned to the Government being disheartened seeing the rate of interest fixed on the loan offered to him in the form of State-aid. Another was declared to be unfit for being given a loan! These are two glaring instances showing the fate of applications for State-aid. Under these circumstances, it should never be expected that there would be an improvement of our industries. I assure that as long as this attitude is taken by the Government over industries will never flourish under the adverse conditions. India, or this Presidency should never dream of improving its industries until the present mode of the working of this Department is not given up for a better one. There must be sincerity of mind underlying every action and only when work is taken in hand with that sincerity it flourishes. I doubt whether the working of this department is conducted with that sincerity by Government. And under such circumstances what useful purpose can be served by the Director of Industries? If the requisite facilities are given for the working of this department, then and then only the sincerity of Government in the success of the working of this department will be proved, otherwise not. I suggest three or four ways for the good of the Indian industries and if they are adopted by Government as their declared policy for the improvement of industries, I can say, then and then only this department will be fit for being given any grants, otherwise it is no use spending money for the mere show which is made every year under the name of the working of the Industries Department of the Government of Bombay. The three ways I suggest are :—

1. There should not be free trade policy. It must come to an end in favour of the indigenous industries of India. They should be protected when they are in their childhood and due nourishment must be given to them by Government in time.

2. Levying of special duty on foreign goods imported into India and prohibition of export of raw products out of India are the two necessary steps fit to be taken by the Government in the interest of the indigenous industries of India.

3. Inducing British merchants to divulge their trade secrets to Indian students, so that there will be a great hope of expanding the Indian industries in no time. Trade secrets are never divulged by them. In the past during the days of the regime of East India Company trade secrets were forcibly taken from Indian workers, and now we are placed in such a pitiable position that we have not got any industries of our own and we are deprived of the means of livelihood by the loss of industries and we have been virtually turned into beggars in absence of any industry in our hand. Such a bitter result of that working of the hands of the servants of East India Company has been seen now, that of Dhulia Rangaris, i.e., the dyers in the district of Dhulia, and weavers of the other parts of the Presidency are reduced to beggary by the taking away of our trade to their country.

Until the Swadeshi movement is nourished here on the lines suggested by me under the three different heads I have given, there is no hope of saving our Industries any more. It is a tradition well established in all countries not yoked under foreign rule that when a country wishes to have flourishing industries, it is the Government of that country who takes the utmost care to buy Swadeshi goods for their departmental use. Also they take serious objection to the purchase of foreign goods in any Department. As an instance of this point, I will just quote "a question and answer" of the British Parliament. This will convince the House how the Britishers themselves are very particular about purchasing nothing but goods of British make by the British Government. The question was :—Mr. J. W. Maclure (Lancashire, Stretford) :

"I beg to ask the First Commissioner of Works whether the chairs in the Reporter's gallery and furniture in other parts of the House are of foreign manufacture ; and why preference is given to foreign over British trade."

The answer was :—Mr. Akers-Douglas (Kent, St. Augustine's) :

"The only furniture of foreign manufacture in the House of Parliament consists of a limited number of chairs which were two years ago supplied to some of the rooms occupied by representatives of the press on account of the lightness of the articles and their special suitability for the purpose. Except in such particular cases, preference is always given to articles of British manufacture." Hansard, page 483, 11th August 1896.

Look at this spirit ! Undoubtedly it is a commendable spirit. We must adopt it. The purchase of goods for Government must be made on this line ; if we and Government really want our industries to flourish we must follow it very faithfully. It is with this idea that I suggest that we must make at least a small beginning. And that is the idea behind the motion of cut which I have moved here now. On the committee of direction there is almost an official representation, cent. per cent. Let us have majority of non-official members on that committee and that will be a small beginning in right direction. With this intention I move this motion of cut and the House will consider my suggestion in a good light and sympathetic way.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Bombay University): Sir, I am not going to traverse the wide field relating to this question of industries as the honourable mover has done, but I wish to confine myself to the particular expenditure which is being incurred on this committee of direction for industrial and technical schools. I want to put before the House the whole question of this Committee in order that the House may know and the Honourable Minister for Education may know whether the money which is being spent in these days of financial stringency is at all being spent in a proper manner. Sir, this Committee of Industries was constituted in the year 1913 when there was no Director of Industries to take charge of it. It was proposed that the Director of Public Instruction might look after it, but it was pointed out that as things were, his hands were already full and he lacked the necessary technical or expert knowledge and so it was thought necessary to constitute a committee to do the work which properly belonged to a Director appointed by Government. In other provinces, Sir, these schools for technical and industrial education are in charge of the Director of Industries, which posts have been in existence in other provinces for a long time. Here, however, now that the post of Director of Industries has been instituted after full deliberation, I do ask whether there is any necessity for this Committee of Direction, as it has been called. Sir, there is the local board industrial school in my place, viz., Satara. It has been in existence for many years, and hence I am in possession of certain facts which do go to show that this Committee of Direction is not doing any useful work. The expenditure in connection with this committee is shown as Rs. 15,603. My submission is that a greater part of this expenditure is altogether a waste, and I will just proceed to show how.

It was pointed out by the last speaker, the honourable mover of the motion, that this Committee of Direction consists of certain persons, and there is an officer called the Secretary. The Secretary to this committee is not a whole-time servant of the committee at all. He is the Principal of the Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute. Being the Principal of that Institute he gets his usual salary. I do not know exactly what his pay is, but it must be the pay of his cadre. Over and above this, this gentleman is paid a certain sum for working as the Secretary of the Committee of Direction, and the cost of that is included in the amount of Rs. 5,000 for establishment charges. I understand that the major portion of this amount of Rs. 5,000 goes towards the Secretary's pay, and there is a small amount for the pay of a clerk, a peon and other office expenses. My submission is that this Secretary, being connected with his own work in the V. J. T. Institute, has no time to devote to the work of the Committee of Direction. Besides, what is the work which he does for that committee? I understand that this committee meets off and on, for a few minutes may be. I do not know whether really any deliberative work is done in that committee, and this officer acts as Secretary to the committee. My submission is that the V. J. T. Institute has its own establishment, its own clerk, peons, etc. But so far as this special committee is concerned, I want to ask the Honourable Minister to go into this question and ascertain for himself what amount of work is turned out by this establishment. So far as the Secretary is concerned, I am told he also does the work of visiting certain institutions. As a matter of fact, Sir, it is the Inspector who is specially appointed for this purpose who carries on the inspection throughout, and now that we have a Director of Industries, he also goes round to inspect various concerns. I take it that this function was assigned to the Secretary because there was no Director of Industries at one time. Now that we have a Director of Industries, who goes round on his other work, he may inspect a few of the institutions, if it is necessary to check the work of the Inspector. As a matter of fact, I do not understand why the Secretary should be enabled, only for this purpose, to visit various places in the Presidency, with the expenditure of his travelling allowance added to his salary. As I know from some experience, it is in fact impossible for the Secretary to be away from his other duties, as he has to discharge his duties in connection with the V. J. T. Institute. Therefore, at week-ends, or perhaps at some other time during the month he visits places, say, from Poona or from Bombay to Sholapur, or from Poona or Bombay to Satara, and in a day he inspects half a dozen schools or perhaps more. Altogether there are 32 such schools in the Presidency, and they are spread over all parts of the Presidency. Now, imagine, Sir, a flying visit to two to three places—from Bombay to Ahmednagar, and on his way inspecting the Ahmednagar and Poona schools in a day. I mean to say that one can imagine what kind of work he must be in a position to do. It will be absolutely impossible for him, I believe, to do any kind of real inspection work at all. And it is unnecessary, as I have said. Therefore, I do submit that this appointment of the Secretary is not necessary. A large amount is provided for him. There are no details given of the expenditure. In the report which I have in my possession, Rs. 5,000 are shown as the cost of the Secretary and the establishment, but I understand that at least half of the amount must be for his pay and a part of the rest for his clerk, peons, office expenses, etc. So, when we are here trying to retrench and find out how the money is spent, and whether that money is properly applied or not, does it not stand to reason that we should consider this question? The Committee of Direction was appointed as a temporary measure, because there was no Department of Industries, I understand, in 1913. Much water has flown under the bridges since then, and the question now is, is it necessary to continue the existence of this committee? As I said, the Director of Industries is well able to take care of these technical schools which are spread over this Presidency.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

Further, Sir, we have another item in this amount of Rs. 15,000, which is for inspection charges; and there is also the item of examination fees. Of course, so far as the inspection charges are concerned, there is the Inspector who inspects, and I have nothing to say about it. But I am told that the examination fees come to something like Rs. 8,000, or they may be a little more or less. I also understand that the examiners and supervisors are sent out from Bombay. My question is, is all this necessary when we have in the local places people who can supervise ? So far as the examination is concerned, it may be a written examination by means of papers, or, as is done in the School of Art for the practical examination, where the models in the school are taken over to other places, and the examinations held in that way. It is unnecessary to pay fees to all these examiners. I knew of a case in which there was an examiner who did not know the vernacular at all. He set the paper in English. The pupils who are studying in the technical and industrial schools are not as a rule persons who can answer or even understand questions which are set in English. Then, what is done ? They are translated. The clerk, or whoever may be under the examiner, translates the questions, and the answers are translated into English. In that way the examinations take place and the papers examined. The examiners must know Kanarese, Gujarati and Marathi, because these schools are spread over the whole Presidency, and if the examiner happens to be a man who knows only English, certainly it is simply absurd to expect him to do the examination work in the proper way. I understand that the examiners, including the supervisors, are all sent out from the staff of the V. J. Technical Institute. Why send these people to long distances and pay them examination fees and travelling expenses ? So, all this expenditure on examination charges and also the expenditure on the Secretary seem to be really a waste, and the Institute also suffers. The Committee of Direction, as I understand, does not do any of this work at all. It is an honorary body. It may be there for consultation—I do not mind. When the constitution of the committee was decided upon, no doubt the reason given was that the Director of Public Instruction may be concerned with education generally, but with regard to this technical branch he could not be expected to devote either his time or his attention to this particular branch, not being an expert in it. I was told the other day by the Honourable Minister that control is transferred to the Director of Industries ; I did not understand exactly how. Perhaps he will be better able to enlighten me now in what way it is transferred. So far as I see, and I was told by the honourable mover, he is a member of the committee ; he is an ordinary member of it, in fact ; not even the Chairman. Hence I do not see how he can be said to be placed in charge of this particular department, as he should be.

Then, Sir, there is another point, viz., that the certificates which are issued to the students who pass out of the various institutions, are not given under any Government stamp or seal, to indicate that the holder of the certificate is a person who has passed out of a Government institution. Therefore, there is the difficulty of its being recognised as a valuable qualification. Really speaking, the Government of Bombay are conducting these schools and incurring this expenditure, by giving grants to all the various schools spread throughout the Presidency, and it should be the Government of Bombay which should issue a diploma or certificate, or whatever it is, under their own seal and signature, so that it will carry some weight. Otherwise, if the students coming out of these institutions do not possess the necessary certificate from the Government, naturally they do not carry any weight in the market. Therefore, I submit that the time has come when the whole question of this Committee of Direction requires to be investigated, and if any money is saved it ought to be diverted into other channels. I know that the Department of Industries is starving. In fact, there are not enough funds at the disposal of this department. There was a time when the Director of Industries was for a time dispensed with, and the reason was that he had not sufficient funds at his disposal. And what could he do without money ? That was the reason why the post was abolished, and the department was run by some other persons. Now, however, the Council having decided that it is a necessary department, and the need of encouraging rural industrial concerns and industrial and technical education being paramount, I think the more money is devoted to these purposes the better, and therefore the Honourable Minister will do well to see whether more funds could not be placed at the disposal of this department. Out of this Rs. 15,000 at least Rs. 10,000 may be released. Here is an opportunity for him to divert Rs. 10,000 which may be saved to the Department of Industries, in order that the Director may be able to do some other substantial work in his department. I know from my own knowledge that the Director of Industries is doing very useful work, but he is handicapped for want of funds. He cannot do much and we want much to be done. I think even in this financial stringency, it will be possible for Government to consider this question and really give as much money as it can, at least this Rs. 10,000, which will be saved by effecting economy in the direction I have suggested. I therefore submit that the House will support this cut, not with a view to cutting down money but with a view to having an assurance from the Honourable Minister that he will look into this matter and do his best to comply with the suggestions that have been made on this motion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik's motion for a cut of Rs. 100.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Can I go into general discussion ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The Rs. 100 cut is with the object of raising a general discussion. There is no other speaker. The Honourable Minister for a reply.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Mr. President, I am in cordial sympathy with what the honourable mover has said with regard to the improvement of this department. Allow me to inform this House that this department was on the verge of extinction. It was about to be decided that, as there was not money enough, there should be no department of Industries in accordance with the indecent simile used by the mover that it would be better to be a widow than to have a useless husband. I did my best and the department was saved, and now I am doing my best to galvanize and invigorate it.

The mover stated that there was an official president of the Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute. No, Sir. The president is Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee who is not an official. With regard to the other statement that the schools are not inspected and examined by the Director of Industries, I may state that a majority of these schools are already brought under the control of the Director of Industries. A few have been left for special reasons. With regard to the Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute, it has its own constitution. It was established partly by public money and therefore there are certain rules which the society is still following. At one time the University was trying to get the whole of this Technical Institute under them. [Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale: They are still trying.] They are still trying and therefore we do not want to do anything in haste. The whole question is being examined of technology and I hope in course of time to see that some good constitution comes out of it, although there are a number of difficulties. With regard to the examinations, I was very much surprised myself about them when a question was asked in the Council as to the fees that are paid to the examiners. I went into the whole question. This examiner did not know any vernacular and the answers had to be translated for him. It was a very troublesome and complicated system. So, I myself went into it. I am entirely of opinion that the whole process must be changed. But the question as to how it should run in future is being examined and on account of the number of other considerations, we had not taken it up. But it is being rightly taken into consideration by the Department of Education. [Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale: We are concerned with the Secretary and his establishment.] That also, as I said, is an old system. It has been continued, but we are trying to mend the whole system. The whole situation is under revision and it cannot be done in a day. I shall take all the suggestions made by the honourable member for the University and also other suggestions made by the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni into consideration.

With regard to the 4 or 5 complaints of the honourable mover regarding the foreigners and their tricks of trade or their unwillingness to teach our people the technicalities of certain trades, that is a different matter and cannot be taken up by this department. You must take into consideration what you are spending for it. Do you think that 2½ or 3 lakhs will be enough? You will want at least three crores for that. But for the money you spend I shall see that we get the value for it. I have myself sent work to the Director of Industries, for instance, the examination of cloth for uniforms in the Forest Department. I myself see to it that the cloth purchased is Indian. I always give preference to Indian cloth over English cloth. To say that the Director of Industries should do everything in a short time, that is asking too much of me. I am thankful to the honourable members for making useful suggestions. I shall take into consideration these very useful suggestions and I hope to announce on a future occasion what has been done in this matter.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Sir, I beg to withdraw the motion

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I beg to move—

"Reduce by Rs. 500 total demand Rs. 3,66,500 (C. E. page 268.)"

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member's motion pertains to Industries only, not Fisheries.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I am not going to touch Fisheries. In moving this cut my object is to raise a general discussion on Industries. Though I notice with satisfaction that the amount provided for industries this year appears more than that provided in the last year, this is due to the transfer of the amount for technical education from the head education to this head. But the question is not whether a few thousand or a lakh more has been provided or not. The question is whether development of industries is being tackled on right lines in this presidency. This presidency is mainly an agricultural presidency, where there is plenty of raw material and cheap labour available. I want to ask the Honourable Minister in charge of this department, what has been done till now by this department to develop the cottage industries of the presidency? If you refer to page 268 of the Civil Estimates, you will find that out of the provision of Rs. 3,66,500, Rs. 42,490 is for direction, Rs. 12,552 for superintendence, Rs. 51,728 for industrial education, Rs. 2,38,870 for scholarships and grants-in-aid to technical institutions, and only Rs. 20,878 for industrial development. Out of Rs. 2,38,870 provided for industrial education, Rs. 1,77,000 is for grants to local bodies and non-Government technical schools. Now, if this department is there only to distribute half the amount provided under Industries to local bodies and non-Government technical schools, I maintain that there is no necessity of maintaining this department. The Education Department could as well make the grants to local bodies and technical schools from their funds as has been done in previous years. What I really urge is that the development of industries—of what I call cottage industries—has not been taken up seriously by this Government. It is most disappointing that the development of cottage industries has not been taken up till now by the various Ministers who have held charge of this department. It has been often stated and it has never been contradicted that the miserable economic condition of the agriculturists is due to the decay of cottage industries. In ancient times they had incomes from cottage industries to supplement their agricultural incomes. But, as we all know, those industries died out as they could not exist in competition with machine-made goods and no encouragement was given to them by the State. Those industries were never revived and not even an attempt was made to revive them. This is a grave charge on this Government.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: What has died out?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I am speaking of cottage industries.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Will the honourable member mention what industries he means by "cottage industries"?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Handloom, for instance. If my honourable friend the Minister for Education will take the trouble of studying what cottage industries existed in India, he will find out from many authoritative books that in addition to the handloom there were many other handicrafts, carpentry, smithy, basket-making, cane-making, rope-making and other cottage industries, which supplemented the income of the agriculturist population, and that is why in old times the agriculturist population were able to make both ends meet. If you do not want to go to the West, why not take a leaf from the East, Japan? Go to Japan, and you will find what they are doing there. In Japan 160,000 handlooms are working, being managed and supervised by the Government of Japan. They are financed by their Government and their products are sold by Government in the market. The Japanese Government have supplied small machines and electric power in order to enable them to compete with the machine manufactures of the West. Much has been done in Japan and is being done to-day. India, which has greater resources than Japan in raw materials and labour, should be able to do much more than Japan. Japan does not produce any cotton; she has to import cotton from this country or from somewhere else; and yet, she is in a position to compete, especially in hosiery and underwear.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Does the honourable member include the cotton industry in this?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Not the mill industry, but the cottage industry which is thriving in Japanese villages. There are many manuals issued on the subject about Japanese cottage industries, and if the Honourable Minister in charge of this portfolio will take the trouble of reading them, he will find what is being done in Japan. I am not talking of the textile mill industry; I am talking especially of the hosiery industry which is competing with the hosiery industry of the other parts of the world. So, I say there is plenty of scope in this presidency if Government were to take up this question seriously.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: May I ask the honourable member one question? Will he kindly enlighten the House on how much money Japan is spending over this cottage industry?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Sir, it is not a question of money. Whatever amount might have been spent on the development of industry would have been well repaid. Suppose you spend a crore of rupees on the development of cottage industries. The result will be that the purchasing capacity of the people will be increased and they will be in a position to pay more taxes direct or indirect. Therefore, you should not look to the expenditure side of this question. I say that is the greatest stigma on the Government. They have not done anything for the revival of cottage industry which is practically dead. I do not know why they have not done that, but the fact remains that they have not done that. That is why the economic condition of the country is such as we find it to-day. We always clamour and talk about depression, but we must try to see in times of depression that people can get something to tide over the depression. It is no use talking about depression. I would rather give crores of rupees to the industries department than take out a pie from it, because it produces wealth, it gives bread to lakhs of starving people in the Presidency. This House will be always prepared to grant as much as you demand for industries. Instead of 3 lakhs you may ask 3 crores and this side of the House will not grudge you the amount provided it is properly spent.

My point is that development of industry has not taken place. We are at present maintaining a Director, a very able man whom I know very well, on a pay of Rs. 2,000. He is not appointed to that post to give scholarships and grants to the Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute and other institutions. That work can easily be done by the Director of Public Instruction, or even the Deputy Director of Public Instruction can do that. We have appointed an expert, an England returned man, and we must take up earnestly the development of cottage industry. There is ample scope for the advancement of that industry. Take the manufacture of cane chairs. There are industrial schools which are conducted in isolated places by private enterprise or by local bodies which should be encouraged. There are also so many industries from timber, etc. My object in moving this cut is to show that Government has not done anything practical so far as the department of industries is concerned. They ought to have paid and they now should pay—it is late, but still there is some hope—their earnest attention to this department and try to revive old industries which have disappeared. With these remarks I move the cut.

Question proposed.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Sir, I want to support the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik in what he said, namely, that we are willing to allot not only lakhs but crores for the development of industries, because industry alone is the salvation of the poverty-stricken masses. Industry alone can help the Government out of their heavy debts of 70 crores and help to lighten the burden of taxation and to improve the status of the agriculturists of this Presidency.

The Honourable Minister asked us to point out what industries there are. I shall inform him——

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Those industries which are dead.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: I come from a place just adjoining the Mysore province. In Mysore province we have got the sandal oil industry, sandal soap industry and so on. In our district alone there are lakhs of rupees worth of sandal wood trees. I do not know why sandal oil and soap industry should not be started in our district also. I do not know why a factory cannot be started by Government for this purpose.

I do not quite agree with the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni that it is Manchester alone that prevents Government from helping industry. Even apart from Manchester, there is America, there is Japan. We are sending so much money outside. Even Gandhiji has said that he would give preference to Manchester over any other country. I do not think we are justified in saying that Manchester is preventing Government from helping industry. It is in the best interests of Manchester if the industries thrive in this country because the purchasing power of the people will be increased.

I therefore request Government to come to the help of our cottage industries. We are willing to sanction crores of rupees. We are willing to sanction even fresh taxation if the money derived from it is to be utilised for the development of industries, because on it depends the prosperity of the population.

Take the mango pulp industry in Kanara. It is patronised by His Excellency the Viceroy. Recently the manager of the firm sent packages for the entertainment of the Round Table Conference delegates. What is the fate of this industry? The proprietor approached Government for timber which grows extensively in our district. The proprietor wanted to take some timber at his cost. But he could not get the permission from Government.

Then there is the sugar industry. We have one at Keelar just near the famous Gersoppa falls. The proprietor of the concern is a poor agriculturist. He does not know even the A.B.C. of English. He has not attended any school. The factory is situated just near the famous Gersoppa falls. He has got vast areas of sugar cane cultivation. Within a limited scope he can sell 5,000 to 10,000 maunds of sugar at the same rate at which Java sugar is being sold in Bombay.

Then there are sandal wood carvers. Many people in Bombay and some honourable members of this House have purchased several carvings made in Kanara. But they the poor carvers are not able to get sandal wood from Government at cheaper rates. If the State of Aundh can patronize the Kirloskar iron works or the Ogale's glass works, why cannot our Government encourage such industries?

Then there are cane works in our district. But we cannot take cane from the forests. The forest guards and foresters haul us up before the Magistrate if we take cane from the forest.

These are some of the industries of my own district. Without the improvement of industries, how is the condition of poor agriculturists to improve? How is their purchasing power to increase? If there is one constructive suggestion which this side of the House can put forward, it is that Government should improve our industries. Otherwise people will be starving. They are already on the verge of starvation, bankruptcy and I do not know what.

This is a very important subject and I do not think it deserves such a light treatment at the hands of Government. I am opposed to the reduction of even a single pie out of this grant. Agriculture at present is the only vocation which should pay. But does it pay? I shall read a paragraph from the report of the Agricultural Department for the year 1930-31, page 164. Under "General Remarks" the Department says:

"Even the moneylenders and sowcars consider it risky to advance any loan for the cultivation of stable crops and the effect of this depression is likely to be seen in future cultivation. The general indebtedness has been increased in some parts of the Kanara district. Great difficulty has been felt in collecting revenue. The poor cultivators are not in a position to hold out their produce until better prices prevail and as a result, almost all the produce has passed into the possession of the merchants and sowcars at the cheapest possible rate."

This is the state of affairs and this is the biggest industry which the Presidency has. Perhaps the Honourable Minister and some members of this House are not aware that these poor agriculturists have not implements to plough their fields. For a man to be able to plough his field, he must at least have a pair of bullocks. Not having the bullocks, two men drag the plough and do the work done by bullocks. They must have shovels, axes and other implements with which to do their work. But many in Kanara have them not. If this is the state of affairs in the greatest industry of this Presidency, I do not know what good are your scholarships and your colleges which turn out graduates in agriculture and arts and science. I would, in conclusion, only request the Honourable Minister that even if it be necessary to have additional taxation, he should do so and help this industry to show better results.

With these few remarks, I resume my seat.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District): Sir, I rise to support the cut moved by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik, and in doing so, I wish to throw some light on the cottage industries of Sind, a part of this Presidency lying at a distance of 800 miles, and it is likely that honourable members of this House imagine that we are living in a desert and that it is only by the use of the water from the mighty River Indus through the blessings of which that part of the country is being cultivated and inhabited. But I am glad to assure them that though our country is a small and apparently poor country, there is at least this consolation that we give to the world the best of fine art. I think our Sind art is very much like that of Kashmere and those honourable members who have had the opportunity of purchasing that art or of seeing the humble cottages in which this art is being carried on, ought really to feel it to be their human duty to develop that art even from the purely sentimental point of view, if not from any other. Because when we see the art and also have a look at the artist and the manner in which he carries on his life, we feel very sorry and our heart goes direct to them. I myself have visited their cottages and have seen that excellent art is being actually carried on, and I feel that it is really the duty of everyone of us and that it is also the paramount or parental duty of Government to extend a helping hand to those artists so as to save the art and the artists from extinction. I can quote a number of cottage industries that are indigenous and are being carried on in an unostentatious manner, viz. wooden lacquer work, enamelled pottery, printing of woollen and cotton cloth, weaving woollen cloth, carpet-making, woollen durries, embroidery and so on and all other innumerable arts being carried on in cottages——

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Pottery.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH: The Honourable the General Member reminds me of his country and it shows that he has got an appreciation for that industry, namely, pottery, and I think there must be some articles which must be reminding him of these poor artists living in penury in those far-away cottages and thatched huts, hardly knowing how to make the two ends meet even in the best of times. The wooden enamel work, lacquer work, etc. which we call by the name of Hala art is really such work of fine workmanship that I am deeply touched to see the human hands which turn it out and live a beggarly life. I know the artists working in those arts are deep in debt. I have inquired into their condition, but I am not sure whether either the Honourable the Minister or the Director of Industries has ever gone and visited them; if they had gone there and enquired, they would have known how deep in debt those poor artists are. They would have known that those artists do not get enough to maintain themselves or their families. When I asked some of those artists, they simply complained that they had not got the market in which to sell their products. Such a fine art, but they do not know how to dispose of their manufactures! Almost everyone of them is in the hands of the sowkar, the moneylender, to the extent of Rs. 1,000 or so, so that they do not expect to be able to return that debt even within the period of 15 or 20 years.

Now look at the carpet-making industry of Sind. Nobody will imagine that Sind is capable of producing such fine carpets as are obtainable in Persia. This carpet-industry, which at present is only a cottage industry, is worth being developed and, if that is done, our Sind-made carpets will easily compete with Persian and other foreign makes. What nice woollen cloth they make out in the sandy Thar Parkar district! There are heaps of sand in that district and under those very mounds of sand also there are cottages in which this woollen cloth is being woven. Very fine and beautiful printing of cloth is done there, and cloth printed there is being used for curtains and other purposes.

My honourable friend the Minister just now put a question to the honourable mover of the cut and asked whether the honourable mover

would be able to point out a single industry which has died during the regime of this Government——

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: I asked whether in my regime any industry had died.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH: I cannot point out a single industry which may have or may not have died in the regime of the Honourable Minister himself, but I may assure him that it is a fact, and an undoubted fact, that gradually such industries are dying out. Nobody goes to their help, although what they want is a little finance and a good market. If those artists are properly financed and are shown how and where to market their products, and if only Government were to take it into their heads to organise and establish a central concern for the purposes of disposing of these articles of Fine Art manufactured in the cottages of far-off Sind, that will do very well for them because those artists do not want anything else; they do not want any other kind of help from Government; they want only a little sympathy and a little organisation because they are very illiterate, deep in ignorance; they do not know the world outside, they do not know whether or not there is appreciation of their work outside the limits of Sind. I have often purchased some of these art manufactures for presentation to some of my friends in Bombay where I find there is an incessant demand for this kind of art work. I do not know why this very necessary contact between the artists and the consumer should not be established through Government agency. Even recently I brought an enamelled chair and presented it to a friend of mine. He asked for six more and they were supplied. Now he wants one more chair of that kind. There should be some central agency which could establish this contact between the artists and the consumers. It is really the bounden duty and a paramount or a parental duty of Government to establish such a central agency for the benefit of cottage industries. I am not an agent working for these poor artists, but all the same, I am proud to be one of those who take some interest in their welfare and I am doing what one individual can do to make their goods more popular than they are in this part of the Presidency, whenever I happen to be here. It is, I say, the paramount or parental duty of Government, because Government are in the position of parents of the people and they owe this duty to these poor artists. It is quite within their competence to establish some agency which will establish the necessary contact between the artists and the consumer. A little financial help to the artist will do much. You may organise them on a co-operative basis or you may lend them loans and thus prevent them from falling into the clutches of the sowkars and their exorbitant rates of interest. Even if this much is done, the poor artist will be saved from the oppressive methods of the moneylending sowkars. But do anything and save these poor people from extinction, as otherwise with them their art will also perish.

To cut down the establishment of the Industries Department or to cut down the provision made for that department would be the greatest grievance one could have and I for one would be dead against such a proposal. I know it for a fact that there was a tussle in the Retrenchment Committee over this department, but the members of the committee are unfortunately not in touch with the poor artists living in and carrying on their art in cottages. The people living in high skies only look at the pay of the Director of Industries and rush to the conclusion that all this money is being devoured by that officer, namely, the Director of Industries who does nothing according to them. That is not so. Somebody is required to organise and carry on his duties, but he cannot do so if he is not supplied with adequate funds, in the absence of which funds he finds himself considerably handicapped. I do not on that account blame the Director of Industries and what I would suggest is that the Honourable Minister should arrange to place at the disposal of the Director enough money to enable him to organise and finance these artists on the lines suggested by me. If there is a peasant, but if he has not got a plough, how is he going to plough the field and how is he going to reap a harvest if he is not able to plough the field? He must have the plough, he must have the bullocks, he should have the requisite material with which to carry on his ploughing and sowing. He should also have the seed, he should sow that seed and then, when the seed sprouts into a crop, he should cut it and reap his harvest. Similar is the case of the Director of Industries without funds. But if he has got no money of his own and none is supplied by outside agencies like Government or co-operative societies, he can make but little headway. What I want to point out, therefore, to the Honourable Minister for Education and what I also urge strongly is that, if they want to save these poor people from starvation, if they want to solve to some extent the great question of unemployment, then they should make this their concern. A little honest effort and a little active support on the part of Government will meet the needs of these people. Nowadays we cannot solely depend on the agricultural industry, we know how hard we are hit; the zamindars in Sind know what their real condition is and that what they earn they merely earn to be able to pay off the money which they owe to Government in the shape of land revenue.

This is the condition of everyone of us who represents the zamindar class; and our haris are starving. I think we are simply giving them an opportunity to imbibe principles of socialism and Bolshevism. It is no use carrying out big works, appointing large establishments and building palatial buildings for them, and all those things. But you have really to come to the help of the sons of the soil, who are really earning for Government, who are really contributing ultimately to the coffers of Government. If Government are not really taking steps to save them from starvation, they are failing in their fundamental duty towards humanity, and they are not fulfilling their fundamental duty as rulers of this country. With these few remarks, I support heartily the cut moved, and urge upon the Honourable Minister to take the earliest steps to finance this department properly and to organise it on a proper basis.

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

L.C.P.S. DIPLOMA HOLDERS: ADMISSION TO OPHTHALMIC DIPLOMA EXAMINATION.

*Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI (Kaira District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the percentage of blindness and of various other eye diseases is much higher in this Presidency and that it is increasing from year to year;

(b) if so, do they intend to widen the scope of diffusion of special knowledge in Ophthalmics by encouraging and facilitating the study and specialization by doctors practising in the rural areas and diploma holders in that branch of medicine and surgery and thereby provide efficient eye-specialists in the country;

(c) whether they are aware that the L.M.P. diploma holders are allowed to appear for the L.O. diploma examination after about one year's practice in the Madras Presidency;

(d) whether they intend to adopt a similar measure allowing the L.C.P.S. diploma holders of this Presidency to appear for the D.O. diploma examination held in Bombay?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: (a) No.

(b) Government do what they can by supporting the Blind Relief Association and otherwise to make eye specialists available in rural areas.

(c) Government have no information.

(d) In this Presidency the examination in Ophthalmology is open to graduates in medicine and surgery of the Bombay University or of any other University recognised for the purpose by the Bombay University. This examination is regulated by the Bombay University and not by Government.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI: Are Government contemplating or thinking of moving the University of Bombay to adopt the same system as is adopted by the University of Madras?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: That is not the idea of the Government at present.

GUN LICENCES: CANCELLATION DURING CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE MOVEMENT.

*Mr. G. S. GANGOLI for Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): (1) Will Government be pleased to state the total number of gun licences given in the talukas of Sirsi and Siddapur in the district of Kanara as standing at the end of the years 1929-30 and 1930-31?

(2) What is the policy followed by Government in issuing licences to the holders?

(3) Is there any condition in the licence that the licence-holder should not join any political movement?

(4) How many gun licences have been cancelled or suspended in these talukas during the satyagraha movement?

(5) What are the causes that led Government to cancel or suspend these licences?

(6) What is the procedure followed in renewing those cancelled or suspended licences?

(7) Were the guns restored after the call-off of the satyagraha movement by Mahatma Gandhi?

(8) If not, what are the reasons therefor?

(9) If they were restored, when did such restoration take place?

(10) Is it a fact that the villagers whose licences were cancelled or suspended live in the midst of forests and are exposed to the ravages of and dangers from wild animals and beasts?

(11) Have any fresh conditions been imposed or new undertakings demanded from licence-holders whose licences were cancelled or suspended owing to satyagraha?

(12) If so, what are the conditions or undertakings?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS:

(1) Siddapur taluka	..	543 in 1929-30 and 418 in 1930-31.
Sirsi taluka		778 in 1929-30 and 748 in 1930-31.

(2) Licences are given on application at the discretion of the licensing authority to persons who are considered fit to possess arms and who are not likely to misuse them or to allow others to do so, provided the licensing authority is satisfied that the applicant requires the arms for the purpose stated in his application.

(3) There is no such explicit condition, but the first condition of the licence is that it is given subject to the provisions of the Arms Act. One of the provisions of the Act (section 18) is that the licence is liable to be suspended or cancelled if such a course becomes necessary for the security of the public peace. If any licence-holder joins a political movement which is subversive of law and order, the licence is liable to be suspended or cancelled under the condition mentioned above.

(4) Siddapur taluka—50 licences were cancelled and 68 suspended.
Sirsi taluka—9 were cancelled and none suspended.

(5) The licences were cancelled or suspended by the District Magistrate on the ground that a state of lawlessness existed in the talukas and that the persons concerned took an active part in the movement which created the lawlessness and aimed at the subversion of Government.

(6) The parties concerned have to submit applications to the licensing authority asking for the restoration of their licences.

(7) 60 out of 127 suspended or cancelled licences have been restored or re-granted.

(8) In some cases no applications were received for their restoration or re-grant. Out of the 64 applications received 4 were rejected because in the case of three the applicants were in a position to pay their land revenue but persistently refused to pay it, and in the fourth case the applicant being a patil had withheld payment of grazing fees and had resigned his post.

(9) 47 suspended licences in the Siddapur taluka were restored on the dates mentioned below :—

Number of licences.	Date of restoration.
3	3rd March 1931
1	19th March 1931
2	30th March 1931

1	18th September 1931
1	10th October 1931
1	11th November 1931

(10) Not all of them.

(11) No.

(12) Does not arise.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: With regard to the reply to part (8) of the question, what is the name of the person who resigned as patil, and when did he resign?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I do not know.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: May I know who conducted those enquiries, and whether the persons concerned were given a hearing?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: What enquiries?

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: As to their association with the civil disobedience movement or the like; or were their licences summarily withheld?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: The District Magistrate.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: With regard to (10), can Government give a single instance wherein the licensee does not come from a forest village?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I would refer the honourable member to the answer, "Not all of them."

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: I requested for the name of a single person who does not hail from a forest village.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I referred the honourable member to the answer to his question. All the villagers are not exposed to the ravages of and dangers from wild animals and beasts.

WINGATE SCALE: APPLICATION TO THE KONKAN COLLECTORATE.

*Mr. N. N. PATIL (Kolaba District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they propose to apply the Wingate scale to the Konkan Collectorate;

(b) if not, the reasons therefor?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: (a) It is presumed that the Honourable Member is referring to the Kolaba district. The answer is in the negative.

(b) The Wingate scale is intended for the Deccan, and not for Kolaba. In any event Government cannot undertake to extend it now in view of the present financial stringency.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What is the Wingate scale?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: It is a scale for the remuneration of patils in the Deccan laid down by Sir George Wingate a long time ago.

FRAUDULENT COMPANIES.

*Mr. A. K. RESALDAR (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): (1) Will Government be pleased to state if they have come to any decision as to how best to put a stop to the abuse of the dividing principle of several so-called insurance companies working in the Bombay Presidency which, as stated in reply to an interpellation by Dr. Dixit of Surat during the last Council session, was under the consideration of Government?

(2) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the recent judgment of Mr. Gundil, Additional Sessions Judge of Poona, in what is well-known as the Poona Insurance Fraud case in which, while convicting the accused, he expressed the hope that the legislature of the country will undertake suitable legislation to stifle recrudescence of such pestilential companies like the one he had the misfortune to deal with in that case ?

(3) Will Government be pleased to state whether they have submitted any suggestions in this connection to the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: (1) The subject is Central, but Government have drawn the attention of the Government of India to abuses capable of being remedied by legislation.

(2) Yes.

(3) Yes.

PATILS: PAY AND DUTIES.

*Mr. A. N. SURVE (Bombay City, North): Will Government kindly state—

(a) the number of patils in the Presidency proper;

(b) the classes of patils according to the duties they discharge, e.g., revenue, police or other duties;

(c) (i) the number of patils in each of the districts of the three Divisions,

(ii) the number of those who discharge—

(x) police duty,

(y) revenue duty,

(z) police and revenue duties combined;

(vi) whether a patil is a full or part-time servant of Government;

Mr. A. N. SURVE: With regard to (c) (vi), the reply is "The patil is not a full time servant of Government, unless he is a stipendiary." May I know where these stipendiary police patils are employed—in which part?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I think this question should be addressed to my honourable colleague (the Home Member). I have answered this omnibus question out of courtesy to the honourable member, but I am not in a position to answer his supplementary question. I do not know whether my honourable colleague is, but probably he is not.

CHARCHA-MANDAL, BARSI.

*Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE for Dr. V. G. VAISHAMPAYAN (Sholapur City): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Charcha-Mandal at Barsi is a political body;

(b) whether it ever held any meetings since its inauguration;

(c) what is the strength of its membership?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: (a) The Mandal engaged in political activities.

(b) and (c) The Honourable Member should address these questions to the Mandal.

LAND IMPROVEMENT LOANS.

*Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to furnish in a tabular form the amount allotted to each of the Divisional Commissioners during the years 1927-28, 1928-29 and 1929-30 for grants in the shape of land improvement loans and the amounts actually spent in each Division for the above purpose during the aforesaid years?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: No separate allotments are made to the Divisional Commissioners under the Land Improvement Loans Act and the Agriculturists Loans Act for the grant of advances to cultivators, but a lump sum is provided for loans under both the Acts. The Registrar of Co-operative Societies is, however, provided with an allotment to be utilised solely for advances to co-operative societies under the Land Improvement Loans Act. The information required by the Honourable Member is furnished on these lines in the accompanying statement.

DEMANDS FOR GRANTS.

35, Industries.

Question again proposed:

"Reduce by Rs. 500, Total demand, Rs. 3,66,500, 35—Industries."

Sardar Davar T. K. MODI (Surat City): Sir, I rise to make a few remarks with regard to the Directorate of Industries. I sympathise with the honourable members who have made various suggestions, but, Sir, I must confess that I am greatly amused with regard to them, as they want so many things to be done in a meagre budget grant of Rs. 1,20,000. The honourable mover of the cut has traversed a wide range of subjects which he wants to be tackled by this department. The honourable member from Sind (Syed Miran Mahomed Shah) gave a very interesting account of the industries of Sind which could be aided by this department. The honourable member from Kanara referred to the sandalwood industry and the oil and other products which can be made out of sandalwood. Now, Sir, all this requires that the Director be supported by experts in the subjects most in demand in this Presidency. If that be not the case, then the department can be of very little value. The Director at present has got an Industrial Engineer and an Industrial Chemist and a small number of weaving masters. With this staff under him, it could hardly be expected that he could do any work of utility or usefulness to the various industries. Since 1919 we have got a Director of Industries. In the beginning, Sir, he happened to be an I.C.S. officer; a great fuss was made about it, and since 1926 we have got an Indian officer holding this post. But although an Indian has been in charge of affairs, we have so far seen nothing phenomenal done by this department. I am not unaware of the fact that the last report made by this department shows some satisfactory work done, but what I am trying to make out is that the little work that the department has been able to do does not justify the great expenditure which we incur after it, unless we are prepared to make a very adequate provision in the budget for the development of this department. For a large number of years it will not be possible to make any adequate provision in the budget, and therefore it is of no value to maintain this department, and it had better be abolished, done away with, and Rs. 1,20,000 saved a year and used for better purposes. The department may be revived when better times come, and then it should be a fully equipped department, not the nucleus of a department as it exists at present.

Sir, the honourable member for Surat District made many valuable suggestions. A suggestion was also made that even at a considerably higher cost this department should be maintained, but the honourable member for Surat District regretted that the grants given to district local boards for communications were cut down. He will also probably refer to the cut in the educational grant, and I am sure that when the Land Revenue head is under discussion he will tell us that the agriculturists are too poor to pay the land assessment, that they are very heavily assessed. And, Sir, he voted against the Finance Bill. Now, that is a highly inconsistent position. He wants grants to be maintained, he wants this department to be developed, and yet, on the ground of the poverty of the agriculturists, he refuses to vote any supplies to Government. That being the position, my humble suggestion to the Government is to do away with this department, and if it is done away with, I for my part will not weep and wail. Although I am interested in cottage industries, I can say that this department has done nothing substantial towards improving those cottage industries.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat District): Sir, the remarks made by my honourable friend to my left (Sardar T. K. Modi) who just preceded me amused me very much. When several honourable members on this side are crying for having the grant to industries increased by leaps and bounds, my honourable friend advocates that this department should be abolished altogether. Now, Sir, if there is any department in the whole of the Bombay Government which requires encouragement and assistance with a view that the presidency may be in a better position to be able to pay taxation, it is the Department of Industries which should be aided to the greatest extent possible. He said that a department like that is doing very little good and therefore it should be abolished. I may tell him that the present staff which is given to the Department of Industries is small and consists of a small number of weaving masters or assistants to help weaving industry, the industrial chemist and the industrial engineer, and I may say for his information and for the information of the House that they are doing very good work. The industrial engineer who has been employed for some time past, has been doing very very useful work in the city of Surat which the honourable member has the honour to represent. So far as I have been able to gather, that officer has been staying in Surat for some months and he has visited the little workshops of silver and gold thread industries. Surat is doing very large amount of business so far as silver and gold thread industry is concerned. It can compete very well with the imported materials from France and Germany. With the help of this industrial engineer, the Surat Gold and Silver Thread Association has been able to invent a small machine of their own to help them in a work which they were doing with ordinary manual labour. This gold and silver thread industry can be developed to such an extent that it is quite possible in future to stop altogether importation of these threads which are very useful in preparing cloth for women's wear and which is being distributed all over the country from foreign places, France and Germany. Under these circumstances, it is no good running down the industrial engineer and the industrial chemist who have been doing very useful work—their humble best—as far as funds permit. We should, on the other hand, impress upon the Honourable Minister in charge of this portfolio to press for further demands to improve the industries which have been dying out or have died for want of encouragement. If more funds are made available, I think the Director of Industries will be able to help the industries of the country to a great extent. I am glad to find that the Honourable Minister has been able to find larger funds than there were last year. At one time it was talked that the Industries Department should be abolished owing to financial stringency. One is really glad to find that the department has been allowed to live and has actually been able to get more funds for its development. With all the emphasis that I can command, I would press upon the Honourable Minister to get more funds for this department.

Also some remark was made by the same honourable member regarding the voting of my honourable colleague Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai Naik against the present finance Bill, which has passed the first reading and which is at present in the select committee stage. When the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik voted against the Bill, he made his position quite clear that the maximum taxable capacity of the people had been reached and therefore he did not want any further taxation to be levied. I understand from my honourable friend (Sardar T. K. Modi) that the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik is quite capable of defending himself and I need not take brief in his behalf. The Industrial Department is being revived and we should not throttle it at this stage and we must see that it is developed as quickly as possible.

Mr. M. M. KARBHARI (Thana and Bombay Suburban Districts): Sir, the very great need of this presidency is the development of the villages. We know that 75 per cent. of the population are agriculturists and we also at the same time know that the agriculturists in the villages have got more spare time, that is to say, six months in the year. During these six months, they are idle. Most of our trouble is due to this idleness; they are compelled to be idle during six months in the year. While going through this book, I find that the items that are made by Government are more of the nature which would draw the village population to industrial life in the cities. But I think that the object should be to find work for the people in their villages during spare time. What I mean to say is that every district has not the same conditions prevalent. The necessities for the cottage industry of Thana may be different from the necessities of cottage industries of Belgaum. For instance, take Thana. It is a place rich in its forests. The agricultural population should be taught to utilise the forest produce to the best advantage. They should be taught carpentry and work these forest products in their spare time. If we do like that, I think we can make those people contented and happy. I suggest therefore that more money should be spent on the construction and reorganisation of industries which will give enough work to the agriculturists in their spare time, so that they may not leave the villages and agriculture for want of work in spare time and go to the city to the detriment of agriculture.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL AZIZ (Central Division): Sir, during all these 5 or 6 years in this honourable House, I have heard only one honourable member saying that this department should be abolished—I think the honourable member from Surat (Sardar T. K. Modi) is an exception. All the other honourable members have emphasised that we should have this department. What we insist upon is that this department should have enough funds to enable it to do its work properly. Now, it may be pointed out that Government have not got money to allot to this department. As Government have no money, it is no use saying that this thing should be done and that thing should be done. My point is that, though during the last two or three years the financial stringency has been felt by Government, nothing substantial has been done during the last 10 years. Loans have been taken out for several productive works. Loans were taken for the Back Bay and 20 crores have been borrowed for the Sukkur barrage; when those schemes were sanctioned in this House, it was expected that the money would be spent properly and that those works would prove productive. But now we know what the fate of Back Bay has been. As regards the Sukkur barrage we hope at least that it will be successful. What I want to know is why money has not been borrowed for the development of industries. So many states, like Mysore, are giving state aids to industries. Hyderabad is doing something in that direction. If Government is sincere I consider that they should invest money on industrial development which is certain to be productive.

From the year 1923, there had been an advisory committee. That committee has recommended that state aid should be given to industries, and that an Act on the lines passed by the Madras Government should be passed. Since the recommendation of the advisory committee, nothing has been done in the matter. Every time in the report we see that Government say that they were willing to give some help if some company came to them for loans. There were four or five companies who applied for help to Government. Those companies were doing useful work and they also offered to give surety to Government. Still Government refused loans to those companies. That is the way in which industry has been neglected in our country.

I only wish to point out that a work which can be done with a very small amount, that too has not been done. Such works have been recommended by the Director of Industries himself. He has made the following recommendations with regard to the handloom and weaving industry: I quote it from the annual report of the department of industries, 1925-26.

"A central buying agency and an exhibition sale-room may be established in large towns to buy and dispose of the articles made by cottage craftsmen."

This is another recommendation:

"Propaganda may be instituted for educating the taste of the public for indigenous art crafts and other articles manufactured by cottage craftsmen."

I think this thing requires a very small amount of money. Such things also have not been done by the Industrial department. There are so many other recommendations made by that committee. But nothing has been done in the matter. The weaving industry is on the point of death; if Government do not come to its aid, a time will come when the weavers will have to resort to some other course. I am very sorry to state that. In the Delhi conference, the weavers have passed a resolution that they have no occupation at all, because they cannot compete with the mills.

On account of mill competition, they were compelled to seek other sources of work. They resolved that those who earned their livelihood by weaving should wear clothes made by hand-weavers. Now, unless Government comes to their help, they will be compelled to have recourse to stronger measures in their struggle for existence. I therefore request that Government should come to their help. Otherwise the industry will die completely. About 10 lakhs of people live by hand-weaving, and in order to exist they will be compelled to have recourse to methods which will not meet with the approval of Government.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT : Sir, I had no intention of speaking on the question of industries, as the question of industries is such a well-worn subject, at any rate to experienced publicists in India and there is hardly anything new that one can say about it. But the remarks of my friend from Surat (Sardar Modi) require that a few observations should be made. The honourable member advocated that because this grant is so small that nothing can be done by the department, it should be entirely dropped. In advocating this principle, I think he has missed the whole point. And, further still, it was rather amusing to hear his reason when he accused another honourable member from Surat (my friend Rao Bahadur Naik) that if at all he wanted money for this department, he should not have voted against the taxation bills. I venture to say, Sir, that the honourable member Sardar Modi, in looking at the financial policy of the Government of Bombay, has not taken the correct perspective of the matter and has failed to see that money for this department could be made available if there had been proper management of the finances of Bombay. I for one hold that the industries department is the step-daughter and the Cinderella of the Government of Bombay ; and it is so because, in my opinion, certain, departments are getting an undue share of the spending at the hands of Government. Only yesterday we were talking about the Public Works Department and the Irrigation Department. I frankly say that if you take a proper perspective of the funds and the resources at the disposal of the Bombay Government and the way they spend on these two departments, many people will agree that the Public Works Department including irrigation is the department which is too much favoured and pampered at the expense of the department of industries which gets very little share of the spending. Indeed, I do think that the department of industries can thrive even if a few crumbs from the Public Works and Irrigation Departments are thrown over to this department. It does not take a long time to illustrate this point. I think we have something like Rs. 1,27,00,000 to be spent over the Public Works Department this year, a year of attenuated finances. Add to that what we spend on irrigation. Take a perspective of what we have been spending on these two departments, say, during the last five or six years since 1925-26 onwards. You will find that generally the Public Works Department absorbs more than a crore of rupees and the Irrigation Department absorbs somewhere between Rs. 75 to 90 lakhs. Both these departments put together ever since 1925-26 will show an absorption of something like 2 crores. I am speaking about these departments simply to bring out the contrast. Now, it is true that the development of the Presidency requires bridges, roads and kucheries and hospitals and so on, and I must say to the credit of the engineers that they have done this fairly well during the last 10 years since the reforms. But my complaint today is that they have been overdoing it, and we could have got for the Industries department a great deal more if they had curtailed their zeal and their enthusiasm in the matter of that development towards the Public Works and Irrigation branches.

[Mr. B. S. Kamat]

I will illustrate that point further by another factor. A few days ago the Honourable the Finance Member, and I believe the honourable member the Finance Secretary, in a dispute as to how much was spent during the last few years on residential buildings, told us that it was not 15 crores but only 3 crores——

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Also on roads, bridges, and so on.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: Well, I am not disputing the correctness of the figure. But such is the zeal of the Public Works officers—in every building, for instance a public building like this Council chamber—such is their idea of the dignity and greatness of the Bombay Presidency, that they probably overspend for ornamentation and architectural features to the extent of 25 to 30 per cent. I do not see why all that should be necessary and why that extra amount should not be transferred to the Director of Industries. I see the honourable member Mr. Bowers shaking his head. Take, Sir, the case of this Council chamber. The teak wood panelling along the walls is simply in imitation of the Legislative Assembly or perhaps some building in Whitehall. We could do without it. I do not see why we should have such fine flooring, so slippery—as if some members were not slippery enough without it.

I maintain, Sir, that in view of these facts you can hand over the crumbs of the Public Works Department and the Irrigation Department to the Director of Industries and he can spend them with a great deal of benefit for the public of this Presidency.

Now, as regards the question how to finance industries, I am not going into the whole list of larger as well as smaller industries; or rural and secondary occupations for agriculturists. It is easy to suggest a list. The question is one of finance. The honourable member from Surat wanted to find out means how to finance industries. The answer was given by another friend of mine,—I mean Mr. Shaikh Abdul Aziz,—when he referred to what other provinces are doing. He referred to Madras. In Madras there is the State-aid to Industries Act. I believe Bihar also has it. And in Punjab they also have some sort of an arrangement of giving public loans for industries. In this province we have no such Act at all, although for the last 10 years people have been clamouring for it. The Honourable the Finance Member may turn round and ask: "When there is no money in the Government coffers, what is the good of having an Act?" The answer to that is simple enough. If you have a State Aid to Industries Act, it does not necessarily mean that every industry clamouring for finance must be given aid from your current revenue. It only means that people know that there are certain conditions laid down, and if a particular industry, either big or small, satisfies those conditions, well, they can come and ask Government for a loan; if there is no money from ordinary revenues the Government of Bombay can borrow and assist the industry, just as they assist with loans certain public bodies where Government have considered it an advantage to borrow money and advance it to such bodies. I need not mention what those bodies or departments are—they are so very familiar to us. For instance, the Development Department, the Sukkur Barrage the irrigation schemes in the Deccan, and so on. For the purposes of these schemes they have borrowed money, ultimately for the benefit of the agriculturists and the general public. Similarly we can as well urge that they should borrow and assist certain industries also. I think the Industrial Commission of 1916-18 has emphasised this view. It has shown that certain industries, if they deserve assistance, should be given assistance either from their ordinary revenues or if the general revenues do not permit from borrowed funds. I believe the same fact has been endorsed by the recent Provincial Banking Enquiry Committee. They too have pointed out that in certain cases it might be necessary to give such assistance. This much, Sir, with reference to the question of finance.

Now, a word with reference to the personnel of the Department of Industries, a reference to which has been made by one or two honourable members. A few years ago the post of Director of Industries was held by an I.C.S. officer. I believe the Royal Agricultural Commission has pointedly drawn attention to this fact, and the majority of that Commission have taken the view that the Director of Industries should be a man of administrative experience rather than a technical man. I venture to quote a little dissenting minute to that opinion of the Agricultural Commission, in which I have pointed out my view that the Director of Industries need not necessarily be an administrative officer or an I.C.S. gentleman, and that he could be a man of science, but it would be better if he is also a man with business experience and a sense of commercial possibilities of certain industries. Again, the same is the view, Sir, of the Industrial Commission; it is this: that as far as possible it is preferable to have at the head of the Department of Industries a man who is a technical man, but it is preferable if he combines the qualifications of having some business talents. If such a man is not available—I recognise it is very difficult to get a man combining all these qualifications—I would urge that howsoever eminent the man may be in the technique, he should be assisted by an advisory committee of men who are well versed in industrial and commercial practical experience. There was such an arrangement a few years ago. Such an advisory committee has been abolished; and I am only drawing attention to the fact in order to bring to the notice of Government the necessity of reviving the system of the advisory committee to the Director of Industries.

Now, with reference to the other two officers of this Department and the remarks of my honourable friend Dr. Dixit. Undoubtedly the gold thread industry has been improved of late at Surat. While touring in connection with the work of the Bombay Provincial Banking Enquiry Committee I have seen the gold thread machines at Surat; and we made special investigations to find out what the condition of things was and what it is present. Undoubtedly there has been an improvement in that matter. Well, this industry is one of the biggest industries of Surat and of the Bombay Presidency. That fact is there; but, on the other hand, I should draw attention to the fact that a great deal of public comment has been made on the fact that although there is at the head of this Department an electrical engineer, an industrial engineer in addition has been taken up. That is to say, out of the three officers in this department, there are two engineers—one an electrical engineer and the other an industrial engineer—whereas on the chemical side there is only one man. I do not know whether even this one post is going to be retrenched. I do not think that the chemical side of this department is sufficiently reinforced. There are various chemical industries in this Presidency which require to be fostered and that can be done only if the chemical engineer is a capable and experienced man, a man with a great deal of imagination and enthusiasm. I think that we must strengthen the Industries Department on its chemical side.

With reference to the remarks which fell from one or two honourable speakers that certain crafts and arts are dying out and that they can be revived by Government coming to their help, it is true that some of these arts, such as those in Sind to which my honourable friends referred yesterday, are probably not as vigorous as they were some years ago. Their marketing requires attention. The fact must be remembered that in these days there is competition of mechanical production, and no manual production can hold its own as long as we have mechanical means of production.

To a certain extent, therefore, we must expect that old arts may crumble unless something is done in order to prop them up as far as possible. Again, if we look at the pros and cons of this question, it must be said in fairness to this department that if not for the old arts a great deal is being done with reference to modernising the weaving section of industries in this Presidency. Also we must not forget that another department of Government, I mean the Agricultural Engineering section of the department, is doing a great deal towards introducing industries in the rural areas, especially for cottage industries. Men who go round the Presidency with an open mind may be able to see for themselves how many rice mills and grinding mills have arisen, how many little ginning factories are coming into existence and such like agricultural industries which were unknown in India in former times. A number of small factories have grown up and those who go round will be able to see how men with small capital can start small industries. Indeed, such is the competition now that if a man with a small capital wishes to start say a small flour grinding mill he will find the whole field congested even in small villages. The imports of machinery, either of a small kind or of a big variety, will simply show that if some industries are dying, other industries requiring machinery are coming into existence all over the country right from Sind down to Dharwar. It is not, therefore, entirely true that all industries are dying, that nothing new is being done by Government. In fact, I think, Sir, that a number of new industries are coming into existence in this Presidency and the countryside is being gradually industrialised.

When I say this I do not, however, mean to say that the Director of Industries cannot do anything more. I think that if he has imagination and also funds at his disposal, there are a great many things which he can do. The question of unemployment especially of the educated middle classes is a very pressing and urgent question before the Presidency. There are heaps of educated men, B.Scs. and others who are passing their examinations and are suffering from unemployment. There are a good many new small chemical industries which could be started and to which impetus could be given by this department if there is a real effort to do this sort of business.

Technical advice in respect of new industries which are foreign to this country, I mean, manufacture of a good many small articles of everyday consumption in every home, could be encouraged by the department if there is the facility for doing so, especially in respect of technical advice on the chemical side.

Then again, with reference to the training of foremen and craftsmen, I do not think the Bombay Government is doing as much as ought to be done and as is being attempted in two provinces to my knowledge, Madras and the Punjab. This is being done partly by the arrangement which one of my honourable friends suggested, namely, by show-rooms, or something like an exhibition room in which all kinds of works of art could be collected together occasionally and where the craftsmen should be brought together once or twice in a year and a sort of a spirit of healthy rivalry should be brought into existence amongst them and where fresh ideas could be put into their heads, where expert advice could be given for improvement, where training in and facilities for new business could be imparted, where they could be shown new patterns, new methods and new ideas of conducting their business could be instilled into them. I think Bombay Government is not to my knowledge attempting to have such exhibitions where the craftsmen could be brought together. Indeed, there are many directions in which this department can work provided it is supplied with funds, and I for one would urge upon Government not to starve the Industries Department but to spare a good deal of money from the other departments to which I have just now referred. If this is done in right earnest with a sincere will, I think we can scrape together for promotion of industries far more money than the pittance of a lakh of rupees or even the three lakhs, which has been given to this department up to now.

Rao Bahadur S. N. ANGADI (Belgaum District): Sir, I do not wish to make many observations in connection with the cut. It was suggested by one of my honourable friends Sardar Modi that the sooner this department is done away with, the better. I am not one of those who hold that view and I do say that if there is any department which ought to be encouraged very much, it is this department of industries. And now, Sir, it has been pointed out by my honourable friend Mr. Kamat that many

rice mills have sprung up in the mofussil, that there are many factories all over the Presidency, and that they all show signs of prosperity and so on! Of course, that is one view of the matter, but I do feel that there is not much encouragement to the department in the sense that there is not any industrial education which is what the people stand in need of. You will see, Sir, that whenever a question is raised with regard to this department, it is sometimes asked of us, as if every member of this House should come with all the knowledge of every industry in his head, to point out ready-made schemes. It is not possible. All that we are concerned with is this that we know as a matter of fact that industry is a thing through which our salvation lies, in which the salvation of the people lies, and that it ought to be encouraged as much as possible. With this in view, we offer certain criticisms which should be taken in the spirit in which they are offered. Otherwise, I want to know from Government why is it that we maintain this department at all unless it is for spreading industrial education and unless it is for spreading knowledge of industries amongst the people? If the suggestion that the department should be done away with was made by the honourable member Sardar Modi for the reason that it is not spreading industrial knowledge and so on, then I entirely agree with him. It is of course no use merely maintaining experts unless you maintain them to find out different ways and means, to find out new industries, to find out possibilities of development, and if the department has not been doing it, well, the sooner it is done away with the better. But I take it that the question for our consideration is whether the department has been given full freedom which ought to be given to it, which in other words means whether the Government of Bombay are placing at the disposal of the department as much money as they ought to. If there are no funds we cannot expect the Director of Industries to show miracles, it all depends on the money you give to the department. The Madras Government and the Punjab Government, as was pointed out, give sufficient funds and they are doing a lot of things in the matter of encouraging industries, while we here, rather the Bombay Government, have not been doing anything. So, in that way the question is whether this Government ought not to find more money to be placed at the disposal of the Director of Industries. I know of course the Director of Industries has been receiving over a thousand letters and so on from the various people in the Presidency. From his report we find a number of things mentioned therein, that a thousand letters were received through the post and had to be answered by post. We also find it mentioned there that 100 to 150 people were interviewed by the Director of Industries and were supplied with information, but all that I do not think will really solve the problem of industrial education. Something very substantial has got to be done and it is not merely a question of answering a thousand letters or interviewing some 100 or 200 people. Something more substantial than that has got to be done, and to do that, the Honourable Minister should place at the disposal of the department enough money. We must see that proper industrial education is given in the Presidency and unless that is done

[Rao Bahadur S. N. Angadi]

I do not think that we can have industrial education in the near future or in the way in which we ought to have it.

Again, Sir, I would only point out that we are asked to indicate what industries should be developed and what are the possibilities. To that I have already replied that it is not our business, we only say that it is a good thing and industries ought to be developed. But apart from books, if any Government Member were just to go casually to a shop in the Crawford Market, he would find a variety of articles in any shop and it ought to be seen by the Director of Industries whether any of these things which are in the shops could be made by our people here and if there are any such possibilities, whether they could be explored or not. These are all matters which ought to be attended to by the Department of Industries and also by the Government.

We find, Sir, that on the outbreak of the War, there was a considerable encouragement given to industries and it was so because the supply of articles imported from Germany and other countries was at once stopped, and Government were compelled to throw themselves upon the resources of the country and all of a sudden there was sufficient encouragement given to industries, and we find from one of the books which have been published by Mr. Holland, who was the Chairman of the Munitions Board, that many articles which were never manufactured in India were manufactured at very short notice. I would especially point out that the dyeing of khaki could not be done without a substance called chrome-alum imported from Germany, but that substance came to be manufactured at one of the Madras mills. It was of course a surprising thing to know that, but it came to be done under providential compulsion if I may say so. But it is not this kind of encouragement that we want and advocate. The encouragement that we are after is encouragement which springs from the heart. If there is real encouragement, there is no reason why our industries should not be developed at all.

Similarly, you will find, Sir, that in the Punjab carpenters did a lot of wooden work for the Army. It was done in such a manner that the work done was considered to be cheap and most efficient, and also turkey-red soil which was imported from the United Kingdom was made at Madras from indigenous castor oil and Indian made sulphuric acid. All this was as soon as the War broke out, which proves that under compulsion it is quite possible for India to manufacture all these things which are now being imported from foreign countries. So, I want to suggest that it is not under compulsion that there should be encouragement, but encouragement should come from the Government. Government should have proper regard for the interests of the people and they ought to encourage these things. It is for them to find out whether there are possibilities of development, it is for them to maintain experts which they do at such a heavy cost to the tax-payer and it is for them to ask the Director of Industries to find out whether there are not possibilities of development. It is the duty of the Director of Industries, and if he cannot do that or if he does not do that, then sack him off. What is the use of maintaining him and his department? But, as I said before, to enable the Director to make his services fully useful to the Presidency, Government should place at his disposal sufficient funds, without which you cannot expect him to do more than he is already doing.

We know that the excuse of financial stringency is always put forward. To that my honourable friend Mr. Kamat has made a reply, but it may be casually pointed out that, apart from such criticism, when the Government of Bombay had to make provision for carrying out the recommendations of the Lee Commission, the Bombay Government suffered itself to be saddled with an additional expenditure of ten lakhs. We do not know how that money came to be made available, how Government were able to come by ten lakhs. What I want to suggest is that if Government have a real heart they can certainly find out some money for this purpose also. If they can find out ten lakhs at one stroke, I fail to understand how they would not be able to find out one or two lakhs for the department of industries. Unless this is done, how are we going to have satisfactory progress at all?

Again, Sir, the only industrial activities useful to the people at large, from our Government's point of view, are found in Indian jails. That is what I find. It is in the jails that people are taught weaving, carpet-making, furniture-making, tent-making and so on. A variety of articles are made in the jails, and I ask, are you going to teach your citizens that if they want to have some industrial education, they had better go to jail? Is that the way you are trying to spread industrial education? Is it not more fair and in the real interest of the mofussil people, in the interest of agriculture, that something must be done? There is a surfeit of men with literary education in the country and that type of education has reached the extreme point of diminishing returns. When this is so, is it not fair that Government should find out other ways of providing a livelihood to its citizens? So, looking at this question from that broad point of view, I do say that the Government of Bombay have been giving very scanty attention to this department. This department ought to be encouraged. The Government of Madras, if I remember correctly, in 1928 or 1929 had budgetted for 17 lakhs for the Industries Department, while here we find only Rs. 1,20,000 provided. What a difference it is! In Madras they are able to allot Rs. 17,00,000, which comes to more than 12 times our provision. Therefore, I say, taking all these matters into consideration, it is not fair that this department should be neglected. It is equally important along with the department of primary education, and we find, Sir, that the tendency is to make the axe fall as heavily as possible on such departments as are useful. So, I do hope that Government will have regard for our feelings, and see to it that, as far as possible, the grants to such departments are not curtailed. With these words, I support the honourable mover Rao Bahadur Naik.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, it is not that this motion has been moved with the view that there should be any real curtailment in the Industries Department, but the object of the motion is to point out that this department is not properly treated.

Sir, if we look to the figures which have been mentioned with regard to this department, it is only the pay and the travelling allowance of the various officers of the department that we see But the question is, what are the Director or the Superintendents or other officers to do, if really they are not given material upon which they are to work? We find under "Contingencies" an amount of only Rs 3,000 provided for "Experimental works," and an amount of Rs 1,000 for "Agricultural exhibition" Really, the services of these officers are not properly utilised, and it is in this sense that I think the honourable member Sardar Modi said that if this department is to be treated in this fashion, it is better if it is done away with Therefore, the complaint on this side is that since the beginning when this department was started, it has not been properly treated Sir, the Honourable Minister who is in charge of this department, was one of the persons on this side of the House who was complaining that this department is not properly treated and no sufficient funds are provided for it I might remind this House that it was the practice, whenever any Minister or Member of Government rose to make a demand—it was rather the policy before making a demand—to make a short speech and show what programme of work was intended in that department What is the position now? We find it is simply a formal business A Minister rises, there is a demand made for so many lakhs, and he sits down It is impossible for honourable members to understand what programme of work is intended to be pursued by that department, or how it is going to be developed, we have no enlightenment now with regard to it In the Industries Department so many items have been shown, involving an expenditure of over a lakh of rupees, but we have not been told how the various industries are going to be developed, or what programmes are going to be followed No light has been thrown on the programme of this department

I remember, Sir, that in the year 1925, the then Minister who was in charge of this department stated that he was contemplating the introduction of a Bill for giving monetary aid to small industries That Bill, which was announced as far back as 1925 has not been coming forward. I think it was the Honourable Mr Jadhav who stated in 1925 on the floor of this House that he was contemplating the introduction of a Bill to give monetary help to cottage industries That was one of the programmes which he had chalked out, and he stated it when he made a demand for the Industries Department In the past, Sir, a complaint was made from this side that our industries are starving for want of proper persons at the head of the Industries Department. Honourable members on this side thought that the department was in the hands of a person whose interests rather clashed with the interests of this side of the House, and therefore the complaint was repeatedly made that the department should be in the hands of an Indian, and actually, in the year 1924, this department was practically done away with, because it was at that time in the hands of an I C S. officer, or a person whose interest might perhaps conflict with the interests of the country Now we find that though the abovementioned cause of the backwardness of the Industries Department has been removed, and though the department is in the hands of an Indian, he has not been given sufficient funds to work with, and we now find the same results as we found in the past. With the change in personnel, we have not improved at all The change from an I.C.S. Director to an Indian Director was meant for this, that if there is an industry which requires encouragement, being an Indian the Director of Industries might encourage it, whereas in the other case there might be certain obstacles placed in the way of encouraging that industry, because there are various interests in India which conflict with one another Therefore, it was pressed from this side of the House that the department must be in the hands of an Indian. Sir, it is not that the Honourable Minister in charge is ignorant as to what industries are being carried on in India and which of them require development We know that the Government of Bombay had appointed an officer—if I remember rightly, it was Mr. Hogarth—to go round and make a survey of industries. If they want a list of industries, they have only to look into their papers, and they will find a number of industries which require encouragement, but the only difficulty is that the Government are not serious enough to find the money for it, because, I must say with regret, the interests are somewhere conflicting. There is not the mentality to encourage Indian industries, because there would be a clash with other industries; and this department, although there is a change of personnel, is not allowed to come forward.

The other day, when I was speaking on the subject of the loans to the Improvement Trust, I was just referring to the total amount which this province was going to borrow. Just at that time, the Honourable Member in charge cut me short, because it was a subject which was not connected with the point under discussion—it was not pertinent to the question of the loans to the Improvement Trust What I was pointing out was that the amount of Rs 4,41,00,000 out of loan money has been frittered away in various activities, but the money was not given to the departments which stood in need of funds In this connection, I would like to ask, when we are going to borrow money for various other purposes, why not borrow money from the loan fund for industrial improvement, and thus furnish the Industries Department with the necessary resources ? Now, the Bill for giving State aid to small cottage industries is over-due. If there is a State Aid to Industries Bill, provision can be made in it for helping small industries financially. It is not necessary that we should find money from our general revenues for the purpose. If Government is ready to help small industries, persons who want to start them might come forward to borrow money from Government, just as the Bombay Municipal Corporation and the Bombay Improvement Trust have done, at a certain rate of interest, and the burden of the debt would not fall on the presidency's finances. If there is any such provision, even small industrialists might be very willing to borrow money at the rate that Government usually demands, and in that way there would be no burden of debt thrown on the province Sir, the Honourable Minister in charge, when he was on this side of the House, was crying out that the Industries Department was receiving step-motherly treatment Now that he is the Minister in charge, I hope he will find his own way to introduce this Bill for giving monetary assistance to cottage industries And that is in the interest of the Government themselves Government are now spending such a large sum of money in the working of the ordinances and to maintain order and peace in the country. But have the Government considered to what at least a part of the agitation is due? It is simply due to unemployment in the country. It is simply the economic question mostly. There might be political considerations, I admit, but the whole trouble is due mostly to economic conditions Everywhere there is unemployment—unemployment among the educated classes, unemployment among the middle classes—and this unemployment problem could be solved by the Industries Department If cottage industries are everywhere developed, if industrial schools are started, and if Government find money to develop these industrial schools and the cottage industries, I think the question of unemployment would be solved, and there would be peace in the country, and the money which we have been spending over the enforcement of ordinances and the police could be saved. The people are now unemployed, their brains are idle, and Government will understand the results of these idle brains So, it is in the interests of Government themselves that they must seriously consider this question. Otherwise, we will be simply having so many officers carrying on correspondence, giving advice, and doing practically nothing else They have not got the material I do not blame them They are all good persons, they are experts. But the complaint is that they are not given the proper material to work upon; they have no material with which to start new industries. The only industry which I find they are tackling, is weaving Formerly, there was the pottery industry I know here and there there are certain schools, but from the details I find there are only the weaving assistants But weaving has all along been an industry in India. It does not require help to that extent, because it is not a very new industry What we want are industries which will develop the material condition of the province. We want to see that so many articles which are consumed in our daily life should be produced in our country, which would give employment to our own people Instead of ordering the articles out from outside, from foreign countries, we should see that they are produced in our own country, so that the money which is going out of the country is retained in the country. Government know the problem, but they are not serious enough to consider it and help to find a solution for it

There are one or two other circumstances in this connection which I would like to touch Sir, not only are Government not helping cottage industries, but when there are other persons who are helping these cottage industries, I have been seeing that certain obstacles are put in their way, sometimes directly and sometimes indirectly. I think the Honourable Minister is aware of it that certain industries are being helped and developed in all the villages now Take for instance hand-spinning and hand-weaving. Everywhere people have been taking to this industry. Everywhere there is hand-spinning and hand-weaving going on And what do we find Government doing? They are putting checks upon the progress of that industry. No doubt, it might be to quell political disorder and political agitation, but the result is to give a set-back to this industry It might be done intentionally, or through inadvertence, but we find that over-zealous officers working these ordinances have been going and searching Khadi Bhandars and sometimes attaching them This is purely an economic question There may be certain persons in charge of those institutions having certain political opinions. Because those persons hold such views, is it fair that that institution which serves as a market for the sale of such products should be closed down? Khadi Bhandars are merely markets for these articles. But I do not want to quote the names of the many Khadi Bhandars and Swadeshi shops which have been locked up by the police. By closing down these Khadi Bhandars and other institutions Government have stopped the hand-spinning and hand-weaving industry To this extent the hands of the Director of Industries are restrained. I read in newspapers that a certain police officer prohibited a man wearing a khadi cap from going to a certain place Persons wearing white caps are stopped, their names taken down and several other questions asked of them What is the result? The white cap may be a sign of a political faith, but many wear it as a matter of economy and an encouragement to Swadeshi. But there is the fact that during the last two or three years an enormous number of caps—the result of hand-spinning and hand-weaving—have been produced in India In their zeal to put down this political sign, they are likely to give a set-back to the cap industry Therefore, we ought to look upon this department as one giving facility and solving the economic difficulties of the people Unless this department gets more funds, there is no prospect of any material development in India. This is the only department which, if fully developed, can solve and remedy many of the evils which India is subject to. Therefore, I appeal to the Honourable Minister in charge to see and find out large resources and bring in a Bill to give State aid to indigenous industries. Then only there will be a justification for the maintenance of this department Otherwise, as my honourable friend Sardar Modi said, I am inclined to say that it would be better to abolish this department This department should not exist simply to fill in forms to show to the world that we maintain an Agricultural Department, and an Industries Department and so on. This is not a substantial encouragement With these words I support the cut

Mr. J. S KADRI (Northern Division). Sir, I would dwell on one aspect of the problem, which has not been touched by the other speakers, and that is the educational side of industrial training This aspect is very important, in so far as it affects the general welfare of the public at large I find that the Department of Industries is not co-operating closely with and co-ordinating its efforts with those of the Educational Department That is the reason why tangible results are not accruing from its activities What I would suggest is that the Department of Industries should work in direct concert with the Educational Department and introduce suitable industrial training in primary schools, because primary school is the cradle where all elementary education, secular as well as industrial, should begin. In most of the western countries, as well as in Japan and other enlightened countries of the world, we find that industrial and manual training is not divorced from literary education If we want to foster industries in our country, school children should be encouraged to cherish a love and taste for industrial work I think we should lose no time in effecting a radical change in the educational system of our presidency with a view to adapt it to the industrial needs of the country Unless we infuse in our little children a passionate love for home industries from their very infancy, it would be difficult to have such industries fostered in this country It is no use taking up adults for industrial education. It is the budding youths who can, if well trained from early years at school, become skilled artisans and turn out to be ardent promoters of useful industries in the country At present too much attention is paid to the teaching of the Three R's and too little to the training of the hand and the eye in our schools To remedy this defect, I suggest that the Educational Department should combine simple industrial and technical training with secular education in our primary schools, so that in course of time, the little children may acquire skill in the use of their hands and eyes in the technique of some useful and beneficial handicrafts and may be able to utilise their education in the Three R's (reading, writing and reckoning) to better purpose Too much time and energy of pupils at school are consumed in learning the Three R's, but in many progressive countries, now-a-days, greater importance is attached to the Three H's—the training of the hand, the head and the heart This training is considered to be more useful and beneficial for children and I think that it should receive special attention in our schools Unless our whole educational system is remodelled and revolutionised, there will be very little chance for the country to rise in the scale of industrial prosperity In my opinion, therefore, it is very necessary that we must go to the root of the problem and arrange that elementary industrial instruction is imparted from the very beginning in our primary schools

If this suggestion is taken up in right earnest, there would be no need for large additional expenditure and it may be possible to turn out much useful work in industrial training in our primary schools, with means already at our disposal But I do not mean by this that no additional expenditure should be incurred in promoting industrial education Certainly, more money is needed to enlarge the scope of industrial and technical education. I think this House, if it is really in right earnest, can manage to divert or appropriate a reasonable amount from other departments, for example, the Public Works and the Irrigation Departments and earmark the same for industrial and technical education Unless we press Government to do that, there is very little hope for this department to expand and develop as rapidly as we desire With these words, I would urge upon this side of the House the necessity of putting up a united front for more funds for this department and advising Government to appropriate funds from other departments, from the money-spending and fat departments, for the highly important and useful Department of Industries

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu) Mr President, I support the motion that has been moved by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik If we look into the budget, we find that the provision for industries since 1927 had been gradually curtailed and it was only in 1931-32 that the provision was increased appreciably and the same amount is retained for the next year also The total provision of Rs 3 66 lakhs includes Rs. 2 39 lakhs for technical education leaving only Rs 1 28 lakhs for Industries proper The mere statement that pulav is very good for taste will not satisfy the hungry man and keeping up the department for the sake of name will not improve our Industries He must eat it and get satisfaction from it Other provinces in India are spending annually between Rs. 5 to 10 lakhs.

In Sind, there is silk industry and dyeing industry—many other industries which have a world-wide reputation In Hyderabad, very fine shawls are made, but the industry is fast dying for want of encouragement These manufactured articles are appreciated in western countries where Sindhis are doing business. In America and Japan these articles are in demand There is another industry of wood carving work and small tables, chairs and so on with ornamental work are made This industry does not even get the concession of reduced railway freight A few yards from this Hall, there is a famous Sindhi firm where articles manufactured in Sind are sold The American and other western tourists purchase them and carry them to their countries This provision is only a pinjrapole, i e an institution to feed officers only . We do not want it In Hala and Nasarpur, there is a very famous industry of clay tile works with glaze and enamel which lasts for centuries In Sind 5 lakhs of people used to depend for their livelihood upon craft work and artistic works Government is spending lakhs and lakhs of rupees over the Police Department at the cost of such nation-building departments as the Industries Department, but nothing is done to revive these dying industries.

Mr. President, I do not want to take much time of the House. In my opinion instead of accepting this meagre sum of Rs 1,27,000 for this important department, it is better to reject the whole grant I shall just quote what the Honourable Minister in charge of this Department,

when he was on this side of the House, said. I am reading from the Debates of 9th March 1926 I am sorry I do not know much of English, but I shall try to read the passage

"I wish, Sir, there had been a Minister who was a public man before being a Minister who was responsible to the public demands and who had a strong personality. Sir, you will pardon me if I say that when you, for instance, were on that bench and when Sir Chunilal Mehta was on that bench,—that is Ministers who had some public experience,—then, Sir, we knew you could get what you wanted Why? Because you could fight and offered to resign if your legitimate demands were not listened to and granted——"

The Honourable the PRESIDENT May I suggest to the honourable member that the honourable member next to him might read that portion?

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH. I have finished reading the portion, Sir. Only one sentence

"But what is the use of our complaint when we know the personal element in the Minister was wanting?"

That is what the Honourable Moulvi Saheb said when he was on this side of the House Why does he not follow his own suggestion and resign and join us if he does not get what he wants for his department? This is a very important nation-building department and we are not going to be satisfied with a sum of Rs 1,27,000 I request honourable members to support me in what I say.

Rao Bahadur S. K BOLE Sir, the Honourable Minister asked the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik to let him know what were the cottage industries of this Presidency I am going to point out to him some of the cottage industries of the Konkan——

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD I did not ask what were the cottage industries I asked which of the cottage industries suffered during my Ministership.

Rao Bahadur S. K BOLE. That I cannot say I will just bring to his notice some of the cottage industries——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT In that case the honourable member, I suppose, is not going to speak?

Rao Bahadur S K BOLE I am going to point out what cottage industries there are in this Presidency with the object of getting support of the Honourable Minister if he finds sufficient funds May I speak, Sir?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Yes, if the honourable member wishes to speak

Rao Bahadur S K BOLE At Malwan there is a pen factory where nibs are manufactured They are not inferior to foreign nibs Sir, once I had been to see the late Police Commissioner Mr Edwardes and he told me that he was using the Malwan Swadeshi nibs and he found them superior even to foreign made nibs I do not know how many officers are following his example and giving their support to indigenous industries

[Rao Bahadur S K Bole]

Sir, there are men who can manufacture these and other kinds of articles, but they do not get any encouragement Had the proprietor of the pen factory been supplied with sufficient funds and had orders been given to him, then he would have started his factory on a bigger scale

When I went to Vijaydurg I saw button factories Buttons are made of cocoanut shells of various shapes, but no orders are given to them by Government or the public So they cannot cope with the competition If sufficient capital is given to them, they would start their business on a bigger scale and that would be to the benefit of this Presidency

In the Konkan there are lots of cocoanut trees Many sorts of articles can be made out of these trees from their branches and nuts. Rope can be made out of cocoanut fibre But no encouragement is given to the people living in the Konkan So also there are bamboo trees Baskets etc could be made on a large scale out of these trees if support is given Then there are cane industries, match industries There are so many industries, but for want of support and encouragement they are not thriving. Nobody cares to look at the cottage industries.

One of my friends came from Japan and he told me that in Japan there are factories, not on a large scale as in Bombay He told me there are pencil making factories and these are carried on even by women. About 50 women get together and carry on the business, and they are competing with foreign pencils In that way if Government gives encouragement to our people to carry on cottage industries, I think our industries will be carried on, on a larger scale

Mr. L. R GOKHALE (Poona City) Sir, while dealing with the question of industries, I think we should direct our attention towards the question of commercial education, in connection with industries When an article is prepared, it is very essential that that article should be pushed in the market, and for that special training is necessary Not only industrial education, but also commercial education is wanted in connection with the various industries I think, Sir, there is no doubt in the minds of many of us that there are many industries—cottage industries—which require encouragement I may mention, for instance, the toy-making industry There are a number of toys that can be made out of small pieces of tin and iron—the small fishes that come from Japan are made of tin There are also so many other articles made out of wastage If that industry is encouraged and taught in India as a cottage industry, it will give a great deal of impetus not only to young boys but also to other people I am told that something like 60 lakhs of rupees are spent on purchasing these toys from foreign countries If that be so, is any effort made by the Industries Department to encourage this industry ?

There is another industry—the manufacture of china jars In this Presidency china clay is available in many places, but for want of help and special technical knowledge this industry does not prosper Many people have attempted to prepare china jars in India but there have been many failures The simple reason is that there is no guiding hand available

I must mention another industry—lace making industry Lace making is very popular in this Presidency It is flourishing in cities like Poona, Nasik and elsewhere If a new direction is shown to lace makers, I am sure this will be a very paying concern I am told that this lace is nowadays used in England and other countries for ladies' shoes, and a piece of lace which costs about a couple of rupees in India is sold in foreign countries at something like Rs 8 or Rs 10 English ladies, I am told, are very fond of laces which they use on their shoes. If an attempt is made by the Industries Department to introduce changes in this industry so as to bring it up to date, I am sure it will bring a good deal of money from foreign countries But I find that this department takes no interest whatsoever in this important matter

Several foreign countries have kept their agents in big towns like Bombay and Karachi Interested in the industries of their countries, they try to push on sales of their wares in this country They take real interest in the progress of their respective countries Let us compare this with what is being done by the Industries Department of our Presidency Is there any agent going round in the cities or in the country and trying to gain knowledge as to the cottage industries? You must gather information about these industries by visiting various places, villages and towns Unless that attempt is made, there is no hope for our cottage industries It is the duty of the Minister in charge and Government—of course with the help of the people—to try to find out ways and means to encourage these industries I know another industry, for instance cane-making This industry can be properly utilised Among our people there are some castes or some people who from heredity acquire special aptitude for the cane-making business, but that business is now going out of their hands That is equally for the reason, in the first place, that they are not able to collect the necessary small capital which they require for the purchase of cane; and, secondly, they are not able to find customers for the articles prepared because they are not accustomed to go out of their villages or towns and to go round the country and sell those articles which they make We hold here no industrial fairs, no exhibitions where these articles can be exhibited Has the Industries Department arranged one or two exhibitions for these cottage industries where their products could be exhibited and customers secured for them? There are a hundred and one ways in which an honest effort could be made to promote these cottage industries Therefore, my object in supporting this cut is to point out the various cottage industries and especially the methods by which these industries could be substantially helped by the Government and the experts in these various manufactures

As regards the present Industries Department, I may say one thing Once there was occasion to consult the head of the department as regards the industry of extracting oil and he was asked what information he could give. The gentleman who went to consult him was asked by him to give his figures and ultimately he was told that it was very difficult to have oil extracted in India in competition with foreign oil He was further asked to show how vegetable ghee could be made, but the gentleman was told that it was very difficult to compete with foreign vegetable ghee That was not what was wanted from that officer He was wanted to show the ways and means by which this vegetable product could be prepared in India so as to compete successfully with foreign manufactures Vegetable ghee is being sold in the Presidency now on a very large scale and is taking the place of ordinary ghee I am sure that if proper attention is paid to this industry by the department, that industry will be a paying concern. It is an industry capable of yielding a substantial monetary help to the manufacturers who are extracting oil in the Presidency Even in this direction I found that no special information could be available and no help could be obtained 'There are a number of ways in which the department could be materially useful to the people, but the only thing is that it is more or less a 'department which is formally there for the purpose of collecting statistics but really and actually gives very little help to actual manufacturers or those who are interested in the particular manufacture of any particular article' Unless this mentality is given up by the department, no earthly good could be achieved from the existence of this department That department ought to know that its office in Bombay is not all that is wanted. Has that department agents going round the Presidency? Has that department tried to ascertain what possibilities there are in the materials available in the Presidency?' 'They have got their office in Bombay where three or four officers sit together and make a long report. Beyond that, practical education is not given, 'practical effort is not made to encourage industries.

Also, I would suggest that there should be an effort made in co-operation with the Education Department to have industrial classes or classes with industrial bias in the primary and secondary schools. That attempt is not being made. I am sure that if the local boards in the various districts are approached, they would be very willing to co-operate with Government and the Industries Department to have industrial bias classes In fact, in the whole Presidency there are hardly more than half a dozen schools where industrial education is imparted. Why, I do not know. Why should you have very few industrial institutions? Is it not possible to attach industrial bias classes to the existing schools, primary and secondary? That experiment ought to be made The money spent on education up to now has been almost a failure in many respects. Boys who take education ultimately look to service as their goal, they are not inclined to follow the professions of their parents or of their caste and they become in both ways unfit, unfit for the profession for which they were intended and trained, and unfit for public service. In that way there is such an amount of wastage of money and material, which ought to be looked into My suggestion therefore would be that the Industries Department's duties should be to

t.y to approach the various institutions maintained by Government and in consultation with them, efforts ought to be made to introduce industrial bias education. After a boy finishes his fourth vernacular standard, if he is given some additional instruction in industries, that will stand him in good stead in after-life

I would suggest also one more method to promote industrial advancement of the people There should be collection of information showing the castes of people interested in particular handicrafts If that is done, material will be available for introducing or encouraging certain handicrafts in certain villages or towns. I know that the present census reports do not collect information from that point of view, but what they give is only what professions the people are following, without trying to ascertain or to give information as to what professions these persons used to follow previously If that information is collected by the department, they can successfully do it and upon the information collected thus, it will be possible to start or give impetus to various industries in various towns and villages That attempt should be made and I feel sure that we shall have prosperous industries, at least prosperous cottage industries in many parts of this Presidency. It is not known how many industries we have We have noticed in the papers that there has been a very great increase in the number of sheep in some districts of the Bombay Presidency The increase of sheep is so large in some of the districts that it was questioned what it was due to, and it was found ultimately that it was due to the demand for wool from the sheep due to the Gandhi movement because the people wanted Indian wool and therefore kept more sheep and the result was that the number of sheep has grown treble in some districts. This fact is testified to in a Government report where it is said that this increase is due to the Gandhi movement In that way, if an honest effort were made to give impetus to the industry the country will be benefited in many ways It is for this reason that I suggest that there should be a thorough overhauling of the department and that department should be put upon an actual, practical line of work. Industrial work does not mean collecting of information or maintaining of an establishment It means actual, creative work in industries, encouraging existing industries, and upon these lines alone, this department should be allowed to exist, otherwise, its purpose is not achieved by its mere existence If that department wants to be allowed to continue, then it should adopt some of the practical lines of work suggested by me and some other honourable members who have preceded me, otherwise it would be no use spending more money on that department

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK (Surat District) Sir, from the general discussion on the subject of industries it will be seen that each and every honourable member who took part in the discussion has emphasized the necessity of expanding this department and spending much more money than is at present spent on it, except perhaps one honourable member Sardar Modi I do not take the honourable member Sardar Modi very seriously as I hold the view that perhaps he does not know what industry is. I presume his ignorance because if he knew about industry, Sir, he ought to have referred even by a word to one of the oldest and largest industries which exist not now only but have been existing for years in the city which he is privileged to represent in this House I refer to the gold and silver thread industry and also silk industry of Surat My honourable friend Sardar Modi said that no more money should be spent on the Industries Department and asked why I voted against the Finance Bill if I wanted more money to be spent on this department But surely, Sir, my honourable friend did not want me to vote for the Finance Bill for the expansion of industry or for the expansion of primary education or for the uplift of the rural areas, but he wanted me to vote for the Finance Bill to maintain the high standard of salaries being paid in this Presidency which are much beyond the capacity of the general taxpayer; and therefore it is, Sir, that I did not vote for the Finance Bill

Coming to the general discussion, it has been said that Government have no funds; but in my opening speech on this cut I have said that when the present Government, i e, since the Montford Reforms, took over the administration, the Government had a surplus balance of a little over 4½ crores If they had a mind to do something for the most important subject of industries, they could have taken some steps in the direction of giving aid to industries by spending, out of a total budget of 14 to 15 crores, 10 to 15 lakhs or so a year on the development of industries In my opinion it was not at all difficult to do this if only they had the will to do it, but, as I said, they did not do anything of the kind for this important subject I was very much pleased at the quotations which were read out by the honourable member from Karachi, Mr Baloch The present Honourable Minister who is in charge of this department, when on the non-official side of the House, taunted the Government side that this subject of industries ought to have been handed over to a popular Minister and should not have been left to a Government Executive Councillor Now it is an irony of fate that that very department is in his own hands and we see its fate At least we have got a right to expect from you, Sir, (I mean the Honourable Minister for Education), that suitable steps should be taken on right lines to expand the activities of the Industries Department, which is a most important subject As has been rightly pointed out by my honourable friend to my right, by the expansion of industries not only the general public but even the Government itself is benefited, probably Government is benefited more than the public in general I fully endorse the views which have fallen from the mouth of the honourable member Mr. Kamat, but I am not prepared to admit that the ginning factories in rural areas have been introduced by the efforts of this department or by the efforts of the Agricultural Department of this Presidency. They have come into existence long before the coming into existence of the Agricultural Department It is the merchants importing ginning machineries who have introduced the ginning factories in the mofussil towns and in the villages So also the remarks about rice mills are not

what I agree with in toto. That however is a very contentious point, namely, whether the rice mill has done good to the ordinary ryot or to the ordinary agriculturist When there were no rice mills in the country, the labourers, the agriculturists, during surplus time, used to do this kind of work and earn something for themselves and save some money So, it is a very contentious point, whether by the increase of rice mills you are improving the economic condition of the rural masses

The subject of industries is so important that in other civilised countries a separate portfolio is maintained, namely, the portfolio of Commerce and Industries as we have got in the Central Government It should not be a very subsidiary subject of the Honourable Minister of Education with a grant of about Rs 1,27,000 or Rs 2,00,000 or Rs 3,00,000 only I therefore urge upon the Honourable Minister—and I am sure he must have the interests of this department at heart—that he will try his utmost to increase the grants for this department. Not only that, but there are various ways of improving the economic condition of the rural masses, by reviving the industries that were in existence in the country My Honourable friend the Minister wanted to know what cottage industries this side of the House wanted to revive The names of so many cottage industries have been given to him by the various honourable members who have taken part in this debate, and I do not want to repeat them again There are hundreds and thousands of small industries known as cottage industries which can be revived at very little cost, if Government want to revive them It will not cost much It simply requires the organising power of the department, and of course a little help. The department has to lead those people, just to initiate them Afterwards, as soon as the initiation has taken place, all these industries will be revived and will come into existence again With these remarks, I move my cut.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD Mr President, I am extremely obliged to the honourable members for their very useful and fruitful suggestions Sir, in my days of greater freedom and less responsibility, when I was sitting on the opposite benches, I may have no doubt uttered many irresponsible things In the particular speech which has been quoted—I was going to say, not quoted, but which was prompted and squeaked by the honourable member opposite—I am given to understand that I had said that the duty of a Minister is to get money, and if the Minister has any personality he does get money for his department Well, Sir, I hold to those words I do not know if I have any personality at all, but I do claim that of all the departments under Government, the Industries Department is the only department which has not undergone a cut

Mr. B. S KAMAT Thanks to the Retrenchment Committee

Mr. V N JOG I say that it has undergone retrenchment, I will show how From the remarks relating to the expenditure under this head, given on page 71 of the Blue Book, it will be seen that they have taken industrial and technical education from the head of "Education" and brought it under the head of "Industries"; if you omit that, it will be seen that it has undergone a cut It is stated in the note:

"Excluding the provision on this account, the net provision on account of Industries is less than that of the current year"

They have taken technical and industrial education from the head of "Education" and put it under this head So the figure is Rs 3,00,000 If that is omitted, there is really a cut in the Industries Department

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD I am very much obliged to the honourable member for the correction, but that is no correction What I mean to say is this take primary education and compare its cut with that of industries

Rao Bahadur S. N ANGADI That is again your own department.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD Take any other department you like Here the provision of Rs. 1,27,000 is an increase over current year's provision So, there is an increase and not a decrease. And I can tell honourable members that it required a good deal of fighting even to maintain this department.

Mr B S KAMAT You must thank the Retrenchment Committee also for it

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD I am extremely thankful to the Retrenchment Committee for many mercies, personal and public. But I want to say that some of the members of the Retrenchment Committee—I would not name them—were not in favour of even maintaining the department for the reasons put forward by the honourable member Sardar Modi There is that view—a very sound view—that if this department is not working satisfactorily, why keep it at all? But then I did my duty and said, if this department is not working to the satisfaction of the aspirations of the public, it is not its fault; for that reason you ought not to stifle an infant. I think that I deserve some credit for the retention of the department and I shall do my best to improve it.

Now, with regard to my honourable friend from Dharwar, who stated in his speech that on account of these ordinances people are frightened and get nervous, and even leave off their occupations Sir, when I was on the opposite benches, I used to be a very great supporter of my honourable friend the member from Dharwar All of a sudden I was sorry to see that for three years he had disappeared, and one day he came to me, very nervous himself I told him that his occupation was that of a politician and he ought to have continued in the House He said he had many difficulties I am very glad to say that he has abandoned that attitude of non-co-operation, and has again come here

Mr V. N JOG On a point of correction, I was never absent for three years. I was absent for one session, as I had resigned.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD I mean his disappearance by resignation. Whatever it was, for me it was very bad, because we used to receive such useful suggestions from him. I am very glad he has come back, and come back very independent, and he is giving very useful suggestions.

Now, with regard to the criticisms of my honourable friend Mr Gokhale, he says there ought to be some publication as to how these arts and crafts are doing, and where they are being neglected Now, this department is responding to his demand We had sent an officer on tour—Mr. Fernandes He travelled about, and he has written a report about the arts and crafts of the Presidency, which was lying unpublished and which I took the responsibility of publishing, it will soon be placed in the hands of honourable members

Now, take another industry My honourable friend Mr Gokhale is a distinguished fellow-citizen of mine He knows there is the paper industry in Poona, the Junnar wahi khata paper industry, which was dying out. I went to Junnar I sent the Director of Industries there. He took down all their complaints, and he is doing everything he can to support that industry

Now with regard to the Industrial Engineer, you had the testimony of the honourable member from Surat (Dr Dixit) that very useful work was being done by that Industrial Engineer in Surat, and I think my honourable friend the mover of the cut will also support the remarks made by the honourable member Dr Dixit

Then, Sir, I said that I wanted a list of industries which were alleged to be neglected by this department now Instead of that list, a catalogue is repeated here of the industries which have disappeared since the presence of the British Government That is a very long time ago now, and I cannot go over all those industries I think honourable members will have some mercy upon me—that I should be responsible all of a sudden for all these industries It is their duty to encourage this tiny little infant of the Industries Department To maintain it is a herculean task Even Hercules himself would not be able to do it Therefore, I think these demands are not practical demands Practical demands were made by my honourable friend opposite, Mr Kamat I always listen to him with very great respect, and the suggestions which he has made would duly receive my attention He has burnt midnight oil on tomes which very few people have seen

Then, Sir, the honourable member from Kanara, Mr Gangoli, told me about the sandal wood industry in Mysore and about the prosperity of that state under a Mahomedan Minister The states have got their own programmes But the local conditions are different. Besides, timber and sandal wood are not my department Those remarks should be addressed to the Honourable Minister of Agriculture and Forests In a way, all departments belong to "Industries" But I am not responsible for all of them "All the work that could be done by this particular department within two or three years has been done I am willing to accept any suggestions for improvement But I cannot undertake to improve the whole system of industrial development. Even political economy is brought into this debate. Also khaddar, and swadeshi depots, and what not. All these matters are foreign to the present debates. I may, however, add that I will do my best to improve this department. The honourable member from Dharwar (Mr Jog) asks me to introduce a bill to give loans to small industrialists I think those remarks should be directed to my honourable friend the Minister for Finance. If the House will grant me more money later on, when times improve, of course many of the things suggested will be carried out.

Mr C G. FREKE Sir, I just wanted to correct a misstatement of fact. The honourable member Mr. Jog has stated that there has been retrenchment in this department, and has quoted a certain paragraph of the Blue Book The Honourable Minister's statement is absolutely correct If the whole of the paragraph is read, it will be found that the decrease in the revised estimates as compared with the budget estimate is due mainly to retrenchment including the 10 per cent cut in pay in the current year. If the actual figures of accounts are taken, it will be seen to be 1,24 in 1930-31, 1,26 revised estimate of the current year after the cut, and excluding the only transferred head of "technical education" the budget estimate for next year is 1,27 The only retrenchment which has been made in this department is the general 10 per cent. cut in pay, which has been made in all departments I wanted to correct this, as a mere statement of fact

Mr V. N JOG. Excluding the provision on account of technical education, the net provision for next year for Industries is less than that of the current year.

Mr C. G FREKE. Naturally, that is because of the 10 per cent. cut in pay

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The reasons are different The reasons are those which the honourable member Mr Freke has just given Rao Bahadur B. R NAIK. After listening to the speech of the Honourable Minister, I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn

Original demand put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Sir, I make a demand of Rs. 23,96,000 under 34, Agriculture.

Question proposed

Mr V. N JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, I beg to move:

"Omit item 23—Statement E—Entertainment of an additional Special Auditor and clerks in the Co operative Department—Rs. 8,301 (B page 214)."

In moving this cut, I submit that there is no necessity of appointing one more special auditor with a staff At present, there are three special auditors. It is found on page 266 of the White Book These three special auditors will be sufficient to cope with the work of these institutions or banks which have a capital of Rs. 50,000 or more. Banks have got their own auditors as internal check and inspection I think it is not necessary to incur this additional expenditure during the present financial stringency. The reason given is :

"The work done by the special auditors and their staff is a sort of agency work on behalf of the institutions concerned and so long as they pay for their audit, Government must arrange that the statutory audit is efficiently conducted"

Besides these, the banks and the societies are paying the local auditors they appoint There is a local audit as well as audit by the three special auditors, who do so once a year The work is not much. Therefore, I think there should not be an increase in the audit staff. Then, the argument may be advanced that the societies are charged for the audit and so there will be a surplus for Government That is not the idea. If Government have a surplus, my suggestion is that they should give additional grants to the Co-operative Institute and other similar bodies who, in addition to the propaganda they are doing, have been carrying on a certain kind of supervision The central banks which lend money to the various affiliated societies have got their own inspectors So, I submit that there is internal check as well as Government check If Government have any surplus money, it can be utilised usefully The Co-operative Institute which is doing very useful work has addressed many memorials to the Honourable Minister for more grants Their grants have been reduced from Rs 34,000 to Rs. 25,000 In this budget, it is still reduced and brought down and only Rs 18,000 has been provided Even strong protests have been made by the Institute in its letter to the Honourable Minister during the last month. They state that all the activities of the institute will have to be stopped. Therefore, if there is any surplus left, instead of spending on an additional auditor and staff, they can give to the Co-operative Institute But, that is not the direct point here and I shall refer to it later on. It may be argued by Government that we cannot earmark any money like that Whatever it may be, I submit that the additional special auditor should not be entertained

Mr L R GOKHALE May I have some information from the Honourable Minister? I want to know whether the societies will be charged for this service rendered and the money that is now spent will be recovered from them

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI : Audit fee is levied from the societies and the auditors are paid out of the proceeds of such fees. There is no burden on Government at all. This is sufficiently explained in the printed note in the Blue Book.

Mr L R GOKHALE : There is no special charge for auditing. It is the usual charge If this money is not spent ; it is a saving to Government.

Mr G. S GANGOLI (Kanara District) : Sir, there are other cuts also proposed under co-operation and there is one by me also. So far as the honourable member Mr. Jog's cut is concerned, I think it is reasonable in this sense which I am going to point out. There is no need of additional auditor at least this year For the last two years we know. I think the

[Mr G S Gangoli]

Honourable Minister also knows, there are very few fresh advance's to the societies There is nothing more to be audited At least for the last one year the working of more than 70 per cent of the banks is at a standstill The money advanced to agriculturists is not forthcoming There is nothing particular to audit The Honourable Minister himself was saying that there was no particular audit——

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T KAMBLI: When and where was such a statement made ?

Mr G. S GANGOLI: I said "he may agree"

I know there is want of auditors I know that one special auditor is auditing banks in 10 districts For two years this special audit is done once This is unnecessary at present, because there is no bank working as before I have tabled a question on this subject and I can show from the answer that 90 per cent. of the banks are at a standstill, because moneys advanced to the agriculturists and others are not forthcoming So, there is no particular need for audit, There is no work also Since there are other cuts, with this suggestion alone, I support the honourable member Mr Jog's motion

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN Sir, I am very sorry that the honourable members opposite should move a cut in regard to a nation-building department. For so many days I have been hearing the complaint that Government have cut down the nation-building departments I am amused to-day to find that a cut is proposed by the other side in one of the nation-building departments. Agriculture is one of the greatest nation-building departments. I think that cuts like this moved in the nation-building departments are very discouraging to the Honourable Ministers They have been blamed for not asserting themselves and when they do assert themselves, this sort of treatment is meted out to them

Coming to the merits of the cut, the argument is that there are 3 special auditors already, and therefore there is no necessity for any more. Honourable members have not realised that the societies or urban banks have risen from 150 to 250 There were three auditors when there were 150, and for 100 more the Honourable Minister has brought a very modest demand for one more special auditor. It is not for the smaller societies, but it is for the banks that he wants an extra auditor. An argument was advanced that these were days of depression, the creditors did not return the money, and therefore there would not be much work

Mr G S GANGOLI: May I know one point of information? If you start fresh banks, for one or two years they do not require audit

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN When money is not being returned, in my humble opinion, there is greater necessity for audit, so that there may not be any embezzlement or leakage This money which the Honourable Minister is spending on the 4th auditor is charged to the society, and it is not coming out of the provincial revenues for honourable members to be anxious about it I think every honourable member will agree with the Honourable Minister that there ought to be a special audit, because once people come to know that their money is not safe in these banks, nobody will come forward to invest their money in them. In the interests of the country, all these co-operative banks ought to be a success. And for them to be a success, there ought to be a special auditor in addition, as the number of banks have increased from 150 to 250. And the Honourable Minister has made a very modest demand for one more special auditor only

(After recess)

Rao Bahadur G K. CHITALE (Ahmednagar District) Mr President, the Honourable the Leader of the House rightly insisted on the policy that as far as possible no cuts should be moved in the nation-building departments I accept his view But, after all, the means to that end, namely, the appointment of a special auditor—does it really go to build up that nation or that department of the nation? Well, that is the only position that I wish to put forward I am wedded to this department from its very start, and I would not like that department to be starved into a position which would make it inefficient But, at the same time, may I ask the Honourable Minister in charge of this department and the Honourable the Leader of the House to remember the fact that in this Co-operative Department we had two old stalwarts in Sir Vithaldas Thackersey—poor soul is now dead, but we have a building in his memory which is going to be knocked off to the first bidder—and Sir Lalubhai Samaldas? It appears to us quite clear that the splendid institution, namely, the Bombay Co-operative Institute, which has been reared, reared at very great inconvenience by these stalwarts, is being almost famished, famished to such an extent that all its activities are likely to come to a standstill As a member of that Co-operative Institute which has been doing very good work for so many years in the past and which has in fact built up the department of co-operation—these paid servants never rear any department, they sometimes cut at the root of it—as a member of the Institute I should think that if there was a tie between strangling an institution which builds up the nation and the appointment of a special officer, this House will vote and vote solidly in favour of that nation-building department by rearing up such a useful institution and giving all help possible I should think it pertinent to enquire whether the managers of that institute have not gone on bended knees almost to the Honourable Minister in charge and requested him not to cut down the present grant of Rs 25,000, which was the grant last year, to Rs 18,000. This reduction in its grant in fact curtails all its activities as it has been compelled to abolish all its propaganda officers The Honourable the Leader of the House, therefore, if he is logical and consistent, ought to uphold my view, if, as I said, there was a tie between the two views

My honourable friend said that the number of societies has gone up from 150 to 250 and that the work is too much for the present staff He further said that there will be no charge on the revenues because there will be additional fee I should think that that part of the argument is fallacious I know that all banks are charged a certain fee If there are 250 banks with a capital of over Rs. 50,000, they are charged an audit fee at a varying rate which goes to the general revenues It is not earmarked for this or that purpose, because we have no such method of accounting Now, if that fee is being collected from all those banks which come under its sway and the staff is paid out of that amount, I think the argument is fallacious, because, as I have said, we do not have special compartments of finance. The method that has been followed up to now will no doubt continue My point is this, increase in the number of societies from 150 to 250 is not confined to last year The number has been increasing and they are growing as the result of so many years' efforts of those people who are in that particular field of action. I therefore do not think that the number has suddenly grown necessitating the appointment of a special auditor with the necessary staff. If that number was there, if the fee was being levied, then where is the necessity of having a new auditor's appointment sanctioned in a lean year? The Honourable the Leader of the House, as is usual with him, is always fair and perhaps he thought it proper to intervene at an earlier stage of the debate simply with a view to disarm opposition In this particular instance, I would appeal to him to do his best to save an institution which, if once wiped out, it will take years to revive This cut in its grant will be the unkindest cut of all and it is the duty of Government to come to its help rather than make an appointment of this nature

Again, may I point out that there is a good deal of substance in what the honourable mover of the cut said, namely, that it is true that on account of the depressed condition of the last two years, the work of the special auditors even in banks has decreased considerably. I might inform him that this is first-hand knowledge No doubt that does not mean that the work is made smoother I do not mean to say that, but the transactions that take place, the debit and credit entries are so few that the special auditors who used to take about a week to audit a bank's accounts about four years ago, can surely finish that work in a shorter period Thus their time is saved Suppose for instance that the existing 3 auditors were auditing 250 banks—80 banks each If another auditor is appointed, each man's share will be 60 banks The question that must be considered by the Honourable Minister in charge and by the Honourable the Leader of the House is whether it is or is not possible that on account of the lessening of the work by about 20 per cent. the same work could be done by the existing staff I do think that like every other department, we have a tendency of first staffing That is our first duty in nation-building, like the Director of Industries, engineers, chemists, and several other appointments They are drawing their pay. Nation-building activities come later on Let us get as much milk as possible out of the nation first Therefore, it seems to me that though he is an ardent devotee of nation-building, it ought to be his first care to see the whole problem from that point of view. I also do feel almost

ashamed when I make that kind of appeal to deaf ears, when you are prepared to kill an institution which has been doing good work for a paltry sum of Rs 7,000 or Rs 8,000 which you cannot spare and then you come in with a proposal to spend it on the salary of a new person, a thing which this House should never allow, and even if it is possible to do so, I would pray and I would urge that looking at it from that point of view the Honourable Minister in charge should go deeply into that question of the existence of the Co-operative Institute itself If he were to assure me that I am wrong in my facts as is usual for Government members to say, I would certainly tell him that he is wrong in his facts and that I am right in mine " I am right because I have got first-hand knowledge and he is in the wrong because he is in the wrong box That is all Personally I am against inefficiency Does not the Honourable Minister know that owing to the depression inefficiency is bound to be there ? Does not the Honourable Minister know that Government itself as inefficient, not only in this department but in several departments ? The very necessity to retrench 1½ crores is a candid confession that it is going to lower the efficiency If that is so, I say no case is made out for entertainment of a new service by addition to the cadre, and I should think the several points of view which I have urged will appeal to the Honourable Minister in charge I do not take it as a censure motion Let not the Honourable Minister nor the House take it as a censure motion because it is not one, and even if it is taken to a division, let him not take it as a censure motion and frighten us, poor fellows, on this side who are as innocent as children, who are always frightened to think that our popular Ministers take such motions in the light of a censure motion and lobbying is done and so on That is not the point of view from which I have spoken on this item The point of view is, as I said, that what I feel most is that if you insist upon a cut of about Rs 7,000 in an institute which is doing very good and useful work, and which cut is likely to lead to its non-existence, then I should think that the alternative between this and the other is to help that institution first and naturally the Honourable Minister will find that he has no funds , and, if he has these funds, I refuse to believe that they cannot be paid for that institution As I said, it is not so, because if he comes in that particular form and therefore it cannot be used for that particular purpose, that is only a lame excuse and has no substance For all these reasons, I should think that the Honourable Minister will be well advised in withdrawing this motion and in helping the institution I would say that I would very gladly leave that particular case to the arbitration of the Honourable the Leader of the House himself. I will say that if he finds the existence of that institution necessary, it is likely to end in that, then I accept his verdict and will allow this motion to pass, but let him look into it from that point of view , and I hope, Sir, that this House will not be frightened by a censure motion being carried. It is not a censure motion and it ought not to be taken in that light. I would appeal to all my friends with all the earnestness at my command and say " Let us get out of this particular habit of frightening ourselves, and do insist upon a principle, as I have said, that there is a case between a new officer being appointed and a case of killing an institution which is doing good work Then I hope that the vote of the House will be with me in such tremendous proportion that we will be able to impose our will on the Honourable Minister I hope, Sir, that I will succeed at least in this effort of mine, if I do not succeed in the arbitration proposal which I have made to the Honourable the Leader of the House.

Mr. V. N JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, I am thankful to the honourable member for Ahmednagar who has explained the whole situation with regard to the Bombay Provincial Co-operative Institute

With regard to the objection that was raised by the Honourable the Leader of the House that we should not move any cuts on the nation-building departments, that objection has been very well met by the honourable member for Ahmednagar . Really this cut will not in any way go against the building of the nation We would be very averse to move such cuts, but the real activities which would go to build the nation are neglected and we have seen what neglect is there when we were discussing the last motion on Industries.

Then the Honourable the Leader of the House and also the Honourable Minister perhaps think that it is not a charge on the revenue because this is coming out of the fees which are recovered from the societies, but I think that it is an error because the fee of the audit of the respective societies has been already fixed by rule 29 of the Co-operative Societies' Rules.. It has nothing to do with the appointment of a number of special auditors The fee is there and it is being recovered according to the capital of the various banks Do Government mean to say that simply because this auditor is not appointed they are going to recover less from societies ? It is not at all so. The fee is recovered there and it is in the the general revenues, and simply because a special auditor is increased, they are not going to increase the fees which are already there.

With regard to the number of societies put by the Honourable the Leader of the House, who said that the number has increased from 150 to 250, I do not find anything of the sort in the annual report for 1930-31. There the number of societies including all the societies have been given on page 8 of the report and they do not even come to 250, but this fee which I am talking about in connection with the appointment of special auditors has nothing to do with the agricultural societies These special auditors have to do simply with the district central banks and the urban banks whose working capital is Rs 50,000 or more. I find that there are only 20 district central banks and in the last year there were only 76 urban banks They have now been raised to 82, the increase is only 6. As against that, it has been pointed out that many of the urban banks have not got any new loan transactions because they have not got funds and the only thing the auditor has to do is to check the past accounts, there being no new loan transactions, and he has to see whether this lending has been made in consonance with the rules or contrary to the rules, or if there is any other mistake committed So, I submit that at least at this present stage when there is not much work this money will be saved

There are various cuts which bear upon primary societies I am not mixing them with the present motion I am only speaking as regards the post of special auditor I mean to say that any saving that could be effected by the abolition of the proposal to create a new appointment could very well be utilised in supporting the Co-operative Institute I trust the Honourable Minister will be pleased to accept this cut

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T KAMBLI Sir, the honourable mover of the cut and the honourable member from Ahmednagar hav in this debate mixed up two questions One question which is und debate, is the question of the entertainment of additional staff The other question which they have mixed up is the question about the grant to the Provincial Institute From their speeches it is quite evident that they have shown great zeal and affection for the Provincial Institute. I may assure them that if any money is saved in the Co-operative Department, certainly the case of the Provincial Institute will be reconsidered, but for the present I request them to confine their attention to the merits of the particular question under debate.

Coming to the question under debate, I may inform the honourable House that the very safety, the very progress of the co-operative movement, depends in a great measure and to a great extent upon the efficiency of the audit carried on by the auditors of the Co-operative Department It is the efficient audit that is the cause of inspiring confidence amongst the public It is this efficient audit and the checking of the accounts that has been the cause of attracting huge capital and large deposits that are to be found in the various co-operative institutions in this Presidency. Hence it is absolutely necessary that the audit of the societies should be as efficient as possible Therefore, it has been laid down by the Co-operative Societies Act that these societies shall be statutorily audited once every year The sole object of this provision in the Act is to assure the public that the accounts of these societies are accurately audited, and that they are correct and that, if any errors or irregularities or frauds are discovered, they will be brought to the notice of the public and the managers of these societies so that such errors or irregularities may be corrected and such embezzlements or frauds detected and rectified This is the main business of auditing and therefore it is quite necessary that we should see that the audit of these societies is as efficient as possible under the circumstances

Having said so much, I would request the honourable House to take note of certain relevant figures These special auditors are appointed for the sole purpose of auditing certain classes of societies and banks Their business is to audit the central banks inclusive of the Provincial Co-operative Bank, their branches, the urban banks with a capital of

over Rs. 50,000 as working capital and their branches and housing societies as well

I would quote the number of these institutions as it stood in the year 1927 for comparison The total number of these institutions was 153 There were 21 Central Banks, inclusive of the Provincial Bank, there were 30 branches of the same ; there were 55 urban banks with a working capital of Rs 50,000 and over, and there were no branches of the urban banks then ; and the housing societies were 47 In all, the total number was 153, and for auditing these societies there were 3 special auditors and they were found to be quite sufficient for the purpose Now, coming to the year 1931, if you take the figures as they stood on the 31st March 1931, you will find the number of these institutions has increased to the huge figure of 250. Central Banks, inclusive of the Provincial Bank, were then 20 and the number of branches was 64, urban banks with over Rs. 50,000 working capital were 82, and number of branches was 5 ; and housing societies were 79 These are the institutions which these 3 special auditors are required to efficiently audit Now, I put it to the honourable House whether it is possible for them to cope with the work It is very easy to say that since they have been doing the work for some time past, let them continue to do it for some years more. This sort of argument is not based upon reason and has nothing to recommend it for adoption We are to see that these societies are audited efficiently and to the satisfaction of the public Now, I would invite the attention of the House to the working capital as it stood in 1927—the total working capital of these institutions The whole working capital then amounted to Rs. 6,16,18,626 In the year ending 31st March 1931, the total working capital had increased to Rs 8,77,37,449 The number of institutions has increased by nearly a hundred and the working capital has increased by nearly Rs 2,50,00,000 Is it possible for these 3 special auditors to carry out efficiently the audit of these societies with this increased working capital ?

Mr. G. S GANGOLI May I know what is the difference between last year and this year ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Now, Sir, it was urged that the audit fees should go to the general revenues Of course, all the moneys go to the general revenues, but then the object of levying audit fees was to give them a guarantee that they would be efficiently audited That must be the principle underlying the levying of audit fees These audit fees are levied at a certain rate, calculated on the working capital of the societies The audit fees now amount to Rs 53,540, whereas in the year 1926-27 they were only Rs 35,379. If the House dispassionately considers this question on its merits, it will be clearly seen that the work has increased beyond the capacity of the 3 special auditors. The number of societies has grown, the working capital has increased, and in order that the audit may be efficient and to the satisfaction of the societies and of the public, it is quite evident that the number of these auditors must be increased, and I have made a very modest demand for the entertainment of one special auditor, etc.

The honourable member from Dharwar and the honourable member from Ahmednagar very eloquently pleaded the cause of the Provincial Institute, and they said that if the 4th special auditor were not entertained, there would be some balance of fees, and that balance may be handed over to the Provincial Institute. As I have already observed, they have shown an admirable zeal and affection for the Provincial Institute, but I would request them not to be blind to the necessity of having an effective and efficient audit of these societies These societies from whom these audit fees are recovered should be audited efficiently and not perfunctorily. It is efficient audit that inspires confidence among the public and attracts capital. If we take away this security, the security afforded by an efficient audit by the auditors of the Co-operative Department, then certainly we shall have to see very bad days.

Then, with regard to the other part of the question, viz., the entertainment of certain clerks for the collection and accounting of the audit fees which are levied from the primary societies, I may inform the House, Sir, that we have been levying audit fees from the primary societies from April last. It is but necessary, in order to cope with the additional work of collecting and accounting, that each of the Assistant Registrars should be provided with an additional clerk, and also the Registrar's office should be provided with an additional clerk . It is for this purpose, Sir, that the entertainment of additional staff is required, and I once again appeal to the honourable member from Dharwar and also to the honourable member from Ahmednagar to consider this question independently, apart from their affection and zeal for the Provincial Institute, and not be blind to the necessity of seeing that audit in order to be efficiently performed should be done by entertaining this additional staff

Mr. V N. JOG: Sir, I ask for leave of the House to withdraw my motion

Motion, by leave, withdrawn

Dr M. K DIXIT (Surat District) Sir, I beg to move—

"Reduce by Rs 1,000—Total Voted demand under B Veterinary charges—Rs 3,94,000"

In moving this cut, my object is to get some information from the Honourable Minister Our Veterinary Department is not very advanced One can almost say it is in a primitive stage All the same, there have been various complaints from district local boards and municipalities regarding this department for cutting down their grants. But I shall leave that matter for honourable members who are concerned with district local boards and municipalities, and I shall not touch that matter.

[Dr M. K DIXIT]

What I am concerned with is regarding certain items which appear on page 261 of the Civil Estimates—purchase of sera and vaccine Next year amounts of Rs 22,000 for the Presidency proper and about Rs 8,000 for Sind have been demanded for the purchase of sera and vaccine I know they are very useful things in themselves and probably well utilised, but I want to know whether this amount of Rs 30,000 provided for the purchase of sera and vaccine is utilised in a proper way. I do not know where these sera and vaccines are purchased from, whether they are locally manufactured or purchased from foreign countries Sir, vaccines can be prepared very easily even in Bombay, because, after all, it does not entail any complicated processes Ordinary culture media are inoculated with the disease germ, allowed to grow for some time, and then sterilised with a view to kill any living bacteria or any living bacilli, and can be directly utilised after that process is gone through That work can be done by any ordinary competent, efficient bacteriologist in Bombay. We have got an institution here which can very easily manufacture this sort of vaccine Sera, I know, also can be prepared, but the process is a bit complicated.

Rao Bahadur R S ASAVALE That will require additional establishment

Dr M K DIXIT They have got the Bacteriological Laboratory, where it can be done The manufacture of sera requires a bit of complicated processes, but even then there are certain institutions in our country where sera can be manufactured. The process is complicated, because it requires animals for producing immunity in their blood. The horse is usually taken for this purpose These animals are inoculated with disease germ and when they acquire a certain amount of immunity, they are bled and sera prepared out of the blood of these immune animals For the preparation of sera also, there are two very good factories in Bengal, the Bengal Immunity Company and the Bengal Chemical Company. They prepare very good sera for the purpose of controlling diseases, both for prophylaxis and cure They prepare sera for human patients. I do not see why, if they are given orders to manufacture these sera, they should not be able to produce them for animals also, and if they are patronised and given this order of Rs 30,000 we can get perhaps the same quantity of sera and vaccine for half the cost, and will be able to save Rs. 15,000 and we would be encouraging Indian industry to that extent I should like to be informed on this point, and I hope the Honourable Minister will give details of the agency through which they purchase their vaccine and sera, and also whether they are prepared in this country, or brought from outside India

There is just another point to which I wish to refer. On page 262 of the Civil Estimates there is something about examination fees. I think the examination fees are recovered from the students who appear for the examination, that is, the students of the Veterinary College. These students do not have to appear for the examination anywhere else outside the college; it is not a University examination. Therefore, I wonder why the professors who are teaching those boys and who are examining them should be allowed any fees for it Then there is another point There are two types of fees provided One comes under the non-voted head and the other under the voted head I wonder what this "fees under non-voted head" means Next year Rs 647 are budgetted under non-voted head and Rs 727 under voted head. Why should these fees be put into these two different heads ? Do I understand that non-voted fees would go to the examiners whose pay is non-voted and voted fees go to examiners whose pay is included in the voted budget ? If that is so, I should like to know something more about it. I can understand certain salaries or pays of officers being non-voted. But fees which are collected from students of the college are divided into the categories of voted and non-voted Secondly, when compared with the Budget Estimate of 1931-32, I find that non-voted fees have declined from Rs 1,039 to Rs. 647 and voted fees have gone up from Rs. 373 to Rs 727 I should like to be informed on that point also As I submitted before, the object of moving this cut is more to elicit information and if as I understand these vaccines and sera are bought from foreign countries, I want to impress upon the Honourable Minister that both of them can be made available here and at much cheaper cost and that there will be a saving in this department With that object I move this cut

Question proposed.

Mr B S KAMAT: Sir, I believe my honourable friend Dr Dixit is labouring under a misapprehension All the sera and vaccine for animal diseases are manufactured in this country, at a place called Muktesar and not outside India. It is a place at the foot of the Himalayan Hills It is a suitable place for this sort of thing, because of the climate of that place The total production of sera and vaccine is very large In 1926-27 6 million doses were manufactured and distributed to all the provinces of India I think that fact will disillusion him about the remarks he made that no vaccine and sera for animal diseases should be imported into India

Rao Bahadur B. R NAIK: I have a cut motion in my name. Instead of moving it, I shall say what I have to say

The Honourable the PRESIDENT There is a little difference The cut under discussion is against the voted demand, and the other is against the combined voted and non-voted demand.

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK (Surat District): Sir, you will remember the other day I enquired of the Honourable Minister in charge of this department whether it was not a fact that orders had been issued to the various district local boards that grants for veterinary dispensaries would be stopped in the ensuing year We were told that it might be. The Honourable Minister did not know whether such orders had been issued from his office I do not blame the Honourable Minister in charge of the department Perhaps he might have left this sort of business to the secretaries. In regard to several other matters also, I know, the Honourable Ministers now-a-days do not know what occurs in their offices When this grant was reduced 3½ times, the Honourable Minister in charge of the department did not know about the reduction in grants and that orders had been issued from his office Therefore, for his information I shall refer to page 263 of the Budget The amount allotted for veterinary dispensaries in 1931-32 was Rs 33,100 for the whole presidency and Rs 15,355 for Sind Now, it has been reduced to Rs.9,524 for the presidency proper and to Rs 10,279 for Sind In the former the reduction is 3½ times that of last year and 1½ times in the latter

I may just refer to the history of the veterinary dispensaries This was a provincial head and was managed by the Agricultural Department, and administered from the provincial funds A few years ago, it was thought fit by Government to transfer this department to the district local boards It was then understood that all the veterinary surgeons would be fully paid from the provincial revenues and for other recurring and non-recurring charges grants-in-aid would be made to the district local boards Under these conditions, these institutions were handed over to the district local boards of the presidency As a matter of fact this ought not to have been transferred to the district local boards, because it is to my mind a provincial matter It ought to have been reserved as a provincial subject, but it was transferred to the district local boards on the express condition that grants-in-aid should be paid to the district local boards, so that they might not be saddled with additional expenditure on account of the transfer of these institutions With a stroke of the pen, now, it is not 50 per cent or 25 per cent that has been reduced, but totally stopped I wish to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister that now not a rupee is to be given as grant All grants which were made till now are to be stopped from the ensuing year I cannot say whether some of the district local boards would get it. But from the amounts put down in the Budget—of rupees nine thousand odd—I can infer that an invidious discrimination has been made This is an important point I want to have an explanation from the Honourable Minister in charge why certain district local boards will receive grants next year and others not. It will be seen that several local boards are not going to get a rupee of grant, while others get as they used to That is a point on which I want information

Now, the Honourable Minister sitting on the front bench is there on our behalf to look after the welfare of the agricultural masses I want to know from him whether cattle is not a part of the wealth of the agriculturists In all civilised countries, there are veterinary dispensaries side by side with dispensaries for human beings Do not epidemic diseases spread among the cattle just as among human beings? They do. If the grants to these dispensaries are stopped, what will be the fate of the cattle of the agriculturists? Does the Honourable Minister in charge think that the district local boards are in a position to maintain these dispensaries without any Government grants? Have the district local boards had any windfalls in revenue? The result of this action will be that these dispensaries will have to be closed by the district local boards. I think therefore that Government have not taken a wise step in stopping this grant, which they used to give

In the year 1930, the then Honourable Minister, Dewan Bahadur Harilal Desai, gave us to understand that, as there were not a sufficient number of veterinary dispensaries in the presidency, the number of dispensaries should be increased He was about to increase the number of veterinary dispensaries Now, even the small grants which the district local boards used to get have been stopped.

I take the instance of Surat For cattle, we have 6 dispensaries in 6 talukas The other two talukas are without dispensaries The district local board was prepared to give its own quota and passed a resolution and requested the Government to sanction their quota and allow the district local board to open the dispensaries In reply to a question by me with regard to that, the then Honourable Minister, Dewan Bahadur Harilal Desai, assured me that the two talukas which were without dispensaries would soon be provided with them Instead of that, what will happen now is that the district local board will have to close down the six dispensaries they are running, because the grant which they used to get is to be stopped

I ask whether it is fair in a country like India where there are small holdings, that an Honourable Minister who is an elected representative of the people and who happens to be on the other side for the time being, should stop this grant which is highly essential for the welfare of the plough and milch cattle which are essential for cultivation We do not use machinery for our cultivation purposes and we cannot neglect our cattle. If the agriculturists are not able to maintain their cattle in health, they will suffer considerably Even looking from the Government point of view, the safety of the cattle is highly essential to them in order that they may get their revenue My one point is——

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN Who pays for the veterinary sub-assistant surgeons ?

Rao Bahadur B R. NAIK The Honourable the Leader of the House says that Government are paying for the sub-assistant surgeons

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN. I ask the honourable member who pays for them ?

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK That point I have already made out. The whole burden was borne by Government, including recurring and non-recurring charges and the pay of the sub-assistant surgeons The condition under which these dispensaries were transferred was that Government would pay the salaries of the sub-assistant surgeons. They are paying them. Even if the district local board closes down any veterinary dispensary, Government will have to pay the sub-assistant surgeons all the same till their terms expire In any case they shall have to pay the sub-assistant surgeons That is the condition on which this transfer has been made I therefore maintain that, if Government are paying for the sub-assistant surgeons, it has no connection with the district local board. On the other hand, the district local boards have spent some money and have helped Government I hope that the Honourable Minister for Agriculture will try to convince and satisfy this House why an invidious distinction has been made in regard to certain local boards

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN Sir, the last speaker said that the Veterinary Department was formerly a provincial subject administered by Government I quite agree with him The local authorities are always clamouring to have more departments transferred to them Now this department has also been transferred to them If the honourable member refers to the Local Boards Act, he will find that maintenance of hospitals, veterinary or otherwise, is a primary duty of the local authorities. When that Act was passed by this Honourable House, if I rightly remember, the honourable member was a member of this Council He, with his eyes open, undertook that obligation on the local boards Now, Sir, honourable members should take into consideration the fact that they have entire control over these veterinary hospitals——

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK On a point of information, Sir. We have no entire control, for instance, we cannot transfer Assistant Surgeons.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN I am talking about the hospitals Now, Government pay the whole salary of the veterinary assistants who are in charge of these hospitals Government have been contributing to the capital cost of constructing these hospitals And, in addition, Government have been contributing towards the maintenance of these hospitals, though it is an obligatory duty of the district local boards I think Government have been doing what they can. I am not justifying the reduction at all But I am removing the impression from the minds of honourable members that it is the district local boards that pay for everything It is Government that pay for everything, and yet these veterinary hospitals are known as being maintained by the district local boards This year being a special year, a reduction has been made in the various departments Similarly, a pro-rata cut has been made in this Department also I hope, as soon as the financial position of this Government improves, the Honourable the Finance Member will be able to restore the former grant

Dr M K DIXIT (Surat District) Sir, I am glad to know from the honourable member Mr Kamat (who is not now in his seat) that sera and vaccines are manufactured in our own country I wanted to know why, if it is possible to manufacture sera and vaccines in our own country, we should buy them from outside. If the Honourable Minister agrees with what the honourable member just now said, I have nothing else to add.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Sir, the honourable member Mr. Kamat has lightened my burden. He has already explained that sera and vaccines are manufactured in India at Muktesar. With regard to the examination fees, I may inform the honourable member that it is true that the fees are divided into Voted and Non-voted fees. These fees are paid to officers whose pay is voted and also to officers whose pay is non-voted According to the rules that are followed, all allowances and fees that are paid to officers whose pay is non-voted become non-voted

Dr M K. DIXIT Why should these fees be divided into two groups —voted and non-voted ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T. KAMBLI Because they are divided between two classes of examiners The pay of some of these officers is non-voted, the pay of some is voted. The fee follows the corpus.

Dr. M K. DIXIT. Is there a rule to that effect ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI If the honourable member will please examine the entries in the Budget, he will see that travelling allowance, overseas pay and all the allowances etc, paid to officers whose pay is non-voted are shown as non-voted.

Dr M D GILDER Is there a rule to that effect, and if so, will the Honourable Minister kindly tell us where the rule is ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI That the rule must be so will be seen from the various entries in the Budget

Dr M D GILDER That does not clear the point

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The honourable member the Finance Deputy Secretary may be in a position to clear the point

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Sir, I think he will be able to do it after my speech. The honourable member asked why there was a decline in the non-voted amount of fees and a rise in the voted amount of fees Sir, the number of officers whose pay is voted and who receive this kind of fee will be greater next year than that of officers of the other class. Hence the decline and rise respectively.

My honourable friend opposite (Rao Bahadur Naik) raised the question as to the cutting down of grants to district local boards The Honourable the Leader of the House has already explained at great length that it is the primary and obligatory duty of the district local boards to maintain veterinary hospitals under the Local Boards Act That Act was passed nearly 8 or 9 years ago The relevant provision in the Act clearly states that it is the duty of district local boards and of no other persons to maintain these hospitals This being so he cannot complain of any cut in grants However, this cut is not peculiar to this department alone. The honourable House is aware that educational grants have also undergone a similar cut This cut is made on account of extreme financial stringency.

Then my honourable friend asked me why there was an invidious distinction in the treatment meted out to various local bodies. There is no intention on the part of Government to make any invidious distinction between one board and another. It is true that certain local boards are to be given grants and certain others are not to be given grants. That distinction is made not by way of any rivalry or invidious distinction, but the Superintendent has been authorised to examine and select such of the local bodies in the Presidency as cannot, without receiving this help, maintain their veterinary dispensaries He has been asked to help such local bodies which would, but for this help, be compelled to close down their dispensaries That is the reason underlying this distinction which my honourable friend is pleased to call invidious There is no room for invidiousness . It is a reasonable rule and I am quite sure every sensible person will admit the reasonableness of the rule When I have explained this rule and the guiding principle underlying the same, I am sure that my honourable friend opposite will agree with me that it is a sound rule.

Mr. L. R GOKHALE: Are the fees to be treated as allowances ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT That information will be given by the honourable member the Finance Deputy Secretary in due course.

Mr C G FREKE Under section 72D of the Government of India Act, all salaries, allowances and gratuities drawn by non-voted officers are non-voted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Does the examination fee come under this ?

Mr C G. FREKE It is included.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE May I put a question, Sir ? In the first place, allowances were not non-voted So far as my memory goes, they were made non-voted by subsequent rules But the question is whether fees paid to examiners are really allowances That is the question.

Mr C G FREKE That is decided in accordance with the relevant sections of the Government of India Act Anything which has been classified as non-voted is included in the Budget as non-voted The Budget follows precisely the accounts And what has been ruled by the Auditor-General to be non-voted in the accounts, on the same basis the Budget estimates are prepared.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It has been pointed out that they are controlled and guided by the Auditor-General

Dr M K DIXIT Examination fees do not come under the heading "Salary" nor under the heading "Allowances" nor under the heading "Gratuity"

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The honourable member the Finance Deputy Secretary said that they are guided by what the Auditor-General rules as non-voted and voted However, that is purely a question for the honourable member the Finance Deputy Secretary to answer He said just now that the Finance Department is guided by the ruling of the Auditor-General The Auditor-General looks into the question

[The President]

What he passes on as non-voted is put down in the Budget as non-voted. It would be difficult for me to interpret this point one way or the other. But it may be accepted that it has been ruled by the Auditor-General that these fees should be shown as non-voted and therefore they have been included as such

Dr M K DIXIT It is rather an important constitutional question and I would not like to withdraw the motion that I have put down

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN It is not within the power of this Government to decide whether a particular item is votable or non-votable It is the Auditor-General who decides that. The Honourable Minister cannot be blamed for that.

Dr M. K DIXIT: Was this question of fees ever referred to the Auditor-General ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN. If it is the wish of the honourable House, we shall refer it to him

Mr. C. G FREKE. I will make enquiries with reference to particular items. As I have already said, the Finance Department has no power in this matter Budget estimates are prepared on the basis of the rulings of the Auditor-General The Auditor-General has the statutory power to determine in what section a particular item should be included and his instructions have been followed by the Finance Department If this particular entry has been put down as non-voted by mistake, that mistake, even though it is passed by this House, will be brought to notice by the Auditor-General

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE What this side of the House wants to know is whether this particular item of fees has been pointedly brought to the notice of the Auditor-General and whether he has classified it as non-voted.

Mr. C. G FREKE It has not been pointedly brought to his notice.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member the Finance Deputy Secretary has made it clear that if the item has been included as non-voted by mistake, and even if this House passes it, it will be corrected in the accounts In the meanwhile, neither this House, nor the Finance Department nor the Government Benches can decide the question If it is put down as non-voted, it has to be taken as such

Dr M. K DIXIT The amount is very small, but it involves an important constitutional question But in view of the assurance of the Honourable the Leader of the House that it will be referred to the Auditor-General, I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Mr. G S GANGOLI (Kanara District). Sir, I desire to move motion No. 45 for omitting the total grant of Rs. 5,44,000—Co-operative Credit—Blue Book, page 69——

The Honourable Mr G A. THOMAS I rise to a point of order, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT That motion No 45 purports to omit the whole of the demand for the Co-operative Credit Societies Department What does the honourable member Mr Gangoli really want ?

Mr. G S GANGOLI I wish to omit the whole demand.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT That makes a difference. The whole demand made under the main head cannot be omitted That is certainly out of order, but under the rules laid down an item under that whole demand or a sub-head of that demand could be omitted I will not, however, allow the honourable member by this method to raise a general discussion upon the hundred and one points bearing upon the question of the administration of the Co-operative Department Does the honourable member honestly feel that the Co-operative Department should be entirely dispensed with ?

Mr G. S GANGOLI I do not mean to say that

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS The honourable member says. Sir, that the total grant of Rs 5,44,000 should be omitted. He refers to page 69 of the Blue Book, but on page 266, of the White Book you will find that the total grant of Rs 5,44,000 contains a non-voted item of Rs 23,000. Therefore, the motion must be out of order because it includes the item of Rs 23,000 which is non-votable

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The effect of it would be that it would only operate in respect of votable demand

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS The honourable member wants to omit the non-votable item also

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I can allow him to change that from Rs 5,44,000 to Rs 5,21,000 Of course, it cannot affect the non-voted item What is the aim of the honourable member Mr Gangoli ? What is it that he wishes to raise, a general discussion ?

Mr G S. GANGOLI Yes, Sir, a general discussion. Even supposing I do not move this cut, there should be some discussion allowed on it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT There will be a general discussion on that motion on No 52 The honourable member can join that discussion He does not move it, I suppose ?

Mr G. S GANGOLI. I do not move it, Sir

Mr. V N. JOG (Dharwar District) Sir, I beg to move—

Reduce by Rs 7,000—Co-operative Credit—Pay of Deputy and Assistant Registrars—Rs. 44,012 (Civil Estimates, page 266).

My reasons are as I give them here

I believe that we can very well reduce the post of one Assistant Registrar No doubt two posts have been held in abeyance and therefore the figure of 8 has been changed into 6, but I still think that there is a scope for the reduction of one more post. That can be done by enlarging the charges of the Assistant Registrars——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT How does the honourable member come to Rs. 7,000 ?

Mr. V. N JOG It is for the pay which is given as Rs 250 rising to a higher figure The reduction of one post on an average comes to Rs 7,000 or something more, etc My motion is to reduce one post of assistant registrar The way in which I wish to effect this is that the Honourable Minister will be pleased to see from the report for the year 1930-31 ending 31st March 1931 that the number of societies which have been entrusted to the charge of various assistant registrars are varying The largest number of societies are in the Karnatak and three districts of the Karnatak have been given to one assistant registrar and one is given to another assistant registrar combined with Satara, Belgaum, Ratnagiri and Kolaba The number comes to 724 I wish to enlarge the various charges, and all the four districts of the Karnatak could be given in the charge of one assistant registrar There is one for Sind, one for Gujarat and as Maharashtra contains more districts, it may be given two assistant registrars So, it is quite possible to reduce the post of one assistant registrar and to make a saving which would come to Rs 7,000 If this cut is accepted or is passed, I do not wish to move the next cut under No 47 It is the pay of the Deputy Assistant Registrar and if they think that the Sind Division, where the number of societies is rising, is in need of an assistant or deputy registrar, that can be retained, because the volume of work to be done there is increasing and is bound to increase.

The reasons which I am giving for the reduction of this post are that the duties of the assistant registrar are to go and supervise the various societies and see how they are working, but now-a-days we have got so many institutions which do nothing else but go and supervise. As regards the non-official agency, we have got the supervising unions in the first place The societies which have been affiliated to the unions have got their own agency of supervision. Then the central financing institute has got its own agency to go and supervise the various societies to which they have lent money In every district there is a central bank to which all these primary societies apply for the resources they want and they have in their own interest to see that their money, which has been lent to the various societies, is safe and so they have appointed their inspectors who go and examine the various societies Then there are the propaganda officers of the Co-operative Institute and its branches. They too go and examine these accounts As these various bodies are there, I suggest there is no necessity to have a sixth man as assistant registrar. It was feared as we saw during the discussion on the last cut, that special auditors are necessary for certain special class of institutions in which the public invest their funds and because their position should be safe, audit should be restored That was in one way right, but with regard to primary societies, there are a number of societies

now which are rather not progressing and on account of the agricultural depression and the fall in selling prices, the charges can very well be increased Therefore I submit, Sir, that one post of the assistant registrar can very well be done away with and Rs 7,000 saved to the Presidency

Question proposed.

Mr G. S GANGOLI I think the post of Deputy Registrar has been retrenched

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI The Deputy Registrar is quite a different person from the personal assistant to the Registrar He is an independent officer having executive charge in Sind Sir, the honourable mover of the cut tried to support his motion on the ground that the work of Assistant Registrars is considerably reduced as there are so many supervising inspectors and officers appointed by the banks and also by the unions I would remind him, Sir, that these unions themselves add to the work of the Assistant Registrars in their respective divisions These are also required to be under the supervision of the Assistant Registrars The Assistant Registrar has to devote his attention to seeing whether the unions are working satisfactorily or whether they are not working satisfactorily That is an additional burden thrown upon the Assistant Registrar in addition to his ordinary duties So also the Assistant Registrar is expected to control and supervise the work of the office inspectors and officers referred to by the mover of the cut My honourable friend further said that the assistant registrars have practically no work to do in these days of depression There he is entirely in the wrong On the other hand, owing to the very depression, the various assistant registrars are required to work more vigilantly and are required to be more and more in constant touch with each of the societies under their charge They have to go and see that the unauthorised arrears are not growing in amount and that the societies do not unnecessarily plead the cause of depression for failure to pay their dues to the District and Central Banks Every assistant registrar is therefore expected to go and inspect not only the societies which are within easy reach of his headquarters but each and every society wherever it may be If my honourable friend thinks that depression causes reduction of the work to be done by the assistant registrars, he is entirely in the wrong I think this explanation will be quite sufficient for the purpose of this cut and I request the honourable mover of the cut to withdraw his motion

Mr V N. JOG I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion, Sir.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Mr V N JOG (Dharwar District) Sir, I beg to move—

Reduce by Rs 10,000 the provision made under "Co-operative Credit—Pay of Establishment—Auditors," of Rs 83,942 (C E page 266)

[Mr. V N Jog]

The reasons are the same as those I urged for the abolition of one assistant registrar Out of 43 auditors only one has been reduced The excuse given by the Honourable Minister in the case of assistant registrars is not applicable to the auditors This item can very well be reduced by Rs 10,000

The Honourable the PRESIDENT How many are to be reduced ?

Mr V N JOG About five Even the Retrenchment Committee have suggested this reduction In the Blue Book an explanation has been given that they have effected the cut which the Retrenchment Committee recommended But it is not quite clear to me that they have accepted that cut I may just refer to the suggestions which the Retrenchment Committee have made They are at page 60 of their Report, paragraph 37—

"We recommend that the scale of societies to auditors be increased as proposed by Government from 180 to 200 per pair of one senior and one junior auditor This will result in a reduction of six auditors"

They have actually given the figure as "six auditors" Sir, you will see from the White Book that in the current year the auditors are 43, and in the budget estimate they have provided for 42 auditors So, only one auditor has been reduced The explanation given in the statement of Government action as regards the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee is found at page 28, item No (iii)—

"The scale of societies to auditors should be increased from 180 to 200 per pair of one senior and one junior auditor, which will result in a reduction of 6 auditors"

The explanation against this is—

"This is being done Seven posts of auditors will be abolished and the work will be done by six sub-auditors."

Rao Bahadur S N ANGADI Where is the grievance ?

Mr. V N JOG The grievance is that it has not been done I have not been able to follow the remark "This is being done." It has to be explained Are they only contemplating to do it hereafter ? "Seven posts of auditors will be abolished and the work will be done by six sub-auditors" I wish to know whether the word "auditors" in the Budget Estimate covers sub-auditors also ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Yes, sub-auditors are not shown anywhere else

Mr V N JOG The same remark appears in the Blue Book

"Co operative Credit—The decrease of 34 in the ensuing year's estimate as compared with the current year's revised estimate is mainly due to the 10 per cent cut in pay, the holding in abeyance of two posts of Assistant Registrars, replacement of seven posts of Auditors by six posts of Sub auditors"

So, the real reduction is only by one In the case of six only the grade is changed Instead of having six auditors they have six sub-auditors. What the Retrenchment Committee really recommended was that the size of the charge should be increased from 180 to 200 societies. That does not appear to have been done If that is done, then why not accept this cut and reduce the number of auditors by five, which will approximately give Rs 10,000 ?

Question proposed

Mr G S GANGOLI (Kanara District) Sir, I rise to support the honourable member Mr Jog in what he says, namely, that there has not been a proper reduction as required by the existing facts and as recommended by the Retrenchment Committee Yesterday, the House sanctioned the addition of one more auditor I had no opportunity of replying to the discussion then They maintained that there was an increase in the number of banks and so a special auditor was really wanted Nobody denies that there should be proper audit But what is the state of affairs ? Have new societies or banks come into existence ? No The societies that are already there become banks. If a society increases its working capital from Rs. 48,000 to Rs 50,000 it becomes a bank As soon as a society increases its capital to Rs. 50,000 it comes under the purview of a special auditor In order to cope with the increase in the number of such banks, they appoint a special auditor But what has happened is like this A number of boys are promoted from the matriculation class to the college class , they appoint a professor for them in the college, and yet keep the teacher in the high school. The old societies are changed into banks, and a special auditor is appointed and the sanction of the House is taken to that Then, why should the same number of sub-auditors as before be maintained ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Can the honourable member give an instance of an ordinary society converting itself into a bank ?

Mr. G. S GANGOLI That is the rule As soon as a society increases its working capital to Rs 50,000 it becomes a bank. Does the Honourable Minister contend that all these banks were new ventures ? Who created them ? The societies that were already there were converted Government themselves say that their policy is not a policy of expansion, but consolidation That is what they say in their statement regarding the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee Item (iv), page 28 The recommendation is—

" The Co-operative Department should follow the policy of consolidation rather than that of expansion "

Government's remark against this is " This recommendation is being put into effect " So, there is no expansion at all. Matriculation students are taken into the college class, a professor is appointed, but the high school teacher also is retained There is no expansion at all. Are new societies coming forward ? Let me know from where they do come With these words I support the cut

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Bombay University). Sir, I have no intention to intervene in this debate, but I would like the Honourable Minister to look into the matter and give a satisfactory explanation.

[Rao Bahadur R R. Kale]

What is the state of affairs? Look at page 60, paragraph 37 of the Report of the Retrenchment Committee What they have proposed is—

In the statement supplied to us, under the head "Action taken by Government" it is distinctly stated "This is being done Seven posts of auditors will be abolished and the work will be done by six sub-auditors," so as to effect a saving of Rs 13,000 If that is done—it is stated that it is being done—if the Honourable Minister says that that is actually being done, then the question will be settled; there will be no occasion for further discussion of the cut I therefore want the Honourable Minister to give a straight reply to this question.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Sir, the statement given by the Government regarding the recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee is quite correct We are abolishing the posts of seven senior auditors and replacing them by six sub-auditors. What is stated there is quite correct I cannot say exactly whether they have already been discharged, but notices have been given to them and they will be discharged before the first of April at any rate Rao Bahadur R R KALE Are Government budgeting for a cut of Rs. 13,000 on account of this change?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Certainly, Sir, in the next year commencing from April 1st, 1932, you will see a reduction of expenditure on account of abolition of posts of seven auditors

The Honourable the PRESIDENT But the budget for 1932 is before the House

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI In the budget there is no distinction made between auditors and those sub-auditors who are to be appointed in place of auditors whose posts are abolished, they are all shown as "auditors" Moreover this is what the Retrenchment Committee say —

"We recommend that the scale of societies to auditors be increased as proposed by Government from 180 to 200 per pair of one senior and one junior auditor This will result in a reduction of six auditors"

In order to give effect to this recommendation, we have ordered that seven auditors should be discharged and they are being discharged Six of these retrenched auditors are being replaced by what they call junior auditors, but what we call sub-auditors

Rao Bahadur R R KALE What is the result?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI. So much money is saved owing to the fact that the pay of sub-auditors is less than that of auditors

Rao Bahadur R R. KALE Do you accept the cut?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T. KAMBLI Does the honourable member mean to say that in addition to the decrease in expenditure already made we should accept any more cut? No, it cannot be accepted The cut desired has already been effected The budget provides for a reduced number of senior auditors. I do not know exactly how many auditors as distinguished from sub-auditors there are in the current year, but their number (i e, the number of auditors) will be less by seven from the 1st of April Therefore, the expenditure figures show a reduction.

Rao Bahadur R. R KALE: How? They have shown the number of posts as 42; it is 43 during the current year.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI As I have stated, 42 is the total number of auditors and such sub-auditors who replace the discharged auditors There is no distinction made for budget purposes between auditors and such sub-auditors who are to replace the auditors who are retrenched They are all shown as auditors in the budget. The recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee makes a distinction between senior auditors and junior auditors They want to replace six senior auditors by six junior auditors We have gone a little further and have done away with seven auditors and replaced them by six sub-auditors, we have thus effected a large saving

Mr V N JOG The reduction in the number of personnel is only from 43 to 42

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI In the budget there is no distinction made between auditors and those sub-auditors who are to replace the seven senior auditors who are to be retrenched

Mr V N JOG The budget estimate for 1931-32 did not include the ten per cent cut This year's budget estimate includes that cut

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN Sir, may I explain? The total number of auditors and sub-auditors was 43 in all. Seven auditors have been retrenched and six sub-auditors substituted Therefore, the budget shows that the number has been brought down from 43 to 42 Then, Rs 1,04,000 was the total provision for the current year Even if you take 10 per cent out of that, it will leave Rs 90,000 or perhaps more than that You actually find a figure of Rs. 83,942 in the budget estimate for 1932-33 As a matter of fact, therefore, the reduction is from ten to eleven lakhs.

Mr V N. JOG And the difference in the pay of auditors and sub-auditors makes up the difference

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The total reduction is Rs 21,000, a ten per cent cut will give a reduction of only Rs 10,000

Mr V N JOG The recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee was that the charge should be enlarged and six auditors should be removed By a sort of camouflage, Sir, Government have reduced six auditors and substituted six sub-auditors in their place.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The expenditure has been reduced from Rs. 1,04,000 to Rs 83,000 The honourable member thought that that was because of the ten per cent. cut As has been pointed out by the Honourable the Finance Member, there has been a further reduction of Rs. 11,000 The substitution of sub-auditors in place of auditors was probably done in the best interests of the department. I do not know whether the honourable member has anything more to say.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T. KAMBLI : That is the exact position, Sir

Mr V. N JOG The retrenchment committee wanted an enlargement of the charge and also a reduction of six auditors They did not put any monetary value as to the reduction It may have been more than what the Government wishes to reduce, namely, only Rs. 13,000. They simply say that six auditors should be removed. But Government have brought down the number only from 43 to 42, and Government have met them by taking advantage of the suggestion without reference to the size of the charges or personnel

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI They have made a distinction between auditors and sub-auditors Please read it again carefully and you will understand the difference.

Mr. L. R GOKHALE : Rs. 90,000 has been reduced to Rs 83,000.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT It is Rs. 1,04,000.

Mr. L R GOKHALE : Does the difference include the reduction both in number and in pay ? Let that be stated clearly

The Honourable the PRESIDENT. The Honourable the Finance Member has pointed out that there is a reduction of Rs 11,000 apart from the cut in pay.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI This is as clear as it could be

Mr. L. R GOKHALE: In spite of the recommendation about the retrenchment being accepted, have Government reduced the number of auditors ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN. Sir, there is a misunderstanding on this question. The Honourable Minister has explained to the honourable members that Government have reduced one auditor and replaced six auditors by six sub-auditors. Therefore, the number has been reduced from 43 to 42. The difference in the salary of the two auditors and sub-auditors, will give a saving of about Rs. 11,000 to Rs 13,000

Mr L. R GOKHALE Will the Honourable Minister give us the figures and show how Rs 83,000 has been arrived at ? I do not find it.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI. The pay is given there and the number is given there.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE : This side of the House cannot understand this.

Rao Bahadur R. R KALE May I ask one question ? Has the charge of an auditor been increased as a matter of fact ? Have any orders been passed as recommended by the retrenchment committee, namely, that the charge should be increased from 180 to 200 societies to each auditor ?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN The charge is to be under one senior auditor and one junior auditor

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI It is for that very purpose that the number of senior auditors has been reduced

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I do not wish this point to be pursued further The contention of the opposite benches is, had Government strictly followed the suggestion of the retrenchment committee, they would have made a greater saving than they have been able to effect Have Government followed the recommendations of the committee ? If that is so, then the matter is set at rest

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T. KAMBLI We have followed the recommendations of the retrenchment committee faithfully Their recommendation is that one senior auditor and one junior auditor constituting a pair should be given charge of 200 societies instead of 180. (It may be noted here that the retrenchment committee have called our auditors as "senior auditors" and they have called our sub-auditors as junior auditors) This can only be done by reducing the number of senior auditors Therefore, we have reduced the number of senior auditors. We have reduced the number of senior auditors and increased the size of the charge under each I will illustrate it concretely Let us suppose that there were X senior auditors and "N" societies, in order to increase the number of societies under each senior auditor, we have to reduce the number of senior auditors, accordingly we have reduced X by seven; and therefore the existing societies will be distributed among X-seven senior auditors The societies which were audited by X senior auditors will be audited now by X-7 such auditors So naturally the charge of each is enlarged

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI The number of senior auditors is not increased but actually decreased by seven.

Mr L R GOKHALE. It appears that the actual reduction is not as much as six hands I am talking of both auditors and sub-auditors. We want to know whether six hands have been reduced or the number of hands has been kept up to meet the increased demand for auditors. If the number has been kept let us know it. The retrenchment committee recommends that six hands should be reduced The number has been reduced only by one We also do not know how a cut of Rs. 13,000 has been effected

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Does the Honourable Minister wish to say anything ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T. KAMBLI Sir, I only appeal to them to bear in mind the distinction between auditors and sub-auditors. The number 42 includes senior auditors and the six sub-auditors who are substituted for the seven auditors whose posts are retrenched. That will explain everything If they do not care to make that distinction, it will be very difficult to satisfy them.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT. The matter need not be pushed further

Question put, and negatived.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT There is one matter which I wish to bring to the notice of the honourable House before we disperse Honourable members know that there is the Governor's party to-morrow. As usual, we will assemble early and rise early The question is at what time we should assemble and at what time we should rise ? The House may take 3½ hours or 4 hours If the House wants 4 hours, we can assemble at 9-30 and disperse at 1-30. [Honourable Members 10-30 to 1-30]

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN We can meet from 10 to 2

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I suggest, if it is going to be 4 hours, 11 to 3 will be suitable

Khan Bahadur M A KHUHRO 9-30 to 1

The Honourable the PRESIDENT 10 to 2

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS Sir, honourable members must have some time for their meals 10 is too early for breakfast and 2 too late for breakfast and too early for lunch

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The House will then meet to-morrow at 10 a m and adjourn at 1

There is one other matter I have a letter sent to me somedays back by Sir Kikabhai Premchand, the Sheriff He is inviting the All-India Franchise Committee and members of this Council on the 10th March, and he wishes to know whether it would be possible for this House to adjourn early on that day

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN What is the time ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT 5 p m

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS There is one difficulty about meeting early on that date. The Members of Government have to meet the Franchise Committee

The Honourable the PRESIDENT. We will consider this question later on

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN Sir, Mr Turner has to make arrangements for the Franchise Committee to-morrow. Let us meet at 11 a m instead of 10 and disperse at 2

The Honourable Mr. G A. THOMAS : Sir, why should not one of the members on the other side pair with him and absent himself ? Why should we change the time ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Eleven to two. That will be three hours. If the House is agreeable, I have no objection

[The President]

There is one more matter I was approached by the Local Franchise Committee and the All-India Franchise Committee even before the Council assembled, with a request that, if possible, rooms should be spared for them in the Council building to hold their meetings. I gave one portion of the Library to the Local Committee That was all right so far as they were concerned The Local Committee also wanted the Party Rooms I thought that during the session, honourable members would be meeting there and therefore I could not give them to them Now, the All-India Franchise Committee is coming They want accommodation The Local Committee will not be sitting I gave them two rooms on the top floor, the Library and the reading room. The Chairman will require in addition the third room for himself. I gave my consent after consulting some of the party leaders The Marquis will hold his own office there The Library will remain there, and honourable members, if they want to take out any book or paper, can do so They cannot be occupying the third room for a week at least

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI Where are we to read ? Sir, reading rooms are vacated and there is no sitting arrangement in the verandah, also no provision of light I wish some arrangement could be made

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I shall look into that I think we should accommodate the All-India Committee The party rooms are available for honourable members

The House is now adjourned to 11 a.m , to-morrow, Wednesday, the 2nd March 1932.

BOMBAY : PRINTED AT THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL PRESS.

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—resumed

Rao Bahadur L V PARULEKAR (Ratnagiri District) Sir, I beg to move .

Reduce by Rs 100—Total Voted demand—Rs 23,95,000 (C E page 251)

I intend to move this cut simply for the purpose of getting some information and explanation and also if possible of securing some assurance in connection with the working of this department, especially in view of the fact that in his reply to the general debate on the budget the Honourable Minister in charge of this Department stated that as there was not much criticism in connection with the working of his department, there was very little for him to reply to This statement should not go unchallenged or by default and with that object I wish to make a few observations I wish to deal with the treatment that has been given to the Konkan Division of the Agricultural Department this year

On page 70 of the Blue Book, paragraph 170, it is stated,

"The decrease of 1,86 in the ensuing year's estimate as compared with the current year's revised estimate is due to further measures of retrenchment, e.g, abolition or holding in abeyance of the posts of District Horticultural Officer, Agricultural Engineer in the Presidency and Deputy Director of Agriculture, Konkan "

Now, we begin with this abolition or holding in abeyance of the post "Abolition" and "holding in abeyance" are joined by the word "or" They are not synonymous Are we to take it that the post of Deputy Director of Agriculture, Konkan, is to be abolished altogether or that it is to be held in abeyance only ? If the post is to be abolished altogether, our Konkan agriculturists would be horrified, no doubt

It may be noted that this Division was formed in 1910, in view of the fact that the conditions of the districts comprising this division, namely, Ratnagiri, Kolaba, Thana and Kanara, were quite distinct from the conditions of other districts which are up-Ghat places The nature of the rainfall, the nature of cultivation, the nature of the soil, the nature of everything connected with agricultural progress is quite distinct and separate from that of the other districts I may say that this Division is a backward Division in every respect The staple crops of this Division are only two—rice and nagli—as compared with the rich crops of cotton, wheat, sugarcane and such other crops which are available in up-Ghat places Now, Sir, the yielding capacity per acre of these crops, so far as Konkan is concerned—and Ratnagiri district in particular—is only about 15 maunds of paddy and 6 maunds of nagli Everybody who has an idea of the Konkan and of Ratnagiri district especially, will admit that a great portion of the land is rocky land This portion produces nothing—not even grass. Only a small portion is capable of rice cultivation

[Rao Bahadur L V Parulekar]

There has been a general complaint, even after the creation of this Division, that no special attention is paid for the development of these principal crops of rice and nagli At the same time we see that every consideration is being bestowed upon other of the richer parts of the Presidency For example, take cotton, wheat, sugarcane In this House we have got evidence that special attention is being paid to these crops and special experiments are being tried in sugarcane cultivation in some districts Special attention was necessary to be paid to the Konkan district in this direction also, I mean in the direction of crop experiment In connection with this, after many complaints, some portion of the attention of the officers of the department was diverted to the giving of help to agriculturists by way of amelioration, through researches in rice and nagli production Only for the last three or four years some experiments have been carried on There is another important crop, namely, the mango crop, but it is a money crop and not a staple crop. I will refer to it subsequently After much effort the question of nagli and rice was taken in hand, and we find from pages 44-45 of the annual report for 1930-31 that experiments were tried at Karjat, Ratnagiri, Kumta and some other place. Various kinds of rice strains were experimented upon and very satisfactory results have been obtained. At page 164 of that report the question of rice research and experiments has been referred to and we see from it that four places have been selected, and on page 165, paragraph 6 runs as follows

"At Sakharpa sub-station, the trials of intermediate and late strains mentioned on page 100 of the last year's report were tried. Among the Waksal selections strains Nos 206, 271, 275 and 290 were found superior, but the best performance was seen in strain No 207 This strain has given 20 per cent increased yield over local waksal and it will be tried on a field next year . "

It may be noted that 20 per cent increase is a very good increase over local variety The report goes on

"Among the Bhadas selections strains Nos 79 and 92 have maintained their superiority over the local Bhadas, giving 14 2 and 21 2 per cent increased yield over the check, both of them will be tried on a field scale Selection in Warangal type has been started during the year under report, and strains No 420, 448, 447 appear promising and have given increased yield of 28 1, 25 7, 23 7 per cent, respectively, over the local warangal variety"

Only these three strains have been experimented upon There are many other sorts in regard to which nothing has been done, not because they have thought it not necessary to do so but because they have not time to do it. They commenced with these three varieties and their experiments have been successful I know, because I am connected with the agricultural association of the district, and I have reason to believe that if this kind of experiment is prosecuted further, better success will crown their efforts

So also at Kumta, page 165, paragraph 7, we see there is an increased yield of 32 per cent and the results are satisfactory By "satisfactory" I mean that when they commenced it there was no disappointment, and therefore every kind of encouragement was necessary to be given to this kind of experiment and research work, but now if this matter of

experiments are throttled by the post of Deputy Director being abolished, I do not know who will take care of this work and how help will be given to the agriculturists

Similar results will be found in the case of nagli also At page 167 of the same report, paragraph 11, we find the following

"The work of propagating promising strains of nagli and also of confirming the results of the varietal trials mentioned on page 163 of the last year's report was continued at the Hatkhamba sub-station during the year under report The strains Nos A16, B11, E31 and E82 were tried by the Fishers' method in four replications along with the local Kalperi and the results are given below A16 has given 37 per cent increased outturn over the local check and it stands first in point of yield E31 has given 25 per cent increased yield and it stands second in the order of merit B11 and E82 have given 17 and 15 per cent increased yield and they are suitable for the coastal tract, being very early varieties"

In my district there are no less than four more sorts of strain in vogue and yet no attention has been paid to all of them If experiments are further tried, they may prove successful also and the results will have to be popularised by showing them to the people concerned so that they may be encouraged to try new strains, and the people will have to be shown how to manure, how to cultivate and how to obtain the best yield These things are yet in embryo and therefore much work has to be done which means that if this kind of retrenchment is made, I am sure the condition of the agriculturists of my district will be rendered more horrible than it is at present Even natural justice requires that always attention should be paid to the poor even at the cost of the rich and I urge this phase of the question on the attention of the Agricultural Department and also on that of the Honourable Minister for Agriculture The experiments which have been made in one or two crops have been successful, but further prosecution of those experiments will necessarily be thwarted on account of retrenchment of the post of Deputy Director of Agriculture of the Konkan division

When the question of retrenchment comes up, two points arise. First, when any research is to be made, whether the importance of the research is to be considered superior and retrenchment is to be considered subordinate, or, secondly, whether retrenchment is to be carried out even at the cost of experimental research You will see that in the case of researches in sugarcane and cotton, first importance is given to them by allotting big sums and retrenchment has been given a secondary place But when we come to the Konkan District, we find that in case of similar researches in rice and nagli quite the opposite considerations have weighed with Government and they have decided to give the go-by to the research work and cut down the post of Deputy Director of Agriculture So, at one place Government forget the importance of research work and at another they forget the importance of retrenchment Why this is so is more than I can understand

Now I come to the other important money crop of my district, namely, the mango The superiority of the Ratnagiri mango is undoubted, but the economic condition of our agriculturists is such that they, with all this, cannot get enough food for their maintenance for four or five months of the year In this state of things the agriculturists have to rely on mango crop as an addition to their other meagre resources. The vagaries, however, of this mango crop are such that if one year there is plenty, another year it is very meagre, and if one year one tree produces 100 fruits, another year you find scarcely ten on that same tree Why this is so is well worth the consideration of the Agricultural Department. After very many complaints, the Agricultural Department took this matter up and some experimental work has been tried in the matter of the flowering etc , of mango trees On page 169 of the annual report I have referred to, we find what has been done by the Agricultural Department The report states .

"In the last year's report methods of regulating the bearing of mango by pruning and manuring were described. These were tried on a large scale during the year Pruning is particularly useful for trees which are very irregular in bearing Six branches were pruned every week from November to middle of February . .."

There are two budding seasons, June and October, when the branches begin to bud. In October the dormant buds are pruned and subsequently they are found to develop into flowering buds This experiment has been tried only last year, and I have seen in Government farm and also in my own garden the experiments being tried and I have found that if a bud is pruned at a particular time, it develops into flowering and the same tree will be found with one branch properly treated in this way to give good fruit on that branch while the others do not. If this process of experimental work is carried on, considerable relief will be afforded to the agriculturists of the Ratnagiri District This and many other matters have yet to be gone into carefully by the Department

First comes the question of production of fruit as already stated. Next, the preservation of fruit The fruit has to be preserved from so many diseases, from mildew and other elements which destroy the flowers. Various attempts have been made in this direction during the last few years with more or less success, but lastly it was announced that the dry sulphur dusting was the most effective means of preventing the disease as will be detailed further on. All this means continued and sustained research and experimental work, which in turn means the continuance of the activities of the Agricultural Department in my district Otherwise, what little good has been achieved during the past few years will go for nothing In connection with this it may be stated that the department took the matter of prevention of the disease of mangoes first and tried it for some years without paying attention to the bearing of fruits But it is just like putting the cart before the horse, because, first there must be production and subsequently preservation But they have been paying their attention first to preservation, and now for the first time they are attending to production, and as the Deputy Director of Agriculture has said, on page 117 of the Annual Report, this part of the experiment ought to have been tried first, that is, flowering first and subsequently preservation That ought to have been very zealously taken into consideration. That is what he has recommended in paragraph 240 of the Annual Report This part of the work has not been sufficiently handled yet This work was initiated by the Deputy Director of Agriculture last year, but that year's little work also promises good results Very much therefore is yet to be done in this direction

Now we come to the preservation of the flowers Various experiments have been tried for this and some have proved successful They say that within the last two years dusting with dry sulphur has been found very useful, and by this process the flowers are preserved and become free from the attacks of diseases But that also is not properly generalised. It means that every person does not know it. The owners of the trees ascribe the failure of the crop to fate They say, "Very well, it is my misfortune; though the trees flowered well, the yield of fruit has been meagre" They must realise that it is not due to misfortune, but it is on account of causes which can be controlled Therefore, they, the agriculturists, must know that there is a controlling science, and they will get their dues when it is properly applied This is not yet sufficiently known to all the people, and therefore it is necessary to do further work in connection with that

The next thing is the marketing of the fruit. We see that the agriculturists, the owners of the trees, have got the fruit but they do not get proper value for their fruit, for they do not know how to market it. They do not know how to get the best price for it. What generally happens is this There are certain intermediaries, Banias or some other persons who approach the owners, pay money in advance, purchase the produce, and take away all the fruit Of course, persons in poverty are necessarily enticed by the sight of money, they are not in a position to know the real prices, and therefore they sell away their produce for very inadequate price and thus the real benefit goes to these Banias As a member of the District Association, I can say that we have been trying for the last 10 years for getting a good market in Bombay for our fruit But on account of the monopoly among the merchants which exists in Bombay, it is not possible to break through their ring and get proper prices for our produce Through the Agricultural Department now some kind of arrangement has been made by the appointment of an officer who is to assist the people to market their produce and give them proper facilities in the market in Bombay. That system has been lately introduced The question of the grading of mangoes has also been brought into force, and that system gives a guarantee to the merchant buying in Bombay, about the uniformity of the quality of the fruit contained in a parcel and fetches good price But the grading system has been very recently introduced, and we will find on page 33 of the Annual Report that the grading system that was introduced was considered to be working satisfactorily But that was tried only for one year in Malvan, Vengurla and Ratnagiri The experiment must be tried at least for 10 years One year is not a sufficient period I maintain that 10 years is the period at least that is required for the purpose of trying any experiment That will give some breathing time. If the experiment is tried only for a year and then dropped, we will be nowhere Who is to take charge of these activities? Who is to give advice ? Who is to do all these things if the Deputy Director goes away ? So far as I know, there was a mango sale society working there for nearly 10 years But on account of the want of aid and proper advice from the experts as well as Government officers of the Agricultural Department, this society had nearly to go into liquidation But in the last two years an attempt has been made to rejuvenate the society by a re-arrangement of the details of management and work with the aid of the Agricultural Department, and the officer in charge of the division has stated that he will assist, and he has assisted, and now the society has started a new life and many people have joined it. The people fail because there is no organisation, no arrangements, no proper help and scientific advice. Therefore, if Government take the step which they propose to, we will be in the same position as we were for the last 10 years, if nothing more is to be done in a proper way, by a proper person, with a sympathetic mind and energy to be applied to the solution of the problems of these persons

The next important thing in this connection is this There is not only the marketing of mangoes in Bombay, but there are very good prospects of a market overseas, especially in England From page 47 of the Annual Report, we will see that in England some experts have stated that mango and mango pulp contains a very essential element of human requirements, viz , vitamin C Therefore, and on that account a demand for mangoes is created in England We have tried to send mangoes to England for the last 10 years, but on account of the difficulty of refrigeration and other difficulties, we were not successful, as we were informed by certain steamship companies that these fruits cannot be carried to England in proper condition though there was a market for it Subsequently, I am told arrangements have been made with some shipping companies for the proper preservation of the fruit and safely carrying it to England There is a statement in the Annual Report that six dozen mangoes have been sent to England and have reached in a proper condition, but the result is awaited It is stated in the report that the result of this arrangement will be awaited in future Nothing further is done We will perhaps not know anything more about it Nobody will take care to see what the result will be, what kind of market there is in England for this fruit, and whether the quantity already sent has been properly received

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD May I ask the honourable member, by whom is the result awaited ?

Rao Bahadur L V PARULEKAR That is what is stated in the Annual Report

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD . By the Board of Trade in England ?

Rao Bahadur L V PARULEKAR Yes.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD I see

Rao Bahadur L V PARULEKAR We were trying for the last 10 years to secure an overseas market for mangoes, but without much success If we now succeed in securing an overseas market, especially in England, then there will be a very good field of profit to the producers many of whom come from Konkan Division especially Ratnagri District The difficulties, I am told, have been thus removed last year, and therefore it is necessary that the experiment should be prosecuted further, and if an overseas market is secured, Ratnagiri being the producer of the best mangoes, will share in the benefit that will be derived from it

I will now come to some other minor matters There are other products also in that neglected tract, to which nobody pays any attention If a person is appointed for a richer district, he does not care to visit the Ratnagiri District because there is the difficulty of transport, and when this Konkan District is mentioned to any officer, he squeezes his nose and says it will be the last thing for him to go there Therefore, we always see that the officers in the higher sphere from richer districts never take the trouble to go to the Konkan districts, and even if they go there, it is like the passing of an aeroplane, because he stays there for a day and returns, without knowing what the country is, what the soil is, what the agriculture is, and what the special products of the district are Therefore, we had been crying hoarse for a separate division so far as the Agricultural Department was concerned Thus, so far, very little has been done and when time has come perhaps for something being done, just then if the post of Deputy Director of Agriculture for the Konkan Division is abolished, I do not know whether the Konkan districts will survive, or come to a natural end

Sir, I was referring to some minor matters On page 34 of the Annual Report we find that much importance has been given to cashew The Ratnagiri District, the southern portion of it especially, grows cashew trees These cashew trees produce nuts and fruits. Up to about 15 years back these cashew trees were considered to be a wild growth and neglected Some children of the kunbis, especially the cowboys, used to go there, collect some cashew fruits and nuts which were lying as waste under the trees, and eat them Such was the condition of things Subsequently some demand was created for these nuts, during the last few years there has been a market for it, and people's attention was directed towards it and it became a source of some revenue to the agriculturists It may be said in connection with that that Zanzibar and other places produce cashew nuts in very large quantities. America is the greatest purchaser of these nuts, and although enormous quantities of cashew nuts, have been sent to America, still the demand is not satisfied, so much it is But no attention has been paid by the Agricultural Department to this produce, so far as our district is concerned The district produces not only rice and nagli and mangoes There are other products which can be tackled, and if proper attention is paid to it, the district will advance and the people there will be in a position to maintain themselves at least from 5 to 8 months in the year But that has not been done Now, Sir, although cashew nuts are gathered for export, nobody has paid any attention to the cashew fruit That is not at all a commercial commodity for the present Of course, if these trees are in the vicinity of a good town, basketfuls of these fruits are taken there and the people eat them, they are generally poor people; I do not suppose the rich people know the taste of this fruit But there is no important market for the fruit However, from my observations for the last 4 or 5 years, I find that the juice of the fruit contains saccharine matter in very large quantities, and in some States the saccharine is utilised for the purpose of preparing alcohol, but in British territory the preparation of alcohol from cashew fruit is prohibited But there is another way in which the saccharine can be utilised, and that is for the preparation of vinegar, i e acetic acid from it This is something for which the juice of cashew fruit can be utilised If the preparation of alcohol from it is prohibited, I think it can be made use of for preparing acetic acid, and that means vinegar Now, Sir, I got that idea, and I have been suggesting it to this department for over 4 years now But they have not taken much heed of it They have not paid any special attention to it I myself was experimenting on this matter, without success, for the last 3 or 4 years, but now I can say to this House that I have succeeded in preparing the vinegar out of this As I say I have been successful in preparing it and I have even sent a bottle also to the Agricultural Department to get it properly tested, but I have not received any intimation from them I even compared this with the vinegar prepared from sugarcane and I must say that it compares very favourably with that product If proper education is given to people, it can be introduced as a cottage industry which is extremely beneficial to the interest of the agriculturists These are matters which have to be taken in hand but nothing has been done so far. If the head of this department is removed or abolished, I do not know what the agriculturists will do These agriculturists do not know anything themselves and therefore these things are to be installed into them, these also they cannot swallow properly We want persons from Government at the head to force these things into their heads and down their mouth Then, they will open their mouths and swallow easily.

There is another subject—poultry farming This is a very important industry which must attract the attention of everybody For the last 24 years I have been working at it but without success I have been growing rather pessimistic in the matter, when some months ago it was proposed by the Agricultural Department to start poultry farming in the Ratnagiri Farm Also scientific experiments were promised to be made in connection with that there This is the best kind of industry for the poor agriculturists Though they have got a small number of fowls, they do not know how to feed them, keep them and much less to market them They cannot do anything to make it a commercial commodity to supplement their income But this experiment on poultry farming has been or will have to be abandoned, though it was intended to be started, if the division is abolished My submission is that it is not a wise policy, whether it is suspension or abolition

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD What is the honourable member's submission ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The Deputy Director's post should not be abolished nor held in abeyance

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD About poultry farming ?

Rao Bahadur L V. PARULEKAR But poultry farming has nothing to do with the Honourable Member in charge of Education This is only one of the activities that was intended to be started, along with others in the district But for the continuance of this department in Ratnagiri, everything would have gone to ruin I have placed before the House the many possibilities of improvement and development, if this department is continued there. It is not a proper or wise policy to retrench this division I think that even the Retrenchment Committee has not recommended this I admit that in the present financial stringency there must be retrenchment, but the retrenchment should be made with an idea of proper discrimination and proper discretion In connection with this matter what saving will there be ? If the Retrenchment Committee has not made this recommendation, I do not know why this has been brought forward as a new measure of retrenchment

There is another thing which I would suggest All the agricultural schools have been abolished except—I think two—one at Devihasur and the other at Dhulia The strength of the Devihasur school is about 30 and that of the Dhulia school is about 40, so in all 70 That an inspector should be maintained for the inspection of these two schools is rather beyond one's comprehension The abolition of this post would have been a proper measure of retrenchment for the Retrenchment Committee to suggest This officer can be easily retrenched There are bias schools maintained by the district local boards independently and for the sake of these schools the officer may be utilised for some time. So far as these bias schools are concerned, the district local boards are reluctant to open more [Interruption] I understand that there are 45 schools in all As regards the strength of these schools I have no knowledge But these schools are newly started and no special officer of the status of the Inspector of Agricultural Schools is any longer necessary I can say that some other arrangement can be made for the inspection of these schools

What I want to say further is that the Deputy Director of Agriculture has been asked to go to Poona and work there. Perhaps he has to look after that district and the other districts also But instead of retrenching the Deputy Director at Ratnagiri any other of the Up Country Divisions could have been retrenched For a Deputy Director of one division in the Deccan can manage two divisions on account of the similarity of the condition and of the nature of work and the similarity or commonness of the problems to be tackled there For instance the Nasik District was created a few years ago If a person is asked to manage Poona and Nasik districts it would be easier for him But if he is asked to look after Konkan from the heights of Sahyadri he cannot do so Particularly we know that the Poona Division has been reheved of

sugarcane research, as a special establishment has been sanctioned for carrying out researches in sugarcane for which the Council also has allotted some money As that much relief has been given, the man who is in charge of the Poona District can look after Nasik District also I do not understand why Ratnagiri should be made to lose its officer and all the work stopped there

So far, I was speaking about Ratnagiri and now I come to certain matters of general importance First I shall take up boring operations Everybody knows the importance of water to agriculturists If any help is given to the agriculturists in that direction, they would find the greatest relief and thank the Honourable Minister in charge and the Government Unfortunately this very important help for the need of the agriculturists has been taken away or suspended or kept in suspended animation for the last two years It is stated again that this machinery is kept in one place A question was asked by the honourable member from Kaira (Rao Saheb Desai) whether Government were willing to lend this to any other institution The reply appears in the 6th list of questions and answers on page 13 We find that there are 89 machines out of which 78 are lying idle Then the answer runs thus

"Experience has shown that the maintenance of machines on loan and the replacement of lost parts causes a disproportionate amount of work and trouble and the Agricultural Department cannot now maintain a staff to deal with the loan transactions and undertake repairs and renewals of the machines Government have therefore decided that such local bodies as require machines should purchase them from the Agricultural Department"

Everybody who has any idea of machines knows that if they are kept idle, they go to rot If they are used, there is deterioration but this deterioration means that they have given a large amount of work If Government do not use these machines, at least they must lend them to those who use them on certain conditions. No doubt, we see that people are coming forward to use the machines and keep them in proper repairs. In spite of that, they are allowed to rot and who will purchase them subsequently ? So, it is the policy of the dog in the manger—neither will they use them nor will they give them to others My submission is that they should keep the machines in the offices of the different local boards and give them on loan to people who want them on certain conditions. We in Ratnagiri feel so much need of water Government do not make use of these machines, nor do they give them to others

Then the question of maintaining staff to deal with loan transactions. How much staff is required for dealing with loan transactions ? One clerk is enough to make the necessary entries in the register books With regard to repairs also, you can get mechanics everywhere. There are lorries, there are buses, there are private cars The mechanics can be found everywhere These machines are not delicate ones They are crude. An ordinary mechanic can easily repair them at a cheaper cost than what Government are paying

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI May I ask whether there are good mechanics who can carry out repairs in villages in Ratnagiri District ?

Rao Bahadur L V PARULEKAR How many do you want? They are available in Ratnagiri

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI I am glad to know that

Rao Bahadur L V PARULEKAR Everbody knows what these machines are Anybody can repair them We have got mechanics who can repair more delicate machinery

My submission to this House is that this policy should be changed. Discrimination will have to be used It is not good policy to effect retrenchments in a place and make the poor suffer With these remarks I move the cut

Question proposed

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Before we proceed with the debate on this motion, I should like to give an opportunity to the honourable member the Finance Deputy Secretary to explain the position regarding yesterday's point, namely, the classification of fees for examiners The honourable member has gone into the question and wishes to make a statement

Mr C G. FREKE The question raised, Sir, was whether examination fees (shown at page 262 of the White Book) are correctly classed as non-votable I think one of the honourable members stated that a change had been made in the classification, I have looked into the matter since last night and, so far as I can ascertain, no change in the classification has been made

A question was asked by the honourable member Mr Jog in June last year, of which a part was "What are the allowances which are not subject to the vote of the Council?" and the reply to that part of the question given by the Honourable the Finance Member was

"The following allowances when drawn by persons whose salary is not subject to the vote of the Legislative Council are not subject to the vote of the Council

(a) Compensatory allowance
(b) House rent allowance
(c) Permanent travelling allowance
(d) Conveyance allowance
(e) Tentage allowance
(f) Sumptuary allowance
(g) Fees to Government servants
(h) Rewards to Government servants
(i) Honoraria

The section which underlies this and to which I referred yesterday is section 72D of the Government of India Act It lays down

"For the purposes of this sub section the expression 'salaries and pensions' includes remuneration, allowances, gratuities, and contributions (whether by way of interest or otherwise) out of the revenues of India to any provident fund or family pension fund, and any other payments or emoluments payable to or on account of a person in respect of his office"

And under sub-section (2) of that section, if any question arises whether any proposed appropriation of moneys does or does not relate to the above heads of expenditure, the decision of His Excellency the Governor shall be final

[Mr. C. G Freke]

I now turn to the decision of His Excellency in regard to that I find that the point was specifically raised in 1923 and the Governor then ruled that the term "Salaries" used in section 72D includes honoraria.

The definition of the term "Honoraria" is :

"Honorarium means a recurring or non recurring payment granted to a Government servant from general revenues as remuneration for special work of an occasional character"

And it is under that definition that examination fees are included and classified as non-voted I would only stress one point, and that is, that no change has been made in the estimates this year

Mr V A SURVE (Ratnagiri District) (Addressed the House in Marathi) Sir, I rise to support the cut moved by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Parulekar

The total area under rice cultivation in the Ratnagiri district is only 260,000 acres as against the total area of 25 lakhs of the district This area produces rice sufficient in quantity to last for 4 months So for consumption during the remaining 8 months, they have to import rice from elsewhere The population of the Ratnagiri district is 12 lakhs.

The Agricultural Department was started in order to educate the agriculturists in new and improved methods of cultivation and render every kind of help to them in their difficulties But so far the agriculturist has not benefited to the extent of a single pie The only benefit that the agriculturists get from this Department is this manufacturers 7,000 miles away find a convenient market for their agricultural machinery such as boring machines, ploughs, etc., through the Agricultural Department Has the Department done anything to increase the cultivable area of the district from 2½ lakhs acres to, say, 10 lakhs ? If this had been done, there would not have been any famine in that district and it would not have been necessary to import large quantities of rice for the population of that district.

There are co-operative societies which are supposed to help poor agriculturists But they are serving no useful purpose

The only work of the Agricultural Department seems to be to provide jobs for Directors, Deputy Directors, Assistant Directors and a host of other people at the cost of the agriculturists If the amount spent on this Department is handed over to the district local boards, they will put the money to better uses Moreover, the local board knows the local conditions of the area and will be in a position to render the necessary help to the agriculturists What does the Director know of the special conditions prevailing in various districts ? Does he know the miserable condition of the agriculturists ? Does he know that he has to purchase rice from outside and pay land revenue to Government in addition ?

Recently the Provincial Banking Enquiry Committee made investigations into the condition of the people of my district. In my evidence before the Banking Inquiry Committee I told my honourable friend Mr Kamat that if the Government are keen on doing something for the benefit of the agriculturists and if the Committee is also keen on doing something for the benefit of the agriculturists of my district, so many things would have to be done In the Ratnagiri District plenty of rice could be grown but in the absence of proper facilities and owing to the economic condition of the people the agriculturists are helpless. I told him that if they expected to get back any of the loans which they might make to the agriculturists, they would be wrong in doing so, because that would be an impossible thing but they might get an indirect return, in this way, namely, the department which may go to the help of the agriculturists with loans should look to Revenue Department which will get a revenue of 20 lakhs, but neither the interest nor the capital of those loans should be asked for from the agriculturists from our district for the simple reason that our condition is so hapless

I see, Sir, that it is often said that the Agricultural Department is for the benefit of the agriculturists, that so many enquiry committees, investigations, deputations and so on are all meant for the benefit of the agriculturists, and on such shows lakhs and lakhs of rupees are being spent What is the net result? How does it really further the interests of the cultivators? I for one am unable to see that the agriculturists get the real benefit out of the deliberations of such committees or investigations The committees may make any recommendations they consider in the best interests of the ryots, but I do not know that if any of their recommendations are accepted by Government and put into practice The Banking Enquiry Committee might have suggested where the banks should be situated and how the money is to be lent to the agriculturists and so on Beyond that, I do not think there is any other real help which has been given to the tillers of the soil Had there been anything else, we should have seen something of it in the Presidency

The Agricultural Department is costing a lot of money to Government, but the real agriculturists are not able to take advantage of the operations of the department I make a suggestion, therefore, namely, that this department should be abolished altogether and its operations should be turned over to the district local boards If only fifteen lakhs are given to the district local boards, the cost of maintaining agricultural schools in the districts and the cost of boring machines and the expense of maintaining highly paid engineering staff and so on would be considerably reduced and the agriculturists would be able to take advantage of the services rendered by the district local boards

Another thing I find in the Ratnagiri District is that the Revenue Department has been claiming its dues where it ought not to do so You may remember, Sir, that during the discussion on the last budget I warned the Honourable the Revenue Member that a tax of Rs. 50 an acre was being levied from the agriculturists, in respect of crops they grow in the hot season If an agriculturists takes out water from small wells and grows subsidiary crops like Udid, Peas, brinjals etc, the Revenue Department comes in and demands its toll Last year, the Collector issued an order to the effect that if any agriculturist wishes to grow such crops on his land during the hot season, he should first take the Collector's permission Yesterday I received a letter that the collection of this tax has already been commenced by the Revenue Department Yet we see it stated that the Agricultural Department is for the benefit of the people and yet we find the agriculturists being looted in this manner by the Revenue Department Neither the Director of Agriculture nor any of his Deputies nor his Assistants can interfere with the Revenue Department which goes on in its merry game of reducing the agriculturists to the very brink of ruin. All these departments are like the tusks of an elephant We do not know whether the elephant makes use of his tusks for eating its food For all I know, the elephant has some other grinders in its mouth Similarly, we have all these various departments one of which is ready to tax the agriculturist, the other is ready to punish the agriculturist, and the third is ready to collect its dues, regardless of the peasant's capacity or incapacity to pay. Between all these various departments, the poor tiller of the soil is ground down to starvation, if not death I particularly draw your attention, Sir, to what is said by the Joint Parliamentary Committee as regards pods Suppose there is water in my land, I use it for producing small crops on my land, and although there is a separate land revenue assessment fixed for my land, the Revenue Department wants to charge me up to Rs 50 an acre for such subsidiary crops Is it either reasonable or just or fair. What good are all these departments of Agriculture, Public Health, Medical ? Co-operative ? They are like the tusks of the elephant

For all these reasons I say that this department of Agriculture should be abolished and its operations turned over to the district local boards, by which means half the present cost will be saved, and the real interests of the agriculturists will be taken care of far more effectively than at present

I lend my support to the motion moved by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Parulekar

Mr A N SURVE (Bombay City, North) Sir, I assure the Honourable Minister that this cut does not imply any political stunt, because the representatives of the poor people cannot afford and do not care to indulge in political stunts If the present cut has assumed importance, it is only to indicate the immensity of our feelings as regards the Konkan area When information was received by me that the Deputy Director of the Konkan District was going to be retrenched, I at once hurried to send in a resolution which appears in my name in the agenda of the present session. It is the third resolution and reads as under

"This Council recommends to Government that they should make provision for the continuance of the work done under the Deputy Director of Agriculture, Konkan, Ratnagiri, in the Budget for the year 1932 33"

Here you will find that the Government has not still made up its mind whether this post shall be only held in abeyance or whether it shall be abolished altogether Konkan, and especially the Ratnagiri District of that area, is a district which is very backward in the matter of production If the total produce of rice and other articles is taken into account, I do not think that it yields provisions for three months in the year. Such a district it is and therefore it is the duty of Government to see what could be done for that district Sir, in the Ahmednagar District, which was very precarious owing to scanty rainfall, Government has undertaken vast irrigation schemes, but in the Ratnagiri District there is not a shortage of rainfall but there is an abundance of it but all that water is wasted That is why the district is backward in agricultural produce, and also because the soil there is very poor, being rocky soil, and therefore if any area in the Presidency requires investigations, it is the Konkan area Government must carry on research work and see how the productivity of this area could be increased so as to make it self-supporting But what do we find here? We find that the research work that was so very usefully carried on for the past ten or twelve years is now to be retrenched I might just give one instance As we cannot improve the fertility of the soil, we must see how we can improve conditions and according to the report the rice seed that has been tried at the Shirgaon farm at Ratnagiri has succeeded in evolving a rice seed which could increase the productivity of the soil by 20 per cent That kind of work must be undertaken, and if that work is either kept in abeyance or is altogether done away with, I fear that this district and the Konkan area also will be very badly hit During the old times, Konkan was self-supporting and now we find that it is not able to produce sufficient food-stuffs even for two or three months in the year What is the reason of it? The reason is that all crops have been neglected. I may just mention one crop only in the Konkan, especially in the Ratnagiri district In that district they used to produce turmeric, which is very largely used in spices It is a very rich product. Then turmeric can be used also as an ingredient in the preparation of dyes I am thankful to the honourable member who has reminded me of that So, take for instance this turmeric crop It has been going out of cultivation practically, and have Government ever taken the trouble to find out why this crop is going out of cultivation?

Then, Sir, let us take the mango crop Ratnagiri mangoes are the best in the market Sir, the Alphonso mangoes, which are sent from Ratnagiri to Bombay, fetch a very fancy price in Bombay When the crop is poor, I am told that they are sold at from Rs 12 to Rs 15 per dozen in the city of Bombay For the past three or four years, an attempt is being made to export the Konkan mangoes to England The Honourable Minister for Education wanted some information on that point I think that he will find it in the Annual Report of the Department of Agriculture If mangoes can be exported to England, it will bring a very good return to the owners of mango gardens in that district The mangoes are there, and if there is no scientific guidance to the cultivators, I am sure that the owners of the trees, or even the co-operative societies can do very little Similarly, take the cashew nut.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: The Government Horticulturist has already dealt with mangoes

Mr A N SURVE My point is only this, that if the appointment of the Deputy Director of Agriculture for the Konkan Division is abolished, the cultivators in that area will be deprived of the scientific guidance which they get at present The burden of my argument is this, that the Konkan district is very backward, and steps should be taken to see how its productivity can be increased It is with that object that I have tabled the resolution Some of the arguments have already been advanced by the previous speaker, the honourable member from Ratnagiri (Rao Bahadur Parulekar) I am at a disadvantage in that respect But my point is that if Government carry on retrenchment in this fashion, instead of doing any good, it will result in incalculable injury That is my point We want that retrenchment should take place, but not at the cost of inflicting an injury We want Government to effect retrenchment where it is necessary There are many departments in which Government themselves have found that public money is wasted, but if they go on making retrenchments of this nature in a nation-building department they will be doing incalculable harm to the Presidency After all, if the people get money out of the produce of the soil, they can pay the Government dues, and there will be money in the exchequer Therefore, my humble suggestion is that if retrenchment is carried out in such a manner, it will do great harm both to Government and to the country at large Therefore, even at this late hour I would request the Honourable Minister for Agriculture to consider whether he will not keep the retrenchment of that post in abeyance, and whether it is necessary to do away with it My humble submission to him is that he will be doing good service to the Konkan area if he will not carry out the measure which he has threatened to do.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I must point out that the honourable mover of the motion took nearly one full hour, and he has placed before the House very useful material and as full an information on the subject as he possibly could The honourable members who follow him should not take up the time of the House in repeating in different form and language the same points which he has placed before the House

"Betel-vine protection—A devastating wilt disease broke out in the Bassein betel-vine gardens some 3 or 4 years ago, and the Department is carrying on an investigation into this disease and hopes soon to be in a position to recommend suitable protective measures"

This work is done by the Deputy Director of Agriculture from Konkan, and that was his province He has spent not less than four years over it, I have personally visited this area I have found that the people there have suffered most on account of this disease. The Agricultural Department, and especially the Deputy Director made thorough investigations for about three or four years, but no tangible result has yet been available, and it is only stated there that suitable protective remedies are being suggested I believe when the work is half done, it will not be wise economy to abolish that post I do not know how it is, but this pan supari, as we call it, appears to have fallen out of grace with divine arrangements Both the betel-vine and the betel-nut are attacked by disease in the Konkan The betel-nut is attacked by a disease called "Koleroga", I do not know whether it is a corruption of "Kala roga", but in the Report it is called "Koleroga" Both these diseases are the province of this officer, and therefore I was surprised to find that this officer was really marked for retrenchment If in the whole range of Deputy Directors of Agriculture any tangible actual work is being done, which is of immediate use, it is this work of the Konkan Deputy Director of Agriculture, and I would add my humble voice to the chorous raised for the non-abolition of this post.

There is one more circumstance I would invite attention to page 178 of the Annual Report, where agricultural education is dealt with. There is a report made by the Deputy Director of Agriculture, Konkan Division, about the Jambul agricultural school I believe it will be up to him to prepare students in knowledge for the purpose of combating the diseases of betel-vine and betel-nut, and if this school was made useful by taking advanced students and making them proficient in this method of spraying I believe that would be very useful work which is of immediate and immense use to the agriculturists there

Then, Sir, about mangoes, a reference was made by the Honourable Minister for Education to the report of the Horticulturist. That report also is almost half-hearted Only three varieties of mangoes were sent to England by a P & O steamer, and he says the mangoes continued to be green, and were not spoiled Beyond that, no tangible effort has been made in the marketing of the crop that is proposed to be exported to foreign countries In that direction also special efforts are necessary and if Government now remove the Deputy Director of Agriculture of the Konkan Division, who is at present in charge of the department there, they will be materially handicapping this particular method of relief to the agriculturists of Konkan

Sir, Konkan is a poor country, but though it is poor in money it is not poor in brains The backbone of the society in Bombay and the brains of the society in Maharashtra are from Konkan We must try to see that the Konkan brains and the Konkan backbone are not thoroughly wiped out I do not mean that it is the intention of any one to do it, but what I want to say is that people should be enabled to live there, and supported in their efforts to getting a living With these words, I would certainly add my voice to that of my honourable friends, and I do request the Honourable Minister in charge not to do away with this appointment of Deputy Director of Agriculture, Konkan Division

Rao Saheb B G DESAI (Kaira District) Sir, I rise to support the protest raised by the honourable mover of the cut with regard to the policy adopted by Government with regard to the Agricultural and

[Rao Saheb B G. Desai]

Boring Departments, and the Veterinary Department also. It will be remembered that the Boring Department was abolished by Government in spite of violent protests from this side of the House; but the Government did not stop there Government went further and called back the various boring machines which were given on loan to various local bodies though they did not cost anything to Government They were lent to local boards who were working them successfully at their own cost and turned out far better work than the Government boring staff used to do It has been explained that the Government have withdrawn these machines, because it cost them a good deal for maintaining a register of the machines and their parts, and had besides to engage a large staff to deal with the loan transactions with Local Boards

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T KAMBLI May I know from the honourable member whether he is referring to deep boring or shallow boring in his district?

Rao Saheb B. G DESAI I am referring to shallow boring With this explanation Government seeks to justify the policy they have adopted I wish to show how mistaken is the policy adopted by Government in this behalf and how unconvincing and unsatisfactory are the explanations given by them The boring machines in the first place according to the terms of the loan were to be repaired by the local boards concerned, and uptil this time there is no complaint raised by the Agricultural Department against the handling of these machines by the local bodies These machines were to be returned at the end of the lease period and the only thing that was to be done was to merely compare the parts of the machines with the entries in the register maintained for the purpose This certainly would not require a large staff or occupy appreciable time Even if Government believe that this expenditure is superfluous and financial stringency necessitates that it should be retrenched, then they could very conveniently transfer this work to the boring agricultural officers of whom there is one in every district This is not such very difficult or complicated work as would put any appreciable strain upon him, and it can easily be done by him in addition to and along with his other duties.

Sir, the Honourable Minister just asked whether the repairs can be carried out locally I can inform him that, as far as I know, all the boring machines in the Northern Division were kept in repairs by the local boards concerned, and they had not to go to any outside place for getting the necessary repairs Therefore as far as repairs are concerned, there should be no trouble or cause for anxiety to Government Even if it is found on enquiry that some of the local boards are unable to get these machines properly repaired, the machines can at least be given to those local boards who have successfully worked them and who are able to keep them in repairs, and who have shown to the satisfaction of the department that the work turned out by them was infinitely superior, both in quality and quantity, to that done by Government in the same districts in the past years Thus there is ample justification for revising the policy that has been adopted by Government.

Then, Sir, there is the question of agricultural schools These agricultural schools we are told are abolished as a measure of retrenchment owing to the recommendation of some commission, whose name I do not remember But I can point out and I know that the Kaira district local board offered to open an agricultural school and pay half the cost But the Government persistently refused to give necessary grant for the opening of the school Again in the Northern Division there were three schools and all these three schools have been abolished, while in the other divisions they have been retained I would like to know from the Honourable Minister why all the three schools in the Northern Division have been abolished and why in the other divisions they have been allowed to exist Is it that the Northern Division is less agricultural and that it does not require it or have any reports from the local officers been received to the effect that there is no necessity for any such school in the Northern Division ? The action taken by Government in this behalf is, I am constrained to say, quite invidious, unreasonable and unjustifiable

There is then the question of veterinary dispensaries These dispensaries are undoubtedly a great boon to the agriculturists as well as to the poor dumb cattle The Kaira District Local Board maintains five dispensaries in five talukas There are two talukas Mehmadabad and Matar which the honourable member the Revenue Secretary knows are very much affected since recent years At the pressing demands from these talukas the district local board proposed to open dispensaries in these two talukas Government replied that owing to financial stringency, these dispensaries could not be opened But I find now that Government are taking up new schemes of investigation at large cost. When they cannot spare grants for the opening of the new dispensaries, what is their explanation for launching a new scheme of investigation in these days of financial stringency ? When the district local board is persistently refused, the opening of new schools for reasons of financial stringency, can Government justify the undertaking of any new scheme of investigation, or opening of new farms ? I submit that the policy adopted in this behalf also requires revision and reconsideration. With these remarks I support the protest raised by the honourable mover of the cut, against the general policy of Government with regard to Agriculture

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu) Mr President, I am not going to take much time of the House on this subject In Sind there are three agricultural farms—one at Sakrand, one at Mirpurkhas and the third at Larkana. The Mirpurkhas farm is 20 years old A great deal of expenditure is incurred on the maintenance of these three farms The officers employed in those farms make experiments there and carry on research work The point for our consideration is how far the agriculturists have been benefited by these farms I made enquiries of some zamindars whether they were getting any benefit out of the running of these farms They said that the officers used to invite some zamindars once a year and demonstrate to them the result of their work, but the people could not take advantage of it, as they were ignorant and they could not afford to spend on their travelling expenses So, what I think ought to be done is that the officers must go out to the houses of the zamindars on tour and demonstrate to them on the fields As education is at its lowest ebb in Sind, (as the Government have not made any serious efforts to educate), this is the only practicable way in which the agriculturists can be made to take advantage of the results of the research work in the farms It will not do for officers to sit in Government farms and once in a year collect the people and make demonstrations in the farms For instance, there is kalar soil. The people ought to be taught how to remove it or what best can be grown on such a soil Unless they do all these things at the fields of the zamindars, we will not get any return for the enormous amount of 25 lakhs we are spending on these farms The Department has not yet found out how to remove the kalar

Then again, the crops are devastated by locusts every year The locusts cause a great deal of loss to the agriculturists and loss of revenue to Government——

Mr L R GOKHALE The Honourable Minister in charge of the Department is not here

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD He has just gone out and we are taking notes for him

The DEPUTY PRESIDENT A point of order has been raised When a department is under discussion, the Minister in charge of that department is not present in the House My own view of the matter is that if the Minister in charge goes out for a few minutes, any other Member of Government may give a reply on his behalf to the criticism offered on that department

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH The Agricultural Department of the Government of Punjab do all kinds of work and take precautionary measures to ward off the locust pest and instruct agriculturists as to the methods for its prevention and destruction Then again the rats commit havoc on the crops No measures are taken to instruct the people as to how to save their crops from the rats We are spending 9 lakhs for propaganda and research work Practically no propaganda work is done Still there is a provision of one lakh for travelling allowance to officers Unless the propaganda work is carried to the home of the agriculturists, the money that we spend will be a mere waste. The Honourable Minister must bestow his care on the question of propaganda. So that officers go out to each village, collect people and deliver lectures and demonstrate in their fields

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK (Surat District) Sir, when an important subject like the Department of Agriculture is under discussion it is regrettable that the official benches on that side of the House are vacant. [An Honourable Member They are not vacant] It can be seen what interest the honourable members sitting opposite, leaving the first bench, take in the development of Agriculture of this Presidency This subject has been discussed in great detail by the honourable previous speakers and therefore I do not want to take much of the time of the House by repeating arguments which have been already advanced But I want to be enlightened by the Honourable Minister in charge on certain points and from that point of view I am making certain observations.

It is now 30 years since the Department of Agriculture has been created in this Presidency and we must take stock of the working of this department during the past 30 years and see whether the department has given the result which was anticipated from it or which should have been given by this department I admit that here and there certain improvements in the varieties of seeds and varieties of crops have been made by the department and also some minor improvements have been made in the method of cultivation But it appears to me that the vital problem has not been till now successfully tackled by this department My remarks do not cast any reflection upon the personnel of the Department but its policy When I say this, I remind the Honourable Minister in charge that higher authorities than he, like the Vice-Chairman of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research have admitted the grievance which I am going to place before this honourable House It has also been admitted by two of the greatest European agricultural officers of the Presidency, not in this House but elsewhere, recently Sir, it is true that this Department is giving some attention to the research side of agriculture, to improving the varieties of certain kinds of crop, and so on But the Department has up to now done very little practical to increase the yield of the produce That is the grievance of the agriculturists It has been admitted, I repeat again by the highest authority on agriculture, namely, the Vice-President of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research and also by two of your own very able officers of the Imperial grade that this side of the research—I will not use the word neglected—has not been given attention to Only research work to improve the quality, will not be sufficient, if you do not give attention to this question also Side by side with the improvement in quality of crop, the yield should also be considered, and then and then only will agriculture pay I simply want to know from the Honourable Minister in charge or any other expert behind him what are the causes which prevent good results in the matter of yield in comparison with the yield in other parts of the world Only two days ago my honourable friend Mr Kamat was discussing the sugar cane industry of this Presidency. It is one of the most important industries We were also told by the honourable member from Ahmednagar (Rao Bahadur Chitale) that the Deccan tract is a very suitable tract for the cultivation of sugar cane I want to know what ingredients are wanting in the soil of this Presidency or in the working of the industry to make the industry yield so much less sugar as compared with other countries which produce sugar Take

Java which is our greatest competitor . In Java in half a million acres of land 1½ million tons of sugar is produced, that gives 3 tons per acre while here the yield per acre is ⅞ths of a ton. I want to know why this is so Is it due to irrigation defects or is the soil inferior, or is it due to shortage of manure ? Again, take Cuba Cuba is also a sugar producing country Out of a total acreage of 1½ million acres of land, they produce 3 million tons of sugar That gives 2 tons of sugar per acre What is the reason for this disparity ? Is it on account of the bad soil, or lack of irrigation facilities, or is it due to labour charges being higher in this country ?

Take another crop,—rice . As stated by the honourable member from Poona, this is one of the most important crops of this Presidency. It is an old crop of this Presidency Therefore you cannot say that the cultivators had no opportunity or no time to improve the quality and also the yield I will give the yield of the principal rice-growing countries of the world and you will find that India—or this Presidency—comes last but one I want to know why there is this vast difference and what the Agricultural Department has done to remove this disparity——

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Which investigation should proceed first ? Investigations as to quality or as to quantity ?

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK Both I will quote your own report to show what harm has been done by improving only the quality, how much agriculture has had to suffer Your own Director admits that Take these figures Our Presidency produces 1,000 lbs of rice per acre, China 1,420 lbs , Japan 3,080 , Java 1,420 , Philippines 1,432 , Indo-China 2,442 , Spain 5,016 , America 1,714 , Siam 515 , Italy 3,237 and Egypt 4,554

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH What varieties ?

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK All varieties , there are different varieties in different countries. I mean to say that barring one country, all other countries get a higher yield than this Presidency——

An Honourable MEMBER What is the yield of India ?

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK The yield for the whole of India comes to 900 lbs per acre But I am taking the Presidency of Bombay only The average yield for the Presidency is 1,000 lbs per acre

I repeat that rice-growing is a very old occupation in this Presidency The department is 30 years old, and it must have looked into this question very carefully The figures that I have given cannot be contradicted, because they are taken from the official records I want the reason for the disparity——

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD . The reasons may have been given in the report of the Royal Commission on Agriculture

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK . I have taken these figures from the Royal Commission's Report. But no reasons are given there

[Rao Bahadur B R Naik]

Now let us take another important money crop, viz cotton " It is well-known that India is the second cotton growing country in the world America stands first and India comes second [Interruption] Not Egypt Take the average yield in this Presidency It is 100 lbs of lint cotton per acre while in America it is 240 lbs. per acre I want to know the reason for this disparity. Some people may say that the soil is different I am not prepared to admit that. I know of a place in my district where cotton is grown in two different pieces of land, both of black soil The owner used special processes and he was able to produce 400 lbs on one acre of land And the next is 100 lbs. I am not prepared to believe that there is much difference between American soil and the soil of this Presidency, at any rate the soil of Gujarat from where I come From this it will be seen that the Agricultural Department has not taken very much pains on the question of research in increasing the yield, and unless you do that, I submit the return to the agriculturist will not be sufficient My point is this that side by side with research in improving the staples or improving the qualities of cotton or of sugarcane or jowari or wheat or any other crop, you should take up the question very seriously of increasing the yield which will be of greater benefit and profit to the agriculturist Here is a living example of that The Honourable Minister just now interrupted me and said " Should we not take up the question of the quality ? " Yes, they have taken up the question of the quality of 1027 cotton in the Surat District It was a very controversial subject It was debated on the floor of this very House on several occasions It was on the suggestion and initiative of the late Director of Agriculture, Dr Mann, that 1027 cotton was considered to be a very good type of cotton with a long staple which, he thought, would pay the agriculturist to grow and therefore other varieties of cotton were discouraged by the Department in Surat District Government even went so far as to lay down certain artificial zones by which no other cotton was allowed to be imported into the 1027 variety area Those artificial zones were passed on the floor of this very House when the Honourable the President was the Minister for Agriculture You will be surprised, Sir, to know that that same department has now come to the conclusion that 1-A cotton pays better than 1027 cotton . There is a great controversy going on on this subject. I know this because I am connected with an institution where this question comes up very often, and I know that the department is considering whether 1027 cotton should be dropped and that if possible 1-A variety should be taken up again, and on the initiative and suggestion of the Indian Central Cotton Committee, further experiment is going to be made Both from the point of view of yield and ginning percentage, the 1027 quality does not pay in comparison with the 1-A quality, and there is a direct loss reported by the Director of Agriculture himself to the grower, of about four or five rupees an acre on it I say to the Honourable Minister that it is not only the quality you have to look to but all other ingredients, and you have to look at the question from the general point of view and decide just what will and what will not pay the agriculturist and what will and what will not increase his yield I will request the Honourable Minister to study some of the old reports on land revenue assessment, if no other books, of some thirty years ago and he will find that the present yield is in some places less than that of 30 years ago Why is that ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Reports of what date ?

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK Thirty years ago, before the Agricultural Department came into existence If the Honourable Minister will look up reports for the years 1890 to 1900, he will find the yield of cotton per acre in some places in Gujarat and in the Surat district was more than what it is to-day I do not mean to say by this that there is a general decrease in yield everywhere, but my point is that there is no increase in yield during the last 30 years

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH Whose fault ?

The DEPUTY PRESIDENT I find that questions are put and answers given across the table without reference to the Chair. The proper procedure is that if an honourable member wants to put a certain question to the honourable member who is in possession of the House, he must ask for that information by rising and addressing the Chair An honourable member cannot ask a question direct to the honourable member in possession of the House without reference to the Chair

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK Thank you, Sir, but I cannot stop honourable members from interrupting me. They should certainly address the Chair and not me direct

The Department of Agriculture itself will have to come to the conclusion that without the proper facility of water and without the proper quantity of manure the yield will not be increased, and my point also in giving these figures in comparing with other countries is that I want to show that the agriculturists to-day are not in a position to get as much manure as they should get and apply to their fields Therefore, if you want to really increase the yield of the land, you have to devise some means by which the agriculturists can get cheap artificial manure There is not sufficient natural manure of cattle in the country and it is evident that you cannot have sufficient manure of this kind Therefore you must do what other countries like America, Denmark, Italy and Ireland or other agricultural countries are doing, namely, you have either to manufacture in the country or to import manure—artificial manure—from other countries and supply it to the agriculturists at a cheap rate so far as possible I also ask the Honourable Minister of Agriculture to read the reports of other agricultural countries. Will he be surprised to know that in other countries especially the British Colonies, manures are imported from foreign countries for the use of the agriculturists at a concession rate which the steamship companies allow and even the railways

allow a concession rate for transport of the manure over their lines if the manure is to be used for the bona fide purposes of the agriculturists ? Has anything been done here in this Presidency ? Nothing, so far as I know To increase the yield, you have to devise means by which agriculturists would get a sufficient quantity of artificial manure from foreign countries

Only one point before I sit down, Sir It has been stated in the report of the Agricultural Department that the taluka development associations are doing good work I also agree with that and say that most of the taluka development associations are doing good work and should be encouraged by Government as much as possible Instead of that we find that on account of the financial stringency those grants have been cut down and no new associations are to be started till the financial condition of the Presidency improves. It is not a very happy suggestion at any rate in the report I hope the Honourable Minister of Agriculture who himself understands the value of these associations which are doing good work and specially in the part of the country from which he comes, will take steps to see that such associations are encouraged by monetary assistance as far as possible

I entirely agree with one of my honourable friends from Kaira who preceded me He has complained about the abolition of agricultural schools in the Northern Division, in Gujarat Perhaps my honourable friend the Minister must be knowing that the school at Panch Mahals has been in existence for the last 20 years and doing good work for the boys of Kalipraja community. Panch Mahals is a Kalipraja district and boys who studied in primary schools used to attend the agricultural school which was purposely started to give these boys training in elementary agriculture That school continued for 20 years and it was up to the present Honourable Minister to abolish it . The same is the case with the school at Surat That too was turning out good work I personally would not have carried much for the abolition of the school at Surat but I do feel intensely for the abolition of the Panch Mahals agricultural school which was doing such excellent work amongst the boys of the Kalipraja community and which was such an old institution.

Now, Sir, one word about the Co-operative movement That is a movement no doubt doing good work in some respects and helping the agriculturists and ameliorating their condition It has taught the agriculturists to organise themselves and one of the best things this movement has done at any rate in Gujarat from where I come is that it has organised the cotton and other produce—sale societies by which middlemen have been eliminated and the profits which used to go in former times into the pockets of the middlemen now reach the agriculturists themselves Therefore, I say it is a good thing that the Department has done, and in several other things also they are doing good work But I want to throw out one suggestion to the Honourable Minister I do not know how it will be received by him, but there is one question, one burning question in this country and this Presidency—I refer to the redemption of old debts

Have the Department ever considered the question of the redemption of old debts seriously, and has not the time come to take up this question? As an experimental measure, let them take up a district or two, whichever they think best and suitable for the purpose I know that there are the Central Banks and the District Co-operative Banks, but they will not take up this question of the redemption of old debts For that purpose land mortgage banks are required to be started on a large scale. This is the proper time to do it, because on account of the depression the moneylenders also will be ready to compromise with their debtors, and they will be prepared to take perhaps in some cases half the amount, or in some cases 60 per cent or 75 per cent Of course, I do not advocate that the debts of all the agriculturists should be redeemed, but the question might be considered in the case of those agriculturists who, by a redemption of their debts, will be able to stand on their own legs and will be able to pay their debt to the bank by instalments in 20 to 30 years by small instalments with interest—in other words, those who are solvent agriculturists I think this is the time to help them, and I am sure this is the proper time, because the sowcars are in such a miserable plight themselves to-day that they will be ready to compromise with their creditors under very favourable terms At present, with all the attempts of the Co-operative Department and the Agricultural Department, the agriculturist, who is generally indebted to a sowcar, does not work and does not take up agriculture seriously He feels "If I get more money from my labours, it will ultimately go to clear off my debts; therefore why should I bother myself about it?" But if once this great problem is taken up, I think it will give a great incentive to the agriculturist to take an interest in his work to work harder and to repay the loans which he will be able to borrow from these mortgage and other banks Of course, it will be said in some quarters—I do not know—that it is no use increasing the facilities for borrowing to the agriculturists, that by this means he will go deeper and deeper into debt, and therefore the less facilities for borrowing for the agriculturist the better Well, Sir, now-a-days, those who are acquainted thoroughly with the rural area will bear me out that those agriculturists are not getting any credit even from the sowcars On account of the fall in the values of commodities, the sowcars are not prepared to lend any money to the agriculturists, and therefore, if this suggestion is adopted, that no further facilities should be given to the agriculturists to borrow, then they will not get any money even for improving their fields and lands I, therefore say, that these mortgage banks are a necessity, and they should be taken up earnestly, and I am sure that by this method of taking up the question of the redemption of old debts you will be able to save, if not the total indebted population of agriculturists, at least 75 per cent of them, from ruin, and they will be an asset to the State. A sturdy yeomanry is the backbone of any Government This will repay. With regard to the present day co-operative banks and societies, I will give the instance of Surat district.

[Rao Bahadur B R Naik]

We have got a co-operative bank there, and we have got a surplus of about Rs 8 to 9 lakhs lying idle, and we have to lend this money to the banks in Bombay at 4 per cent I do not think that the object of starting these district co-operative banks was to enable the provincial bank to collect money from the district banks and to invest it in Bombay in short-term Government paper or to deposit it with the Bombay exchange and other banks That should not be the object of this movement On the contrary, this kind of thing does harm Taking again the instance of Surat, the Surat District Bank collects money from the rural areas, and the money goes out of the district—it goes to Bombay. If the Surat District Bank were not in existence, the money would have remained with the local shroffs, and it would have remained in circulation in the district This happens because they have not got any scheme for dealing with the surplus money, nor do they get any encouragement from Government in that direction It is up to Government now to devise some scheme for the redemption of old debts and to organise mortgage banks for the purpose The Banking Enquiry Committee has dealt with this question very carefully, and they have thrown out suggestions in this matter. This is a question which requires to be handled urgently and of course quickly too. I have nothing more to say, because honourable members who preceded me have dealt in detail with the other questions

Mr B S KAMAT Sir, I have no mind, at the fag-end of the debate on a short day, to detain the House for more than a few minutes, and even that I should not have done if my honourable friend the last speaker had not referred to one or two points of some importance But before I come to him, I should like to join my humble voice to what fell from the honourable mover of this cut (Rao Bahadur Parulekar) I entirely sympathise with him so far as the narrow issue which he raised at the latter end of his speech is concerned, viz the retrenchment of one Deputy Director of Agriculture, that of the Konkan Division I speak, Sir, with some knowledge of his district Indeed, I come from that district. My native place is not more than a few miles from the home of my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Parulekar, and his mother-tongue and mine are the same dialect of the Marathi language Speaking, therefore, with considerable knowledge of that district, I can safely say that the Konkan is exceedingly backward, and many of its agricultural problems especially problems of research, are awaiting solution for a very long time That is one of the reasons why the retrenchment axe should not fall on that Division The Retrenchment Committee never selected any particular district or any particular division for retrenchment in the Department of Agriculture at all, and I do not know why the Honourable Minister has been so merciless as to raise the axe himself in spite of the Retrenchment Committee's non-interference in the Department of Agriculture

Among the foremost questions which are awaiting solution in that division are one or two which were referred to by previous speakers. With regard to mangoes, the Agricultural Commission recommended that if there is grading, commodities such as mangoes would fetch better prices I am glad that suggestion has been taken up by the department of recent years, and we find from the latest Administration Report that graded mangoes fetched Rs 5-12-0 more per hundred than ungraded mangoes The question of the sale of mangoes in foreign countries, in Paris, London and other places, is engaging the attention of Government, and Dr Cheema, the Government Horticulturist had gone to England—he was deputed there—to study this question, and through the Empire Marketing Board probably he is investigating the problem of how Indian mangoes and other fruit could be sold at very good prices in foreign countries That question is likely to be interrupted in its final investigation if there is no responsible officer of the grade of Deputy Director of the department in the Konkan Division

Then, Sir, take the question of cashew nuts America is importing something like 14 lakhs of dollars worth of cashew nuts—not all from Ratnagiri, but from India and other countries, viz, South Africa Now, if South Africa goes ahead and India lags behind, and if the Indian cashew nut is not properly shelled or roasted, or if it does not come up to the standard or the taste of the Americans, surely India will lag behind in this trade and lose several lakhs of rupees worth of business, because we have neglected to produce better cashew nuts, while South Africa does better in that respect Is there any reason why this trade should be allowed to be lost? Is it simply because we want to retrench a few thousand rupees by the abolition of one Deputy Director of Agriculture, and for this particular Division? Now, these are the illustrations why this particular deputy director should not be retrenched and how Konkan would suffer by such retrenchment.

One or two points raised by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik require elucidation He grumbled, after reeling out a long list of statistics of Canada, Cuba and Java, why India is not progressing in the matter of research, particularly in increasing the yield of certain crops? When one reads the statistics of other countries one is confused I for one, after studying comparative statistics of various countries, not only about agriculture but about economics generally, have given up the attempt—these are correct figures as far as the Year-books go Until, however, one knows all the local circumstances of the country, the nature of the land, the climate, the constitution of Government, the literacy of the people, and thousand and one factors, these statistics and percentages have absolutely no value for purposes of comparison between one country and another Then again, even if comparison were to be made, I do not think the work of our department is so disappointing as the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik makes it out to be Take for instance the Ratnagiri District I find that our own Agricultural Department has not fared so badly as the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik thinks In the matter of rice for instance certain research work has been done in Ratnagiri Take patani No 6 It has given 15 per cent more yield Take kudai No 25 This has given

[Mr B S Kamat]

16 6 per cent more yield than some other local variety There is a third variety, pamel No 61 which has given an increased yield of 14 7 per cent It is stated

"This strain is highly appreciated in Dapoli, Chiplun and Ratnagiri talukas and its distribution has been already commenced since the last two years"

Take another crop, Nagli E 31 has given 25 per cent increase in yield It shows that our research is responding and we have between 25 and 30 per cent of increase in yield on certain varieties of food stuffs. The fact is we are spending far less than other countries on research I would not emphasise other factors, but still there is one fact, viz, in other countries, the quality of the men employed for research is decidedly better than the men available here, particularly at the beginning of the Agricultural Department's career You could not find on a small pay in this country men of the calibre of say Sir John Russell who is working on research at Rothamsted research station. He has been on the job for the last thirty years We are just in the infant stage We might produce such distinguished men if we are prepared to pay for the best of our graduates The Legislative Council must be prepared to pay more for such kind of original work in the Irrigation, Agriculture and other research matters, if they want to develop the country faster than we are doing at present

The second point raised by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik was whether the soil was so deteriorating as to yield less and less He gave an illustration of the yield of cotton in Surat I am not able to reply with reference to cotton in relation to one district I believe there are no scientific data of former times with reference to comparative yields so as to justify any conclusion What the yield 50 or 100 years ago was per acre per dose of manure and what the yield now is, we have no scientific data. We have not got accurate data about the yield of particular varieties per acre for a given quantity of manure There are no records to show what the quantity of manure given fifty years ago and what exactly the yield was in a given plot or area, with or without manure In the absence of definite and scientific records, it is very difficult to say whether the yield has gone less and less The Agricultural Commission went into the question with reference to several provinces and on the information supplied by the various departments in respect of recent years the conclusion at which they have arrived is this——

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK I did not say that the yield was decreasing. I said it has not increased within the last 30 years

Mr B S KAMAT I understood him to say that 30 years ago the yield in a particular tract was better

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK I said that in some tracts the yield was more than it is to-day I did not say in general terms.

Mr B. S KAMAT He did refer to 30 years ago I am only trying to controvert the statement which he made The Commission says

"We communicated with local Governments in all provinces from which it seemed likely that definite evidence on the question of deterioration could be obtained In answer to our enquiry, we have been informed that, in Bombay, Bengal, and Burma, there is no evidence of any decline in the yield of staple crops, while the local governments of Madras, the United Provinces, and the Punjab tell us that the tendency in those provinces is towards a slight increase in outturn The Government of Bihar and Orissa take the view that the available statistics are not sufficiently accurate to justify any definite conclusions being drawn from them"

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK Even the Report of the Royal Commission on Agriculture supports me when it says that though the land is not giving less yield than before, at the same time it does not give any increased yield so far as Bombay is concerned

Mr B S KAMAT Thus there is no ground to believe that the soil is giving less and less yield, and that the department is not looking into the question I do not therefore think we have reasons to blame the Agricultural Department on both the points, namely, research and deterioration of yield

Khan Bahadur GHULAM NABI SHAH (Thar Parkar District) (Addressed the House in Urdu) Sir, the Government is spending Rs 10 lakhs on Agricultural Department annually The expenditure on Government farms is more than their incomes In face of this, how could people take to those methods? The idea underlying the creation of farms is to produce better results with lesser costs The research work must lead to this result only, otherwise it is pure waste of time and money.

I have seen Sakrand farm and other farms The results of this excellent research work should be made available to every cultivator by propaganda and demonstration or instruction in his field It is too costly for zamindars to visit the Sakrand or other farms. I therefore submit to this honourable House that the Government should have inspectors in each taluka who should carry on wide propaganda and also help cultivators by instruction in their villages by advice about the latest methods of cultivation, different sorts of seeds, and improvement of soil I had occasion once to request an inspector to examine my land and give me best advice about producing wheat with Government Farm seeds after improving the Kalarish soil at my own expense But these Inspectors are used to easy life on farms and would not take to hard life in the fields Having failed to get any help from Agricultural Department, I tried to do the same myself and am pleased to say that I have been able to produce good wheat These Inspectors must be made to attend to practical and actual work of cultivators in fields. It will be of immense use to zamindars if the Honourable Minister and the Director of Agriculture toured through Sind and called jalsas to explain to zamindars the latest results of research work and induce them and assist them to adopt the same The Director should call for monthly reports from Inspectors about the actual field work in each deh and success attained

Rao Bahadur R. R KALE (Bombay University) Sir, if I intervene in this debate, it is only for the purpose of pointing out that in connection with the question of auditors some years ago I had made a suggestion for the co-ordination of the audit system of the Co-operative

Department and the audit system of the local bodies, for employing the same class of persons to do the work of auditing both these departments. When an auditor visits a station, a district town for instance, why is it not possible for him to audit the accounts of the co-operative societies as well as the accounts of the local board and the municipality? I know there are some differences in the rules But certainly we shall be securing an enormous saving in the travelling allowances which are now paid to two sets of auditors One set comes for the purpose of auditing the accounts of the local bodies—the local boards and the municipalities—and a second set for auditing the accounts of co-operative societies. The travelling allowance given to one set can be saved if the same auditors audit the accounts both of local bodies and co-operative societies. The Honourable the Finance Member (Sir Govindrao Pradhan), who was then in charge of the Co-operative Department, promised that he would look into the suggestion. I am now asking if any effort has been made to find out whether it is not possible to put it into effect There are many people who have passed the audit examination, and I certainly think that qualified men will be forthcoming who will be able to do both the auditing in the way suggested.

Now, I come to the question which was dealt with at great length by the honourable member from Ahmednagar, namely, the retrenchment in the grants given to the Provincial Co-operative Institute I have only to add to what he said yesterday that we require from the Honourable Minister some kind of assurance that he will be able to meet the demand of that institute in the matter of grants. I am told that the grant was reduced from Rs 34,000 in the last year to Rs 25,000 in the current year and that in the ensuing year further drastic retrenchment is proposed I am told that correspondence has passed between the authorities of the Provincial Co-operative Institute and the Co-operative Department. I feel sure that they have made out a very strong case against further retrenchment in their grant The object of my honourable friend from Ahmednagar yesterday was to direct the attention of the Honourable Minister for Co-operative Department to this fact We did not carry the motion regarding the appointment of a special auditor to a division yesterday, but at the same time we do hope that retrenchment will be pursued in other directions so as to find the money that is badly needed by the Provincial Co-operative Institute

Mr G S GANGOLI (Kanara District): Sir, the last speaker, the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale, has made the point which I wanted to make yesterday In the first instance, we are greatly indebted to the co-operative movement At the same time, I must say that so far as the villagers are concerned, the co-operative movement has left them heavily indebted These officers have done everything in their power during the last ten years in spite of adverse circumstances If the co-operative movement has taken deep root anywhere, it is in the centre from which the Honourable Minister (Dewan Bahadur S. T. Kambli) himself comes. He himself has worked as president of several banks, and he has given a greater impetus to the movement than any other member in this House.

One thing that I want to impress on the Government benches at the very beginning is this They want to retrench Retrenchment has been spoken of so many times that the word itself has become repugnant to the sense of some gentlemen I do not know how the Co-operative Department happened to become a permanent department in this presidency So far as my information goes, the department was intended to be a temporary one at its inception, it was created in 1904 and was intended for only twenty years There was at first only one assistant registrar, Mr Naik, who was placed under the Director of Agriculture So long as Mr Keatinge was there, he was the head of both the departments, Agriculture and Co-operation When he went away Dr Mann was appointed Then an I C S officer happened to be put in charge of the Co-operative Department As an I C S man he did not like to be under a non-I C S man, Dr Mann, and the department was, therefore, separated and made permanent It has now outlived the period of 20 years for which it was at first intended, eight years more have gone by and it is still there I do not know under what authority they have made this establishment from a temporary into a permanent establishment At the time of recruitment the auditors and assistant registrars were given high salaries as they had no pension or even general provident fund Now, they are all permanent In the budget there is also a temporary establishment shown at page 266, against C-(2), and the cost of that establishment is estimated at Rs 4,403 A temporary establishment is still maintained, but the main department has been made permanent.

If there is any department which is properly run by the non-official public of this Presidency, it is the Co-operative Department In it there is no distinction between caste and caste, creed and creed, and even between male and female I think it has taken deep root in this Presidency and has given the villagers the idea of what a vote is Before the co-operative movement was started the villagers did not know what a vote was and what membership of a body meant All these societies have been managed by the non-officials Can the Government say that they managed these ? The managing committee members perform important duties and manage deposits and loans running to thousands and thousands of rupees There is not a single member of this House who is not connected with the co-operative movement in one way or another The institution which manages this movement in the Presidency is, I may be permitted to say, the Provincial Co-operative Institute of Bombay Its President at present is Sir Chunilal Mehta and its Vice-President Mr. V G Kale of Poona What is the support that that institution has got from this department or from Government ? Last year it was Rs 34,000, during the current year, Rs 25,000; and it is reduced to Rs 18,000 for the budget year. I would ask the members on the Government benches whether they do think that they can manage this department without the co-operation of the non-official members who have to work hard from month to month and from day to day as members of managing committees and as chairmen without any payment or emoluments Now, the only one institute which got some help is to be deprived of the meagre help that used to be given to it If the Government benches are earnest and serious, they can hand over this department to this institute, keeping only the auditors—not the auditors for whom we voted a grant yesterday, but the auditors of local bodies who when they go about auditing the accounts of local bodies can also audit the accounts of co-operative societies. There will be real saving also If we are to have swaraj and provincial autonomy, we are already sufficiently trained in this direction and we can very well manage without Government intervention.

In this connection, I wish to say that some of us do really resent interference by petty inspectors and clerks An ordinary clerk getting Rs 30 a month is an inspector, a man getting Rs 75 is an auditor We do resent their interference If they are removed, we can ourselves manage the department properly The Provincial Co-operative Institute is the fittest institution which can run this department If it is allowed to run it, we can save this Presidency nearly five lakhs of rupees every year

In moving his cut motion the honourable member from Ratnagiri said that the Deputy Director of Konkan should not be removed Well, Sir, Kanara also happens to be under the control of the Deputy Director who has charge of Ratnagiri The honourable member from Ratnagiri made several suggestions about cashew nuts, nagli and other products. In our district these are neglected, they are taken to be minor produce From the time I have entered this Council, I am realising the truth of the saying "Out of sight, out of mind" There is no other member to represent Kanara, to represent what the state of affairs is in Kanara Nothing is spoken of Kanara, which according to the Department of Agriculture is the pride of this Presidency We have large gardens of spices and betelnuts producing three to four crores worth of spice and betelnuts The average assessment in Kanara is Rs 16 per acre of garden land and Rs 8 per acre of rice land I think that is the highest assessment in the Presidency But what has the Agricultural Department done so far for Kanara? Nothing, practically nothing There is one farm which goes on experimenting in minor produce, but no substantial help is given to major produce, such as spice Let the Honourable Minister say, as far as he can find from the records, whether the Agricultural Department has done anything towards the improvement of agriculture in Kanara They deputed an officer in 1919 who inquired into the state of garden cultivation in Kanara, but he made a report that the agriculturists in Kanara needed no training and that the standard of their cultivation was the highest known to their department

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD Then, why should one more be sent?

Mr G S GANGOLI Because it has deteriorated The farms in Kanara have deteriorated There is an agricultural station maintained at Kumta but there is not a single betelnut plant in that farm. Government publish a large amount of literature on agriculture but there is not a single pamphlet issued regarding betelnut We grow pepper cardamom betelnut and betel leaves and other spices also I do not think any useful suggestion has been made by the Agricultural Department to help us out of the morass in which we are at present.

I will take more time, Sir

SELECT COMMITTEE ON BILL No. I OF 1932.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN. Sir, before discussion begins on the adjourned motion, with your permission, I beg to move that the time allowed to the Select Committee on Bill No I of 1932 to submit their report be extended from the 10th March to the 14th March The Committee have to examine a few witnesses on the question of stamp duties on forward transactions and also on the electricity duty We shall try to submit the report as early as possible, but the time may be extended up to the 14th March

Question put, and agreed to

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—(resumed).

Mr G. S GANGOLI (Kanara District) Sir, yesterday I was saying that there were no agricultural improvements made in Kanara In the Annual Report of the Department of Agriculture in the Bombay Presidency for the year 1930-31, page 164, we find it stated

"Even the money-lenders and sowkars consider it risky to advance any loan for the cultivation of staple crops and the effect of all this depression is likely to be seen in future cultivation The general indebtedness has been increased and in some parts of the Kanara District, great difficulty has been felt in collecting the revenue The poor cultivators are not in a position to hold out their produce until better prices prevail, and as a result almost all the produce has passed into the hands of merchants and sowkars at the cheapest possible rate If the present depression continues, the cost of cultivation and the value of the produce will be automatically settled, but this settlement will take a heavy toll at the cost of poor cultivators"

This is the last official report, and I do not think that the Honourable Minister has taken any steps to improve the situation in Kanara That is one of my grievances After the introduction of the Reforms the subjects of Agriculture and Forests came into the hands of popular Ministers, and some of the gentlemen who held the post of Minister for Agriculture and Forests had a sympathetic interest in Kanara But after Sir Govindrao Pradhan gave over charge of that office, may I say to our misfortune came the Ministers who are at present

before us, and our fate has been 'nearer the church, farther from God' None of these Ministers has visited Kanara these two years and seen what our gardens are like and how they are suffering. For the past two years, the co-operative movement also has been at a standstill People are not willing to deposit their money and Government are also not coming to our help As stated in the report, everything that is produced by the cultivators finds its way into the hands of grabbing sowcars and the position of the agriculturists is getting worse I do not know when the Honourable Minister will come to our district and to our help

Now, I come to the Co-operative Department and its general working. I started yesterday by saying that the department had given us good training but left us heavily indebted. It only gave us immediate help in the shape of monetary advances They gave loans without ascertaining for what purpose the loan was necessary, and they never cared to see how the money advanced was utilised The result was that each and every agriculturist took loans, because by producing two sureties he could get any amount of loan After seven or eight years of working, every one finds that he is ruined It has ruined thousands and thousands of good families and it has turned good friends into the worst enemies—I am referring to the relations between the sureties and the principals There is the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act, but that has no bearing on the co-operative movement. Several of the Acts have been over-ridden by the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act, but the Co-operative Societies Act overrides everything If a person took a loan of one hundred even by paying Rs 300 he cannot get immunity from payment of full debt How is the matter settled? It will be settled by an arbitrator We were told we had not to pay court-fees before, but now we have an arbitrator who is often paid Rs. 2 per hundred of the amount decreed He has no right to grant instalments, no right to reduce the interest, he cannot give even the ordinary relief that can be granted by an ordinary civil court under the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act

The other day, the Honourable Minister said that the co-operative institutions were being audited every year I said that there was a special auditor for Kanara District, but it goes very hard with him to audit the banks even once a year In Kanara that auditor comes only once in two years or less Even if auditing is not carried out, we have to pay the audit fees into the sub-treasury. Even the Income-tax Department charge us income-tax only on interest earned or income accrued, but under the Co-operative Societies Act we have to pay audit fees even if there are no fresh transactions in any year, we have to pay audit fees on the total volume of the transactions done by a bank even though the audit is only once in two years.

Sir, this is a vast subject, but many of my honourable friends wish me to stop and give them time to speak and so I close.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT And the discussion on this subject will also come to a close at quarter past four.

Rao Bahadur D R PATIL (East Khandesh District). Sir, I know the object which moved my honourable friend Mr Parulekar to propose this cut I was glad to hear the speech of the honourable member Mr Gokhale, who talked about the backbone of the country, namely, the agriculturists of Ratnagiri as well as the fertile brains of the Konkan. We are well acquainted with the fertile brains of the Konkan, the fabrics of which are scattered throughout Maharashtra.

Coming to the point about the post of a deputy director in the Konkan Division, I do not think that because that post is held in abeyance, it necessarily follows that all activities in the direction of research, experiments and propaganda will cease If that were so, my honourable friend would have been right in moving his motion I am sure the Honourable Minister will throw some light on that

Now, as regards pruning, grading and marketing of mangoes, I think that is the function of a horticulturist So the holding in abeyance of the post of a Deputy Director will not do any harm to the agriculturists of Ratnagiri District If the honourable mover of the cut will be satisfied by the explanation of the Honourable Minister, I am sure he will be pleased to withdraw his motion

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH (Sukkur District) Sir, the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik told us yesterday that in other countries the yield per acre was more than in this presidency and that the yield in this presidency was deteriorating That is true The reason for that, however, is partly attributable to the inability of the zamindars to preserve the fertility of the soil. That is one of the main reasons I think, Sir, that this question of getting the maximum yield from the land is of vital importance to the finances of this presidency, because if the zamindars are able to turn out more corn from their lands their taxable capacity will increase Therefore, it is necessary that we should try to devise some means by which we can get the maximum outturn out of our land It is true that we do not get the maximum outturn now If we can get the maximum outturn from our land, I do not think there will be any necessity to grant remissions and such other things for which people are crying now

There are, Sir, two or three ways by which one can get the maximum outturn from one's land First of all, good seeds I must admit that the Agricultural Department in Sind have succeeded in a large measure in supplying zamindars with good seeds If experiments are carried on on a larger scale, I think the Agricultural Department will be in a position to give a quantity of seed sufficient for all Sind The second is manure At present there is paucity of manure and the zamindars are not able to till their lands properly There are two difficulties in the way of the zamindars One is that the prices have gone so low that it becomes very difficult for any zamindar to plough his land with tractors or machines To preserve the fertility of the soil it is very necessary that we should plough the land with tractors. But on account of the depression it is not now a paying proposition to plough

the land with tractors Therefore, if Government are really anxious that agriculture should be a paying industry, they should see that the duty imposed on petrol and kerosene which are used for ploughing the land is removed At present there is a duty on petrol The duty is imposed on petrol because it is used for motor traffic But, Sir, in a large measure it handicaps the zamindar I see no reason why petrol used for tractors should pay this duty It will be in the fitness of things if the Government of Bombay moves the Government of India to remove the duty on petrol and kerosene oil [Interruption] My honourable friend Mr Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch asks me how many tractors are now in use ? I do not know about the presidency, but I think if there is no duty on petrol and kerosene practically every zamindar in Sind who owns a land of more than 500 acres will use tractors Sir, the price of petrol is about 10 annas per gallon With the duty, freights and other charges the price comes to Re 1-6-0 If the Government of Bombay asks the Government of India to reduce the freight charges for petrol and kerosene oil and at the same time enable the zamindars to get petrol and kerosene oil free of duty, I think the zamindars will be in a better position to plough their land at a cheaper cost and have more yield out of their land than at present

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (in Urdu) Will the concession not be abused ?

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH Yes, it is likely that this concession may be abused, but the best thing we can do is to frame rules. The zamindar should inform the Agricultural Department that he intends to cultivate so many acres of land, and the concession should be given after the land has been cultivated A record should be maintained by the Agricultural Department which would prevent abuse of this concession and the zamindar using the petrol and kerosene for his private purposes If once the principle is accepted, there will be no difficulty

Another point is about manure It is easy to manure lands by green manuring, that is to say, cultivating the lands either with berseem or with leguminous crops The standing green crops should be destroyed before they mature in the fields after every two or three years and thereby the fertility of the soil is preserved To do that it would be necessary to exempt that land from assessment so far as the green manuring process is concerned, because after all, if the zamindar is able to preserve the fertility of the soil, it means that Government also stands to gain When the zamindar does not get anything out of his crop and when he merely destroys his standing crop in order to manure his land, there appears no reason why Government should levy assessment. I know that the proposal is under the consideration of Government and it will be decided at no distant date The honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale does not like the idea But Government will perforce have to do it, because they propose to give out the Barrage lands on lease and it would be necessary that the fertility of these lands should be preserved I have nothing more to add, but I urge the Honourable Minister to take these remarks into consideration and allow these two concessions to the zamindars

Rao Bahadur L V PARULEKAR (Ratnagiri District) . Sir, so far nobody has said anything against my arguments in connection with my motion except the honourable member Rao Bahadur Patil who said that marketing is the duty of the Horticulturist But so far as I know, the Horticulturist is no independent entity because he is merged in the whole department. I shall read a passage from the report of the Agricultural Department, pages 32 and 33 :

" Fruit is marketed by the grower or upcountry dealer in a very primitive manner in this Presidency The art of grading is almost unknown The Department has been demonstrating at Ratnagiri the method of grading mangoes and the correct packing thereof In the year under report about 2,000 baskets of mangoes were graded by merchants with the aid of two Departmental officers at Vengurla, Malvan and Ratnagiri "

I have not up to now heard a word of encouragement or solace from authorised quarters Therefore, I do not know how to reply

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S T KAMBLI Sir, the honourable mover of the cut is labouring under a great misapprehension of facts and circumstances He seems to be under the impression that the keeping in abeyance of the post of Deputy Director of Agriculture for Konkan implies and includes the keeping in abeyance of all the activities of the Agricultural Department in Konkan While it is true that the post of Deputy Director of Agriculture will be kept in abeyance, I assure the honourable member that the activities of the Department in Konkan in the sphere of development of horticulture and agriculture will be carried on as before and on the same scale There will be no abolition or curtailment of the activities of the Department in the Konkan The Horticulturist's post is not abolished. Dr Cheema is there to advise the growers of mango trees as to pruning, spraying and also as to the grading of mangoes and their preservation and export He had been to England to study this particular question of preservation and export of mangoes and also to study the commercial side of it, namely, as to how to secure a market in London and in Europe, for mangoes in general and mangoes of Konkan in particular The results of his experience and study are and will be at the disposal of the horticulturists of Konkan He is the officer who deals with these questions, and he has been bestowing his attention on all these questions which, I know, are of vital importance to the people of Konkan

The honourable House will, I believe, be interested also to know that I had a long discussion with Dr Cheema on the question of the extension of the cashew cultivation in the Konkan, especially on the warkas lands I asked him to investigate into this problem thoroughly and submit his proposals to Government The question of how to utilise the warkas lands has been long engaging my attention This point was stressed by me when I happened to preside over the deliberations of the conference of the Taluka Development Association of Konkan held in Bombay in February 1931 I am sure that the extension of cashew cultivation, in so far as warkas lands are concerned, will be greatly beneficial to the cultivators of the Konkan districts

Now, I come to research work I assure the honourable House that the research activities of the department will be continued in Konkan on the same scale as before Investigations and researches in rice, nagli and other cereals have yielded good results This fact has not only been admitted, but highly appreciated by the honourable mover of the cut But he fears that there will be a curtailment of these activities and the fruits hitherto obtained will be wasted This is not the case at all The research staff is not disbanded and is not going to be disbanded It is retained and will continue to carry on its investigations and researches into the problems of evolving better strains of rice, nagli and other cereals to the benefit of the ryots of Konkan. It may also be noted that it was not the Deputy Director of Agriculture that personally carried on the research work, but there is a separate staff for research work and this staff is not going to be disbanded, but its services will continue as before

I next proceed to deal with propaganda work in Konkan Here again, the honourable mover seems to think quite wrongly that the staff engaged in this connection will be abolished, disbanded or retrenched I assure the honourable mover again that nothing of the sort is intended and nothing of the sort will happen The propaganda staff is kept intact without reduction or retrenchment and will continue to function as before

So, honourable members will see that in the matter of advice and help as regards mango cultivation, mango preservation and mango export, the Horticulturist is always ready to render every advice and every help to the horticulturists, and the research activities will continue unchecked and on the same scale as before Propaganda will be carried on to the best advantage of the agriculturists

At this stage I desire to draw the attention of the honourable the mover of the cut to paragraph 50 on page 178 of the Administration Report of the Department of Agriculture for the year 1930-31 At the end of the paragraph he will find this sentence

"Only two associations at Kalyan and Ratnagiri are below the mark and they have been warned to improve their work"

The honourable mover is aware that these associations play an important part in popularising agricultural improvements in their respective talukas I understand, the honourable mover lives in the taluka of Ratnagiri and I admire him for the profound interest that he takes in all matters relating to agricultural improvements May I request him to divert some of his valuable energies to stimulate the taluka development association of Ratnagiri to function properly so as to be of great help to the cultivators of his own taluka? Every taluka development association is, in a sense, the medium of transmitting agricultural improvements to the masses of cultivators in general I therefore request the honourable mover to take an interest in the association of his own taluka and thus render a great and signal service to the agriculturists of his own taluka

[Dewan Bahadur S T Kambli]

The honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik gave some interesting figures with regard to the relative yielding capacity of lands of different countries such as Java, Cuba, America and so on, and compared the yielding capacity of those lands with those in India in general and in his district of Surat in particular, he also requested me to study the land revenue accounts of 30 years ago in order to convince myself of the deterioration of soil in India In fact, he complained that the soil in India was deteriorating greatly and gradually The honourable member Mr Kamat who was a member—and an esteemed member—of the Royal Commission on Agriculture refuted him thoroughly He said that the Commission investigated into this important problem of the so-called deterioration of soil in India In other words, the Commission investigated into the question whether the yielding capacity of lands in India had grown gradually less and less He further stated that the investigation showed that there was no evidence of deterioration of the soil of India I agree with him further when he says that such comparisons are worthless, as fertility of soil depends upon so many factors such as climate, rainfall, and as pointed out by the honourable member Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh, upon distribution of proper seed, good manure and so many other things Therefore, the cry about the deterioration of soil in India is groundless

Another question was put to me as to whether efforts have been made to get concessional rates from railways in freight charges for carrying manures from place to place I may inform the Honourable House that such efforts were made and some of the railway companies who were approached in this respect have given certain concessions I cannot remember offhand what these concessions are, but I am sure some of the railway companies have made some valuable concessions

The honourable member from Karachi (Mr Baloch) pleaded with his usual force and eloquence, though in a language which I could not understand, for measures to combat locust pests in Sind I may inform him that the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research had sent an officer last time to instruct the villagers in Sind and the people of Sind as to the measures to be adopted to combat locust pests I am also informed, Sir, that during the current year there has been no such pest and no immediate step is necessary I am told further that the locust pest occurs once in a decade or so in Sind—God forbid another locust pest—and if it at all repeats again, certainly the attention which it deserves will be paid and steps taken to combat the locust pest

The honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale pleaded for the cause of the Provincial Institute and stressed the importance of adequate financial help being given to the Provincial Institute I assure the honourable member that it was owing to the financial stringency that the grant for the institute was cut down from Rs 25,000 to Rs 18,000 I may further assure him, and the honourable member from Ahmednagar as well, that if the financial position improves or if there happens to be a saving otherwise in the department, then this question of further increasing the present grant will be favourably considered

[Dewan Bahadur S T Kambli]

The honourable member from Kaira bitterly complained against the policy of retrenchment as regards boring activities I do not see him in his seat to-day Deep boring is not under my charge, it is under the charge of my honourable colleague, the Minister for Local Self-government Deep boring, it is true, is entirely stopped Shallow boring is under my charge, it is not entirely stopped, but its activities have been curtailed and they have been confined to the precarious tracts of the Deccan The loan of boring plants is for the present stopped Such boring machines as would lie idle are intended to be put up for public auction; they will not be allowed to rust as some honourable members appear to think The local bodies which stand to gain by their use in their districts are at liberty to bid for them in public auction. I do not see what stands in the way of the local bodies purchasing these machines in public auction It was urged in the debate that repairs can be locally made and that they could be used with advantage by the local bodies These machines, I believe, are not beyond the capacity of local bodies to purchase If great benefit is to arise from the use and work of these machines, I think the local bodies will be well advised in purchasing them without any loss of time The other day the honourable member from Sholapur put a supplementary question to me asking whether Government would be willing to sell these machines on instalment system, and he is heard to put the same question to me to-day. I answered then in reply that no such request was hitherto made to Government, and when and if it is made, it would be considered. If any local body satisfies the Government that it stands to gain enormously by the purchase and use of these machines and that it cannot pay the purchase money at once, and that it should be allowed to purchase on the instalment system, then such a case would surely deserve favourable consideration

Sir, the honourable member from Kanara complained that I have not visited his district, but I may inform him that I did visit his district though not the whole of it I had been to Haliyal, a taluka of his district, I had been to Dandeli and I had been as far as Kirwatti. He also complained against the powers of the arbitrators appointed under the Co-operative Act, but these arbitrators are expected to exercise their powers in accordance with the law that is in force and the rules framed thereunder If any honourable member feels aggrieved and thinks that the powers of the arbitrators should be modified, certainly he is at liberty to move an amendment of the Act or the rules that are in force and get the same passed by this House

Sir, I have listened very attentively to this very important debate. I have made a note of all the useful suggestions made by the honourable members who took part in this debate It shall be my earnest endeavour to consider all these useful suggestions and to give effect to such of them as deserve attention if I can do so within the funds at my disposal.

Rao Bahadur L V PARULEKAR (Ratnagiri District) Sir, I would merely assure the Honourable Minister for Agriculture that I have been taking considerable and active interest in the taluka development association, with which I have been connected from its very commencement, and I have been doing so in order to ameliorate the condition of the agriculturists of my district——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The simple question is whether the honourable member wishes to withdraw his motion

Rao Bahadur L V PARULEKAR I am not speaking, Sir, but I merely wanted to assure the Honourable Minister that I am taking interest in the taluka development association I beg leave to withdraw my motion

Motion, by leave, withdrawn

Original Demand put, and agreed to

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Sir, I make a demand for Rs 23,70,000 under 33-Public Health, Transferred

Question proposed

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI (Poona District) Sir, I beg to move.

(67) Reduce by Rs 100—A-Public Health Establishment (Voted)—Rs 8,01,000 (Civil Estimates, page 236).

The expenditure under this head in 1930-31 was Rs 3,26,905 and this year Rs 2,92,000 budgetted, so that, thus a saving of Rs 34 905 is shown this year Undoubtedly it is a commendable thing One thing more is to be taken into consideration in retrenching this Department At the time of discussing the last subject much was said about the mango and the mango tree, but nothing was told about the parasite that eats into the mango and destroys the crop I say, looking to the ways of conducting the Department, the Public Health Department is a parasite on the finance of this part of the country The amount that is allotted to this department is swallowed up by the pay of the big officers and their little staff Eventually nothing remains for the expenditure on the executive or propaganda works except some small items of insignificant importance. Therefore this department cannot do anything in the way of protecting the public health in any executive manner Only the administration and the staff take away the allotted amount For this reason I said that it is just like a parasite on the mango tree, i e, Public Exchequer In my opinion there is still great room for effecting more saving in the expenditure of this department by way of retrenchment and the little work that is done by the Department can be very well divided among some other officers of that line I am sorry to note that despite the existence of the Public Health Department the death-rate is increasing and this sorry fact has been admitted by the Director himself in his report on page 173 The duties of the Director can be very well transferred to other responsible officers and this post can very well be curtailed and the money thus saved can be well used to replenish the resources of other departments like District Local Boards, etc They may be entrusted with the duty of protecting the health of the public

[Rao Saheb P D Kulkarni]

Among others, I see that recording vital statistics forms one of the chief duties of the Director They take so many pages of the Government Gazette every week That duty can be very well done by the Revenue Commissioner, as the recording of rainfall is done by the Deputy Director of Agriculture Much of the information is collected by the talatis, patils, mamlatdars and municipalities Naturally the Commissioner of the Division, being the head of those departments, I think, can very well execute this work without any detriment to his own duties And then the Director of Public Health Department will be relieved of this gigantic work

Another duty of the Director of Public Health is the supervision of vaccination So many district local boards are anxious of securing the control over it and they are making demands that the department of vaccination should be given in their charge, but no steps are taken in that direction by the Government So many district local boards are urging that as the pay of vaccinators is given from the purse of the district local boards, it is but equitable that the arrangement and supervision, etc of the vaccinating staff must be in their hands The only loss thereby will be that the vaccinators would be deprived of the opportunity of seeing their names appear in the Government Gazette Now they are made gazetted officers but on the small pay of Rs 20 or Rs. 30 per month So this department can be relieved of this heavy duty also, i.e publishing vaccinators' names in Bombay Government Gazette There will be efficient management of this work under District Local Boards I am sure a progressive step will be recorded in the management by the district local boards if the work will be given in their charge

Now about the supervision of sanitation. I do not know what the Department do in carrying out this duty Being the president of a town municipality for the last 12 years, I am in a better position to know exactly what is being done by the head of the department His work is not much in that connection also District local boards and municipalities are very well capable of managing their own affairs The Assistant Collector of my district has told us that it is sufficiently better to take advice from the Assistant Director of Public Health than now engaging any more additional staff in the municipality Nothing is told about the Director. Of course, in rural municipalities, the question of engaging their own public health staff does not arise The Director of Public Health can do nothing in that case except sending his Assistant to exact work from the local bodies by giving them good advice and useful instructions There are expert persons available to local bodies who could give advice just in time For securing the advice so much money is not needed. The municipalities have their own health officers, who do efficient work and advice can be taken from non-official experts who know the local problem very well rather than taking insolent instructions from this officer who does nothing but go from place to place to secure his pay and travelling allowance and poking his nose here and there in the schemes wisely worked out by the Local Health Officers

Now the remaining chief thing they are expected to do is to guard public health against infectious diseases Generally the outbreak of these infectious diseases starts in pilgrim centres In those cases the municipalities or local authorities, under whose jurisdiction these pilgrim centres are, have got their own health officers who are capable of doing this work much more efficiently than the head of the Department himself For instance there is Dr. Gune at Pandharpur. He ably manages the affair There are so many others

The other important thing that is achieved by the Director of Public Health is the organisation of baby week and he does organise this very vigorously I do not think that we should be very particular in spending lakhs of rupees on the officer who merely supervises this organisation There are very able men like Mr G. K Devadhar and Dr Tilak who can do this important work of organising baby week in a more efficient way So, this work also can conveniently be taken away from this department and entrusted to efficient men as I have already pointed out in course of my discussion on the subject

What remains now for the officer, i e Director of Public Health, is the work of supervision of the work of the Assistant Directors This work of supervision can be done by the officer in charge of the Public Health Laboratory in Poona and Karachi in their respective circles. This adjustment will not involve any additional expenditure to Government Also a share of this work can be conveniently entrusted to the Director of Vaccination residing in Belgaum They can pick up the supervision work very easily being the experts of the same line. In this way, Rs. 40,000 can be saved by abolishing the post of Director of Public Health

The remarks made by the Retrenchment Committee are mainly based on the evidence of the Director of Public Health himself No independent witnesses, like the chairman of a municipality or a public spirited president of district local board or any representative of the public, were examined by the committee in this matter On the evidence of the Director of Public Health the Retrenchment Committee had come to the conclusion that this department with its full staff as it is must be retained With this view of the committee I quite disagree Under these circumstances, I think I am justified in moving this cut

Question proposed

Mr. J. S. KADRI (Northern Division). Sir, I support the cut moved by my honourable friend Rao Saheb Kulkarni The department under discussion is almost an ornamental one, about which very little is known to the outside world, except Government. As the honourable mover has stated, we know more of this department from the pages of the Government Gazette, than from our own practical experience This department was originally instituted with the object of preventing small-pox In 1859, five superintendents of Vaccination were appointed for the Presidency under the control of a Medical Board. In 1864, a Commission was instituted at Bombay, consisting of a President and three members Three years later, the appointment of a Sanitary Commissioner was made and he was assisted by a Secretary In 1871, under the orders of the Government of India, the post of the Secretary was abolished and the Sanitary Commissioner was made a Deputy Surgeon General In 1876, the whole presidency was divided into five Registration Districts, each under a deputy Sanitary Commissioner, who worked as Registrar of Births and Deaths and Superintendent of Vaccination of his charge and also took action against epidemic diseases by advising the executive revenue authorities. In that very year, the post of Sanitary Commissioner was revived and he was put at the head of the department Since then, this department has been going on more or less in the capacity of an Advisory Board or consulting department, whose head is on the analogy of the Consulting Surveyor to Government This old organization has now deteriorated under the Director of Public Health

We know that the work of vaccination is conducted under the supervision of this department, but even this work is not done satisfactorily Most of the vaccinators are not well-educated men and they are not trained in their art on scientific lines Experience has shown that these vaccinators have deteriorated a great deal in the technique of vaccination There have been complaints that they have not been doing their duty properly and efficiently At times they are found remiss and negligent in leaving many children unvaccinated, while some vaccinators have been found guilty of dishonesty and even corruption It is a matter of regret that in spite of definite proof, some of these offenders were dealt with leniently and let off with light fines by the Department The vaccinators are sometimes corrupt and scandalise the public by forcing private vaccination and charging unauthorised fees, thus rendering vaccination unpopular At the head of vaccinators, there are Inspectors of Vaccination and Sanitation. There is a Sanitary Inspector for each district who controls and supervises the work of the vaccinators The appointments of Inspectors are also not made with proper care and discrimination It often happens that a clerk who manages to get into the office of the Assistant Director or the Director of Public Health is pitchforked into the post of a Sanitary Inspector when it falls vacant Such Sanitary Inspectors are not expected to be quite efficient and competent in their duties The department has degenerated under the Director of Public Health whose office is more or less a sinecure one The Director has his headquarters at Poona and he has been making big tours to Sind and other far-off places to earn big travelling allowance The other day we were informed that a very large amount of expenditure was incurred on the travelling allowance of the Director and that the total cost of his establishment comes to Rs 47,000 per year The work done by the Assistant Directors of Public Health also is often little known to the public at large. Of course, their primary duty is to superintend and supervise the operations of vaccination and also to advise and assist in the case of epidemics But what happens, when epidemics do really occur? It is the bitter experience of the people that when an epidemic breaks out in a particular district the preventive measures taken are never prompt What happens is this The matter is reported by the police patil or some other village officer to the Mamlatdar first, the Mamlatdar then reports to the Collector and the President of the District Local Board These high dignitaries then communicate with and consult the Assistant Director of Public Health who is probably touring far away from the headquarters of the district The Assistant Director then gives instructions to the Sanitary Inspector, suggesting measures, and the Sanitary Inspector has to carry out the suggestions of the Assistant Director in consultation with the local authorities The appointment of a medical officer is made by the Surgeon General or by the President of the District Local Board and preventive work is then started In the meantime, the epidemic has already played havoc before effective action is taken and preventive measures are adopted Many valuable lives are lost during the interval and the epidemic has spent half its force by the time the action begins. This is the roundabout and circuitous way in which the Department works, because the department itself has no power of direct action or initiative nor does it command a staff sufficient to check epidemics Its function is only advisory and its advice sometimes falls on deaf ears, because nowadays local authorities possess qualified Health Officers and Sanitary Inspectors, who take direct action, before the fiat is issued from Poona as regards the measures to be adopted for preventing or checking the epidemic. As a matter of fact, the whole administrative machinery of this department is unsatisfactory If it can take no prompt and immediate action, this department does not justify its existence, in so far at least as its activities are generally either belated or not properly put into force at the right juncture Let us consider the present circumstances. If we take cities, they have their Health Officers and even town municipalities maintain their health department to look after the sanitation and health of the people. The assistance of the department of Public Health is, therefore, not really needed for the benefit of cities and towns As regards the districts, the preventive action taken by this department in rural areas is really very vague and ineffectual The Local Boards and Village Panchayats have now got the power to deal with sanitation of the rural areas In these circumstances, the maintenance of this department as a distinct department does not appear to be justifiable At a critical time like this, such a huge amount is spent on the establishment of this department If this amount were utilised in assisting the various local authorities, I think they will be better able to take care of the health and sanitation of their respective areas and perhaps better value will be obtained for the money so spent. I would suggest an alternative for this department. Formerly, the Sanitary Commissioner was made a Deputy Surgeon-General Now we have a Surgeon-General who is an expert in health and hygiene.

An Honourable MEMBER He is retiring after a month

Mr J S. KADRI. He will be succeeded by another Surgeon-General, whoever may be equally competent. I think many I M S Officers are experts in health and hygiene, and they may well be entrusted with the work of supervising the Health Department. If the Surgeon-General were given a special assistant of the status of Assistant Director of Public Health, I think he will be able to look after the health of the Presidency, perhaps much better than the Director of Public Health at present, and the result will be a large saving in expenditure.

I think that health, hygiene and sanitation are now very well understood by the people themselves. These subjects are taught even in our primary schools, and our school children are able to say what measures are necessary for the prevention of cholera, plague, malaria, etc. I think a good deal of health propaganda is also, nowadays, being done in cities as well as in rural areas. So, there is now no special need for maintaining a separate Department of Health for propaganda or preventive work, because the preventive work can very well be undertaken by the local boards in the rural areas and by municipalities in the urban areas. As for the registration of births and deaths which is only a matter of compilation of statistics, this work can be done in the office of the Surgeon-General. Even at present, the vital statistics are supplied by the mamlatdars generally, and they can be compiled very easily in the office of the Surgeon-General, without the medium of the Director of Public Health.

Considering all the pros and cons of the problem, I find that this department is rather a white elephant to Government and the sooner it is abolished the better. Its duties can be delegated to the Surgeon General with the Government of Bombay, and the savings which can be effected by retrenching or curtailing this department can be utilised with great advantage for other nation-building departments. I would suggest that the amount so saved may be advantageously utilised for expanding and extending primary education. I think that education will in the long run obviate the necessity of maintaining this department in its present form, because when the people are educated and understand the advantages of hygiene and health, they will readily understand and apply measures necessary for the prevention of diseases. With these words, I support the cut moved by the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni.

Mr. J B PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association): Sir, I wish to take this opportunity of drawing the attention of the Honourable the Minister in charge of the Department to a certain representation, made some time ago by the Bombay Municipality, asking for an amendment of their Act, which would enable them to levy a heavy Town-duty on the importation into this city, of what is described as good edible oil. I understand that this oil is being very largely used by the poorer classes of the population in place of pure ghee, in the belief that it is made out of vegetable, and is a very good and cheap substitute thereof. But, it now appears that it is made out of fish. I believe it is extracted from the fat of the whale, and is so cheap, when landed in Bombay, that it is able to undersell, not only pure ghee, but also the various vegetable products which are on the market, and which are being very largely used by the poorer classes of the people in substitution of it. I believe I am not wrong when I say that it is not as good and as wholesome as these vegetable products, now so largely used in Bombay. At any rate, to a very large part of the Indian population, edible oil, made out of the fat of whales, must be very repugnant, and cannot possibly be a suitable substitute, either for pure ghee, or for the several vegetable products now in use by the poorer classes.

It is, therefore, that the Bombay Municipality came to the conclusion that it was an appropriate article for the imposition of a heavy Town-Duty, which would, not only be not resented by the public, but would also be very popular, at least among the Hindu section thereof. The Municipal Corporation have accordingly approached the Government with a request that they might be allowed to impose a Town-Duty on it, heavy enough to make it impossible for the importers thereof to compete with genuine ghee or its vegetable substitutes, and at the same time enable the Municipality to realise a substantial revenue out of it, of which they are in very great need at the present moment.

I understand that the Government are in sympathy with the object underlying that proposal and are thinking of bringing forward a Bill to enable the Corporation to put their intention into effect. It is in connection with that, Sir, that I desire the Honourable the Minister in charge to let the House know how the matter now stands and when that measure is going to be brought before this House for its consideration and acceptance. It is a proposal, about which, I understand, there is no difference of opinion.

The Government and the Municipality are, I believe, agreed, that it will be possible to raise a substantial revenue out of this commodity, and at the same time enable the public to know what this product is and of what it is made, so that they may use it, if they desire, with the fullest knowledge of its composition.

I trust that the Honourable the Minister will look into the matter, and will be good enough to give this information, if it is possible for him to do so, before the debate closes.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I have heard with great surprise the destructive criticism of the honourable mover of this cut and that of my honourable friend Mr Kadri, both of whom desire that this department should be abolished. Well, the honourable mover of the cut asks, what are the duties of this department? It is compilation of vital statistics, and he suggests that that work could be transferred to the Commissioner. But I find that honourable members have given notice of a motion for the abolition of the Commissioners also. If the Commissioners are to be abolished, and if the Director of Public Health is also going to be abolished, who is going to do the important work of registration of births and deaths?

The next complaint was that the Director of Public Health only looks after vaccination, and that could be looked after by the local boards I would have agreed with him in that had all the district local boards employed qualified health officers In fact, when I was Minister in charge of Local Self-Government, I prepared a scheme to curtail the activities of this department, and asked the various district local boards to employ qualified health officers. Honourable members of this House must know how many of the district local boards have employed qualified health officers Very few of them have health officers Therefore, if this important work of vaccination is transferred to the local boards, who will supervise it? The local boards have not got qualified people to supervise that work.

The next point made by him was that, where there are pilgrim centres or fairs, the municipalities look after the sanitation As far as I know, most of the pilgrim centres are in very small places, and I cannot believe for a moment that these small municipalities can afford to employ health officers to look after the sanitation of those places when there are fairs, where thousands and thousands of people collect. Let us remember the great service that this department renders at the time when epidemics break out; especially when there are large fairs, they go ahead and adopt all the necessary preventive measures to see that no epidemics break out.

Then, Sir, another point made was that the department merely organises baby weeks, and that work could be done by Dr Tilak or myself. I am myself connected with this work, but it is all that Dr. Tilak or myself can do in the city of Bombay This is not part of the department's official duties, but they help the people in organising baby weeks, because a healthy baby makes a healthy man or woman.

Then, Sir, this department advises all the local bodies throughout the Presidency about preventive measures No doubt, some of the municipalities have qualified health officers, but I do not think every municipality has a qualified health officer.

Now, Sir, we must look at the question from a different angle. If all the local bodies were to employ qualified health officers, there would be some reason for reducing the activities of this department But the local bodies have not done much in that direction Vast rural areas have no health officers at all Hence the necessity for this department.

Mr. A N SURVE (Bombay City, North). Sir, when we are dealing with this department of Government, we ought to be very cautious in our remarks Sir, of all the departments of Government, this is perhaps the most important, and our remarks therefore should be well considered. The reason is that the Public Health Department is a preventive department It takes care of the health of the Presidency Formerly, the idea was that when a disease invades an area, medical treatment should be given, but nowadays that opinion is being revised, and people, especially civilised countries, are laying greater emphasis on preventive measures rather than curative treatment. Therefore, I submit that as the health of the entire Presidency is concerned, we should pause and see how best we can try to increase the utility of this department, we should not try to put it down.

Sir, in this connection I may point out that even the Retrenchment Committee which this House had appointed, after going very thoroughly into the question, held its hand of destruction.

This item against which the cut is moved concerns many sub-heads, Director of Public Health, Assistant Directors of Public Health, Public Health Laboratories, and so forth About the Director of Public Health, the Honourable the Leader of the House has told us that it is only a change in name. We had an officer formerly, but his name has been changed Then, about the Public Health Laboratory In this laboratory we prepare vaccines and sera. These vaccines and sera are used for human beings as well as for cattle Moreover, it is a commercial concern, I should say, because we supply vaccines not only to our own presidency but also to outside provinces If the honourable mover of the cut will refer to page 67 (Blue Book), he will find that by the sale of vaccine and sera we get some income on the revenue side I do not think that factor is against that department, as it enables it to pay its own way.

Then, Sir, I come to the next head "Local Vaccination Establishment" We know what ravages small-pox works in the districts As a welfare worker I often visit some of the districts with magic lantern and tell people that they should get their children vaccinated as that is the surest way to save their children from small-pox

As regards "Consulting Surveyor to Government," we see from the budget that the services of this officer are loaned to Indian States and some revenue accrues out of that

Last of all, I come to "Pilgrim Charges" Sir, the honourable member who moved this cut must be well aware of the condition which existed ten years ago and that which prevails now in connection with the Pandharpur Fair I understand that from the town in which the honourable mover of this cut resides, a palki goes every year to Pandharpur That palki in former times was a great source of danger to the public health inasmuch as it used to spread cholera If the honourable member had read the resolutions passed by Government every year and which are circulated to honourable members of this House, he will find that cholera is kept under check merely by the agency of the Public Health Department Take, for instance, the condition of the temple at Pandharpur Pilgrims had to wait for hours together and suffer a lot of beating at the hands of the persons who were kept there to regulate admissions into the temple The temple itself was ill-ventilated All that has been changed now The temple itself has undergone a great deal of remodelling, and even the admission of the pilgrims visiting the shrine is better regulated May I enquire of the honourable mover of this cut, what is this the result of? Is it not the result of the action taken by this Department? The honourable member shakes his head, but the other honourable members know that cholera is not so very rampant nowadays after the Pandharpur fair as it used to be in former years Whatever he may say, we know that every district in the presidency twice every year paid a toll of death to cholera That is now happily a thing of the past

For these reasons, I oppose the cut.

Dr M K DIXIT (Surat District) Sir, when I heard the speeches of the honourable mover of this cut and of the honourable member Mr. Kadri, I was very much amused I thought that cuts of this nature in the nation-building departments were proposed more with a view to getting greater benefits out of these departments than with a view to behead them I find the honourable member over there (the Director of Public Health) in his seat he is quite capable of defending his own department However, I feel that certain unjustifiable remarks have been made, and I should like to say a few words about the justifiability of the existence of this department I do not exactly remember when, but the President of a great European sanitary conference once said that modern civilization of a country is to be measured by the number of organized public health institutions in that country I am not quoting the exact words, but only giving the purport of what he said If we really wish to develop organized sanitary institutions useful to the public at large, then I think the existence of the Public Health Department is absolutely necessary.

My complaint against this department is altogether of a different nature, it is that this department is not what it should be, it is not sufficiently advanced to keep pace with the developments in this Presidency The Public Health Department should provide all sorts of facilities for developing public health institutions in the Presidency. In our Presidency, even very large towns are devoid of ordinary arrangements for draining and other purposes It has been my lot to complain from year to year in this House of the sanitary condition of my city (Surat) I wish the Public Health Department to come forward to the rescue of that city and prevent the various diseases which are the result of bad drainage of the city, I mean particularly malaria and filariasis

My honourable friend the mover of this cut called this department a parasitic department Well, almost all departments are parasitic. As far as the administration goes, the chief revenue-producing departments are Land Revenue, Excise and Forests Other departments are all more or less parasites on the revenue raised from these three departments. Therefore, I do not agree with him when he calls this a parasitic department My honourable friend Mr Kadri called it an ornamental department. I think if anything, at this stage of its existence it is the least ornamental It is, after all, to safeguard the public health, which is an absolute necessity for the development of a nation [Interruption]. How far it serves the purpose depends on us It is for us to give more money, it is for us to supervise that department better, it is for us to see that the department develops on proper lines. If we behead the department absolutely, there is no hope of developing public health institutions in this presidency The honourable member Mr Kadri said that the department had deteriorated very much That may be his opinion My own experience of this department is that it is gradually advancing, though not at sufficiently good speed The honourable member found fault with the competence of the sanitary inspectors also I think we are now having qualified sanitary inspectors and they are doing much better work than the unqualified people who were serving under municipalities before I am saying this from my personal experience He went the length of suggesting that the Public Health Department had better be abolished and the whole work entrusted to the Surgeon-General's office I am inclined to think the other way let the whole Surgeon-General's office be handed over to this department of Public Health, and the head of this department will be able to manage the little work that the Surgeon-General is doing, because the Surgeon-General is not doing any constructive work, he has only to inspect large hospitals and to see to the transfers and postings of the various officers under him and nothing beyond The most amusing argument that was advanced by my honourable friend was that health, hygiene and sanitation are now sufficiently understood by the public and therefore this department should go [An Honourable Member Even by children !] Yes, he said even by school children it was understood thoroughly, and therefore this department should go If his criterion of the knowledge of public health is of the type he has submitted to the House, I am afraid we are poles asunder My idea is that the knowledge of public health, sanitation and hygiene in certain parts of the presidency, particularly rural areas, is so small and limited that I should put it not plus but even minus Because sometimes they have erroneous ideas That is my view of the whole affair We must carry on propaganda about hygiene, sanitation and public health to the utmost extent possible Our school children are hopelessly ignorant about sanitation and hygiene, look at our school buildings ! School-hygiene is also very little understood by the people in charge of the schools, by the teachers themselves and the inspectors He further argued that the money saved by the abolition of this department should be utilised for the expansion of primary education Well, education is all right If the nation is healthy, education is bound to follow; but if the nation is not healthy, what is the good of giving education ? We will have very bad vital statistics, infant mortality and general mortality would be so high What is the use of educating children if they die at the ages of seven, eight and ten after studying up to 3 or 4 primary standards ? Let us improve the health of our children by improving public health, then, their education will follow in the natural course ! Sir, this is a department for the prevention of diseases Though it is known as the Department of Public Health, its principal object is the prevention of disease and ill-health in the country I think they are trying their best to carry out this work with the staff and with the provision that they have at their disposal.

[Dr M K DIXIT]

I only wish to point out to the House that the touring officers of the Public Health Department should be very sympathetic towards the people with whom they have to work They must try to co-operate with the health officers, chief officers and presidents of the district local boards and municipalities I think they will be doing very useful work if they work in a sympathetic and co-operating spirit.

With these words I support the cut to the extent of ventilating the grievances I have mentioned

Dr M. D GILDER (Bombay City, North) Sir, in this department the honourable member Dr Dixit and myself have given two or three cut motions But, in order to save the time of the House and as honourable members are anxious to pass on to other subjects, with your permission and with the permission of the Honourable Minister I will speak on the present motion One of the cuts that we have tabled is the cut of Rs 100 in the provision for the Haffkine Institute My object in tabling that cut was to elicit certain information from the Honourable Minister

During the budget session in 1927, when discussing 33, Public Health, I said

"On page 225 of the White Book we find the pay of two officers, which is non-voted. It is my impression that out of these two posts, one only is reserved for the Indian Medical Service" (Vol XIX, p 1097)

The post referred to were the posts at the Haffkine Institute In reply, the then Honourable Minister, Dewan Bahadur Harilal Desai, said

"As regards the Haffkine Institute, to which a reference was made by the honourable member for Bombay, I have to state that one of the two appointments, either the Director or the Assistant Director of the Institute, is an Indian I M S post, and the other is a non-I M S. post."

Now, Sir, in those days we had two non-voted officers on the cadre of the Haffkine Institute and the Honourable Minister was pleased to state that there was room for only one Till last year there were two non-voted and five voted officers This time we get three voted and four non-voted officers, that is to say, the salaries of two officers have been transferred from the voted to the non-voted side If this sort of thing were to continue and officers were to be transferred from the voted to the non-voted side, then I believe there will soon come a time when this honourable House will have to vote the salaries of only low-paid clerks and menials I would like to have from the Honourable Minister the reason why he has taken away the pay of two officers from the control of this honourable House

My second reason for giving notice of this cut motion was to make a suggestion to the Honourable Minister. We have had a Drugs Enquiry Committee composed of eminent pharmacologists It has come to certain conclusions This Committee has been thanked by the Government of India for its work and for the time it has spent in coming to the conclusions One of their conclusions is that there should be prepared an Indian pharmacopœia, that is to say, a list of drugs (their preparation, properties, etc.) that are used in medicine in India It is a thing which medical men all over India desire, no matter what system of medicine is followed. We have got a pharmacological laboratory at the Haffkine Institute. We have got a man who can do and is willing to do the work required. Might I suggest that the Honourable Minister start him working and perhaps ask for a grant from the Government of India to do a work which refers to the whole of India and for which the Government of India ought to pay its share? In that way we shall be having a certain amount of retrenchment in our own expenditure.

My next enquiry in connection with this Department is this in this Department is included the pay of the Port Health Officer, and naturally the duties of these Port Health Officers are, again, the prevention of the entry of epidemic diseases into the various ports I would like to know, since they are budgeted in this department and their salaries are included under this department, whether it is a fact that they are still under the control of the Surgeon General and not under the control of the Director of Public Health, and, if so, why such an anomaly has been continued

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL On a point of information, Sir. To whom was the honourable member referring?

Dr M D GILDER: Port health officers, A-1, page 237 of the White Book

Now, Sir, I come to some of the criticisms that have been made against this Department The honourable mover of this cut said that this department is a parasitical department, I believe he is right, if by "parasitical" he means to say that this department has got to deal with parasites It has got to deal with parasites—parasites of disease, and its duty is to kill these parasites. If I understood him right, what my honourable friend from Ahmedabad (Mr Kadri)—I hope he will correct me if I am wrong—said amounted to this, that the knowledge of sanitation has spread so far and wide that even school-children know the causes of malaria, etc and how to prevent disease. Therefore, according to him, the Honourable Minister would be saving a lot of money in the budget if he dismissed the Director of Public Health and his staff and put a few school-children in their places. My honourable friend has no idea of the advances that have been made in preventive medicine Even the Council of General Medical Education have been paying more attention to preventive medicine and they have given to preventive medicine a greater share in the education of the medical student. My honourable friend said that the present Surgeon General is also a specialist in public health. That is to say, he realises that for the Public Health Department you want a specialist. The Surgeon General ordinarily comes from that branch of the service which deals with the treatment of disease, whose members engage in general practice as civil surgeons treating typhoid cases, pneumonia cases and so on. He is, therefore, not at all well fitted to hold an administrative post and come in contact with the local bodies. I would agree with the suggestion made by the honourable member Dr Dixit. If retrenchment in this department is necessary, we can very well retrench the Surgeon General and not the Director of Public Health As I said, the Surgeon General is usually a man who at one time or another has been in general practice His administrative experience is decidedly less than the administrative experience of the Director of Public Health, who has been doing nothing but public health and administrative work all the time.

One particular reason why, from the point of view of this House, the Director of Public Health is preferable to the Surgeon General is that the Director of Public Health is amenable to this House—his salary is votable. The Surgeon General's salary is non-votable Therefore, from the point of view of this House, if one of the officers has got to be abolished, it should be the non-voted officer

My honourable friend Mr Kadri says that public health might be handed over to the district local boards Might I ask him how many district local boards have got health officers of their own? I am given to understand that about 3 or 4 district local boards have got health officers Therefore, the rest of the Presidency might safely be left to school-children who according to him know so much of the prevention of diseases With these words, I oppose the cut moved by the honourable member

Mr PESTANSHAH N VAKIL (Ahmedabad City) Sir, an illustration of the fact how erroneous ideas continue to hold sway on the minds of even highly educated people is furnished by a remark which my honourable friend Mr Kadri let fall in the course of his very interesting speech. As he comes from the same city which I have the honour to represent and as he put himself to the pains of tracing the history of the Department under discussion, and, for the edification of this honourable House, going so far back as 1859, I thought he was aware of the notable step recently taken by the Ahmedabad Municipality. My honourable friend remarked that vital statistics were at present furnished by the Mamlatdars of districts. Perhaps it is a fact It may be true that vital statistics have hitherto been collected by mere clerks But on the advice of the then Major, now Colonel, Candy who was Chairman of our Sanitary Committee, the Ahmedabad Municipality engaged the services of four graduates in medicine for the express purpose of the collection of vital statistics Now, Sir, when we consider the crass illiteracy and gross ignorance of our people, so far as the registration of deaths went, it was plain sailing, but when we came to register the causes of death, the matter was not so simple as it appeared on the surface For instance, asked what the cause of death was, the poor ignorant rate-payer said that it was fever Now, fever conveys nothing to a medical man It is merely a symptom, it may not be the disease itself Fevers are of various kinds Now, if a graduate or a man with some medical knowledge were in charge of the collection of statistics, he would differentiate between the different causes of death Considering how very much depends upon the accuracy of these vital statistics, I suppose the Ahmedabad Municipality must be congratulated on putting itself to the expense of engaging medical graduates for this purpose I thought my honourable friend was aware of this fact. But obviously he is not

Mr J S. KADRI I am.

Mr PESTANSHAH N. VAKIL Well, my honourable friend says he is aware of this fact. In spite of that he advocates the continuance of the old practice

Mr. J S. KADRI What about rural areas ?

Mr PESTANSHAH N VAKIL Sir, we can only cut our coat according to the cloth I am quite sure if the resources of Government were unlimited, if they were in possession of some such thing as the purse of Fortunatus, perhaps they would think better of it and, I am sure, they too would engage medical graduates in place of ordinary clerks for the collection of vital statistics, because my honourable friend himself admits the importance of this kind of work being done by trained hands.

Now, Sir, as for the department itself, there may be room for retrenchment, there may be room for improvement But to advocate its total abolition would be retrenchment with a vengeance, and I for one would be tempted to cry, "Oh, retrenchment, what things are done in thy name!" Sir, only the other day I was reading a report submitted by the Director of Public Health It was rather an interesting document, and copies of this brochure were, I suppose, circulated amongst honourable members It related to steps adopted by the Department of Public Health at Nasik in anticipation of some kind of fair which is annually held there The department claimed that the measures adopted were efficacious and did prevent avoidable loss of life If they really succeeded in saving even one human life, I for one would be prepared to say that no expense is too great for the maintenance of that department

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH (Sukkur District) Sir, I hold exactly the opposite views to those which my honourable friend Mr. Kadri holds He thinks that it would be better to close down the Public Health Department and to transfer that money to schools I would rather prefer that we should close down the schools and transfer that money to the Public Health Department Let us consider the matter dispassionately. At present we know that 50 per cent of the money we spend on primary education is practically wasted. When I say it is wasted, I mean that 50 per cent. of the children leave the school before they reach the fourth standard in the absence of compulsory primary education because Government have not sufficient money to give full effect to the Primary Education Act, and so it is no use trying to waste money on primary education That is my object. Moreover, the children, who are educated up to the fourth standard or at least a majority of them, after being educated for two years, go to their fields, and so what good would education of two years be to a boy ? Practically, when he reaches the age of 8 or 10 years, he forgets everything

[Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh]

Apart from the question of the utility of the Public Health Department to the people in general, one must realise that particularly in Sind we get the malaria epidemic almost every year. At present we have perennial supply After the abkalani is over, there is malaria and every cultivator is laid up with fever The district local board or Government have not even sufficient money to distribute quinine pills When the cultivators do not get any help, for want of money, in securing quinine pills, is it desirable that we should go on spending money on education ? I for one, between the two, when we have got enough money to spend on both, i e , on education and public health, will say "spend on both," but if one has to make a choice whether to spend money on the Public Health Department or on primary education, then I for one certainly would prefer that the money should be spent on the Public Health Department rather than on primary education where we cannot afford to give full effect to the Primary Education Act

It is a matter of regret that the local boards do not receive full co-operation from Government in organising the Public Health Department in Sind It has been said in a series of questions that Government is encouraging the local bodies to appoint public health officers The district local board, Larkana, has appointed public health officer since the last six years, and according to the Act it is obligatory upon Government to pay two-thirds towards the pay of the public health officer. The district local board, Sukkur, passed a resolution and sent it to Government who were informed that it was considered necessary by the district local board to appoint a health officer The post is subject to the approval of Government The district local board only wrote that provision should be made and in the meantime applications would be invited and that after a selection is made, the name would be submitted to Government for approval Government wrote back to us, without committing themselves to making any provision, saying that the question will be considered when the name is submitted to Government I know that Government is faced with financial stringency It would have been much better if Government had said that they cannot afford to pay us or they should amend the Act rather than put the district local boards to the expense of advertising in several newspapers, or to the expenditure of time involved in granting interviews to several candidates, when no one knew what the ultimate result was going to be I would especially like to impress upon the Honourable Minister in charge that the conditions now in Sind are different and it should be now forced upon the district local boards that they should appoint health officers because the question affects the very success of the barrage scheme directly The epidemic of malaria comes on with the cessation of agricultural operations and it takes the cultivators four to five months to regain their vitality again Now there is perennial supply and they have to cultivate their land throughout the year It therefore becomes very difficult for these people, who are laid up with fever for more than two or three weeks and who have practically no period of convalescence, to attend to their work of cultivation I would therefore request the

[Khan Bhahadur Allahbaksh]

Honourable Minister to realise that it would be in the fitness of things—and it will pay the barrage scheme in an indirect form—if sufficient provision is made in the budget and all the district local boards have it impressed upon their minds that they should appoint health officers without much delay This is my view

Another thing is that we find that whenever there is an epidemic of any other disease—of course such epidemics do not visit us every year but sometimes cholera or such diseases do visit us once in five years or once in ten years—local bodies receive no help from Government It is necessary that there should be some provision in the reserve of Government when any district local boards have to face such epidemics and Government should at such times come to the help of the people and the district local boards Anyway I think the object of the honourable mover is only to discuss the general policy, but if the object of the honourable mover is to press the cut to a division, then definitely will I oppose it.

Rao Bahadur G. V PRADHAN (Nasik District) Sir, when the two honourable members, who proposed the cut and supported it, were speaking in favour of the cut, I wondered for a moment as to whether they had at all been, at any time, in consultation with the Public Health Department. In Nasik, which is a very big centre of a fair and where I have been connected with the municipality sometimes as member and sometimes as the president, I have found that the public Health Department has given us all possible advice on every matter of detail and if only the municipalities were prepared to accept that advice and work according to that advice, certainly that department would come forward with greater help I shall give only a few examples to show how that advice has worked in our municipality. Nasik, all along, some years back, from year to year, was suffering from cholera The first thing that this department suggested was that we should have pure water from wells in river pumped up into reservoirs which could supply the water to the city That was achieved Then it was found that the water that we got from the wells was still not quite as pure as it ought to have been Typhoid germs were found in that water because, treatment with potasium permanganate was not enough to kill the typhoid germs The year before last an investigation began and we were advised that we should immediately undertake a scheme of chlorinating the water, and so chlorination was started in a serious way last year under instructions from the department and we find that typhoid has subsided to a very great extent The third thing was, that in the year 1930, when in East Khandesh, West Khandesh and round about districts and even in the Thana District, small-pox was raging furiously, the assistant director of public health came to us with the advice that we should see that our city was kept free from that disease because Nasik was a pilgrim centre by a campaign of vaccination Four or five vaccinators were immediately engaged by the municipality and hundreds and thousands of people were vaccinated or re-vaccinated, with the result that Nasik was all along kept absolutely free from any epidemic of small-pox. Instances like this could be multiplied to any extent. During the last Sinhasta Fair, all along, from month to month we got advice from the assistant director of public health, and it was at his advice that an hospital for infected patients was opened there. It was at his advice that the water-supply was increased to a very great extent and water-supply was provided to pilgrims and it was at his advice that a certain drainage scheme and a sanitation scheme have been undertaken. Similarly, if other municipalities are prepared to undertake the works that are thought to be necessary by this department, I am sure those municipalities will be profited as much or even more than the Nasik municipality has done. It is from this point of view that this department, I consider, is absolutely essential and cannot be done away with as has been suggested by some of my honourable colleagues here today.

It is true that this department is not possessed of funds or hands who can actually work out the projects and all that it can give is advice and statistics. Statistics are good for showing us what diseases are coming near our towns and for showing what diseases are prevailing in a particular city or in a particular area. Statistics show us whether we are progressing in our health conditions or not. These statistics, if studied properly, and if their meaning is properly appreciated, can be made considerable use of; but if statistics are taken only to mean that their purpose is solely to occupy so many pages of the Bombay Government Gazette, then certainly they cannot be of any use. The honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni also comes from a fair centre and I am therefore surprised to find that he has not taken as much advantage as the Nasik municipality has taken of the work of this department——

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: From my own experience, I say that the Department is useless. We want health officers and not directors and assistant directors of Public Health.

Rao Bahadur G. V. PRADHAN: So far as the Nasik municipality is concerned, we have got our own health officer who has inspectors under him, and even the health officer and the inspectors have to take the advice of the Public Health Department in order to find out what diseases are prevailing round about and to decide what steps they should take to prevent the diseases from attacking our city. Of course, you cannot expect every health officer to know everything about what can possibly be done. Ultimately, some schemes come to be developed and gone into by the Public Health Department and those schemes have to be carried out by the health officer and his assistants. I therefore strongly oppose the cut.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE (Poona City): Sir, I must thank the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni for having given us an opportunity to express our views about the work of the Public Health Department. I must also state, Sir, that it is necessary to congratulate the Honourable Minister in charge for the good work that is being done by this department. I know that out of the many departments which are working for the benefit of the people, this is the department that is doing the best work so far as it could Of course, the funds at the disposal of the department are certainly very meagre. If more funds were available, the department would be more useful and particularly in the rural areas We have been told about the advantages of the department in places where there are fairs held. I myself bear personal testimony to the fact that I also belong to a place where there is an annual fair held and where more than 10,000 persons gather, and I must say that the advantage that is being obtained from the advice of this department as of great use to the managers of that fair and certainly diseases are kept down by the efforts of this department But I would make a suggestion or two in regard to this department Having regard to the rural areas, their wants ought to be looked into There are many rural areas where bad water is being used for drinking purposes Many diseases such as ringworm and others crop up Probably this department has not got enough staff, but the fact remains that these people are not properly instructed as to the use of good water for drinking purposes, In every five out of ten villages, the drinking water question is acute and usually the water used for drinking is not as it ought to be The department therefore should give its consideration to this question At least they should suggest moderate schemes on a moderate scale which will be useful to these villages

One more thing the department could do is to diffuse the knowledge about the diseases in various rural areas Handbills, pamphlets and leaflets should be distributed in various villages when a fair is about to come or when some epidemic is about to appear, which the department knows If these handbills are distributed in village schools the boys when they go home will read them to their parents and to the other members of the family, so that the contents of the handbills will be known throughout the village. Such practical work ought to be done That work is not being done as it ought to be

One more circumstance is this It was just now stated that the death rate had increased, notwithstanding the efforts of this department To that my answer is that the death rate appears to have increased because statistics are being better collected now Now, better statistics are available and better information is available, that is perhaps the reason why the death rate appears to have increased. I know that before this department was interested in this work many deaths were left unreported The village officers like the patel or kulkarni hardly sent the death returns to the proper authorities During the last 7 years there has been a vigorous attempt made by the department to get these reports of deaths and so now the statistics are more accurate

I do not know whether the honourable member Mr Kadri really wishes this department to be closed It is just like the Honourable the Sindhi member suggesting the closing down of the Educational Department instead But my suggestion is : Please do not close either We want education to spread and we want people to be healthy. I do not think we can either close down the Educational Department or the Public Health Department I would suggest better close none. What more is wanted in the villages is to take steps to eradicate consumption and malaria I think no attempt is being made by the Public Health Department to ascertain statistics about the deaths from consumption. They say that the cases are few. Beyond that they make no efforts If regular enquiries are made many deaths could be traced to consumption and malaria. The information is not available and is not collected I make this suggestion to the department I do not know the reason, but consumption has increased in the rural areas. A time there was when the people living in cities and towns envied the health of the people in the rural areas. Only now, the things are changed In villages we do not find stalwart people now-a-days, and many of them come to the cities and towns, drink soda water, go to cinemas and drink tea. And thus perhaps because they spend less on their wants, they are not as healthy as they ought to be I would suggest to the department to educate these people in the rural areas in hygiene

I wish larger sums were given to the Honourable Minister for the purpose of this department, as it really deserves them If there is any department to which kindness is to be shown by Government, it is this department—particularly for the benefit of the villagers The village sanitation is deteriorating and many who have seen the villages must have seen that the villages are very dirty and sometimes so dirty that one does not like to pass through them Improvement there is no doubt in the department, but that improvement ought to be pushed on. There ought to be an agency like the village panchayat or village sanitary committee to report matters to the proper quarters My suggestion therefore is that more work should be done on these lines and the department will have more than justified its existence in course of time

Mr. P R CHIKODI (Belgaum District). Sir, I would like to say this much The department has been doing very useful work From my own experience of my district, I am prepared to say that the department has given very useful advice in checking the spread of cholera I now wish to draw the attention of this House and particularly of the Finance Department to the fact that this department is being starved

My honourable friend from Poona drew the attention of the House to the rural sanitation, and said that much was not being done in that direction Here I should like to point out that the progress made is considerably less than what it ought to be In the year 1930-31, the grant to this department was Rs 7,26,000, for this year it has been reduced to Rs 6,05,000 and for the ensuing years it has been still further reduced to Rs 4,25,000. I wish to draw the attention of the House also to the fact that a very small amount has been provided for village water-supply A grant of one lakh of rupees has been made for the whole presidency This is a civilised Government and this is an advanced Government in the whole of India One lakh of rupees for 26,000 villages! One knows how the villages are suffering from insanitary conditions and from want of good drinking water. There are no wells sunk in numerous villages. People are drinking water from nullahs and rivers This is one source from which contagious diseases have spread and done havoc. The Director of Public Health has been notifying in newspapers that such and such epidemic is there, but what have Government done ? It is no use saying that there are no funds If this House is serious, they should press upon the attention of the Government and compel them to provide more money for this department Unless it is done, it is no use saying that it was due to want of funds and they are helpless ' We are here to support the Honourable Minister, if he is prepared to fight to get more money Retrenchment is done elsewhere, but the retrenchment here has been done with a vengeance People in the mofussil are not able to organise themselves and compel Government It is true ' But they resent the conduct of Government and if there is discontent throughout the presidency, it is due to reasons such as no medical relief and no water-supply and so on. Because they are not articulate, it should not be supposed that there is no discontent Therefore, I appeal to the Government of Bombay which always flatters itself that it is the most advanced to bear in mind that it has to account for their negligence one day or other When that day comes, the Government will get their return with a vengeance They should therefore remember that there is such public discontent in the rural areas that they should provide more money and not apply the knife of retrenchment to the needs of the rural public With these words, I oppose the motion and ask Government to provide more money.

Rao Bahadur G K. CHITALE (Ahmednagar District) : Sir, we have seen a glowing picture painted of this department and it is necessary to paint the other side also of this department, so that the department may not think that it has come out with flying colours The motion is misunderstood in this way that there is no useful purpose served by this department ' I believe that it is not the motive of bringing forward this motion, neither is the purport of the motion to censure this department which may be doing useful work ' As far as I understood, the point of criticism is that it is a very wonderful department indeed, if with one Director of Public Health and a few deputy directors, with no staff intervening, except that of the vaccinators, they are catering for the need of the whole presidency ' I fail to see how the Director of Public Health or his deputies must be catering for the wants of the whole rural population, though perhaps to a very, very small degree, because I know that they have no staff worth the name, not even half a dozen in the whole presidency to work out their programme

I wish to say something against this department and I must give proof, and proofs there are Those of us who have worked in the rural areas know the handicaps of this department I believe the Director of Public Health will himself acknowledge that he has no staff For instance, Sir, I know there are certain contagious diseases prevalent in certain parts of the district . Take, for instance, itches, ringworm or guineaworm These diseases are sometimes rampant over several villages at one and the same time, and it is too true to state that no help whatsoever is being given to these poorer people in times of dire necessity, when they are suffering from these diseases May I know what help they have given to the people for relief from these diseases which to their knowledge have broken out in the Ahmednagar and Poona districts this year? I know what establishment they have to deal with even epidemics like cholera. Well, Cholera was very much rampant in Ahmednagar district, and we had one sub-assistant surgeon, an L C P.S. man, going all about the district and inoculating the people for a month or two; I have myself known, and I have drawn the attention of the authorities to it, that in a particular village not very far from Ahmednagar, there were 60 deaths before the department knew that an epidemic had started or that it had taken a toll of so many persons Then the Deputy Director came over in a motor car and went about the district He used to go out in the morning and come back in the evening Now, there are lots of villages, the roads leading to which are not motor roads. May I know whether the vital statistics, for which credit is sought to be taken, are improved? How have they improved? The vital statistics in the rural areas are even now kept by the village officers. They are checked by the Revenue Department, and when the honourable mover of the cut stated that this department has got no establishment under it to work in the various parts of the Presidency, I believe that criticism must be accepted No general can work without an army of soldiers and small officers under him and it is not true to say that the Director of Public Health and the Assistant Directors are doing wonders They are not doing wonders. It may be they have no funds But, Sir, the whole organisation is wrong The honourable mover of the cut suggested the abolition of the post of Director of Public Health and handing over his duties to the Surgeon-General because the Surgeon-General had the whole district machinery, viz, the Civil Surgeons, the Assistant Surgeons, the sub-assistant surgeons and the rest of the staff, through whom he could work. Do not pooh-pooh the idea of the Director of Public Health being replaced by somebody. Let the people who come from the cities know exactly how the Medical Department works Let us not go away with the idea that the Surgeon-General does only the administrative work He has also to do inspection work of the various hospitals and dispensaries Therefore, he may be able to give relief to a larger number of people, and in cases where that relief is necessary, even with the funds which are now made available for the purpose I believe a larger measure of relief is probable and can be expected in a greater degree from the Surgeon-General rather than from the Director of Public Health, who is much more removed from the rural areas, and has no establishment under him. I see that my esteemed Honourable friend Dr Gilder, for whom I have the greatest respect, nods his head But these city people usually go by the experience that they have of the surroundings in which they live, just as we people think, when we come over here, that these roads in Bombay ought to be copied all over the districts So, they have very high notions and naturally look askance at such remarks as are made by people whose lot is cast with the other smaller people with whom they have to work. I am saying all this, lest our remarks may be misunderstood by the department They might think that so many people have spoken in their favour, and therefore nothing else need be done I say that they have done nothing—I put it the other way. So far as the rural population is concerned, which is a very large proportion as compared with the population in the cities, there are more diseases in the rural areas which are capable of being stopped, which are capable of being controlled The Public Health Department is of no use, can be of no use there, because they have not got the necessary establishment I know it as a fact, Sir, that, if a sub-assistant surgeon in charge of a dispensary comes to know that cholera has broken out in a serious form, he does not go to the place to afford any relief, unless he is ordered to go, because those are the departmental rules Unless the Collector asks him to leave his jurisdiction and go outside, and unless that permission is obtained, the sub-assistant surgeon cannot leave his head-quarters You may take it from me that that is the rule, and therefore it takes two to three days at least before his services can be made available In the meanwhile, in that particular village at least half a dozen if not more people die One of the honourable members was very anxious to save at least one life But here dozens of lives are usually lost before the Public Health Department can ever take any action, certainly on account of the circumstances which I have mentioned, and the point of view of the honourable mover of the motion was that the expenditure which we are now incurring from public funds goes more for the officers' salary bills and travelling allowances than for the proper activities of the department I do not think, Sir, that the honourable mover of the cut means that the department is absolutely useless and deserves to be abolished But from the point of view that I have put before the House, I believe there is a good deal to be said in favour of the motion.

Rao Bahadur S N ANGADI (Belgaum District): Mr President, it is very seldom that I agree with my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Chitale, but it is my misfortune to agree with him this time From the discussion it appears that there are two schools of opinion so far as this department is concerned Those who are connected with the administration of municipalities have a considerable amount of admiration for this department, but those who have something to do with rural areas seem to have nothing but contempt for the department, and I belong to the latter school of opinion As president of a district local board, I know something of what the Assistant Director of Public Health could do when an epidemic breaks out I find that all that could be done was to issue certain instructions When there was an outbreak of cholera, I wrote to the Assistant Director of Public Health in Belgaum, and I got some instructions, because I wanted to broadcast them among the villagers, so that they might use potassium permanganate properly Those instructions were sent to me, and I got them printed. After a certain time the Director of Public Health came to me and asked me who had given those instructions He found fault with those instructions,

[Rao Bahadur S N. Angadi]

He asked who gave the instructions. I said, "Your Assistant Director has given them, and they have been printed and they are being distributed among the people" He said, "No, no It is a mistake, these instructions are old Our new instructions are quite different" I replied, "Just go to your Assistant Director of Public Health and just see what you can do with the man" Beyond doing that, I do not think there are very many functions which the Director of Public Health has got to discharge, except it be considered a function to run from place to place and just convey information to the local bodies But I have always found, and you can take it from me, that if there is an outbreak of cholera, as president of the district local board I always get information from the mamlatdars more quickly than from the Assistant Director of Public Health, and whenever there was an outbreak of cholera, the mamlatdar used to do a great deal more than the Assistant Director of Public Health The mamlatdar immediately sent a telegram to the district local board office, and that office used to send permanganate of potash pills or powder wherever it was wanted Supposing these officers are obliged to go out, they simply go and tell the people, "This year there is a likelihood of an outbreak of cholera, and certain precautions have got to be observed." These are ordinary precautions The president of course has got some commonsense and he knows of these things Under the circumstances, I do not think that the Assistant Director of Public Health's office is of great use So, I say that my honourable friend Rao Saheb Kulkarni is not far from the truth when he says that this department, to a certain extent, is redundant and has not been of very great value, particularly to the rural population It was pointed out that several villages suffer from a number of diseases such as guineaworm, ringworm and many other chronic diseases There is nobody who is going to them and administering treatment In connection with that, I may point out that we have got a travelling dispensary at Belgaum, that work is done by the travelling dispensary That is the policy of the district local boards, and in the cities it is done by the municipalities So far as the Assistant Director is concerned, his time is always occupied with engagements He goes from village to village, and from district to district One day he may be in Belgaum, the next day he is in Dharwar, and on the third day he is in Bijapur, and on the 4th day somewhere else He runs like that from place to place. Of course, I admit there is some force in saying that it is of use, that he would be carrying information from place to place, telling the people in advance to take precautionary measures If there is an outbreak of an epidemic in Dharwar, he may go from that place to Karwar with advance information and tell the people, "Look here, there is an epidemic of cholera in Dharwar Please take some precautionary measures; otherwise, it will overtake you" Except in that sense, I do not think the Assistant Director of Public Health has been of great use at all. Of course, it may be the experience of those who are connected with the administration of municipalities that this department has been of great value and of great use. Personally, I do not find that it has been of great use Hence, I support the motion moved by my honourable friend Rao Saheb Kulkarni

DR. M K. DIXIT. Does he carry information or infection ?

(After recess)

MR V N JOG (Dharwar District) Sir, I had no mind to intervene in this debate, but the remarks of my honourable friend from Belgaum have provoked me to say a few words He said that it is only the urban areas, the municipalities, which derive advice and help from this department I was a president of the Dharwar Municipality and I am also a member of the Dharwar District Local Board, and I know that both the rural and urban areas are served by this department When there were signs of plague spreading in Dharwar City the Assistant Director came to Dharwar, we called a meeting of all the medical practitioners and some other people in the town, and the Assistant Director told us what we should do for the prevention of plague, such as rat killing and the rest. In the course of a month or two we found that the plague did not spread and there were many signs of improvement Similarly, in the rural areas, where there are no medical dispensaries When any epidemic occurs there, it is this department which goes to their help and gives direction. In our district there are certain fairs There is not much medical help there, and there is no municipality to go to their help. In such circumstances, the officers of the Health Department go there and see to the sanitary conditions and see that the epidemic does not spread I submit, Sir, that this is the only department which deals with the question of life and death Therefore, our demand should be the other way, that enough funds should be given for the support of this department and not that the department is a parasite and should be removed altogether The statement that many of the local bodies have not appointed their health officers has already been replied to, and I do not want to refer to it But as long as we have no non-official well-organised organisations as in the case of the Co-operative movement, spread over the rural areas who can take up this work and do some propaganda, this department should be maintained and strengthened Therefore, I oppose the cut

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District). Sir, I rise to speak on behalf of Sind So far as local bodies are concerned, Sir, my experience of this department has been that it does serve a useful purpose in the way of giving advice on hygienic matters, although that advice has not yet taken any practical shape as we expected I can realise the handicap under which this Department is labouring owing to want of funds Of course that is a handicap under which every department is labouring now-a-days But, whenever we, the representatives of the people, put forward any demand for the service of the public, then the reply from the Government benches is that the departments have no funds and, therefore, cannot give more service to the public. We quite realise the position of Government, But we should make the best of the situation. Whenever we are asked to sanction new taxation, then in return we expect that all the funds will be spent on nation-building departments, that is, for the service of the people. I think that is the greatest consideration that will weigh with the representatives of the people whenever proposals for fresh taxation come before this House for sanction. Whenever such proposals have come forward, we have supported Government. I would instance the case of the recent Finance Bill which has been allowed a first reading. In return we expect an encouraging reply. So far as the nation-building departments are concerned, we know how far the Education Department has been cut down as also the Health Department. People judge us by results. If Government keep a huge paraphernalia and a huge establishment at the top, from which the people cannot derive any direct benefit, then, I think people will be disappointed. Government will be judged by the results.

The best way of making this department useful is to appoint intermediaries who will serve under the direction of the Director of Public Health. On their own showing the department is now there simply to tender advice and to organise on a uniform basis, that is, to co-ordinate the health activities. If there are no agents to carry out the advice tendered, what is the use of tendering such an advice? That will remain an abstract advice and will serve no useful purpose. The effective way is to encourage local bodies to appoint Health Officers of their own. So far as my experience in Sind goes, they have not been encouraged, they have been indirectly discouraged. At least that is the conclusion we draw from the instances that we see in Sind. I will quote the instance of the local board of Larkana whose president is Sir Shah Nawaz Bhuttd. He has been maintaining a health officer in Larkana for about six years now. That health officer is a man with requisite qualifications and has passed the departmental test too. In spite of that not a single pie has been given to the Larkana district local board by way of grant towards the pay of the health officer. When we, the presidents of other district boards, see the fate of that district, we draw the conclusion which I have mentioned just now. The Larkana District is a rich district, it can maintain a highly paid officer at its own expense. But other municipalities and district local boards, which are not so rich, cannot do so from their own resources. What is the remedy? The remedy lies in devising a simpler scheme. I have suggested it officially that until funds permit, two or three districts should form themselves into a group and appoint a health officer jointly. There are seven districts in Sind, they can divide themselves into two or three groups and appoint health officers for each group, each local body contributing its share and Government its share of two-thirds. Government should be liberal; they should not make things impossible for local bodies. They should not insist that a man with a D P H degree on any particular diploma should be appointed as health officer. If you are going to require that a particular examination should have been passed by the health officer, then those men will also dictate their own terms by way of their emoluments, etc. In the present circumstances, neither the local bodies nor

[Syed Miran Mahomed Shah]

Government can finance the appointments of Health Officers with high qualifications Therefore, we should come down and be more practical We can appoint a qualified medical officer, say an M B B S. He should be expected to know the principles of hygiene very well. Every doctor knows it The honourable member Dr Dixit knows it quite well, if he is appointed as Health Officer, he will be all right, I myself have invited on various occasions ordinary medical officers to help me in sanitary problems and they have come to my help But all talukas do not possess qualified medical officers, and sometimes it is very difficult to disengage them from their dispensaries Therefore, my assertion is that an M B B S officer can carry out these duties Why should Government stick to these rules when they themselves cannot finance the appointment of highly paid officers ? They only put artificial restrictions in the way of local bodies Then, look at the figures in the budget Out of 25 lakhs of rupees only three lakhs are given to local bodies for the appointment of health officers I think very few local authorities have got health officers In Sind there is only one local board, that of Larkana, that has appointed a health officer so far. My honourable friend Sir Shah Nawaz Bhutto says that he has spent Rs 42,000 and has not received a single pie. He should receive some portion of that cost as a sort of encouragement I myself am very much handicapped, because the majority of the fairs in Sind are held in my district, about half a dozen of them on a large scale This problem is confronting me There is no special medical officer with me, and I do not know how to manage it Advice is, of course, tendered by the Assistant Director of Public Health, but that is no use I myself know what particular medicines are required for the prevention of malaria and influenza I can distribute quinine, even a servant of mine will do it all right But this is not organisation, unification, or co-ordination. What is the service we get in return for this expenditure of 25 lakhs on this department ? It is really immaterial service that we get in return So far as vaccination is concerned, in the case of my own district, we spend about Rs 6,000 or Rs 7,000 and Government give us only Rs 300 What a meagre help ! What is the encouragement given for work in the matter of public health ? When I protested, the papers were returned to me with the remark that Government would not be responsible if small-pox spread in my district They only tender abstract advice, whether I have the means of acting up to that advice is not their concern So my request to the Honourable Minister is that he should make the department more useful I am the last person to say that this department should be abolished On the contrary, I say that this department should be strengthened from some sources or other. Education and Public Health should have more money. Unless people are enlightened and kept free from disease, how can you increase their earning capacity, how can they bear the burden of the taxes which are piling on them from day to day ? Just as my honourable friend Mr Shaikh Abdul Majid of Karachi remarked the other day, Government have not avoided taxing even the elements which God has provided for the existence of man Fire has been taxed, water has been taxed, earth has been taxed, and there will be a tax on air also in a short time

An Honourable MEMBER Electricity is being taxed

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH That I connect with fire So all the elements are taxed You have been imposing taxes from time to time. But we have to look to the man on whom we pile these taxes That is our elementary duty We have to maintain the individual who earns on behalf of Government. We should take care of his health. Really he is the earning member of the family of Government It is, I think, the primary duty of Government to find out from any source they like the necessary funds, but they should maintain this department and make it really useful and not keep it merely as a figure-head and appoint health officers and say, "We have appointed this officer and that officer" for the nation-building departments That serves no useful purpose There is no direct benefit to the public, people are dying in numbers in epidemics The Local Bodies should therefore be encouraged to employ Health Officers to look to the health of the people. They are, after all, our own officers who are employed by local bodies There are edicts issued by the Assistant Director, "Appoint so many officers Indent so many medicines. Send your officers to such and such a place." As the honourable member Rao Bahadur Angadi remarked, we get daily reports about the health condition of every taluka from mukhtyarkars, sub-divisional officers and other officers We thus get every information from other sources also and we are expected to appoint our own officers, and spend from our own funds. How is the health department useful to people?

My purpose in speaking on this cut is this we are imposing extra taxation upon the people. We cannot face our constituency unless you take something out of these extra funds and give help to these nation building departments—particularly Health Department. That is the only reply we can give to our constituency and no other. We cannot go on extending our co-operation to Government without getting any return After all, we are the representatives of the people, we have to face our constituencies We shall not be carried away by sweet words and stereotyped assurances that we get from the Government benches We should get something substantial in the shape of a grant-in-aid to local bodies for the purpose of maintaining departments like this With these few remarks I again request the Honourable Minister to take into consideration the suggestions that I have made and frame his policy accordingly.

Rev. R S. MODAK. Sir, I rise to give my wholehearted support to the department of public health I think we should support the retention of both the Medical and Public Health Departments for the simple reason that both these departments are very necessary for the welfare of the population at large. If I were making a choice between the Department of Public Health and that of Education, I would consider both equally important.

[Rev. R. S Modak]

I feel, Sir, that the Department of Public Health is a department which has not been, unfortunately, able to prove as successful as it should have been, for the simple reason that it has not been properly helped by Government I do wish to say that this department does great service to the people. This fact should be appreciated by Government and the department should be enabled to serve the purpose for which it has been maintained In these days of epidemics and general depression, when people are starving, when there are diseases spreading here and there and when the whole system of our living needs to be reorganised, it is necessary that this department should be adequately helped by Government

I think it is high time that the Department of Public Health invited co-operation from public bodies and individuals Once in the course of conversation with a foreign visitor to India, he expressed to me the opinion that very little was being spent on public health by Government and asked me whether India was such a healthy country as to need no care of public health I said that was not the case.

I do wish, Sir, that Government would find it feasible, from all possible sources, to help this Department I also hope that it would be possible to reorganise the department and make it more successful

Mr C. M LANE Sir, like the honourable member Mr Jog, I had no mind to intervene in this debate, but I feel that I should refer to one of the points raised by the honourable member from Sukkur (Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh)

The honourable member referred to the high incidence of malaria in certain tracts during abkalani and said that the people living in those tracts had become complete physical wrecks on account of malaria To some extent I agree with what he says But I think I must make it clear that we are not accessory to this situation The Deputy Director of Public Health, some four or five years ago, produced at my request a map of the Upper Sind Frontier district showing the incidence of malaria, where the incidence was greatest and malaria was most severe I found that those particular spots in the map absolutely synchronised with areas with which I dealt from the point of view of wastage of water on account of excessive use of water. We have been trying to cut that down, Sir, and some small success has been achieved But conditions are going to change The honourable member Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh said that they get water only for three months in a year In future they will get water perennially. At present they get an enormous amount of supply during the short period of three months, under future conditions in the tracts referred to they will get less water spread over the 12 months of the year We are not encouraging malaria I maintain, as a matter of fact, the Irrigation Department is doing useful work in the cause of public health.

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH On a point of information, Sir In reply to a question, Government said that they had not formed any opinion about the incidence of malaria and that different officers had held different opinions So, what we have just heard is the honourable member Mr Lane's individual opinion It is not an opinion formed by Government

Mr B S KAMAT Sir, as a non-medical man, I certainly hesitate to take any part whatsoever in the debate on this subject of public health But in the course of our investigations in connection with Retrenchment Committee I had the opportunity of looking into one aspect of the question regarding this Department from the public point of view, and that is the financial aspect of it The previous speakers have referred to lack of proper organisation and a well-balanced staff for the carrying out of sanitation and propaganda work of this department. While we were looking into this question from the point of view of economy it struck me that some other province—I mean the province of Madras—is having some system there which, for the return of money they spend there, seems to be far more economical than the system which we are following in this Presidency Madras has got a revenue of something like 17 crores of rupees out of which it spends 28 lakhs on this department of Public Health We here spend 23 lakhs on this department—if I am correct In spite of this expenditure, as my honourable friend to my left (Rao Bahadur Chitale) has pointed out, except the Director of Public Health at the top and the Assistant Directors of Public Health also at the top, there is no intervening staff to carry on propaganda and public health work of the department, whereas in Madras, perhaps by a subsidised system—subsidised in the sense of help to local bodies—they have got a far better staff than we have in this Presidency In Madras there are 28 District Health Officers each getting a salary of Rs. 250—600 This does not take account of the 24 health officers for municipal cities Then, again, there are six Assistant District Health Officers, each getting Rs 100—300, so that there are 28 plus 6, in all 34 District Health Officers Then, again, below that, they have got 274 health inspectors who perhaps correspond to our sanitary inspectors. Thus, there are 34 of these district and sub-district health officers and 274 health inspectors The health inspectors get a salary of Rs 125—140 or so Whatever the actual detailed system may be, I feel it, and I felt it also during the course of our investigations on the Retrenchment Committee, that this Government ought to look into the Madras system and see if there is something worth copying in that system and if it could be made applicable to this Presidency in the interests of the large rural community which requires a great deal of help in the matter of public health

This question probably is connected with the idea of the necessity of having certain diplomas which in this province it is perhaps the tradition to think to be absolutely necessary for district Health officers I do not know whether Government have the shibboleth or make a fetish about diplomas If that is so, and if the Diploma of Public Health is a sine qua non for appointing a man as a district Health Officer, I think in the interests of the general public that fetish ought to be more or less abandoned and a man who has general qualifications of sanitation and health, irrespective of any particular hall-mark ought to be entrusted with the duty of conveying to the rural communities at large that knowledge of sanitation which saves them from death.

Whatever the fact may be about these two points, namely, a better system of establishment, and secondly, the sine qua non about a particular degree, the matter ought to be looked into by the Government of Bombay I dare say, so far as I know, the Honourable Minister in charge of this department was very keen, as far as I could see, on his work during the course of the Retrenchment Committee and on looking into every aspect of the problem committed to his charge I dare say that he will look into this question with that impartial eye which he brings to bear on every problem and that, if there is anything worth doing at all for the general public, he will not fail to do it Indeed I may assure him that so far as this section of the House is concerned—and indeed the whole House for the matter of that—it always appreciates the pains-taking manner in which the Honourable Minsiter in charge of Public Health carries on his work in order to safeguard the interests of the general public who have every confidence in him, and I do think that he will look into this question of what is being done in Madras and also into the question whether it is absolutely necessary to have the hall-mark of a particular degree, in order that the staff at his command and which is necessary for the general public health may be strengthened and reinforced in the near future

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI (Poona District) · Sir, I find that many diametrically opposed views have been expressed on the motion I moved But when we look to the locality of the members who spoke in favour and who spoke against it, it will be seen very distinctly that those who are inhabitants of urban areas have only shown their approval of the work of this department, because they reside in municipal areas and they have got their own health officers, and naturally they have very limited knowledge of the state of things in rural areas

Sir, I never meant to say that sanitation is not the necessity of the people residing in the rural areas It is in fact a prime thing. I know, if we want to be happy in our life we must be healthy, but the way in which the money is spent is not proper The district local boards are able to appoint their own health officers, but the thing necessary to be done by the Government is that the money which will be saved by doing away with these salaries of the Directors may be made available in the form of grants to local boards They will be then in a position to utilise the amounts in appointing health officers and consequently there will be no obstacle in the way of effecting this change As the district local boards' grants have suffered heavily, they are thereby put in a financial stringency. As the result of this policy on the part of the Government it goes very difficult for them to earmark funds for appointing health officers. The money saved by retrenchment of this department will be more usefully utilised if some financial aid is given to boards I am of opinion that the expenditure that is incurred on this head is going uselessly. Taking into consideration the diverse views on the subject I do not wish to press my points Only I rely on the first-hand knowledge of the working of the district local boards which the Honourable the Minister in charge of the portfolio of Local Self-Government has I am sure he will take into consideration the views expressed for and against my motion by many members of this Honourable House We must have sufficient time to come to a mature judgment on this point at least With this hope I shall be glad to beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Sir, this is one of those rare occasions when a Member or a Minister is not only entirely relieved of his responsibility of answering the various points raised in the debate, but is also a recipient of encomiums from the members of the Opposition who are, as a rule, not considered to be very extravagant in bestowing their favours

Sir, I think very little is left for me by those honourable members who have spoken against the cut I therefore propose only to deal with such points as I consider of importance I propose to take on the honourable members Rao Saheb Kulkarni and Mr Kadri together, because these are the two members who have spoken in favour of the cut I can well understand some of the inaccuracies in the statement made by my honourable friend Rao Saheb Kulkarni because they have apparently arisen out of his unfamiliarity with the numerous activities of the department, but Mr Kadri has been a Government officer with actual touring experience, and I was rather disappointed in some remarks which fell from his mouth This is the first time I come to know that the Director of Public Health has nothing else to do but to register births and deaths I suppose it is needless for me to inform this honourable House what his duties are.

Another remarkable statement which the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni made was that the Retrenchment Committee's report in this particular respect could not be very well relied upon for the simple reason that we had not taken the evidence of those men who are intimately associated with the administration of the district local boards and municipalities. I may inform the honourable member that amongst the 8 or 9 members, there were four presidents of district local boards in the committee itself The suggestion of the Rao Saheb therefore boils down to this that the Director of Public Health having very little to do, his duties may be very conveniently transferred to the Divisional Commissioner I can assure the Rao Saheb that this matter was very closely investigated by the Retrenchment Committee and after a very careful consideration of the question——

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI I have been misunderstood, Sir. I never said that the recording of births and deaths was the only duty of the Director of Public Health I only said that that is one of his duties. Also I never said that the Divisional Commissioner is to record the vital statistics.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: After a very careful consideration of this question, the members of the committee came to the conclusion that the amalgamation of the two departments, namely, the Medical Department and the Public Health Department, or the transference of certain powers from the Director of Public Health to the Divisional Commissioners was entirely out of the question and would be absolutely impracticable This could be very easily verified by a perusal of the report of the Retrenchment Committee

I do not, Sir, propose to enumerate the various activities of this department, but I am afraid that both these honourable members have taken no account of the value of the preventive measures which are taken by this department The importance of public health and its administration on sound principles is now so well recognised in England that there is a separate Ministry of Health there with a Chief Medical Officer to the Ministry and six separate departments, each under an expert of the highest standing in his branch of public health All other progressive countries have been trying their utmost to introduce public health departments, and I was rather disappointed to know from these two gentlemen that this department should be abolished——

Mr. J S KADRI Not abolished, but amalgamated with the Medical Department

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL No useful purpose would be served by amalgamating the two departments I understood the honourable gentleman to say that this department was ornamental If we accept that argument it would be a drag on the other department if it is amalgamated

With regard to the suggestion made by the honourable member Mr Petit that a duty should be levied on edible oil imported from foreign countries, I may inform him that I am not yet in possession of the papers which he is referring to I understand, however, that the question regarding the amending of Schedule H of the City of Bombay Municipal Act so as to subject Whale oil and fish oil to town duty as proposed by the Bombay Municipality has been again referred to the Municipal Commissioner for some further information But I can assure the honourable gentleman that when the papers come back, the Government in their turn will make necessary inquiries and if they are satisfied that a particular commodity requires to be very carefully watched or made a subject of extra duty, Government will be glad to take in hand the suggestion which he has made to-day, but if it is only with the object that the indigenous stuff might be put in a position to have a better margin of profit, I suppose the Tariff Board would be the proper place where this question might be more suitably dealt with.

Now, Sir, I shall very briefly deal with some of the suggestions made by my honourable friend Dr Gilder He has first put a question as to why the salaries of two officers were transferred from voted to non-voted I am afraid I am not able to give him the reasons why this has been done, but we heard from the Accountant General that the pay and compensatory allowance of Dr S N. Gore, Assistant Director, and

Dr K S Mhaskar, Special Officer, Haffkine Institute, Bombay, for the year 1931-32, was voted and that it should be treated in future as non-voted——

Dr M D GILDER What are the reasons for it ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL In view of the superior services and classification of the rules published on 7th January 1931, the charge has to be treated as non-voted I can tell him that I myself should like to have some more information on the points before I make any effort to satisfy my honourable friend now

The second suggestion of the honourable member Dr Gilder is that an Indian Pharmacopœia should be prepared and that the Government of India should be requested to utilise the services of a medical man like Rev Father J N Caius, who is in charge of the Bacteriological Laboratory in the Haffkine Institute at Parel There is no proposal at present pending regarding the transfer of Rev Father Caius' pay from provincial to central We do not get any grant from the Government of India towards the expenditure of the Haffkine Institute This being an All-India subject, if the Government of India ask this Government to place the services of Dr Caius at their disposal, I do not think that this Government can have any objection to do so The honourable member Dr Gilder wanted to know why the port health officer whose salary and allowances were debited to the Public Health Budget should be under the control of the Surgeon General I may inform him that the whole of the Haffkine Institute which, though it is met under this Public Health Budget, is under the control of the Surgeon General That has been the case for many years

Dr M D GILDER Could it not be corrected ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL For this reason that the Director of Public Health is only a specialist in a particular branch and that the Haffkine Institute contains many eminent medical men, and I think that it will contribute to the efficiency of the department, if the present arrangement is allowed to continue

Dr M D GILDER What about the port health officers ? They are also specialists in the prevention of diseases Why should they not be put under the Director of Public Health ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL. The honourable member proposes a radical change in the policy of Government and I must say that I am not prepared to discuss that question at this stage

Dr M D GILDER. Can a Minister say that he is not prepared to discuss suggestions made by non-official members of this House ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT What the Honourable Minister probably means is that questions concerning a change of policy cannot satisfactorily be dealt with at this stage

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL. I do not think I have used a wrong word, because I have given him a reply that it

involves a change of policy and if the Government are going to change a very important policy, they must have time to consider it and at present of course it is impossible for me to enter into the merits of the policy offhand

Dr M D GILDER : That answer is quite satisfactory

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL : Thank you

My honourable friend Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh complained that the district local board of Larkana had engaged six years ago a health officer and that district local board has not been getting the two-thirds of his pay which it ought to according to the provisions of the Act. But so far as I can guess, it is not possible that, if the health officer has been engaged with the sanction of the Government and if he is a qualified man possessing the minimum qualification prescribed for the post of the health officer, namely, D P H or B H.V , it could not get it

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH : In the Act itself it is stated he must be an M B B S

Sir SHAH NAWAZ BHUTTO : This is a most misleading statement which the Honourable Minister has been made to make, because he has no facts in his possession It is not so All the conditions of the Act have been complied with by the district local board It was only a subsequent thought that the department has come forward with this explanation Government had accused the district local board that they have failed to provide their boards with the services of a Health officer. The copy of rules framed by Government was communicated to us after the appointment was actually made The district local board has been fighting from year to year and remained content so far with hopeful replies

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL : I made myself very clear If that particular officer was appointed with the sanction of the Government and if he did possess the minimum qualification prescribed, then it would be difficult for Government to put off the payment and I promise to enquire into the matter

Sir SHAH NAWAZ BHUTTO : Government have repeatedly agreed that they would pay, but this is only a promise so far

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL : Some honourable member made a remark that the death rate was increasing I beg to point out that that is not the case I have got figures here up to 1930 and it has been decreasing, unless he has got still later figures in his possession.

I am not quite sure whether the honourable member Syed Miran Mahomed Shah, when referring to the District Local Board Act, was alluding to the same incident, namely, of the Larkana health officer If, as the honourable member Sir Shah Nawaz says that all the provisions of the Act have been conformed to, why should the honourable member

[Sirdar Sir Rustom Jehangir Vakil]

Syed Miran Mahomed Shah have suggested that the Act might be so amended as to——

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH: I was referring to departmental rules and not to the Act

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: —— make this minimum qualification unnecessary

Sir, I do not think that I should say anything more, because I have not omitted any important points which have been raised during the debate But some of the points I have not dealt with at present, and I cannot deal with at present, because they are suggestions, some of them very valuable suggestions, made by honourable members, and I promise to go into those suggestions and see how far they can be accepted

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Has the honourable mover leave of the House to withdraw his motion?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: I am not withdrawing my motion. It has not been stated by the Honourable Minister that the grievances I placed before the House would be sympathetically considered He has not replied to my arguments in a fair way

Question put, and negatived

The total demand put, and agreed to

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: Sir, I make a demand for Rs 44,48,000 under 32-Medical (Transferred)

Question proposed

Dr M D GILDER: Sir, I have given notice of a cut motion with a view to elicit information If the Honourable Minister will give me the information, I will not move it In the White Book, there is a provision for reserve medical subordinates I do not know who these medical subordinates are, what is meant by that term, and what their duties are

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: To meet the special requirements of the Medical Department, primarily with regard to leave a reserve cadre of medical officers is known by this name of medical reserve That includes I M S, B M S and S M S officers It is necessary to maintain a reserve, because the duties in charge of medical institutions particularly in out of the way places, cannot be looked after by other medical officers nor can these posts be left vacant during leave The recruitment of qualified men to meet emergencies for short periods is not feasible As these officers are not attached to any particular institution, the expenditure on each is debited to several minor heads, such as hospitals, dispensaries, mental hospital, medical schools, etc and they are not permanently attached to any class of these institutions. These officers are shown separately as reserved medical subordinates

Dr. M D. GILDER: These wandering officers are merely leave reserve, Then, I do not propose to insist on my motion,

The Honourable the PRESIDENT. Item No. 75 is not being moved by the honourable members Dr Gilder and Dr Dixit The honourable member Mr Petit has approached me for permission to move a cut of Rs. 80,000 to the provision made for St George's Hospital I might inform him that this is the time when he can move it But he has not submitted the notice of the cut in proper time Therefore, the honourable member should first of all explain why he did not submit the notice in proper time; and, secondly, if his object is to raise a general discussion regarding that particular hospital and get an explanation as to why it has not been retrenched—I suppose that is his idea—then he can gain that object by joining in the general discussion cut which is coming later on But if he proposes to get the retrenchment carried by persuading the honourable members on this side and by carrying the motion to a division, then that is a different matter entirely Then, I have to turn, according to the Standing Orders, to the Honourable Minister for his permission also The honourable member (Mr Petit) informs me that the Honourable Minister is inclined to let him move his cut, even though it has not come in proper time

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: Yes, Sir I said that I would not have any objection if you allowed him to move it

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Then, the honourable member has to answer two definite questions before I can give him the permission The first is, why he was not in a position to submit this cut in proper time, as the others have done, and, secondly, if his object is to raise a general discussion, why he cannot wait till the general discussion cut (Item No 81) There is a cut of Rs. 10,000 proposed to the same provision (St George's Hospital) by Dr Gilder, he can join in that also

Mr J B PETIT Mr President, I regret that I did not give my notice in time, because unfortunately for me, I thought that the rule required that notice was to be given four days before the item in question was reached; at least that was my reading of the rule Your interpretation of the rule, however, is different You have held, Sir, that notice should be given four days before the demands for the grants, as a whole, are taken up. It is therefore that I was late in giving the notice Under these circumstances, I requested you to give me permission to move my cut under one of the exceptions, of the Rules, by which, in the event of such an occurrence, permission can be granted by the President with the concurrence of the Member or Minister in charge As regards the second point, on a perusal of the figures given in the White Book I have come to the conclusion, that, whilst two other big Government Hospitals have had huge cuts made in their budgets to the extent of 25 and 37½ per cent. respectively, only a very small cut of 1½ per cent has been made in the European General Hospital. I felt that this disparity was so marked, that it made out a very strong case for a cut to make up the deficiency. This is the reason why I wish to move my amendment, as I think I should be given an opportunity of convincing the House of the necessity of supporting me, and of effecting the retrenchment proposed by me. If the House is so minded, it may reject it, but I hope that that will not be the case In any event, I submit that I should get this permission and that I should not be ruled out, merely because of the slight technical error committed by me under the circumstances already narrated.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT So, the honourable member would rather not wait for the general discussion, but press this cut ?

Mr J B PETIT That is so, Sir, I would much rather move this cut now.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Of course, the honourable member realises that he misunderstood the Standing Orders If I give him permission now, it should plainly be understood that it is done as a special case and that I am not opening the door for cuts like that in the future All notices of cuts must be submitted in future in proper time I am giving permission now, particularly because the Honourable Minister agrees

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM Is there any particular reason why the honourable member should be allowed to move his cut first, before the last cut in the agenda is disposed of ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Yes, because the last cut is always a general discussion cut This is a specific cut of Rs. 80,000 which he has got to justify on its own merits The cuts are arranged in their proper order, according to the object and amounts of the cuts That is done under the rules laid down for it

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM Why does it come before Dr Gilder's cut of Rs 10,000 ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT This is a cut for a greater amount Dr Gilder's is for Rs 10,000 There are rules laid down as to how the cuts have to be arranged

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM I do not see any reason why the rules should be waived in this case.

The Honourable Mr G. A THOMAS. If the rule is that the larger cuts ought to come first, then why does item No 78 come before item No 79 ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT It is plain Cut No 78 relates to votable demand while the other refers to the total (both votable and non-votable) demand

Mr J B PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association) Sir, in accordance with the notice which I have given and which you have kindly accepted, I beg to move

"That the amount provided under the head "St George's Hospital" (page 219 of the Civil Budget Estimate) be reduced by Rs 80,000"

I beg to assure the Honourable the Minister in charge of the Department, and the Honourable Members of this House— [Honourable Members "We are unable to hear the honourable member"]

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Will the honourable member come forward ?

Mr J B PETIT I prefer to remain in my place, Sir, but I shall speak louder, so that everybody may be able to hear me At the outset, Sir, I beg to assure the Government, this Honourable House, and particularly our friends the English Members thereof, that I am moving this cut with very considerable hesitation and reluctance, even at the risk of being misunderstood and being held guilty of introducing communal considerations in a matter of this importance But I need hardly add that nothing is farther from my mind than such a desire and that I have brought forward the cut that I am now moving, wholly and solely in the best interests of the presidency, and that too, only when I saw that there was no other alternative open to me but the one that I have adopted

I have been led to make my proposal for two principal reasons .

First, because the cut made in the European General Hospital is so infinitesimally small, compared with the heavy cuts made in the Sir J J and the G T Hospitals, that a larger cut in the same proportion in the European General Hospital, is, in my opinion, absolutely and urgently necessary , and

Secondly, because the European General Hospital is the costliest, the most wasteful and the most extravagant of all the Government Hospitals, and there is considerable room for retrenchment there

I know that these are serious statements to make in regard to a public institution, but I am making them with a full sense of my responsibility, and only as a result of the conclusions to which I have arrived after a careful perusal and examination of the figures supplied to us by the Government themselves If honourable members of this House will bear with me for a while, I shall convince them with facts and figures of the truth of what I am saying and shall be content to leave the decision of the question entirely to their discretion and judgment. I shall go a step further and say, that if after hearing me, the Honourable the Minister in charge of the Department convinces the House that my figures are wrong and that my conclusions are based on faulty grounds, I for one shall be more than pleased to withdraw this cut , and I am perfectly certain that this Honourable House will permit me to do so If, on the other hand, I am able to establish my case and the Honourable the Minister is unable to refute it, I am entitled, in fairness to myself, to ask this Honourable House to accept my amendment and to enforce the cut But until that stage is reached, I beg to solicit the indulgence of the honourable members of this House in my endeavour, to convince them of the truth and justice of what I say

Let us now examine the points, one by one Let us begin with the first of my reasons, viz , the question of disparity When I saw the figures which have been supplied to us at page 219 of the White Book, and found that, whilst very big cuts have been made in the two other general hospitals in Bombay, only an infinitesimally small cut has been made in the European General Hospital (St George's Hospital), I felt that there was a very good case for making up the deficiency, in the interests of the presidency, by proposing a further cut in the European General Hospital to the extent that I am now doing If honourable members will turn to this page of the White Book, they will see that the figure for the Sir J J Hospital in the accounts for the year 1930-31 was Rs 4,30,174, whereas in the budget estimate for 1932-33, it has been reduced to Rs 3,28,000, which means a cut roughly of a lakh of rupees—that is, of 25 per cent Let us now turn to the Gokuldas Tejpal Hospital In the year 1930-31, the figure was Rs 1,99,975, say, roughly two lakhs It has now been reduced in the budget estimate for 1932-33 to Rs 1,25,000 Therefore, there is a cut of Rs 75,000, or in other words of 37½ per cent So far as the European General Hospital is concerned, the figures are Rs 3,32,908 in the accounts for the year 1930-31, and Rs 3,27,000 in the budget estimate for 1932-33, that is, roughly only Rs 5,908 less, or, in other words there is a cut of only 1¾ per cent If these figures are correct—and I have no reason to believe that they are not so—then they tell their own tale In plain words, whilst the two other general hospitals have been cut to the extent of 25 per cent and 37½ per cent. respectively, in this hospital there is only a cut of 1¾ per cent It is quite possible that there is some satisfactory excuse for this different and apparently preferential treatment, which, we may, in due course, hear from the Honourable the Minister But until such a convincing explanation has been given, I think I am entitled to come to the conclusion that this cut is much too small compared to the cuts made in the other two hospitals, and that it constitutes specially favoured and preferential treatment, for which there is absolutely no justification

Let us now turn to the second of my reasons, viz, the reckless extravagance prevalent at the European General Hospital and the room for considerable retrenchment that is there It is a notorious fact, which cannot be denied, that like all other Government Institutions, the Hospitals in this city under the management of the Government, whether taken together in a group, or individually as separate units, are perhaps the costliest, the most wasteful and the most extravagant that can be thought of, and this remark applies with equal force as much to the hospitals for the poor, as to those for the middle and upper classes The truth of this statement is so patent and so universally recognised at least in the city of Bombay, that I do not think we can come across anybody who will seriously dispute its accuracy It is, however, interesting to know that an Expert Committee consisting of some of the most distinguished members of the independent medical profession, that was appointed last year by the Bombay Medical Union, after a very careful examination of all the facts involved in the question, has independently arrived at an emphatic conclusion to the same effect Let us pause for a moment, and see what they say In a part of their report, they say, "That the administrative charges at the Government Hospitals are top heavy and compare unfavourably with those of other hospitals in Bombay" In another part, they say, "That the salaries of the Military Assistant Surgeons, B. M S, and others at the J J Hospital, will be found to be five times greater than those at the King Edward Memorial Hospital, even without the inclusion of the salaries of the I M S Officers attached to it The J J Hospital staff of nine officers costs Rs 45,300, while the staff at the King Edward Memorial Hospital, doing corresponding duties, costs only Rs 9,300" Speaking of the European General Hospital, they say that "it is the most costly hospital run by the Government" They further speak of it as follows

[Mr J B Petit]

"If we deduct the non recurring expenditure from the total expenditure incurred for the J J Hospital (which expenditure (non recurring) the committee assumes to be of Rs 6 lacs), the Committee finds that the St George's Hospital expenditure for 125 beds, is practically the same as that of the J J Hospital for 391 beds The committee believes that, even allowing a certain extra expenditure for the mode of living of the patients treated in the St George's Hospital and for their diet, a saving of over a lac could be easily made"

I can go on quoting passages after passages from the report, all pointing to the same conclusion, but I refrain from doing so Before passing on, however, I wish to draw the attention of the Honourable the Minister and of this Honourable House, to the complaint that they make in their report to the effect that the Surgeon-General refused to give them any information at all and merely referred them to the two publications, viz, the Annual Report for the year 1929 on the Civil Hospitals and Dispensaries in the Bombay Presidency and the Civil Budget Estimates for 1931-32, and also that the Secretary to the Government in the General Department, when approached, refused to supply any further information beyond that given in the Government Publications, on the ground that the procedure adopted by the Union in appointing a Committee without the previous consent of the Government, was wrong, even though it was pointed out that the said procedure was in conformity with that adopted under similar circumstances by representative medical bodies in the civilized world I would like to say in passing that this is hardly the way to enlist the sympathy of the public and to attract the co-operation of the independent medical profession in the attainment of the aim, which both the Government and this Honourable House have alike at heart, viz, the retrenchment in the cost of our hospitals compatibly with their efficiency It is deplorable in the extreme that the executive head of a responsible Government Department, who ought to have known better, should have treated a Committee appointed by an important public organisation, in such a high and mighty fashion And, in spite of such cavalier treatment, invariably extended to public bodies and public men, we often hear the Government complain of want of public support and co-operation in the discharge of their responsible and onerous duties in these difficult and critical times!!! However, Sir, this is only by the way and I shall not labour this point further

Reverting to the question of cost, I have ascertained from the figures contained in authoritative publications, what the ratio of expenditure per head per day in some of the important public hospitals in the city, comes to. So far as the King Edward Memorial Hospital is concerned, the ratio of expenditure comes to Rs 3-3-9 per head per day This is the figure which I have obtained from the Municipal Report on this Institution which we receive every year This Hospital is being mainly run for the poor and is being taken advantage of, very largely by them It would therefore be fair to compare it with the figures for the Sir J J and the G T Hospitals, the ratios of expenditure of both of which, are, I understand, very much higher However, we are not concerned with these for the moment, and I will not trouble you any further about them As regards the Parsi General Hospital, which is run very much on the same lines as the St George's Hospital, and which has a group of magnificent buildings and equipment of its own, very similar to those of the European General Hospital, and where better-class patients paying fees ranging between Rs 4 and Rs 12 per day are also received and treated, the ratio of expenditure comes to Rs 4-10-2 per head per day So far as the European General Hospital is concerned, upon an examination of the different items of expenditure which appear at page 141 of the publication, issued by the Government every year, entitled "Civil Hospitals and Dispensaries in the Presidency of Bombay" we find that for a daily average number of 125 patients, the expenditure is put down at Rs 6,72,389, taking the figure for the year 1929 as the basis of the calculation

It will be noticed that several items not shown in the White Book, are mentioned in the publication, to which I have referred, because I suppose they are grants made to this Hospital under different heads and separately included in the Budget in their respective departments, although not directly shown in the White-Book as having been attributed to this Hospital But the fact remains that the figure of the total expenditure which the honourable member Dr Gilder produced last year, and which is contained on page 141 of the publication for the year 1929 to which I have already referred, is given as Rs 6,72,389

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL On a point of information, Sir How is the figure of over six lakhs worked out? I do not quite follow the honourable member

Mr J B PETIT The figure of Rs 6,72,389 is mentioned on page 141 in the publication known as "Civil Hospitals and Dispensaries in the Presidency of Bombay" for the year 1929 My honourable friend Dr Gilder quoted from it last year Every member has been supplied with a copy of this publication by the Government If the Honourable the Minister refers to it, he will find against the European General Hospital, the total figure of Rs 6,72,389, mentioned in the extreme right hand corner of the page The honourable member Dr Gilder will be able to produce the book It is in his possession at the present moment

Sir REGINALD SPENCE Have the figures of all other Hospitals been shown in the same Book?

Mr J B PETIT Yes, all the figures of the Government Hospitals, where they are available The figures for the Parsi General Hospital are naturally not shown in that publication, because it is not a Government Institution. I have, however, got before me the figures for the Parsi General Hospital, and I may inform the honourable member making the enquiry, that there the expenditure comes to Rs 4-10-2 per head per day. It is an independent public Institution, outside the purview of Government control. But I am referring to it, because it is a Hospital run on very much the same lines as the European General Hospital. It receives first-class patients, and it charges fees, on a scale rising as high as Rs 10 to 12 per day to such of its patients as can afford to pay, and yet its average expenditure comes to Rs 4-10-2 per head per day. Although, I am connected with this Hospital, I am open to admit that even there, there is some extravagance, and consequently much room for retrenchment. A committee is now sitting to consider the question of reducing the expenditure in view of its present financial stringency, and substantial reductions have already been made under different heads, thus bringing down the ratio of expenditure per head per day to a very much smaller figure. But the fact remains that even on its present extravagant scale, the expenditure per head per day now comes to Rs 4-10-2, whereas, in the European General Hospital it comes to Rs 14-12-0 per head per day. I shall show directly how I have obtained this figure. The total average number of patients per day in the European General Hospital is shown in the Government Publication as 125. By multiplying this number with 365, we get 45,625, as the total number of treatment days per year, or, in other words, the total number of patients treated per year, counting each of them as a new patient per day. By dividing the figure for the total annual expenditure, viz., Rs 6,72,389 shown in the publication, by 45,625, the figure for the total treatment days, we get Rs 14-12-0, which thus becomes the cost per head per day. As against this staggering figure, we have an expenditure of Rs 3-3-9 per head per day in the King Edward Memorial Hospital and Rs 4-10-2 in the Parsi General Hospital. Assuming for argument's sake, that this figure of Rs. 14-12-0 per patient per day in the St George's Hospital, can be reduced to some extent, even then it is as clear as day light that the ratio of expenditure is far heavier than it ought to be, having regard to all the circumstances of the case. In any event, it is incomprehensible to me why it should be as high as Rs 14-12-0 as against Rs 4-10-2 in the Parsi General Hospital, which, as I have shown, is being conducted on identical lines. I have no doubt in my mind that this is so, because of the prevalence of reckless and wanton extravagance there, resulting in an inexcusable and criminal waste of public money, to the detriment of other Government Hospital for the poor, even the barest needs of which have been most cruelly cut down with the concurrence and under the very nose of an Indian Minister. I have taken my figures from the Government Publication to which I have already referred, and I am sure that they are correct. If, however, it is authoritatively proved that they are inaccurate, I shall be delighted to stand corrected and even to withdraw my motion. If, on the other hand, my figures are accurate or even if they go to prove, as I contend they do, that the ratio of expenditure per head per day is very extravagant, then I think the Honourable the Minister in charge ought at least to promise an enquiry into this matter, upon which I shall be delighted to withdraw this motion Until that is done, or until a satisfactory explanation of the position is given, which may convince the House that my figures are incorrect and that the Government's present expenditure is fair and reasonable, I venture to hope that I shall have the support at least of the honourable members on this side of the House

[Mr J B Petit]

As I have said before, I have not moved this cut with any idea of raising a communal or racial issue As the institution is being conducted from provincial funds, I am honestly of opinion that it is incumbent upon us as representatives of the people, to enquire into the manner in which our grants are being used and to satisfy ourselves as to whether we are getting a fair return for the money which is being so lavishly spent I make bold to assert that with the facts and figures that I have adduced from authentic Government publications, I have made out a strong and unimpeachable case in favour of the cut that I have moved, or failing that, at least for a thorough and searching enquiry into the management of this hospital When the Government are making ruthless retrenchments in every possible direction and under every imaginable head, when the barest necessities of the people are being cut down to the bone, when the nation-building departments of the administration are being continuously famished, when even H E the Governor has graciously consented to substantially reduce his own household expenditure and to abandon the visit of the Government to Mahableshwar during the hot season, and speaking of Government hospitals in particular, when even the poorest of the poor are being turned out of them, there is absolutely no reason why the expenditure on this institution should not be reduced in the same proportion, particularly when there prevails, as I have already shown, what may, without exaggeration, be described as extravagance de luxe What is it, after all, that I am asking for ? I do not ask this Honourable House to close this Institution I do not want that the necessities of this Hospital should not be supplied, I do not desire that it should be famished, or denied its legitimate requirements All that I ask of this Honourable House, is that it should insist that there shall be no waste or extravagance such as I have described I wish in all seriousness to ask every honourable member of this House, whether it is fair, whether it is just, whether it is reasonable, whether it is equitable, that, whilst there is a cut of 25 and 37½ per cent respectively in the J J and the Tejpal Hospitals meant for the poorest of the poor, there should be none in this Hospital for the rich, the ratio of expenditure of which per head per day is Rs 14-12-0 as against Rs 4-10-2 in the Parsi General Hospital, conducted on similar lines. I solemnly declare that it is the bounden duty of every honourable member of this House to see that such a state of affairs does not exist a day longer Our failure to do so would be a breach of trust on our part, and I am sure no honourable member of this House will be a party to such a discreditable procedure.

[Mr J B Petit]

Under these circumstances, Mr President, I think this Honourable House ought either to support this cut, or insist upon a searching enquiry being held into the management of this hospital, unless a strong case to the contrary is made out, in which event, I shall be glad to withdraw my amendment With these words, I beg to move the cut standing in my name

Question proposed

Sir REGINALD SPENCE On a point of order, Sir Can the Honourable the Minister tell us whether the figures quoted by the honourable mover of the cut are right or wrong before we proceed ? It is very difficult to speak without knowing whether the figures are correct or not The honourable the mover's whole point depends on whether the figures which he quoted are right or wrong

The Honourable the PRESIDENT That is not a point of order.

Sir REGINALD SPENCE . I want to know whether the Honourable Minister is going to speak first

The Honourable the PRESIDENT If the Honourable Minister gives the required information to the House, it would help them That is the request of the honourable member Sir Reginald Spence

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL It is not possible for me to satisfy the honourable gentleman unless I speak for about five minutes

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Yes

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL . In the first place, Sir, the honourable mover of the cut wanted to know why retrenchment had been made in the J J Hospital and the G T Hospital and why a corresponding retrenchment had not been effected in the St George's Hospital The explanation is very clear The reason why there is a greater retrenchment in the first two hospitals, namely, the J. J and G T Hospitals, is that a certain number of beds had to be closed down They were closed down in the first part of the last year, that is, the current financial year , and in the next year's budget those beds have not been provided for Consequently, there is this disparity

Rao Bahadur S N. ANGADI How many beds ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL One hundred and thirty beds If those beds were restored and provision made, there would have been no difference at all. I hope my honourable friend the mover of the cut is satisfied

Mr J. B PETIT Not at all [Interruption.]

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I do not like this cross-questioning The Honourable Minister may make his statement, He may take longer than five minutes. He has also the right of reply later on

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Sir, the point is this in the early part of the current year we had to make retrenchments and the Medical Department had also consented to make certain retrenchments, and it was decided that a certain number of beds should be closed down in the J J Hospital group and the G T Hospital group—those particularly which had been recently opened Therefore those beds were closed down It is an old story and there has been a lot of criticism on this controversy in papers also, and I do not think I need stress that point But a question might be asked why beds were not reduced in the St George's Hospital. Probably that would be the natural corollary My reply to that is unlike other hospitals in Bombay, the patients pay in St George's hospital for what they get, and that is a very important factor which my honourable friend seems to have completely ignored Therefore, there was no need to reduce the number of beds in that hospital, because Government would not gain anything by reducing any number of beds in that hospital

Now, the honourable member relies upon the figure of Rs 6,25,000 He has taken that figure from the annual report and I think I cannot do better than just read a few lines from the Surgeon General's letter with regard to the annual report.

"As regards the annual report, I have pointed out before that the figures in this report are compiled in accordance with a freak system of accounts ordered by the Government of India and which relate only to the calendar year I accept no responsibility for any of the figures as I have no method of checking them The accounts are made by the medical officers themselves"

I have, on a previous occasion also, emphasised this point, namely, that honourable members of this House will do well not to rely upon the figures published in that annual report, but that whenever they wanted to discuss any point appertaining to the items of the budget, they must rely upon the actual expenditure mentioned in the budget itself

Now, I can very soon prove why these figures are misleading No account is taken, when this figure of Rs 6,25,000 is quoted in the annual report, of the receipts in the St George's Hospital The gross cost is Rs 4,08,624 (and not Rs 6,25,000) and if you include expenditure borne by the Nursing Association from their own funds, then it will be Rs 4,68,000 Then deduct from this amount the receipts which amount to Rs 1,50,393 And therefore the net expenditure is Rs 2,58,000 If you divide this by 365, you get 707 5 Divided by 113 patients actually living in the hospital all the year round on an average, the average cost comes to not Rs 14 as stated by the honourable member, but it comes to Rs 6-2-0 Then again, the Surgeon General says that it is not proper to rely upon the actual number of patients occupying the beds but that we must always take into consideration, in calculating the cost, the number of beds provided in the hospital With regard to that it will be very relevant and very useful to read this part of his letter He says

"In the first instance, it should be borne clearly in mind that in comparing hospital costs the correct method is to compare them on the basis of cost per day per bed. Comparing them on the cost per patient per day simply panders the hospital beds as it is a perfectly simple matter and reduces the figures in that case to ridiculous levels by covering the whole floor space with patients In consequence a hospital frequently returns an average of in patients greatly in excess of the total bed accommodation which far from being any recommendation for the hospital shows that there is scrambling, etc"

[Sirdar Sir Rustom Jehangir Vakil]

Therefore, if you will take into consideration the number of beds provided, the average cost would work out at less than Rs 5-8-0 The cost at the J J. Hospital comes to Rs 4-6-0 and that at the G. T Hospital comes to Rs. 3-2-0, whereas the honourable member Mr Petit's own hospital cost comes to between Rs 5 and Rs 6 per bed———

Mr J B PETIT Rs 4-10-0.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL That at the St George's Hospital comes to Rs 5-8-0 Need I say anything more to satisfy this side of the House?

Dr M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North). Sir, it is gratifying that after nearly four or five years' fight in this House we have at last been able to get some figures from the Honourable Minister I drew attention to this question in, I think, 1928 for the first time when the honourable member Mr Turner was the Secretary, General Department, and his reply, as far as I remember, was that it is a fact that the cost of that hospital is much more than the cost of other hospitals, but it is also a fact that the cost of living among Europeans in this country is much more than the cost of living amongst Indians.

We have been trying to get these figures from various quarters. I maintain that we are perfectly justified in taking them from a book which is published over the signature of the Surgeon-General and under a resolution of Government signed by the Under Secretary to Government itself It is rather surprising that the Honourable Minister comes and says that he cannot take any responsibility for the figures which appear in this book. This is the book which I have criticised for four years This is the book which seriously tells us year after year of cases of abnormal labour treated as out-door patients! It certainly contains statements which are not accurate, but it is published over the signature of the Surgeon-General and Secretary to Government as an appendage to a Government Resolution We are therefore perforce compelled to take it as true

Look at the way they have kept accounts of St George's Hospital The report of civil hospitals says that the total expenditure is Rs 6,25,035, but look at the column of Miscellaneous Charges and you will find that Miscellaneous Charges alone come to a total of Rs 2,83,000 Rs 2,83,000 Miscellaneous Charges out of a total of Rs 6,25,035!! What they are nobody knows This is the way in which the hospital accounts are kept A representative of the Bombay Medical Union gave evidence before the Retrenchment Committee and, in doing so, pointed out that the King Edward Hospital Fund in London has initiated a certain system of keeping hospital accounts which it compels every hospital coming to it for a donation to keep If that system of accounts were introduced in the Bombay Presidency, the expenses of the various hospitals in this city could be easily compared, and then there would be no such great difference of opinion as regards the estimation of expenses as Rs 13 as quoted by my honourable friend Mr Petit and Rs 6-2-0 as quoted by the Honourable Minister. If, Sir, our figures are not accurate, we have relied on the Government's own figures Last time when I quoted these figures, the Honourable Minister pretended that they were old figures Another edition of this book has been published since then and the figures are still the same They were neither old then, nor are they old now The figures for this hospital as shown on page 219 of the White Book do not take account of the Government contribution to the Nursing Association of the St George's Hospital No account is taken of the charges for maintaining the buildings in repair and these two items in this case amount to nearly a lakh of rupees over and above the figures quoted on that particular page These figures have also to be taken into consideration The Government contributes about Rs 60,000 to Rs 70,000 towards the St George's Hospital Nursing Association The Honourable Minister has given figures which differ from those in the White Book and also from those in the Blue Book I do not know whether he has taken the contribution to the Nursing Association into consideration Government also contribute to the upkeep of the buildings, but the money for that grant goes into the P W D accounts and not in this budget All this must be taken into account if you want to arrive at correct figures

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Does the honourable member mean to say that in one case they are not taken into account and in the other they are taken into account, i e, in the case of the J J Hospital and the G T Hospital?

Dr M D GILDER What I suggest is that the figures given are not quite accurately given and that therefore the figures of Government hospitals cannot be fairly compared with statistics for other hospitals not under Government, hospitals like the King Edward Memorial Hospital or the Parsee General Hospital where nursing and repair of buildings are taken into account

Then the Honourable Minister spoke about retrenchment of beds There is really speaking no necessity to retrench in the St George's Hospital because they retrench themselves They have over 220 beds, four or five years ago, the average number of daily patients was somewhere about 150 In the last but one report they were 125, and in the last report they were 113, so that the number of occupied beds is retrenching itself and yet the expenditure is just the same, and the Honourable Minister is justifying the expenditure by the number of vacant beds in the hospital! He says, Sir, that in the Indian hospitals we keep several patients on the floor Does he mean that we do so merely to influence our statistics? They come there suffering from various diseases and in a state in which we cannot refuse them admission. They only increase our work, they increase the work of the staff, but they are in a condition in which it is absolutely impossible to refuse them admission without doing them great harm It is not, therefore, for reducing our figures of expenditure or for reducing our average cost to what the Surgeon-General calls ridiculously low figures that we do it, it is because we are forced to do it out of sheer humanity

[Dr. M D. Gilder]

Then he says no account is taken of the receipts in the figures which are given, but we cannot find them in the budget They are all jumbled up together and nowhere do we find mention of receipt of fees from St George's separately In 1926 the total receipts were Rs 90 thousand and odd, and even an experienced man like the Honourable Sir Rafiuddin Ahmad when on this side of the House took them to be from Indian hospitals

At St George's Hospital there is also a Nursing Home After all, a Nursing Home is a place where medical men can send their patients and attend on them It is a commercial proposition. Why should a commercial proposition be taken over by a public hospital? There is a grant in regard to which I have proposed a specific cut, which follows, of Rs 10,000 The grant to the Nursing Home is ten thousand rupees and odd and I have put that cut of Rs. 10,000 merely to get out information as to what is obtained from the Nursing Home, after taking into consideration the cost of rooms occupied, after taking into consideration the nursing services supplied and the medical services supplied and all the items on a purely business basis, Does that thing pay us? That is the question and it is a question of considerable importance, because I understand that they are extending the Nursing Home now to admit midwifery cases as the present gentleman in charge of that hospital is a midwifery specialist

The other day I drew attention to an item in the Finance Committee's report, namely, an item of Rs 5,700 for plugs for heating hot water bottles for 113 patients You find it in the Finance Committee's report, item No 27 or 28 That certainly gives us an idea of extravagance and that was probably one of the factors which prompted the honourable member in moving his cut Sir, if you supply them with Rs 5,700 for plugs for heating hot water bottles, how many thousand bottles can you heat on those plugs? May we then not conclude that other expenditure might be on the same basis? I trust that the Honourable Minister will supply us with corrected figures taking everything into consideration, and if that is not possible, he will, I trust, put in a committee of enquiry not only for the St George's Hospital, but perhaps for other hospitals also and put the whole system of hospital accounts on a sound basis

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM (Bombay Chamber of Commerce) : Sir, I regret I am entirely unprepared to meet the honourable member Mr Petit's figures or to speak on this subject, but I should just like to make one or two remarks from my own personal knowledge The speech of the honourable member, Dr Gilder, who spoke with a great deal of good humour, might have led the House to think that the St George's Hospital is a place where patients go and receive every luxury and extravagance Nothing could be further from the truth The majority of the 113 beds—I do not think I am at all exaggerating—are almost regularly occupied by Goanese Anybody connected with the St George's Hospital or whose friends go there for treatment must view the statements made by the honourable member Mr Petit with nothing else but amusement, because it is very well known that the hospital is most efficiently run, that there is certainly no luxury and the majority of the wards, as was pointed out by the Honourable Minister, are paying wards I am sure my honourable friends will agree with me when I say that we are the very first people to demand full value for our money and we are also the very last people to expect any preferential treatment which would provide us with luxurious hospital accommodation which other people cannot get in other hospitals If the object of this cut is to elicit information, I am in agreement with the underlying idea, but I must protest against the honourable member moving a cut for a specific sum which bears no relation to anything It is purely a guess Before he was allowed to move the cut, I understood that he gave an assurance that he intended to press it to a division I was astonished that he could adopt that attitude Nobody could possibly support a cut which was fixed not with a view to reducing any specific item of expenditure, but as the honourable member himself confessed, on rough and ready figures in order to make a reduction in the case of the St George's Hospital corresponding to the percentage reduction in the budget for the other two hospitals That will not satisfy this House I only make this point clear in case honourable members feel inclined to support the cut in view of what the honourable mover said

Now, the honourable member Dr Gilder made great play with this figure of Rs 6,27,000 which he said is the total expenditure on St George's Hospital I have got the figures before me from the White Book and those which the Honourable the Minister has given us The demand for St George's Hospital is Rs 2,86,000 voted and Rs 41,000 non-voted, which come to Rs 3,27,000 The honourable member Dr Gilder pointed out that the Government also made a contribution to the St George's Hospital Nursing Association and also a provision was made elsewhere in the budget for the upkeep of the building This is perfectly true and supposing that these figures make up one lakh of rupees, by adding Rs 3,27,000 to Rs 1,00,000 the answer is Rs 4,27,000 If the expenditure, as the honourable member Dr Gilder says, is Rs 6,27,000, where are the other two lakhs to come from? I cannot understand Therefore, it seems to me that the honourable member's figures cannot be correct

Then on the question of the Nursing Home, I am not in a position to say whether it is a commercial proposition But I am in a position, as one who on more than one occasion has had to meet the charges of the Nursing Home, to say that they are far from being light and my recollection is that they are in the neighbourhood of Rs 20 per day Therefore, it is not correct to suggest that the Nursing Home is an expense to the taxpayer

One other point the honourable member Dr Gilder made was in regard to the proposed extension to the Nursing Home, in order to accommodate midwifery cases also I am sure that the honourable member Dr Gilder will not grudge my community this additional accommodation being placed at their disposal, because there is nowhere else in the whole of Bombay where midwifery cases can go On all these points, I would again emphasise the fact that we, my friends and I sitting here, are the last people in any way to oppose the giving of information on the subject of St George's Hospital We believe that the actual figures of the hospital's expenditure will stand searching criticism, and when all due circumstances are taken into consideration, will compare very favourably with those of other Government hospitals But we do strongly protest against any figures being accepted as gospel by honourable members which are produced by the honourable mover of the cut, based on assumptions and guesses and which we believe will not really stand the searchlight of examination Therefore, Sir, if it is a question of Government giving any information, we have nothing whatever to say against it But if it is a question of opposing a cut, we should have every right to oppose and we should oppose very strongly, in spite of the extremely pleasant way in which the honourable mover put his case

The Honourable the PRESIDENT It appears that there are yet some honourable members who wish to speak Can the last speaker be taken to have said the last word on the subject on that side (European benches) ?

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM It all depends on how many speakers there are on the other side We are prepared to put up speaker for speaker

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The House is now adjourned to 2 o'clock to-morrow, Friday, the 4th March 1932

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—resumed

Question again proposed—

"That the provision under the head 'St. George's Hospital' be reduced by Rs. 80,000"

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE (Ahmednagar District) Mr. President, I am sorry that the honourable members representing the Bombay Chamber of Commerce and others are not in their places But lest my remarks may be misunderstood, it is necessary to state first and foremost that I stand firmly not for lowering the rights of anybody but for levelling up the rights of others that may be in need I think that this motion should be looked on from that point of view rather than on a narrower and much less a communal basis I have tried my best to look into the figures which no doubt are a maze and it is impossible to make either head or tail of it, in view of the fact that the figures published are incorrect However, another principle which I would like to enunciate is this All communities have an equal claim as far as possible, or at least must have, on the State funds Whatever else they may require, they must provide for this, if they can. I am basing the whole of my speech on these two points and as the Honourable Minister in charge, for whose opinion I have the highest respect, stated, I would proceed to level my criticism on the figures which he has suggested

It appears, Sir, from the White Bock—I take mostly the figures which are mentioned there—and after making a lot of calculations from the figures in my own way, I have arrived at the following result In the J J and Goculdas Tejpal Hospitals, we have 5½ times the number of beds that we have in the St George's Hospital, and the number of patients both in-door and out-door is about 13 times that of St George's Hospital. The figures are that the in-door and out-door patients in the St George's Hospital are 6,036 and in the combined hospitals we have 78,756 Then we find that as regards the personnel—I would rather like to give the figures separately—we have in the J J and Goculdas Tejpal Hospitals 9 officers and 251 establishment as against 7 officers and 108 establishment in the St. George's Hospital. According to the

White Book, the cost of the 9 officers in the combined hospitals is Rs 61,820 as against Rs 67,611 for the 7 officers of the St George's Hospital Then, the establishment in the combined hospitals costs Rs 1,02,038 as against Rs 55,707 in the St George's Hospital Then for contingencies, allowances, we have Rs 1,72 500 in the combined hospitals as against Rs 72,730 in the St George's Hospital For other supplies and services in the combined hospitals, Rs. 1,65,750 as against Rs 1,39,350 in the St George's Hospital The total amount which is spent on officers, establishment, allowances and other supplies and services in the combined hospital is Rs 5,21,000 and in the St George's Hospital Rs 3,26,981 Then the diet cost which is a sure index in the combined hospitals comes to Re 0-9-3 per head and as against this the cost of diet in the St George's Hospital comes to Rs 2-12-0, which works out about 5 times the cost of the diet in the combined hospitals On medicines we spend Rs 93,857 in the combined hospitals as against Rs 32,029 in the St George's Hospital The result is that per patient per day including the pay of officers, cost of establishment, allowances, supplies and other services the cost is about Rs 38 as against Rs. 2-2-0 in the combined hospitals That is the result which I find on the figures Assuming that these figures are correct, I have not been able to get at why there should be such a figure as Rs 1,31,350 for supplies and other services in the St George's Hospital as against Rs 1,65,750 in the combined hospitals I know they are found in the white book I omit the amount spent on the nursing staff, as I want to base my inferences on general reasoning In the case of the amount spent on nursing there are credits and debits to be made About Rs 2,67,000 is received and there seems to be Rs 50,000 paid out of it to the St George's Hospital These are the figures which I thought fit to place before the House

I have absolutely no quarrel about the cost of diet, which is Rs 2-12-0 in the St George's Hospital as against Re 0-9-3 in the combined hospitals As I said, I do really want a levelling up process rather than a lowering down process I think it is a proper charge and must be maintained Simply because a patient belonging to an advanced community has the misfortune to get into the hospital, it is no reason why his status should suffer and therefore I should think that it is a proper charge I have no quarrel with it I accept it Even if it is increased, I have no objection, but my complaint about it is that this charge as regards the patients in the combined hospitals also should be put up as high as possible, by the levelling up process But I must say that I have not been able to satisfy myself why there should be such a disproportion between the officers and establishment in the St George's Hospital and the establishment in the combined hospitals That figure is correct because it is spent For obvious reasons, I have thought it proper not to take into consideration the amounts that come by way of receipts, because then again the calculation will change I believe in the white book the amount from the figures I have taken is not taken into account on the receipt side but it is taken on the debit side. So, the result I have come to is rather so disproportionate that looking at it from a detached point of view, I can reasonably argue that there is a great deal of room for taking out some of the redundant establishment, if on an enquiry it is found to be so Now, again, I must make myself quite clear As we are going on figures alone, without having regard to the actual conditions, I should think that the Honourable Minister who enjoys our confidence would do well to appoint a committee forthwith to go into the question of this disproportionate expenditure in St George's Hospital as compared to the combined hospitals If he promises that, that will satisfy me completely, and I believe that it will satisfy a greater portion of the House, including the honourable the mover If by saying that there were many Goans in that hospital, the honourable member representing the Chamber of Commerce wanted to convey that there were very few Europeans——

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM indicated dissent

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE Then, I won't make that remark Even though he may have used the word he is reported to have used, what he meant was that the two communities between whom we are now making a comparison are so dissimilarly situated that it would not be proper to apply the same standards to them I accept his position I think the honourable member representing the Chamber of Commerce should himself sit on the committee with the Honourable Minister and the honourable member Dr Gilder It does appear to me that there is a good case for an inquiry An inquiry must be set up forthwith into this disproportionate expenditure The honourable member Dr Gilder's question as to why an amount of Rs 5,000 or Rs 6,000 is required for the supply of collapsible hot-water bottles has not yet been answered There are only 113 patients Even if a plug is intended to be by the bed-side of every patient, the cost, which works out to about Rs 50 per bed, appears to me to be rather enormous The Honourable Minister would certainly do well to see that this luxury—I believe the honourable member representing the Chamber of Commerce will admit it to be a luxury—is cut out The hospital was doing without it——

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM On a point of explanation, Sir I admit absolutely nothing of the kind I say however many enquiries you may hold, you will find that there is no luxury of any kind or any sort in St George's Hospital

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE Then, Sir, my position is that it is a luxury The hospital was going on without it for so many years without the slightest complaint Hot water bottles are being used all over the presidency I do not mean to say that it may not be more convenient I do not mean at all to argue that in certain circumstances it may not be even a necessity. But it is possible to meet that demand by arranging the beds that require that particular help Not in all cases, but in a few cases of an urgent nature that may be supplied I therefore think that that item at any rate cannot be justified by any arguments that may be advanced hereafter The one point which I would like to make is this My honourable friend representing the Chamber of Commerce stated that he had no objection to an inquiry——

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM I never said anything of the sort, Sir

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE He has objection to an inquiry also That makes it more suspicious He would not like a third party to look into it

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM Sir, I apologise for interrupting so frequently, but I am being misrepresented I am in favour of the fullest information being given to the honourable House in connection with this point It is not correct to say that I am not in favour of the fullest information being given There is nothing suspicious in the whole matter

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE For my part, I have no confidence, Sir, in departmental enquiries This House will not be satisfied with any jugglery of figures, figures put forward by any Member of Government, however exalted he may be This House must be satisfied on a point like this It is the duty of Government, a popular Minister, to satisfy us from our own point of view and not from his point of view Well, I know that they can justify certain matters by juggling with figures Unless we sit round the table and have the same opportunities of scrutinising the figures as the other side have, we have no means of exposing the fallacies involved in these figures

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I now note that heat is being introduced in the discussion

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE The heat is generated by friction—possibly by the plugs for hot water bottles I would like to avoid it I will try my level best to put it on a higher level If I am satisfied that this amount is necessary, whatever it may be, I will vote for it But unless I am satisfied, I would not certainly vote for it, I would on the other hand request the honourable mover to go in for a division [Interruption] I should think, Sir, my honourable friend was right in insisting that Rs 80,000 should be cut I should think, Sir, that not only Rs 80,000, but even more should be cut, if on examination it is found that that amount must be cut out We have cut out 142 beds, not 130 as the Honourable Minister said We have cut out 142 beds The honourable member Dr Gilder told us that patients were being put on bare earth because they could not be turned out Certainly, it is very pitiable indeed When these hospitals are supported by charities, when the municipality and charitably disposed persons are spending thousands and lakhs over them, it is a pity that the hospitals should be in such a position as not to be able to render help to the patients who go in and cannot be sent away I believe at least that condition will appeal to the honourable member representing the Chamber of Commerce Under these circumstances, I should think that there is plenty of room for retrenchment in supplies, which stands at Rs 1,31,350, and other expenditure I do not mean the superior officers we cannot touch

them But a cut of Rs 80,000 can be easily obtained on the basis I have mentioned That is what I have to say in support of this cut

Sir REGINALD SPENCE (Bombay City) Mr President, from the position I stand in, I was better able to hear the honourable mover of this cut than I was my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Chitale This was unfortunate I must apologise if I have not been able to follow all the figuring which the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale has given I am very glad to learn, however, that he spoke with the same high motives that I and the European members who sit with me believe actuated the mover of this motion, the honourable member representing the Bombay Millowners' Association (Mr. Jehangir Petit) I think we all welcome the statement which the Honourable Minister has made, because we all were very uncertain as to whether money was wasted on our hospital And when I learned from the honourable mover of this cut casually, in the course of a conversation, before we came up to the debate, that we in the European General Hospital were spending Rs 14-10-9 on diet, well, naturally I said, "You go ahead, and we will have a real inquiry into it," because that was awful As a general rule, a patient in the hospital does not eat very much, especially the man who is suffering from fever And even if when after he has recovered from enteric fever you ask him if he would like to have an egg and he says "I want a blooming hen that is what I want" and you gave him that hen, it would not come to Rs 14-10-9 a day. Well, that was why I was very glad indeed when the honourable member Mr Petit was going to move this cut But when he moved it, it came down to the question whether the figuring was right or not His figures do not seem to be quite accurate, the honourable member Dr Gilder's do not seem to be absolutely accurate, and I gather from the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale that the Honourable Minister's figures are not absolutely accurate Those of us who have made use of this hospital—I may say for myself that I probably spent more months in the European General Hospital than has any other European in Bombay and, therefore, I can speak as one who knows a great deal indeed of this hospital—are positive that there is nothing wrong with it, except the figuring that is given about it, and we want those figures put right The honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale seems to have misinterpreted my honourable friend who sits in front (Mr G L Winterbotham) He, like I, is perfectly willing that there should be a full enquiry into the figures But we do not consider that it is necessary that there should be a committee of the whole House to go into those figures Perhaps I did not hear the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale correctly, but I think he stated that if there was any enquiry by Government, Government would merely juggle with figures I am sorry that the honourable Rao Saheb has such a poor opinion of Government——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT By the by, he is a Rao Bahadur [Laughter]

Sir REGINALD SPENCE I beg his pardon, Sir I assure the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale that we will take jolly good care that Government do not juggle with figures where we are concerned And we have sufficient faith in the front bench, and the second bench and the third bench to believe that they will be able to satisfy this House when we ask that figures of expenditure on hospitals be put up in such a way that we can understand them As far as I can make out, the figures are presented in such a way that we have figures for hospitals as though all deal with one class of patients, whereas in St George's Hospital the patients are divided into three classes—nursing-home patients, patients in paying wards and patients in free wards, and I do not think Government realise that it is not possible for us from such figures to get a satisfactory explanation of the charges that are put before us

When I first went into hospital, Sir, many years ago, I was in one of the public wards paying Rs 4 per day The second time I had the good fortune to be there for 5 months in a private ward and I paid Rs 10 per day An honourable member of this House who was in that hospital last year in the same public ward that I was, paid Rs 8 a day He paid Rs 50 for his operations and Rs 20 to the gentleman who administers the nasty smelling stuff called chloroform I think when you pay on these lines, you naturally get a little more and you naturally give a little more than if you were in an absolutely free hospital, and yet I would ask the honourable member to remember this, that the man or woman who goes to St George's Hospital and goes to the free ward gets the same attention, the same magnificent service in surgery, the same attendance, and the same nursing, which the man who pays does That is the great thing about hospitals, that although there may be a difference in what you pay, there is no difference between the care that you get from the magnificent doctors and nurses

We should reasonably expect the hospitals to give the fullest value for our money We, members of this House, who vote money to Government hospitals, want to see that that money is well applied The St George's Hospital, I have said, is divided into three parts One of them is the nursing home If you will refer to the Blue Book, you will see on the receipt side that this nursing home is already bringing in money to Government from the extended use made of it for the maternity home Further, as regards the nursing home, I should imagine that the patient in it was one that you might rightly call a "paying" patient He certainly is not one of those patients of whom the doctor would say, "The more of them we have, the more it costs the hospital"

I have already spoken about the man in the ward who pays and the man in the free ward You certainly cannot compare a hospital which comprises these three classes of patients with one which only has one class I do trust that the honourable mover will consider that he has achieved his purpose He has helped the European community by giving them the chance to prove to every one that the European General Hospital is not a source of waste of money I am certain that there is no one in this House who grudges the European a good hospital The European certainly does not grudge others a good hospital, and we Europeans pay

most willingly to the hospitals of Bombay for the nursing and care of our employees and of those who are not our employees At the present moment there are a number of people going round Bombay creating an interest and drawing money from members of the European community for what they call an "Advertisement Ball" in aid of the hospitals of this great city And I think that every one will admit that the European has given of his best—given money, given attention and care—to the hospitals of Bombay I am absolutely certain that all that this House wants is to see that Government money is not wasted And we Europeans pay half the cost of the Nursing Association, that is, of the nursing that goes on in the hospitals This Nursing Association—I think the honourable member Dr Gilder will admit—has proved of very great benefit to the medical service in Bombay. We pay for our hospitals, we expect Government to give us a little help We want that help to be continued, and continued with the free will of the House—not in a niggardly spirit, but in the high spirit, which, I am sure, has influenced the honourable mover to table this cut, namely, that he does not want to see the European Hospital having money wasted on it any more than we should like to see money wasted on any other hospital

Dr M D GILDER On a point of information Could the honourable member say whether those Rs 50 that were paid for the operation and Rs 20 that were paid for the anæsthetic were credited to Government either partly or wholly or credited to the doctors?

Sir REGINALD SPENCE I cannot say The honourable member who paid the fees may be able to enlighten you

Dr M. K DIXIT (Surat District) Sir, it is a pity that the Honourable Minister has made a certain distinction in the percentage of retrenchment in the cost of different hospitals It is a greater pity that my honourable friend Mr Petit took an opportunity to draw the attention of the House to this particular point.

Various points have been raised and side issues have been raised, but when we look to the White Book, the fact does remain that when Government funds are at an ebb retrenchment has got to be effected But that retrenchment has been effected not in proportion but absolutely out of proportion to the expenditure that one may call an invidious distinction in the retrenchment percentage We are told by our honourable friend Mr Petit that the retrenchment has affected the J J Hospital to the extent of 25 per cent, the G T Hospital to the extent of 37 per cent and the European General Hospital to the extent of 1½ per cent only A medical man could never find fault with any amount of money spent on the alleviation of human suffering Far from that I would, if funds permit, allow any amount of money to be spent for the alleviation of human suffering What we are concerned with here is whether any distinction is made in the amount that is spent on patients belonging to different classes We have been told that the patients admitted to the nursing home (my friend Mr Winterbotham told us) have got to pay Rs. 20 per day I do not think that anybody who takes advantage of the nursing home would grudge to pay that amount

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM They do not

Dr M K DIXIT They should not, and they do not, I am very glad to know They get full value for the money that they spend A European in this country can afford to spend any amount of money for his illness in a hospital He may spend Rs 20 or Rs 30 or Rs 50 But what we are concerned with here is that the grants made to the various hospitals from provincial revenues should be in proportion to the expenditure in different hospitals They should not be out of proportion anywhere That is my only contention I am glad that the honourable member does not favour preferential treatment in this country That is also a very good point to note, that he does not ask for any preferential treatment But the misfortune is that Government is giving a sort of preferential treatment to the European General Hospital as far as retrenchment is concerned That is my contention The Honourable Minister gave various reasons for the very small percentage of retrenchment He submitted that the number of beds in the J J and G T Hospitals had been reduced and therefore the percentage in those two hospitals seemed very great, that is, 25 per cent in the J J Hospital and 37 per cent in the G T Hospital But I find from the records of the European General Hospital that there are about 220 to 230 beds in all and that all those beds are not occupied Only 50 per cent are occupied The figures from the official records show that in 1925, 147 7 beds were occupied and the remaining were empty In 1930, 110 beds were occupied and the remaining were empty I do not know whether the European General Hospital is getting unpopular or whether illness in that particular community has gone down to such a low level that so many beds provided in the St George's Hospital are unoccupied If it is the latter, I should certainly be glad to congratulate that community on the splendid health that they are maintaining in their community If it is the former, that is, if the hospital is getting unpopular, I should certainly be very sorry

The Honourable Minister told us yesterday that the cost of the hospital has to be calculated only on the basis of the number of beds I am afraid I cannot agree with him there We should only count the cost per bed which is occupied and which is not empty, for the simple reason that when a comparison is made, the cost comes under two heads One is about patient's treatment and another about his diet Of course, the treatment part remains the same, because if there is one surgeon or physician attending the hospital, he may look to all the beds which are occupied, he will not look to the beds which are not occupied because there are no patients All the same, medical officers have got to be paid, whether they attend to 50 patients or whether they attend to 10 But regarding the diet, I think it will make a very great difference, because no diet is to be given to patients who do not exist, and therefore that method of calculation is rather faulty

[Dr M K DIXIT]

Then there is one point which I should like to bring to the notice of the House, that this hospital, though it is called the European General Hospital, does not restrict the admission of patients to Europeans only In the year 1928 my honourable friend Dr Gilder drew the attention of the House to that fact I will just quote a few lines from his speech He said

"We find there not only Europeans, we find there Anglo Indians, we find there Indian Christians, we find there Arabs, we find there Armenians, we find there Japanese and we find there Chinese, and if so much money is spent on these people I do not see why the Honourable Minister should not spend a similar amount of money on other helpless people"

Now, this fact was brought to the notice of Government four years ago, and in that very year the honourable member Mr. Turner found out that that was the case I will just quote a few lines from his speech He said

"I admit that I was surprised to hear that Japanese and Chinese patients are found there I am, however, given to understand that in the non-paying wards any person who goes more or less in European dress and follows European manners is admitted"

So, the high cost per patient in the European General Hospital is to be paid from the Provincial revenues and amongst the patients that are treated there are people belonging to nationalities other than European, who live almost in Indian style I do not see why a large amount of money should be spent on Arab, or Armenian, or Japanese or Chinese patients The expenditure must be reduced there

There is just one point about the plugs for hot air pads My honourable friend Dr Gilder referred to this point I find that these are electric plugs for heating pads An amount of Rs 5,000 and a little more has been spent this year, this is non-recurring expenditure But what about the recurring expenditure which will be incurred on these Rs 5,000 worth of electric plugs when they are put into operation? There will be so much of electrical energy spent Then the hot air pads also will require repairing and replacing now and then, and so a small amount of Rs 5,000 spent after these electric plugs, which is a non-recurring expense, will entail annually a further recurring expense of several thousands This point also I want to bring to the notice of the House

Sir, with regard to the cost of maintenance of this hospital and with regard to the distinction made in the retrenchment percentage in the case of this particular hospital, the honourable mover of the cut has suggested some sort of enquiry, and that enquiry is being supported by all honourable members who have spoken here I would go the length of suggesting that it must not necessarily be a non-official enquiry, but if the Honourable Minister undertakes, with the help of some non-official members, to institute an enquiry, I think the House will be satisfied and see that proper justice is done to all the sections of suffering humanity in the different hospitals in this city

MR J B PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association) Mr President, I do not think it is necessary for me to make a lengthy reply, for my task

has been very considerably lightened by the fact that a majority of the speakers have supported my proposal, whilst the honourable members who have spoken against it, have, if I may say so without meaning any offence to any one, absolutely burked the issue and not advanced a single argument worth the name, against the case that I have made out I shall show directly, Sir, how it is that this has happened

I based my cut on two principal grounds —first, that out of the three big Government Hospitals in the city of Bombay, whilst cuts to the extent of 25 and 37½ per cent, respectively, have been made in two of them, only a tiny cut of 1¾ per cent has been made in the third one, viz, the European General Hospital, which fact made out a clear case for a further cut to the extent of the deficiency, and, secondly, that out of the several Government Hospitals in Bombay, which are all equally wasteful, the European General Hospital is the most extravagant, with a ratio of expenditure per head per day of Rs 14-12-0 as against Rs 4-10-2 at the Parsi General Hospital, run on similar lines, which circumstance, not only accentuated the necessity of a cut, but made it absolutely urgent

Now, let us pause for a moment and examine the explanation of my honourable friend, the Minister in charge of the department, who has asked the House not to accept this cut He does not deny that the huge cuts mentioned by me, were made in the J J and Tejpal Hospitals respectively, when only a tiny cut of 1¾ per cent has been made in the European General Hospital But, he adds, by way of justification, that this disproportionate retrenchment was effected in the J J and Tejpal Hospitals, because a large number of beds in them were cut down in the first part of the year, while no such reduction was made in the European General Hospital When questioned why the European General Hospital was not similarly treated and why no retrenchment was made there, the answer was that, that was so because at that Hospital the patients paid for what they got I want the honourable members of this House to calmly consider this reply and judge for themselves what it amounts to So far as I am concerned, I frankly confess that it is so amazing that I find it impossible to speak about it with moderation and restraint I hope the Honourable Minister will pardon me for saying that what he considers to be a good answer, is no answer at all, and that it is at best a most unsatisfactory and lame excuse for an utterly indefensible state of affairs His reply gives no explanation at all for the marked disparity to which I have drawn pointed attention It is really begging the question and confusing the main issue In order to understand more correctly the point I am trying to make, it is perhaps necessary to reiterate the gravamen of my charge I enquired during the course of my opening speech, why it was that a huge retrenchment amounting to 25 and 37½ per cent was made in the J J and G T Hospitals, when no retrenchment, worth the name, was made in the European General Hospital The reply is that this has happened because a number of beds were cut down in the first two and no beds were cut down in the European General Hospital But that is precisely my enquiry Why was such a large number of beds cut down in these two hospitals for the poor, and none in the European General Hospital? Why was retrenchment made in these two hospitals to such a large extent and practically none in the third one? This is exactly my complaint, and this is mainly the ground on which I have based my cut. To tell this House seriously in reply, that this has happened merely because a large number of beds have been reduced in the J J and G T Hospitals, and no reduction was made in the European General Hospital, is practically repeating my own question in another form It is side-tracking the whole argument and burking the logical conclusion of it To seriously advance such an explanation as a reply to my question, is to offer a wanton insult to the intelligence and understanding of this House, and to expect it to be satisfied with it, is to add insult to injury I am astonished that such an answer should ever have been seriously given by a responsible Minister of the State, and still more astonished that he should have expected the House not to see through it The perfect non-chalance with which it was given, only accentuates the enormity of the offence This House is entitled to know why this fantastic reduction was made in the two hospitals for the poor and none in the European General Hospital We all know the extent and effect of the reductions made in these two hospitals, we all know that poor patients have had to be refused admittance, that their food supplies and medical treatment have had to be substantially curtailed and that even some of their barest necessities have had to be radically reduced, and also that a small fee has had to be imposed on all out-door patients If all these steps have been rendered necessary in consequence of the very heavy retrenchment made in these two hospitals, why was no such retrenchment made in the European General Hospital, which is a flourishing institution, and where, I contend, prodigality rules in excelsis, which I shall prove directly I submit, Sir, that the Honourable Minister has not given a satisfactory reply to this point He has merely repeated the question in another form, and has evaded the main issue This House accordingly demands a proper and satisfactory explanation of this preferential treatment to the European General Hospital.

The second ground on which I based my cut, was that, out of all the Government Hospitals, the European General Hospital was the costliest and the most extravagant As I have already pointed out from the report of the Committee appointed by the Bombay Medical Union, all the Government Hospitals are top-heavy and lavish in their expenditure, and that out of all these the European General Hospital is the greatest sinner Among others, it was chiefly for this reason that I maintained that a substantial cut in this Hospital was immediately called for I further supported this demand by showing that the ratio of expenditure per head per day in the European General Hospital came to Rs 14-12-0, as against Rs 4-10-2 at the Parsi General Hospital, which is being run on almost similar lines. What is the Honourable the Minister's answer to this point? First of all, he questioned the accuracy of my figures and enquired where I had got them from. When I told him that I had obtained them from the Government publication for the year 1929, entitled "Civil Hospitals and Dispensaries in the Bombay Presidency", and quoted chapter and verse in support of my argument, he doubted if I had correctly understood them. In reply, I naturally referred him to the details under the different heads of expenditure mentioned in the report referred to, giving a total of Rs 6,72,389, which, when divided by the total number of treatment days in that year, viz, 45,625, gave the average of Rs 14-12-0 per patient per day When I gave him this figure and showed him how I had deduced it, he said that I had no business to refer to that publication, that it was not authentic, that the Surgeon-General took no responsibility for it, and that it related to only one calendar year He advanced other arguments of a similar character I confess that I fail to see either the force or the justice of these remarks My figures, of course, all relate to one calendar year only, viz 1929. If a comparison is to be adequate and convincing, we must have the figures for one calendar year only, and not for parts of years or for groups of more than one year This is precisely what I have done I submit therefore that this argument is beside the point It is only a red herring across the trail, and perhaps meant to confuse the main issue Then, as to the accuracy of the figures which he has challenged, what does his argument amount to? In substance, he said, "You must refer only to the White Book, for the White Book alone gives you the correct figures" But, in his own answer, he gave the total as Rs 4,27,000 which figure included several items in the publication to which I have referred, but which do not appear in the White Book In other words, it means that he accepted and repudiated the accuracy of the different publications of the Government, just as it suited his purpose for the moment With all due deference to the Honourable Minister, I would like to inquire, Sir, by what warrant and on what principle he did this, and how members of this honourable House are to know to what extent they are to rely on the White Book and to what extent on the other publication from which I have quoted my figures, if they were to be capriciously told at the sweet will of a Minister, to suit the exigencies of the moment, that one Government publication was more reliable than another I submit, therefore, Sir, that there is nothing in this point also, and that this House is entitled to put its reliance on the official figures of the Government of Bombay as contained in any of their publications, the contrary opinion of individual Ministers notwithstanding I repeat, with all the emphasis that I can command, that the total of Rs 6,72,389 if divided by the total number of treatment days, does give the figure of Rs 14-12-0 per head per day. I contend that this figure is correct and has been properly arrived at I challenge contradiction of this indisputable fact

I should like at the same time to ask the Honourable Minister why this publication is at all being issued year after year, if, as he says, it is not authentic and cannot be relied upon I should also like to be informed what the point is in showing therein the different items of expenditure in a tabulated form and sending the same to the members of this honourable House and to the public, if at a given moment, you declare and shout at the top of your voice that these tables are unreliable, and can be depended upon to a certain extent only As it is, the Honourable Minister has not only relied upon the figures I quoted from the White Book, but has also himself partly used some of them from the publication from which I drew mine It is a veritable puzzle to me, Sir, to find out the exact extent to which he wants honourable members of this House to rely on those figures and generally on the figures contained in other Government publications I shall leave this matter at that

'Another argument he advanced, was that, even if the ratio of expenditure per head per day was higher than what he himself had stated, it could only be ascertained by taking into account the fees received from the paying patients and all other revenue of the hospital, such as donations, income from endowments, and so forth, and further, that if all these items were deducted from the figure of the cost, the ratio of expenditure would be proportionately reduced Having said all this for my benefit and that of the House, he pontifically laid down in solemn tones that that was the only proper and correct way of finding out the ratio of expenditure per head per day, and that if his method had been followed, as it should have been, the cost per head per day would not have been Rs 14-12-0 that I mentioned, but some figure in the vicinity of Rs 6-6-0 I confess, Sir, that when I heard this remark of the Honourable the Minister, it took my breath away I assure you, Sir, that if I had not heard the remark myself, I would never have believed that a responsible Minister of the Government of Bombay could ever have permitted himself to make such an outrageous and extraordinary statement Does the Honourable the Minister seriously mean to tell this House that in determining the ratio of expenditure of an organisation—be it a hospital, a school or a business concern—we should take into account not only the expenses but also the receipts of the concern ? I hope he will pardon me for saying that I have never heard such an argument seriously advanced before by an Honourable Minister of the Government I shall give a concrete instance to demonstrate the utter absurdity of the reply For that purpose, I shall take the report of another institution, which I happen to have before me for the moment It is the report of the Parsi General Hospital for the year 1930 We have shown therein the total expenditure for the year as being Rs 1,31,576, exclusive of depreciation. We have shown there our total receipts from fees, donations, interest on endowments, and other sources, as Rs 89,715 When all these are deducted from the total expenditure, we have shown a total net loss of Rs 41,861, without allowing for depreciation As I have said before, our total expenditure per head per day in this Hospital, comes to Rs. 4-10-2 But if I ascertained it on the basis of the net loss of Rs 41,861 shown therein, after setting off all the income against the cost, the average would come down to a little less than Rs 1-8-0 per head per day I put it to the Honourable Minister himself if I would be right and justified in mentioning my ratio of expenditure for that hospital as Rs. 1-8-0

instead of the real figure of Rs 4-10-2 If I said anything like that, it would be an utterly absurd statement for me to make So is the statement of my honourable friend the Minister! I do hope, therefore, for his own sake, that he will not make such an amazing statement again I am certain that he will himself realise in his cooler moments that the method which he has laid down and which he wants us to follow, is unthinkable and such as no businessman in the world will ever be prepared to endorse I am surprised, I am dazed, that the Honourable Minister, who is himself a shrewd businessman, should have seriously advanced such an amazing and unheard of argument I am sure that the Honourable Minister on further reflection will himself admit that, having regard to the reasons that I have advanced, and the detailed figures that I have produced from an authoritative publication of his own department, the high ratio of expenditure per head in the European General Hospital cannot either be denied or refuted There is one more argument which he advanced in the course of his speech, which is still more remarkable, and which, for sheer originality, takes the cake He said that in deducing the cost of expenditure per head per day in a given hospital, regard must be had, not to the number of patients treated, but to the total number of beds provided therein Pushed to its logical conclusion, this argument means that you must divide the total amount of expenditure incurred in a given year in a hospital, not between the human beings that you treat there, but also between the beds, the chairs and the tables, in order, forsooth, that the ratio of expenditure per head per day may be forced down to a conveniently reasonable level! Unless I have completely misunderstood him, this is exactly what he said I am astonished that such an argument should have been seriously advanced to this House and that it should have been expected to accept it as a convincing proof of his contention that this hospital was not extravagant

Coming to the other speakers, so far as my honourable friend, the member for the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, is concerned, he declared that my figures were useless and that no reliance should be placed upon them I think I have already informed this House where I got them from, and why they should be taken as correct I maintain and repeat that they are absolutely accurate and authentic I rely upon the publications of the Government themselves for this conclusion I challenge a contradiction of these figures This House will insist upon these figures being relied upon by them, unless they are officially told by the Honourable Minister that the House and the public have been bamboozled by the publication of these reports from which I have obtained these figures Unless such an authoritative statement by the Honourable Minister is made, we insist upon relying on them, and no honourable member of this House, however eminent, has a right to cast aspersions of this character upon the bona fides or sincerity of the Government, even with the implied concurrence of the Honourable Minister in charge Another argument advanced by the honourable member for the Chamber, was that a large part of the European General

[Mr J B Petit]

Hospital was used by poor Goans, Anglo-Indians, Japanese and others, and that therefore this hospital was very largely used as a hospital for the poor I am afraid that this argument accentuates the point which I was trying to make, rather than belittle it If anything, this fact shows that the expenditure per head per day must be divided, not only between the rich patients who pay, but also among the poor patients, who, it would be quite fair to assume, cannot possibly expect to get the same amenities that are being given to those who pay

SIR REGINALD SPENCE I may assure the honourable member that they do

Mr J B PETIT So far as the diet, treatment and attendance are concerned, it is possible that they are receiving the same attention. That is so in every hospital in this town The same is the case in my own hospital The European General Hospital is not the only one that acts in this manner But, so far as the special comforts and luxuries are concerned, the poor patients could not possibly be receiving them, at any rate to the same extent as the rich and paying patients

SIR REGINALD SPENCE He will find that they are receiving the same treatment

Mr J B PETIT I am quite sure that my honourable friend has not exactly followed what I said Take for instance the question of accommodation in separate rooms The poor patients cannot possibly be accommodated in a separate room each I do not believe that the poor and the free patients are being given a separate room each I am sure that only the rich and paying patients are supplied separate rooms on payment of a certain fee per room When that is done, they automatically use special lighting arrangements, special furniture, special accommodation and other special facilities and comforts This must necessarily put up the average ratio of expenditure This can be done with greater ease and facility, when a large number of patients of this hospital are poor patients, like the Goans, Anglo-Indians, Chinese, Japanese and others, as mentioned by my honourable friend the member for the Bombay Chamber of Commerce This is what I meant when I said that the poor patients could not possibly be receiving the same treatment

The Honourable Mr W F HUDSON: The honourable member is suggesting that each paying patient is provided with a separate room. It is not so Even patients who pay Rs 8 and Rs 9 are accommodated in wards containing 10 or 12 beds

Mr J B PETIT. I have neither said nor suggested anything of the kind

The Honourable Mr W F HUDSON I understood the honourable member to say that the distinction was that the paying patients had separate rooms That was his main distinction, but it is not actually the fact

Mr J B PETIT I never said that all or even most of the paying patients got separate rooms [Honourable Members No, no]

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The honourable member's statement seems to be contradicted.

Mr J B PETIT I do not think that my honourable friends have understood me quite accurately In every hospital, there are separate rooms, which are placed at the disposal of rich patients, paying special fees I take it that in the European General Hospital also, there are such separate rooms Whenever they are occupied by patients, I believe that they pay for them, Rs 10, Rs 8 or Rs 5 per room as the case may be, according to a schedule of fees, prescribed for them It is very rarely, if ever, that a poor patient is accommodated in a separate room What I want to point out is that, as a rule, whenever these rooms are occupied, they are occupied by people who are able to pay special fees I do not say that all paying patients occupy separate rooms, but I do maintain that in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred, it is the rich patients capable of paying special fees, that are able to occupy separate rooms It is therefore that I contend that the ratio of expenditure being larger in the case of the paying patients occupying special rooms and enjoying special comforts, the poorer patients like the Goans and others, help to lower the ratio of expenditure per head per day and thus indirectly enable a heavier expenditure to be incurred with impunity on the richer patients To say that a large part of the patients are poor Goans and Anglo-Indians, is therefore tantamount to supporting my argument rather than diminishing its effects

Coming to my honourable friend, the member for the European community (Sir Reginald Spence), I think he said that the European General was the one hospital in which the same diet and same treatment were given to the rich and the poor alike I take his word for it. But I may inform him that this is so in every hospital and it is right that it should be so You cannot give medical treatment only in proportion to the money that you get The present practice is quite fair, if for no other reason, at least on the ground of humanity It is only when people of a particular class ask for special comforts, that they are charged special fees for the same, and I contend that these fees tend to raise the average for the poorer classes and reduce the average for the higher classes, just as much as the treatment and food supplied to the poorer patients produce the opposite effect

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM Because they pay for it

Mr J B PETIT I do not deny that for one moment But the fact remains that the poorer patients pay less than the rich or nothing at all, and get proportionately less extra comforts in return

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM If you pay Rs 5, are you entitled to get ten rupees' value, or are you entitled to have only four rupees' value ?

Mr J B. PETIT The point that I am trying to make is that when people pay Rs 10 they get not only ten rupees' value in return but something more, rather a good deal more How this happens, I have already explained It is no good trying to evade this point I have been in charge of a big public hospital for the last twenty years, and I know exactly what I am talking about

Then, Sir, we were told by our honourable friend the member for the European community (Sir Reginald Spence) that the figure of Rs 4-10-2 in connection with the Parsi General Hospital that I quoted, represented only the cost of the diet

Sir REGINALD SPENCE I said that I believed you to say that it related to expenditure on diet

Mr J B PETIT That is not so, I never said anything of the kind. I am quite sure that my honourable friend has made a mistake and misunderstood me The figure of Rs 4-10-2 that I quoted, was for the entire ratio of expenditure per patient per day As to the appointment of a committee, I never suggested a committee of the whole House, as he says Even there, I am afraid he has misunderstood me I said during the course of my remarks that if the Minister in charge was willing to appoint a committee to institute a searching enquiry into the affairs of the European General Hospital,—for which I submit I have made out a case,— I would be quite willing to withdraw my proposal for a cut. But I wish to make it quite clear, Sir, that if the findings of the committee are to carry conviction with this House and command the confidence of the public, it must contain a majority of Indian members competent to pronounce an opinion on this question I have not a word to say against Government officials, but the fact remains that a committee composed mainly of them, even if they happen to come to certain conclusions in a thoroughly honest and efficient manner, will not command the confidence of this House and of the public to the same extent as a committee composed in the way I have suggested.

For all these reasons, Sir, I think that this honourable House should accept my proposal and enforce the cut that I have suggested, unless the Honourable Minister in charge, in his reply, promises a searching enquiry by a committee, composed as I have suggested, not only to look into the affairs and the management of the Hospital in question, but also to suggest ways and means of effecting substantial retrenchments therein in every possible direction I repeat what I said in my opening remarks yesterday, that nothing is farther from my mind than the introduction of communal considerations into this question All that I want this honourable House to do, is to make sure that the money that is being voted away by the members year after year, is being properly used, and that the community for whose benefit it is intended, gets the utmost possible return for it I am convinced that there is a lot of extravagance in this Institution, which it is possible to detect and remove, without reducing in the slightest degree, the comforts which our friends are now getting, and which nobody desires to deny them When, Sir, severe and ruthless cuts have been made in the other two general Hospitals in the town, when the poorest of the poor are being turned out of them, and refused even ordinary treatment and food, is it or is it not right for a member of this House, if he is convinced that there is extravagance in this Hospital, to draw the attention of this House to it and to ask for a cut, or, failing that, at least an enquiry? And if I have done that, I fail to see the object or the purpose of the heat that was unfortunately imported, both yesterday and today, into the discussion of this question With these words, I commend this motion to the careful and impartial judgment of this honourable House, in the confident hope that it will be carried, if not unanimously, at least by an overwhelming majority, thus showing its determination to rise to a full sense of its responsibility and to insist upon seeing that the large sums of money that are being voted away year by year from provincial funds, are being properly, wisely economically and judiciously applied

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Sir, it is extremely difficult for me to reconcile the statement made by the honourable mover when asking me whether I would agree to his being allowed by the Honourable the President to move his cut, with his speech of today The statement to which I am referring is a statement he made the day before yesterday, in which he said that he wanted to move this cut in order to get some information as regards the expenditure incurred on St George's Hospital, as he was not in a position to compare the cost with other hospitals and convince himself that the expenditure on all those hospitals was equitable I thought that he was a seeker after certain information But today I find that he refuses to accept any statement from Government, any statement from any member from this side of the House, and, I may be excused for saying, Sir, I thought that he was in a state of excitement

Mr J B PETIT This is absolutely incorrect

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL As the honourable House will have by now seen, the honourable mover has entirely failed to make out a case In spite of the very telling arguments which I made yesterday, the honourable mover persists in repeating the same two complaints over and over again And what are his grievances? He is harping on only two things One is ruthless retrenchment in other Government hospitals, except St George's Hospital That is one thing It was explained yesterday as to why retrenchment in the other two hospitals had been resorted to The second point is the question of cost. He seems to maintain even today, after the explanation tendered yesterday, that the cost per bed per day at St George's hospital is Rs 14 as against Rs 4-10-0 on his own hospital and under Rs 4 on the other two hospitals——

Mr J B PETIT I mentioned Rs 4-10-2 as the average for my hospital

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I beg your pardon Now, Sir, what is the ruthless retrenchment in the case of J J Hospital and G T Hospital? Certain number of beds were closed down Government were not at all willing even to do that, but the Medical Department had to give their quota of retrenchment, and the most equitable thing that we could think of was to reduce the number of beds in the extended hospitals Balaram Pavilion had just a few beds and a separate staff had to be maintained We could easily cut out those beds and save the staff We cannot do that in a hospital which is a running hospital with a number of beds in various wards We cannot effect any saving in expenditure if we do that In St George's Hospital we did not reduce any number of beds, because that would not have made any difference whatever, for two reasons In the first place, the staff could not have been reduced, and, in the second place, most of the patients are paying patients, and the hospital would have lost on the other hand, were any reduction in the number of beds made

Now, Sir, with regard to that much-talked of annual report The figures in the Hospitals Report, as I have said, are for the calendar year and those that I have quoted are for the financial year, and, therefore, some sort of disparity is bound to exist, and I do not think that could be disputed even for a moment But then, after all, I hope I shall be able to convince this House that there is no disparity The figures in the Hospitals Report are all gross figures which include money spent from private contributions and payments The budget figures are net figures and being for the budget year cannot exactly correspond I can quite understand that this account-keeping and statistics are very very dreary subjects, but I am afraid I must dwell upon these figures, because I cannot otherwise convince the House that the cost per day at St George's Hospital is not Rs 14, but it is Rs 5-10-0 The Hospitals Report has got the figure of Rs 6,25,000, the budget figure is Rs 3,33,000, and the difference is Rs 2,92,000 The difference consists of—the cost of new buildings and repairs, Rs 19,000, nursing grants, Rs 64,000, and private contributions and payments, Rs 2,14,000, total, Rs 2,97,000 The difference between the two comes to only Rs 5,000, which is negligible Now, the question may be asked whether the same method of calculation could be applied to the other hospitals I find, Sir, that the same is the case with all the hospitals In the case of J J Hospital, if you refer to the Hospitals Report, the expenditure is Rs 7,37,000 and the budget figure is Rs 4,30,000 The difference is Rs 3,07,000 and that is made up of—buildings and repairs, Rs 1,62,000, Government nursing grant, Rs 87,000, and contributions, Rs 87,000; total, Rs 3,36,000 The difference between the two is Rs 29,000 Now, with regard to Gokuldas Tejpal Hospital, which has been also quoted by the honourable mover, the Hospitals Report has the figure of Rs 3,06,000, the budget figure is Rs. 2,00,000, the difference is Rs. 1,06,000 And the difference is made up of—buildings and repairs, Rs 14,000, Government nursing grant, Rs 60,000, and contributions, Rs 60,000. Thus, Sir, you will see that no preferential treatment is given to any particular Government hospital Yesterday, Sir, I made it very clear that the total cost per bed comes to Rs 6-2-0 and not Rs 14, because we must deduct the receipts I cannot understand my friend the honourable mover when he says that the receipts should not be taken into consideration I can quite understand that he is a businessman of great eminence, but I doubt very much whether all businessmen make their calculations by the method which he has chosen to adopt Every time the receipts must be taken into consideration and the difference taken as the actual expenditure What we are concerned with here is how much does the Government spend, not how much does a hospital cost, because we are dealing here with the budget We are here sanctioning a particular amount and, therefore, Sir, I submit that it is not proper to say that the receipts should not be taken into consideration As I said yesterday, I fail to see why this report on hospitals is allowed to be issued every year in this particular form, because it does not tally with the budget I explained yesterday that this system of accounts has been ordered by the Government of India and it has to be adopted by all the provinces in the country

My friend the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale said that I had made a mistake in calculating the number of beds closed. I said 130 beds and he says that the number of beds closed is 142 My honourable friend is perfectly right The total number of beds closed down is 142, but I thought we were discussing only the J J Hospital and the G T Hospital and therefore I gave the figure as 130 The twelve extra beds were those closed down in the Cama and Albless Hospital

My honourable friend Dr Dixit very fortunately referred to the fact that the St George's Hospital contained as patients persons of various communities, and I thank him very much for having brought out that point because that will show that the "European General Hospital" is a misnomer Practically it is a cosmopolitan hospital where there are Goans, Jews, Anglo-Indians, Japanese and foreigners, and yesterday out of the total number there were only 26 Europeans proper——

Rao Bahadur S K BOLE Are Hindus admitted?

Dr M. D GILDER Depressed Classes?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I may inform the honourable mover that he is under a misapprehension when he says that—I am not quite sure whether he said that or some other honourable member—but the nursing home was referred to by him—I may inform the honourable member that the nursing home in St George's Hospital is a paying proposition It does not cost Government anything at all

Dr M. D GILDER What about rent of the buildings and the nursing services supplied and the services of resident medical officers supplied?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Well, the resident medical officer may perhaps attend upon the patients, but the patient who is there has to choose his own doctor and has to pay for nursing, food and everything that he gets

Sir REGINALD SPENCE On a point of information Would the Honourable Minister please tell us whether senior members of the J J. Hospital are not provided by the Grant Medical College? They are not shown in the budget as a charge on the J J Hospital But in the case of St George's they are shown

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Sir, I do not want to go into the figures in detail, but I wish the honourable mover had made concrete proposals as to how he proposed to effect retrenchment in the St George's Hospital He merely wants the appointment of a committee on a mere speculation that something might turn up which may help to effect retrenchment He has not put forward a single practical proposal before this honourable House

After this explanation of mine I should like to know whether this House would still like to have a committee appointed to enquire into the administration of the St George's Hospital

Mr J B PETIT There is a strong feeling on this side of the House that such a committee is necessary and should be appointed

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Nobody speaks

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Nobody can speak They would not be allowed to speak [Laughter]

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Well, Sir, will you kindly show me a method by which I can gauge the sense of the House on the other side, particularly as to whether they are, after my explanation, still keen on having a committee ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I think if the Honourable Minister wishes to ascertain the general feeling, he can do so during the tea interval. I would postpone putting the motion to the House till then.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL But that is a method which would not satisfy the honourable mover. My point is that there is nothing that Government want to conceal so far as the administration of the St George's Hospital or any Government managed hospital in Bombay is concerned We are only too willing to furnish any information that the House wants with regard to the expenditure on these hospitals But, after all, a committee will have to do some work It will mean some expense, and unless I see that there is a great demand for such a committee, I am not inclined to appoint one merely on a chance that something may be discovered that might lead to retrenchment

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I did not follow the last suggestion of the Honourable Minister

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL, I merely said that I am not in favour of the appointment of a committee because I do not see anything that the committee can enlighten the House upon

Sir REGINALD SPENCE Could we have the assurance of the Honourable Minister that these accounts will be looked into and put up in such a way as to assure the House that there is no waste of money ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I can very willingly give that assurance and I can further say that the Lay Secretary, who was appointed in the J. J Group, and who, I understand, has been able to effect a saving of over Rs 50,000 net in 12 months, can be deputed to do that work. It is my intention to ask the Lay Secretary to take on the St George's Hospital and see whether any retrenchment could be made there

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE That satisfies us

Dr M D GILDER Apart from that, might I ask if the Honourable Minister will change the system of keeping accounts so that comparative figures of the various institutions could be available? The Retrenchment Committee have recommended it

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL This matter was under the consideration of the Retrenchment Committee They have recommended a change in the method of publication of these figures

Dr M D GILDER Have Government accepted the recommendation?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL It is under the consideration of Government

Mr G L WINTERBOTHAM Does not the honourable member Mr Petit wish to withdraw his motion after this assurance?

Mr J B PETIT No, Sir

Question put, and negatived

Dr M D GILDER (Bombay City, North) Sir, you will find that on the medical side I have given——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I think the honourable member should come nearer

Dr M D GILDER All right, Sir Most of the cuts that I have tabled in the medical budget, have been tabled with the object of eliciting information from the Honourable Minister rather than with the object of pushing the cuts to a division It is not because that I do not believe that there is room for retrenchment in the Medical Department I do believe there is room and the committee of the Bombay Medical Union, to which a reference has been made by my honourable friend representing the Bombay Millowners' Association (Mr Petit), did point out how, within a reasonable space of time, gradual retrenchment could be effected in the Medical Department I shall not enter into details of things which have been put before the Retrenchment Committee, but I will take the cuts that I have proposed one by one and discuss the policy underlying these cuts

The first cut that I have proposed is a cut in the Bai Motlibai and Sir Dinshaw Maneckji Petit Hospitals—Rs 7,500 You will find that the Resident Medical Officers at the Motlibai and Petit Hospitals belong to the Indian Medical Department and to the Subordinate Medical

[Dr. M D. Gilder]

Service, and I find that in the Report of the Inspection Committee of the University submitted to the Syndicate, of which the Surgeon-General was also a member, there is a minute of dissent by Dr Mangaldas Mehta It is pointed out that at the Mothibai Hospital the Senior Resident Medical Officer (that is an I M.D officer) performs practically all the operations in the absence of the Superintendent, and most of the obstetric operations are emergency operations which are performed when the Superintendent may not be in the hospital It is a startling fact that the experience which this medical officer gains is entirely wasted, because in other countries the I M D officer would not be considered even as qualified to perform these operations These posts are of great educational value. These are posts which give experience and lead the man ultimately to be a consultant, and it is surprising that these posts are held by members of the I M D and by members of the Subordinate Medical Service The experience that they acquire by these posts is practically wasted, because of the faulty primary medical education, they can never rise to consultant rank. A similar condition prevailed in Calcutta some time ago, but they have modified it there, and they have put in men not belonging to any particular service but men taken from the profession in general, men who are paid a very small pittance because of the educational value of the post, men who will ultimately become consultants and successors of the Professor and the Associate Professor Here valuable experience is lost because the posts are given to members of the Subordinate Medical Service, who can never rise to the rank of Professor or Associate Professor This valuable experience, I think, ought to be preserved for those in the profession who can give the benefit of this experience to the public, and it was to point out this defect that I proposed that cut

The second cut that I proposed was about the St George's Hospital, about which so much has been said here already that it is hardly necessary for me to refer to anything more excepting one item, and it is this A list of medical men, I understand, is maintained, who can send their patients to the nursing home, and it is a clear fact that whilst members of His Majesty's services whether they belong to Bombay or are from outside can send any of their patients to the nursing home, the professors at the Grant Medical College themselves have got to apply to be put on the nursing home staff, so that Government has no confidence even in the professors of their own college The Professor of Surgery, who is the senior surgeon at the J J Hospital and who used to be considered the premier surgeon in the Presidency cannot send his own patients to the nursing home, unless he gets the Surgeon General to have his name entered on the list It is a queer state of affairs!

The third cut that I have given is a cut of Rs 100 in the provision for the Grant Medical College There I wish to point out the policy which creates inequality in the emoluments of the various professors, the pay ranging, I believe, from Rs 150 or Rs 200 to Rs 2,000 Some of these professors are members of the service, and they get their grade pay, but they do the same work as the other professors who do it for

[Dr. M D Gilder]

Rs 200 Would it not therefore be to the advantage of this Presidency if the service men who are there are replaced ?

There is another policy with regard to the Grant Medical College that is being followed by the Honourable Minister in charge, to which I would like to draw attention It is proposed that several of the professorships should be put in the Bombay Medical Service, Class I Sir, we have had quite enough of the services There is the mysterious formula "existing and accruing rights of the service," and if once we put a service man in, vested interests will be created Why should we not follow the custom that is followed in all civilised countries, where each post is recruited by itself on a contract basis ? And the Honourable Minister is not consistent when he puts these posts in the Bombay Medical Service Class I When we talked about the Mental Hospital at Thana, he himself brought forward the suggestion that the mental specialist would be engaged on a contract basis Why contract in one case and a service with vested interests in another ? That certainly is a contradictory policy, and I would suggest to him that he should follow the policy that is being followed in all civilised countries, where these posts, the teaching posts and the various specialist posts, are recruited for on a contract basis It will lead to the advantage that when the post falls vacant again, there will be no interests to claim the right of succession A fresh man can be appointed, and the terms of appointment may be revised, whereas if a post is made a service post, a service man will want to go in without having any particular acquaintance with the subject or specialty, and vested interests will again be created

Then, under that head, I would point out another thing that has taken place The post of Professor of Anatomy fell vacant A selection board was appointed The selection board consisted of the Surgeon-General, for whose presence I have no objection Then the Secretary of the General Department was on it May I ask my honourable friend the Secretary of the General Department how much Anatomy he knows ? It also consisted of another——

Mr E W PERRY May I point out that there were two experts and one non-expert on the board ? The non-expert was the Secretary to the General Department, and he was there to see that the experts kept to the rules and to keep Government in touch with the selection board's work

Dr M D GILDER I am obliged to the honourable member for the information In the regime of the preceding Honourable Minister, he always used to trot out his experts in any discussion that we had in the Council, and now Government are putting in a non-expert to help the experts, to see that the experts observe the rules !

The other member of the selection board was an expert, of what ? He was an expert of obstetrics, gynaecology What has that got to do with anatomy ? Certainly, if there had been the Professor of Surgery, I would not have objected to it at all, because the posts of Professor of Anatomy and Professor of Surgery are allied, but what has an obstetric

physician to do with anatomy? According to the strict rules of the profession, the obstetric physician ought not to enter the dissection room for fear of carrying infection to his patients He cannot be considered as an expert for selecting a Professor of Anatomy Those are the things that are being carried on in the department, and I would draw the attention of the Honourable Minister to that point

With regard to the Grant Medical College, there is another thing to which I wish to draw the Honourable Minister's attention In revising the pay of these professors at the Grant Medical College, Government issued a Resolution—somehow I have got a copy of it—which says that when there is a Professor of Medicine, Clinical Medicine and Therapeutics at the Grant Medical College, he should be given extra pay of Rs 100 But it says that if he belongs to the service, he should be given an extra pay of Rs 250 So that the service man gets his grade pay, nearly Rs 2,000, and gets Rs 250 extra pay Might I ask whether he does the work better, or whether he does more work? Why should he be paid extra pay at a higher rate? Why should a distinction be kept between a service man and a non-service man doing the same job? The service man, for doing the same work, gets his service pay—the other man is an honorary man and does not get service pay—and in addition he gets extra payment at a higher rate

Dr M K DIXIT The item becomes non-votable

Dr. M D GILDER Yes, the item of the extra allowance becomes non-votable

There is one point to which I would once again draw attention, to which attention has already been drawn, and to which the Retrenchment Committee has also referred, viz, that the overcrowding of the hospitals can to a great extent be remedied by having what may be called infirmaries. A suggestion was put forward by the Retrenchment Committee that the beds that are lying vacant should be utilised at very small expenditure as infirmaries for housing rather the invalid and the infirm than those who are actively ill, and a great deal of the cost can thus be saved They do not want much nursing, ordinary casual attendance is quite enough for them These people go and occupy hospital beds, and I can assure you we cannot get rid of them I have actually had one such patient in my ward When visitors came to see him and we asked them to take him away, they stopped coming We sent the patient to his house in a victoria When the inmates of the house saw that the man was coming, they locked the door and ran away by the back door, and the patient was still on our hands Of course, it is out of humanity that they should be looked after They are old and infirm, they are invalids, and they cannot look after themselves, it is the duty of the State to look after them, and the State can look after them at much less cost than it is doing at the present moment

These are some of the points which I wanted to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister, and I hope they will receive his attention

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK (Surat District) SIR, I would be very brief in my remarks, as I have to bring only one or two points to the attention of the Honourable Minister in charge of the department Out of a total budget of Rs 49,00,000, I want to point out that only Rs 2,70,000 are provided for the rural area of the Presidency That item includes the smaller municipalities of the Presidency Therefore, if we were to exclude the municipal area, the amount will remain at about Rs 2,20,000 for the rural area, that is the district local boards area proper Now, Sir, we have listened with great attention to the very interesting debate that took place yesterday and to-day about hospitals, and expenditure on medical relief in the city of Bombay If we take the whole medical budget, out of Rs 49,00,000, about Rs 13,00,000 are provided for the Island of Bombay alone, which comes to about Re 1 per head Now, if we take the population of the rural area of the Presidency and the actual amount that Government spend on medical relief, viz, Rs 2,20,000, it will come to less than a quarter of an anna per head of the population The population of the rural areas may be taken as 156 lakhs, and if you divide the provision of Rs 2,20,000 by the figure of the population, it will give less than a quarter of an anna per head Now, I will be again reminded by the Honourable the Leader of the House, what about the sub-assistant surgeons? But in this instance, Sir, Government are paying for the sub-assistant surgeons of the District Local Boards dispensaries, but they are receiving grants from District Local Boards at the rate of Rs 90 per each sub-assistant surgeon towards the pay If I am wrong, I shall be very glad to be corrected by the Honourable Minister in charge.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I must interrupt the honourable member The motion has not been put to the House I omitted to do it. The motion is;

Reduce by Rs. 1,000 the total demand of Rs 49,00,000, under the head "Medical"

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK So, Sir, except this grant of Rs 2,20,000 if there are other items provided for the rural area for medical relief, and if they are shown to this side of the House, I shall be very glad I say, Sir, it is a tale of woe, which this side of the House is repeating year after year But nothing has been done Now, looking to the present condition of Government, we all know that they cannot provide any further amounts for medical relief But then this duty has been imposed on district local boards And if the financial condition of Government is bad, I say the financial condition of the district local boards is worse I want to know whether the Government as a whole ever considered how this medical relief can be given by the district local board from the very meagre funds Take the instance of Surat The district local board is spending Rs 32,000 for medical relief, out of which the board gets from Rs 8,000 to Rs 9,000 grant, about 25 per cent of the total expenditure It must be the case with every district local board Therefore I say, Sir, that the rural areas have been totally neglected, so far as medical relief is concerned There is no exaggeration You are spending less than quarter of an anna per head For veterinary you are not going to give anything I do not blame the present Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government, because this is the policy adopted by Government to starve the rural areas

We have listened to the debate just finished So many capitalists from Bombay city argued the points that the expenditure on a particular hospital was too high and on another was low They can fight with Government but there is nobody to look after the interests of the rural areas

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD The honourable member himself is there for these classes

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK We are all here, but you do not care to listen to us I know that the financial position of Government is bad, but what have they done in past years? Even now, they must reduce expenditure somewhere and provide for medical relief in the rural areas

There is another grievance, which I want to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister You have reduced the salaries of the sub-assistant surgeons by 10 per cent Still you are getting the contribution of the local bodies at the original rate of Rs 90 At least the local boards should get this saving effected by the 10 per cent. cut in their salaries The savings in the contribution you receive from the local bodies against the pay of the sub-assistant surgeons should in fairness go to the district local boards and should not remain with the Government

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu) Mr President, generally the medical relief that is given in the rural areas of Sind is very poor Coming to the Karachi city itself, there is a civil hospital For want of accommodation the poor patients are accommodated in beds that are placed in the verandah even in the cold of December, January and February These patients suffering from fever might even die This city is going to be the seat of a governor, soon after the separation comes into effect and still this is the plight of the civil hospital I hear that the Honourable Minister is a good man I invite him to Sind in order that he may have first hand knowledge of situation there in regard to medical relief and do the needful I am sure he will do it, if he comes and studies the situation himself During last few years the Honourable Minister is giving assurance that he would make provision for the extension of the hospital but nothing has been done so far I know at present there is financial stringency, but he should do his best to save from elsewhere and make provision for the Karachi Civil Hospital I am sure he will do it Karachi is second largest part of this Presidency There are many people who have come and settled there from Baluchistan, Marwar, Kathiawad and so on Most of these men are wage-earners Now, Government have introduced a novel system by which the out-door patients, howsoever poor they may be, are asked to pay one anna These working people earn 12 annas or 13 annas a day when they get work

[Mr Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch]

They have got a family to maintain and they live on very meagre income How can these men afford to pay one anna ?

Mr E W PERRY The medical officers always let off any man who is too poor to pay

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH I am glad that it is so But these men are generally illiterate and they do not know any rule or anything It is invariably left to the men in the lower rank in the hospital to collect these charges who never let off any man, but also demand bukhshish which poor patients have to pay, otherwise they are detained for hours together , Greater portion of the poor population take medical aid from the Municipal Hospitals A fee of one anna is also charged there The majority of the population are wage-earners and poor, they cannot pay, therefore a fee of one anna should not be charged at the Government Hospitals to the out-door patients

In conclusion I request Government to provide funds for the extension of the civil hospital at Karachi

Mr V A SURVE (Ratnagiri District) (Addressed the House in Marathi) Mr President, the population of Ratnagiri district is 13 lakhs In every taluka headquarters, there is a hospital. But these hospitals are maintained more for the use of Government officials such as police and rich people It is quite evident on the face of it that the whole ryot population of each taluka can take advantage of this one hospital at its headquarters There are 9 hospitals in all for the nine talukas in the whole of the district These medical institutions will not even touch the fringe of the problem of medical relief for the whole district The grant for medical relief to local boards has been steadily dwindling and for the next year, owing to financial stringency, it has still further been cut down The district local board of Ratnagiri is spending Rs 78,000 on the maintenance of these hospitals and they have not been getting the grant of two-third of the expenditure which they are entitled to under the Act In spite of the fact that Government do not even give the statutory grant, the final authority over these hospitals is the Surgeon General who has not even once visited these hospitals nor ever considered the situation of the people with regard to medical relief I request the Honourable Minister to take into consideration the poor ryots who do not get medical relief and introduce some system which will solve this problem.

Dr M K DIXIT (Surat District) Sir, I wish to be very brief on this point, since most of the ground has been covered by my honourable friend Dr Gilder I just want to make one suggestion regarding infirmaries I wish to invite the attention of the Honourable Minister to this suggestion During the last year 142 beds have been closed down in the two hospitals If he were to utilize these 142 beds for starting an infirmary, I think he would be doing a great service to humanity, to the teaching professors and to the students who are learning there We know that the number of chronic patients who occupy the beds prevent new teaching material from coming in, prevent more serious cases from receiving proper treatment and getting cured, and thus they are more or less a nuisance from that standpoint As Dr Gilder stated, from a humanitarian point of view we cannot turn them out, because they are infirm, in many cases they are such as not to be able to look after themselves, and they must have some attention paid to them under the supervision of a medical officer Now, if he will utilise these 142 beds for the purpose of lodging those chronic incurable cases, I think he will be doing a very great service to humanity, to the students who go to receive lessons in medicine and surgery, and also to the medical officers who always want something fresh for the students rather than patients who lie there giving no new material for talking over. Of course, the question of cost will come, but I do not think that for an infirmary of that type one bed should cost more than twelve annas or a rupee per day It is a small amount which can very well be spared from the provincial revenues even during these days of financial stringency At any rate, I make this suggestion

I support the various arguments made and the various complaints raised by my honourable friends Dr Gilder and Rao Bahadur Bhimbai against certain departments There is one thing I should like to know from the Honourable Minister How many military assistant surgeons are still in our service and how many were in our service last year? I find 23 are there I do not know whether I am correct

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL It is sixteen now, and the minimum number to which they are to be reduced is twelve

Dr M K DIXIT I find from the White Book that there are nineteen provided for in 1932-33 I do not know how the Honourable Minister reconciles the figures

Mr E W PERRY May I just point out that the "5" shown under J J Hospital is composed of military assistant surgeons, Bombay Medical Service and other officers?

Dr M K DIXIT Do you say that they are not all military assistant surgeons?

Mr E W PERRY There are only 16 military assistant surgeons in all in the presidency during the budget year In 1931-32 we had in J J Hospital 9 medical officers, including military assistant surgeons They have been reduced to five for the next year, 1932-33 I do not know if all the five are military assistant surgeons or members of the Bombay Medical Service

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL It is very clear "military assistant surgeons, Bombay Medical Service and other officers" They are all mixed up

Dr M K DIXIT I should like to know how many of them are military assistant surgeons ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I cannot tell offhand, but, as I said, the number of military assistant surgeons is sixteen at present

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The question is, of the five who are left out of the nine, how many are of one class and how many of the other ?

Dr M K DIXIT That is what I wanted

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I am unable to give that information offhand

Dr M K DIXIT Will you be able to give that information after tea ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL But what is the object of the honourable member in finding that out ? The number of military assistant surgeons would be 16 and the rest would be M B B S men What is the honourable gentleman's point ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I do not see the 16 to begin with.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL That is the whole cadre

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I think the honourable member (Dr Dixit) referred to J J Hospital From 9 it has been reduced to 5. Of both the classes, how many of each were retained in that five ? That is the question The Honourable Minister has a difficulty, because the cadre of all the hospitals is lumped together That is why there is difficulty in giving the reply

Dr M K DIXIT We have half an hour for tea , he may be able to find it out within that time

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL You have not caught my point My point is this what is the object of finding out how many military assistant surgeons there are ? It is difficult to see why the honourable member wants it If he were in difficulty I could possibly explain that

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The object will be explained by him later on It is not for me to find out what his object or argument is going to be He simply wants a particular piece of information He may raise an argument on it later on If there is no objection the Honourable Minister may give it

Dr M K DIXIT I do want to find out how the figure is reduced from 9 to 5, whether the cut was effected by reducing the number of Bombay Medical Service men or the number of military assistant surgeons

Dr M D GILDER Of the two classes, who were reduced ? What was the original strength of each of these classes in J J Hospital, and what is the present strength ?

Dr M K DIXIT Why should the Honourable Minister flinch from giving that information ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The honourable member's question is how the retrenchment was secured There has been retrenchment of the two cadres put together, whatever the strength of that may be, and that retrenchment has been distributed among the various hospitals The retrenchment effected has to extend towards both the sections of the service, the military assistant surgeons and the Bombay Medical Service Now, the honourable member wants to know how each of them has been affected in the retrenchment, whether the axe has fallen more on the one than on the other

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL There is no question of retrenchment in this at all The point is that it has been decided to reduce the number of military assistant surgeons It was formerly, I think, 22 or 24, it was reduced to 18 and then it was decided to reduce it to 12 At present we have got 16 and as their claims are being liquidated, they are being reduced automatically until the number 12 is reached, and therefore if any of these people have retired the number must have been reduced proportionately

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The number of military officers ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL And there is no intention at all of reducing the Bombay Medical Service men.

Dr M. K DIXIT My point is this the figure 9 is reduced to 5 Four hands have been relieved I want to find out whether all these 4 that have been relieved are from the military assistant surgeons' cadre or from the Bombay Medical Service That is what I want to know

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I have got the figure here Last year, that is, in the current year, there were 4 I M D men and 5 B M S men That makes the number 9 In the next year's budget there is only one I M D man and 4 B M S men Is it quite clear now ?

Dr M K DIXIT It is quite clear

(After recess)

Dr M K DIXIT I have nothing more to add to what I have said, Sir

Mr PESTANSHAH N VAKIL (Ahmedabad City) Sir, I am told that there are 56 honourable members representing rural constituencies in this honourable House But so far, with the single exception of my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai Naik, not one honourable gentleman has come forward to voice the grievances of the rural population. [An Honourable Member. Mr Surve] Yes, Sir, there were two exceptions.

I said that "so far" they have not come forward My honourable friend Dr. Dixit also represents a rural constituency, but he spoke on a number of questions all dealing with city life, principally on the conversion of part of a Bombay hospital into an infirmary, and that also to be located in the city of Bombay

Dr. M K DIXIT Why, I have supported all the complaints made by my honourable colleague Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai Naik

Mr PESTANSHAH N VAKIL: I do not give expression to this view as a matter of reproach, but simply in order to bring to the notice of this honourable House in a prominent manner the fact that although there is such great disproportion in population and area between town and country, the amounts allocated to the two sections are exceedingly disproportionate as well

Now, Sir, I have an original idea. If we were to hold our meetings after the manner of a travelling circus in the different villages of the Presidency, amidst rural surroundings and in arcadian simplicity, perhaps the woes and grievances of the rustic people would be better appreciated We should be right in the midst of people who have their grievances to place before us Last year also on the floor of this House the same complaint was made The expenditure on hospitals in the city of Bombay works out at the rate of about 17 annas per head, while that in the case of rural areas works out at the magnificent rate of 1 pies What a great disparity, Sir! I hope the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government, who himself represents a rural constituency, would be good enough to look into this matter very seriously, particularly in view of the fact that he himself claimed, some time ago, to have studied this question, and, if I mistake not, had contributed an article or two in the columns of a prominent local paper But so far nothing practical seems to have been done In each district, the number of dispensaries is, I think, at the rate of barely 1 in a taluka. I cannot in an offhand manner say what exactly could be the population of a taluka, but certainly it is that a taluka must be very badly served by one dispensary And this is the crying need of the presidency It is no use members voicing the same grievance year after year in this House

Last year, Sir, I drew the attention of the Honourable Minister to the number of hours that assistant surgeons put in at the hospital In his reply the Honourable Minister told us that the terms of their service were such that they could not be expected to put in more time If I mistake not, at present it is something between 3 and 4 hours a day If the Honourable Minister will be good enough to state what exactly are the terms of their service, I shall be glad. It is very difficult to get this kind of information in official publications, and hence it is that I repeat this request with which, I trust, the Honourable Minister will kindly comply.

Sir SHAH NAWAZ BHUTTO (Larkana District) Sir, I had no mind to take part in this discussion, but my honourable friend the last speaker (Mr. Vakil) remarked that though there are so many representatives from the mofussil areas, very few of them have expressed their grievances The fact is that we have been voicing our grievances year after year, but all in vain Instead of improving things, we have been worsening them Our agitation or bringing the grievances to the notice of Government has had no effect, on the contrary Government has been totally deaf to it. That is the reason why some of our friends had no mind to take part in this discussion,—as a protest.

If one takes a little trouble to go into the details and ascertain the facts, one will find that it is really in the province of Sind (from where I come) that we have got real and genuine grievances even against this department Now, I understand that the total expenditure on the medical department is over 50 lakhs of rupees What is the share allotted to Sind? I understand it is only 5 lakhs

It is strange, Sir, that the Government should have recently introduced the system of recovering fees from paupers, the poorest class of His Majesty's subjects in civil hospitals—the agriculturists,—who cannot pay for medicines leaving aside medical aid The only place where they could receive medicines free was in civil hospitals and local boards' dispensaries Due to recent Government orders in civil hospitals free treatment and medicines have been stopped; and having no knowledge of Government's new policy, most of the poor people, when they come from the mofussil for treatment, are told "No free treatment, you must pay for it" They go back with a bitter mind and disappointed Not only that, but in the whole of the province we have not got a single central hospital where people can have their ailments cured at a reasonable cost Those who can afford—though in these days it is very hard and I am doubtful whether anybody can afford—come to Bombay or go to Lahore and this journey of such a long distance costs them nearly half of their fortune

What is the state of district local board dispensaries? From year to year, in spite of our representations, in spite of agitation, in spite of our fight on the floor of this House, the result has been that the grants have been reduced In some of the dispensaries the state is so bad that they are kept open with no medicines whatsoever. However, we are very fortunate in having a very energetic, able and painstaking Honourable Minister in charge of this department But the misfortune of the Sindhis is that so far he has not been able to visit our country personally I am sure, if he takes the earliest opportunity and knows things for himself, and visits most of these dispensaries and sees how we are starved, perhaps he might do his very best to make an earnest effort to improve things With these remarks, I resume my seat.

Mr G S GANGOLI (Kanara District) Sir, my honourable friend on my right perhaps desires to have some change of language, as he said that he has not heard any single villager express his sentiments regarding the proposal under discussion. I claim to come from a village, and I do not think any other honourable member comes from a village which is more malaria-stricken and which is more in the midst of forest than the one I come from But the simple fact is this As the honourable member who spoke last has said, grievances have been ventilated on the floor of this House several times, and fortunately or unfortunately for us, these Ministers, though popular, are given charge of nation-building departments, but not with sufficient funds We have to come here not only to ventilate our grievances, but we have to exercise our votes, and in so exercising our votes we have to adjust ourselves to the testimony of the hard facts as they are this year There is no use in agitating this year as the finances are not improving With this in view, we had better not speak on the actual state of affairs

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI (Poona District) Sir, I rise to support the motion I am an agriculturist, and now I have the misfortune to offer my remarks against the working of the Medical Department The real state of things is that 60, out of 100 of the population, are agriculturists, and we have to live from hand to mouth This is the pitiable condition of agriculturists in these days. Therefore, we have to spend nearly 4 months in a year in towns or cities to earn our livelihood, and the days which we spend in rural areas are hard pressed particularly when we want some medical help there When we go to towns and cities, and want medical help there, by the recent steps taken by Government we are barred from taking advantage of the Medical treatment The so-called small fees which are charged for medicine in Government dispensaries have become unbearable to the people of our class. They have not got sufficient money even for a piece of bread for their maintenance, how then are they expected to pay two annas for getting the medicine? On page 64 of the Blue Book, it is clearly mentioned that the estimate of receipts has been fixed at a considerably higher figure, owing to the levy of a uniform fee of one anna in the case of out-patients and two annas in the case of in-patients at all Government hospitals I think that is the worst device used by the department for making addition to their revenue and I do not know how this step was approved by the Cabinet I am inclined to open this topic because I have got the good support of a strong Minister of the Government of Bombay When the Honourable Minister in charge of Education was on the irresponsible side of the House, he expressed a very strong opinion against the levying of any fees at the hospitals and dispensaries, and I am reading a relevant extract from his speech He said

"Well, Sir If the cap fits the Minister, let him wear it. I got up, Sir, to make a complaint about the policy of the Minister with regard to the fees in hospitals and dispensaries This House, Sir, had passed a resolution two years ago by a large majority that no fees should be charged in Government hospitals and dispensaries in the mofussil. In order to give effect to that resolution, a committee was appointed by the Government of Bombay, not a committee of this House but a departmental committee, and the House has had no occasion to pronounce any opinion on its report I had very strongly supported that resolution in the interest of the public I do think Government has tried somehow or other to shelve the difficulty Sir, the public grievance is so strong that if the Government of Bombay were to take a referendum, I do not think the Minister will escape censure. Sir, we had pointed out during the debate that Rs 99,000 were collected by the Government of Bombay as fees from all these hospitals and the House went so far as to say that it would dispense with that amount" [Pages 813, 814]

This is an extract from the speech of the Honourable Minister now in charge of Education, Sir Rafiuddin Ahmad, made on 6th of March 1926

Now, fortunately, Sir Rafiuddin Ahmad forms a part of the Cabinet, and I trust he will try his best to establish the principle which he has advocated so forcibly in the speech I have referred to, and we shall be very happy, particularly the people of the rural areas, in getting at least free medical treatment at the Government dispensaries I think it is one of the duties of civilized Government to provide medicine to the agriculturists free of charge When nothing else is given to us, I think this much expectation is not extravagant With this request I support the motion

Dr M D GILDER (Bombay City, North) Sir, I have nothing more to add except on one or two points made by the honourable members who have supported me They seem to think that there is a competition between the rural and the urban areas as regards medical relief I can assure them that from the urban point of view there is no such competition, that Bombay city does not want everything for itself, I shall be one of the first to be glad if rural areas get better medical relief than at present, and I have repeatedly drawn the attention of this honourable House to the deficiency of rural medical relief Sir, it must also be understood that, when you talk of the large amount of money spent on the population of Bombay and the small amount spent on the mofussil population, the figures are misleading, because a great many patients in the Bombay hospitals come from the mofussil and are treated in the Bombay hospitals

Rao Bahadur S N ANGADI How many ?

Dr M D GILDER On a rough estimate, about 15 to 20 per cent

Rao Bahadur S N ANGADI Do they come from the Bombay suburban area ?

Dr M D GILDER No, they come from the rural areas There are people coming for treatment from as far away as Peshawar

The other point that was raised was about the fees charged in the hospitals, and the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni quoted the Honourable Sir Rafiuddin Ahmad about the committee The honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale and myself happened to be members of that committee I was not then a member of this House We thought that hospital abuse existed, and we framed rules about charging fees only to well-to-do patients, i e those who were in a position to pay Those rules are in existence, but are being modified by the department again Perhaps the Honourable Minister will tell us how far they are being modified I believe that the definition of "well-to-do man" is being modified. Speaking on behalf of the city of Bombay, there is a good deal of hospital abuse Rich patients do come to the hospitals, who can afford to pay The charging of one anna routine fee to everybody does not get rid of that hospital abuse If the Government were going to charge these rich persons, who can afford to pay, full fees for medical attendance, I do not think any honourable member of this House would have any objection As regards the other point that the medical men in charge of hospitals have got the right of exempting poor people from payment of any fees, the medical men at the big hospitals have hardly the time to see the patients and to treat them, because the rush is so great, therefore they can hardly have the time to go into the circumstances of the patients It would be better to have an almoner as in European hospitals, who can enquire into the circumstances of the patients and make them pay accordingly

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Sir, I will not trespass upon the patience of the House for more than a few minutes My honourable friend the mover of the cut wanted some information He wanted to know why the Resident Medical Officer at the Bai Motlibai Hospital was not a University man, but only a Military Assistant The post of Resident Medical Officer there is not one of the few posts now reserved for the Indian Medical Department We are, however, under an obligation to safeguard the rights of the Indian Medical Department officers who were permanently in civil employ in this Presidency when the scheme for reducing the cadre of the Indian Medical Department was adopted As the posts of the Resident Medical Officers at the various hospitals were held by this class of officers, it will be some time before the rights of the officers concerned are finally liquidated and the post of Resident Medical Officer at the Bai Motlibai and Petit Hospitals is thrown open to other medical men

With regard to his suggestion that all the professors of the Grant Medical College should be allowed as visiting surgeons or physicians to the nursing home at the St George's Hospital, I may inform the honourable member that these outside medical men are selected by the patients themselves, and most of them being Europeans and Anglo-Indians, such medical men are selected to be on the permanent list there who hold that kind of clientele If any medical man wishes to visit the nursing home and apply to Government——

Dr M D GILDER Why should your own professors apply to you ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL He is not barred at all.

Dr M D GILDER Why should your own professors apply to you ? Have not you got confidence in them to put them on the staff without applying ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Because we do not see the need for putting more people, they are unnecessary, because the number at the nursing home is very small

Dr M D GILDER If the Honourable Minister will excuse my interruption, the number of people who are entitled to go in there without any special permission from the Surgeon-General is indefinite, because all members of His Majesty's services are allowed as a class, not by individual names Why should not all professors of the Government colleges be allowed in the same way ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL As I said, the number there is very small I understand that the nursing home does not accommodate more than about 8 or 10 patients, and there are already 5 medical men on the list

Dr M D GILDER Why should others be prevented ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL With regard to the honourable member's suggestion or complaint about the allowance to the Professor of Pathology and Anatomy, I am sorry I am not in a position to understand his complaint, but the Professor of Pathology——

Dr M D GILDER I said, Professor of Medicine only My point was this When the Professor of Medicine belongs to the Indian Medical Service, he is given an allowance of Rs 250, and when the Professor of Medicine is outside the Indian Medical Service, for the same work he is allowed an allowance of Rs 100 Why this difference ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL. Does the honourable member mean a man who is working in an honorary capacity ? Is he referring to him ?

Dr M D GILDER Yes Why this difference ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL To that my reply is that when a man volunteers to work in an honorary capacity he gets an honorarium only, and he is not entitled to any other allowances, as well

Dr M D GILDER The honorarium is for hospital work, not for teaching work For teaching work, there is the professorial pay. This is extra pay, special pay Why should there be any difference in the special pay ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I promise to find that out

Dr M D GILDER Thank you.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL Another suggestion of the honourable member is that the professors of the Grant Medical College had better not be put in Class I cadre which has been recently constituted But then, my personal opinion is that a man who is put on the permanent cadre has a greater sense of security in the service and I suppose that he himself would prefer to be put in that cadre rather than to be kept on contract from one period to another I think that that grievance has not yet been brought to my notice by the people concerned

With regard to the constitution of the selection board, I do not think I need add to what has already been very convincingly and also with a bit of humour answered by the honourable member the General Secretary There are two experts on the board and the honourable member the General Secretary should be there in order, as he said, to keep Government in touch with what is going on in the selection board at every stage

Dr M D GILDER Why was there no expert on Anatomy ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL If we take into consideration every department of science, then I suppose the selection board will consist of two dozen men One man may be an expert in one branch and may know or may not know much about others

Dr M D GILDER Surely, there must be somebody who knows something about the branch in which the selection is to be made ?

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL With regard to the suggestion thrown out by the honourable member from Surat and from another honourable member, namely, the accommodation made available by the closing down of the beds might be utilised with great advantage for accommodating infirms or being used as infirmaries, this question had been considered by the Retrenchment Committee also But the very serious difficulty with which we were confronted is not so much the finance as getting the permission of the people who have donated the buildings They have donated buildings on certain conditions that they shall be used for a particular object I do not think it is open to Government to put them to a use other than that specified in the agreement

An Honourable MEMBER With their permission it can be done

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL The honourable member Mr. Pestanshah dwelt at length on the grievances of the rural areas in respect of medical aid I think I had at some length dealt with this matter during the last budget session. I may inform this House that I myself am very intimately interested in the scheme of rural medical help and in fact I had requested the Surgeon General also to put up his scheme That also has been done, but then I do not think any useful purpose can be served now in proceeding with these schemes when we have got no funds But I can assure this honourable House that at the first available opportunity, I shall try and put a concrete scheme for its approval

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK On a point of information Just now the Honourable Minister said that the question was not so much of finance as that of getting the permission of the donors——

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I did say that it was not so much the question of finance as the difficulty of getting the sanction, because the question of finance was not very much involved in putting the infirm from one place to another

Now, there is a further gross misunderstanding under which some honourable members are labouring as regards the imposition of that small charge for out-door and in-door patients in hospitals I think I have on a former occasion made it clear that it was entirely left to the discretion of the superintendent of the hospital or the chief medical officer of the hospital or a civil surgeon, whoever may be in charge of the hospitals in Bombay or in the mofussil, either to admit patients absolutely free of charge or charge him less I can assure you, Sir, that this fee was not levied with a view to cause hardship to the poor It was levied with a view that people who can pay should pay and should not escape payment I think this honourable House will approve of the action of Government in charging well-to-do patients who can afford to pay

[Sirdar Sir Rustom Jehangir Vakil]

With regard to the time that Bombay Medical Service men devote to their medical duties in hospitals, a suggestion has been made, rather an information has been given, by the honourable member Mr Pestanshah that these men are not worked to the extent they ought to be Usually the office hours, as we know, are between 11 and 5 in all offices, both Government and commercial These medical men in various hospitals attend from 8 to 1, which means five hours, and the office hours between 11 and 5 with one hour in between for lunch come to five hours Practically these medical men work for the same period of time They are full time servants of Government and if they are required to work longer hours they are bound to give more time to hospital work

Mr PESTANSHAH N VAKIL It all depends upon the medical officer in charge of hospitals Generally, they do not attend the hospital before 8 or 9 They hardly work for more than 3 hours, say, from 9 to 12 It all depends upon different officers in charge of different hospitals I am not far wrong in saying that they work for 3 or 4 hours only They do not work for 5 hours as it is sought to be made out by the Honourable Minister

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL I am very nearly at the end of my speech The honourable mover of the cut being a medical man of great eminence and fame can always discover abundant defects as well as good points in our administration of the Medical Department I always welcome these suggestions which are really very valuable, but if the honourable member were occasionally to mellow his expostulations by also taking notice of such measures as have been taken by Government, measures suggested by himself or measures approved by him, it will be a great encouragement to a popular Minister Before I sit down, I have to express my grateful thanks to some honourable members of this House who have referred to me in very complimentary terms

Sir, now I want to make only one request and it is this We all want the hospital beds to be opened and status quo restored Now, this honourable House has got a splendid opportunity of helping Government to assist in seeing these beds restored. There is an Alfresco Concert to-morrow at 9 o'clock at the Apollo Bunder Another is the Hospital Race Day on the 12th, this Saturday week I hope I may say I am perfectly certain that each and every honourable member of this honourable House will patronise both these shows by their presence

An Honourable MEMBER Is it our presence or money?

Dr M D GILDER I ask for leave of the House to withdraw my motion

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Total demand put, and agreed to

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN Sir, I make a demand for Rs 6,000 under 32, Medical Services (Reserved)

Question put, and agreed to

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS Sir, I make a demand for Rs 6,42,000 under 31, Education (Reserved)

Question proposed

The Honourable the PRESIDENT There is one thing which I may point out It has been brought to my notice more than twice as to whether cuts can be moved to non-voted demands, and I said the other day that, if a cut is moved on the total demand, which includes both voted and non-voted, the cut, if carried, would apply only to the voted portion But it was again asked whether it can be moved in that form On page 269 of the Manual we have instructions laid down for the guidance of honourable members as to how they should table cuts And in that the order arranged is, the reduction of the total demand (voted and non-voted) is placed last So, the cut tabled including both the heads is in order And there is an underlying principle in that Although the non-voted amount cannot be reduced, it cannot go out of discussion, it is brought under discussion by tabling a cut which includes both If the cut is carried, in practice it will apply only to the voted amount Although the non-voted portion is saved from reduction, it is not saved from discussion or criticism If only one portion, the voted amount, is tabled for a cut, then the non-voted cannot be brought under discussion If the whole amount is tabled to be reduced, then both the heads are brought under discussion

Mr. J. G MORE (Sholapur District) Sir, I beg to move

Reduce by Rs 1,26,900 total voted demand Rs 6,42,000 (Page 191, Civil Estimates) under Education (Reserved)

Sir, at the outset, I may say that being a representative from the rural area, I am not in close touch with the detailed working of these European and Anglo-Indian institutions which are centred mostly in Bombay and Poona But I am sorry to observe that here is another field where unfair discrimination has been exercised by Government between European and Indian institutions And greater liberality has been extended to Anglo-Indian and European institutions as against Indian institutions If we go to the budget figures, it will be obvious that this reserved Education has been treated by Government more liberally than transferred Education I will first take the grand total at page 191. It will be seen that according to the accounts of the year 1930-31, the money expended in 1930-31 is Rs 6,63,746, while the budget provision for the current year is Rs 6,68,000 That is, a sum nearly more than Rs 4,000 was budgetted for these institutions in the current year If we go through the figures for the current year in regard to transferred Education we find that there is a cut of more than 15 per cent in the grants to various local bodies and more than 5 per cent in the grants to secondary and higher education That is for Indian Education But we see that Rs 4,000 more was provided for reserved Education From this it will be clear that in spite of the financial stringency that prevails, the tendency of Government is to give more grants to European and Anglo-Indian institutions Now, look at the percentage of retrenchment that has been effected in this branch of Education I think the figure given in the accounts column of 1930-31 should be taken as basis for purposes of calculating the retrenchment Taking that figure as the basis and comparing it with the revised estimate, we get nearly 1½ per cent cut in this branch When we have got more than 5 per cent cut in Indian Higher and Secondary Education, we have only 1½ per cent retrenchment effected by Government in the European branch If we compare the budget estimate of the next year with the figures of 1930-31 (accounts), then the retrenchment effected is nearly 3 per cent and not more So, it will be seen on the whole that the percentage of retrenchment that has been effected in the reserved side is not as much as that carried out in the transferred side Then, go to item G—Direct Grants to non-Government secondary schools There we have two sub-heads (a) and (b). If we look at the Total—Voted, it will be seen that the budget estimate figures of 1931-32 are Rs 4,74,000, while the expenditure that is being incurred in the current year is Rs 4,000 more The provision under "Revised Estimate" is Rs 4,78,000 So, the acute financial stringency is not felt here by Government, on the contrary, we get Rs 4,000 more being spent on this branch of education

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS Is the honourable member speaking about the next year?

Mr J G MORE I am talking of the current year Now, if we compare the next year's budget figures with the budget figures of 1931-32, then the percentage retrenchment effected is 3½ and not more Again, under sub-head (a) of G "Ordinary Grants-in-aid to secondary schools," there is a cut of nearly Rs 17,000 If you go to the second item (b) "Special Grants-in-aid for European and Anglo-Indian Education," there is no cut at all effected Not a single pie is cut So, my submission is that while Government have effected drastic cuts in the case of Indian education all round, they give a specially favoured treatment to Anglo-Indian and European schools Now, there is one funny thing about this to be observed. In the column for "Revised Estimate, 1931-32," we get a total of Rs 4,78,000, while in the column for Budget Estimate, the total is only Rs 4,74,000 How the provision was expended has not been shown in detail I think that under the head "Special Grants-in-aid" Government must have spent more than what is given in the budget estimate So, deliberately, these figures are not mentioned there

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS Is the honourable gentleman accusing Government of fraud?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Is the allegation against Government one of fraud?

Mr J G MORE I do not mean that there is fraud That this item should escape the sight of Government——

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS The honourable gentleman said that we were deliberately keeping back the figures I think he should withdraw that statement

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The honourable member said that probably there was a larger amount spent surreptitiously. That was the purport of the honourable member's statement I think a statement like that is tantamount to an accusation of fraud, as the Honourable the Home Member has put it

[The President]

Mr J G MORE I will try to explain it first

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS I wish him to withdraw it

Mr J G MORE The total expenditure incurred by Government is Rs 4,78,000 That is Rs 4,000 more than what is estimated for the current year Therefore, I want to know how this Rs 4,000 is being spent by Government, whether under the sub-head (a) or (b)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT That is perfectly right, a legitimate enquiry But what the honourable member said in the same breath was that Government had spent surreptitiously or fraudulently a greater amount than was sanctioned I think the honourable member should withdraw it

Mr J G MORE I did not mean that However, I beg to withdraw if at all such implications might have been conveyed by my remarks to avoid unpleasantness

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS I am glad the honourable gentleman has withdrawn it

Mr J G MORE Now, at page 193 (Civil Estimates)—Direct Grants to non-Government special schools Here too we get——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Now that the honourable member has withdrawn those words, I suppose the explanation asked for will be given as to how that amount differs

Mr J G MORE At page 193, again, under the head "L-Direct Grants to non-Government Special Schools," we see that more money is being spent by Government and the financial stringency which is felt by Government in the case of education of Indians is not felt by Government so far as Anglo-Indian and European education is concerned In the current year's budget estimate the figure is Rs 96,000, and the revised estimate is Rs 89,000 That means Rs 7,000 has been reduced But for the next year Rs 96,000—that is the same figure as the budget estimate of this year—has been provided So, there is no cut there On the contrary, there is an increase of Rs 7,000 from the revised estimate for this year It will, therefore, be seen that the education of Europeans and Anglo-Indians is being treated with more liberality than the education of Indians, at the expense of Indian money

So far as Inspection is concerned, we get, "Pay of Inspector, Rs 12,582" for the next year and the budget estimate for 1931-32 is Rs 12,200 Here also there is no retrenchment effected at all There ought to be a ten per cent. cut, instead of having that ten per cent cut, we get an increase so far as the pay of the Inspector is concerned Still more provision is being made (under establishment) Under the item "Servants at rates varying from Rs 16 to Rs 19" there are only 3 servants The provision is Rs 636, while for this year we have got only Rs 245 More than double the amount has been allotted for the pay of servants We also see that the pay of inspectors has been increased So, this establishment has received no cut, either in salary or in number If we turn to page 194, we see under the head "Scholarships" that the amount of scholarships so far as secondary education is concerned, is being reduced by Government, while under "Colleges" we see an amount of Rs 4,320 This provision has not been made for the current year So we have a new provision for scholarships under Colleges So also in special schools The amount for the current year is Rs 10,240, while for the next year it is Rs 12,480 So, honourable members will see that the education of Europeans and Anglo-Indians is being very favourably treated at the expense of Indian treasury

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS May I ask the honourable member what the increase under secondary schools is? It is minus Rs 7,000

Mr J G MORE I do not speak about that

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS The honourable member takes two items and says there is an increase in them, but there is no mention of the third, in which there is a bigger decrease

Mr J G MORE There is a decrease so far as secondary education is concerned But the special grant-in-aid for European and Anglo-Indian education has not been reduced by a single pie That is what I said

The Honourable Mr G A THOMAS The honourable member did not understand me He referred to page 194 He complained that there was an increase in the grant next year for colleges, an increase in the grant for special schools, but he ignored the fact that there was a decrease under the sub-head "Secondary Schools"

The Honourable the PRESIDENT There is a decrease of Rs. 7,000 to which the honourable member has not referred

Mr J G MORE I have proposed a cut of nearly Rs 1,26,000. If we give effect to this cut, we shall have 20 per cent to 21 per cent cut in the whole establishment, and I justify this on the ground that this subject has received special treatment at the hands of Government at the expense of the Indian treasury But if you look to the percentage cut effected in primary education, we get nearly 18 per cent whereas here we have practically no cut at all There is a very small cut which does not affect the education of Europeans and Anglo-Indians I propose a cut of 20 per cent or 21 per cent in this department I think of all the communities in India, the Anglo-Indians and Europeans are happiest so far as their finances are concerned If this cut is effected, I do not think their education will be starved On the contrary, if we have a cut in primary education to the extent of 18 per cent ——

The Honourable Mr G A. THOMAS May I interrupt the honourable member for a moment, Sir? Is the honourable member aware that the total provision under this head includes reformatory schools to which Europeans are not sent?

Mr J G MORE There is one important fact to be remembered in this connection We know that unfair and unequal treatment is given to Indian students who attend European or Anglo-Indian schools If parents of Indian boys and girls are inclined to send their boys and girls to these schools, we see that Indian students are charged double the fees that the European or Anglo-Indian students pay

Mr S H PRATER The honourable member is under a misapprehension Indian students do not pay higher fees than Anglo-Indian or European students The fact is that the cost of running these schools is met by endowments and these endowments are intended to help European and Anglo-Indian children——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT If the honourable member wishes to speak, he can get a chance I will not allow such interruptions in the shape of counter-arguments

Mr J G MORE For lodging and boarding also Indian students have to pay double rates So, if we look to this invidious treatment that is being given to Indian students in these schools, we can certainly note from that conduct that these schools are meant only for the purpose of Anglo-Indians and Europeans and that Indians are deliberately forbidden to attend these schools and hostels

An important fact to be remembered by this side of the House is that these institutions are giving differential treatment to students of other communities So what I propose is to have a 20 per cent or 21 per cent cut in the whole establishment I am not in a position to show in what item what particular amount can be saved That can be done by Government themselves So, I move that a cut of Rs 1,26,900 be effected in this Department I hope honourable members on this side of the House will support this cut

Mr S H PRATER Sir, in discussing the question of European and Anglo-Indian education, the first point I would like to make is that the duty of educating Anglo-Indian and European children is not met by Government, but is given over mainly to religious bodies and institutions We have 39 schools in this Presidency for Europeans and Anglo-Indians and 30 of them are run by religious bodies and 9 by railways

The second point I would like to make is that the greater proportion of the cost of the education of our community is met by fees and by endowments A reference to the most recent report available to me on Education in this Presidency issued by the Department of Public Instruction shows that the cost of European Education in 1929-30 was met thus

Government grant	5,27,417
Fees	5,95,596
Endowments	3,15,779

so that nearly 63 per cent. of the cost was met by fees and from private sources. Now, this will show that our community is not the pampered child of Government as people imagine It is a poor community The Pickford Commission pointed out that more than 17 per cent of our community were destitute Owing to recent conditions and to economic depression and other causes, the percentage of unemployment has increased much further But we realise how necessary secondary education at least is for our children and we are only too willing to make sacrifices in this direction

I have pointed out how the community bears the greater proportion of the cost of education Another point I would like to make is that when assessing the cost of Anglo-Indian education, we must remember that the majority of European schools in Bombay are boarding schools Five out of 8 high schools for boys and 11 out of 13 girls' schools are boarding schools In these schools the cost per pupil includes boarding charges Again, while the cost of Indian education has steadily increased, as it ought to, with the advance of primary education, the cost of education of our community has steadily decreased In fact, we are trying to decrease the cost further by a federation of our schools and have already done something to decrease the expenditure in this direction

The honourable member opposite (Mr More) referred to the unequal treatment or unequal charges recovered from Indian pupils as against Anglo-Indian and European pupils of these schools The real facts of the case are, as I have said, that these schools are largely supported by endowments and these endowments were made in favour of European and Anglo-Indian children, and because of these endowments our children are able to attend these schools by paying a lower fee and pupils who do not belong to our community and whom these endowments do not cover have naturally to pay the full fees It is not a question of double fees at all Again the number of Indian children in these schools is steadily increasing In the Hartog Committee's report they say that out of 4,921 pupils in our schools there were 1,050 Indians, which is 21 3 per cent. In the Bombay European schools the proportion is higher These schools are appreciated by a growing number of Indians as they appreciate the standard and the type of teaching in these schools and I am sure no Indian would like to see the standard in these schools reduced in any way

I wish the honourable mover of this motion had not introduced into this House the subject of trying to reduce the grants in the education of another Indian community I am sorry that he has moved it and I hope after the explanation I have given him that he will agree to withdraw his cut

Mr R H BECKETT Mr President, in the beginning I should like to offer an explanation of one or two points which have been raised by the honourable mover of this motion in connection with the budget estimates as printed in the White Book

In the first place, turning to page 191 of the White Book, he pointed out that the revised budget estimate for grants to secondary schools for the current year is Rs 4,000 higher than the budget estimate itself That is true If, however, honourable members will look higher up on the same page, they will see that the revised estimates for European Education as a whole are Rs 6,56,000 as compared with Rs 6,68,000. In other words, the total expenditure on Education (Reserved), as estimated for the current year, is really less than the grant which was passed by the Council Now the explanation of that Rs 4,000 is as follows A certain school had erected a building The society which manages the school is in extremely straitened circumstances Under the ordinary Grant-in-aid Code the society was entitled to a building grant-in-aid, and that grant-in-aid to which it was entitled was paid from savings, the straitened circumstances of the society being taken into consideration That is the reason why the revised budget estimate for grants to European secondary schools was slightly increased

The next point in connection with the budget to which I wish to refer, is to be found on page 193 of the White Book The honourable mover of the motion for reduction has pointed out that the budget estimate for 1932 is higher than the revised budget estimate for the current year. The position in regard to the provision made for grants to non-Government special schools is that there has been a 5 per cent cut under special schools Training institutions receive fixed grants amounting to Rs 10,200 (There are, for European schools, no Government training institutions) The grants given to Apprentices' Homes will be paid as earned, subject however to a maximum of Rs 5,000 But why the revised budget estimate is less than we anticipated, and why we have provided for a larger expenditure next year than the revised estimate for this year, is because the major portion of the expenditure under this head is for reformatories, and it is impossible to foresee how many boys will be in these reformatories If the number of boys is large, the expenditure goes up They have to be fed, they have to be clothed. If, however, the number is smaller, or if the cost goes down, then the expenditure, of course, falls That is why the expenditure has gone down this year But we cannot anticipate what will happen in the year to come All I can say is that if that expenditure is not incurred on the reformatories, it will appear at the end of the year as a saving

Another point raised by the honourable member was in connection with the pay of establishment and servants at varying rates of pay But if you look to the budget of establishment, you will see it has gone down from Rs 4,860 to Rs 4,468, that is by 10 per cent If you look at the pay of servants, it will be seen that it is Rs 636 on both sides, but that unfortunately, owing to a misprint, 636 under the budget estimate for 1931-32 has been placed under "Leave salary" If you interchange the position of 636 and 245 you will see, the real state of affairs, namely, that there is 636 on each side and that the 245 for leave salary sanctioned in the current year is cut out from next year's budget

Then the honourable member referred to scholarships If you look at the total for scholarships, you will see that the allowance for scholarships in the budget for next year is Rs 17,000 as compared with the budget estimate of Rs 19,000 in the current year In other words, the demand under this head has gone down by Rs 2,000 The honourable member, whilst going into the figures, referred to the fact that in the budget estimates for 1931-32 and 1932-33 we have Rs 10,240 and Rs 12,480 for scholarships in special schools What has happened

is that in the budget estimate for next year the scholarships as they exist are provided for in full But if he looks underneath, he will see that the sum of Rs 2,680 is taken off What happens in practice is that certain scholarships when awarded are vacated or not taken up by the pupils, and therefore the full estimated amount is not always spent. That being so, we put down a probable saving of Rs 2,608 But I wish to point out that the main factor under these scholarships is that the total grant has been reduced from Rs 19,000 to Rs 17,000

The honourable member has proposed a cut of Rs 1,26,000, and he has attempted to justify that cut by saying that non-European schools are receiving unfair treatment I think it unfortunate that an honourable member of this House should have supported his proposal to reduce the reserved education budget by an argument of that kind He should treat the case, I submit, on its merits, and not try to make comparisons of an invidious nature In regard to the reserved education budget as a whole, I may point out that it has not increased, in fact, it has steadily decreased over a number of years Take the last two years. I divide this reserved education budget up into two heads, European Education and Reformatories Now, clearly, Sir, the expenditure on reformatories does not normally go down, unless the number of boys sent to the reformatories also goes down, and therefore, year after year we find that the expenditure under reformatories is practically the same In 1930-31 the budget estimate—and, after all, it is only fair to compare a budget estimate with budget estimates, not with actuals—was Rs 5,70,000, it was reduced to Rs 5,33,000 in the current year, and it has been reduced to Rs 5,14,000 in the next year

Now, has there been an unfair discrimination in favour of the European schools? Most emphatically, no There are no Government European schools. All the schools are aided institutions, and both on the reserved side and on the transferred side of the budget a 5 per cent cut has been made in the grants-in-aid of secondary schools, so that, the treatment that is meted out to European schools in this respect is exactly the same as the treatment which has been meted out to Indian schools I may say that it was with the very greatest reluctance that the Department agreed to any cut in the grants-in-aid to secondary schools, not only in the case of European schools, but in the case of Indian schools also

Mr J G MORE. On a point of information On page 191 of the White Book, under "D", "Special Grants-in-aid for European and Anglo-Indians education," there is no cut effected in the grant. I wish to know the reason why it is so

Mr R H BECKETT: What the honourable member says is perfectly correct: The grants under "Special Grants-in-aid for European Education" consist of "orphan" and "destitute" grants These are grants paid under articles 40 and 42 of the European Code They are fee grants and grants to assist towards the maintenance of orphanages and schools which support and educate destitute European children In addition to that there are grants to soldiers' children I may point out that the amounts of these grants paid to schools and orphanages

only form a small fraction of what it costs these institutions to maintain these orphans I feel sure that honourable members would not desire to see these grants cut I do not wish to make comparisons between the grants for education reserved and transferred, but the honourable member's remarks compel me to do so. Although we have not got identical grants in the case of the transferred part of the budget, still there are grants of a very similar nature For example, something between Rs 60,000 and Rs 70,000 are provided on the transferred side of the budget for fee grants, that is freeships in Government schools Similarly, we have some Rs 4,50,000 on the transferred side of the budget which provide scholarships for the less educationally advanced communities in the conditions for which scholarships there is a "poverty" clause Similarly in regard to grants to soldiers' children, we have I think—I speak from memory—some Rs. 20,000 on the transferred side of the budget, to enable the sons of soldiers who fought in the War to be sent to educational institutions The conditions, Sir, of Education reserved and Education transferred are somewhat different, as I pointed out Their needs are not exactly the same, but I would point out that these grants-in-aid assist orphanages attached to the schools to keep these children and turn into useful citizens people who might otherwise become wastrels and in some ways a charge on the State Looked at from this point of view it is a very cheap way for the State to get the work done We have similar grants to assist charitable institutions in another part of the budget which does not concern education

I hope, Sir, in view of these explanations, that the honourable mover will see fit to withdraw his motion I feel certain that a reduction of the sort proposed could not be made without doing very great harm

Mr V A SURVE (Ratnagiri District) (Addressed the House in Marathi) Mr President, there is a Marathi proverb that if one sees a hare in one's hand then he is the hunter Similarly, because Government have made this extravagant provision for the education of Europeans, you can easily infer that they are the people who have the power in their hands If you want some more provision for the poor schoolmaster in Indian schools and if you want some more provision for opening new primary schools, you do not get the money These are men who draw fat salaries, live in bungalows and ride in motor cars They enjoy all comforts and they can afford to pay for the education of their children Still, we see in the budget an extravagant provision made for the education of the children of Europeans Whether it is medical aid or education, they get the lion's share On the other hand the ryots who contribute to the fat salaries of these men, they are starved both with regard to education as well as medical aid This discrimination has been made in spite of the fact that there are five Indian ministers on the cabinet If the Government is just, it should be impartial in looking after the needs of its subjects While the children of the poor ryots are struggling for want of facilities for education, we see here a lavish provision for the education of the well-to-do Europeans and Anglo-Indians I request the Honourable Minister to fight for impartial treatment for all and to provide whatever money is available for the education of all children alike I should think that it is unjust that this lavish provision of 4½ lakhs should be made for the education of the children of fat-salaried European population, while the provision made for the education of the children of the ryots is negligible in proportion to their population

Mr J G MORE (Sholapur District) Sir, as to the points raised by my honourable friend Mr Prater, he means to say that there is a 63 per cent contribution made by the European community to the total cost of these institutions That supports my argument why the cut should be larger They can afford to spend for the education of their children

With regard to the explanation he has offered with regard to the treatment given to the Indian boys and girls I am not satisfied with it If a student goes to a European school, he is made to pay double the charges I do not think that an Indian student who goes there eats double the quantity (An Honourable Member Why should he go there ?) We have got every right to go there These are institutions supported by our money What I mean to say is that these institutions are so managed as to forbid Indian students from going there

Regarding the points raised by the Director of Public Instruction, he has not been able to point out the percentage of cut in this reserved subject He says that there is a reduction There is a reduction in certain items and not in all But the percentage of cut effected is very small when compared with the percentage of cut that has been effected in the provision for the education of the Indian students So far as that expenditure is concerned, he has not made out any case to support his contentions So, I think, under the circumstances, this House should vote for the cut

The Honourable Mr G A. THOMAS Sir, I do not know how to wind up this debate There has only been one speaker intelligible to me on the other side of the House I am afraid I could not understand a single word of what the honourable member Mr Surve said, but as he would not understand a single word of what I may say in reply, I may cry quits

Every point that has been raised by the honourable mover of this cut has been more than effectively replied to by the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction, and I will only be covering the same ground over again if I answer each point seriatim. I must again remind the honourable House that of the total of Rs 6,42,000 no less than Rs 1,27,000 is for reformatories As the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction has said, it is quite impossible to make any cut in the provision made for reformatories, because we do not, in the beginning of the year, know how many boys will take advantage of their hospitality If the whole of that amount is taken out, the retrenchment proposed will have to come out of the remaining Rs 5,14,000, which is the estimate for European education, and that comes to a cut of 25 per cent.

I understand that the gravamen of the honourable member's charge against Government is that they have treated the transferred subject of Education very much more drastically than the reserved branch of Education, and the honourable member in his reply said that he was not satisfied with the figures given by the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction It might, therefore, interest this House if I gave them the figures of the year 1921-22 and the figures of the current year as well as the figures proposed in the budget. In the year 1921-22, the provision for European Education (Reserved) was Rs 6,76,000, in the current year it is Rs 5,33,000—a reduction of 21 per cent in ten years Whereas the provision for Education (Transferred) in 1921-22 was Rs 1,75,62,000, in the present year of grace it is Rs 1,94,90,000—an increase of 10 9 per cent That is to say, in the last ten years, whereas there has been a decrease of 21 per cent in European Education, there has been an increase of practically 11 per cent in transferred Education. It is perfectly true that in the budget of next year Government propose to make a smaller percentage reduction in European education than in transferred Education European Education will be reduced by 3 6 per cent compared with this year, that will mean that next year the percentage reduction compared to 1921-22 in European Education will be no less than 24 per cent The reduction next year in transferred Education is 13 8 per cent which means a reduction of 4 3 per cent on the figures of 1921-22 That is to say, the position next year will be that European Education in the last ten years has suffered a cut of 24 per cent whereas transferred Education will have suffered a cut of only 4 per cent I venture to think that no one can accuse Government of having treated the European schools more generously than the Indian schools

Question put, and negatived

Question put, "That the total demand under 31-Education (Reserved)—Rs 6,42,000—be granted," and agreed to

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD Sir, I rise to make a demand of Rs 1,62,31,000 under Education (Transferred)

Question proposed

The Honourable the PRESIDENT There are cuts to this The first motion standing in the name of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik is out of order there can be no motion to omit the total demand The next motion stands in the name of the honourable member Mr More. Will he be able to move it within the ten minutes available?

Mr J G MORE I shall be able to do it in three minutes, Sir I beg to move

"Reduce by Rs. 5,000 the provision for Grants to Universities, Rs. 1,22,000"

The reason why I move this cut is this. Primary, secondary, higher and special education have all suffered on account of the financial stringency. If we look to the figures from 1930 onwards, we find that there is no reduction at all effected in these grants. In 1931-32 there is the same provision as for the preceding year and even in the next year there is no reduction So, I think, in fairness, when there is retrenchment in other branches of Education, there ought to be retrenchment in this branch as well. I move a cut for a very little reduction, Rs 5,000, which I hope will be accepted by the Honourable Minister

Question proposed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT. Will the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction be able to reply to that before we adjourn at seven ?

Mr R H BECKETT Sir, the position in regard to the grant to the University is that, out of the demand of Rs 1,22,000, Rs 1,17,000 is statutory The remaining Rs 5,000, the whole of which the honourable mover proposes to cut, was a grant made to the University when it constituted the University Students' Information Bureau, which on the recommendation of the Lytton Committee took over the work formerly done by the Provincial Advisory Committee for Indian Students The Provincial Committee, as honourable members are aware, gave information to students who proposed to go to England, Europe, or other foreign countries to continue their education, and put them in touch with educational institutions The University Bureau, I may say, is doing excellent work Since they have taken over the work formerly done by the Provincial Advisory Committee, the number of enquiries has largely increased In the year 1929-30 there were some 1,500 enquiries by post, the number of prospectuses of educational institutions sent to students was over a thousand, the number of enquiries made in person by students was nearly a thousand, the number of letters despatched was 2,304, and so on In view of the existing financial stringency, Government approached the University to find out whether they would have any objection to this demand being withdrawn The University, however, pointed out that when they took over this work, Government undertook to pay them what the Advisory Committee for Indian Students had cost Government, namely, Rs 5,000, and as the work of the Information Bureau was costing the University more than Rs 5,000, it did not seem right to the University that Government should withdraw the grant The attitude of the University in this matter was reasonable, but Government again approached the University and said that in view of the fact that Government was effecting a 10 per cent cut in the salaries of its servants, they hoped that the University would see its way to the grant being reduced by 10 per cent., i.e. to Rs 4,500. That position the University, I think, has accepted.

The University is doing definite work which it was asked to do by Government and is performing that work efficiently. It is actually costing the University more than the Government grant. It is very useful work that the University is doing for Indian students I hope, therefore, that the honourable member will withdraw the motion.

Mr J. G MORE Sir, I beg leave of the House to withdraw the motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The House is now adjourned to 2 p m , on Monday, the 7th March 1932.

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

FLOODS IN RATNAGIRI DISTRICT

*Rao Bahadur S K BOLE Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what talukas and how many villages in those talukas in the Ratnagiri District were affected by floods in July last,

(4) Is it a fact that the above officials who are on extension do not require any notice for their retirement under sections 291, Bombay Civil Service Regulations, and 436, Civil Service Regulations ?

TODDY TREE TAPPING LICENSES INAM LANDS

Sardar BHASAHEB RAISINGHJI (THAKOR of KERWADA) (Gujarat Sardars and Inamdars) Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that consent in writing of the proprietor of the land or trees is required before a pass is issued for tapping toddy trees,

(b) whether in an alienated surveyed and settled village the proprietorship of the land or trees is considered to be of the inamdar or of the registered occupants for purposes of issuing permits to tap toddy trees,

(c) whether a tenant is considered as proprietor of the land or such trees in inam villages which are unsurveyed and unsettled and where Record of Rights does not exist,

(d) whether Government are aware that no uniform rule is applied in this respect throughout the presidency,

(e) whether in some districts the Revenue and Excise authorities endorse the toddy tapping licenses in favour of tenants in unsurveyed and unsettled inam villages without seeing the written leases or getting the countersignature of the inamdar on toddy tapping applications?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (a) Yes

(b) In alienated surveyed and settled villages registered occupants are considered to be the proprietors for purposes of issuing permits to tap trees

(c) In unsurveyed and unsettled inam villages the question of proprietorship depends on the conditions of the Sanad granted to the Inamdar In some villages the Inamdar is the owner of the soil and in others he is not The Inamdar's consent is obtained in the former case and the occupants in the latter

(d) As circumstances vary and the nature of rights differs no uniform rule is possible

(e) Permission to tap toddy trees is granted not to tenants as such but to holders of toddy licenses These latter rent the trees from the tenants who sign the application as proprietors of the trees and this is considered sufficient for the purpose of issuing tapping licenses

(b) how many of these posts were given to the minority communities of Daivadnyas and Twasta Kasars,

(c) the present percentage of employees belonging to these communities in the various Government offices,

(d) whether it is a fact that the present percentage is quite low, if so, whether they intend to take steps to ensure that more employment is afforded to these minority communities?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN (a), (b), (c) and (d) In view of the small numbers of these communities and the fact that the time and labour involved in collecting the information required is disproportionate to its utility or public interest, Government regret that they cannot reply to the question

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—resumed.

Rao Saheb P. D KULKARNI (Poona District) Sir, I beg to move

Reduce by Rs. 100—(B)—Government Arts Colleges—(B) 2—Other Arts Colleges—Voted—Rs 4,49,000 (C E page 197)

Sir, good many opportunities are taken by honourable members on Government benches to give advice and offer remarks in seeking co-operation from honourable members representing urban and rural areas, but when a real opportunity arises, the official side seems to be not very much willing to give effect to the advice offered at so many times. This remark is particularly applicable here in the case of educational grants I will cite one glaring instance to indicate how the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee are disregarded, particularly on this question You will see that that committee particularly recommends that there should not be the least cut in educational grants because the Education Department is a nation-building department and the grants for that department should not be curtailed whether there may be a financial stringency or not or whatever the policy of Government may be On page 26 of the Retrenchment Committee's report they say

"We are not in favour of further arresting the progress of education by a cut in this department, as it may mean a disastrous setback from which it may take years to recover"

When they have, in clear terms, expressed their ardent desire that there should not be a cut, as if to take revenge, Government came forward and gave us at the very beginning a 15 per cent cut in the grants to local bodies This year 25 lakhs of rupees are taken away from education only On page 61 of the Blue Book you will find it as stated below

"The decrease under this head is mainly due to the decision of Government to reduce by 15 per cent. grants payable to local bodies for primary education next year owing to the acute financial stringency"

This is the glaring example which I give to show how a distinct recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee is completely disregarded

Mr R H BECKETT May I ask the honourable member what this has got to do with the cut in the grants to colleges? He is speaking, I understand, on a cut in the grants to Government colleges, but his remarks relate to primary education.

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI I shall make it clear in my speech

The Honourable the PRESIDENT. I think the honourable member should tell us how he makes that relevant

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI It shows the policy of Government, namely, curtailment of expenditure on primary education to foster the superfluous Arts Colleges in the Presidency

The Honourable the PRESIDENT This cut is on a particular sub-head

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI The general policy is under discussion, I think.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT General policy as regards Arts Colleges

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI I want to show how Government deprive primary education the benefit of grants while they are extravagant in supporting superfluous arts colleges And in order to justify my statement, I must show that they are very extravagant in providing for arts colleges at the starvation of primary education

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The honourable member's remarks should be confined to the cut which he has moved This is a cut to raise a general debate on the Government policy in the matter of their provision for Government arts colleges and the honourable member must confine himself to that The objection raised is perfectly correct

Rao Saheb P D. KULKARNI But in order to make my point more clear please let me follow my own line of argument

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The honourable member would be well advised to follow the line I lay down

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI Sir, my object in giving those facts to the House was to show that primary education was being starved for the sake of pampering arts colleges It will be seen that the progress made in primary education has been very slow when compared to the progress made in collegiate education The percentage of the school-going population was 5 in 1930-31 At the time of the introduction of the Primary Education Act, i e , in 1921-22 it was 4 So that, the progress made within last ten years is to the extent of one per cent for every ten years If we follow this rate of progress we will require at least a hundred years more to attain the goal achieved in England and in other civilized countries, namely 15 per cent of the population as the number of school-going children That is the goal laid down for us by the late Honourable Mr G K Gokhale The progress made uptill now is very slow

Again, take the expense per head in primary schools and colleges Fifteen annas per month, or Rs 11-4-0 per year, is the amount spent on the education of a boy attending schools giving primary education, while Rs 502 is the sum spent per annum on a boy attending Government arts colleges The report shows that last year (i e , 1929-30) the sum of Rs 342 was spent on each boy attending Government arts colleges So, there has been an increase of Rs 160 per head within the period of one year Then, again, while on one hand nice buildings are provided for the accommodation of Government officers at the cost of lakhs of rupees, and new additions are made to arts college buildings, on the other hand fifty out of every hundred primary schools are held in dharamshalas, temples, chavdis and mosques It is mentioned in the report that fifty out of every hundred primary schools are without buildings of their own Eventually, Sir, arts colleges are maintained at the expense of primary education We have already a large number of arts colleges conducted by societies, public bodies and associations, and as they ably meet the want there is no necessity to continue the present policy of helping Government arts colleges at the expense of primary education. If the policy is to be continued, the prospect for primary education will not be as bright as of the arts colleges But we are in bad need of primary education and to secure that aim I move the motion of cut.

Question proposed

Mr G S GANGOLI (Kanara District) Sir, in availing myself of this opportunity to indulge in a general discussion about Government arts colleges, I do not think I can support the cut, because I am not for any cut in any educational grant However, I have two points to bring to the Honourable Minister's notice The first is, that two of the arts colleges, one in Bombay and one in Poona, which are maintained by Government, may with advantage be discontinued That has been urged several times on the floor of this House I think the Honourable Minister will do well to place the matter before the Gauntlett Committee That will bring a good amount of saving and save us from unnecessary taxation to balance the budget The second point is with regard to the professors of vernaculars We are nowadays crying that in our secondary schools, high schools and colleges, instruction should be given in our mother tongue In four colleges, one each at Poona, Bombay, Ahmedabad and Dharwar, there are professors of vernaculars—two for Gujarati, one at Bombay and one at Ahmedabad, one for Marathi in Poona, and one for Kanarese at Dharwar I shall restrict myself to the Kanarese professor He is a person well versed in the Kanarese language, he has passed every kind of examination in that language, he is lecturer for the B A and M A classes and is also examiner for B A and M A examinations, and I think he is also on the Senate of the University of Bombay Such being the case, I do not know why his pay, which was Rs 300 per mensem was reduced to Rs 150 per mensem I do not know how the Honourable Minister allowed this, because he always fights for a good cause I learn that Government did not fully approve of this reduction and so have not applied the ten per cent general cut to this post as a special case If these are facts—I think they are—then there is a real grievance not only to the person concerned but also to the Kanarese public In fact it is a challenge to our mother tongue He is the only professor so far as Kanarese is concerned, and I do not know why he should be brought to a level which is inferior even to the ordinary high school teacher He is also a graduate He was specially brought from Mysore or Madras on Rs 300 and now all at once he is reduced to Rs 150 per mensem. If Government were to say that this was done owing to stringency in finance, my reply would be that all languages should have been put on the same level I find that the other professors are given their old scales and usual promotions, Only this poor man and the professors of Indian languages are reduced, because they happen to be professors of Indian languages I hope that the Honourable Minister has a good cause If he is really suffering from financial stringency, he will do well to reduce the pay of professors of all languages and not hit this poor man alone These are the two grievances so far as arts colleges are concerned

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE (Ahmednagar District) Mr President, on a motion of this kind it is quite pertinent to enquire what policy

the Honourable Minister has enunciated and practised in the development of our colleges As a parent who has some boys in the college, one thing that I find is that collegiate education has become more and more costly That is partly due to the change in text books from year to year, which can be avoided I was myself at a college about 45 years ago, when our seniors used to hand over their books to us when they passed out But nowadays I find that the text-books on compulsory as well as optional subjects are changed from year to year, Consistency is not a virtue in politics, but it is a virtue in education, and the Educational Department should, I think, examine whether this frequent change in text-books cannot be avoided I may be told that the Educational Department is not so much responsible as the University But my answer to that is that even if the University is the body primarily responsible, the Educational Department represented either by the Director of Public Instruction or by the popular Minister has a very potent and influential voice in the matter That is grievance No 1

There is another grievance So far as the student world is concerned, I must say that, in spite of temptations, discipline is being maintained on a high level, for which the educational authorities are entitled to great credit, But along with it, no consistent effort appears to have been made to follow the system in force in Cambridge and Oxford of having tutors They are very necessary in these days when we find that the number of boys in the class—at least in the first stage of collegiate education—is so large that it is not possible to give that individual attention to the students which is necessary I do not know when the larger reform will come, under which the University will cater only for the best pupils and those who are competent only for a common degree will be weeded out I do not know when the other recommendation to take away the Previous and Inter-arts from the college course will come Even though the Previous is made an examination of the college and not of the University, I believe the pressure on the students which was intended to be taken away remains the same The tutorial institution has not yet been introduced, and even though the fees are raised, individual attention is not received by the students and I may say that there is a good deal of room for improvement in that direction, if only the educational authorities would look to the question of the hours of work I must say regarding the hours of work for professors in these colleges, that if these public servants are compared with other public servants similarly situated, the hours of work are so few that I am not prepared to admit that they are at all overworked With long holidays and vacations intervening, the hours that they are expected to work in colleges for bringing up the youth of the country in proper surroundings and in a proper way are so few that I believe a few more hours given to that useful part of instruction will be welcome to everybody In our days an hour had a meaning, namely, 60 minutes Now that meaning has changed Sometimes you have 40 minutes, sometimes 45 minutes and they are called hours

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Periods

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE: You may call them periods, but they are hours. Suppose English is taught for only 45 minutes, we call that period an hour in these days. We have a right to protest against that system. How can you expect a particular subject to be taught in a period, if you like to call it, of 40 or 45 minutes? Well, the professor takes some time for introducing his subject, whether it be a lesson or any other subject, and by the time he begins, the only way in which he can usefully occupy the remaining minutes is to read in such a way as to see that the prescribed book is finished within the term. I was myself very unfortunate in having a professor for English, but those were good old days, and perhaps education was at a very low ebb. Then we were told, whenever we came across an expression, that it had a negative force, as if "No" and "Not" had ever a positive force! However, I should think that a subject of this kind cannot be taught in so many "periods" as they say. In our time an hour, as I said, meant 60 minutes, and although sometimes the previous professor engaged his class for 50 minutes later on he used to give us at least 67 minutes——

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: What was the college, may I ask?

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE: Do you want to know? But what will be the use of it? But if you want it, I was at the Fergusson College; I was at the Deccan College, and I was at the Elphinstone College. I have the experience of all these three colleges and can give you many more lessons out of my memories, if you care for them. But when the Honourable the popular Minister asks me that question, he thinks that I am not serious, that I am speaking without the book, that I have no experience to go upon. But I may tell him in all seriousness that whenever I talk, I do not like to talk in that light vein. Not only that, I have my relations brought up in colleges during the last 50 years—in professional, science and arts colleges. I am in touch with them. It is as a parent that I feel the necessity of the remarks which I am making here. Let the Minister not take them light-heartedly, I beseech him, and so far as I am concerned, nothing will daunt me. I was only making one point for his consideration. It was perhaps years before the Honourable Minister left any college, if he was at any Indian college. Naturally, therefore, I am not surprised at his inexperience of our Indian colleges. I expected him to go over the several colleges, but these visits are such that everything is pre-arranged. He cannot see any defect. I do not blame him. But it is a handicap to him that he cannot see these colleges at first hand. The Director of Public Instruction, who is the next head, is absorbed in files—almost buried, buried so deep in them—and even though he is paid handsomely, we cannot get anything out of him, except perhaps correlation of certain facts and figures and certain conclusions. He is not like the old Director who used to walk on foot and examine every school in every village and be in touch with all educational institutions. Therefore, whatever he may say in his reports, we should always take it at a discount now-a-days. I do not wish to blame him

[Rao Bahadur G K Chitale]

He is the creature of circumstances These educational institutions have grown in number with the result that he cannot manage them all personally That was expected, I know, when I was in the first Council A Deputy Director's post was created and, that was created with the specific purpose of relieving the Director of part of his work But so far as the rural and urban parts are concerned, I do not think his work has at all been reduced We do not see him going out and inspecting the educational institutions at first hand I do not mean to say that he may not give surprise visits to institutions where incidents of indiscipline occur or are likely to occur But as far as the Deputy Director is concerned, he has disappointed us The appointment was made with a purpose and that purpose has not been achieved Probably the Deputy Director's services are being utilized for office work But it is taking me away from my criticism of the present college life

Now, so far as these Government colleges are concerned, I may say that I am biassed in favour of Government colleges, perhaps on account of my old love for the Deccan and Elphinstone Colleges, and it would not do for me to say that they should be abolished At least as far as the Elphinstone College is concerned, I should think that it is being maintained and ought to be maintained, maintained for the reason that it has a very high reputation and that reputation is still being kept up. The cost of that institution is also not so high, if we consider the fees which are higher than in any other colleges, and I believe that Government is managing it almost on the same funds as an aided institution would require But with so many arts colleges growing up in Poona, and with the addition of the Modern Education Society's new college at Poona, I am not quite sure whether the Deccan College, which is the oldest college, cannot well go I know at the Deccan College the day students are residents of the Camp area I believe that at present the day students in the Previous class number about 100 or 135 They come from the Cantonment of Poona When the Modern Education Society's College is fixed up in the Cantonment, as it is proposed to be, I am sure that the presence of these students would be lost to the old college I have seen it very lately, and I found that some residential rooms were vacant This question might be considered by the authorities, namely, whether the college cannot well go Well, I may say that I have seen the other side of the shield At one time it had very nearly gone But that was many many years ago and since then the proposal has not been revived, and I do not hope that it will be revived so soon, but if the new college matures, I do not see why Government should maintain their own college at Poona That is the suggestion which I would make for the consideration of the Honourable Minister and the Director of Public Intruction, because I know they have also a potent voice in saying "Yes" or "No" to the new college which is being started

With these remarks, I hope that the Honourable Minister and the Director of Public Instruction will take my suggestions in the spirit in which they are made I do not wish to be a carping critic I am never a

carping critic Not only that, but I know that if after making these suggestions I find that they are going to be turned a deaf ear to, then certainly I would myself be very sorry I would be watching for the answer I have many more opportunities to take action while this department is before us for discussion With these remarks I hope they will be taken in the spirit in which they are made

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District) Sir, I, being a representative of Sind, will not be able to support the policy advocated by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Chitale I would rather suggest and even pray to Government to shift one of these colleges which are not required in areas like Poona to the province of Sind. Sind has got a certain claim upon the Presidency so long as the forced wedlock between Sind and the Presidency stands intact

As has been made out by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale, the people of the Presidency are far advanced and can stand on their own legs. Government will therefore be well advised to establish a Government College in the province of Sind There are two reasons for this There are only two aided colleges in Sind One is an old college at Karachi and the other is situated in Hyderabad But owing to lack of funds, both are deteriorating I have been urging upon Government the necessity of contributing to their funds in order to enable them to maintain themselves That is one of the defects in Sind colleges Another defect in those colleges is that as they are privately managed institutions, the students are drawn into the whirlpool of politics and every day we see that there is nothing but indiscipline among the students They are drawn away from their academic course and they think of nothing but politics every day I am a member of one of the college boards and my experience is that when I enter the college precincts I feel that I have not come to an academic institution but to some political meeting the fundamental functions of which are to deliberate upon the present-day politics and lay out schemes, carry on campaigns against Government and against their own institutions This has been the complaint of saner elements connected with the college administration.

Therefore, I think in order to maintain a uniform course of life for the students, it is absolutely necessary and urgent that a Government college should be established in a central place like Hyderabad and financed from Government funds Every division of this presidency has got a right to get the benefit that could be drawn from the funds in the public exchequer As regards the other divisions of the presidency, each division can boast of a Government College There is no danger of their deterioration, as long as Government have got funds and as long as Government are in a position to finance their own institutions, and there is no apprehension that they will not be able to do so Therefore, a Government institution in a division gurantees to the public of that division a course of studies to students who really wish to pursue an academic course and not to be trained in extraneous matters Therefore,

[Syed Miran Mahomed Shah]

I earnestly appeal on behalf of the people of Sind as they have been appealing to Government so long, that this is really a case in which the Honourable Minister must take the boldest step and stop one college in a locality like Poona, which can afford to stand on its own legs, and establish a college in Sind, which is very much prayed for With these few remarks I resume my seat

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) Mr President, I endorse the views expressed by the honourable member Syed Miran Mahomed Shah It is now more than 85 years since the advent of British rule in Sind, whose population is about 35 lakhs Up till now, there have not been many people who have passed a university course Even among the members of this Council, Hindus and Mahomedans, there is only one exception in the honourable member Syed Miran Mahomed Shah who has passed the portals of the University Several of the honourable members from other parts in this House are M A 's, B A.'s and LL B 's From this it can be seen that the standard of education in Sind is very low Mussalmans of Sind in this House and from outside are united in their appeal to Government to establish a Government college in Sind

The existing colleges are private colleges and the Mussalmans students are sometimes turned out for want of accommodation They therefore are compelled to go to Aligarh and Junagad If Government establish a college of their own in Sind, there will be no necessity for Mahomedan students to go all the way to Aligarh or other places Either in respect of primary education, secondary education or collegiate education, Sind cannot compare with presidency proper, where people are well-versed in English I want to give here one instance Karachi is the capital of Sind In Ranchore and Lyari Quarters poor people live Majority of them are Mussalmans Very few know English When they are away on their work, if a telegram is received, with great search a man is found to read it When this is the condition in Karachi, what will be the condition in rural areas of Sind ?

Another point I wish to bring to the notice of Government is that they have been having the support of Sind Muslim bloc for a very long time Now, it may be evident to Government that that support is dwindling since March last The reason can easily be found out Therefore, I say that the Government has no sympathy for Sind Muslims For want of a Government college, where discipline will be enforced, the students in colleges are without discipline So, I warn Government that the establishment of their own college is absolutely essential

I am not particular about the closing of the college at Poona But my request to Government is that they should somehow find money for the opening of a college in Sind

Mr R H. BECKETT Mr President, first of all, I should like to say that I very much appreciate the attitude of honourable members who have spoken on this motion to reduce the grant to Government arts colleges. I think that throughout they have shown an appreciation of the good work which is being done by these colleges As I understand the position, honourable members want to satisfy themselves that, in a year of financial stringency, the money that is being spent on Government arts colleges is being well-spent and that it could not be better spent on some other kind of education I think the honourable members are exaggerating the cost of Government arts colleges Naturally, Sir, when I knew that the budget was to be reduced, I went into the question, amongst other things, of whether it was necessary or desirable that Government arts colleges should be closed The first thing which I did was to look up the cost of collegiate education in other provinces in India and compare that cost with the cost of collegiate education in this Presidency I found that the percentage of provincial expenditure on education which is expended on collegiate education, is smaller in this Presidency than in any other province of India I give the figures for 1929-30, because that is the latest year for which I could get the figures for the other provinces The percentage of provincial expenditure on University education in this Presidency to the total provincial expenditure on education was 6 6, next to it comes Madras with 9 5 (omitting the North-West Frontier Province which is 8 6), then comes the Central Provinces 10 4, the Punjab 12 4; Bihar and Orissa 19 4, the United Provinces 20 6 and Bengal 25 2. So, it did not look as if this Presidency was spending an undue amount on collegiate education But honourable members may ask whether the money that is being spent is being spent to the best advantage, and whether too much is not being spent on Government arts colleges If members will turn to page 196 of the White Book, they will find that the gross expenditure on Government arts colleges is Rs 6,71,000 On page 42 of the White Book, they will find that fees from Government arts colleges amount to Rs 3,41,000 In addition to that, we receive a sum of Rs 48,000 from endowments Perhaps, in passing I may mention that these endowments have been given subject to certain conditions Before Government could close down these arts colleges, legal opinion would have to be taken, as to whether this step was in accordance with the conditions which Government agreed to when the donations were accepted I do not wish to lay too much stress on this point, but it is one which Government would have to take into consideration, for if they did not carry out their undertakings, other donors are not likely to come forward in the future If we now deduct the receipts from fees and endowments from the total cost of Government arts colleges, the total net expenditure to Government comes to Rs 2,82,000 only I have asked myself what would be the result if we closed all Government colleges We should first of all have to pay the pensions of the staff; and, secondly, we should have to aid the colleges which take their place It is very difficult to calculate what the pension charges would amount to Putting it at one-fourth of the expenditure on salaries, it would come to Rs 1,39,000 leaving only about Rs 1,50,000 saved Out of this saving we should have to pay grants to aided colleges Hardly anything would be left Honourable members may argue that in course of time the pensions would be paid off, because members of the staff would die and so, in the end, that money would be saved. But I would like to point out that the cost of the staff is getting less and less each year Within a few years the whole of the Indian Educational Service will be replaced by Class I of the Provincial Service for which the rates of pay are substantially smaller Also the rates of pay for class II of the B E S have recently been reduced for new entrants So we see that in future the cost of the colleges, instead of being Rs 2,82,000, will be very substantially less If in addition we remember that, if the colleges are closed, other colleges which take their place will have to be aided, I think the House will realise that the saving to Government would be very little. The time is coming when Government colleges will not cost very much more than aided colleges

Now, Sir, there is another point which I think I should raise This question has been brought up by certain honourable members who have referred particularly to the two oldest colleges, the Elphinstone and the Deccan Colleges These colleges, Sir, are the two of the oldest in the Presidency They have both of them histories which date back over a century, and they have built up valuable traditions Traditions are easier to destroy than to build up This House is building up traditions under the guidance of its Presidents and the example of its senior members These traditions are felt by every member of the House and all members are influenced by them They will leave their impress on the history of the Presidency Still more do the traditions of an old college influence and, indeed, leave an indelible mark on the characters of the generations of students which pass through it I think, therefore, that it would be a bad day for this Presidency if one of these old colleges were to be closed The saving effected would not be much It is true that in the case of the Deccan College at the present moment the cost per student happens to be higher than in some of the other colleges, but it must be remembered that this is because it has so happened that certain highly paid senior officers of the Department are on the staff of that college The cost of the Deccan College will, in my opinion, be reduced substantially in the years to come. There are, for example, 4 I E S professors of over 50 years of age on the staff, 3 of them are over 52 years of age, and they will soon be going Thus the cost of the Deccan College will fall at no distant date Also, if the Deccan College were to be closed, it does not mean that the whole of the staff of the Deccan College will be dismissed forthwith At least some of them would be transferred to other colleges, and if they were more expensive than the men whom they have displaced, the cost of those colleges would go up That is why I have thought it desirable to treat the colleges as a whole No country can afford not to give the best education possible to its best brains, and although we cannot measure it in actual money, I think we must all realise that these colleges have played a great part in the development of the Presidency. For the comparatively small sum which Government is spending on its Government colleges, the Presidency is getting very good value indeed

[Mr R H Beckett]

Therefore, when I advised Government regarding the reductions to be made in different parts of the budget, I thought that it would be a blunder of the first magnitude to recommend the closing of any of the Government colleges I hope that what I have said will convince honourable members that I was right in coming to that conclusion

So much for the general principle as to whether these colleges should be closed or not One or two other matters have been raised by honourable members It has been pointed out that the cost per student is high, figures being quoted from the Annual Report which has recently been published It should be remembered, however, that those figures were taken in an exceptional year when the number of students in the colleges had decreased and before the increased fees had come into effect

A question has been raised by another honourable member regarding the reductions in pay of the lecturers in vernaculars That, I think, has already been dealt with in this Council in reply to questions The position is that these lecturers were only part-time lecturers, they have not a great number of students, nor have they to work for a great many hours per week If as a result of legislation by the University, vernaculars are introduced into the Intermediate course, so that these lecturerships become full-time jobs, then I am sure Government would reconsider the question of their salaries

Another honourable member said that there is a constant change of text-books, but as he himself remarked afterwards, that is really a matter for the University to consider I do not think, Sir, that the Department can accept responsibility for it

The hours of work are said to be few as compared with the work of other public servants I do not agree with that It is true that the hours of lecturing, the actual lecturing, may be fewer, but lectures require preparation, particularly post-graduate lectures In addition a great deal of tutorial and other work has to be done, so that the hours of lecturers are by no means a true figure to quote as a measure of the amount of work that is done

Honourable members from Sind have shown that they appreciate the Government colleges, and I am very glad to find that they would like to have a Government college in Sind But I should be sorry to see this done at the expense of closing one of the oldest colleges in the Presidency

Mr B S KAMAT Sir, I am rather at a disadvantage owing to my arrival in the House a little late not to know the previous points raised in the debate Speaking about the two Government colleges, to which the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction has just now referred, I wish to reiterate, if I may, my views on this question, views which I put forward in this House only a few days ago while talking about the general discussion of the budget

Sir, in the Retrenchment Committee we had the occasion to go into the question of the abolition of these two colleges,—the Deccan College and the Elphinstone College—from the financial point of view. I think we threshed out at that time the amount of economy that could be achieved if Government were to abolish these two colleges, and after taking the balance of advantages and disadvantages into consideration, I believe the majority of the members came to the conclusion that it would be entirely bad economy to abolish these two colleges The Director of Public Instruction has just now pointed out that many people have got an exaggerated notion about the money spent on these colleges One point, however, which is overlooked generally is that, even assuming that these colleges were abolished, many of the students in these colleges would have to go and join some other colleges which would have to be paid for in a way by Government, inasmuch as probably increased grants-in-aid will have to be given to the colleges which they join

Then again, the other day I pointed out the moral value, the value of a good model and the value of a good tone which these colleges maintain in the Presidency I do not therefore take my stand on purely the question of tradition and the question of sentiment for retaining these colleges, but even on the ground of economy I think people have greatly magnified ideas of the amount of economy they would be able to effect if these colleges were to be abolished I happen to know something about non-Government colleges as well I know there are many educational societies in the Presidency, which are doing very good educational work I have nothing to say against them Yet, those who can compare students turned out by a Government college with the students turned out by a non-Government college will feel, if they have an unbiassed mind, that there is a great deal, there is a distinctive feature, in the Government colleges which they can see in the products of those colleges I for one hold, Sir, that the Government colleges have more or less a cosmopolitan air about them You find in Government colleges students in fair proportion belonging to every community, Parsi, non-Brahmin, Mahomedan and so on, and there is not a predominating communal tone in the Government colleges, which is generally and inevitably found in colleges where students from the poorer communities have to go for their education I do not mean that it is a defect of the other colleges for which we can blame them, it is inevitable in them Those colleges are meant for less expensive style But in the case of the Government colleges there is automatically a cosmopolitan air and this intermixture of students has a great deal of effect on the moral tone, the manners and the general refinement and culture of the students joining the Government colleges Secondly, a great deal depends on the staff which is in many respects unlike the staff in cheaper colleges A great deal also depends on the environment and surroundings provided by the Government colleges On these general grounds, I maintain there must be some sort of a college where well-to-do parents, who like to have a certain high level of manners, of refinement, of polish, may send their boys to, if we have to cater for such parents in the Presidency, I do think, even at the risk of having a little bit of expenditure on these colleges, Government must maintain these two colleges, for the sake of those parents who are prepared to pay higher fees I think it would be a bad day, as the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction said, to entirely abolish these colleges in favour of those which are ostensibly and necessarily run on cheaper lines

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD Sir, I think almost all the criticisms that have been made have been answered by my honourable friend the Director of Public Instruction There is really nothing for me to add With regard to some of the remarks which have fallen from the lips of my honourable friend opposite, I may say that when I made enquiry as to what college the honourable member was attending, my question was perfectly relevant Because the honourable member had informed the House that about 50 years ago he was attending a college where an English Professor was delivering lectures which were not very satisfactory I really wanted to know who that professor was and whether it was a Government or aided college I really do not see why the honourable member flew into temper and said that I was overawing him On the contrary, it was evident that I was being overawed by him. The Government colleges, as the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction has said, are doing very useful work Wherever I go, I hear good words used for Government colleges and also a desire of parents expressed to send their boys to them With regard to hours of lectures and periods, may I inform the honourable House that of all departments and of all subjects, education is a subject in which experiments have to be tried? It is essentially an experimental subject and therefore what was considered good 50 years ago when the honourable member was attending a college might not be considered quite useful in these days We have to follow the system in colleges of advanced countries and the system followed there is being adopted by the Educational Department If any system is found unsuitable after trial for this country, it would be dropped " But experiments must be tried

With regard to the remarks of my honourable friend from Sind, I do not want to answer the questions raised by my honourable friend Mr Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch because those questions are perfectly irrelevant But he is not justified in telling this House that because Sind sends members here who have not got degrees, therefore Government ought to step in The best example is that of his own, and how can we blame the voters of Karachi for sending the honourable member in preference to a graduate? It is not in our hands

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH There is no graduate available

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD As long as honourable members like himself are in evidence before the voters, I do not think graduates will have any chance With regard to the remarks of the only honourable member from Sind who is a graduate, I think when he wants a Government college in Sind, I really do not know whether he is echoing the feelings of the people of Sind Does he want the Madressah to be abolished ?

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH No, in addition

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD In addition to the Madressah ?

Khan Bahadur M A KHUHRO He spoke about the discipline of the present colleges

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD That is a different matter These are remarks about the want of a college, no remarks were addressed by the honourable member about discipline I think the whole gravamen of his speech was that he wanted a Government college Of all years, the present is the worst in which an appeal of that kind could be made Perhaps it would be difficult for Government to give even the usual grant to the Madressah this year If the full grant is given this year it would be as much as Government could manage But a new college is out of question

Honourable MEMBERS . Not for Mahomedans only

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD I think the principal demand comes from Mahomedans in Sind I have not heard it coming from the general public asking for a Government college, but if there be any general demand I think there will be time enough for Government to consider it The speeches by members coming from Sind have been very sympathetic and I hope the House will realise that the cut does not deserve any support and that the honourable member who has moved it will withdraw it

Rao Saheb P D KULKARNI I beg leave to withdraw my motion, Sir.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn

Dr M K DIXIT (Surat District) Sir, I beg to move the motion which stands in my name, viz —

Omit—(D)—Government Professional Colleges—Provision for Training College for Secondary Teachers—Rs 73,000 (C E page 200)

I move this cut as a protest against the further expenditure asked for the expansion of Secondary Training College and against the closing down of 14 classes from the Elphinstone High School In the Blue Book, page 211, we are told that the Secondary Training College, Bombay, has at present accommodation for only 60 students That this is very inadequate will be clear from the percentage of trained teachers to the whole body of teachers in Anglo-Vernacular schools which is only 5 2

I cannot make out how this figure of percentage of 5 2 has been arrived at I have looked through the reports of the Department of Public Instruction for the last three years I have not been able to look through the most recent report because I have not received a copy of it yet, but I have just read a review of it in the local papers Probably it has been received in the Council library, but some honourable member has taken it and I have not been able to look through it, but I find that nowhere

this figure of 5 2 could be traced I have come across, however, a figure of 17 6 which is the percentage of trained teachers from amongst the teachers in the Anglo-vernacular schools I do not know if this is really a mistake or if it is due to my inability to find from the report, but so far as I am concerned, I feel that the percentage of trained teachers to-day stands at 17 6 and not 5·2 Of course, I stand open to correction in case my honourable friends opposite show me that the real percentage is 5 2 and not 17 6 I have got figures from the last three reports For 1927-28, the total number of teachers was 4,581, of whom about 887 are trained This comes to 21 5 per cent In the year 1928-29, the total number of teachers was 4,749, of whom 855 were trained The figure comes to 18 per cent For the year 1929-30, the total number of teachers I find in the report as 4,787, of whom 833 were trained, and the percentage works out at 17 6

The point that I wish to make is this, that though the percentage looks small, according to my working out, it comes to 17 6 and the percentage given in the Blue Book comes to 5 2, but really it is not so The point on which I want to lay special emphasis is this, that the training college only admits graduate teachers for training and other teachers are not eligible for admission in that college So, this is a faulty method of calculating the percentage If we take the number of teachers who are graduates and who are eligible for admission into this college and then take the number of trained teachers, I think it will be justifiable to take percentage from those data To take percentage from the data of 4,787 teachers in all, of which only about 1,900 are graduates and therefore are eligible for admission for training, and then to calculate the percentage is a wrong way of putting the figures as those figures are likely to prove misleading Really speaking, the percentage of trained teachers to graduate teachers will be more than 40.

Then, Sir, we have been told that there will be a saving of Rs 34,368 by closing down fourteen classes in the Elphinstone High School This figure is also, to my mind, somewhat misleading It is stated that the closing down of 14 classes will mean a saving to Government on account of the pay and allowances of 17 assistant masters on Rs 70—200 and one drawing teacher on Rs 60—150 and on account of the reduction of a special post of Rs 250—10—350 to that of an ordinary teacher on Rs 70—200 This figure of Rs 34,368 has been arrived at by taking it for granted that those teachers who will be relieved will be drawing the average on the scale of Rs 70—200, namely, Rs 135 But what will be the result of closing down these 14 classes from the Elphinstone High School? The senior assistants who are in charge of the classes will not be sent away, the teachers who will be relieved will be the most junior drawing not more than Rs 70 Government have arrived at the figure of Rs 34,000 and odd by taking the average of Rs 135 per teacher, while really speaking the teachers who will be relieved will be drawing only Rs 70 Therefore, the actual saving will be far less than Rs 34,000, really speaking, it will be only half of that, because in arriving at Rs 34,000 Rs 135 has been taken as the average saving per teacher, whereas the real saving per teacher will be only Rs 70, which is nearly half of Rs 135 These 17 teachers, if you take account of the ten per cent cut, will be drawing Rs 63, and 17 teachers drawing Rs 63 per mensem for one year, including the Bombay allowances, will give something like Rs 17,340 and not more The actual figure that has been shown is Rs 34,368, while the amount actually saved will be only half of that I am open to correction, if there is any mistake in my calculations So, Sir, if you take that the amount that will be saved by relieving these 17 teachers will be only Rs 17,340, we have against this a loss of Rs 22,000 being the amount shown in the Blue Book (page 211) as the fees from students who will be thrown out by the closing down of the 14 classes in that institution Thus, actually Government will have a loss of Rs 4,660 and not a gain of Rs 16,568 as shown in the Blue Book When to this amount of Rs 4,660, which is the loss according to my calculation, is added the sum of Rs 7,411, which is asked for as the grant, the extra expenditure will be Rs 12,000 and a little more every year. Now, in these days of financial difficulties, when we are cutting down the grants for nation-building departments, if my calculation is correct, we shall be incurring a further cost on the Secondary Training College of Rs 12,071

Has an emergency really arisen for the expansion of this training college ? We have been told that the University Reform Committee of 1924 recommended that one hundred graduates should be trained every year We are now in the year 1932 We slept over it for nearly seven years, did not do anything during this long period, and when our finances are so bad that new taxes have to be imposed and funds have to be borrowed for carrying on the administration of the presidency, are we justified in increasing and expanding the Secondary Training College at an extra expenditure of Rs 12,000 per year ? I think we can as well wait till the finances of our presidency improve Further, I would point out that though it is stated there is room in the Training College only for 60 students, we find it stated also in the report that some more students were allowed to attend and actually 75 students attended the college and got through Besides, I am told that there is also a private institution in Poona conducted by one Mr Atre which is training up students for the University examination If that institution is working satisfactorily—I am told it sent up 15 students last year for the B T. examination of the University and almost all of them got through—I do not see why we should incur a further expenditure of Rs. 12,000 on the Secondary Training College, Bombay, and not allow Mr Atre's institution to progress further Even if this provision is wholly cut out, and this Secondary Training College is closed and ceases to grant any diploma as it used to do before, or ceases to train up students for the University degree of B.T as is done at present, we can provide for training of secondary teachers elsewhere without much expenditure. We can have three training colleges, one at Poona, one at Bombay and one at Ahmedabad, and I think they have got a sufficient number of hands, professors or teachers, who can train up the students in the curriculum of the secondary training course (B T degree).

[Dr M K DIXIT]

Some difficulty may be pointed out regarding this suggestion on the score of the absence of facilities for giving practical lessons in teaching in practising schools But in all these three centres, Bombay, Ahmedabad and Poona, there are a sufficient number of secondary schools where arrangements for giving practical lessons can be made so as to meet the needs of the University degree Moreover, as 75 students were trained last year, if it is absolutely necessary to train the full hundred in the Secondary Training College, Bombay—which I think will not be necessary, as a private institution already exists in Poona—but if it were absolutely necessary, I do not see any reason why the present staff, which can manage 75 students, cannot manage a hundred In various arts colleges we find that there are classes containing 100 or 150 pupils and even more, and the college professors are quite able to cope with these classes These are all advanced students, all graduates, and if 75 students can be coached up by the present staff, I do not see why a hundred cannot be coached up by them I do not, therefore, see any necessity for increasing the staff

Then, look at the expenditure that we are incurring The expenditure per pupil comes to something like Rs 1,000 per student That is certainly a very high expenditure If it is possible to effect economy by closing down this college, I think we will be saving a fairly good amount, viz Rs 73,000

I have not yet touched the other side of the question, namely, the effect of closing down the 14 classes of the Elphinstone High School The last paragraph of the note in the Blue Book says that Government are satisfied that in a city like Bombay, no hardship will be felt by the public if the number of classes at the Elphinstone High School is reduced by half Whenever Government wish to carry out any proposal of theirs they are always satisfied no matter what obstacles come in the way But what will be the exact situation ? By closing down these 14 classes, you will have to disband nearly 500 students, taking 35 students as the average for a class These 500 students will be removed from the Elphinstone, High School and they will have to go somewhere else I dare say that there are a number of schools in the city and they can be accommodated But of these 500 students who will be disbanded, how many are receiving tuition free ? I am told, Sir, that in this school 22 per cent of the backward class and Mahomedan students are given freeships and all the depressed class students are taught free If this is correct, then the question arises whether all these pupils who have been taught free in this school, but will be thrown out as a result of the closing down of these 14 classes, will also be admitted as free students in the other high schools of the city The difficulty will be tremendous for them We have always been clamouring in this House that we must make available plenty of facilities for the education of the depressed classes, backward classes and Mahomedans. If, as I say, the effect of closing down these 14 classes is the stoppage of facilities for freeships to some of the depressed class, backward class and Mahomedan students who now study in the school, I ask the House,

[Dr. M. K DIXIT]

I ask the Government, why should they close down these 14 classes and prevent 500 students from taking their education in a Government high school ?

There is another aspect of the question also We were told by honourable members on the opposite side that the education imparted in Government high schools is certainly more desirable than that given in private schools, and that the education given in private schools does not come up to the same standard as that imparted in the Elphinstone High School Is it, Sir, worth while removing these 500 boys from a better-managed institution to private schools where the management is not so efficient ? I put this view also before the House, that in the interests of the depressed, backward classes and Muhammadans it is not desirable that these 14 classes should be abolished and provision made for the expansion of the Secondary Training College

I think, Sir, that I have made out a good case for not expanding the Secondary Training College at the cost of 500 students I have also made out a good case for keeping intact the 14 classes which are intended to be closed down, for some years to come at any rate, and not forcing the hands of the poor depressed class, backward class and Muhammadan students by seeking education on payment of fees I am afraid many of them will have to discontinue receiving education for want of means Therefore, I hope the House will agree with me that the Secondary Training College should not be expanded at the cost of the 14 classes of the Elphinstone High School but should be deferred to a future date With these words I commend the motion to the acceptance of the House

Rao Saheb B G DESAI (Kaira District) Sir, I support the cut proposed by the honourable member from Surat (Dr Dixit) on the ground that the expansion of the Secondary Training College that is sought to be effected at the cost of 14 classes from the Elphinstone High School is absolutely undesirable As at present, the cost of the Secondary Training College is really very heavy, as would appear from the last paragraph on page 23 of the report of the Director of Public Instruction for the year 1930-31 It says

"The expenditure on the College during the year was Rs 68,366 and the cost to Government per student was Rs 1,099"

The training of students at a cost of about Rs 1,100 each is no doubt very costly

Again, there is another item which you find at page 200 of the White Book The item refers to the grant of stipends to teachers from non-Government schools, for which purpose a sum of Rs 10,000 has been provided Government can very well retrench this expenditure and spend the amount in some more desirable channels They have already withdrawn stipends from primary training colleges the students wherein are poorer than those receiving training in the Secondary Teachers' Training College When stipends from these primary colleges have been abolished, it sounds all the more logical and reasonable that they should not be continued any longer in the Secondary Training College

Mr R H BECKETT On a point of information, Sir Did I understand the honourable member to say that stipends have been discontinued in primary training institutions ?

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI Yes, Sir.

Mr R H BECKETT That is not the case. The honourable member is misinformed

Rao Saheb B G DESAI What I mean to say is that the stipends have not been allowed to the extent they were allowed before, but only a very small sum is allotted for that purpose now When I say that stipends have been discontinued, I mean to suggest that they are appreciably curtailed, so much so that the grant that is allotted for the purpose is comparatively insignificant and small In comparison with that grant, I say that Rs 10,000 that is being spent from year to year for giving stipends to non-Government teachers in the Secondary Training College is rather too large and of course tends to raise the expenditure to a very great extent

The honourable the mover of the cut has already drawn the attention of the Honourable House to the figures of the three years 1927-28, 1928-29 and 1929-30, and hence I need not repeat them On further reference to the report on Public Instruction for the year 1930-31, it would appear that the total number of teachers is 4,808 of whom 815 teachers are trained That brings us to a percentage of 17 Thus it clearly appears from the very latest reports on Public Instruction that have been published by Government that the figure of 5 2 mentioned at page 211 of the Blue Book is not correct Looking to the proportion of graduate teachers that are trained, it will appear that in the year 1927-28 in Government schools there were 493 graduate teachers of whom 334 were trained That gives a percentage of 67 In the year 1929-30 there were 510 graduate teachers in Government schools of whom 328 were trained That gives us a percentage of 64, and in the year 1930-31 the total number of graduate teachers was 493 of whom 342 were trained, which gives a percentage of 69 It will thus appear that of the total number of graduates that are admissible to the S T Training College more than 69 per cent graduates are already trained. So, Sir, there is no case for undertaking a scheme of expansion of the Secondary Training College in these days of financial stringency

Again, Sir, there is another ground on which I am opposing the expansion of the College at the cost of the 14 classes in the Elphinstone High School. The Elphinstone High School, I understand, is primarily meant for high school purposes The contribution has been given by the original donors specifically for accommodating a high school in the building We find, however, that year after year the main object of the donation has been given the go-by and another institution which is not meant to be accommodated there has been allowed to creep in and expand at the cost of the High School It is certainly not advisable or proper to abolish 14 classes to make some room for the expansion of the Secondary Teachers Training College With these words I support the cut moved by my honourable friend Dr Dixit and trust that the Education Department will consider it advisable to give up the proposed scheme for the expansion of the Secondary Teachers Training College and further refrain from abolishing 14 classes from the Elphinstone High School, which is, as has been amply proved by the Honourable the mover of the cut a measure involving clear loss in revenue and hence entirely inexpedient and unsound even from the practical point of view

Rao Saheb R V VANDEKAR (Nasik District) Sir, I rise to support the cut moved by the honourable member Dr Dixit The proposal is to create new highly paid posts, in these days of financial stringency on the cadre of the Secondary Training College which teaches up to B T degree, but in order to enable Government to spend in the way proposed, no less than 14 classes in the Elphinstone High School will be abolished In this way 17 teachers will lose their employment and two young men will be luxuriously provided for By closing 14 classes, nearly 500 boys will have to go to private schools and will lose the advantage of education in a well-managed Government High School

I have to bring to the notice of this honourable House that the College at present has an adequate staff of 6 lecturers and professors to teach 75 B T degree students It passes my comprehension why this staff is not able to teach 25 students more and why two more highly paid teachers are wanted

There is also another aspect of this question In a training college a sufficiently large and adequate practising school is an absolute necessity At present 28 classes provide practice for 75 students, out of which 14 classes will be abolished under the new scheme But I fail to understand how the remaining 14 classes will suffice to give adequate teaching practice to the 100 students that will, in future, be trained at the college Under ordinary circumstances, one would expect that provision for more classes would be made when the proposal for increasing the admissions is put forward In these days of financial stringency which compels the Honourable Minister to reduce the expenditure on primary education, a substantial increase of expenditure on higher education is not justified and I am, therefore, compelled to support this cut

Mr M H MEHTA (Panch Mahals District) Sir, I rise to support the cut and in doing so I must say that I differ from the view of the honourable member Dr Dixit His view is that the College should be abolished There is necessity of such a college to which private schools are allowed to send teachers for the B T examination As we see in certain districts a model school is a necessity Similarly, a model college for training teachers is also a necessity It may be that we can develop the training of teachers by allowing well-equipped and well-managed schools to send up teachers for the B T examination The whole point that is to be considered in this case is whether the expenditure that is proposed to be incurred is justifiable or not My submission is that at the present time, when there is so much depression and when Government has proposed a very drastic cut in education, there is no hurry to go in for the development of this training college We see that out of nearly 75 teachers that are sent for training about 10 to 11 come from Government schools The rest of them come from Native States or aided and unaided schools It is an admitted fact, and the Director of Public Instruction's report also shows, that owing to want of sufficient funds many of the schools are not in a position to pay sufficient salaries to graduate teachers. In the last report it has been stated that in many of the schools graduate teachers are paid from Rs 40 to Rs 80, Rs 80 being the maximum salary that is being paid in many of the schools

Under these circumstances, I say that it is not possible for aided or other schools to depute teachers to the Training College for acquiring better qualifications Even after they are trained, they would aspire to a higher salary which the schools are not in a position to pay Therefore, there will be much more discontent among the teachers This is not the proper time when the Training College should be developed and more accommodation should be provided for the students If the work goes on as at present, the time will come for the expansion of this college

Again, I differ from the honourable member Rao Saheb Desai that the stipends should be abolished altogether or should be reduced We find now that out of 75 students only 25 students are given stipends They used to receive Rs 40 per month for 10 months So, Rs 10,000 is spent. Now, the stipends have been reduced from Rs 40 to Rs 30 and so Rs 7,500 has been provided for stipends If the college is to be made much more popular, instead of decreasing the stipends, more stipends should be given to the students, so that private aided schools may be encouraged to send more teachers for training Those students who get stipends from Government will get the salary from the schools from which they are sent The schools which are not fortunate enough to get stipends for their teachers will have to pay the full salary to the teachers when they are sent for training and will have to engage additional hands to work in their schools That is why the schools are handicapped Year after year we receive circulars from the department to send applications for admissions to the training college But we are not in a position to send a sufficient number, owing to financial stringency So, instead of developing the institution by additional professors, the best course for this institution to be more popular would be to give the additional amount of Rs 30,000 that is proposed to be spent on the additional number of professors, for stipends That will be a better solution Again, it is necessary also to encourage the training college by giving additional grant to those schools which are able to secure qualified and trained teachers A special amount should be spent on teachers who get such qualification We have an appreciation grant, which is paid to teachers when they pass with a high percentage of marks They are given a certain reward When such teachers, after taking their degree,

join their respective schools, they should be paid certain additional pay for which the schools must get a special grant If that is done, the training college would be better patronised According to my opinion that will be a proper remedy, rather than having this burden on the training college Even at present the expenditure on the college is too high We find that the salary of the principal is extremely heavy What is spent on the principal is spent on the rest of the staff It is better to find out a principal who will draw a less salary than at present The complaint that was made by the Director of Public Instruction in his report is that sufficient attention is not being paid to the practical work The Director of Public Instruction did not recommend that the classes should be reduced to 14 and that highly qualified professors should be added He stated in his report that more attention would be necessary for practical work and not for lectures It would have been enough, if some junior assistants were added so that the batches of students may be supervised or some more trained teachers may be added That is the proposal that was made by the Director of Public Instruction I do not understand why the classes have been reduced to 14 It would not matter, even if there be 100 boys, so far as lectures are concerned The chief thing is the training of students for practical work For that different batches must be supervised by different persons So, my submission is that junior assistants who may take notes are required Even if 100 boys are admitted, instead of 75, still the work will go on by having two or three additional assistants There will not be any difficulty, because the same professor can lecture to 75 as well as 100 students Again, I do not understand why the classes have been reduced to 14 and how more accommodation will be necessary for the development of the college If at all one or two rooms are required, if this arrangement is put into force a number of rooms can be kept vacant If Government have any idea to utilise these rooms for police station as they have done in the Anglo-middle school, it is a different matter For the purpose of expansion of the college, I do not think that 14 class rooms will be required

The economy that has been shown is also faulty as my honourable friend has shown If the teachers were reduced there will be a saving of Rs 17,340 as against a loss of Rs 22,000 shown in the Blue Book The expenditure on the salary of the teachers as has been pointed out by the honourable mover will be Rs 70, and not Rs 135 as these teachers have been recently engaged temporarily That is all I would urge in respect of this cut

Mr R H BECKETT Mr President, I confess that I am amazed to find that an honourable member of this House has proposed a reduction which would result in the total closing down of the secondary training college One of the first things I did when I came to this Presidency was to go into the matter of the training of teachers and I must say that it is in a very unsatisfactory condition Secondary education has developed for a number of years and there has been no corresponding expansion of the resources for training secondary teachers The honourable mover of the motion is, I believe, a doctor, and he will agree with me when I say that a doctor, in addition to receiving theoretical training, must have practical training in hospitals Similarly, the teacher of a secondary school should not only receive training in the theories of education but he should practise how to teach, under expert supervision It is on this supervision that a great deal of the time of the professors of any training institutions is taken up The University require that a minimum of 30 lessons under supervision should be given by each teacher under training This in effect means that no less than 150 lessons per week have to be supervised by the members of the staff of the Training College Not only that, but the notes which the teacher prepares for his lesson have to be discussed and the lessons themselves criticised by the members of the staff of the college and by the other students Only in this way is it possible to see that students of the college are able to put into practice the theories of education which they learn As I have said, the position with regard to the training of secondary teachers in this Presidency leaves much to be desired The Principal of the college was deputed to go round and see training institutions in other Provinces He reported that a great deal must be done if the secondary training college is to be put on the same level as the training institutions elsewhere May I point out that by turning out a larger number of competent teachers, the standard of secondary education throughout the Presidency will be raised ? At present the college staff is hardly sufficient to undertake the training of 60 teachers per annum It is true, as the honourable mover said, that last year 75 pupils were taken in, but that was an exceptional measure which entailed some sacrifice in efficiency It could not be done as a permanent measure His argument was, "as you increased it from 60 to 75, let us increase it to 100" I ask whether that would be possible without also increasing the staff of the college It is necessary that teachers going through this course should receive proper training, not only in regard to lectures, but also in regard to supervision in their practical work

In support of his motion for a reduction of the total grant for the secondary training college, the honourable mover has questioned the Government figure of 5 2 per cent of trained teachers There are, I find from my draft letter to Government, 4,719 Anglo-vernacular teachers in private institutions, of whom only 245 or 5 2 per cent were trained graduate teachers The figure, Sir, is correct

A point which he has raised in support of his motion for reduction is that the statement of saving in expenditure given in the Blue Book is not in accordance with the facts In fact, if the House is to accept the figures put forward by the honourable mover, they would accept the position that by abolishing 14 classes in the Elphinstone High School, Government is going to lose Rs 4,000 per annum If the honourable member will look at the cost of Government secondary schools and take from it the receipts in fees from Government secondary schools, he will find that these schools do cost money, and it is certain that if you abolish 14 classes of a secondary school, you do save money Now, it is true,

[Mr R H Beckett]

Sir, that the figures for the saving in expenditure are based on the average cost But I would also point out that the figures for the increase in expenditure are also based on the average cost, so that that argument applies to both sides That is the correct way of estimating It is of course a difficult matter to say precisely what actual saving will be effected in the first year, because it will depend on what teachers are retained and what teachers dismissed But a correct estimate has been placed before the House, in that we have shown what the average saving effected will be and what the average cost will be I can assure the House that the figures of the honourable mover of the motion, whereby he shows an extra expenditure of Rs 12,000 per annum, are a gross exaggeration He has assumed that the superfluous staff would displace the lowest paid teachers in the new reduced rates of pay That assumption is not correct It is impossible to say exactly at this time what teachers will be displaced, but even assuming that the saving will in the first year not be quite equal to the figure given, yet that figure is substantially correct, and it does really represent what the ultimate position will be

There is another point, Sir, in regard to this saving in expenditure which is worthy of mention, viz that at present we depute for training teachers from Government schools, and pay them salaries during the period of their training, this costs on an average over Rs 10,000 per annum Now, I anticipate that, when we increase the number of trained teachers turned out by the training college, we shall be able in time to appoint teachers who are already trained making it unnecessary for Government to spend money on their training This, in the long run, will mean a very substantial saving to Government I have explained, Sir, how important it is that the teachers of the secondary schools of the Presidency should be trained Any one with educational experience will support me in this The training college has not expanded with the development of secondary education in the Presidency, and by increasing the numbers to 100—of whom at least 80 per cent will be available for the non-Government schools of the Presidency—I think that during the course of a few years the percentage of trained teachers will be increased and the standard of instruction raised In the course of time it will be realised that this has been a most wise step, conceived in the very best interests of secondary education

But, Sir, this is a year of financial stringency There are several things to be done in connection with the training of teachers It is a question of what is practicable in a year of financial stringency, and it was in order that this most important and pressing measure might not be any longer delayed that I suggested that the number of classes in the Elphinstone High School should be reduced In this way, as has been shown, it is possible to do a great deal of good to secondary education, without any cost to Government, indeed it will result in ultimate saving to Government

The closing of the 14 classes has been opposed on the ground that it will mean that some 500 boys will have to seek accommodation

elsewhere That is something of an exaggeration Only about 350 boys will be affected, because two classes are not full at present, I do not anticipate that these boys will have very serious difficulty in obtaining accommodation in a large city like Bombay I would also point out that the average size of a Government high school is 14 sections, and that this reduction in the number of classes will only reduce the school to the average size of a Government school Sir, the training college is the only college affiliated to the University which trains for the B T degree The cost per student is admittedly high, but not when the value which Education receives in return for that expenditure is taken into consideration The cost per head will be considerably reduced as a result of this enlargement of the college

Another point which has been raised by the honourable mover is in connection with the free studentships now given to certain pupils in the Elphinstone High School These free studentships are spread out over the whole Division, but I feel sure that Government will take the honourable member's remarks into consideration in regard to this matter

The honourable member Rao Saheb Desai has suggested, in opposing the closing of the 14 classes that the Rs 10,000 allowed for stipends should be taken away, and he said in support of his statement that the stipends have been taken away from primary training institutions As I pointed out at the time, that is not correct The stipends for teachers in primary training institutions for men have been reduced by Rs 2-8-0 per mensem and the rate of stipend in the training college has been reduced from Rs 40 to Rs 30 per mensem If the honourable member will refer to the White Book, he will see a reduction in the provision from Rs 10,000 to Rs 7,500 Now, a point does arise as to whether Government should economise this Rs 7,500 I do not think so as we should hit the poorest type of school Honourable members are aware that we have not been able in all cases to give full grants-in-aid to these schools owing to financial stringency Certain schools can afford to depute their teachers for training, but certain schools cannot, and it would be very hard on those schools who have no trained teachers and who cannot afford to depute them to the training college if no assistance in this direction was given by Government I therefore think that to reduce this grant would be opposed to the interests of the schools, particularly the type of school which most needs the services of trained teachers

I hope, Sir, that what I have said will induce the honourable mover of the motion to withdraw it To close down the Secondary Training College would do incalculable harm to the cause of secondary education in this Presidency That there should be only 5 2 per cent trained graduates in non-Government secondary schools is a matter for grave reproach It is essential, Sir, in my opinion, that we train more teachers, and now that the way has been found of doing it at very little expense, I hope that it will be accepted as a marked advance and that the honourable mover will withdraw this cut

(After recess)

Dr M K DIXIT (Surat District) Sir, the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction said he was amazed at my suggestion that the secondary training college should be closed down In the very beginning, Sir, I said that this motion was made by me as a protest against any further expenditure that was intended to be incurred by the expansion of the college and by closing down 14 classes in the Elphinstone High School Sir, in his remarks he went on further and gave me light—not new light but old light—that I was a doctor and should know that practical training by going down to the hospital under the supervision of an expert was necessary for a doctor and equally so for the teachers undergoing a secondary training college course I thank him for all that he said and I never deny that the practical experience of giving classes is absolutely necessary to the teachers undergoing secondary training college course But all that could be done without a special training college as is done now and as is proposed to be expanded further The University require 30 practical classes; and a lot more which he suggested would do greater benefit to the students under training there But, Sir, I submit that at present the students who are undergoing that secondary training college course are giving practical classes, some under the supervision of their own professors and lecturers and some under the supervision of the senior trained teachers who are working in the Elphinstone High School at present It is not necessary to employ fresh men in order to supervise the giving of lessons in those classes. The senior assistants in the Elphinstone High School are all trained teachers They have experience of teaching before they were trained as well as after they were trained, and they could be called expert supervisors for supervising the training of students who give practical lessons in the classes So, I do not think that is also an absolute necessity I am grieved to hear from the responsible officer that education in the secondary schools is disgraceful I hope that just as a new broom sweeps clean, our new Director of Public Instruction will set matters right and bring up education in the secondary schools to a standard which is at once good and efficient

Then, regarding the figure of 5 2 per cent, Sir, in the remarks in the Blue Book I read out, no mention has been made about the graduate trained teachers, and the only source of information which we have is the report under his signature and the Blue Book that we possess, and there it is definitely stated in the report of 1929-30—page 29—that the number of teachers trained is 17 4 per cent and not 5 2 I am glad, however, that he has given this new information that of the 833 trained teachers as mentioned in the report, only 245 are graduate trained teachers, and the rest are undergraduate trained teachers possessing the old diploma of the secondary training college All the same, I admit, and he also will admit that the trained teachers, whether graduate or undergraduate, have undergone a course of training in the secondary training college and that though they may not be graduates, they have received actual training in that college——

Mr R H BECKETT I do not wish in any way to interrupt the honourable member, but the training college only trains graduate teachers It does not give any training to undergraduate teachers

Dr M K DIXIT Thank you, Sir Yes, I know that admission to the training college is reserved for graduates only, but those that have been trained have received the S T C or S T C D diploma from the training school or the training college That is what I understand——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT . I believe the honourable member the Director said that those who enter the college enter with the idea of graduating themselves in training as teachers

Mr R H BECKETT The S T C is the Departmental certificate given on the results of an examination and certain practice in teaching, but it can hardly be held to take the place of the training which is given in the training college for graduates only

Dr M K DIXIT I hope due correction will be made in the next administration report and a distinction will be made between the graduate trained teachers and the diploma-holders who do not undergo regular training in the training college or who did not undergo that training there

Then, Sir, the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction admitted that the actual figure of Rs 34,000 and odd may not be a correct figure, but he also submitted that my calculation was not accurate He said that it all depends upon what teachers would be relieved out of these 17 assistant teachers who will be free when 14 classes in the Elphinstone High School are closed down I do not know which teachers will be relieved by the Director of Public Instruction But so far as I understand, the departmental rule is that it is the junior men that are relieved first I do not know if he wants to deviate from that principle, but I leave it entirely to him However, the figure given in the Blue Book does not seem to me very accurately worked out, and during the course of the next year we shall find out what teachers have been dispensed with and what actual saving has been effected Though my figure may not be very accurate, I believe it is nearer the truth than the figures that have been given in the Blue Book, and I should not be surprised at the end of the year to see the Honourable Minister come forward with a demand for a supplementary grant that so much money is required for this department on account of certain mishaps, or misunderstanding or miscalculations, and the House will have to sanction that supplementary demand

There is nothing else which I want to add, except one thing which the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction mentioned, that the training college is the only Government institution training students for the University degree I admit that that is the only secondary training college we have, but with a view that the training of teachers may be done more rapidly and that secondary teaching or secondary schools will be more efficiently managed and taught, would it not be far better, if it is possible, to open training classes and to attach them to the three Government colleges which exist at Ahmedabad, Bombay and

[Dr M K Dixit]

Poona so that this sort of training can be given? We have got a number of hands there and a number of secondary schools, and when those students are undergoing training and when they are given practical lessons in the classes, the secondary trained teachers of good standing, who will be working in those schools, can easily supervise those teachers in those three places. And if economy is to be effected, it may not be an ideal economy, but still in this financial stringency many needs have got to be left out and the Secondary Training College may as well come under that category. The training of these teachers may be done at these three centres fairly well, if not up to the same mark as in our Secondary Training College. As I said before, my object in moving this cut is not to do away with the Secondary Training College, but to raise a protest against the extension of the institution, involving as it does unnecessary expenditure, according to my calculation of Rs 12,000, and against the closing down of the 14 classes in Elphinstone High School. The honourable member the Director of Public Instruction remarked that by cutting down these 14 classes in the Elphinstone High School that school will be brought to the level of the ordinary high schools. I do not know what his exact idea is of an ordinary high school—how many classes it should contain—but I think it may be proper to assume that his idea is that it is much easier to manage 14 than 28 classes, a small institution than a big institution with double the number of classes. I have nothing more to add in this connection.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable mover has expressed that his object was not really to get the cut effected, a big cut of Rs 73,000, but to protest against the action of Government in increasing the expenditure, to a limited extent. I must point out that that is an entirely wrong procedure, to move a cut of this kind to achieve that object. What he really should have done was to have moved a small cut and raised a general discussion. A big cut like this leads the discussion into a different channel. I think it is high time that honourable members understood the real nature of the cuts they propose.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Mr. President, you, Sir, and my honourable friend the Director of Public Instruction have considerably lightened my work. I wanted to tell the honourable member Dr Dixit that this was not the way to achieve the object which he had in view,—moving a cut of such a substantial amount.

My honourable friend the doctor will excuse me if I do not consider him as an authority on education to-day as I did consider him as an authority on medicine yesterday. I do not know why such an intelligent and a usually shrewd observer like himself has fallen into such an error. All the time I was thinking that his case was very weak and I think he himself must have thought it likewise. I was considerably amused at this great concern as to how the depressed class and Mahomedan students would find admission or receive concessions in aided high schools. One would think, on the other hand, that the shades before him were those of the disappointed teachers more than those of the depressed class students for whom he has not always been excessively considerate

Dr M K DIXIT Which teachers you mean ?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD The displaced teachers from the 14 classes at the Elphinstone High School

Now, coming directly to the question, just a few minutes ago, we were told that the policy of Government should be to cut down Government institutions, to reduce them, if not altogether to abolish them About the colleges the policy has been explained by the Director of Public Instruction Now, Sir, when we have proposed to cut down a few classes in one of these schools, a protest is raised. So, it seems to me that that policy does not commend itself to the House, except to some people

May I inform the honourable member that it was with considerable difficulty that I got this little amount for the Secondary Teachers' Training College ? This is the only constructive work in this year's budget If I had not secured that money for the college, it would have gone to the general pool So, as a matter of fact I ought to be congratulated on getting this additional sum,—[Honourable Members Hear, hear],—for this particular piece of constructive work If we fall into an error we are blamed, if we happen to do a good thing we are equally blamed for that Well, I do not want to use the Hindustani phrase which was used the other day by my honourable friend the Honourable the Finance Member to describe the situation But I do say that this is not very encouraging A Minister has a right to expect much more consideration when he has honestly worked to get money from Government for such purpose

Now, the honourable member says that this object can easily be achieved by having three separate schools in Ahmedabad, Karachi and Belgaum, or some such places But it is our experience——

Dr M K DIXIT You must have misheard, I never said Karachi or Belgaum

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD I am very sorry if I have given the names of wrong cities, but all the same, the principle remains What I want to say is that it has been our experience that it is much better to concentrate all classes in one big institution rather than have this bifurcation into small classes where teaching is not really to the satisfaction of all concerned I therefore think that the policy which has been adopted by the department is very sound, and the only one that is sound under the circumstances I hope, therefore, that my honourable friend the doctor with his usual moderation will withdraw the motion

Dr M K DIXIT Sir, I want to give an explanation in view of your remark that it was high time that members knew exactly what sort of cuts should be tabled The idea underlying this cut was that this sort of secondary training course could be given in the three Government colleges in Ahmedabad, Bombay and Poona Of course, the object was to protest against the extension of the college by spending more money, and the shutting down of the 14 classes in Elphinstone High School, and to throw out a constructive suggestion to the Honourable the Finance Member and the Minister of Education that this Rs. 73,000 could be saved by opening three classes in each of the three different centres, Poona, Ahmedabad and Bombay That was the reason why I moved this cut

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Does the honourable member withdraw the cut ?

Dr M K DIXIT I beg to withdraw it

Motion, by leave, withdrawn

Mr. V A SURVE (Ratnagiri District) (Addressed the House in Marathi) Sir, I beg to move

Reduce by Rs 100, total demand under B—Secondary Education (Civil Estimates, page 195)

Sir, my object in moving this cut is to protest against the policy of the Minister His policy has been to starve existing schools, well-conducted schools, of funds in the name of financial stringency and to start new classes and new schools where none exist The policy is not right What is the use of new schools when you cannot support even the existing schools ? Many schools in the Ratnagiri district have had their grants cut down How are we to run the schools ?

Mr. G S. GANGOLI (Kanara District)—[Inaudible]

Honourable MEMBERS Louder please

Mr G S GANGOLI Sir,——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I am unable to hear the honourable member

Mr G S GANGOLI Sir, I take delight in supporting the last speaker, because he supported the cause of English education without knowing himself how to speak or write English He has urged that the existing schools ought first to be supported That is also my demand

Speaking about Kanara, I must say that our villages have not enough number of schools I was myself in a village For the first three vernacular standards I had to go to a small school in a forest village one mile away from my village For the fourth standard I had to go to another school in a big village For the first three English standards I had to go to a town near by, and for the high school I had to go to the headquarters town of the district I think this state of affairs obtains both in Ratnagiri and Kanara which are adjoining districts When I started for the Council, some of the high school teachers approached me and said to me, " If you cannot do anything else, at least see that our poor institutions are not deprived of their grants " I do not think this Minister has visited Kanara and seen the schools in our district He is cutting 5 per cent of the grants in our district also This will work very hard on our institutions. I would urge that he should make a distinction between institutions in applying the cut Well managed institutions should go free of the cut, institutions which are not well managed may be given a cut of 10 per cent I promised the teachers that the Minister was a valiant fighter in the cause of education, that even Government had recognised him to be a gallant knight, and that he would do the proper thing I hope the Honourable Minister will have a soft corner in his heart at least for the schools in our backward district

Mr J S KADRI (Northern Division) Sir, I want to touch the point of Muhammadan secondary education, and in this connection, I desire to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister the serious handicaps under which the Muhammadan students in the Northern Division have been labouring in the prosecution of their studies in secondary schools Muhammadan students, as a matter of fact, have, for various reasons, to undergo a good deal of trouble and difficulty even in the primary stages, but when they emerge from the primary course to enter secondary schools, they are faced with the serious difficulty about the schools where they can find themselves at home for their English education Our Urdu schools impart instruction through the medium of Urdu and when Muslim lads enter the portals of middle Anglo-Vernacular or secondary schools, they are at the very outset confronted with the language difficulty and find themselves very much handicapped in schools, where the medium of instruction is not their own vernacular This drawback proves to be a great handicap on their future progress in secondary education. There are no secondary schools in the whole of the Northern Division, where the medium of instruction is Urdu Consequently Muhammadan students have perforce to join schools where they have to undergo training through the medium of the district vernacular This is the reason why a large number of Muslim students drop away from the lower standards In the chapter on Muhammadan secondary education, the Director of Public Instruction has stated that there is a deplorable wastage in secondary schools, as out of a large number of students attending these schools, only about 33 per cent are able to reach higher standards. Generally speaking, about two-thirds of the students are in the lower three standards and only a small fraction is able to go up to the fourth and higher standards The unsuitable medium of instruction is the real cause why they are not able to pull on with their studies in the lower standards, in which education is imparted not through their own vernacular but through the vernacular of the district The special committee which investigated the question of Muhammadan education about 12 years ago, and of which our Honourable Minister was also a member, had expressly laid down that special facilities should be provided for Muhammadans in the shape of Anglo-Urdu middle and high schools in each district Fortunately, the Central and Southern Divisions got the benefit of the recommendation of that committee, but, unfortunately, the Northern Division is the only division which has still been destitute of even a single Anglo-Urdu middle school, not to speak of the Anglo-

[Mr J S Kadri]

Urdu high school I think Government owe a duty to the Muhammadans of the Northern Division that they should provide facilities for the English education of their sons through the medium of their own mother tongue

In Ahmedabad, we have got a high school managed by the Anjuman-i-Islam The Muhammadans have from time to time requested Government to take over this school and turn it into an Anglo-Urdu High school. There is a decent building available for the school, but the Anjuman is not in a position to provide adequately competent and trained staff to put it on a sound basis In this matter, Government is not only uncharitable towards Muhammadans, but is rather unjust, because this high school of Muslims—and that is the only high school conducted by Muslims in the Northern Division—is not properly aided Only the three lower standards of the school are registered for grant which is merely Rs 300 per year while the expenditure on the school amounts to about Rs 10,000 per year If Government is not in a position to start a school of its own for the benefit of Muhammadans in the Northern Division, it behoves them to at least assist the existing school with a decent grant, to enable the Anjuman to put it on a sound and stable basis

My object in bringing this matter to the notice of the Honourable Minister and the Director of Public Instruction is that the Northern Division has not been treated fairly in the matter of Government patronage so far as Muhammadan secondary education is concerned Now that Government is able to scrap 14 classes of the Elphinstone High School and create a saving for the sake of expanding the Secondary Training College, it seems that if they take it into their head, they can very well manage to create a saving for assisting a really deserving Muhammadan institution like the high school of the Anjuman-i-Islam at Ahmedabad, either by increasing its grant substantially or by taking it over and managing it as a Government institution

I conclude with the hope that this request of mine, which has been repeated from year to year, will not fall on deaf ears and the Muhammadans of the Northern Division will have the consolation of feeling that their representatives are not crying in the wilderness, when they ventilate their grievances in the matter of their education before this honourable House

Mr A J BANGI (Southern Division) Sir, at the outset I would like to make a few general observations before going into the subject under discussion, namely, secondary education

Sir, it is a common complaint that the present system of education is not adjusted to the economic needs of the Presidency, that it is of too literary a character and that it is divorced from the realities of daily life Sir, in the Assembly the other day, when the subject of education came up for discussion, a number of members spoke at length upon the necessity of technical education for the material prosperity of the country But Government has not done much in this direction There are some such institutions—in Bombay two and in Surat one and in Ahmedabad one—but their number is too small to meet our present requirements With these few general remarks, I would proceed to the consideration of secondary education

Secondary education is, at present, under dual control It is under the control of the University and of Government It is under the control of the University so far as the laying down of courses of study and the affiliation of secondary schools are concerned It is under the control of Government in that they inspect the high schools and register them for grants But the defects of this dual control are obvious and need not be mentioned It will be better if secondary education is handed over either wholly to the University or taken over by Government Then all these difficulties would disappear altogether

I would like to say a few words as regards some of the examinations. It cannot be denied that there is a widespread desire for English education. The knowledge of English is considered as essential in the daily life of large sections of the people. Sir, it is essential to traders, merchants, men of business and seekers after Government service It is also sought by those who want to take up one of the professions It is natural that under these circumstances every boy passing the vernacular fourth standard examination should express a wish to join a secondary school The result of this is that many boys—whether rich or poor, capable or incapable—seek admission to high schools and there is thus a considerable incapable element which entails considerable waste of time, money and effort The best way of keeping this element out is to stiffen the 4th standard examination and thereby secure the admission of really good boys into the high schools If the same thing is done as regards the high school and matriculation examinations, the University and the colleges will find the finest material to work upon

Sir, I would like to say a few words as regards the prevailing unemployment The question of education is so inextricably interwoven with that of unemployment in some of its aspects that it is not possible to treat them separately In 1926 the Bombay Labour Office conducted an enquiry into the question of unemployment and at that time it was found that 77 per cent of the unemployed were young men under the age of 32 Again, it was found that the majority of them were those who had left school or college If industrial and commercial schools are opened or an alternative curriculum is introduced in primary and secondary schools, many of these boys will be diverted to more useful and lucrative careers.

Sir, the Public Works Department has opened a workshop class at Dapuri near Poona To this class boys between the ages of 15 and 17 who have passed the vernacular 3rd or Anglo-Vernacular 5th are admitted as junior and senior students It is said that many of the craftsmen who have been turned out by this institution are earning Rs 6 to Rs 7 per day Such institutions at other places are well worth a trial

[Mr A J Bangi]

Sir, the present efficiency of secondary schools, and specially of the aided ones, is not of a high standard, and it could only be raised by the introduction of a larger trained element I suggest that in making selections for admission to the Secondary Training College, large numbers of teachers from secondary schools should be given preference so that the education imparted in these institutions may be improved. Sir, I emphasise the need of Anglo-Urdu Schools for the education of Muhammadans There are two full-fledged high schools, one in Hubli and the other in Poona, but more of such institutions are necessary, particularly Anglo-Urdu middle schools, which are expected to play an important part in the development of Muhammadan education. No doubt, there is one such school for girls in Poona and two for boys in Nasik and Sholapur, but more of these are necessary for the educational advancement of that community When I put a question to the Honourable Minister the other day, he said that if classes were attached to local Urdu schools, it would be possible to recognise them and bring them on the aided list But who is to finance all these schools ? The local bodies will not do it because the Muhammadans have no voice there, and Muhammadans are not in a position to finance these institutions and incur the expense of running them until their recognition by Government

Sir, there is one local grievance which I want to bring to the notice of the Honourable Minister During the last five years, 135 students were refused admission in the Anglo-Urdu High School, Hubli, for want of room I think some correspondence is in progress as regards the opening of double classes in the lower standards of this school This matter has been hanging fire for the last two or three years I take this opportunity of inviting the attention of the Honourable Minister to this pressing need of my constituency

There is one thing more An additional teacher for Arabic is needed for the Anglo-Urdu High School, Hubli, as the students of that school are very desirous of learning Arabic also, but unfortunately no provision is made in this direction. I hope something will be done to supply this acutely felt need.

Mr S S TOLANI (Western Sind) Sir, I support the cut moved by my honourable friend Mr Surve I have various reasons for supporting the cut The policy adopted by the agents of Government is far from satisfactory It has been neither in the larger interests of education nor in the best interest of the country It will not be an exaggeration to say that the policy adopted will jeopardise the smooth working of educational machinery I wish to make particular reference to the province of Sind and shall state what has happened in the two Government high schools, one at Shikarpur and the other at Larkana In Shikarpur, on the 26th January, certain boys hoisted the national flag on the school building The police was called for by the authorities of the school and inhuman treatment was meted out to the boys These boys were kept in custody for some time and then let off. This action of the authorities enraged certain other boys and a few others also joined this group In the school at Larkana, the boys picketed the school. I do not by any means defend the action of the boys, as I believe that the boys should not take part in the political agitation and they must confine themselves to their studies, but the authorities should also behave themselves and take little notice of these things, but if they do take notice they should not completely lose themselves. Our hot-headed educational inspector in Sind ordered the dismissal of the boys, he also recommended to the Director of Public Instruction that these boys should be rusticated for various terms and should not be allowed admission in any Government school. This is the maximum punishment that can be inflicted on the boys by any educational institution Boys are, after all, boys [Laughter] You will agree with me, Sir, that youth is apt to be impulsive and even most sober boys are likely to lose their head in a moment of excitement I consider that the punishment of rustication is too much and out of proportion to the crime they committed The honourable the Director of Public Instruction who is now a member of this honourable House confirmed the recommendation of the educational inspector If these boys are not to be admitted in any other Government school, what will be the result of this action? These boys who have been thrown away from education may plunge themselves headlong in the civil disobedience movement and court imprisonment May I ask whether this action of the authorities will not add incentive to the civil disobedience movement? Is not an idler bound to play mischief, specially when he has an immature judgment? This is not all The educational inspector was requested by many people that he should excuse these boys, in view of the fact that the boys are prepared to give an undertaking that they would not join any subversive movement and that their parents also are prepared to give an undertaking to control their boys, but our worthy inspector would not consider this point again Our honourable member the Director of Public Instruction was also approached by many honourable members of this House with the request that he should either excuse these boys or give them a lighter punishment But he would not budge an inch Even the policy of Government with regard to civil disobedience movement or in fact any political movement has been that, whenever any man gives an undertaking that he will not any more join the movement, he is let off Even persons undergoing various terms of imprisonment for joining the movement, if they give an undertaking, are let off The Honourable the Leader of the House will agree with me that there have been such cases What about these poor boys? They must be thrown to the winds! The Director of Public Instruction, by his kindly action, could have not only saved the life of students but made them loyal to the institutions. Once the boys mix themselves up in civil disobedience movement, they instead of turning into loyal citizens, will be disloyal to the Government and will be seething with discontent In case of some boys, specially one, the Director of Public Instruction defends his action on the ground that the headmaster of the Larkana High School gave a warning to the boy in the last civil disobedience movement, and the honourable Director of Public Instruction says that the boy verbally made the headmaster to understand that he would take no part in politics I assure the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction that it is not a fact, and that the headmaster is drawing on his imagination The educational inspector, who is callous to all fine feelings, has based his recommendation on the report of the headmaster The boy to whom I am referring is a blood relation of mine [Laughter] The boy is a bright student, he left the Larkana High School only a month before the boy is said to have taken part in the hoisting of the flag and the headmaster has certified to his good progress and good conduct, and he has not made any mention of the warning that he now says that he has given I think it is most unfair to connect the warning of the headmaster with this act of 1932 This is how the secondary education is being conducted in Sind The officers who are at the helm of affairs in Sind by kindly action can make things nice and wean them away from any subversive activity

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The honourable member is repeating his argument

Mr S S TOLANI I appeal to the Honourable the Minister for Education to lend the matter his best consideration and put things right immediately, before it becomes too late I am very reluctant to pass any remarks on the Honourable Minister of Education, but I will say this much that if the present system of provincial Government is not an absolute farce, the chosen representative of the people, the Honourable Minister, should exercise proper control over his subordinates and bring the matters to a happy pass

I now come to the general policy so far as Sind is concerned The expansion of primary and secondary education has been rather unsatisfactory Sind has not been given an adequate share in the grant for education nor is the number of schools as it should have been I would cite an instance The Larkana Municipal A V school has not been getting even one-fourth of the grant that it is entitled to under the rules There are many schools in Sind which do not get a pie of grant I also find from the report of the Director of Public Instruction of 1930-31 that there are about 16 high schools in the Presidency which do not get any grant I think, if Government do not aid these schools, they would die automatically As regards the high schools, we have the smallest number in Sind In all we have got 193 high schools in the whole of the Presidency and there are hardly 28 high schools in Sind as against 60 in Bombay division, and I do not know how these schools will be able to educate the masses when the province of Sind is separated

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN The honourable member ought to be grateful to Government

Mr S S TOLANI I will make a grievance regarding the fact that there are many appointments which are reserved only for Mahomedans. We Hindus are in a minority Instead of encouraging the minority, they are encouraging the majority by reserving certain appointments for Mahomedans only, but none has been reserved exclusively for Hindus. For instance deputy educational inspector of Mulla schools, the headmasterships of Naushahro and Mirpurkhas and so on I asked a question in the current sessions regarding these appointments and the Honourable Minister gave me the following answer :

The Government regret that they are unable to supply the information as the labour and time involved in its collection would be incommensurate with its utility (Vol. XXXIV, page 72)

Well, Sir, if this is the reply from a transferred department, what better reply can we expect from the Government in reserved departments ? I can well understand if this answer comes from a reserved department

An Honourable MEMBER What is the question ?

Mr S S TOLANI The question is as follows

Will Government be pleased to give in a tabular form the following information regarding appointments to the posts of three Mulla Deputies now called Deputy Educational Inspectors for Mahomedan Education and the Headmasterships of Naushahro Madressah and Mirpurkhas from time to time the introduction of these appointments or bringing them under the Government —

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD For how many years ?

Mr S S TOLANI It has not been mentioned here It only says "from time to time" The appointments are reserved only very recently

Well, Sir, with these remarks I support the motion, and protest against the policy adopted by the Government in Education Department.

Khan Bahadur GHULAM NABI SHAH (Thar Parkar District) (Addressed the House in Urdu) Mr President, in the district of Thar Parkar, there is only one high school and it is at Mirpurkhas This high school has no building of its own Sir, taking the Presidency as a whole, our district is the most backward in point of education, even in Sind, Thar Parkar is the most backward district The reason for this is that from the very beginning Government have neglected to educate the people of the district Sir, for the last 6 or 7 years I have been bringing to the notice of Government the urgent necessity of having a building for the high school I had every hope that when the Director of Public Instruction and the Honourable Minister for Education visited the place on tour, the difficulties of the school and the necessity for a building would be realised by them But the Honourable Minister has not yet paid a visit to Sind, and the Director of Public Instruction, though he toured in Sind, did not pay a visit to Mirpurkhas, thus neither of these gentlemen has had an opportunity of seeing for himself our difficulties For the last two years I have been pressing upon the attention of the Honourable Minister the great need of a building for the high school I am told that the plans and estimates for the building are ready May I hope that in a couple of years at least the building will be provided ? In the whole of Sind, the Honourable Minister will find this is the only school which has no building The result is that the different classes are divided from one another, and this creates a great deal of difficulty for the boys Various Collectors of the district, the

[Khan Bahadur Ghulam Nabi Shah]

Commissioner in Sind and even His Excellency the Governor of Bombay have admitted that a building is necessary for the school; I would like to ask Government whether in a year or two arrangements will be made to fulfil our demands in that respect The district local board of Thar Parkar has already opened 10 more secondary classes in Primary schools In other districts where there are other high schools than the Government high school grant is given to them by Government, therefore to such 10 secondary classes opened in Thar Parkar District, Government should arrange to pay the grant-in-aid My point is that in a district in which secondary education is extremely backward, as in the case of Mirpurkhas, Government should pay more than for other districts for secondary education

Then, Sir, with regard to scholarships for boys in secondary schools, I understand that the Director of Public Instruction has issued orders that if there is a break in the attendance of a boy in receipt of a scholarship through illness or any other cause, the practice of giving the balance of the scholarship to other deserving boys on the recommendation of the headmaster of the school has to be discontinued I wish to ask the Honourable Minister what good it does to Government to stop the payment of a scholarship for which provision has been made in the budget Perhaps, they may plead that there is financial stringency But the fact is that this is not extra expenditure, but the spending of money in accordance with the provision in the budget Therefore, I request that the above order be cancelled Sir, the greatest need of the country is education, for the old and the young alike I say that the Honourable Minister must ask the Honourable the Finance Member to give him the necessary money for the purpose I do not think there is a single member of this House who would not support the Honourable Minister in his request If the people are not properly educated, whatever other facilities are provided for them will not be taken full advantage of In conclusion, I hope that the Honourable Minister will take note of what I have stated

Khan Bahadur M A KHUHRO (Larkana District) Sir, I feel it necessary to say a few words in connection with the secondary education of this Presidency At the very outset I would like to make a very strong protest at the lump cut which has been effected in the Educational Department Whether the cut is of 5 per cent, 10 per cent, or 15 per cent, with regard to secondary and primary education I must say that this is a department in which it will be and it is bound to be most unsuccessful, if Government are going to cut down in round figures any grants Sir, I would deal with this question at great length when I speak on primary education, which will come up for discussion later on At present, I want to say a few words with regard to the policy of Government in connection with secondary schools in my province (Sind)

I must confess that I cannot give a definite opinion with regard to secondary education in the Presidency proper. Two of my honourable friends have already addressed the House on the question But, Sir, with regard to education in the Province of Sind, I would say that if Government wish to effect savings in the Educational Department, there is one way which I would like to suggest as most favourable, and which will be very agreeable to the public at large in Sind, I mean the majority of the public in Sind At present, Sir, there are certain high schools in Sind which are run by Government Now, it is unquestionably true that the cost of these high schools which are run by Government is larger than the cost of the aided institutions One of the reasons for it perhaps is that the scales of pay are higher in a Government high school. Quoting the case of Larkana District, there are at present two high schools in Larkana proper; one is run by Government entirely and the other is run by the local board, which is called the Madressah High School Now, since Government are spending large sums of money on their own school at Larkana, they are giving no substantial help whatsoever to the other institution, which is at present run entirely more or less out of the district local board funds Originally, Sir, that institution was started as an Anglo-vernacular school entirely from funds contributed by the local zamindars Subsequently it was found necessary to have more efficient management for the school and to run the school on sound lines Therefore, the control of the school was transferred to the local board with the consent of the board Now, Sir, the grant at present paid to the Madressah is between Rs 2,000 and Rs 3,000, and the ordinary expenditure of that school is something between Rs 30,000 and Rs 35,000 Sometimes it exceeds Rs 30,000 and sometimes it is somewhere about Rs 30,000 But even much larger expenditure is incurred by Government over the Larkana High School Sir, a suggestion was made some time ago that instead of running 2 institutions in Larkana, if the Government institution at Larkana is transferred to the local board, there will be a distinct advantage to Government, as they will not have to spend anything more on the institution than they are doing at present That is one distinct advantage There will be no burden on Government of the usual promotions which have to be given to the staff, and there will be no burden on Government with regard to the repairs, etc The district local board will effect certain savings by running one institution with substantial help from Government Now, Sir, the point is that at present the huge building which cost something like Rs 3,00,000 accommodates something like 800 boys to be educated there Simultaneously, the Madressah also provides for about 250 boys Now, Sir, as the district is broken up and has become much smaller, and there is an institution of the kind already in the new district of Dadu, this is the proper time when Government should accept this scheme, and thereby they would be able to effect considerable savings

Mr R H BECKETT On a point of information Do I understand that the honourable member wishes to have the Government high school in Larkana closed? Or am I to understand that he wishes it to be handed over with a grant equal to the full cost, in other words, that Government should have to pay the full cost and let the district local board manage it?

Khan Bahadur M A KHUHRO What I mean to say is this . the institution should be transferred to the local board, and thereby the extra expenditure which Government incur in the grant of promotions to the staff, the maintenance of the building, etc , year after year will be saved. The President, District Local Board, can better answer the question Certainly, I must say that Government would be spending less by this method than they do at present Suppose they are at present spending Rs 30,000 over that institution, and the district local board are prepared to contribute Rs 10,000, Government will save Rs 10,000, and in addition to that, the expanding expenditure for promotions and for maintenance of buildings and other expenses——

Khan Bahadur ALLAHBAKSH You wish it to be earmarked and to be transferred to the district local board ?

Khan Bahadur M A KHUHRO I want a certain amount to be fixed by Government to be paid annually as a grant-in-aid to the district local board which may be some substantial amount that may be settled between the local board and Government That is my point In the case of primary schools, when they were transferred to local bodies Government fixed a certain amount of grant to be paid to the institutions and a similar policy should be adopted in the present instance not only in Larkana but also where there are similar other institutions Government have at present got four institutions at Larkana, Shikarpur, Hyderabad and Karachi, and if a similar offer comes from another local body or from any other established and well-run association, Government should really in these times welcome such an offer in order to save the extra cost on the coffers of Government and that saving could very well be spent with advantage for primary education which needs it most

The other point is that I wish to make a reply to what my friend from Larkana Mr Tolani has said I am really sorry that he inported communal matters He brought in this House only two matters, one communal and another rather personal First I would deal with the communal question and say that I wish to bring to the notice of the honourable member himself—he must be knowing it also—that there is no discrimination shown whatsoever and no preference is shown whatsoever in the matter of selection to the Mussalman community The question is that a certain number of appointments are the bone of contention There are very strong reasons for it He referred to the appointment of headmasters In the first place, there are two high schools one at Nowshero and the other at Mirpurkhas who have got Mussalman headmasters Originally they were—to go into their history —started purely on funds paid by the Mussalman zamindars and subsequently they were run by local boards and by arrangement arrived at between the local boards and Government, they were taken over by Government because the local boards were not able for want of funds to run those institutions independently At that time when so much property or money in the shape of buildings and in some cases endowment etc. was invested, an understanding was arrived at that they would be called Madressah high schools and that Government would always have Muslim headmasters I submit this for the consideration of this honourable House But if you were to take the case of other four institutions, namely Larkana, Shikarpur, Hyderabad and Karachi, all of them have got headmasters of the honourable member's community——

Mr S S TOLANI That is because of their seniority

Khan Bahadur M A KHUHRO Seniority apart, I am giving details of facts as they are The honourable member makes a grievance of some of the administrative officers being Muslims It is a matter entirely for school boards to make a selection of their administrative officers If school boards prefer any person it is their choice and look-out If the honourable member makes a complaint that the district local boards are appointing Muslim administrative officers, may I also make a similar complaint that the municipal school boards are invariably appointing Hindu administrative officers ?

Mr S S TOLANI No, that is not so

Khan Bahadur M. A KHUHRO Of course that is a fact It is absolutely wrong and it would be misleading this House to say that any posts have been set apart for Muslims without any sufficient justification for it

The honourable member also spoke about the administration and discipline in high schools, and that point was somewhat personal to him as it concerned his own nephew——

Mr S S TOLANI Not only my nephew, but also others

Khan Bahadur M A KHUHRO I do admit and I am one of those who will stand for proper administration at all times, and I will support Government in administration when they are out to see that proper and efficient administration of an institution is run But there is another point connected with this and it is that the honourable member himself said that some of these students who have been rusticated for certain periods have apologised and given an undertaking in writing and that their parents too have given an undertaking in writing—that those boys will not misbehave again It is of course the declared policy of Government, which they have often given effect to, that whenever anybody, who has joined any of the political movements, subsequently expresses regret and gives an undertaking that he will not take any part in the movement, Government have invariably forgiven those people so much so that even criminal cases filed against them have been withdrawn or if they were undergoing imprisonment they have been set free or if any other kind of punishment was awarded to them, that has been remitted It is but right that in the case of students, they should, on expression of regrets, be readmitted when they gave an undertaking that they would behave properly Therefore, I really cannot understand why one uniform policy is not being pursued by Government and why different policy is being adopted in different places With regard to the D J Sind College, Karachi, in the earlier hours of the day a clear grievance was made by my honourable friend from Hyderabad that the administration of the Sind College in Karachi has actually gone to rack and ruin. There the boys are taking open part and a much more serious part in politics Several articles have appeared in the Daily Gazette. Unfortunately I have not got a copy of it just now but I have read those articles in which names have been given of students who have always been taking part in politics, and who have been breaking the discipline of the college every time Speaking from my knowledge as a member of the standing committee of the college, these names were even brought to the notice of the standing committee which did insist upon the principal to see that these boys are properly punished But so far the principal has taken no notice of the boys who go on repeating the same sort of action That college receives a large sum from Government as grant and therefore Government should really see that proper discipline is restored in the college Government are very keen on maintaining discipline in the secondary institutions and I cannot see why they do not maintain the same standard of discipline here also In the present case, I say that as long as those boys continue to take part in the political movement, Government will certainly be right in taking action against them in the interest of administration, but the moment those boys give an undertaking or the moment their parents or guardians give an undertaking that they will not continue taking part in the political movement, then it is right that they should be leniently treated

With these few remarks, I take my seat

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) Sir, I only want to point out that out of the 21 lakhs and odd reserved for secondary education, very little comes to the share of Sind, and out of whatever comes to Sind's share, not more than four annas share goes for the education of the Muslim community who are 73 per cent of the population This is so in spite of the assurances which we have always received from the Honourable Minister that he will take care of our requirements. In Karachi city, more than half or half the population is Muslim and the rest is non-Muslim, but there is only one Government high school in regard to which I have often spoken on the floor of this House That high school has a Sindhi branch, a Gujarati branch, even a Marathi branch but no Urdu branch, although half the population is Muslim. Some years ago, the parents of Muslim boys were not very particular that their boys should learn Urdu and were learning Sindhi or Gujarati but now that state of affairs has changed and our Muslim parents want their boys to learn Urdu as their language Karachi is a cosmopolitan city, where Muslims from other provinces have come and permanently settled Their language is Urdu therefore Sindhi Muslims of Karachi want to learn Urdu What has Government done? Nothing No Urdu branch has yet been opened I do not think there are more than ten Muslim students in that high school because of the absence of Urdu classes

Government want that the burden of primary education or secondary education should be borne by the public and not by themselves, and they expect the municipalities or local boards to bear that burden What was it that was promised to the district local boards at first ? There is one Sind Madressah where they teach standard 1 to standard 7 Lihari is 3 miles distant, Keamari is 4 miles distant, Garden quarters are four or five miles away——

An Honourable MEMBER There is the tramway service

Mr HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH Yes, but tramway service is not gratis, it costs money and how can you expect poor parents, in these times of unemployment and depression, to spend money on tramway fares for their children twice a day in addition to school fees, etc ? The parents of those boys are labourers who do not now get enough work to pay for their daily maintenance The municipality has opened schools teaching up to fourth standard but Government say they cannot give any grants Government want the municipality to bear the expenditure, although they have reserved so much for this education I hope the Honourable Minister of Education will look into this and set matters right, by facilitating the opening of an Urdu branch

The honourable member Mr Tolani says that our Honourable Minister always fills appointments of headmasters with Mussalman candidates That is not at all so The Honourable Minister has done nothing special for Sind or for Mussalmans so far and in fact he appears to me to be rather afraid of the honourable members sitting opposite I think neither he nor Government should be terrified by their agitation Why should a Muslim not be appointed to any place that falls vacant ? Government themselves have laid down the 50 per cent rule I request the Honourable Minister to be strong-minded and I request Government also to be strong-minded and to issue a Government Resolution ordering that the filling up of posts should be done in such a way that the 50 per cent proportion is soon reached

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I think the discussion has gone on too long over a small cut, and, if the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction wishes to address the House, I will give him an opportunity

Mr R H BECKETT Mr President, I find myself in rather a difficult position in regard to this cut, because such a variety of points have been raised I am afraid that my reply must be somewhat disjointed The honourable member who moved the cut spoke in Marathi, and I did not understand what he said The next speaker was inaudible So, I am unable to say anything with regard to their criticisms

The honourable member Mr Kadri put in a special plea for Mahomedan education in the Northern Division I think that if he reads the last Annual Report on Public Instruction, which has been placed on the table of the House, he will see that Mahomedans have a good deal to be pleased about in regard to the progress made in the year under review In some respects it is quite striking. I notice that in the Presidency proper there was a 7 2 per cent increase in the numbers in all institutions over the figures for the previous year The number of Mahomedans in arts and professional colleges increased by 38 to 518, and that in a year when the number of students as a whole went down The number of Mahomedan boys who passed the matriculation rose from 266 to 382, which represents an increase of 43 6 per cent Although there was an increase in the percentage of passes as a whole, the increase of 43 6 per cent is striking With regard to the Mahomedans of the Northern Division it is true that there is no Government Anglo-Urdu High School, but Government have recently raised the percentage of places reserved in Government schools to the Mahomedan community from 15 to 20 per cent After all, it is not possible for Government continually to open new high schools for any community Another point which was raised was that one of the high schools, I think the Anjuman High School, did not receive the grant-in-aid to which they consider themselves entitled Other members also have made that criticism I admit, Sir, that the criticism unfortunately is justified We have not sufficient money to give the grants-in-aid to aided institutions to which they may reasonably consider that they have a claim under the Grant-in-aid Code It was a position that I had hoped it would be possible to right, but circumstances have been too strong for us, and, therefore, it has happened particularly with new schools that they are not receiving the aid which they might hope for I can only trust that better times will come, when I am quite certain that one of the first things that the department will do will be to right the position under the Grant in-aid Code I am sorry that I cannot do any more than hold out a promise of this kind

An honourable member raised a very big question when he talked of practical bias and vocational training It is a subject on which one might speak for a long time, but I do not wish to weary the House I can only say, Sir, that it is not at all an easy matter, even if it is desirable—which I question—to introduce vocational training into an ordinary high school If honourable members take a particular high school and then ask themselves "What vocational training shall we introduce in this school?" they will at once see the difficulty, because in a high school you have a large number of pupils who when they leave school go forth into a hundred different occupations There is no single vocation which you can introduce into an ordinary high school for general education which would meet the requirements of one per cent or at any rate more than a small percentage of the students It is true that vocational training can be given in special institutions It is being given, Sir, in special institutions Whether those institutions are adequate, is a matter of opinion But even if they ought to be extended and developed, that will mean money I am quite aware, Sir, that a good deal might be done, but the financial position and other factors do not always enable us to do all that we might wish to do

An honourable member has raised the question of the disciplinary action which the department found it necessary to take in a certain high school I am sorry that I have not got the papers with me But in that particular school there was a grave breach of discipline The school was invaded by a crowd, which included some of the pupils, who raised the Congress flag interrupting the work of the school and converting it into a bear garden The headmaster tried to get them out but failed Finally the police had to be called in and certain of the boys had to be brought down from the tower by the police It would be impossible to maintain discipline in Government institutions if that sort of thing were allowed to pass without punishment The department has shown restraint in dealing with these matters On the one hand, we are criticised for not being strict enough, and, on the other hand, when disciplinary action is taken, we are told that we are being too severe Two of these students had been warned before and had given an undertaking——

Mr S S TOLANI This is contrary to the facts and the honourable member is misinformed

Mr R H BECKETT In any case it was a grave breach of discipline and the punishment meted out was not in any way in excess of the needs of the situation

Mr S S TOLANI What about the undertaking that the boys or the parents gave ?

Mr R H BECKETT The honourable member Khan Bahadur Ghulam Nabi Shah has raised the question of the Mirpurkhas Madressah I am quite aware that a new school building is needed for the school, but here, again, financial stringency prevented us from doing what the department knows to be desirable and even necessary It will not be lost sight of

The honourable member Khan Bahadur Khuhro has protested against the cuts in the Education grants, but I think we all realise that these cuts were inevitable He has suggested that the Government high school at Larkana should be closed—for that is what it would amount to—and handed over to the District Local Board I do not know whether his proposal would meet with general approval in Larkana But, as I understand the position, he wants Government to pay the whole of the cost and leave the District Local Board to manage the school Would the school gain thereby ? It would certainly cease to be a Government school A Government school has certain advantages which other schools do not possess, in regard to recruitment of staff, for example, also the staff can be changed as Government have a larger staff to draw upon I really do not see why Government should incur the whole of the expenditure on an institution and allow another body to manage it He has drawn attention to certain——

Khan Bahadur M A KHUHRO I never said that Government should bear the whole cost

Mr R H BECKETT That is what I understood, that we should bear the whole cost

[Mr R H Beckett]

Another point which he raised is the state of discipline in the D J Sind College The honourable member's remarks will be taken note of I may say that I have already made a reference to the college authorities

These are the main points which have been raised in the debate As I have said, I am quite aware that everything in secondary education is not perfect, in many respects reforms are necessary, but we do the best we can in the present circumstances

Mr V A SURVE (In Marathi) I have nothing to say in reply

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD Mr President, I will take the remarks of the honourable member Mr Kadri first With regard to his remarks that the department was not doing much for the education of Mahomedans and specially their education through the medium of Urdu, I may mention here, Sir, that, as my honourable friend the Director of Public Instruction said, many of the remarks he has made are absolutely correct I had taken the opportunity during my last visit to Ahmedabad of visiting the high school there It is creditable to the Mahomedans that they are maintaining their own high school there Government is not in a position to give them the grant which they consider they are entitled to claim, but I do hope that when the finances of Government will permit, more money will be granted to the school which no doubt it deserves

With regard to the remarks of the honourable member Mr Bangi, it is true that at the Anglo-Urdu High School at Hubli Mahomedan students do not always get admission and also that they have applied for double classes therein Again, I must say that the condition of the finances comes in and we are not in a position to have double classes throughout the school this year It is clear that something will have to be done to increase the number of classes, but the whole question is being examined

With regard to the remarks of my honourable friend from Karachi (Mr Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch), it is true that I had promised that an Urdu side may also be introduced into the Karachi High School, again, if finances permitted I am sorry to say that I had to disappoint my Sindhi friends, but it is not my fault I still hope that something may be done to have Anglo-Urdu classes at the Karachi High School

With regard to the remarks of my honourable friend Mr Tolani, I am surprised to learn that, at the end of his very interesting speech, he confessed that the student was his nephew He had come to me after having appealed to the Director for help, but I declined to interfere Sir, as you can easily see, how can a constitutional Minister interfere in matters of discipline which are entirely left to the Director of Public Instruction and his subordinates? Sir, I was no doubt very sorry not to have been in a position to oblige the honourable member from Larkana (Mr Tolani) I may take this opportunity of informing the honourable members that in all matters concerning discipline they should not come to the Minister

[Sir Rafiuddin Ahmad]

Now, with regard to what the honourable member for Larkana (Khan Bahadur Khuhro) said, I may observe that the honourable member representing the University has expressed the opinion that Government schools should, as far as possible——

Rao Saheb R V VANDEKAR The honourable member Mr Kamat said that——

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD I am referring to the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale, who wants Government institutions to be handed over to societies Now I understand from the speech of the honourable member Khan Bahadur Khuhro that he wants Government to take up the school maintained by the board He wants Government to take over the Madressah——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT I think he said just the reverse

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD That was about the high school, but about the Madressah, the honourable member wanted Government to take over the institution——

Sir SHAH NAWAZ BHUTTO He meant that the Madressah does not receive a fair amount of grant

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD If that is so, that is a different matter I thought perhaps he wanted two Government high schools in Larkana and that the Madressah should be turned into a Government high school But that is not so That, again, is a question of finance I am sorry I am not in a position to answer it

On the whole I think it will be seen from the trend of the debate here that there is nothing very seriously wrong with Government administration of high schools Only some persons who represent headmasters and private aided schools say that they are not flourishing in the way they ought to be I do not blame them I take it that the honourable House has perfect confidence in the Government's administration of these schools

Mr V A SURVE (in Marathi) Sir I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion

Motion, by leave, withdrawn

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK (Surat District) I have, Sir, tabled a cut of Rs 10,000 If you allow me to move it and go into a general discussion——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT That is impossible It is a cut of Rs 10,000 and the honourable member has to justify it on specific grounds within its limits

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK I am not moving it

Mr V A. SURVE (Ratnagiri District) (Addressed the House in Marathi) Sir, I beg to move

"Reduce by Rs 100—Total demand under C—Primary Education (C E page 195)."

[Mr V A Surve]

Sir, the Primary Education Act of 1923 was, once for all, passed into law by Government with a view to showing their liberality in the matter of education and proving that they were prepared to spend freely for making the masses literate by making primary education compulsory and free and agriculturists saw the unlucky feet of this baby in the form of law Flatterers and proteges of Government began to be seen in villages and towns carrying on a propaganda (in favour of this Act) among the ignorant and backward classes with a view to making them sing the praises of Government's liberality Those who conscientiously regarded the (Primary Education) bill to be unsatisfactory and delusive were even told by European members like Mr Rothfeld that they had lost their mental equilibrium Dr Paranjpye, the then Minister of Education, managed to convince the members who opposed the Bill on principle and got it passed into law Those who toured in villages carrying on propaganda in favour of the Bill tried according to their light to create ill-will among the people against those who opposed it But the backward classes who have seen both the propaganda in favour of the Act and the education that is being given in accordance with it and the starvation of primary education by Government are now convinced that the professions of liberality indulged in by Government, about giving free education to the backward classes were empty and they have realized the true nature of those favourites of Government, who tried to prejudice the agriculturists against those who opposed the bill on principle, as well as of Government and they have no hope at all that Government will do anything for the benefit of the rayats

The amount of Rs 1,30,16,927 was spent on primary education in 1930-31 but the epidemic of retrenchment which raged in 1931-32 has affected education to a great extent The revised budget for the said year has escaped the epidemic and Rs 1,25,60,000 are provided This means that in 1931-32 the amount of Rs 4,56,927 has been reduced under the head of Primary Education In the Budget for 1932-33, Rs 1,07,37,000 have been provided which means that the grant for Primary Education this year is reduced in the revised estimates for 1931-32 by Rs 18,23,000 In the budget for the year 1932-33 Rs 1,07,37,000 have been provided, that is to say, this amount is less than that in the revised budget for 1931-32 by Rs 18,23,000 It cannot be definitely said to-day that the reduction this year will be only this much because it cannot be definitely said that the same amount will be included in the revised budget or spent on primary education It is thus well-known what sympathy Government have for the education of the children of Agriculturists

The amount of Rs 1,07,37,000 provided for primary education is to be divided (vide page 206 of the White Book) as (under) Grant to the Bombay Municipality Rs 6,67,250, Local Boards, Bombay Municipality and other municipalities Rs 1,00,59,600 in all. This Government which poses as the protector of agriculturists and the partisan of the Marathas and which knows no sleep owing to its professed anxiety for the interests and educational and economic improvement of all the backward communities has provided the large (!) amount of Rs 21,150 for erecting excellent and beautiful buildings for giving primary education to the children of the classes referred to above Even the bureaucracy cannot have the moral courage to say how and when the improvement of primary education is going to take place when the amount has been divided into so many shares

The Primary Education Act was passed in 1923 but anyone can guess from the general policy of Government that they are not prepared to act in accordance with it The scissors of retrenchment have not at all been applied to the grants for the education of European and Anglo-Indian children The employment of officers who eat the cream in the shape of high salaries in each and every department increases the expenditure and the pay of semi-starved teachers working in a nation-building and sacred department like that of Education is constantly subjected to retrenchment From this it will be seen that the solicitude shown by the bureaucracy for the education of the backward classes is not real. If the amount spent on the employment of highly paid officers and inexperienced Educational Inspectors, who learn work while drawing fat salaries in the office of the Director of Public Instruction is utilised for primary education and if the recruitment of highly paid officers is stopped, an amount equal to the expenditure incurred on education in 2 or 3 districts can be saved and the same can be applied to primary education For example, let us take the case of general administration In 1905 the expenditure on this department was Rs 3,01,802 but that very Government and its bureaucracy who openly proclaim every year, and in and out of season that they are sincerely making efforts in the interests of the education of agriculturists and backward classes and for conferring other benefits upon them, spends in the year 1932-33 Rs 2,08,23,000 on that very department This expenditure has begun to increase from the year 1912-13 That is to say that this department has swallowed an amount of Rs 2,03,47,520 in 20 years By appointing 4 or 5 officers such as Secretary, Assistant Secretary, Deputy Secretary, Chief Secretary, etc, in place of one Secretary drawing Rs 1,500 to 2,000 per month and giving them Rs 1,500 to 3,000 by way of pay and paying house-rent, travelling allowance, special allowance, special pay in addition and squandering money in every possible way by thrusting it into the mouths of those officers who are already eating the cream in the shape of fat salaries, the Government has deliberately neglected the education of the children of poor agriculturists and half-starved servants with a view to destroying it completely by refusing sufficient food to those who exert themselves in giving education and helping the officers to drive in motor cars by giving them fat salaries

The people who can be put off by telling that there is no scope for retrenchment and there is no money for works of public utility are the agriculturists (the main-stay of the administration) who are completely weighed down by the burden of innumerable taxes, who have become disappointed, owing to the absence of education and subsidiary industries and who have become pale by drinking the hot water (oppression) of the rulers However, the bludgeon of the bureaucracy always threatens this very class If an unsuccessful attempt is made to kill a serpent, the serpent spreads its hood in exasperation and satisfies its thirst (for revenge) by killing its assailant Other reptiles, though resembling the serpent in appearance, do not possess this power and so any one can strike them with his stick The poor agriculturists and backward classes are in this very condition The agriculturist toils for the luxuries of the rich There is a proverb in Marathi meaning that (some) women, though feeding themselves at the expense of their husbands, attribute the credit for the same to their brothers This proverb can be appropriately applied to those who eat the cream in the shape of fat salaries Eighty per cent of the amount earned by the agriculturists by toiling day and night goes into the Government treasury directly or indirectly Although the bureaucracy knows this fact, the reply they give to the demand of the agriculturists is "You collect funds and begin to give education If Government recognize the institution, you will receive a grant" But who gives the money from which grants are paid? The bureaucracy does not remember even in its dream the people who toil hard to fill the treasury They do not admit that the agriculturist pays the greater part of the Government revenues and do not care to remember their requirements, but assert that the fat salaries given to them are paid by Government The fact, however, is that they enjoy their luxuries at the expense of the agriculturist but they hesitate to give utterance to the generosity of the agriculturist It is for the Council to see whether the proverb applies to the bureaucracy or not

Government hastily transferred the Educational Department in each district to the District Local Board of that district By passing the Primary Education Act Government agreed to pay to the Local Boards the amount they used to spend on primary education prior to its transfer to Local Boards and to contribute two-thirds of the additional expenditure incurred by the Boards on education, in opening new schools, in erecting new buildings for schools and in employing new teachers The unwillingness of Government to discharge the responsibility imposed on it by law shows that it has no scruples in transgressing the bounds of moral courage and law

Who is responsible for the discontent and mutual hatred created among teachers since the passing of the (Primary Education) Act of 1923 by the introduction of separate classification for different classes of teachers such as old and new teachers servants of Government and servants of Local Boards, third year trained, second year trained, etc., and by issuing circulars regarding the payment of the attendance allowance, the training schools, Postal allowance, etc? What further evidence is required to prove to the agriculturists and the backward classes how Government are protecting them and how dyarchy is working?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT Is the honourable member likely to take more time ?

Mr V A SURVE As I will require some more time, I will continue my remarks to-morrow

The Honourable the PRESIDENT The House is now adjourned to 2 o'clock to-morrow, Tuesday, the 8th March 1932

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—resumed

Mr V A SURVE (Ratnagiri District) (Addressed the House in Marathi)

Sir continuing my speech of yesterday, I would point out to the House that before the Educational Department in the Ratnagiri District was transferred to the Local Board, Government were being urged to open 102 new schools, for the buildings of which village contributions had already been paid, and to appoint 92 new teachers in the existing schools which were in need of more teachers Without complying with any of these demands even partially Government transferred the Department to the Local Board

The Ratnagiri District has a population of about 13,37,000 If we calculate the number of children of school-going age to be 30 per thousand, the number of such children comes to about 40,110 There are 1,339 villages and about 700 schools in the district 639 villages are without a school and there is no provision whatever for the education of children in them Government have shifted their responsibility on to the Local Board by somehow transferring the Department to it and have made the Board helpless in the matter of supplying these needs After the transfer, the Ratnagiri Board appointed 80 new teachers for affording facilities for the education of the children of agriculturists in the belief that under the Primary Education Act it will get from Government two-thirds of this additional expenditure, but Government have not discharged this responsibility imposed upon them by law although more than 2½ years have elapsed since the appointment of new teachers It is therefore hardly necessary to search for evidence from other records to prove how Government are starving the Educational Department

Sir, the district of Ratnagiri is the most backward district in the whole Presidency of Bombay and utter poverty prevails in it In the matter of its uplift in regard to its economical, educational, industrial, condition and improvement of its public health, Government's attitude has been one of utter indifference and hopelessness Take for instance the case of primary education The Bombay District Local Board Act and the Bombay Primary Education Act both lay down that whenever any Board wants to prepare any new scheme for the expansion of Primary education, it has to raise funds for that purpose by taxing the people in such a way as not to overburden them and then Government is to give grant equal to two-thirds of the net proceeds of the additional taxation Following this procedure, the Ratangari District Local Board imposed a new tax on all imports—called the "octroi duty" which is a mild measure and falls equally on all from the poor to the rich This tax is recovered from the merchants in the first instance, and although it is a fact that it hits them hard, still it is equally clear that ultimately all have to share the burden one way or the other Thus for the last two years the Board has been receiving the tax, and I think that the proceeds from the tax might well reach the figure of Rs 1,30,000 At the time of sanctioning the taxation and during its operation Government have done their best to reduce it as far as possible In spite of this the District Board and the people and the merchants of the district never grudged the taxation and in due course Government were approached for their two-thirds contribution but it is a matter of surprise that even up till now, Government in total disregard of their liability, failed to make any provision for their share Does this not show that the very Government which make laws fail to observe them themselves? Similar is the case with practically all District Local Boards right down from Sind to Karnatak They have all increased their revenues by fresh taxation of some sort or other; but I don't think that a single Board has properly received its due share of the two-thirds Government grant, and I shall rest assured if the Honourable Minister of Education would kindly let me know which Board has received it When Government themselves shirk their responsibility, the ryots are helpless. I would like to quote a Marathi adage bearing on this It is to the effect "The mother refuses to give food and the father prohibits begging" This adage can be interpreted thus The land which feeds the ryots may be taken to mean their "mother" and as its produce is insufficient for their maintenance, they are starving The King is regarded as the "father" of the ryots The present Government do not pay proper heed to the grievances of the ryots Nowadays "Ordinances" is the usual answer to popular demands for any rights Thus "the begging" (in the adage) for grant of any rights or redress of grievances has become altogether difficult This is what "the father prohibits begging" occurring in the adage stands for

The fee for the Vernacular Final Examination, which was formerly Rs 2 only was raised to Rs 3 during the ministership of Ex-Ministers, the Honourable Dr Paranjpye and the Honourable Mr Jadhav, and the scholarships of the value of As 6 or As 8, that were meant for the pupils of Depressed Classes were not awarded to many but a single pupil attending a school This went on for some 2 or 3 years and thereafter these scholarships were abolished These scholarships were called "King's Scholarships" and the money wherefor came from the pockets of the poor agriculturists by way of increased fees! and still the scholarships were being called "King's Scholarships" Now though these scholarships have been withdrawn the increase in the fees stands intact Does this connote the generosity of the Educational Department or its greed? It is not impossible to determine between the two

It is since 1923, that the vexed question of fixing the "Datum Line" is thrashed out over and over again and still there is no trace of any definite decision being arrived at in that matter!

Sir, the "Datum Line" can in my opinion be fixed thus —Take into account the expenditure on the Educational Department for one or more years prior to its being handed over to the District Board and add to it the expenditure, to be incurred in removing the short-comings that were in existence during the period the Department was under Government, viz insufficiency of the teaching staff, building programme for housing the schools, left over, opening of new schools, If with clear conscience Government proceed to fix the "Datum Line" as detailed above and further in pursuance of the Primary Education Act, 1923, undertake to contribute their ⅔rd share of the additional expenditure incurred by the Boards on matters educational, this will, in my opinion, be agreeable to all the Boards But if Government do not fix the "Datum Line" as detailed above and if in fixing it they would not take into account the needs of the Educational Department in existence prior to its being handed over to the Board's control, and arbitrarily fix the same, then I think not a single Board would consent to it

I am constrained to say that the Honourable the Educational Minister is not doing his best in regard to the subject of Primary Education Reductions in the expenditure on Primary Education are being effected from time to time and such proposals first come before the Cabinet—composed of seven members of which five are Indians—for consideration, and it is impossible to attribute alertness on the part of these five Indians to safeguard the sacred cause of Primary Education It is incumbent on you to do your utmost in the cause of Primary Education and thus to do your best in securing the greatest amount possible for being expended on Education At least in future, I hope, you will do as suggested

Sir, I have brought forward this cut motion for Rs 100 in the expenditure on Education with a view to subjecting this Department's expenditure to the criticism of the elected representatives of the people At the conclusion of the debate I shall be required to answer all points raised therein, but I make it plain that in case I do not receive satisfactory replies, supported by proofs, to the various complaints that I have submitted to the Director of Public Instruction and receive only off-hand replies, I would refuse to make a speech On the contrary if I receive satisfactory replies from the officers of the Educational Department and if I am further assured of the redress of grievances pointed out by me, I might perhaps make up my mind to withdraw the cut—but not till then

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK (Surat District) Sir, this is a very important subject, at any rate from the viewpoint of this side of the House, but I am not going to cover the same ground which has already been covered by the previous speakers Moreover, the subject was fully discussed in this House last year and during previous years I do not want to lay before the honourable House the grievances—though they are very legitimate—about the Government's not coming forward with their share or contribution for increasing the number of teachers for the undermanned schools nor for the opening of new schools for the expansion of primary education, nor for employing the new supervising staff as laid down under the Act and the rules But I want to lay before the House one fundamental issue But, Sir, before laying before the House the fundamental issue, I will briefly refer to the history of primary education in this presidency Under the Local Boards Act of 1884, the primary education in the presidency was managed and controlled by Government and out of the total cost incurred after primary education 88 per cent was borne by Government and 12 per cent. was borne by the local bodies When I talk about local bodies, I mean district local boards and I leave the question of municipalities to be dealt with by some other honourable member Before the Act of 1923 was passed, 88 per cent of the cost was borne by Government and 12 per cent only was borne by the district local boards, and for any further expansion in primary education, the district local boards had to share nothing as their liabilities were fixed—one-third of their cess plus fees. So if expansion had then taken place, it was at the cost of Government. When the Act of 1923 was passed, it was laid down that for the expansion of primary education either on a voluntary or compulsory basis the district local boards have to bear one-third of the extra cost while the remaining two-thirds would be borne by Government and the cost incurred by Government before the transfer of control was to be borne by Government For this, I have to invite your attention to two relevant sections in the Act of 1923 Section 8 (1) says,

"(1) A local authority shall take over and employ such primary school teachers employed under the Educational Department of the Government as the Government may direct, on the same terms and conditions on which such persons were employed under the said department.

(2) The existing and future rights, liabilities, duties and powers of the Government in respect of such teachers shall vest in and be exercised or performed by the local authority

Provided (a) that any such teacher shall have a right of appeal to the Government against any order of dismissal,

(b) that the scales of pay and allowances applicable to such teachers at the time at which they are taken over and employed by the local authority shall not be altered without the previous sanction of Government."

Another section on which I want to take my stand is 13 (2), which says

"Nothing in this section shall affect the claim of any local authority to any annual grant which at the time this Act comes into operation is being paid to it by the Government for purposes of primary education, provided that if the Government consider that the educational fund of any local authority has been or is about to be misused or misapplied, they may call upon such local authority for an explanation of such misuse or misapplication, and if not satisfied with the explanation given may make such reduction in the grants payable to such local authority as they deem proper"

[Rao Bahadur B R Naik]

My complaint is this : Under section 13 (2) Government cannot make any reduction in the datum line grant That is the amount which they used to spend before the transfer of control They can stop their contribution for further expansion of primary education if their funds do not permit But whatever liability Government undertook when the Primary Education Act was passed, they should discharge, that is, they should not reduce the datum line grant. Till now, the question of expansion of education, of sanctioning schemes on voluntary or compulsory basis and so on was talked But here it is a fundamental question that the Government should pay to the local boards whatever expenditure they incurred at the time of transferring the control of primary education to the local bodies and that they should continue to give it to the local bodies What do we see today ? They have made a cut of 20 per cent from the datum line Five per cent during the current year and 15 per cent during the ensuing year My argument is that they cannot do it under the Act I ask the Honourable the Leader of the House who was in a great measure responsible for the Act, though Dr Paranjpye was in charge of the Bill, whether it is not a fact that 88 per cent of the total cost was incurred by Government and that they undertook to pay it to the local bodies at the time of the transfer of control of the primary education to them This was the clear undertaking given by Government at the time of the transfer to the local bodies of the control of primary education This undertaking is not given by any rules or circulars or Government resolutions, but it is a statutory provision, which no Government have the right to over-ride Unless this very Act is scratched, Government cannot say "We can make a cut of 10 per cent or 20 per cent in the datum line grant" I sympathise with Government when they are in financial difficulties The other day the Honourable the Finance Member said "Give us the money for carrying on the administration of the presidency" What about the district local boards, which have a narrow margin of revenue ? I shall take the Surat district for illustration When primary education was transferred to this local board, Government was incurring an expenditure of Rs 4,73,000 out of the provincial funds, and Rs 63,000 was contributed by the district local board Out of this Rs 4,73,000, Government have made a cut of 20 per cent A cut of 5 per cent this year and a cut of 15 per cent for the next year

An Honourable MEMBER : There is a cut of 10 per cent in the salaries of teachers

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK : Government say that a cut of 10 per cent has been imposed on the salaries of teachers. Out of 1,099 teachers in Surat District, if you effect a ten per cent cut on the salaries of teachers who are drawing over Rs 40 it will give you about Rs 12,468 saving per year If you apply the cut to the supervising staff, it will give about Rs 900 and the clerical staff will give you about Rs 400 The total saving from the cuts will at the most come to about Rs 15,000. According to the cut (5 per cent and 15 per cent,) made by Government in the grant, the reduction in the grant comes to about more than

[Rao Bahadur B R Naik]

Rs 87,000 If you deduct the saving from the cut on the salaries from this amount of Rs 87,000, the balance which the district local board will have to find comes to about Rs 72,000 How will the district local board be able to find this amount of Rs 72,000 ? I am prepared to help the Government at a time of emergency, but at the same time, it is the duty of the Government to suggest to the local boards as to how they should meet this deficit It is not only in the grant for education that the cut has been made, but in the other grants also—medical relief, engineering staff and so on Therefore, I wish to know from Government the sources of revenue for the district local boards from which these deficits can be met The just and proper course for Government would have been to resume the administration of primary education at the present juncture when there is the financial stringency and transfer the control when the financial situation gets better I do not know of any civilised Government shirking a statutory liability On this question, my lawyer friends will throw more light It is the duty of the Government to point out to the local bodies the sources from which they can meet the deficit in the grants Nobody knows better than the Honourable the Leader of the House about the scheduled taxes which are assigned to the local boards I should like him to be honest and frank———

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD Honest ?

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK To be honest in his speech Generally, politicians are diplomats and particularly Government members

The Honourable the Leader of the House knows the scheduled taxes that have been assigned to the local boards If they were put into operation, they would have to spend more in some cases for the collection of those taxes than realizations That is why I pointedly said that he should be honest We are prepared to do whatever you ask us to, if we can do it But we have got our own responsibility to continue to give the primary education How are we to find the money for it ? Our source of income is the local cess A straightforward course for Government would have been to ask the district local boards, before making the cut in the grants, whether they were prepared to hand back the control of primary education till the finances of the Government were improved

There are other difficulties also We cannot cut down the salaries of the teachers nor dismiss them under section 8 (1) which I referred to We have no right to touch the salaries and allowances fixed by Government or drive them out There is another responsibility imposed on the district local boards by the rules under the Primary Education Act There should be a supervisor for every 6,000 pupils There are about 42,000 children in primary schools of the Surat District and we have to maintain according to the rules 7 supervisors If we were to cut down say two of them, the Educational Inspector will report, that there are not the required number of supervisors under the rules for the inspection of schools The result will be that the grants will still further

be reduced There are certain obligations imposed upon the district local boards and certain obligations imposed upon Government under the Act and the rules Government get out of the obligations imposed upon them and ask the district local boards to carry out their obligations What is the total asset of the district local boards ? I do not want to cast any reflection on the Honourable Members sitting on the opposite benches When this question was considered in the cabinet, it might have been well known to them that the only source of income for the district local boards was the local cess I ask whether there is any other source

Mr R H BECKETT The district local board can raise its local cess

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK Out of the 27 district local boards, 17 or 18 have already raised their cess from one anna to two annas This was done with a view to meet the cost for further expansion of primary education Take the district of Satara They have already increased the cess by one anna They never thought that Government would come forward with a reduction of 20 per cent in their grants My question is, what about meeting the deficit in the share of Government to be caused by this cut ? The Director of Public Instruction comes forward and says they should raise the cess Local Boards may raise the cess to 2 annas, or more—which is not possible in some cases But that is not the question What about Government share ? That is my question Whatever revenue district local boards raise, is for the expansion of primary education or for other purposes of the district local boards I have again to repeat the obligations contained in section 13 (2) of the Primary Education Act To my mind its wording is very clear I do not know whether the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer will be able to throw some light on it It says that the boards shall have every claim on Government to receive the same amount of grant which Government used to spend at the time of transfer There is no ambiguity in the wording If there is any ambiguity, it is for my honourable lawyer friends to point out As a layman, I can say that the wording is quite clear I have read the debates on this Bill in 1923 I have also seen the proceedings of the select committee and I am quite convinced about the intention of Government This liability was intended to be shouldered by Government and not by the local boards Why should I go back to 1923 ? Only last month the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction who has just now interrupted me sent an officer to Surat——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT (Observing a stranger in the House) Order, order That is not permitted

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK Only last month the Director of Public Instruction sent round an officer, named Mr Gokhale, to Surat and he gave the figures which the District Local Board of Surat is entitled under the Act to receive as a grant from Government, namely Rs 4,73,800 This is not my figure It has been fixed by the officer appointed by the Director of Public Instruction And we are going to get about Rs 87,000 less if 5 per cent and 15 per cent cuts are to be effected Where are we to get the money from to carry on our administration ?

In summing up, I will say that the district local boards have got only two alternatives One is to request Government to take back the control of primary education in order to relieve the district local boards from their very difficult position I do not wish to say that Government have intentionally or deliberately placed the boards in this position But this position is due to the present financial stringency I do not blame the Honourable the Educational Minister or the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction, because it is part of the policy of Government as a whole But so far as datum line grants are concerned, Government have no right to reduce them Government can say that they cannot carry out the provisions of the Act The Act imposes the liability on Government, and if Government have no funds to meet these liabilities, they can come to this honourable House and scrap the Act. But I do not know how they can do it as long as the Act stands The second alternative open to district local boards is to close down their schools and dismiss their teachers But there again we find it difficult Under the Act, we cannot dismiss the teachers We do not know what to do Therefore, my sole object in rising to speak is to get some suggestions either from the Honourable Minister in charge or the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction for the guidance of the district local boards The other day during the course of discussion the Honourable the Leader of the House rose and said, " The whole grant goes to the teachers as salaries " Therefore, I have pointed out that out of Rs 4,34,000 which the district local board of Surat has to pay to the teachers, there is a cut of about Rs 12,500 There are only 214 teachers drawing more than Rs 40 The others numbering 885 are not to be touched according to the Retrenchment Committee's report and according to Government orders So even there you cannot make this cut of about Rs 87,000 That is my point

The Government of this Presidency always took pride and credit that it was far ahead of other presidencies in the matter of education I think we are losing ground I do not know whether the contention was correct formerly, but if we take the figures of other Presidencies in India, even without taking this cut into consideration, two years ago, there were three Presidencies which were ahead of this Presidency in the matter of expenditure on education Our expenditure was, two years ago, 13 per cent of the total revenue, while it was 15 per cent in the three other provinces I have got the figures with me They may have reduced their expenditure now owing to financial stringency Even the other Presidencies are not far below the mark Bengal spends 12 8 per cent , Madras spends 13 4 per cent , Central Provinces spends 12 7, United Provinces spends 15, Behar and Orissa spends 15 7 per cent and so on So, we cannot say that we are far ahead of the other provinces in the matter of education

[Rao Bahadur B R Naik]

Before I conclude, I have only to request Government to solve this problem—a very difficult problem I do not speak as a mere critic of Government I know Government are in the same difficulty as local boards are But we want to know how to get out of the present difficulties We do not find any means of getting out of our difficulties Let the Director of Public Instruction issue some instructions or orders He does not require any statutory powers Sometimes these officers issue what orders they like. I may tell you that the Primary Education Act has got 27 sections and under those sections 160 rules have been framed by Government and to elaborate and make these rules explicit they have issued 300 circulars I have referred to this point the other day in my speech at Anand The result is that the rules nullify the Act and the circulars and interpretations nullify the rules Everything is in a mess They do not know where they are Therefore they come before us and say they have reduced 20 per cent from the grants and say that there is no obligation under section 13 (2) When discussing this question on the floor of the House, the late Honourable Minister, Dewan Bahadur Harilal Desai, said that Government had no obligations except so far as the datum line grants were concerned And to-day we see that 20 per cent has been cut down from datum line grants I therefore request the Honourable Minister to throw some light on the point With these remarks I resume my seat

Mr L R GOKHALE (Poona City) Sir, it was said yesterday that secondary education has not been a success I believe that primary education has not only not been a success, but it has been a failure in certain respects Government themselves have been admitting this fact from time to time in their annual reports In the report for the year 1929-30, at page 41, it is stated :

"The need for adapting education to the requirements of those for whom it is intended is universally recognised It is a common complaint that the teaching in the higher standards of primary schools is of somewhat too literary a character for the children belonging to the rural classes"

And this complaint about the unfitness of primary schools for those in rural areas has been repeated many times In fact, not only the rural areas are given primary education which is unfit for their purposes, but even in the urban areas the people have got the same complaint to make. Too much attention is paid to literary knowledge where it is not wanted and no attention is paid to commercial education, and no attention is paid to industrial education also There are no industrial bias and agricultural bias classes worth the name in any of the areas in the Presidency I believe Government are aware that in the proceedings of committees appointed in the year 1925 and again in 1927, this was pointed out I refer to the proceedings of the Bombay Provincial Board of Agriculturists held in 1927 It was pointed out in a resolution of that committee that it was very necessary that the question of linking up the agricultural bias classes with the vernacular agricultural classes and consequently the question of raising the age and standard of admission to these latter as well as the extension of the period of the course at these latter schools might be considered by the authorities concerned That was done in 1927 I find that nothing has been done up to now as regards these proposals made by the Committee to the Government In the year 1925 another suggestion was made of equal importance by a resolution of the proceedings of the Board There it was pointed out to Government that it was necessary to have a committee appointed to settle the question of agricultural bias classes and the industrial bias classes I do not know whether such a committee has been appointed, but at any rate their report is not yet available I believe no such committee has ever been appointed by Government I do not really see the purpose of wasting our money to such a large extent on education which is of so very little practical value I think the figures of wastage are also very illuminating We find at page 39 of the report on Public Instruction for the year 1929-30 under the heading "Wastage"

In the year 1921-22 there were three lakhs and odd boys who entered the infant class, in 1925 only 15 per cent of them reached the 4th standard In the years 1922 and 1926 16 per cent reached the 4th standard In 1923 and 1927 19 per cent reached the 4th standard In 1924 and 1928 the percentage was 20 In 1925 and 1929 the percentage was 18

So, out of 100 boys attending school in the infant class, within the course of four years only 18 reach the fourth standard Is not this an abominable waste, not only of money, but of energy? I believe that the honourable member from Ratnagiri (Mr Surve) has put the case in a convincing way in his eloquent speech It is really true that the boys are taught some literature The boy is made to read something and all that will be misused by him afterwards If these facts are before Government, I wonder why Government is not trying to look into this question of wastage before trying to cut down expenditure on primary education I think, Sir, that thus the primary education as given in this Presidency is an entire failure from the utility point of view of the rural as well as urban classes The highly paid officials of Government who have special knowledge of the circumstances existing in foreign countries ought to utilise that knowledge in India and give us a return for the high salaries that they draw from the Indian exchequer

As regards the attitude of the boys turned out of these primary schools, I can do nothing better than read a few lines from the report of one of the Government officials What the mentality of such a boy is we have been told in these terms

"The boys become unfit for any actual manual work either in the fields or elsewhere Their only ambition is to seek for Government service and they start with an idea that they are going to attend a school simply because in the long run they are destined for a big office"

I do not know whether it is the Collector's or the Commissioner's, but that is the mentality with which the boys start and which the parents also cherish for their boys Afterwards, as time passes, they find a natural disinclination to manual labour They get aversion to manual labour As time passes, they get disinclined to any labour and in the long run hardly 5 or 7 per cent of the boys go beyond the final standard. What is the cause of all this? Cannot Government officials see what this is due to? If 91 per cent of the boys do not reach the final classes of the vernacular and they drop out, either the education is such as is not wanted or that people have no means of taking the sort of education that is being given to them now I may also say that Government are such spendthrifts in this matter of primary education that there is no comparison at all Look at the buildings which Government erect or under the Act insist on local bodies erecting for primary schools The boys live in small huts in their villages in small areas, but when they attend school they sit in buildings constructed at a huge cost of some thousands of rupees The boys certainly acquire a different mentality and when they return to their huts, they naturally look down upon their humble huts in which they are brought up What is the necessity of building such extravagant and costly buildings, which are imitations of buildings in other countries? Cannot our boys be taught in temples, mosques, chavdis and other places with which they are familiar? That certainly is a great waste of money. I find that at many private houses buildings are not occupied, 50 per cent. of the buildings are left unoccupied These can be used as school houses Moreover, there are many people in villages who are prepared to hand over their houses, which generally are not occupied by people due to migration to towns There are many empty houses which are available for holding classes But, Government have their own ideas of sanitation, their hobbies of hygiene and so on, as if all that sanitation and hygiene is centred in these school-houses, and on account of these hobbies, Government go in for costly buildings which are generally unsuited to the requirements of schools This is another wastage which I find in the present management of funds of the Education Department

I quite agree with the view taken by my honourable friend from Surat as regards the obligatory character of the Act that he referred to I was rather anxious to see whether any of the Government officers would help us in understanding this section I thought one of the Government legal officers was looking into books and probably he would be helpful to members on this side before they had their say on this matter. I really thought at one time that the honourable member on the Government bench was going to correct the position that we had taken. But that is not going to be However, as I understand the Act, under section 13 it is obligatory upon Government not to go beyond a certain line, certain proportion to which they must stick I really wonder how Government has not considered that position Of course if the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer afterwards explains the position to us, some lawyer member from this side will reply and point out what our contention is

Lastly, about the grants to local bodies and the cut of 15 per cent in those grants On page 61 of the Blue Book we find

"142, C Primary—The decrease under this head is mainly due to the decision of Government to reduce by 15 per cent the grants payable to local bodies for primary education next year owing to acute financial stringency"

Of course if next year they have occasion to introduce another cut, they will again say 15 per cent but they will never say it is 5 plus 15 plus 15 This is the way they do their calculations of this cut——

Rao Bahadur B R NAIK This year it is not 15 per cent but in reality 20

Mr L R GOKHALE I am sure that my honourable friends will not be misled by this 15 per cent , which, as I have shown, is really more than 15 per cent When our declared and determined policy is to advance primary education is a cut of 15 per cent at all desirable ? Of all the nation-building departments' activities, the primary education activity is of the utmost importance Of course, we have no right under the rules to ask that certain grants should be increased and we cannot do it, but then we can express our view that this is a most undesirable cut that possibly could be made by Government for the purpose of effecting retrenchment Whether it is within the law or whether it is against the law, viz , section 13 of the Local Boards Act, is immaterial from my point of view As I say this cut is not in consonance with the spirit of the section Supposing some way is found out by some legal method of saying that this is not an obligation binding upon Government, even then I say that this is the most undesirable and uncharitable and, I should rather say, the most unstatesmanlike cut that should possibly be even thought of by any Government I have full sympathy with Government, but, Sir, we have also shown methods of retrenchment to them This is not an occasion for me to suggest lines of retrenchment In fact, if you were to take away primary education—even that sort of primary education that you are giving at present—you would be causing an amount of harm to people and blot on the British administration of a hundred years old After a century of an enlightened British Government working in India, if that Government is not able to teach young children the primary rudiments of A B C or even to read and write, is that sufficiently statesmanlike, is that sense of duty on the part of Government ? That is how I put it Never mind if other departments might have to starve, never mind what their defects are, would Government like to starve children of being taught and educated ? I know that Government have difficulties to face—everyone of us has difficulties to meet and overcome, but does any one of us ever think of withdrawing our boys from primary schools for want of money ? My suggestion therefore is that this cut is most unreasonable, unstatesmanlike and it is such that will create a very bad impression upon the people in general about the intentions of Government The Poona City Municipality tried to introduce compulsory primary education but it had to hold its hands under circumstances which I need not detail here About 12 other local bodies have undertaken to introduce compulsory primary education—both municipalities and district local boards—but all of them find it very difficult to fulfil the obligations of compulsory primary education in their jurisdictions which they cannot undertake

I find a further defect in the way of primary education, namely, the absence of any religious or moral teaching in primary schools In my opinion it is necessary that primary education should be coupled with some sort of religious and moral training, and I do believe that it is necessary to lay down a sort of foundation of character for the youngster when he enters school If he is a Mahomedan, let him read the Koran , if he is a Hindu, let him read the Gita , if he is a Christian, let him read the Bible It matters very little to me what religion the child belongs to, but there ought to be some provision made for giving him moral training and religious training both of which ought to be the backbone of any sort of education or instruction that you may give him. I do not think that Government need be afraid of being accused of interfering with religious liberty of the people or interfering with the religious sentiments of the population As a matter of fact, it will be found in the report of the Education Department that in Sind special encouragement is given to Koran or Mulla schools That is really very creditable both to the people of Sind and to Government officials. Of course figures are given here and so I need not repeat them, but I ask, why not try that very experiment in other districts of the Presidency as well ? Has any attempt been made to do that ? Have Government been told at any time that such an attempt will not be welcomed by the people ? On the other hand I find that in many primary schools such attempts have been made by private agencies which give some religious instruction which is certainly received with great enthusiasm and warmth So, that is another defect of the present system of primary education which I think Government should try to remedy I believe that in some of the schools run privately—I mean in schools run by missionary societies—religious instruction is given and the Bible is taught to Christian boys It is not given in Government schools My point is that the method of giving religious instruction should be extended to all the communities—Hindus, Mahomedans, Depressed Classes and other communities without any distinction

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD Did the honourable member say that in Government schools provision is made for Christian boys ?

Mr L R GOKHALE No, I did not mean to say that I meant mission schools aided by Government who give them grants

Now about text books Even in primary and secondary schools, a very bad system has grown up of prescribing new text books every year Education is now becoming costlier every day and I do not see the object of the Department in having these changes made so rapidly I find sometimes that the text book is changed every alternate year and for the 4th, 5th, 6th or 7th standard some new book is prescribed every year This practice has become so prevalent that the belief is gaining ground that it is only one of the ways of patronising publishers or authors, with the necessary result that education becomes more costly than before An elder brother's book is hardly useful to the younger brother or to the one

next to him I also find that even primary school students are required to buy notebooks and exercise books, as if they were studying in higher classes somewhere in an English school That is not what is wanted in a poor country like India We may have been a golden land once but now that we are not What I would suggest is let the method of education be as simple and as less costly as it possibly could be But that is not being given attention to and only forms are being introduced and education is getting out of the hands and beyond the capacity of parents

With these words, I support the cut that has been proposed and the remarks that have been made by my honourable friend from Surat, Rao Bahadur Naik

Sir REGINALD SPENCE (Bombay City) Sir, I should like to take this opportunity of expressing my feelings on this question of expenditure on primary education because I consider that there is a great deal of money wasted Unfortunately, perhaps, my views as to what is waste may not be the same as those of the honourable members on the other side of the House, but I rather think from what the honourable member who has just sat down—I mean the honourable member Mr Gokhale—said, that I shall have a great deal of sympathy with what I am going to say, because what he wanted, and what I think we all want, is that primary education should be the means of the foundation of character, and it seems to me that we are wasting our money very largely, because we do not provide in our primary schools trained teachers sufficient for their needs, and also because we do not provide sufficient inspection of these schools, to see that Government money is not wasted One of the honourable members of this House mentioned to me a few days ago that a good many of our primary schools in villages were nothing but creches, they were merely places, you might say, where the children were put to keep them out of harm's way Now, I thoroughly agree with what the honourable member Mr Gokhale said, namely, that we ought to have a little more religious training, because I believe that if you bring up a child without any religious foundation at all, he loses a lot of his character, you cannot raise people above your own level—I suppose you can if you have big levers and the equivalent of levers, but without these you cannot expect to improve and build up what we all want We want to build up the character of the people in India so as to make them fit for the great increase in their political power which they are going to have, we must put more character into them Now, if you have primary teachers paid the absurd, tiny salaries that they are paid, Rs 15, Rs 20 and Rs 25 each, you cannot get good men If you cannot pay higher salaries to these men, you are wasting your money again, and it seems to me that we should do very much better with our money if we said to Government, "Instead of giving all this money to the local boards for education, we will give less money to the local boards, but we will provide the local boards with trained teachers" If we give you something sound to build upon, surely your local bodies can contribute a little money towards education, and between the two—between Government who provide trained teachers and the local body—we shall be able to educate perhaps not so many people, but we shall be able to turn out a far greater number of trained, educated and worthy citizens What is the use, Sir, of our wasting all our money and not turning out a good product? I do not mean to imply it is the fault of the children It is our own fault, because we do not give these children a chance to take advantage of that which we want them to have, it would be far better if we lessened our numbers and had fewer in our schools and had fewer schools but had for those schools trained teachers Yet if Government were to come to this House and say, "Increase our training colleges, increase the payment for trained teachers," would the House afford Government the money? I do not think the members of the House would And yet we go on objecting and criticising Government for wasting money, when we do not give Government constructive lines on which to work We do not tell Government that if they will avoid waste we will give them the money

An Honourable MEMBER: Retrench.

SIR REGINALD SPENCE: Retrench? By all means retrench. But what are you going to retrench on? Are you going to retrench on your staff of teachers? Are you going to cut down the opportunities for training your teachers? I say that what you should ask Government to do is to cut down the number of schools, provide good trained teachers, and tell the various local bodies, "Here we are giving you something worth having, take advantage of these trained teachers, take advantage of what we can give you and get better value for your money" I would ask this honourable House, when criticising Government on the question of primary education, to remember that, although I agree with them when they say that there is a waste of Government money, we in this House have a lot to blame ourselves with, because we do not help Government with any constructive policy to make that education better. I will give you an example Some of us paid a visit the other day to the training ship "Dufferin" We saw what was being done there. We saw how well disciplined the children were That was because they had trained teachers Those children were a product of India that we were proud to see It was absolutely magnificent We were so proud to think of those youngsters going out to represent Indian youth all over the world Why were they better than other children? Not from birth They come from all parts of India and belong to all classes and creeds, but they have been given a chance in their school time to be well disciplined and well taught I am afraid that most of the troubles that come to us in India come from the fact that our children in schools are not well disciplined I think we in this House, who are really keen on the primary education of Indians, who believe that unless her population is taught and is literate, she cannot proceed as we want her to proceed, ought to think a little bit more as to how to help Government rather than desire to cut Government where Government should not be cut and criticise where Government should not be criticised

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE (Ahmednagar District): Sir, this is one of those annual occasions on which we indulge in a lot of criticism, which bears no fruit at the end of the year, and we again try to rewrite on the same slate, perhaps to be wiped out again The honourable member who just addressed the House, the honourable member representing the Bombay City European constituency (Sir Reginald Spence), I am afraid has missed the whole point which the Opposition wants to raise I think perhaps it is excusable in him, because he has not yet come across and also into close contact with the trained teacher who now runs the present primary schools in the mofussil If he were to come over—and I would welcome him in that position—as our future Minister for Education, when he will have the fullest possible opportunity of putting his ideas into practice, with the Director of Public Instruction under him to execute his behests, I am sure he will have to revise many of his ideas, and his conjured paradise will be lost to him Living as we do in this world in our present conditions, what little he has seen on the S S "Dufferin," the little example of perfection that he has seen, will not stand him in good stead We have to face the facts in the outer world, wherein poverty, and poverty and nothing but poverty, reigns supreme, and his ideas of Government trained teachers, who appear to him as model men who are going out of these Government institutions, will have to be very much revised I wish to point out that that is exactly the policy which the Honourable Minister for Education, who happens to be our popular Minister, has been enunciating in the past I have culled down certain remarks from his speeches which will show the trend of his policy so far as this portfolio is in his hands Going back to the early British days in 1840, he takes, rightly perhaps, the Government to task for catering only for one community, particularly the Brahmins, and neglecting the other communities, and therefore it is that he now thinks that everything must be done for the backward communities, the Mahomedans and others. Apart from that argument, which he has done well to omit, I am entirely at one with his idea that the backward classes, the Moslems and the depressed do stand in need of help I would entirely agree with his policy in that respect if he were really——I wanted to use the word earnest, about it But what is his policy?

Sir, the policy of the Honourable Minister is nothing else but one of drift—go on drifting His policy is a lot of caution, but no action These are his two principles—go on managing things as they are, let us drift together, let there be a great deal of caution lest the ship might flounder, but no action He says by way of defining his policy that there is no public spirit and self-sacrifice enough He wants public spirit and self-sacrifice to come to his aid, so that he may show a wonderful advance in this field of expansion of primary education Couple it with his idea that the enactment of the Compulsory Primary Education Act was a blunder of the first magnitude He says in its financial aspect the Act has completely failed. So, he starts with this, viz, that the Compulsory Primary Education Act, which was passed by this House under circumstances well known to the whole public, is a blunder Then he says that the financial clauses contained in the Act are such that Government never intended to put them into action, and are almost a bugbear on the financial side of Government Sir, as one who has done his humble best in having that particular Act on the statute book, after a good deal of labour and thought, in which team work was done by the Honourable Minister of Education who then occupied the opposite bench, I should think that the Honourable Minister is absolutely wrong in his view that the Act was a blunder If he is not exaggerating, let the Honourable Minister stand up and say why it is a blunder Which clause is he able to show that he cannot execute ? What is wrong therein ? Then he goes on and says, " Oh, I did my best. " But he has never come forward with any proposal either for mending the Act or ending it If he says it is a blunder, he can show his better hand and his better qualities, but he never comes forward He never says that this Act should be ended or mended As far as I have been able to read his speeches, he is harping back on " public spirit and self-sacrifice " He says that the teachers who are now in charge of these schools should flourish and should be content with a pittance of Rs 15 or Rs 20 a month

Sir REGINALD SPENCE I never said that

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE That is the Honourable Minister's idea I make a present of this to you, so that you may think over how the primary education will advance He says that the cry is that their pay should be increased more and more and takes the House to task for saying " Yes, " whenever such proposals are made It is absolutely wrong and doing an injustice to this part of the House We have never stated that the primary teachers should have higher and higher salary Government themselves in their wisdom, manifested by their Ministers then in power in those days, thought that a man could not live on a pittance of Rs 15 or Rs 20 a month The salary was then raised to Rs 25 at the most It is at present lower down I am making a present again to the Honourable Minister that new hands are being engaged on Rs 15 or Rs 20 a month—temporary hands who have Government service to their credit

Then he says that the Primary Education Act was passed without looking into the consequences He says that this House has not assisted him in giving him more taxation There again he is wrong I say that it is not only wrong, but it is adding insult to injury to this part of the House Whenever Government have come forward with any taxation proposal, I should think Government have succeeded—it does not matter whether we howl or feel sorry I know that Government have obtained several taxes, several increments in the existing taxes, which have not been used for the purpose for which they were wanted I may draw the attention of the Honourable Minister to those taxes The Entertainments Tax was intended primarily—old members of this House may remember—for this purpose Though we meant it for education, under the rules it was not possible to put it in one particular purse, as there must be only one common purse Then, there are various additions which have been made to taxation, and which come from the pockets of the agriculturists Need I mention the increased fees under registration ? Need I mention the increased fees on stamps or court-fees or anything ? At least a part of it is due to the department, which, though placed last, ought to play a great part Only last year, we knew that the tax on book-makers was needed by Government It was then stated that this money was needed for that purpose The Honourable Minister then said that he put up a tough fight and did his best but could not succeed If so he should have come out then as a popular Minister and said that a great injustice was being done by Government I think this House would have expected the Honourable Minister to come over to this side, and no one would have occupied the seat on that side, before this cut was restored I may remind the Honourable Minister of one instance, which happened on a similar matter like this in the House when I was a member There was a cut of about Rs 65,000 on secondary education The popular Minister then did good team work The popular Minister, who was one of us, came to us when we attacked him and said that he had to go out of the ministry, because Government had made up their minds that the cut should be maintained The cut motion to express our views was carried by a majority of half a dozen votes We do not claim that we ever had a very large majority Still the cut motion was passed at about 7 o'clock, just at the time of parting on a Saturday After the cut motion was passed, the Honourable Minister came and said that he would not be in the House on the following Monday on the Government benches and that he would come to this side of the House. We said we would welcome him with cheers and that no one from this side would occupy that seat there It must be said to the team work of popular Ministers in those days that—those good old days are past—a cabinet meeting was held on Sunday and by the time we met on Monday an announcement was made that Government were pleased to hand back the cut of Rs. 65,000. I think if the Honourable Minister had the courage and strength of his convictions and carried on the fight in that mood and come to us, we would have welcomed him with us here on these benches It is an object lesson and an eye-opener to the whole Government That was not to be Why do I say so ? Last year, I pointed it out, when speaking about this wastage, which was pointed out by my honourable friend whose name I do not want to mention, but who was referred to by the honourable member representing the European constituency A reply was given to me that "we are doing our best by the bifurcation of the duties in appointing an assistant to the inspector for closer supervision." This point was rightly made by the last speaker It has never struck the Honourable Minister up to now, though it was commented upon last year that the present Education Inspector does not know the vernacular in which the boys are taught in the schools of the Central Division Then I had made it clear, Then again it was stated that an assistant was being given to him so that he could be in closer touch with the primary education as it was going on What has happened ? An English gentleman was appointed I have no quarrel because he is an

[Rao Bahadur G K Chitale]

Englishman, because an Englishman is as good as an Indian My only quarrel is that he too does not know the vernacular in which the boys are taught Look at the way in which it is done It was again stated that he was doing his best. We have an educational inspector who does not know the language in which the boys are to be examined He is given an assistant who too does not know the language He insists in one of his speeches " In order to wipe out all these difficulties, he should be a man who is trained in the best possible methods and who would possess the highest and the most effective qualification which direction and supervision require " He quotes with pride the opinion of the Director of Public Instruction that he agreed with his opinion Well, that is rather an uncouth way of putting things Therefore, an assistant was given to him with the best qualification, a European gentleman, over the head of an Indian gentleman, who was available It is again past history A fresh man, however best his training may be, cannot do justice, if he were to be appointed in England to supervise the staff This is commonsense He has never inspected any of the schools and, after a short time, I believe after 5 or 6 months, he was transferred as assistant to the Director of Public Instruction He was then transferred to the Northern Division This waste is so much complained about and rightly too in this House I am entirely in agreement with the view that this wastage must be stopped at any cost After spending over a crore of rupees, 18 per cent. of the boys pass the 4th standard! That is to say, 82 per cent of the cost goes for nothing Is that business? What is it? What has the Honourable Minister done to stop it? He has done nothing as far as I know Yesterday, an honourable member complained that the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction could not understand what he spoke in Marathi It was his business to know. He must know the vernacular It is not our fault If he does not know the vernacular, he may not have to sit in this House, so that——

Mr R H BECKETT Does the honourable member know all the vernaculars spoken in this House?

Rao Bahadur G K CHITALE I am not the Director of Public Instruction If I were so, I would have tried to pass an examination It must be taken in the humour in which it is made If he is not capable of that humour, he is not worth sitting in this House What I mean to point out is that you are following a suicidal policy of drift by making a show of strength, not showing it in the proper time This policy does not give any hope of further advance

Going back to the enactment of the Primary Education Act, it was rightly pointed out that Government was responsible for the cost which they were then incurring on primary education Suppose for instance that the cost was X then Government stated that they would be responsible for finding out this amount X As the Primary Education Act itself provided, this percentage of 86 or 88 per cent was to go down to 66 per cent, because a percentage of the cost was to be borne in the proportion of 2 to 1, it was thought a good business proposition that in future years for extra expenditure which would be necessary for making primary education compulsory that Government should pay two-thirds, and Government's cost would be correspondingly reduced from 85 or 88 per cent. to 66 per cent. The whole quarrel came about in this way. What was the cost which Government was bearing in those good old days? That cost is considered to be the datum line grant which is being investigated into for so many years. A Government which is not able to solve this particular problem of datum line—an amount which they themselves were spending—if they are not able to make up their mind, is not worth its job. There are the items of expenditure. There are the tables giving all expenditure from every district. There was your own inspecting staff in the Deputy Educational Inspectors. You knew exactly what you were spending. A little subtraction here or a little addition there was the only thing needed. But Government has been all along playing with time and has not yet come to a decision as to what amount is really due on the first percentage to the local bodies. They have become bankrupt in the meanwhile. They try to say, "We cannot pay you now even if you go to court. We know our liabilities; but we have no funds." That is what we find to-day. Take the case of the Bombay Municipality. The case was fought out in the High Court. The High Court admitted the moral claim and said that the Municipality had a very good case. But as a matter of fact, the contract was not entered into between the proper authorities and therefore the High Court thought that the suit must be dismissed. I should think that the suit was dismissed on technical grounds, but Government does not come out with flying colours. If that is the policy of Government with respect to primary education, I for one think that the local bodies are entitled to protest, and if some local board takes it into its head to sue Government, I think it will be worth while. Instead of asking what my view is or what somebody else's view is, I think it much better that a rich school board or a local board should file a test case and find out the exact position. I am not prepared to advise one way or the other.

An Honourable MEMBER: Not paid for it.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: It is not a question of payment. The question is not altogether free from doubt.

However, I was speaking on this policy of drift. I must say on the floor of this House that my old friend and colleague at the college (Mr. Jadhav) when he was Minister in charge of Education, was more honest in his policy. He told me point-blank that he did want the increase of schools, he wanted his own teachers to teach them. At present they are not available. So he would better wait. That was his policy. One can understand it. One can sympathise with it. I have no quarrel with that view. He certainly succeeded in creating a particular cadre of teachers capable of teaching in school board schools. Even from that point of view the present Honourable Minister has failed. Muslim education, even in its primary stages, of both boys and girls, is in a miserable and deplorable state, more miserable and deplorable state than the education of our boys and girls. What has he done to improve it, may I ask in all humility? It is his own community, and whenever he goes out on an election campaign, the people feel pride in him and think that he is the man who would be able to solve their difficulties. May I know what kind of Muslim education he has imparted in primary schools? What efforts has he made to improve the state of their education and what additional help has he given to them? He may have given a few scholarships. I do not find my friend the member for the depressed classes here. They are satisfied with sweet words and promises. Well, I know my Muhammadan friends too well. They are a very easily contented lot. They think that they have their own Minister on the bench and it does not matter whether he works for them or not. If one Minister coming from the backward classes was able to give effect to his wishes in the short term of three years, why is it that the Honourable Minister who now occupies the bench has not catered for the wants of his own community? Though I am proud to be a Brahmin, I think that the other classes must be brought up to the level of Brahmins, not by lowering down the Brahmins —it may be a policy, though wrong in my opinion, it may suit others— but by bringing up the other classes. Nobody would grudge the Honourable Minister the least expenditure, or at least the least necessary expenditure even in these lean years, if he were to come out with a scheme which would do credit to his head and heart. But he points out that he has no money. He is only able to quote only one achievement viz., the starting of the Andheri College. But that only shows that there was a distinguished Muslim donor who had enough money to give; he has given it. The sum was lying for a long time with Government. Government felt ashamed of not having utilised the money for the purpose for which it was donated. Therefore the Honourable Minister has now used it for a college, which was not a prime necessity. I can join issue on this head, that want of primary education is the foundation of all our ills and that is a defect in any national Government which would be found to impede our progress all along. On behalf of the Muslim community and myself, I welcome this college, but again my charge remains that as far as general Muslim education is concerned, the condition is really deplorable. I know in his reply he will say, "What experience have you got? What are your credentials?" I say I have got very good credentials——

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: Wait for his reply.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: No, no. What is the use of waiting for his reply? I have very good credentials. I had a very small Muslim school under my care which was being conducted from charity funds. I was the secretary of that institute for 20 long years. I did my best to promote it, but having regard to the present democratic ideas, when the community itself came forward and asked me to transfer the control of the school, I was the first to hand it over. I do not know whether the Honourable Minister has seen it. Has he seen, not only that school, but the other Muslim schools, in which the first great defect is the medium of instruction, which is Urdu? I have no quarrel with it. He is right in sentiment. Let him at least bring out his ideas and work on them to the fullest possible extent. That is my wish. Let us have no haphazard things. If he were to visit the schools, if he were to speak to the parents and guardians of the students, he would find that one of the chief difficulties of Muslims being poverty—they are poorer than the Hindus—and their small numbers, naturally, they go in for education in order that they may be able to enter the public services. Urdu not being the medium of instruction, they find great difficulty in entering the public services, and naturally they are found deficient, much more deficient than other candidates. My Muslim friends must not misunderstand me. They must take facts as they are, and whatever else may be said in favour of that sentiment of Urdu being the medium of instruction for Muslim students in bigger cities, let us, or rather, let them face the problem in the outlying districts as it at present exists. The teachers who come out of these Muslim institutions cannot be taken up anywhere else, Muslim institutions being very few. If they go to the training colleges, they will find this particular difficulty. May I know what has been done by the Honourable the popular Minister to overcome this difficulty? He can only overcome it in one way, namely, if he has that sentiment which I welcome, which I respect, he must have several stages. It is no use, as I said the other day, staffing a particular department. You must have assistants also lower down. You find that even in that sphere there has been no progress.

As regards the education of Muslim girls, the less said the better. All that I find the Director of Public Instruction says is that this deplorable state was due to those social customs which are not giving way to the present day advancement. Naturally, that is a handicap. Of course it is their concern. So far as the Department is concerned, I should think that there is also room for improvement even on the slender basis of the revenues that we have.

Another point that I will make is this: my honourable friend Sir Reginald Spence stated that Government is not doing its utmost in the supervision and direction of education. But here the honourable member again appears to me to be wrong. Government is spending enough money on this head. In 1910 the number of pupils in primary and secondary schools was 760,887. In 10 years the number rose to 842,495, and in 1930 the number stood at nearly 12 lakhs. The total expenditure has also risen proportionately. In 1910 it was Rs. 4,75,000 and at present it is 15 lakhs of rupees. That figure probably includes the expenditure on supervising staff of the boards also——

Sir REGINALD SPENCE: The pay of teachers also has gone up as well as the cost of inspection. You cannot compare 1910 and 1930 with reference to costs.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: I gave you the comparative cost of the education of boys and girls. I gave you the number of pupils which was about 750,000 in 1910 and I compared it with the present

figure of 12 lakhs. I say that it appears to be perfectly in proportion to the rise in the number of pupils as we find it to-day, and as far as I know, I think the difficulties about inspection and supervision really lie at the root of the trouble.

I have one more grievance to bring to the notice of the House and it is this, that these highly paid officers are at present buried under files and a lot of clerical, tabular and other routine work which might be given over to subordinates. But so far as the real administrative work and the useful part of it is concerned, I must again raise my voice that it is no use spending such a large amount on the salaries of first class officers. I should think that this is a point which the Honourable the Minister has to look into. It is not for the paid servants, they are not appointed to do this kind of work, they do their jobs to the best of their ability and power, but it is for the Honourable Minister to see that that work—that to and fro work of correspondence, statistics, tabular statements etc. should be, if possible, cut down to the lowest possible limit and to see that the higher staff is used for inspection and direction only, a process and policy which was followed in olden days. In the olden days, in spite of the absence of facilities for travel, the Director and other executive officers were moving about and having their fingers on the movement of education as they found it. Therefore, that is a point which at present as a policy has been abandoned, and I say these are the evil results of that policy, namely, this wastage. This wastage is not due only to causes which have been pointed out in the report itself but having regard to all that I have stated, it is necessary that the Honourable Minister must not only tell us that he fights and fights and fights but there should be action, not merely caution, and I do hope that he will take my remarks in the spirit in which I make them and that next year he will come out much better than this year.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Before the honourable member Khan Bahadur Khuhro proceeds, I might suggest to the honourable members who may speak hereafter that the demand under this head must be put to the House at 6-45 this evening. The speech of the honourable member who just sat down aimed, more or less, at a general impeachment of the policy of the Honourable Minister; other honourable members need not do the same but might only speak on primary education.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, under this head 31-C—Primary Education—I certainly join in the protest that the cut effected is very severe and seriously affects the primary education of this Presidency. Sir, the first objection of mine in this connection is that the reason advanced, that the cut in education is inevitable, because of the financial position of the Presidency is fallacious and baseless. I grant that a certain cut is inevitable at present even in Education budget but the question is how far the amount actually cut down from the education budget is justified as compared with other departments. Education has been hit hardest in the present retrenchment and as compared with other departments, the cut in primary education, as compared with 1930-31, is no less than 23 lakhs of rupees and on the whole education budget has been cut down by 31 lakhs. This cut in the Education Department does not compare favourably or even fairly with any other department, which spends equally or even more. The budget figures clearly indicate that expenditure on land revenue and general administration in this Presidency in the year 1930-31 was 281·1 lakhs and that on education was 206·4 lakhs, whereas according to the cut that has been effected, I find that land revenue and general administration has been cut down only to the extent of 4·6 lakhs whereas education has been cut down to the extent of 31·9 lakhs. Similarly, if you take one or two other important departments of this Government for comparison, just as the police, administration of justice, excise, etc. you will find that the Education Department is certainly cut much more in proportion than any other department. In the matter of excise I find on the contrary that there has been an excess of 10·5 lakhs. I agree that there has been a substantial cut in 41-Civil Works, but that cut is mostly due to the postponement of certain expenditure and that more or less is a temporary cut. Last year Government cut down 5 per cent. in primary education and after the lapse of 2 or 3 months, the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction issued instructions as to how this expenditure should be cut down but by that time most of the school boards in Sind went on incurring expenditure in the manner they usually incurred. I submit that after certain period had expired, instructions were received to close down a certain number of schools. I do not know whether this proposal was made in all seriousness realising the present conditions. I am speaking from my own experience as the chairman of the school board of Larkana. I know that people have now begun to realise that it is essential to receive education and there is a growing demand every year for opening more schools than closing down existing schools. It is administratively impossible for any school board in Sind to close down any number of schools. It is very easy for the honourable member the Director to suggest that a number of schools should be closed down, but I suggest that if he were to specifically indicate which school should be closed down, it would be easier for the school boards to give practical shape to his wishes, wherever possible. But on the other hand I and many other chairmen of school boards can point out that there are many people who are genuinely anxious for schools to be opened in their villages. So any cut on this head and in this direction is practically impossible.

The second suggestion is with regard to the salaries of teachers. It has been a general cry of teachers as well as of honourable members representing the public here that the pay of teachers has always been very low as compared with other Government servants, and certainly it is a genuine cry. Ever since 1910 revision of pay has been taking place in every other department of Government and the salaries have been almost doubled. The pay of the tapedars even has also considerably increased, and we know how these tapedars make good deal of extra money through outside resources, namely, rasai and lapo, which have formed the subject of discussion on the floor of this House on several occasions. The poor teacher gets the initial pay of Rs. 20 which is now reduced to Rs. 17-8-0 in Sind as compared with Rs. 52 given to a tapedar as a start. This comparison is enough to clearly bring out the absurdity of the position of the teacher's salary in Sind——

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: May I ask the honourable member to state what salary was paid to primary teachers in the good old times of the Mirs?

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: I am surprised at the Honourable Minister's question. He wants me to compare the present salary with that given in pre-British days in Sind. May I put him a similar question? What were the tapedars getting in those days? They were getting practically nothing. There was no such system as obtains now, as the whole system of administration was different, and it is really wrong to make any comparison with pre-British days. In those days the zamindars used to collect land revenue for the Mirs and they used to get certain remuneration in the shape of some inam lands, but in the case of teachers there used to be certain sources of income for each school that existed then in the shape of jagirs for the promotion of Persian and Arabic languages.

So, Sir, by comparing the present period with that of the last 20 or 30 years, one can easily come to the conclusion that the pay of the teachers has been ridiculously low, and now at the top of all that we are asked to cut down their pay. How that step will be welcomed by the teachers or by the public in general can well be realised by the Honourable Minister who represents the people here.

Another question was raised by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Chitale, that is, that we are asked to cut down only salaries of Rs. 40 and above. The actual realisation and the savings from that cut will be negligible and the amount will not be anywhere near the figure expected from it.

Coming to the question of the supervision and the staff required for supervision, the contention of my honourable friend Sir Reginald Spence is that the supervision is not sufficient and Government should know how the money is being expended and that there should be more inspectors appointed for that work. Before the control was transferred, the same administrative officers who are at present acting in Sind held mostly the grade of deputy inspectors which corresponds with the grade of administrative officers. In almost every school board in Sind the administrative officer has been drawn from Government service and the supervisors also in a large majority of cases are those who were employed by Government themselves. In addition to that, Government have appointed one inspector for each district to take the position of a watch-dog. But coming really to the question of utility of these Government inspectors, I certainly fail to see any justification to retain them. Let alone the question of increasing or doubling their number, they are going over and over again the same questions and the same inspections which the school board staff is doing and which is quite competent to look after the administration of schools and which was all along regarded as a competent staff by Government themselves——

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: On a point of information, Sir. What staff does the honourable member refer to? Is he referring to the supervisors in the employ of the district local boards or is he referring to a single Government officer, namely, the senior assistant deputy?

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: I started with saying that the supervisors under the employment of the school boards are mostly the same as those employed by Government as assistant deputy inspectors before and in addition to those, the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction himself knows, there is for each district a separate inspector appointed to supervise the work of the school boards and these inspectors are practically under the control of the educational inspector.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: Does the honourable member suggest that they are superfluous?

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: I do make that suggestion. I say that there is practically no need to increase their number as certainly they are serving no useful purpose. I am speaking at present from my experience of Sind. I do not know what the conditions in the Presidency are, but as regards Sind my confirmed opinion is that there is absolutely no justification for having dual control and dual staff of this character. It is, therefore, in my opinion, very hard and very difficult for school boards to cut down to the extent of 23 lakhs as Government requires them to do. Last year, too, in most of the cases the school boards had only put off certain expenditure that they had to incur, for instance, in connection with repairs to buildings, etc. and the grant of free books and slates, etc. to the poor boys. Even at that time it was found difficult to cut down expenditure to the extent of 5 per cent. Now, all of a sudden, Government is asking this Council to approve of the policy of cutting down the expenditure by 15 per cent., which will reflect very adversely on primary education, which is already starved. Sir, the contention that primary education is not receiving sufficient sympathy in the province of Sind is fully supported by the Hartog Committee's report, and the Director of Public Instruction knows that the percentage of literacy in Sind is very low. The reports that are year after year issued by the Department indicate that the percentage of literacy in Sind is only 3. This percentage, I maintain, is ridiculously low, and therefore it is the duty of Government to see that percentage of literacy is increased as early as possible, and measures should be advanced to see that more money is spent on primary education, which naturally builds up the career of these young boys who go to receive education. It is very essential that these boys should receive proper and due attention.

Sir, I am one of those who believe that some sort of religious instruction, in addition to the education at present imparted to the boys, is also essential, and therefore it is necessary to maintain religious teachers. In my own experience, of four years, I have made suggestions for engaging religious teachers, viz. Quran-teachers, on various occasions but the department has turned down the proposals. The local boards are willing to engage such teachers, but in the absence of any Government grants, they cannot do it, because their funds are limited. They have taxed themselves to the extent of a 2-anna local cess, and most of the income derived from it is at present spent on education.

Then, Sir, the point has been raised by many honourable members who preceded me that it is not right that Government, having once given a pledge to the local bodies that they would contribute up to a certain extent, which is called the datum line, should go behind that promise and should reduce year after year the amount which was originally promised at the time of handing over control to the local bodies. It was definitely promised that the amount which was being spent by Government on primary education was to be given to the school boards, and whatever further cost was incurred on primary education by the local bodies in the expansion of compulsory primary education as well as voluntary, one-third of it was to be borne by the local bodies and two-thirds by Government. Apart from that, there are many honourable members who will bear me out certainly when I say that most of the schemes which the local boards and municipalities have sent up to Government for the expansion and introduction of primary education in certain areas have been kept back on the plea that there are not sufficient funds, and therefore the expansion of compulsory primary education has not progressed. But now we are faced with the problem, that Government are cutting down the quota which they contributed before 1923. Sir, soon after the Compulsory Primary Education Act was passed 8 years ago, the control of primary education was transferred to various local bodies, and now Government ask these local bodies to curtail their expenditure, and they want the local bodies to bring the expenditure down to less than what they were actually spending 6 or 7 years ago. Therefore, Sir, it is very clear that this step is bound to prove very unpopular with the public, and it is also very unpopular with the local bodies. Therefore, the only proper way in which the local bodies can deal with the question, as my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik suggested, is to ask Government to take back the control of primary education into their own hands. Government must bear this responsibility on their own shoulders. Indirectly the local bodies are made responsible and they are made unpopular with the general public.

Then, Sir, the point was raised by the honourable member Sir Reginald Spence that in the education that is imparted at present much of the money is being wasted, and therefore he jumped to the conclusion that Government should give still less money for primary education, but they should see that trained and efficient teachers only, are engaged and higher salaries are paid to those teachers. Now, I cannot understand how this argument applies to the case. If Government are going to still further reduce the expenditure, then certainly a very large number of schools will have to be closed down; and again if in addition to that higher salaries are to be paid and only trained teachers are to be appointed, it will mean that the number of schools will have to be cut down far more than otherwise anticipated. All the local bodies will thereby be compelled to cut down the present number of primary schools to a much greater extent. Pushing his argument therefore to its logical conclusion, it means that the present percentage of literacy which is only 3 will be still further reduced. Therefore, the suggestion is absolutely impracticable, and no sensible Government and no local body could ever accept it.

With these remarks, I strongly protest against the cut in expenditure which is made applicable to primary education, which is a large cut. I join with all those honourable members who have protested against this cut. If the Honourable Minister really stood for the advancement of primary education, he should have defended its cause properly and fought for it, and should have seen that no injustice is done to this department. As compared with other departments, it is very clear from the figures which I have quoted that this department has suffered most in these critical times.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL AZIZ (Central Division): Sir, it has already been pointed out by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik in what way the Government are not helping the cause of primary education. He has very clearly shown that so many district local boards and municipalities have collected money by levying special taxation, and still Government are not coming forward to help them in the cause of primary education, and the excuse given by Government is that they have got no money. At least I am not able to know in what way Government are unable to get money for primary education. They say that in these days of depression there is great scarcity of money, that there are other works to be done, and so they cannot afford to spend much money over education. Sir, I remember that in 1929 a suggestion was made by this side of the House with regard to the financial side of the question. I know that at that time the honourable member from Nasik (Mr. R. G. Pradhan) suggested to Government that if they come forward with a scheme for an education cess for primary education, this side of the House will certainly support Government. But they never bring up any proposal of this sort in this House. They say that they cannot levy a tax simply for purposes of education. They say that they have only one coffer, and all the money will be put into that coffer and will be spent for each branch of the administration as necessity arises. Why not a special cess for primary education be levied if Government is short of money? So many times it has been emphasised that if Government come forward with a Bill imposing a tax the proceeds of which would be utilised only for primary education or general education, this side of the House would help them. But for the past 10 years they are not coming forward with any such Bill. It may be said that as the honourable members of this House are always opposed to any increase of taxation, they will oppose such a measure. But I can honestly say that I have consulted so many members in this House, and my feeling is that if Government bring forward any Bill for an educational tax, this side of the House will certainly support them. In my opinion, Government are not very serious in the matter of propagating education among the backward classes. To my mind, it is really a serious charge against Government as to why they cannot find themselves in the way to get money by special taxation for the sake of education and education alone.

An Honourable MEMBER: Are you willing for it?

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL AZIZ: Certainly, Sir. Not only that, but in 1929 so many honourable members on this side of the House told the Honourable Minister that if Government brought forward a measure of taxation, with the provision in it that the money collected would be utilised only for education, this side of the House would support Government. But they never gave a promise that they would accede to our wishes.

Now, Sir, I wish to make a few remarks about primary education and the way in which it is imparted in the schools. I wholly associate myself with the remarks made by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Chitale that the education given in the schools is not proper. So many boys who get their primary education, especially those taught in Urdu schools, are deficient in Marathi. The course adopted by Government in 1921 was all right. By the method then adopted, the boys who passed from the Urdu schools were not so much deficient in Marathi as they are at present. The reason is that in the Urdu-Marathi school, Marathi is not taught properly. In the 4th standard the second Marathi book is taught, in the 5th standard the third Marathi book is taught, and so on. In that respect, the course should be changed. I think in 1921, in the 4th Urdu standard the 4th Marathi book used to be taught, in the 5th Urdu standard the 5th Marathi book and so on. I would suggest that the old course should be restored. I do not know why the course was changed. The difficulty now is that the man who passes the 4th Urdu standard is unable to get entrance to the high school, because of his deficient knowledge of the vernacular, that is, Marathi. Had there been Anglo-Urdu High Schools such difficulty would not have arisen, and as there is no money for starting Anglo-Urdu High Schools the only course remains to change the course in primary education. If they change the course in the Urdu schools, and the boys are taught the 4th Marathi book in the 4th Urdu standard, the 5th Marathi book in the 5th Urdu standard, and so on, then the students coming out of the Urdu schools will know Marathi well, and it will then be easy for them to get entrance to the ordinary high schools. I hope that the Honourable Minister will see to this matter.

Now, Sir, the second point which I wish to emphasise is that the rule is that for 40 students there must be one teacher. But in the Urdu schools, the teachers have to teach Urdu as well as Marathi. So, if you apply to them this rule, it will be rather difficult and they will not be able to take proper care of the students. Similarly in giving grants Government shows too miserly spirit. I can give one instance. In one village there is a school where there are 20 boys and in another village there is a school which has a strength of 20 boys. Government will give the grant for one teacher only, because they will say that in both the villages taken together there are only 40 boys. It looks ridiculous. So, in this matter, and in Urdu schools, where both Marathi and Urdu are taught, rules should be modified.

As regards girls' education, it was stated on behalf of Government that the backwardness of Mahomedans was due to the purdah system and the paucity of proper trained mistresses. In the Central Division, there are many Mahomedan communities who do not observe purdah. In spite of that, Government have not opened any training school for mistresses at Malegaon, as was suggested by the Director of Public Instruction in his report of 1929. The educational inspectors have made this recommendation more than once. Still no action has been taken by Government in this direction. If they open a school for the training of mistresses, I think there will be greater facilities for the education of the girls. I hope the Honourable Minister will take notice of it. With these few remarks I resume my seat.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Mr. President, during the last 3 or 4 years our Government have been going on reducing the grant for primary education. When the whole world is bent upon progress, our Government of Bombay is putting behind the clock of progress. Education was made a transferred subject by the Government and an Indian Minister was appointed with the hope that the public would be satisfied thereby. But, what can the Indian Minister do, if he is kept down with his hand and foot tied. If he is unable to get the necessary finance, how can he be expected to advance the cause of education? The executive part of the Government holds money in its hands. The Ministers in charge of the nation-building departments have no money. On the reserve side of Government, they get everything they want. Though the Government levies new taxes every year yet the nation-building departments have no funds and are being starved. When primary education was handed over to the municipalities and district local boards, the Government gave an undertaking that illiteracy would be removed from this Presidency within ten years. Now, ten years have passed and illiteracy remains where it was. In the great soviet Russia, the Government set up a ten-year programme to educate the whole population. Now there are 90 to 95 per cent. literate persons. In spite of the fact that we are having the British rule here for the last 150 years, hardly 10 or 12 per cent. of the population are literate. In Sind, the literate population is 7 per cent. and when we come to Mahomedans, it is hardly 3 per cent. because the Government gives less grant to Sind than to the other parts of the Presidency proper. Out of the grant given to Sind hardly 25 per cent. are spent on Muslim education. If you take the secondary education among the Mahomedans of Sind, there is hardly ½ per cent. who go up to the secondary standard. What is the good of transferring education to the local boards and municipalities, if Government refuse to give them money enough for their expenditure in accordance with the statutory obligation, they have imposed upon themselves? When this is the pitiable plight to which the nation-building departments have been reduced, we see that the expenditure on the reserved side is going up.

The honourable member Sir Reginald Spence said that the expenditure on primary education is wasted as trained teachers are not available who could build the character of the boys under them. Therefore the fullest return for the money spent is not derived. It is all true. How can you have qualified teachers, unless the Government spend money for their training? When we take into consideration European education, we find that they get Rs. 6,42,000 and the ratio of expenditure per head comes to Rs. 32. In the case of Indians, the total expenditure is Rs. 1,21,00,000; out of that, the expenditure that is incurred on primary education is Rs. 1,07,00,000. So, if we take the total amount of expenditure on education, the ratio of expenditure per head comes to 13 annas including secondary education; and in the case of primary education only the ratio of expenditure comes to 8 annas. This cost includes all the languages, Gujarati, Urdu, Sindhi and so on. I do not understand in the least why we Indians should not have the same quality of education and the same proportion of expenditure as in the case of European education. Government should be impartial in their treatment of the people. Why should this discrimination be made between Indians and Europeans in the matter of education? When the new reforms come then probably there will be no reservation for Europeans. They will be treated equally with the Indians. Will then the Europeans not cry as we are now crying? On the top of this, they have not even discharged their statutory obligation with regard to the grant to the local boards and municipalities. The matter has already been referred to by honourable members Khan Bahadur Khuhro and Syed Miran Mahomed Shah with regard to the local bodies with which they are connected. I know myself what has happened in the Karachi municipality. The Karachi municipality offered to open new schools and buildings and employ more staff and asked the sanction of Government. But Government refused sanction on the ground that funds are not available or similar excuses. How will education progress, if Government put obstructions in this manner? I give here an instance. Bombay Municipality started giving free and compulsory primary education with the approval of the Government. They did so for years and requested the Government to pay their share of expenses, which Government did not pay. Therefore a suit was filed in the High Court of Bombay. On a technical point, the Bombay Municipal Corporation lost the suit it filed against Government. The High Court gave the judgment that the Government were only morally bound and not legally bound to give the grant. I do not think Government should lay themselves open to charges of this nature.

[Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch]

They must give the usual grants to district local boards and municipalities in order to advance the education of the masses. Though the percentage has increased by 2 in the last 8 or 10 years, this is not due to the Government's efforts, but of the Local Boards and Municipalities. Ever so much we may talk, it will not affect Government. It is like pouring water on oil.

(After recess.)

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District): Sir, I would like to express a few words with regard to the subject under discussion. Sir, I happen to be connected with this Department for the last few years as Chairman of the School Board and also as President of the District Local Board, Hyderabad. I claim to know something about the working of the system and the supervision exercised by the Government of Bombay over the department.

So far as my experience goes, my grievances are two-fold. One refers to the attitude of Government with regard to the Education Department as a whole on financial grounds and the other is with regard to the working of the system.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Is the honourable member speaking on primary education?

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH: Yes, Sir. I am speaking on primary education. Sir, we have been observing that for the last few years Government have not been paying the attention to this department which is due to it. They are beginning to think that this is really the function of the people and not of the Government, and some officers have gone to the length of saying that the people should know how to stand on their own legs and conduct their own business. But the reply from the people will be that as long as the power of taxation lies in the hands of Government, as long as the keys of the exchequer are in the hands of Government, so long will the people not be able to stand on their own legs. Their hands and heads are secured by the Government. They cannot tax themselves in addition to what they pay to Government. Government are piling taxes after taxes upon the shoulders of the people and there is no margin of profit with which they can finance their educational system. Of course, in the past when people were very lightly taxed, they could start their own schools in villages and finance them. Now people are contributing a greater share of their income to the public exchequer than before. Therefore it is their right to claim a proper share for the development of this department which concerns their nation-building activities. I mean to say that this department is the pivot, the foundation on which India or any other country can build its nationhood.

Now, Sir, we are very much advancing in these days. We are on the threshold of responsible government and committees like the Franchise Committee and other responsible bodies are asking the representatives of the people whether or not education should be made a qualification for enfranchisement. When we cast our glance behind and look at the apalling figure of illiteracy, we simply shirk to give an affirmative answer and we are constrained to say that education should not be made the basis of enfranchisement because of the inequalities of the standard of education among the various sections of the people. It is from primary education that enlightenment starts, and if Government are not able to impart preliminary education to the people, to make them read and write, in order to understand how to exercise their right to vote and to know its meaning, I think this Government as any other civilized Government will be failing in its fundamental duty towards the subjects that it rules. It is no use maintaining such departments only which are for purposes of piling up taxes and collecting them. The fundamental duty of Government is not only to collect revenue but also to spend it on the evolution, and on the amelioration of the subjects from whom the taxes are collected. Government cannot give any sound argument in support of their policy recently adopted, namely, curtailing mercilessly this department. When I look at the figure provided in the year 1931 and compare it with the estimates for 1932-33, I find that there is a cut of nearly 23 lakhs, which is inequitable in the circumstances.

When the Primary Education Act was introduced in this House and when the control was transferred to our hands, it was predicted that we would miserably fail and that we would not be able to manage this department as efficiently as the Government had done. Still the control was transferred to us. But the crutches on which we were made to walk have been withdrawn. We admit that we are still in the stage of infancy and we cannot finance ourselves. We have not got sources of income—independent sources from which to finance our education. Our education has reached such a plight that we are almost becoming unpopular and there is a cry even for the abrogation of the Primary Education Act. Many local bodies have even suggested to Government that they should take back the control of primary education. They have not got sufficient funds even just to maintain their prestige with the people. We, as representatives of the people, certainly have to maintain our dignity and prestige before them. We do not want to become unpopular owing to faults committed by Government. Our people cannot understand that it is Government who behind the curtain are withdrawing and curtailing our grants.

As an argument against this complaint of ours, sometimes Government have stated in the debates that we are not taking into consideration the wastage consequent upon the indifference shown by the local bodies in spending money and not taking full value for the money spent. But, Sir, I would ask them kindly to cast a glance over other departments and see whether there is wastage in other departments also. Every honourable member has given expression to his feeling on the floor of this House in regard to every department of Government like Public Works, Irrigation, General Administration and so on. There is wastage; there has always been wastage. Several loopholes have been found and superfluities have been detected. Because there was room for saving, because there was extra expenditure being incurred, therefore, we could cut them down by appointing retrenchment committees and by accepting departmental suggestions for curtailing the expenditure. But there was wastage of money and when we came to our wit's end, we have been compelled to cut out those superfluities. So that wastage there will always be. It is not we alone that are responsible for that. For that Government is mainly responsible. For instance, if the full number that enters the infant class does not pass the 7th standard, there are manifold reasons for it. No encouragement is given to poor people by way of scholarships; no encouragement is given by way of free books, by providing a library for every school or with travelling libraries so that even if they leave school after passing the fourth standard they may maintain their knowledge of reading and writing. All these facts go to prove that it is not the fault of the local bodies only and that Government is to some extent responsible, I may say chiefly responsible on account of the indifference shown and the stringent policy followed in regard to primary education. In the Educational Department, Sir, there is no sense of discrimination. They ought to weigh the importance of each section of this branch of education with the other. For instance, if they want to keep up the literacy of village children, then for every primary school there should be a corresponding adult school and a night school. They will cost comparatively very little money. I have experimented in my district and have got about 10 adult schools being carried on with an additional expenditure of Rs. 5 only as an additional allowance to the teacher and a contribution from the students who pay for the books and for the lamp that they burn at night. If Government were to give a direct incentive to this sort of education, it would accelerate the speed of literacy in the rural areas rather than child education alone. But the lead must be given by the Government. We do not want any additional grant, but some encouragement must be given. If they were to declare that they are prepared to contribute their quota to such schemes, which are really necessary for the development of the people, then I think that would silence the critics of Government and many of their grievances would go redressed.

On the side of female education also, the same indifference is shown. They do not take the conditions of each locality into consideration. I will illustrate the position in Sind. Sind is predominantly a Muhammadan province with 73 per cent. Muslim population. Muhammadans are generally said to be conservative so far as their female education is concerned. That is my experience in Sind. They are very reluctant to leave their girls—even small girls—in the public schools. They will, therefore, naturally require segregated schools for female children. For their maintenance we will require school mistresses, and in a community where there is a paucity of education, there is naturally a very small number of school mistresses. So that the paucity of female teachers also handicaps us and it should therefore be the policy of Government to give the female teachers proper stipends, to get them properly trained, to give them something which will really be attractive, something extraordinary, something over and above what is offered to males. We must give them special encouragement. If this distinction is made and this distinction alone, we shall get a sufficient number of female teachers to meet our needs.

Another drawback on that score is that naturally when small girls go to school, they require somebody to look after them, to take them to and back from school, and many parents do not like to leave their girls in the streets to go anywhere they like unprotected and unattended. Therefore a female peon is an absolute necessity for every female school. There is of course the financial stringency, but money should be saved from one source or the other and the money should be applied towards the engagement of female peons which may not be necessary in the case of male students because several primary schools of large size for male children have got peons. Local bodies have to pay from their grants and each little amount which they pay goes to be a burden on their slender purse and so they have to draw on their reserve funds. How long this is going to continue I do not know and where and when it will stop is equally beyond the scope of my comprehension. Even such a small amount which Government have to contribute for female education they are not coming forward to pay, so that on the side of female education—I urged this strongly on the attention of the Honourable Minister several times, but no effect seems to have been produced on his mind—my cry has been a voice in the wilderness. This is a burning evil of Sind in particular and it will remain a burning evil as long as Sind is with the Presidency. Sind is now thinking of its own self-evolution, there is a cry from the people that every section and every sex in the province should be educated uniformly in order to keep pace with the speed of progress that is taking place in that province on account of the Sukkur Barrage and other political developments. We are very much handicapped on account of the indifference evinced by Government towards the local bodies and our resources being already slender, we do not know how we can meet the situation. I will therefore appeal to the Government of Bombay as a whole that they should not treat this department as a step-child or as a thing beyond the scope of their powers and duties but they should consider that this is rather their paramount duty to maintain this department at a high level because this should be the consideration of Government that at this stage when political developments are fast taking place and responsibility is going to be transferred to the popular hands, naturally this should be the concern of Government that as many people as possible and as many subjects as possible of this Presidency should be educated.

As regards the curriculum also, that too has much to do with the progress of primary education. The complaint of the public is that education imparted by local bodies under the control of Government does not meet the requirements of the country and is inconsistent with local conditions so that it is not really useful to the inhabitants of the villages to whom it is imparted. Bias classes and other technical classes have been started here and there but lukewarmly and half-heartedly. If such schemes are taken in hand, they should be given full scope and they should be fully tried and if they fail, other schemes which are consistent with the local demands of the people should be taken in hand and experimented upon, so as to correspond with the expectations of the people as a whole, so that people should rather begin to think and look upon this department as their saviour or benefactor rather than one which lives to manufacture only clerks and school masters. This is the impression created for the time being upon the mind of an average villager that the education which he derives from the primary school is mainly for the purpose of becoming a schoolmaster or a clerk or a pound-keeper. If any of them passes the vernacular final examination and does not get service, he begins to think and his parents and neighbours begin to think that this education is of no use because so and so could not get a job. This is simply because the education as imparted to him does not meet his requirements and does not correspond to the expectations of the people of the village. It should be practical and then and then alone people will really take interest in their education.

The question of imparting moral and religious instruction to primary school students is still hanging fire and no decision has been arrived at because it is foreign to the policy of Government to allow religion to have anything to do with their administration. But we should not overlook our duty, we should take into consideration the present outlook and the present mentality of various communities inhabiting this Presidency. Moral and religious instruction is the only ground on which they can withdraw their children from other schools which do not give proper education or which would rather induce people to let their children come to Government schools if they impart moral and religious instruction. This is the only policy which Government should adopt in Sind at least. Although Government know that unless they introduce the instruction of the Koran simultaneously with primary education, Sind Muslim education will not flourish and yet I do not know why Government should have hesitation to promote such a scheme. If they promote such a scheme, why should they not finance it? I had been the Chairman of the district school board in 1926. Since then correspondence has been carried on and I have been receiving only promises from Government that this correspondence is under the consideration of Government. During the past four or five years Government have not taken into consideration a particular scheme which is very necessary in the interest of the maintenance and popularity of the whole system of education in my district——

An Honourable MEMBER: They are gaining time.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH: When the new constitution comes, popular ministers will come and I will see how the question fares then.

Certainly, the Honourable Minister I am told is a representative of the people, but he has got certain limitations; he is governed by a system of Government which is called Dyarchy and we know the defects of Dyarchy. We should not blame him alone, but the Government whose part he is. We may blame him if he does not exert his personality, just as the honourable member Mr. Baloch quoted the Honourable Minister himself the other day. He should as far as possible assert himself, and get grants from Government. Mainly, it is the function of the Finance Department which sits over the purse of the Presidency. I am sure the Honourable Minister must have exerted himself, he knows that he is bound to do it in the interests of the people. If he felt that he could not succeed, then he has one weapon in his hand and which he could have utilised, but perhaps he does not gather sufficient courage to utilise that weapon which he possesses, namely, resignation. There is no such precedent in this Council and I do not think he could be expected to establish a precedent. Cursorily mentioning all these defects, I wish to urge upon the attention of my honourable friend the Minister of Education the need for treating female education on different lines from male education, especially if he wishes to do any distinct service to the people of this province and especially if he wishes to distinguish himself from his predecessors in office and to be remembered for long by the people as one who having held the portfolio of education rendered a distinct service to the people. Our progress will not make any headway unless he introduces adult education. This is one way and the other way is acceleration of female education. By introducing adult education in this Presidency, the Honourable Minister for Education, if he succeeds in it, will render another distinct service and will distinguish himself for ever.

Thirdly he should take up the introduction of libraries in order to prevent wastage and to maintain the level of literacy among the masses. He might argue in reply to my assertion that all these things require money. I say "Yes, they require money and therefore we are sanctioning fresh taxation not for the financing of the General Department, not for the financing of the Finance Department, not for the financing of the Revenue Department, but for the financing of the nation-building departments such as his". I make no secret of what I heard from some of Government members who said that they were bringing this fresh measure of taxation because they could not finance the nation-building departments otherwise. On this distinct understanding we have been lending our support to fresh taxation and at the top of my voice I say on the floor of this honourable House that if these nation-building departments are going to be neglected, we shall always be on the side of the popular Ministers to back them up in their demands for financing their departments and that they share proportionately and adequately in any additional income Government may get and that such additional income as comes to Government is not absorbed by the General Department or by any other department only. I think, Sir, that is the only assurance which lies in our power to give to Honourable Minister of Education and I think I can expect the same kind of assurance from him.

With these remarks, I resume my seat.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District): Sir, it is a matter to be regretted that when we discuss the policy in connection with primary education the official benches should be vacant. It is a matter for regret because we wish to place our views before Government so that they may consider them in their proper perspective.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: All concerned are here, Sir. There is the Honourable Minister of Education, the honourable member the Secretary, Education Department, the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: I am thankful to the Honourable the Leader of the House for pointing out that these three officers are present. He merely anticipated what I was going to point out myself.

Sir, our general cry has been that primary education is a subject which should be properly cared for. I may tell the Honourable Minister of Education that the desire for receiving primary education is on the increase in the mofussil areas. Illiteracy is the enemy of progress and it is therefore the bounden and paramount duty of Government to see that illiteracy is removed as early as possible. I know at the same time that our wants are plenty but that the funds at our disposal are scanty, but all the same Government should do their very best to promote the cause of primary education, and when they do that we shall be quite satisfied.

Now, Sir, as a member of the Retrenchment Committee I suggested and all the other members agreed with me and suggested that primary education should not be touched at all in the matter of retrenchment. Why did we do so? Because primary education is the real welfare of the people and that is why we saved that department from the operation of retrenchment. But, unfortunately, we are sorry to find that Government have retrenched even in the case of primary education, and I appeal to the Honourable Minister that this cut in the grant should be restored, and I think we shall then be quite satisfied so far as primary education is concerned.

I might submit, Sir, that the district local board of East Khandesh has increased the local cess from 1 anna to Re. 0-1-6, and that board has opened 50 new schools, I believe in the year 1929, without the permission of Government. When we informed the Government that we had opened these 50 new schools for which we wanted grants according to rules from Government, Government said that the district local board had not taken their permission, and so they could not give any grants. I think to say so is not a good thing on the part of Government. They must not take advantage of these technical irregularities. When they find that it is the keen desire of the people of a particular district to expand primary education, inasmuch as the local cess has been increased from Re. 0-1-0 to Re. 0-1-6, and they have opened accordingly these new schools out of their own funds, then does it not become Government to give grants to the local board in the matter of primary education? I hope the Honourable Minister will take a note of it. I again appeal to the Director of Public Instruction to make a special note of it, and in these days of financial stringency if nothing more can be done, I hope that at least the case of the district local board of East Khandesh will be taken special note of, on account of the fact that they have voluntarily agreed to the increase of the local cess from Re. 0-1-0 to Re. 0-1-6 for the purpose of opening new schools. I believe Government will pay proper attention to this, and I expect the Honourable Minister will give a reply in this connection. I have observed many times that he takes a keen interest in the promotion of the education of the backward classes. Now, this is a case of the backward classes. So, it is naturally in the fitness of things that the Honourable Minister for Education will specially take this fact into consideration, and I hope that he will specially say in his reply to the debate that he will necessarily give grants to the local board of East Khandesh as Government have satisfied themselves that it is the sincere desire of the local board to promote the cause of primary education.

I know, Sir, that we cannot compel Government to spend more money in the spread of primary education, especially in the face of the fact that they have not got sufficient funds. All the same, Government must do their best to see that at least the cause of primary education does not suffer. Of course, if they have a mind to retrench, they can do it in so many ways, as they have done even this time, but I specially bring to the notice of Government this prominent fact that the cause of primary education should not suffer. If they want, let them reduce the grants for secondary education. I do not care much for that. The agriculturists who are the pillars of the country pay a large revenue to Government, and so it is the duty of Government to pay more attention to the cause of primary education. Of course, I do not mean to say that secondary education should be neglected, but first supply the needs of primary education, and if there is any surplus, then it may be utilised for the spread of secondary education. Unless and until you satisfy the wants of the people in the matter of primary education, for God's sake do not spend money on secondary and collegiate education. I hope the Honourable Minister will take a special note of my remarks on the question of the opening of 50 new schools by the district local board of East Khandesh, for which no grants have been paid by Government, and will in the course of his reply give an assurance that he will pay special attention to the matter.

Mr. PESTANSHAH N. VAKIL (Ahmedabad City): Sir, yesterday evening, when our honourable friend the mover of the cut (Mr. V. A. Surve) was pouring forth in his choicest Marathi, declaiming against the educational policy of the Bombay Government, I noticed a flicker of amused mirth on the countenance of several honourable members on the opposite benches. The honourable member Mr. Surve may have been entertaining. But he was giving expression to a thought which was uppermost in the minds of many honourable members sitting in this part of the House. He was expressing the feelings that were exercising the minds of honourable members in this section of the House. There could be no doubt as to the identity of that thought. The thought was one, its mode of expression may be legion. He was giving expression to that thought in his racy vernacular; our honourable friend Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch had given expression to it in his flowing Urdu; another honourable member may express it in Sindhi or in English. But the thought is the same. We were all thinking that thought; we were all feeling it; every one was actuated by the same feeling. The honourable member Mr. Surve alone of all men was giving expression to it. He, so to say, gave it a local habitation and a name. What was that thought, Sir, which was passing through the minds of all honourable members sitting in this part of the House? It was one of resentment, regret, shall I say? dismay, at the act of a popular Minister having consented to a cut of as much as 15 per cent. on the top of the 5 per cent. cut in the previous year in the sphere of primary education, as against a cut of 5 per cent. in the domain of secondary and higher education. This thought did violence to some of our pre-conceived ideas. Have we not been taught from our infancy that the root-cause of all the various troubles from which the teeming millions of this country are suffering is the gross illiteracy of the masses? If that is so, the panacea for all the ills, the ignorance, the misery, the squalor of the poor people and their poverty is surely primary education. Now, Sir, this object cannot be achieved in a day, not even in a year, not even perhaps in 10 years. It is late in the day to expatiate upon the advantages of instruction in the three R's. It is not merely a desirable thing; it is an absolute necessity. And Government have acknowledged it in their preamble to the Bombay Primary Education Act of 1923. That object could only be achieved by gradual stages. I shall, for the edification of the House, read only one or two lines from that preamble. It says:

"Whereas it is expedient to provide for a progressive development and expansion of primary education, so as to reach that goal on lines recommended by the Compulsory Education Committee of 1921....."

So that, Sir, the idea was that there should be a gradual expansion and spread of primary education.

But this act of the Bombay Government has given a very grievous set-back to that policy of expansion. It has broken the continuity of our policy. I wonder how it will ever be possible for them to make up so much leeway, when the cut is, not 15 per cent., but, as has been pointed out by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai Naik, something like 20 per cent., coming as it does on the top of the previous 5 per cent. cut.

Sir, I understand that about 30 municipalities and district local boards have approached Government with a request to allow them to introduce compulsory primary education into the areas controlled by them. I am told that about 19 or 20 municipalities and a dozen district local boards have already approached Government with this request. The collective population served by these 30 public bodies could not be well under a crore of people. So that it comes to this, that out of a total population in the Bombay Presidency of 2 crores odd, nearly half has unmistakably expressed its desire for primary education. And yet Government have not thought fit to pay any attention to this request! And they have expressed this desire through their chosen representatives, namely, the municipalities and the district local boards.

Coming to the City which I have the privilege to represent, soon after the passing of the Primary Education Act of 1923, the Ahmedabad Municipality submitted a complete scheme for the approval of Government. They had also earmarked certain sources of revenue for defraying the expenses of compulsory primary education. They had even gone to the expense of taking a census of all the children of school-going age. They waited, and they waited, and they waited for the much longed-for reply from the Government. It did not come. Then came financial stringency. Government did not know their own mind. Having waited indefinitely, the Municipality ultimately approached Government with a request to let them go on with their own plans, without any financial commitments for the present, only on condition that when the financial clouds dispersed, Government would be prepared to fulfil their financial liabilities. I am afraid there has been no reply—if there is one, Sir, it is one of despair and disappointment. But, Sir, the case of the Poona District Local Board, as stated by my honourable friend Rao Saheb Kulkarni, is even worse than this. That board requested Government to allow them to introduce compulsory primary education into 44 villages controlled by the District Board. That request was not coupled with any demand for financial assistance. But no. The policy of Government, as has been rightly stigmatised by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Chitale, has been one of drift, and that local board has not been permitted to introduce compulsory primary education, because Government, with a lively sense of dangers to come, have not thought fit to accede to the request. This particular request, was not one for financial assistance, it is true, but a future request may not be so innocuous. So, here we are, Sir. We are not going to have any progress. We are not progressing—we are retrogressing—in the sphere of primary education.

Now, Sir, I want to give expression to a sentiment which has been exercising the minds of many honourable members occupying these benches, and it is in regard to the way in which the Honourable Minister has been dealing with the numerous points raised by honourable members in their discussion of these grants. They have no desire to embarrass the Government. If we had any such desire, we should not be in our places here. We want to co-operate with Government. We are keenly alive to their financial difficulties and other difficulties as well. Especially do we realise the difficulties of the transferred half of the Government. We know that the Ministers have entered upon their duties burdened with the legacy of the past. They are answerable for the many acts of omission and commission of their predecessors, and all our support and sympathy should naturally go with them. But there should be a corresponding obligation on the part of the Ministers as well. And how is this obligation discharged? We have listened, day after day and week after week, very attentively to the words of wisdom which were falling from the experienced lips of my honourable friend Moulv

[Mr. Pestanshah N. Vakil]

Sir Rafiuddin Ahmad. We have waited in an attitude of expectancy for such small crumbs as might fall from his over-loaded table. We have asked for bread, and we are given stone. But, as if that is not enough, he has been mercilessly using a new weapon which he has now taken out of his armoury, and that is the weapon of persiflage, if I may call it, or raillery. He, Sir, is playing the role, much to his own satisfaction, of a mocker. His one aim seems to be to smother the well-meant criticism of honourable members on this side under the wet blanket of raillery and badinage. Now, it is hardly necessary for me to remind him of the well-known saying of Abraham Lincoln. May I ask: Is there any necessity for raising all this smoke-screen of sally and banter day after day to cover official inaptitude? I trust my honourable friend will take the criticisms of his friends on this side of the House in the spirit of seriousness that they deserve.

Sir, we shall be told that we on this side have so far been indulging in destructive criticism, that we have not suggested anything constructive or practical. Have we not? The report of the Retrenchment Committee would give the lie direct to such a charge. The non-official majority of the committee made certain proposals. These proposals were looked at askance by the official part of the committee. It is all in the report. They suggested economies to the tune of Rs. 1,21,00,000. What was their reward? They were pooh-poohed; their suggestions were at first shelved. "What did they know of administrative details?" But, later on, driven by dire necessity, the Finance Department was compelled to accept those very suggestions, and they even went a step further and effected on their own initiative retrenchment to the tune of 37½ lakhs. And they now take credit unto themselves for having effected economies to the extent of a crore and upwards. Similarly several suggestions were made by my honourable friend and leader, Rao Bahadur Kale, and some other members too. But we are never taken seriously. We are not supposed to know anything about the intricacies of administration. The cumulative effect of all these suggestions would in the long run amount to a very respectable figure. But the Government are not prepared to accept these suggestions, with the result that the administration is really top-heavy and the nation-building departments are starved. This, Sir, is the state of things. It is no use complaining day after day. One thing, however, is certain. Of all the nation-building departments education stands pre-eminently in need of very careful nurture and that it has not received. It is the duty of the Honourable Minister to satisfy this part of the House that, so far as his department is concerned, he has tried his level best, he has left no stone unturned, to get from the Government that financial assistance which is the irreducible minimum to keep up the efficiency of this department.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: Mr. President, so much ground has been covered during the debate, that I think it will best serve the purpose, if I first make some remarks of a somewhat general nature. First of all, honourable members have blamed the Minister and the members of the Department for the fact that the education grant has been cut. We,

Sir, are not responsible for the unprecedented fall which has taken place in the revenues of the Presidency. I cannot help feeling that honourable members themselves must realise that, under the very exceptional circumstances of this year, a reduction in the education grant was really inevitable.

It fell to my lot, Sir, to make suggestions to Government as to how this cut should be distributed. It was a matter to which I gave the most careful consideration. Honourable members have criticised the Department, because so much of the cut falls on primary education. In the first place, I must point out that by far the greater part of the money expended by Government on education in this Presidency is expended on primary education. I have got the figures extracted for other provinces. The latest figures available for other provinces are for 1929-30. I will give the percentages of provincial expenditure on primary education to the total provincial expenditures. In the case of the Bombay Presidency, I can give the figures for this budget. If honourable members will refer to page 195 of the White Book, they will find that one crore and nine lakhs are budgetted to be spent on primary education out of a total demand of a crore and sixty-eight lakhs: in other words 65 per cent. of the money provided for education in this Presidency is to be given for primary education. When I look at the figures for the other provinces in India, I find that Madras comes next to this Presidency in that it has a larger percentage devoted to primary education than any other province in India. Madras comes next with 44·3 per cent. only. [An Honourable Member: "Compare it with 1930-31."]

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member may proceed.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: Now, Sir, I hope that I have proved to the satisfaction of the House that it was inevitable, that, if a cut is to be made in the education budget, a substantial portion of that cut must come from primary education. [Honourable Members: "No, no."] I suggest that, if honourable members would not continually interrupt me, I shall be able to give more information. Now, of the amount expended on primary education by Government, by far the greater portion goes to the district local boards. The question of legality of this reduction has been raised by some honourable member. This is by no means the first time that this point has been raised in this Council. Even at the time when the Act was under consideration, the exact meaning of this clause (section 13 (2) of the Primary Education Act) was made clear by the Advocate General who said:

"Now, no right exists. There is no statute, and no contract with Government, giving any such right. If a local authority were to file a suit, it would not succeed, because this sub-clause does not create a right and there is no other law giving it the right. The annual grant which is paid is a gift."

Not only was the position made clear at that time, but subsequently a press note was issued from which I read the following sentence:

"It should be emphasised that the liability of Government to contribute towards the cost of primary education on a voluntary basis is a purely moral one, which Government has undertaken not by statute, but by executive orders and such liability has been, and must always be, subject to finance being available."

[An Honourable MEMBER: "Explain the section."] The section, Sir, reads:

"Nothing in this section shall affect the claim of any local authority to any annual grant which at the time this Act comes into operation is being paid to it by the Government for purposes of primary education, ..."

That is to say, you have the same claim now which you had before the Act; that claim is a moral claim and not a legal claim. [Interruption.]

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is the honourable member's view.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: Now, Sir, with regard to the district local boards, it seems to me that they are very liberally treated by Government. The honourable mover of the cut said that at one time the proportion of the grant paid by Government amounted to something like 88 per cent.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I said that. In the year 1923, it was 88 per cent., when the Act was passed. The ratio between Government and the local bodies was 88 per cent. and 12 per cent.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: Nevertheless, Government is treating the district local authorities very generously.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: That is a statutory obligation even in the Act of 1884.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: I will refer to the Interim Report of the Indian Statutory Commission. On page 260 of the report, honourable members will find that the percentage of expenditure contributed by the local boards towards primary schools is the smallest in India. Thus, the percentage of Government's expenditure on primary education is the largest in India and the percentage contribution of district local boards towards the expenditure on primary education is the smallest in India.

Now, Sir, the question arises as to how this reduction in the grant-in-aid is to be met. The honourable member, Khan Bahadur Khuhro, complained that when a reduction in the grants was made last year, the district local boards were not informed until some months after the grant had been made. I would point out that the honourable member was in this Council when the reduction was made, so that he knew all about it himself. But I addressed the local boards on the 1st of April, that is, on the very first day of the financial year, informing them that the cut had been made and making certain suggestions to enable them to overcome the difficulties which might in consequence arise. Similarly with regard to this cut I have written to local authorities in advance, warning them to curtail their expenditure.

The honourable member for East Khandesh has been complaining that Government has not given his Board all that he could hope to get on the Rs. 2 : 1 basis. That may be true, we have not the funds, but the honourable member may be interested to know that across the border, in Berar, over 55 per cent. of the expenditure of the district local boards on primary education is met by local taxation. That, Sir, is an exceptional case, and one which I do not wish to stress. But it shows that district boards in this Presidency are not badly treated. It is all very well for honourable members to say to the Government, "Why don't you give more?" But where is the money to come from? District local authorities have shown themselves unwilling to do anything unless they get Rs. 2 for every Re. 1, from Government, for all schemes of expansion, and as Government has not got the money, a position of deadlock has been reached. One honourable member has suggested that there should be more provincial taxation. One thing seems certain, that if expansion is to take place, money must be found, either by provincial or local taxation; if from local, honourable members will at least have the satisfaction of knowing that any funds that they raise in this way would be spent locally on the education of local people. One of the ways, therefore, in which district local boards and local authorities can meet this reduction in the Government grant-in-aid is by local taxation——

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Will you point out the source?

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: As I understand the position, Sir, certain members asked me how this position, arising out of reduced grants, was to be met, and I am merely making certain suggestions for their consideration. Another way is by reducing the salaries of teachers. Now, certain members have said that the salaries of teachers are already low and that they ought not to be reduced further. Nobody, Sir, wishes that the teachers should not receive a living wage. But in this connection, I think I might point out to the House that very substantial increases in teachers' salaries have taken place in the past. I will quote from the report on Public Instruction for the year 1918-19. After referring to the grant of war allowances to teachers, it says:

"The minimum pay of untrained assistant masters was raised from Rs. 10 to Rs. 12 and that of untrained headmasters from Rs. 12 to Rs. 15. After careful consideration, the Government was also pleased to revise the rates of pay for trained primary school teachers and has initiated a time-scale system on a uniform basis for all divisions with, however, a marked differentiation in favour of Sind. Trained teachers of first, second and third year are respectively to start on Rs. 15, Rs. 20, and Rs. 25 in the presidency proper and on Rs. 20, Rs. 25 and Rs. 30 in Sind."

That is to say, the starting pay of trained teachers in those days was raised to Rs. 15, Rs. 20 and Rs. 25 in the presidency proper and they were placed on a time scale. The report goes on to say:

"The revised rates of pay constitute a very marked improvement on the rates actually obtainable hitherto."

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: On a point of information, Sir,——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member does not yield.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: Now, Sir, the present rates of pay as sanctioned are for unqualified teachers Rs. 15 per mensem, for permanent qualified but untrained teachers Rs. 20 on a time scale, and for first year trained, second year trained and third year trained teachers the initial rates are Rs. 25, Rs. 30 and Rs. 35 respectively. That is to say, the initial rates are Rs. 10 higher, in both the Presidency and in Sind, than those revised rates which came into operation in the year 1918-19.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Are these scales which you just read out fixed by Government or by local bodies?

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: These scales are laid down by Government as a maximum for the purposes of grant for teachers appointed after 1923.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Then it is up to Government to revise them and not local bodies.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: I would point out to honourable members that an increase of Re. 1 per month in the salary of primary school teachers, of whom there are more than 30,000, means an expenditure of 4 lakhs of rupees per annum. After all, the rate of living for primary teachers has admittedly fallen substantially in the last year or two. And, therefore, it seems to me that another way that would not be unreasonable is for local boards, if necessary with the sanction of Government, to reduce the rates of pay of teachers. It seems to me that unless they are prepared to find the additional funds from their own revenues, some such reduction is inevitable, unless there is to be a wholesale closing down of primary schools; which every one desires to avoid.

Another method by which the reduction may be met is by reducing, with the approval of Government, the allowances paid to headmasters and first assistants. Another method which might be considered is whether fees might not be charged to pupils whose parents are well-to-do. As a last resort perhaps it might be necessary to close some of the less efficient schools. But I hope, if school boards set to work with a will, that they will be able to meet the position arising from their straitened circumstances without having to resort to the closure of schools. My excuse, Sir, for going into this detail is that I have thought it might be useful to the school boards if I ventured to give some advice as to how the position might be met.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: Does the honourable member the Director advise the reduction of pay even of those getting less than Rs. 40?

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: It seems inevitable.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: What about Government servants in other departments getting less than Rs. 40? They will not be affected.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: Another point which has been raised is the question of wastage. Now, I would like to point out to honourable members that the wastage in this Presidency, although no doubt deplorable, is not nearly as great as the wastage in other provinces.

[Mr. R. H. Beckett]

A reference to the Statutory Commission's interim report will show that in Madras for every 100 pupils in class I in the year 1922-23, there were only 11 in class V. In Bombay for every 100 in class I there were 36. The next highest figure after Bombay is 18 for the Punjab. That seems to show that this Presidency is far more advanced in this respect than is the case with the rest of India. But there is a point in regard to this wastage which, I find, is constantly overlooked. I refer to the fact that the greatest part of the stagnation takes place in the infant standard. Now, there are reasons for that. An honourable member said that the infant class was partly used as a crêche. I am afraid there is some truth in the remark. Another reason is that the pupils in the infant class have been allowed to come in at all times of the year. That is undesirable, and the department is considering what steps they should take in order to rectify it. But let me give you the figures, not from the infant class to the fourth standard, but from standard I to standard IV. Thus, in the year 1922-23 there were about 2,88,000 in the infant class. In standard I, next year, there were only 1,57,000, that is to say, a number of pupils in the infant classes are really children unfit to go to standard I, and to that extent the infant classes can be called crêches, and therefore it frequently happens that infants continue for two years in one class, the pupils being in some cases not much more than infants in arms—I am no doubt exaggerating, but wish to explain why it so frequently happens that they are for two years in one class. If you go from standard I to standard IV, three years afterwards, you will find that 62·8 per cent. of those who were in class I in the year 1923-24 were in the fourth standard in the year 1926-27. Similarly, for the next year there were 1,60,000 in standard I in 1924-25, of whom 62·3 per cent. were present in standard IV in 1927-28. For the next year 1928-29 the corresponding percentage in standard IV was 58·7, and for 1930-31 it was 58·1. Therefore, if you start from standard I, which I submit is a far more correct way, you will realise that the wastage is not as bad as honourable members seem to believe.

As to dealing with that wastage, the department has issued circulars to local authorities advising them as far as possible to promote, on the recommendation of the headmasters, from the infant class to standard I and from standard I to standard II as soon as the pupil is fit for promotion, and every half year instead of every year.

The system of one-teacher schools is criticised, and of course everyone recognises that the one-teacher schools leave a good bit to be desired, but you will always have one-teacher schools. In England there are many one-teacher schools and in a small village a one-teacher school is inevitable and will continue to be inevitable. The only way in which we can meet the difficulty is to train the students of the training colleges to take several classes together, in fact to have a sort of practising one-teacher school attached to the institution. Nothing more can be done by the Department.

Mr. J. S. KADRI: What about Urdu one-teacher schools?

Mr. R. H. BECKETT: The same remark applies to Urdu one-teacher schools as to other one-teacher schools.

Another point of general interest which has been raised by several honourable members is the question of vocational training. The department is told that what it teaches in the schools is useless; that it should teach some industry. Now, I should like to split up educational institutions into two heads, viz., (1) institutions which are definitely training for vocations, and (2) institutions for general education. Of the former type you have your trade school, to which the pupils who have completed the elementary primary school course go to learn a trade. You may have your junior technical schools to which the pupils from the middle schools sections of secondary schools or from the upper primary schools go to learn a trade or occupation. I may say, Sir, that in those schools, for example, in a carpenters' trade school it takes three to four years of actual carpentry work, working all the time, to train good carpenters. Is it possible, I ask, in an ordinary primary school to train a boy to be a carpenter without unduly interfering with his ordinary studies? I say definitely that it is not possible, and I say further that of the pupils in any primary school not one per cent. want to become carpenters. Therefore, surely it would be wrong to take up too much of the time of these pupils in learning carpentry. I have selected this subject merely to illustrate the point. A certain amount of manual training, or hand and eye work, is desirable, something which will teach the pupil not to look down upon manual labour, and which will teach him to be dexterous with his fingers. But in a primary school our main effort must be to give him education in the 3 Rs a certain amount of geography and general knowledge which will be of service to him in after-life. Any pupil, who has had his wits sharpened by this general education and who has acquired a certain amount of manual dexterity, will be a better artisan or a better hand at whatever occupation he may take up.

As I have said, from the primary school boys go to a certain class of vocational school, and similarly from the secondary school, boys go to a certain higher class of vocational institution, and from the colleges to institutions which train for the professions. In the primary schools all that you can do is to give a good general education accompanied by some form of manual training or work and in certain cases in agricultural districts you can give an agricultural bias, but anything more than that is impossible and would do harm rather than good to the pupils themselves. In this connection, the report of the Consultative Committee on the Education of Adolescents in England is of value. The Committee found that the employers of labour were less in favour of a strong bias and more in favour of a good general education comprising a sound knowledge of English grammar and composition, accuracy, powers of observation, a good training of the hand and draftsmanship, elementary mathematics and intelligence. In other words, this merely emphasises that in a great majority of occupations what is wanted is a man whose powers of observation and intelligence have been developed and whose knowledge has been extended by a general education. It must not be forgotten that in most cases pupils learn their business in the business itself.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I must point out to the honourable member here that we have only 22 minutes, and according to the rules laid down, I have to put the demand to vote at 6-45 p.m. I do not know whether the honourable mover wishes to have the right of reply and I do not also know whether the Honourable Minister would like to speak and wind up the debate. If he does, I must interrupt the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction in his very instructive speech.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : There are certain technical points which it would be better for the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction to explain.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : In that case the Honourable Minister may not get a chance of a reply.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : It is all right. I shall finish my reply in 10 minutes.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Will the honourable the mover have anything further to say ?

Mr. V. A. SURVE : No, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member the Director of Public Instruction may in that case take 10 minutes more.

Mr. R. H. BECKETT : Sir, having spoken on certain matters of a general nature raised by honourable members in the debate, I will endeavour to answer one or two of the more detailed criticisms which have been made. The department has been criticised for not giving religious instruction. I would point out that under rule 72 of the Bombay Primary Education Rules religious instruction, including the teaching of the Koran, may be given in schools managed by local authorities provided that (1) there is no local objection to such instruction, (2) the attendance of the pupils is optional and (3) the time devoted to it is not included in the hours of instruction prescribed in rule 73. So, Sir, if members of local authorities feel that religious instruction should be given in schools, and that it is the desire of the parents that it should be given, then there is nothing to prevent them——

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH : Will any grants be given ?

Mr. R. H. BECKETT : No, Government does not give grants for religious instruction, for obvious reasons.

Another honourable member has criticised the fact that there are not sufficient trained teachers. I am afraid that there is a great deal of truth in his criticism, but the fact of the matter is that the high rates of salary and the insufficient money available have compelled Government to aim at restricting the number of trained teachers to 50 per cent. I regard that as most unfortunate, for I regard the training of teachers as most important. As honourable members are aware, I have submitted a scheme which they have sanctioned for increasing the number of trained teachers in secondary schools. Similarly, I may say that I have practically prepared a scheme for increasing the number of trained teachers in primary schools. Unfortunately, it involves an initial outlay with the result that I have had to hold it up; clearly it was of no use submitting it to Government at the present time. I can only say that the position is perfectly well realised by the Department and that, as soon as circumstances permit, steps will be taken to put it right.

I was surprised to find that an honourable member objected to the single Government inspecting officer per district, and in that connection, I should like to read an extract from a very instructive book of "The Board of Education" written by Sir Amherst Selby-Bigge, Bt., K.C.B., Permanent Secretary, Board of Education, from 1911-1925:

"The British Treasury has always laid great stress on frequent inspection as a security against waste of public money and though the establishment of responsible local educational authorities has given much relief to the central authority and though many of them have officers whose vigilance and intimate knowledge of everything that goes on in the schools affords great security against waste, it still remains the fact that for the prevention of waste and securing a higher return for expenditure, the taxpayer has to look to central inspection."

The book goes on to give other very strong reasons of an educational nature to show that a Central Government inspectorate is most essential. In these circumstances, I confess that I am amazed that even the hopelessly inadequate Government inspecting staff obtaining at present is criticised by an honourable member as being superfluous.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I am sorry that the debate has taken a turn which I did not expect. I thought that I would receive certain constructive suggestions, but I did not receive any. My honourable friend opposite is at present playing the part of the Leader of the Opposition, and it is the business of the Opposition to oppose. I really do not understand, Sir, the nature of the charges that he made against me. First, he said that I used the word "blunder" in connection with the Primary Education Act. Blunder means a mistake, and I said it was a financial mistake that was committed. The Act did not take into consideration the financial liabilities which are involved in it. As far as that is concerned, the Primary Education Act was a mistake, and it has been acknowledged not only by one but by several honourable members that financially it is a mistake.

An Honourable MEMBER: It is a mistake.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Therefore, that charge falls to the ground.

Then with regard to the charge that I did not ask any taxes to be levied for education, as honourable members are aware, I had held a conference at Mahableshwar about three years ago. I invited as many persons as possible connected with primary education, including non-official members of this Council, to give advice to the Government as to how that Act should be amended and to see if there were any sources by which money could be found for the carrying out of the Act. But, Sir, there was no fruitful suggestion made. Every member said that no fresh taxation could be levied. I also held conferences of different members to find out really the defects in the Act, and we have under contemplation a Bill to amend the Act, which we hope to present at the next session. As far as that charge is concerned, it falls to the ground.

Then my honourable friend said that even for the Mahomedan community I was not doing enough and they were complaining regarding my neglect of them. Well, I consider this charge as being the best certificate that I have received at the hands of the honourable member regarding my impartiality. The fact that I am not showing any favour to the Mahomedans, and that too from the mouth of an honourable member like Rao Bahadur Chitale, is the best certificate that can be given to a Minister in my position. It has been admitted that I am doing my best, and if my best is bad, it is because the financial position of Government is bad. What more can a man do than do his best ?

Then, I come to my honourable friend Mr. Gokhale. He has made some very useful suggestions. It is quite true that when primary schools were conducted in mosques and dharamsalas and in temples, the expenditure was very little. There were hardly any fees, and people were doing it for sake of charity and for the sake of God. It is very difficult to return now to that primeval simplicity of life, but if honourable members would desire that magnificent buildings, or at any rate stone buildings, should be done away with and that we should go back to the days when schools were held under the peepul tree, I am at their disposal ; I have nothing particular to say about it.

Then, with regard to the complaint of frequent change of text books, that again is not always the fault of the Department ; it is the fault of the University. Two of my honourable friends remarked that in the good old days, two, three and four brothers used to read the same book one after the other, as they used to wear the same coat one after the other very often. But those days are gone beyond recall. Our experts advise us that new text books should be introduced, because the methods of training are always changed and always improving, and therefore we must keep pace with the times.

An Honourable MEMBER : Why should there be a change every year ?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I do not know. I leave it to the experts of the Department. The Minister has very little to do with it. It is the business of the Department, and I hope the Department will take due note of what the honourable member has said.

With regard to religious education, I may point out to the honourable member Mr. Gokhale that resolutions of this Council upon the subject are on record, and as long as those resolutions are not cancelled, we cannot change the policy with regard to religious education.

Sir, I was very much amused at the remarks of my honourable friend Mr. Pestanshah Vakil, a brother of a Minister similarly situated as myself. I do not know, Sir, why he has fallen foul of me, because I am sure I have never obliged him.

Mr. PESTANSHAH N. VAKIL: Nor have I ever asked for any obligation.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: As a matter of fact, I do not know what I am to blame for. I have always tried my best to be serious and to return serious replies to the House; but, if I have at times considered that the observations of some of the members were not serious, it was no fault of mine. I have always taken education seriously. Forty years of my life have been spent in the promotion of education alone. For 20 years in this Council, since the time of the late Sir Pherozeshah Mehta, I have devoted my best attention to education, and that is my first and last love. I therefore really do not understand how it can be said for a moment in my case that I do not take education seriously. It may be that I do not take some members seriously, but that is a different matter.

Now, with regard to Sind, when I asked the honourable member Khan Bahadur Khuhro as to what was the scale of the salaries of teachers in the time of the Mirs and under the Mahomedan Government, my object was to point out this, that under the Mahomedan rulers the teachers were actuated by motives of service, of religion and of sacrifice, and they did not expect high salaries. Indeed, the work of teachers was not considered to be a paying profession; it was a calling or a mission. I still believe that a teacher who merely serves for money or mercenary motives has mistaken his profession. There must be some kind of mission or feeling in him that he is doing his work for the sake of patriotism, or for the sake of some noble feeling. Therefore it is I always say, particularly to the teachers, that they should think it their duty to work under such an inspiration. If my time is over, I shall resume my seat. [An Honourable Member: "Five minutes more."]

With regard to female education, the honourable member Syed Miran Mahomed Shah drew my attention to two subjects—female education and adult education. He said that I would live in history, if I devoted my attention to this and did something. Many other honourable members said that I would live in history for many things. It is not with the intention of living in history that I do my work. However, I may tell him what I have done. I have taken the greatest interest in female education. In Sind the department has given instructions for Mahomedan girls' schools to employ call-women. They have said that Koran education must be encouraged. As the Director of Public Instruction said, there is no prohibition for Koran reading in Muhammadan schools. If the House wants the State to give direct encouragement to religious education in public schools, they should pass a resolution to that effect. Government will spend the money. Unless such sanction is given, Government will have to follow the old rules.

For adult education, we have just made a commencement. In this respect, Mahomedans will have to follow the example of their Hindu brethren in Poona, where they have the Seva Sadan and other similar institutions of sacrifice and service. It is impossible for the State to satisfy all the demands of the community. I hope, Sir, that if I have not touched upon any of the points mentioned here, it will not be considered that there is a desire on my part to evade them but that want of time comes in my way.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: A little while back, the Honourable Minister dropped a remark that those who opposed him did not want to be obliged. Is that a proper remark?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not think the Honourable Minister stated quite what the honourable member says. I think he said that he could not understand why the honourable member Mr. Pestanshah Vakil had fallen foul of him.

Mr. PESTANSHAH N. VAKIL: May I know whether I have ever gone to him for any obligation?

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Never.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Yes.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 1,74,00,000 under "26, Police—Reserved."

Question proposed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There are several cut motions with regard to this demand. The first two by the honourable member Mr. More are out of order. They are Nos. 107 and 108. The items sought to be omitted are not new items at all, but items which have been sanctioned by the Finance Department during the current year out of the savings. They are merely brought to the notice of the House and there could be no cut to those items. The items referred to are in Statement G of the Blue Book.

The next cut motion is by the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni. Does he wish to move it? It is No. 109.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Yes, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Then we shall take that up tomorrow.

If the House remembers (the Honourable the Leader of the House reminds me of it), I mentioned that there was an invitation to some of the honourable members from the Sheriff of Bombay for the 10th. He has written to me asking whether it would be possible for the House to adjourn early. If the House is not so inclined, I might give him a reply that the House cannot adjourn earlier. What is the view of the House?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: If we meet a couple of hours earlier——

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We are meeting the Indian Franchise Committee that day, and we will not be able to attend earlier.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: We do not want to adjourn.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I understand the House is not agreeable to the adjournment.

The House is now adjourned to 2 p.m., tomorrow, Wednesday, the 9th March 1932.

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

TOURING OF MINISTERS.

*Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Ministers do not tour every district in the Presidency during the course of the year;

(b) whether it is obligatory on them at present to tour in every district for a fixed number of days every year;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the negative, whether it is the intention of Government to frame a rule in this regard, so as to make it obligatory on Ministers to do so?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: (a) Yes.
(b) and (c) No.

MALWAN FLOODS: RELIEF.

*Mr. L. R. GOKHALE (Poona City): (1) Are Government aware that by the recent floods in the Korli and Kalavali creeks within the area of Malvan Taluka, Ratnagiri District, 973 houses in 26 villages have been washed away and that 6,040 men, women and children have been rendered homeless?

(2) Are Government aware that the inhabitants of these 973 houses have lost all their clothing, foodstuffs, etc.?

(3) Are Government aware that many lands by the side of these creeks have been rendered uncultivable by the deposit of sand, etc., and that the crops on those lands have been washed away?

(4) Is it a fact that the Mamlatdar of Malvan has made a report describing all these calamities in detail?

(5) Have Government taken any steps to alleviate the suffering caused by the floods? If so, what steps have been taken?

(6) What amount, if any, has been sanctioned for relief work and what amount, if any, has been spent so far?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: (1) 28 villages in the Malvan Taluka were affected by the floods. 324 houses and huts completely collapsed while 622 were partially damaged. The inmates affected numbered 6,488. 65 families are reported to be in a destitute condition.

(2) Owing to the continuous rainfall preceding the floods, most people had taken precautionary measures for removal to safer places of their families, livestock and other belongings. Those who did not do so sustained some damage.

(3) Seedlings in the kharif lands on the creeks, which are usually marshy and muddy, were waterlogged or became silted. Crops in an area of 1,048 acres assessed at Rs. 3,795, were thus damaged.

(4) Yes. The Mamlatdar's report was found to be based on incorrect information. The District Deputy Collector was, therefore, asked to make an exhaustive report after personal inspection.

(5) and (6) The Honourable Member is referred to the replies given to clause (e) of Rao Bahadur Bole's question† and clause (c) of Mr. A. N. Surve's question† on the subject during the current session.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: The question in part (3) is:

The answer to that is:

"Seedlings in the kharif lands on the creeks, which are usually marshy and muddy, were waterlogged or became silted. Crops in an area of 1,048 acres assessed at Rs. 3,795, were thus damaged."

I want to know whether it is the whole area or part of the area?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I do not know that, but I shall try to find out the information for the honourable member. We have now arranged to have the whole area examined by experts to find out whether any serious damage has occurred. If so, the classification will be altered.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: The answer to part (4) is:

I want to know whether the mamlatdar reported a larger number of sufferers and a larger area damaged or whether it was similar to the report of the Deputy Collector?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I am not sure. I think what happened was this: As usual in the case of disasters, the earlier report is published rather in haste and so the figures are not quite correct. As we had reasons for suspecting those figures, we deputed the District Deputy Collector who did nothing else for a month but this work. So, the final report is a more complete one.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Has it been published?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Long ago.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: The figures are there.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I understand the question of the honourable member. I shall endeavour to satisfy the honourable member. I think the answer is in the affirmative, but I would not like to say so offhand.

Mr. A. N. SURVE: I am referring to part (4) which reads——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: It has been reads.

Mr. A. N. SURVE: A statement is made that the mamlatdar's report was found incorrect and therefore the District Deputy Collector was asked to make a report. In this connection a question was asked by me. It is printed in the 9th list.

†Printed in the Debates of 7th March 1932.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Which question? The honourable member gave notice of several questions but did not take the trouble to put the questions himself in the House.

Mr. A. N. SURVE: Question No. 1 in the 9th list. The answer is given there:

"The district deputy Collector made 5 ad interim reports and 1 final report and the Mamlatdar made 3 ad interim reports."

I want to bring out the point that the District Deputy Collector was made to submit this report, because the mamlatdar's report was found to be based on incorrect information. Therefore, why are the mamlatdar's reports called ad interim reports? They were final?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: They were ad interim reports. The mamlatdar sent in reports as he moved on. They are not final reports.

APPOINTMENT OF FOREST ADVISORY COMMITTEE IN SIND.

*Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID (Karachi District): Will Government be pleased to state—

whether they intend to appoint the Forest Advisory Committees for the various Districts in Sind? If so, when? If not, what are the reasons therefor?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: The institution of the Forest Advisory Committees is an experiment, which is being tried in districts of the Presidency proper where the forests are extensive and important. The question of forming such Committees in the districts of Sind will be considered if the experiment proves successful.

I may add that I received a deputation of Sind members in February last in this connection and the representation of the deputation in this connection is receiving my best attention.

NON-COMPOUNDABLE CASES: APPLICATIONS FOR WITHDRAWAL: KARACHI AND HYDERABAD (SIND).

*Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID for SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many applications for withdrawal of non-compoundable cases were presented to the District Magistrate of Karachi and Hyderabad, Sind, by parties in any criminal cases, under section 494, Criminal Procedure Code, in the districts of Karachi and Hyderabad, during the last five years;

(b) under what law and section thereof each such case was filed;

(c) how long each such case was pending before the court prior to the application for withdrawal;

(d) the number of cases in which permission for withdrawal was granted and in which it was not granted;

(e) what were the reasons for refusing to grant such permission in some cases;

(f) in how many cases in which the permission was refused was any party agriculturist as defined by the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act;

(g) the cost incurred by them in the conduct of cases in which permission for withdrawal was refused and the period for which each such case lasted ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: The information required by the Honourable Member is not readily available and to collect it would involve an amount of time and labour disproportionate to the value of the results.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS—HYDERABAD—BAIL APPLICATIONS.

*Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID for SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of bail applications made on behalf of the accused in the case of non-bailable offences in the Courts of the Magistrates in the District of Hyderabad during the last 2 years ending on 31st March 1932;

(b) the particular provisions of law under which the accused were being tried;

(c) the number of bail applications both granted and refused;

(d) the number of cases in which the orders of the Magistrates rejecting the bail were reversed by the Sessions Court, Hyderabad;

(e) the number of the accused, either convicted or acquitted, in cases where the Magistrates' orders rejecting bail were reversed;

(f) the total cost incurred by them for the detention of the accused during the pendency of the trials ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: The information required by the Honourable Member is not readily available and to collect it would involve an amount of time and labour disproportionate to the value of the results.

CIVIL COURTS IN SIND: EX PARTE DECREE AGAINST AGRICULTURISTS.

*Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID for SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of ex parte decrees in Civil Suits passed by the Civil Courts of Sind, on the original or appellate side, during the last 5 years, against agriculturists;

(b) in how many of the suits were the summonses served upon the defendants personally and in how many were they served otherwise;

(c) what was the total amount of claims approximately involved in the suits;

(d) how many of the ex parte decrees were set aside on the defendants' applications;

(e) whether it is a fact that the money-lender plaintiffs procure false endorsement on the summonses;

(f) if so, how many such cases of false endorsements have come to the notice of the various judges in Sind during the last 5 years and what steps have they taken against the culprits;

(g) whether they intend to issue orders that ex parte decrees passed against agriculturists should be set aside generally on their affidavits only ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: The information required by the Honourable Member is not readily available and to collect it would involve an amount of time and labour disproportionate to the value of the results.

Mr. W. N. RICHARDSON, CITY MAGISTRATE, KARACHI.

*Mr. S. S. TOLANI (Western Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether, as a measure of retrenchment, they intend to enforce compulsory retirement of those Government servants who are on extension after having completed thirty years' service and also of those who have completed twenty-five years' service;

(b) how many years' service has Mr. W. N. Richardson, the present City Magistrate of Karachi, put in;

(c) whether it is a fact that after his retirement he was re-employed as City Magistrate on two occasions;

(d) if so, for what periods and what are the reasons therefor;

(e) what is the amount of salary and allowances that he draws per month as City Magistrate;

(f) what would be the monthly cost if they employed a senior man from the Deputy Collector's grade as the City Magistrate in place of Mr. Richardson;

(g) whether they intend to terminate Mr. Richardson's services as a measure of economy and to employ a person of lesser pay in his place from amongst the Deputy Collectors;

(h) if not, what are the reasons therefor?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: (a) No. It would not be a measure of retrenchment.

(b) Nearly 37 years including service after retirement.

(c) Yes.

(d) Government consider that his long experience and good work as City Magistrate, Karachi, make him the most suitable person for the post, and that his re-employment is in the interests of the public service. The periods of his re-employment are as follows:—

(1) from 1st April 1928 to 7th May 1931, and

(2) from 11th November 1931 onwards.

(e) Pay at Rs. 1,500 per mensem in the scale of Rs. 1,000—50—1,500 plus a conveyance allowance of Rs. 75 per mensem. His pension has been held in abeyance.

(f) The cost would be the existing scale of pay less 12½ per cent., plus the cost of Mr. Richardson's pension.

(g) No.

(h) Vide reply to clause (d).

CLASSIFICATION OF LADY POLITICAL PRISONERS.

*Mr. S. S. TOLANI (Western Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that in the present Civil Disobedience Movement, even persons of high social status and education have been awarded "C" class on their conviction;

(b) whether it is a fact that even ex-M.L.Cs. have been given "C" class;

(c) whether they have received any representation from the President, Karachi Indian Merchants' Association, and Chairman, Buyers and Shippers' Chamber, Karachi, regarding the classification of the political prisoners, and their diet, clothing, etc.;

(d) whether they intend to modify their present policy in the matter of classification, food and clothes, and to give effect to the suggestions of the Karachi Indian Merchants' Association and the Buyers and Shippers' Chamber? If not, what are their reasons for it?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Government see no reason to modify their present policy.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: With regard to part (a) the answer is that Government are not aware that persons of high social status have been given "C" class, and with regard to (b) the answer is that they are aware that ex-M.L.Cs. have been given "C" class. Does not Government consider that ex-M.L.Cs. are men of social position and therefore they are entitled to more than "C" class?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: A member of this Council is not necessarily a person of high social status or high educational qualification. No one is entitled to a better class because he has been a member of the Legislative Council. If he has certain qualifications such as high social status or a high manner of living or high educational qualification, then he may be entitled to a better class.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: Mr. Naraindas Anandji, an ex-M.L.C., was given "A" class in last movement and now he is given "C" class. Does it not entitle him to the same class this time also? And how does his social position become less?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: What does not entitle him?

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: Because he is an ex-M.L.C. In the year 1930 an ex-M.L.C. was placed in the "A" class and the same ex-M.L.C. is now placed in the "C" class. What is the reason for that?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: A mistake can be made.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: With regard to part (d) the answer is "Government see no reason to modify their present policy." What are the reasons?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Government see no reason.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: Has the attention of Government been drawn to a question in the Legislative Assembly regarding the classifications of the political prisoners?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I do not follow the honourable member.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Nor, do I.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: Has the attention of the Government been drawn to a reply given in the Legislative Assembly to a question put by Mr. Lalchand Navalrai that there has been no change in the classification of prisoners since the last political movement?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Government's attention has not been drawn.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: How does it arise?

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: It arises because these people who were once placed in the "A" class in last political movement are now placed in the "C" class.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I think he means that a statement was made regarding a change in the method of classification. I am not aware of that fact.

UNSTARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

REPORT OF THE AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS COMMITTEE, 1922.

Khan Bahadur D. B. COOPER (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to place a copy of the Report of the Agricultural Implements Committee, 1922, and the Government Resolution relating thereto on the Council table?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: The report has not been printed. A copy* of Government Resolution, No. 3143, dated 6th October 1922, containing a summary of the main recommendations of the Committee is placed on the Council table.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have issued any orders directing the removal of the photos of Bhagat Sing from shops or dwelling houses;

(b) whether they are aware that such photos are ordered to be removed by the police in the Surat City?

ADEN DEPUTATION.

His Excellency the Viceroy received on the 30th November a deputation consisting of the following gentlemen who desired, on behalf of the several organisations which they represented, to have an opportunity of personally placing before His Excellency the views of those bodies on the proposed transfer of the civil administration of Aden from the Government of Bombay to the Government of India :—

1. Sir Chunilal V. Mehta, K.C.S.I. (Indian Merchants' Chamber),
2. Mr. Fakirji Cowasji (Buyers and Shippers Chamber, Karachi),
3. Mr. Kaikobad C. Dinshaw (Messrs. Cowasji Dinshaw Bros., Bombay),
4. Mr. Gulamali Abdul Hoosein (Aden Chamber of Commerce),
5. Mr. M. Vasi (Aden Chamber of Commerce),
6. Mr. K. Natarajan (Imperial Indian Citizenship Association, Bombay),
7. Mr. Jamnadas Dwarkadas (Imperial Indian Citizenship Association, Bombay),
8. Sir Hormusjee Cowasji Dinshaw, Kt., M.V.O., O.B.E. (British Indian Colonial Merchants' Association, Bombay),
9. Mr. Hooseinbhoy A. Lalljee (British Indian Colonial Merchants' Association, Bombay),
10. Mr. Ratilal M. Gandhi (Grain Merchants' Association, Bombay),

Mr. J. K. Mehta (Secretary).

The Deputation was led by Sir Chunilal V. Mehta (Indian Merchants' Chamber). After Sir Chunilal Mehta had read out a written address on behalf of the Deputation, His Excellency invited members of the Deputation to put forward any other points, which they might wish to urge, an invitation to which Sir Chunilal Mehta, Mr. Hooseinbhoy A. Lalljee, Mr. Natarajan, Mr. Jamnadas, Mr. Fakirji and Mr. Gandhi responded. The main arguments against the projected change submitted by the Deputation were as follows :—

(1) Bombay merchants had taken a prominent share in the development of Aden during its century old connection with their Presidency, and highly valued the assurance which it provided that their interests would be protected and promoted by the Government of their own Province to which they had the readiest access, and which was intimately acquainted with their wants and wishes. They were entitled to be consulted in bringing about a revolutionary change in existing arrangement which had worked satisfactorily for so long. They had seen nothing in the published papers to show that their point of view had been taken into account, or which convinced them of any real need for change.

(2) Aden hitherto had not participated in the advance towards self-government. The public were looking forward to the municipality and the Port Trust being constituted on a broader popular basis on the introduction of provincial autonomy. There was also an expectation that a popularly constituted Government in Bombay would mean a great deal for progress and development of trade and industries of Aden.

(3) The financial argument that the continuance of control by the Bombay Government would mean a loss of Rs. 2 to 3 lakhs to Provincial Revenues was disputed. The Deputation was not aware of attempts made by the Bombay Government for making up the deficits that may legitimately arise ultimately.

(4) The Deputation suggested that the whole question of the annual contribution by the Government of India to His Majesty's Government towards political and military expenditure at Aden amounting to £250,000 per annum for three years from the 1st April 1927 and thereafter £150,000, or one-third of the actual expenditure whichever might be less should be subjected to independent examination by a Commission on which Indians were adequately represented. The incidence of expenditure between the Bombay Government and the Government of India might also be similarly examined. They felt that items like revenue from the salt lands which was in the nature of land revenue and the additional expenditure on police which, if they were rightly credited and debited, would not show loss to provincial revenues. In any case the deputation urged that the fact of a deficit was no ground for transfer of control and instanced the question of Sind, and also the North West Frontier Province where Government of India proposed to make very substantial subventions.

(5) The Deputation asked whether the present proposal was not really a first step towards the separation of Aden from India and its relation to the sole charge of the Colonial Office. The Deputation referred to the struggle which Indians had in South Africa, East Africa and elsewhere to maintain their rights acquired by developing and promoting the prosperity of these countries; they hoped that no occasion for any such struggle would arise in Aden, and earnestly requested His Excellency to give a specific assurance on behalf of His Majesty's Government that under no circumstances would the administration of Aden be taken away either from the Provincial or the Central Government of India without the willing consent of the people of India. In reply to a remark of His Excellency that though he sympathised with the sentiment underlying the protest against the transfer of Aden to the Government of India he wanted to know the practical difficulties of the people of Aden if it was so transferred, it was pointed out that, apart from the very practical difficulties of delay and expense in dealing with the distant Government of India, there was real danger of Aden questions being crowded out in the Assembly especially at the time of the budget and it was doubtful if other provinces would take the same interest in them.

2. At His Excellency's desire, Mr. Howell, Foreign Secretary to the Government of India, replied to the Deputation and stated the case from the Government point of view. He strongly refuted the belief that the Government of India had made up their minds on the question of transfer without consulting public opinion. The main object of the statements made recently on the floor of the Bombay Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly was to elicit public opinion, and the Government of India had at present under consideration a number of memorials on the subject. His Excellency's willingness to receive the Deputation showed the Government of India's readiness to hear the other side before reaching a final decision. The Government of India repudiated the suggestion that they had made the financial consideration the main one. They had other and more important considerations. As a nodal point in the Empire, Aden required a high standard of administration and although the Bombay Government had always done its best to Aden, it had not always been in a position to give all the help that was required. The Government of India consequently had to incur expenditure on several administrative activities in consequence of this position. The division between Provincial and Central spheres of activity rendered the position extremely difficult. He instanced the existing difficulties of procuring sanction from three different authorities for certain classes of expenditure for example, Police, and assured the Deputation that the present proposals were made solely with a view to removing administrative inconveniences.

3. On the question of the contribution by the Government of India to His Majesty's Government towards the cost of political and military control, Mr. Howell after explaining the arrangements in force during and after the war, stated that the present arrangement was reached in 1927 after long negotiations, and had saved India annually an expenditure of Rs. 18 to 19 lakhs per annum from the 1st of April 1927 and of at least Rs. 32 lakhs from the 1st of April 1930. Expert opinion was that the arrangements were profitable from the point of view of the Government of India and it would be useless to reopen the question.

4. Mr. Howell assured the Deputation that there was no reason why Indian interest in Aden should suffer because of the transfer to the Government of India. He denied that there was any foundation for the apprehension that the policy in regard to salt works might be changed for the worse or that Aden which is now a free port might become subject to tariffs. There was also no reason why the Bombay High Court's jurisdiction should not be continued even after Aden had been taken over under the control of the Government of India.

5. As regards apprehensions that the proposed transfer was only a step towards transfer of control to the Colonial Government, Mr. Howell made it clear that the present proposals were made solely with a view to improving the conditions and making an end of administrative inconveniences at Aden. The proposals were complete in themselves and were made on their own merits without afterthought or ulterior motives of any kind. They were not a step towards any other change. If the question of transfer to His Majesty's Government should arise again in future, it would have to be considered on its merits and would be rendered in no way either easier or more difficult by the change now proposed. No one could say that the question would never be raised again, but the Deputation was assured that the present transfer had not that end in view. If the proposal to transfer to His Majesty's Government were raised again, Mr. Howell made it clear that the Government of India were bound by past assurances that full opportunities for discussion would be given.

6. After the statement by Mr. Howell, His Excellency assured the Deputation that his interest in Bombay and Aden was as great now as Viceroy of India as it was when he was Governor of that Presidency. He fully appreciated the sentimental side of the question and the concern of the Deputation on that score to remain associated with the Bombay Government but looking at the problem from a purely practical point he said that the Government of India were in a better position to improve Aden if they had direct charge of it than if they had to work through the agency of another Government. His Excellency emphatically endorsed the Foreign Secretary's statement regarding the transfer to the Colonial Office that no such suggestion had been considered and undertook that should it arise in future all interests concerned would be consulted. The transfer now proposed would make no difference to the commercial relations of Aden with Bombay, and in his opinion as at present advised it seemed the wiser course all round.

7. After hearing the Foreign Secretary and His Excellency, the leader of the Deputation expressed his gratitude for the assurance given by His Excellency that the present transfer was not intended as a step to the Colonial Office and that should the question ever arise opportunities for consultation would be given. In this connection he referred to the speech of the Honourable Mr. Pratt in the Council of State in September 1921. He complained of a recent disallowance at the instance of the Bombay Government of an adjournment motion regarding Aden. He also read the speech of Sir Ernest Hotson in 1927 before the Bombay Council showing how a most important decision in regard to Aden was taken by the Government of India without even informing the Bombay Government. He was anxious that this sort of thing should not happen again and that a real opportunity for discussion should be allowed if the problem of transfer to the Colonial Office arose. Sir Chunilal feared, that the Deputation was not convinced of the administrative difficulties pointed out, and in reply to the point that the Government were undertaking certain expenditure, as they regarded Aden as a nodal point in the Empire, Sir Chunilal suggested that if the Government of India took the view that certain aspects of the administration of Aden fell within their sphere as controlling foreign relations, it was proper that they should bear the cost and that even with regard to these aspects a solution might be found by the Government of India earmarking or asking the Bombay Government to earmark such expenditure as they thought necessary on items which may be regarded as falling within their sphere. Further, he feared that the change would involve a greatly increased expenditure to the Government of India and to the country though he was not in a position to say how much it might be. The difficulties of the Bombay merchants regarding the transfer to the Government of India were not merely sentimental but distinctly practical and he hoped that the strong feeling which the Deputation still held that Aden should not be transferred would be given due regard by His Excellency the Viceroy before coming to a final decision.

8. The Deputation then after thanking His Excellency withdrew.

Address presented to His Excellency the Viceroy by the Deputation which waited on him on the 30th November 1931 in connection with the proposed transfer of the control of the Civil Administration of Aden from the Government of Bombay to the Government of India.

Your Excellency,

I have the honour, on behalf of the several organisations which are represented on the deputation, to convey our respectful thanks to Your Excellency for consenting to receive this deputation and thus allowing as an opportunity of personally placing before Your Excellency our views on the proposed transfer of Aden from the Government of Bombay to the Government of India. We are the more assured of a sympathetic hearing from Your Excellency since, as former Governor of Bombay, you possess direct knowledge of the administration of Aden by the Bombay Government. We have no doubt that Your Excellency will not approve without the most overwhelming reasons of depriving the Bombay Presidency of a Port and portion of her territory which she has so long and satisfactorily administered.

It is not the first time in the history of Aden that such a proposal is being made. Not only was the present proposal sudden inasmuch as the Indian commercial community which is chiefly interested, was not consulted before the issue of the memorandum on the Civil administration of Aden attached to the reply in Council, but we regret that we fail to find in the memorandum sufficient reasons for at all mooting the proposal. The principal reason given is that the continuance of the control of the Government of Bombay will mean a loss of Rs. 2 to 3 lakhs to the Provincial Revenues. I will revert later to the financial aspect, but even if this estimate is correct, we beg to submit, it does not afford any justification for surrendering an important portion of its charge especially when such a course will adversely affect its own mercantile community settled there and also the future of Aden.

Aden, as it is to-day, has been the creation largely of Bombay merchants and industrialists, and Bombay trade and industries are even now the principal factor in the Revenues of Aden. The representatives of this trade and industries feel very strongly that the administration should continue to be in the hands of the Government of Bombay with which Aden has been connected for nearly a century, even since it came under the control of the British, and they fear that their interests will suffer severely by the proposed change. Aden is already separated by about 1800 miles from Bombay, and adding to that distance another 1000 miles from the seat of administration is certainly not going to be for the benefit of Aden.

It is not our purpose here to refer to or examine the merits of the action taken in 1927, which confirmed the purely temporary arrangements adopted only as a war-measure under the stress of the Great War. These arrangements were originally made in 1917, and 10 years later, the transfer of Military, administrative, as well as strategic and political control from India to London became a permanently accomplished fact. At the same time the Colonial Office wished to take over the Civil administration of Aden, and this proposal created a good deal of consternation and resentment both in India and in Aden, where the Indian merchants constitute an important element of the population. This proposal was ultimately, thanks to the good offices of the Government of India and the then Viceroy, Lord Reading, abandoned, but the Military administration was transferred to the War Office.

In regard to the financial aspect of the question, we venture to suggest that an examination should be made not only of the allocation as between the Government of India and the Government of Bombay, but also of the contribution properly debitable to the United Kingdom and to India. Your Excellency is aware that the Government of India urged, as early as 1886, the propriety of the expenses of Aden being divided between Great Britain and India. For as long as 14 years after that, this country continued to bear the entire Civil and Military expenditure. In 1895 the Welby Commission was appointed to examine the question, and as a result of the Commission's recommendations His Majesty's Government made from 1901 a net annual contribution of £72,000 to Indian Revenues towards the Military charges of Aden. As a result of the transfer, originally made as a war-measure, in 1917 of the Military control of Aden to Great Britain, the contribution of the Government of India has been fixed at £250,000 per annum for the first three years, to be reduced thereafter to £150,000 or a third of the total cost whichever may be less. We, of course, are not aware of the grounds on which this allocation was arrived at, and we venture to suggest that in order to satisfy Indian opinion as to the equity of this contribution a Commission on which Indians are adequately represented might be appointed to examine the question. In view of the fact that the examination was made so long ago as in 1895, it would not be unreasonable to suggest that since conditions of control have completely altered, the question should be examined afresh. We are not in a position to give at the present moment our detailed view on the figures of revenue and expenditure as presented in the memorandum, as we have not yet received the information regarding the accounts we have asked for. We would only like to say in this connection that the expenditure on Aden of the Central Government is bound to show a considerable increase, if control is transferred from the Bombay Government and if, as is suggested, Aden is turned into a Chief Commissionership.

As regards the allocation between the Provincial and Central Governments, the memorandum suggests that although at present there is a small Provincial surplus the propriety of debiting to the Central Government items of expenditure, which are really provincial in nature, is under consideration. In the absence of fuller information, we regret that we are not in a position to deal with the correctness of certain adjustments that may be suggested. For example, it would have to be examined how far the expenditure on items contained in the memorandum such as education, medical, public health and general administration, are incurred for the benefit of officers belonging to the Central Government or to the Provincial Government or for the benefit of the Military. It will also be necessary to determine to what extent the expenditure on Police is justly debitable to Provincial Revenues in so far as it is required solely for the purposes of Civil administration. We have given the most careful attention to all the points made in the memorandum issued by the Government of Bombay, and we are constrained to say that no case has been made out for giving up the control of Aden. All that they indicate is, in our opinion, the necessity for an independent examination of the financial liabilities which ought justly to attach to all the interests concerned in Aden. We do not know how far this has been made by the Government of Bombay, but we feel certain that it ought to be made by an independent Commission of the nature indicated before. We feel sure that the Government of Bombay has not given enough consideration to the very strong feeling that exists in the Indian mercantile community in Bombay against any disruption of the long historical association, which is bound to affect adversely its commercial and other interests, nor are we aware of any attempts made by the Government of Bombay to put forward proposals for making up the deficits, if any, that may ultimately legitimately arise.

Aden up to now has got practically next to nothing of Local Self-Government and its Port Trust and its Municipality have got little of the popular element on them. Looking to the fact that Provincial autonomy will be a sine qua non of Constitutional Reforms in the near future, both its Municipal and its Port Trust administrations are naturally expected to be constituted on a broader popular basis. It is also expected that the administration by a popularly constituted Government in Bombay will mean a great deal for the progress and development of trade and industries of Aden.

The question involves a principle of great importance to Indians as citizens of the British Commonwealth. In South Africa, in East Africa and elsewhere, the Indian people have to struggle hard to maintain their rights, acquired by services rendered in developing and otherwise promoting the prosperity of the countries concerned. It is to be hoped that no occasion for such a struggle will arise in Aden. Bombay merchants have taken a prominent share in the development of Aden mainly because of its century old connection with their Presidency, and the assurance which it provided that their interests will be protected and promoted by the Government of their own Province to which they had the readiest access and which was intimately acquainted with their wants and wishes. They are entitled, to put at the lowest, to be consulted, when it is proposed to bring about a revolutionary change in this arrangement which, on the whole, has worked satisfactorily. They have seen nothing so far in the published papers to show that in proposing a change in the administration of Aden their point of view has been taken into account.

I confess that I cannot disguise our underlying fear, that the present proposal is really a first step in the direction of depriving India of the administration of a territory, which is of great strategic and political importance to Great Britain. Already the Military portion of the administration has been taken over. While we do not see that any case has been made out for the transfer of Aden to the Government of India, we earnestly request Your Excellency to give a specific assurance on behalf of His Majesty's Government that under no circumstances will the administration of Aden be taken away either from the Provincial or the Central Government in India, without the willing consent of the people of India. It would be very desirable to make clear the ultimate intentions of the British Government at a time when discussions are in progress for formulating a scheme for enabling this country to manage her own affairs.

Under all these circumstances, Your Excellency's deputationists urge Your Excellency, respectfully, to be pleased to veto the proposed change formulated for the transfer of Aden, and to order that the administration of Aden will continue to be with the Government of Bombay.

THE CHIEF AGRICULTURAL OFFICER IN SIND: ABSENCE ON LEAVE.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI (Western Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Chief Agricultural Officer in Sind is shortly to proceed on leave? If so, when and how long;

(b) whether it is a fact that during his absence on leave the Agricultural Department in Sind will be under two officers already in the department;

(c) the reasons why the next senior Indian Officer in the Department is not appointed to act in his place during his absence;

(d) whether it is a fact that the post of the Chief Agricultural Officer in Sind is reserved for Europeans only? If so, what are the reasons therefor? If not, what are the reasons for not appointing an Indian to the post;

(e) whether it is a fact that there was no senior man of the Indian Agricultural Service in Sind, who could be appointed to act as the Chief Agricultural Officer;

(f) whether it is a fact that Mr. V. A. Tamhane of the Indian Agricultural Service is the next senior-most man after Mr. Jenkins, in Sind? If so, what are the reasons for his not being appointed in the acting vacancy;

(g) whether Mr. Jenkins had any experience of Sind before he was appointed as the Chief Agricultural Officer in Sind;

(h) whether they are aware of the bulletin of the Agricultural Department written by Mr. V. A. Tamhane on his Sind work in 1920;

(i) whether they intend to abolish the post permanently?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: (a) Yes. Six months and twenty-eight days from 8th March 1932.

(b) Yes.

(c) It was considered that it would be in the best interest of the Agricultural Department in Sind not to make a full-time appointment for a comparatively short period but to carry on with a division of the work between the two senior officers available on the spot, under the general supervision of the Commissioner in Sind. This is a temporary reversion to the arrangement in existence under the general supervision of the Director of Agriculture before the appointment of the Chief Agricultural Officer.

(d) No. The post has not been exclusively reserved for any particular class of officers. The point raised in the latter part of this clause does not arise in view of the reply to clause (c).

(e) No.

(f) Yes. He was not appointed on grounds of administrative and public convenience.

(g) No.

(h) Yes.

(i) No. The post is only to be kept vacant during the period of Mr. Jenkins' absence on leave.

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—resumed.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI (Poona District): Sir, I beg to move:

"Reduce by Rs. 100—I-Special Emergency Expenditure—(Presidency Proper)—(Voted)—Rs. 5,63,000 (C. E. page 170)."

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, I do not hear a single word of what the honourable member says.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Will the honourable member please come nearer?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: There is a provision made of Rs. 5,63,000 for the emergency police for the presidency proper. If we include Sind——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: This cut applies only to the Presidency proper and there is no cut on the provision for Sind.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Does the honourable member move the motion as it is?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Yes, Sir. Year after year the expenditure on police has been on the increase. Last year the expenditure on police per head of the population was Rs. 511-9-1 and this year it has gone up to Rs. 540-3-7. It clearly shows——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: May I know where these figures are?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: They appear on page 31 of the Annual Police Report of the Bombay Presidency, excluding Sind for the year 1930.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I thought they were in the budget. I am sorry.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: If we look into the figures of expenditure, we see a gradual progress in them. The expenditure under the head "Police" in the year 1928-29 is 1,69,70,000; in the year 1929-30 Rs. 1,76,00,000; in the year 1930-31 Rs. 1,92,20,000. From these figures we can understand that the figures of expenditure are going up by leaps and bounds. Of course Government have their own reasons and it is stated by them that they are very moderate in their expenditure on this head. They have compared the figures of expenditure in this presidency with those in the United Kingdom. On page 31 of the Police Annual Report it is stated:—

"The figure of average cost per head of the Police in the Counties and Boroughs of England and Wales for the year ending September 1930 was Rs. 4,407-4-1. The cost of a Policeman in England and Wales was, roughly nine times that of a Policeman in Bombay Presidency."

That is, they say, the expenditure incurred by Government in England. When we compare the figure per head of population in England with that of ours, our expenditure is nothing. But we have to consider the difference in the calibre of the police force here and the police force in the United Kingdom. Those men are well-trained, have good educational qualifications and so the expenditure that is incurred in the United Kingdom is reasonable. But here the expenditure is unreasonable. Particularly to express my protest on the expenditure on the item I am moving this motion. I am not saying this without any authority: it is not drawn from my own imagination. Of what stuff the policemen engaged there are made of is given in the Police Report. When we purchase an article from the bazar, we pay for it according to its quality. We have a saying in Marathi "जसा माल तसेंच त्यांचें मोल" (i. e., pay according to the stuff you get). A responsible officer of Government has given at page 36 of the Police Report a graphic description of the qualifications of the men who are engaged in this department.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: May I rise to a point of order, Sir? Is the honourable gentleman speaking on his cut motion or on the general question of the Police?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: It is a general debate raised on that particular branch of the police.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Sir, the quotation I wish to give applies to the men who are appointed as the emergency police. Therefore, it is relevant.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: It is difficult for me to follow the honourable member in his approach to the problem. I have not ruled whether he is relevant or not, but I think the remarks regarding the standard of policemen are not relevant to this particular motion, although they may be made more appropriately in connection with a general discussion of police administration.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: I put forward those remarks in anticipation of a reply, as a preliminary. Now, what are the qualifications of the persons on whom Rs. 500 per head are spent every year? These qualifications are given by a responsible officer of the department, and I am reading those qualifications——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What is the page?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Page 36, last paragraph. In this connection——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The question here is the appointment of emergency police and the expenditure on that may be discussed.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: I am reading about the men who are employed in the emergency police:

"As at present constituted, they are a rag-tag and bob-tail collection, ill-fed, ill-clothed, ill-paid, ill-disciplined, totally unreliable and disloyal. They have set an exceedingly bad and dangerous example. The issue of precepts to them will effect no improvement. A Pryde's purge is needed."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is the police in general.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: If you will kindly see the Blue Book, you will find that the expenditure on the special emergency police is mixed up with the expenditure on the police in general.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Let him go on.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: The honourable House will remember that the other day the honourable member Rao Bahadur Bole called a certain department a जांवई department. This is, if taken in that light, another 'जांवई' department. The men in this department are paid more than what they deserve. These emergency powers are given to Government to exercise them in the interests of the welfare of the country. It is not right to give a torch in the hands of the devil. As a result of the raw material that I have described being given powers under the ordinances, we shall have a very dangerous result. At page 10 of the said Police Report we are given the number of cases where convictions are obtained and where convictions are not obtained. That will show that the powers given to these persons are generally misused.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Powers given to the police? There again the honourable member is not relevant.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Special emergency powers.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I am not yet satisfied about the relevancy of the point. The honourable member should confine himself to the particular head to which he has moved a cut. Otherwise, I shall have to stop him.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Sir, they are armed with special powers under the ordinances. When they exercise those powers they make mistakes. I wish to prove that. Unless I give the figures, how can I prove it?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The item here is this special extra police alone. Whether they should be employed or not, whether the expenditure on them is adequate or extravagant—those are the points to which the honourable member will have to confine himself.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Unless I give the number of cases in which they have failed to get a conviction, how am I to prove?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Who has failed?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: The special police.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Which is the page?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Page 10.

"Of 9,085 cases dealt, 7,655 were brought to trial, of which 7,464 ended in conviction."

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Where is he quoting from?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: From page 10 of the Report.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, I rise to a point of order. This report is for 1930, before the emergency police were engaged. The special policemen were engaged for the first time in 1931. The village servants are not the regular police either.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: I will make things clear. I will not read it, but come to the point. We have thousands of complaints daily pouring in about the working of this emergency police——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: In Poona, have you complaints?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Sir, I do not wish to be interrupted. When I began my speech, I was asked to come here; I came here in order to meet your wishes, although I do not think that my voice is inaudible; then, I am interrupted so many times by the Honourable the Home Member. I wish to be supported by you.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I should support the honourable member to this extent, that his views should be respected on the other side. But he must begin to give his views.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: I have been given no chance to express my views. Let me speak for five minutes without any interruption. The Honourable the Home Member has a chance of replying. Many innocent persons are made to suffer along with persons who are out to make some mischief. We have got many instances of hardships being inflicted on the public by the special police. I will give two concrete instances which will convince the House that hardship is being inflicted on the innocent public. Many people were assembled at the Reay Market in Poona: they were not there for attending any meeting, but for the purchase of vegetables as a daily routine. The emergency police force which was making an attack on a crowd near by all of a sudden came into the market and without any warning made an attack on the people assembled——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: When was this?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: On the 6th of February. Fourteen innocent persons were roughly handled. A list of their names has been published in "Kesari" newspaper. I do not, however, rely simply on the newspaper reports, as on a previous occasion we were told by the predecessor of the present Home Member not to rely merely on newspaper reports in such matters. I made personal enquiries and saw some of the persons. They told me that they had gone there for purchasing vegetables or for their business, and in spite of that they were roughly handled and some of them were injured very badly. Some of them were sent into the hospital. The District Superintendent of Police said that he saw to it that those persons were treated under his own supervision, which goes to prove that many persons were injured. That is the testimony of the District Superintendent of Police. The fact that innocent persons were roughly handled goes to prove that the rights of the public are endangered. Another instance is also quoted in another newspaper by name प्रभात. The man himself came and told me. He was a reporter of the Prabhat newspaper. He had gone there to witness the scene and to see whether the police were at fault or not. He went there to ascertain facts and to give correct news. In spite of the fact that he was a representative of the Prabhat and had gone there to witness the scene and said so to the police, the police told him "Go back; you have no reason to stop here." This is a strange way for a civilized Government to adopt towards the representative of a newspaper who had to give correct news to the public in order to assist in the formation of a public opinion. But when representatives of the papers are handled in such a way, there is great obstruction in providing authentic reports to the public and to Government also. The working of this branch has caused great discontent among the people, and in order to give vent to that so many resolutions were tabled. One of them was kindly admitted by the Honourable the President of this Council, but was ultimately rejected by the higher authorities on the ground that that is not the business of this Council. Resolutions when discussed in this Honourable House do a great deal in creating public feeling and if the Government had allowed representatives of the public to give authentic reports without obstruction, it would have done a great deal in pacifying the public feeling. Now, however, we are left to our own devices in getting right aspect of the thing. We are placed in such a pitiable condition as a result of the working of the administration. I think the stability and the firm foundation of this Empire lies in the good-will and good-feeling of the subjects and the administrative Department at least should care to win over the public to their side and give every possible opportunity and help us in forming our own judgment by their sympathetic action. But this is never done. On the other hand, resolutions are overruled and innocent people are being roughly handled in so many places. So many incidents are before us. These wrongs are never redressed. That is why I have moved the motion and I hope it will be supported by my colleagues. With these words, I move the cut.

Question proposed.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE (Poona City): Sir, I rise to support the cut proposed by my honourable friend Rao Saheb Kulkarni. In the beginning, I must say that as far as the Poona District is concerned, both the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police are very discreet and reasonable officers, who look at the convenience of the people and the emergent conditions in a proper perspective. I know that even under the present circumstances the District Magistrate has handled the situation in a very discreet and careful manner. This much for the officers.

Now, dealing with the police force, we cannot say the same thing about them. I would refer to the incident just now mentioned by my friend Rao Saheb Kulkarni, I mean the Reay Market incident. I know some details of what happened there and I would like to put them before the honourable House. On the last Pandit Motilal Day, it was reported that a public meeting was being held in the compound of the Reay Market. That meeting certainly was not in accordance with law and the police force had gathered there in large numbers to control, or at any rate, to disperse those who had come there to attend the meeting. The number of those who were present was very large. I am told it was somewhere between 6,000 and 8,000. After the people gathered and just before the commencement of the meeting, a party of 40 emergency police came there under a certain officer; and armed police were stationed at all the corners of the Reay Market and on all the big roads leading to the open ground near the market. A whistle was blown by the officer under whom the party was acting and at this signal the lathi police rushed at the people who had gathered there and began hammering them, I am told, ruthlessly. Some of these people entered the market which was then open and in which business was going on. There were shopkeepers and their customers in the market. The police officers were there to disperse the men who were on the place and attending the meeting. Instead of doing that, the police force, with lathis in their hands, entered the precincts of the Reay Market and 105 persons, who were shopkeepers in the market and their customers, were belaboured and they received injuries as a result of the lathi charge made by the police officers. The names of these 105 persons are in the possession of those who made enquiry about the incident. I put it to you, Sir, was it fair, was it necessary for the police to enter the market premises and hammer persons who were selling their articles, and their customers? There were old women and men, young boys sitting on the stalls. The police indiscriminately, without pausing to consider whether they were the people who had come to attend the meeting or whether they were carrying on business in the market place, without stopping for a minute hammered these persons and some of them received serious injuries. I could appreciate the fact that as the meeting was held in defiance of a certain ordinance the police was in duty bound to disperse that meeting. There is no quarrel with that argument of the police. But what do we find? All these emergency police are very peculiarly-minded people. The description of the general police given to us by my friend Rao Saheb Kulkarni is now applicable to some members of the permanent force in the department. What, then, must be the calibre, the morale, the character of the people temporarily employed by the Government? If you get permanent hands of the description just given by the honourable mover, I am sure those hands which are temporarily engaged must be many times worse. That is what I presume to be the natural consequence. I know, as a matter of fact, one old woman in the market received a serious injury and she is lying in the bed. She said to the police who were rushing towards her with lathis, "I am an old woman selling potatoes. Kindly save me." But kindness was not to be shown. She was belaboured, and had to be removed for treatment. This is not a solitary instance. If the Government is pleased to make enquiry into the cases of those innocent persons who were roughly handled, I am sure it will find that the number is more than 105. The Poona City Municipality has taken up the question, but I do not know whether Government will help the Municipality. The Municipality has appointed a committee to enquire into this question, whether the police were justified in entering into the market precincts and belabouring some of those who were carrying on business. The Municipality has collected evidence in regard to the conduct of these police. If Government is compelled to utilise the services of emergency police, they must try to secure the services of good men. It was at one time thought, and Government may now think, of appointing citizen policemen. I do not think Government has thought of adopting that suggestion. It is not possible to get good material if you get hold of a man in the street, ask him to work as a policeman, give lathis in his hand and allow him to run amok in the streets. This is an unfortunate position. I do not mean to say that it is intended by the officials whose mention I have made. I know the Superintendent very well. But I think Government ought to be very particular in employing the force. They must select the best men. I am sure Government can get hold of pensioned military officers or soldiers. They are well-disciplined. They will never run amok. If Government selects such men they would be better fitted to serve in the emergency police force. That is a point which requires careful scrutiny at the hands of Government.

Another point is that made by the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni about press representatives and the "Prabhat" incident. If the police were aware that a body of 10 or 15 press representatives who were staying outside without taking any part in the meeting and without breaking the law, and who were there to help Government by giving an accurate report as to the doings of persons gathered there, why should they have been hammered with lathis? There is of course one redeeming feature in the incident. The gentleman who belaboured the representatives of the press afterwards had the goodness to apologise to them. He said, "I am very sorry I dealt with you in the way I did. I did not know that you were press representatives." That must be said to the credit of the police officer. But how many police officers can we get of the type of this particular gentleman? I therefore think that Government should issue strict orders in dealing with such emergency cases and especially about lathi charges. In the market the people were driven out like cattle for a distance of 400 feet. They were driven from one corner of the market to the other—a distance of 400 feet and more—the police after them, the people running for their lives. It is a disgraceful thing. If the officers had given sufficient time to the people to disperse, they would have done so; so far as my information goes, no notice was given to them to disperse. At the sound of the whistle—I do not know who that police officer was—the lathi charge began and men were chased like cattle and sheep. What does it mean? Is this the way of dispersing and stopping meetings? Is it not the way of showing the people that Government is very mighty and saying that before they hold a meeting they should take care of themselves? There are innumerable instances of such lathi charges. I refer to this Poona incident because I know what happened. I say the police had committed a wrongful act by entering into the municipal market precincts without the permission of the municipality, without consulting the officers who were in charge of the market. I am told that when this was brought to the notice of the police officers, they said that people in the market threw potatoes and onions at the policemen. I do not think potatoes and onions were very heavy missiles. I am not certain whether the charge of the police is correct. But that is the story that has been given in defence of the action of the police. Potatoes are not, after all, lathis or bombs. What can people do when you hammer them with lathis? They must defend themselves with something and the most handy articles were potatoes and onions and they were used. I do not mean to say that the people were justified in using those missiles. Let the police use lathis, but the people should fold up their hands and remain quiet. But we are now concerned how the people were dealt with by the police. I am telling the House exactly what happened. It appears that the police officers in charge of the parties were calculating and prepared to act in case of emergency in the right way. In this case it was found that on four sides of the roads there were stationed armed police. If the armed police were there, it means that they were not allowing anybody to enter the market area. There was no influx of additional men coming into the meeting place. All that the police had then to do was to drive away the people assembled in the market place. If that was the only function of the police, what was the necessity for a severe lathi charge, and of hitting a number of people? I do not see the propriety of it. Was all that force necessary to stop a meeting and to drive people away from that place? Why were people who ran away followed by the police? When the people came to the other end of the market, the police had to stop there quietly to see whether any other party of persons was coming in. But as if to show their exploits of hammering people, the police commenced hitting people indiscriminately. That is one of the worst features of these lathi charges which I have noticed.

Secondly, as regards lathi charges, I suggest there should be definite orders to inflict the minimum of harm on the people. The present idea of the police appears to be to inflict the maximum harm that they possibly can inflict. The rank and file of the police appears to have this idea, and not the higher officers who of course know that that is not a correct way of controlling a widespread movement and that it would do no credit to any Government, much less to the present Government. So, this rank and file ought to be put under a check and their passion for cruelty curbed so that they will not subject His Majesty's subjects to unnecessary and uncalled for and cruel treatment, under colour of carrying out their duties. Because they happen to be in a particular locality where the ordinances are in operation, the police are not justified in causing injuries of any serious character to the people.

Now, Sir, I do not know whether the Parola police which is punitive police comes under the category of emergency police or under the ordinary police. If they come under the ordinary police, I have nothing to say, but if they come under the emergency police——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member who is speaking just now makes it rather difficult for me to give any guidance in this matter. I may put it roughly thus: the cut under this head should really be confined to the question that emergency police should or should not be employed, that there is or there is no emergency in the country, or that emergency is not likely to arise, or that if the emergency police is to be employed, the conduct of the emergency police seems objectionable; that the House is not in a mood to allow this grant and the like. If discussion was carried on on those lines, it would be within this head; otherwise, those general remarks as to the lathi charges appear to me to go really beyond the scope of this motion. The plain simple question is whether there is or there is no necessity of an emergency police, whether there is an emergency, or whether an emergency is likely to arise and if the conduct of the police is so objectionable that the honourable members of this House are not in a mood to allow this grant. I think these are the lines on which remarks can be made; otherwise, it would be difficult for me to draw the line if honourable members entered upon any larger discussion than that.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: I quite see your point, Sir, and I am thankful to you. I am clearly of opinion that emergency police is to some extent necessary. Therefore, I did not comment upon the employment of such police at all. My point, however, is that the conduct of the emergency police is so objectionable and cruel that it should be brought under proper control. There may be need for the employment of emergency police, I do not dispute that and for that reason I do not say that the police grant should be dropped altogether in so far as it concerns the emergency police. All that I want to point out is about the second part, namely, whether the conduct of the police is such as to require the stopping of the emergency police or an improvement in their conduct. From this point of view only I have criticised their conduct. I quite believe and I quite appreciate that this cut is not a general cut. There is a general cut at the end given by my honourable friend Mr. Jog, but I do not find him present here and probably that occasion may not be available to us for a discussion of the general cut. I have therefore confined myself to the conduct of the emergency police and I do suggest that the subordinates at any rate of the emergency police have behaved in a manner which I will not call disgraceful because that is a strong word, but in an illegal——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Regrettable.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: There is nothing in the word, Sir, so long as the benches opposite understand what I am driving at. I am criticising the cruel conduct of the emergency police, and that is why I have been allowed, I think, to make the remarks which I have made about their conduct.

As regards the question of the Parola punitive police, I do not know whether it too comes under the category of emergency police. That Parola police has been employed as a punitive police and to me it appears to be an emergency police. If I am wrong, I hope I shall be pulled back and corrected.

One particular thing which I notice about this emergency police is that there appear to me to be no rules laid down for their guidance in writing. If I am wrong in my statement, I hope I may be corrected immediately——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: The honourable member is wrong in that statement. They come exactly under the rules which govern the ordinary police force.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: I quite appreciate that, but my point is that you have emergency police and in the wake of the appointment of that emergency police there should be emergency regulations. Emergency police should not be under no control and left to do what they like. Of course, the general rules of the ordinary police force will not always hold good or even be sufficiently efficacious for an emergency force. I am right, I believe, in saying that——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I would like to know whether this emergency police, after being employed, merges in the general police force.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: The emergency police are temporary police, but are exactly of the same class and perform the same duties and are exactly under the same rules as the ordinary regular police force. They are additional police. We might call them temporary police because they are employed to meet an emergency.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: They merge in the general police?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Exactly.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: If that is so, the whole discussion may be opened for general police conduct, but my idea is that——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I was also going to point out, to save the time of the House, that all these remarks should have come under the last cut No. 114 "Reduce by Rs. 100—Total—Rs. 1,81,93,000 (C. E. page 146)."

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: I just mentioned, Sir, that I do not see the honourable member Mr. Jog in his seat to-day. My submission is that if the emergency police merges in the general police and is only a temporary and additional police, then my complaint is that this is not sufficient. Should they not have in that case definite orders as to how they should conduct themselves when a certain emergency arises? My enquiries tell me that no such orders have been given. It has been said that they are part of the ordinary police and wield the same powers as the ordinary police. They possess ordinary powers except that they can act extraordinarily by hammering people as they like! That is the only exception that appears to me to have been made in their case. I think that is certainly not at all right. If you have for certain purposes a certain officer, is it not necessary to have his duties laid down in a certain way, and should he not know what he is about? Must he not know exactly what his duties are? I am sure that 90 per cent. of the ordinary police have no emergency duties to carry out, and there could not be any rules made by the department for their guidance during an emergency, and there are none so far as I know. That is the reason why we find so many complaints in all the various places wherever there has been indiscriminate hammering given to the people by the emergency police. As a matter of fact some of the police in mofussil towns are more cruel, more hard-hearted than those in the zilla towns and cities. Why is that so? Does it depends upon the officer who is in charge of a certain party of police. If he is a good officer who does not care for any bukshish from superior officers, he is reasonable. If he is otherwise and wants to have some Rao Bahadurship or Khan Bahadurship or some other recommendation, he is cruel, he is unreasonable, and callous or careless or reckless as to what injuries his men inflict upon the populace when they try to disperse a crowd or a meeting, however peaceful they may be. My whole point is that there should be some specific rules drawn up and circulated to all police officers so that they will know how to act when a particular emergency arises. Because there are no such rules in existence now, we find so many unnecessary clashes in all those places where we have had these severe lathi charges. So, my suggestion is that some definite rules should be drawn up for the guidance of police officers.

As regards the Parola police——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Is this discussion on the cut under Special Emergency Expenditure or is it a discussion on the general police budget? The police employed at Parola are not emergency police.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: I quite see that, Sir. All my remarks have been confined to the conduct of the police officers and I have made my criticisms with a view to secure an improvement in the conduct of police officers, not out of any hostility towards them, but to stop the cruelty which has been in evidence during lathi charges and to protect honest people who are carrying on their business in an honest way, perhaps some of them co-operating with Government.

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE (Ahmednagar District): Sir, I did not wish to interfere in this debate, but I have to make one point and I hope I shall get a straight reply from the Honourable the Home Member.

[Rao Bahadur G. K. Chitale]

I agree with him that in certain circumstances emergency police, that is, a specially recruited branch of the police, may be necessary. I remember also that that recruitment was made on a certain basis and they raised a force of some thousand strong, especially out of Ex-Service Military people. Perhaps the emergency police was to have martial instincts so that in case of such an emergency those martial instincts might stand them in good stead in hammering the poor people that may have the misfortune of coming across the emergency police. Just as ordinary police have to resort to firing under certain rules specially laid down for the purpose, similarly there should be certain special rules laid down for the guidance of emergency police giving them directions how to carry on lathi charges should they become necessary. As in days to come the necessity for lathi charges may be felt more often than now——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Why?

Rao Bahadur G. K. CHITALE: The Honourable the Home Member knows best, why. I should think that Government would be well advised to have some definite rules which should be published for the information of the public in general. It is no use having departmental rules or stating that they are taking the usual disciplinary action, because nobody knows and the public does not know what that disciplinary action is. Therefore, Sir, I am of the opinion that there is a very strong case for laying down when exactly lathi charges should be made, how they should be made, whether or not the public are entitled to due notice of such charges, whether the police should not give enough time for the people to disperse and whether after giving that time, a lathi charge should or should not be resorted to unless and until there was a superior police officer or a magistrate present on the spot. Then again it follows up the usual method, namely, that if that lathi charge is to be indulged in, after all these directions are given and precautions taken, there should be a definite and strict order that a lathi charge should be resorted to only as an extreme measure and that the lathi should be administered not on the head nor on the chest but on other limbs of the body. Sir, often we find that when good superior officers are present on the occasion, they usually resort to that kind of lathi charge, but we also find enough instances in which heads are unnecessarily broken, and I should think that this House will be well advised in having some kind of regulations, which the Government in its own wisdom might think fit to have. But those regulations should be published for the benefit of the public. That is the only suggestion that I have to make.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Sir, we are given no information as to the necessity of the emergency police, and also in which places they are to be engaged. Certainly, every year the police budget is sanctioned, but we are not told afterwards what amount is actually spent and what amount is saved. Last year also there was the same sanction given, and we do not know what was spent on the emergency police. We now hear it stated by the Secretary of State that there is no emergency outside the city of Bombay, and the amount which was sanctioned last year was up to the 31st of this month. So, after that date, there would be no emergency for which this House should sanction any grant in anticipation of something which may happen. I think, Sir, no such occasion should arise when the emergency police will be required in these days, because the emergency police are required to deal with exceptional circumstances. This year the whole of India is under the Ordinances and everything is at a standstill, and therefore no emergency police should be required.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Has the civil disobedience movement ceased in Kanara ?

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: Yes, Sir, that is exactly what I want to say. Now that the official bench has afforded me this opportunity, I will deal with the question and give a reply to the question put to me. In the Kanara District, in the villages, when owing to poverty the people cannot pay taxes, or land revenue, or even the grazing fees of 2 annas per head of cattle, which is the minimum for Kanara, what do the subordinate officers do ? These shanbhogs, or talatis, or kulkarnis, when they cannot collect revenue from the villagers, because the villagers have nothing to pay, report that they have joined the civil disobedience movement. In this manner they save their skins. The highest official of the district, that is, the Collector, cannot tour all over the district, because there are no roads fit for motor cars and the various places are not connected either by railway or any other means; he cannot visit all these places, and whatever is reported to him by the lowest paid subordinate has to be relied upon by him, because they are the men on the spot. I would like to state here with all the responsibility that I can command that there is no civil disobedience movement as such in Kanara, but because they cannot collect money from the people they say there is the civil disobedience movement. This is the explanation that I have to give in reply to the question just asked, and with that I shall come to the subject in hand.

We do not know actually how much of the amount that was sanctioned last year has been spent, and whether after the 31st of this month there would be any emergency. It is also not known for what districts these emergency police are intended, whether for the city of Bombay, or any other town, or village.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: There is no provision in this for the City of Bombay police.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is separate. The details are given on page 146 of the White Book.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: I have read that. With all that, I do not know for which places this is meant. I do not know whether the peaceful population, already governed by the Ordinances, cannot be handled by the police now at hand. Sir, what was the expenditure on the police force before the Reforms ? It was 70 lakhs to 80 lakhs, and it has now increased by over a crore; there is an increase of over 100 per cent. I think the ordinary police are quite enough, and with all the authority vested in them by the Ordinances, I do not think any emergency police should be required. Also, I do not think that after the Ordinances expire in six months the emergency police, for whom provision is made for the entire year, will be necessary. The provision is made for 12 months, but the Ordinances will not last for such a long time, and even the Secretary of State says that there is no emergency now. If at least there had been an emergency, something could have been said for this provision. But in the absence of sufficient information regarding the emergency police, as to where they are required, what is the strength required, etc., I do not think this side of the House can properly exercise its vote for granting this expenditure on emergency police.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, I find it a little bit difficult to reply to this motion, because several honourable members have ranged over the whole of the Police budget and introduced all sorts of matters like lathi charges and village policemen. Perhaps I had better explain first of all the position. When I saw this cut tabled, I thought we might have a discussion showing that there was no emergency, as the honourable member who spoke last (Mr. Gangoli) says, and therefore no need for the emergency police, or that the emergency has grown less and therefore we can do with a lesser number of emergency police. Sir, as I thought I might have to go into the history of the emergency police, I was prepared to tell the House what had been done about the emergency police, and I am still prepared to tell the House that, if they wish.

The emergency police was first appointed in 1930, two years ago, when the civil disobedience movement took shape. In giving the figures of the emergency police, I will include Bombay City and Sind, although they do not come under this sub-head, because honourable members have ranged over a wide field of the Police budget, and perhaps they will forget them. In the Presidency proper, 2,118 special constabulary—there were a few extra officers—was employed in 1930, in Sind 100, and in Bombay City 200. Those were employed to meet a definite emergency, to check the disorders that arose after the civil disobedience movement began; they were employed throughout the year. When I became Home Member nearly a year ago, there was a meeting under the chairmanship of His Excellency, at which, besides myself and my Secretary, were present the Divisional Commissioners, the Inspector General of Police, the Commissioner of Police, Bombay, and, I think, the Finance Member, if not the Finance Secretary. We had four of these meetings during the last 8 months, to consider whether we could reduce these special police. They were called emergency police, as I said just now in reply to the Chair, because they were called into temporary existence to meet an emergency. They were, however, simply a temporary addition to the ordinary force, and every man of the so-called emergency police, whether it was called Kitchener's Army as it was called or otherwise, became for the time being a regular member of the police force, amenable to all the rules of discipline of the ordinary police force and subject to exactly the same orders and regulations. As I said, we had those conferences soon after I became Home Member, and we had three further conferences, one every two months during the period, at which we discussed the position. On each occasion we were able to reduce the number of the emergency police. Some were reduced by ordinary casualties, such as deaths and leave vacancies for various periods; others were reduced by being absorbed into vacancies in the regular force, and some were disbanded. I am glad to say that not a single man was dismissed. In October last the position was that in Bombay City the number was 100 instead of 200; in Sind, before I handed over charge as Commissioner in Sind, I had in anticipation of Government's sanction reduced the whole of the emergency police force there from last March; and in the Presidency proper the number had been reduced from 2,118 two years ago to 1,175, which is a little more than half the original number, by the end of last year. Well, I should have liked, and my honourable colleague the Finance Member would have liked, to reduce the whole lot, but we could not afford to do it in view of the position at that time. Ever since the agreement was made between Lord Irwin and Mr. Gandhi, Congress emissaries have stumped the whole of the Presidency up and down proclaiming "this agreement is nothing but a truce, war is coming, war with the Government is coming, and that war is going to be more bitter than the last war." Well, I think that any one in the face of that challenge would take steps to prepare for the coming war, and we took steps,—thank God we took steps,—and one of the steps was notto deplete our police force beyond the lowest possible margin of safety. In October the emergency police force in the Presidency proper had been reduced, as I have said, from 2,118 to 1,175. We decided to maintain the force at that figure, in view of the expectation that the Congress might be successful in their efforts to renew hostilities. History tells us that they were successful in renewing hostilities. We would have been perfectly justified in bringing up the strength of the emergency police force to what it was in 1930 or even beyond that strength, because the Congress had made it clear that it was only a truce, that another war with the Government was coming, and that war would be more bitter than the previous one. But we did not increase the special police force by a single man; the additional police force stood at 1,175 for the Presidency proper, and it continues at that figure to-day two months after the renewal of hostilities; not a single man has been added to the force since the Ordinances were brought out. Whether the Ordinances had been promulgated or not, that police force would have been necessary.

Now, Sir, it is said that the Bombay police force is larger than is necessary. But I would remind the House that 10 years ago, in 1922, Government went mad; perhaps some people think that Government have never regained their sanity. They reduced their police force by over 1,000 in Sind and by over 2,000 in the Presidency proper; and they have regretted it ever since. I have here instances in which honourable members of this House and also various districts have called the attention of Government to the reduction of the police force, and have urged that it should be restored. Some of the districts, at any rate, for which they asked Government to restore the police which were reduced in 1922 were Larkana, Nasik, Karachi, Thar Parkar, Panch Mahals, Thar Parkar again and Kanara ; Kanara wanted more police—I think that was before my honourable friend Mr. Gangoli became a member of this House. Various honourable members have asked questions at different times, protesting against the inadequacy of police in their districts. I will mention some names. Mr. Govindrao Pradhan, Thana ; Mr. Shankarrao Jayaramrao Zunzarrao, also Thana ; Mr. Durgdas Advani, Larkana ; Mr. Tekchand Udhavdas, the whole of Sind ; Rao Bahadur Asavale, various districts ; Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram, the whole of Sind.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE : Are those bona fide applications ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS : These were questions asked in the Council, asking that the police force should be increased in those particular districts from which the honourable members came.

An Honourable MEMBER : Were not Government going to re-organise the police ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS : Government have schemes on hand for the re-organisation of the Police. They cost 12 lakhs of rupees but are not to be put into force now on account of financial stringency. Only in two or three parts of the Presidency and in Sind, the police force is to be strengthened at present. In the whole of Sind 1,082 men were reduced. It will be remembered that, in last March, this honourable House voted provision for the re-organisation of the Police in Upper Sind, Larkana, Sukkur and Jacobabad. 582 additional police have been permanently appointed there. So, I do not think that it will be considered too much if out of the 3,300 policemen reduced in the year 1922, only 580 men have been restored, giving a debit balance of 2,800 which is more than double the emergency police. The whole of this emergency police will have to form part of the regular organisation, because we have to re-organise the police force in certain parts of the Presidency and particularly in Gujarat. When honourable members from the Southern and Central Divisions spoke on this motion, the honourable members from Gujarat were absolutely silent. It is more necessary to strengthen the police force in that part of the Presidency than anywhere else. I have got certain figures which I shall give for the information of the House. During the last three years, dacoities have increased from 73 in the year 1930 to 86 in the year 1931 ; murders and similar offences from 117 to 166 ; and robbery from 60 to 75. There is a spirit of lawlessness and disorder in Gujarat.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Which districts of Gujarat does the Honourable Member refer to ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS : Ahmedabad, Kaira, Panch Mahals and Surat.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Surat ? What are the figures ?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS : Dacoities have risen from 5 to 6 ; robberies have decreased from 10 to 8, and murders from 14 to 12. I am afraid the other parts of Gujarat are not so fortunate.

[Mr. G. A. Thomas]

That is the general position. Therefore, I think we shall have to keep the additional police for some time, even after the emergency is over.

One remark of the honourable mover of the cut I could not understand, in spite of the explanation he gave. He referred to page 31 of the Annual Police Report from which he quoted an extract. But that extract relates to the village police and not the regular police. It is entirely irrelevant to import it into this discussion. He referred to some instance in Poona and the honourable member who followed him also referred to another instance in Poona. The honourable member Mr. Gokhale quoted these instances to show that the emergency police force are not of the same class as the ordinary police and are "peculiar-minded" persons and intemperate by nature. He also said that they are prone to excesses. Therefore, it will interest the House to know that not a single member of the emergency police has ever set his foot in Poona, since the beginning of this movement, because it has been found possible to manage with the ordinary police. Poona never required emergency police. So, the honourable member, while referring to the emergency police, actually referred to the trained policemen of the regular force.

The honourable member Mr. Gangoli said that there was no emergency, but the honourable member Mr. Gokhale granted that there was an emergency. We shall have to continue the emergency police even after the present emergency is over. The actual number of the police force in the Presidency proper is 22,862 in the regular force and 1,175 in the additional police force. When you take into consideration the present deficiency in the regular force, you will admit that the additional police force should be made to form part of the regular force for bringing the police force to its full strength.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Are there rules for lathi charge?

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: It is quite impossible to lay down rules for lathi charge. The men are trained in the use of lathis. They are instructed to avoid tender parts and use the lathis with the least possible injury. They are generally instructed to use lathis with as little harm as possible. During the last two months, certain lathi charges became inevitable, but there have been few cases of serious injury. It is impossible to draft rules. Will the honourable member Rao Bahadur Chitale draft rules as to how to deal lathi blows and how to avoid them? The public can avoid lathi blows by avoiding to attend meetings declared unlawful.

Question put, and negatived.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, I beg to move——

"Reduce by Rs. 100—Total—Rs. 1,81,93,000 (C. E. page 146)."

I have moved this motion with a view to have a discussion on the general policy of the Police Department. It is with great responsibility that I have moved this cut, because the situation of the country at present is very difficult. We as citizens are all interested in the maintenance of law and order. When there are in the country certain forces and elements which are likely to disturb peace and order, every good citizen is expected to assist and co-operate in the maintenance of law and order. At the same time it is the duty of every citizen to see that there is no unnecessary interference with the freedom and liberty of the people in their ordinary avocations. Therefore, in discussing this policy, as I said, I feel the responsibility very great. Without going into the minor details of Police excesses here and there, I would request Government to see that the powers which have been given under the Emergency Ordinance are used with moderation and caution. In the affairs of a country, there may arise occasions when emergency powers are necessary and the legislature has provided——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: We are not discussing the ordinance promulgated by the Governor-General which has been exercised by the District Officers.

Mr. V. N. JOG: I am not discussing the issue of the Ordinance. I was saying that such emergency powers are necessary and the legislature has vested that power in the Governor General. But my submission is that such powers are to be used with moderation and caution. As these powers are entrusted to the police I am touching that subject in that connection. When these powers are to be exercised by various officers, Government should lay down certain rules so that they may not interfere unnecessarily with the freedom and liberty of the citizens.

There are instances in which these powers are not properly used. It is difficult for Government to discriminate, but unfortunately there are glaring instances in which these powers have not been properly used. Even the Secretary of State, His Excellency the Viceroy and His Excellency the Governor stated that in working these ordinances there will be no fear for law-abiding citizens and that innocent people will not be touched. But we find that sometimes on suspicion——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I rise to a point of order. This is the Police budget. The powers under the ordinance are entrusted to the District Magistrates and not to the police. I think that it would be better if the honourable member reserves these remarks until the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale moves his motion on Saturday. Otherwise it will go beyond the scope of the motion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I am glad that the Honourable the Home Member has brought the question openly before the House. Even this morning I thought of bringing it to the notice of the House. The remarks that are made in connection with the present situation can better be reserved for the day when a full dress debate will take place on the present situation. These references do not come properly within the limits of this motion. Otherwise, the line of demarcation would become so fine that honourable members might overstep it. Any criticism pertaining to the administration of the police department will be relevant, but not criticism of the special powers which are conferred on the police by the ordinances.

Mr. V. N. JOG: May I take it that I will not be allowed to discuss the acts of the emergency police or the ordinary police under the ordinances?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Certainly the honourable member would be within his rights if he discussed them. As I said, this is the total demand and therefore all sub-heads come under that. The honourable member can refer to the emergency police, their deeds and misdeeds. But any reference to the ordinances as applied by the magistrates or by other heads of departments would be irrelevant. The honourable member will know where to draw the line.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Then, I will not refer to that particular action. I am not going to speak on the general acts of the police, but of the acts done by them under certain powers given to them under the ordinances without reference to the district magistrates. I was saying that these special powers ought to be used with moderation and caution. There should be freedom for people to give expression to their opinions with regard to the acts of Government. Certain actions of the police officers have actually interfered with the expression of such opinions.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Acts done without the orders of a District Magistrate under the ordinances?

Mr. V. N. JOG: That is what I think. I will quote an instance. There is the order of the Commissioner of Police served on the Indian Merchants' Association——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Was it done by the Commissioner of Police as the police chief?

Mr. V. N. JOG: If it was done in his capacity as a magistrate, then I would not refer to it.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: It was in his capacity as a magistrate.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Then, I will not continue.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Does the honourable member wish me to put the motion proposed?

Mr. V. N. JOG: Yes. I do not want to say anything more at this stage, but any other honourable member may wish to speak on the motion.

Question proposed.

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE (Poona City): Sir, I want to say something about the police stationed at Poona.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Which item in the White Book is the honourable member referring to?

Mr. L. R. GOKHALE: The Police Department and the police expenditure are under discussion, and the expenditure on the police stationed at Poona is covered, I believe, by the total demand shown under the head "Police".

Of course, I cordially thank the Honourable the Home Member for the information he has given about the department. I am greatly obliged to him for telling us that the police which acted in the particular manner mentioned at the Reay Market was not the emergency police, but the regular police. There is a saying "Where ignorance is bliss, it is folly to be wise." I really feel that I had not been made aware that the Poona regular police was capable of such conduct; I am really sorry; I wish I had not been made aware of this fact. We were all under the hope, illusion, that this illegal doing was the action of the ignorant, unsophisticated, useless men employed for the time being as an emergency police. That was our reason for sympathising with Government in their need of proper men. Now, we are enlightened; light is thrown on it, and we are told that we were all mistaken, that it was the regular police force recruited from time to time by the Department that was responsible for it. I wish that we had regulations to be utilised in this way. The regular police is taking the law into its own hands and treating the people in this way! I would only say: "Save us from the police." There is no alternative, Sir. Probably it is the zeal for the time being that must have carried away the permanent police stationed at Poona to act in this cruel way, to say the least about it. I hope that, in view of what I have said, necessary orders will be issued by Government to make enquiries into the conduct of the police.

Then, I wish to speak about the punitive police stationed at Parola, a village in East Khandesh. It has been there for more than a year. If my information is correct, the relations between the two communities are not now so bad. The levy of Rs. 16,000 annually from a small township is certainly a great hardship on the people affected. That levy is made from a part of the population and not from the population as a whole, and the amount that is levied is something like Rs. 15,000 or Rs. 16,000 annually. Now, let us think of it. Is not that a heavy charge upon the already famished population of that town? As time has rolled by, I am sure that the feelings of the communities must have undergone material change, and the police kept there in ordinary times will be able to maintain peace in that town. If necessary, a few extra hands from the department may be used. Instead of that I find that the whole punitive force is to be continued there. Not only are the people unable to pay the tax, but it is a sort of blot on the character of the people living in that town. They will certainly feel that Government have not come to recognise that they have changed their feelings against each other and are pulling on in a brotherly way. I hope Government will make enquiries in the matter and try to help the poor people at this juncture when they are in a very bad pecuniary position. The people who are there are mostly weavers and their industry is not in a good condition at present; they are suffering very materially, and therefore, I wish to draw the attention of Government to this.

We have got sufficient information from the Honourable the Home Member on the general policy, although some of us were thinking that we could not go into the general policy as the cut had only reference to the emergency police. Fortunately for us, we have got all the information.

Rao Bahadur G. V. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Sir, now that we are restricting ourselves to the figures of expenditure, I have only one remark to make, and that is, that when the ten per cent. cut has been made applicable to persons in all the departments, drawing more than Rs. 40 per month, I fail to understand why the police department has escaped that cut right up to persons drawing Rs. 160. We have been told that in the local boards and municipalities we should reduce salaries by ten per cent. in the case of every member of the staff, even the teaching staff, in respect of salaries from Rs. 40 and over. But in the Police Department, particularly the sub-inspectors who draw from Rs. 80 to Rs. 160 and other additional allowances like house rent allowance or are given free quarters, that cut has not been made applicable. It may be said that their pay is already too low. If that is so, then I would request the Honourable the Home Member to furnish us with the figures of other provinces, just as the Educational Department did, to show that our pay is comparatively less than that paid in other provinces. If that is so, then I can understand why a cut at ten per cent. has not been made in the pay of Sub-Inspectors of Police. But if that is not so, then we must expect that the cut will be applied to the police whether or not they are of special value to-day. When every one is suffering, the service class as well as the non-service class, the service class right from His Excellency down to the servant paid Rs. 40, I fail to understand why the police sub-inspectors and other persons in the police executive department should not be made to pay the same.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Hindi): Sir, I support the cut moved by my honourable friend Mr. Jog.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, if the honourable member speaks in Hindi, I cannot understand him. Will he speak in English, so that I can understand him?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I am not able to speak in English, although I am able to understand with difficulty English spoken by Indians. If the Honourable the Home Member speaks in English I cannot understand him.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I hope the honourable member has understood the request of the Honourable the Home Member. He could speak in Sindhi: the Honourable the Home Member can follow Sindhi.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I do not understand Sindhi either.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The Honourable the Home Member has to meet the arguments that the honourable member makes. Therefore, he should speak in a language which the Honourable the Home Member can understand.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, I understand that the honourable member speaks English. Can he not speak in English? I cannot answer him fully unless I understand what he says.

Honourable MEMBERS: We shall not be able to follow Sindhi.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT: The Honourable the Home Member understands both Hindi and Sindhi.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, Order. I leave the choice to the honourable member.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I am advised by my honourable friends that I should speak in Sindhi, so that the Honourable the Home Member may understand me. So, I shall speak in Sindhi. (Addressing the House in Sindhi)——

Sir, in Sind, police zuloom is too much. 90 per cent. of the police take bribe and Rasai. From poorest hari, big Zamindars and even M.L.Cs. and M.L.As. are not free from the zuloom of the Police. False cases were brought up against several big persons in Sind, of which I gave several examples in this House in my last year's speech. The Government spends about 37 lakhs of rupees from revenue for Police in Sind, with the view that protection is given to the public safety of their life, property and of their families. But Police do quite the contrary. Therefore nothing is safe there. Besides the sum of Rs. 37 lacs spent by the Government at least Rs. 80 lacs to Rs. One crore go out of the pocket of the inhabitants of Sind towards payment to the Police as bribe and Rasai. If any Honourable member from this House asks me how far it is true, I will tell them that Police officials who were too poor and had no houses of their own, have now built big bungalows of red bricks at Hyderabad Sind, each house costing from Rs. 20,000 to Rs. 50,000. Houses are well furnished with up to date furniture and so on.

Before I speak about the Police doings in Sind, I want to say first about Karachi Police. From early morning till night every Policeman to the Official is on look out to find out ways to earn money by bribes from public. One party of Policemen are after carriages, bullock carts, camel carts and donkey carts. Poor drivers are threatened that they will be prosecuted for their animals having wounds or lame or being overloaded. In this way Policemen take bribe of 0-8-0 to a rupee from drivers. Another party of Policemen are out to take bribe from those who sell charas, bhang, opium from unauthorized places. If any complaint is made of sale of these things to the Higher Police Officials, the policemen inform the offenders before their shops are searched, there is nothing is found and they escape. If any one is caught, the offender has to pay a small fine. There are gambling dens in each quarter. Specially there are many dens for gambling in Ranchore quarter. Police do not catch them. Because police get share from each den. If any complaint is made the keeper of the gambling house is informed before hand and thus no one is caught. Besides these, there is public gambling in carnivals. Few enjoyments are provided. Otherwise there is nothing but gambling in one way or other. Public made several applications to Police and Collector of Karachi and also by Press. Yet nothing has been done so far to stop this public "Juva", as police have their hand in it. In circus, prizes are given. By this inducement, the owner get very big houses every night of Rs. 1,500 to Rs. 2,000. He gives away two to three hundred rupees in prizes. Thus poor people go in large number in hope of winning a prize of few rupees.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: How is that connected with the police?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (in Urdu): It is in the hands of the police as prizes are by lottery.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: No "juva" in that. I thought that the honourable member was speaking about the circus. There are some prize tickets and the holders of these tickets are given prizes. The police have nothing to do with it.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (in Sindhi): When there is quarrel between two persons and one who is beaten goes to Police Thana, he is not heard unless he gives 5 or 10 rupees to the Police. When this is done the other person is sent for. Police press him and knock out money from him. In this way money is taken from both. Afterwards both are released and sent away. If any case goes before the Court nothing happens there. Due to this if any one is robbed or beaten by any one, no complaint is brought before the police. Recently in last 2 or 3 months in Ranchore and Ramswami Quarter 3 or 4 shops were broken open during night and goods were removed in motor cars. Such daring robberies have taken place in other quarters of Karachi and no thieves have been caught, because the Police are in league with the robbers and thieves. I have led the above few facts before this House. I now request the Honourable the Home Member that he will take the necessary action and save the poor public from such police acts.

Now I want to say as what is happening in Sind Districts. In all Districts there are patharies. Thefts of cattle and of properties are committed through these patharies. This has been proved to Government before. Police are with these patharidars. When these are reported to police they go out to make enquiries and settle down in a village. Police demand rasai from the jamindar of the village who has to provide fowls, eggs, fodder etc., for them. In three or four days the poor jamindar spends away Rs. 100 or 150 after the rasai which he had saved to pay the Government taxes. How the Police earn the extra Rs. 80 lacs to one crore. I now give few examples. First example I give from Thar Parkar and Nawabshah. A certain gentleman started life as a police munshi on Rs. 15 or Rs. 20 a month. By slow degrees he rose to be Deputy Superintendent of Police——

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: Hindu or Mussalman ?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: His name is Mr. Tejumal. He is well known to you and you know what kind of a man he is. To-day in Hyderabad town and district, he owns landed property worth Rs. 20,000 to Rs. 50,000. He owns about one thousand acres of land. Even if an acre of land cost, let us say, Rs. 100, in fact an acre costs Rs. 150 to Rs. 200, his landed property must have cost him Rs. 1,00,000 at least. This land does not stand in his own name but is on the names of his son, wife and other near relations. That officer had his family and children to bring up and educate, he had to pay for all the daily requirements of clothes, food and so on, and yet we see him acquire all these vast properties during his regime in the Police Department. Could the Honourable the Home Member give us any idea of how this officer came by his wealth ? This officer's whole service is in the districts round about Hyderabad city. Many complaints were made to remove him from there. Yet he is still kept there.

Now about Khipro Taluka : Zilla Tharparkar. One Deputy Superintendent of Police by name Mr. Tehilram about 1½ to 2 years ago led false charges on minor Mahomed Amin alias Kabalpali of murder and frightened him that he can only be let off if he will part with his land. Due to this fright he gave away his 700 to 800 acres of land to one bhaiband. This land is now cultivated by the brother of Mr. Tehilram. This case is now before the Commissioner in Sind—I believe the Honourable the Home Member had an application made to him when he was Commissioner in Sind—in which a Mussalman minor has been deprived of about 700 to 800 acres.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I hope the honourable member realises his responsibility in making these statements.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: Yes, Sir. These are all matters which have reached the Manager of Court of Wards and the Commissioner in Sind in writing, and I am not mentioning anything that is secret or not known to the Honourable the Home Member himself. These 700 to 800 acres have been transferred to some other person at a nominal cost of Rs. 15 to Rs. 20 per acre, when as a matter of fact an acre cost at least Rs. 100 to Rs. 150. By this rate the land is worth at least Rs. 70,000 to 80,000. I trust the Honourable the Home Member will take steps to see that all this land is returned to the minor boy without delay. This is all on record in the Commissioner in Sind's office.

I give another instance of the Nawabshah district. The above mentioned two police officers went there to canvass to get the appointment to one of their relation as Chief Officer or Engineer of that District Local Board. What right they had to leave their own Districts and to go to Nawabshah district to bring their pressure on the members of the Board. I have no personal enmity with any one. These are true facts. If any Muslim officer did so, surely Government would suspend him or transfer him elsewhere in Maharashtra. Muslim officers have been transferred but no Hindu has been transferred because the Government is afraid to do so.

Mr. S. S. TOLANI: Who backs them up?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: They have money, newspapers, propaganda, and supporters everywhere. I appeal to the Honourable the Home Member that the system of bribery which now obtains on an extensive scale especially in this district will be brought under control and that officers—Hindu or Muslim—who are found guilty of bribery are duly and adequately punished.

In Karachi city itself, an Executive Engineer of the Public Works Department made an attempt to check bribe in his own office. (I believe his name was Mr. Herbert.) When a contractor came for payment, he used to call him in his office room and asked the Contractor whether he paid any bribe to the accountant. When the Engineer was satisfied he handed over the cheque to the contractor and instructed him to go out by the other door.

In Upper Sind Frontier, at Jacobabad Police zuloom is great. People there are frighten by hearing the name of police. There were 5 or 6 murders in last 5 or 6 months. How did these murders take place? I want to explain two or three out of those 5 or 6 murders. In taluka Thul one Munari's bullocks were robbed. He went after the thieves. He was attacked by them with hatchets and lohars. Poor Munari died before he was brought to the hospital. One man has been caught but the case has not yet been filed by the Police. Second case. One cow of Mahomed Din was robbed at Kandhkot, who followed the robbers to get back his cow. He was attacked by the thieves with hatchets and lohars, poor man died on the spot. Jirga has not yet decided the case. One man by caste Jing lost his horse. His fate was the same. One thief got imprisonment. Probably the Honourable the Home Member knows something about these murders and how they occurred. The Jirgas which mete out justice there should have on it respectable and responsible men who can mete out justice or else there should be a Judge appointed to give justice within his jurisdiction. The local M.L.C. may also with advantage be appointed on that jirga if that is at all possible.

In conclusion, I request the Honourable the Home Member, who was once a Collector in Sind and also Commissioner in Sind, to give great attention to all these complaints brought before this House and remove the zuloom of the police on the poor people of Sind.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL AZIZ (Central Division): Sir, I have to make a few remarks regarding the statement made by my honourable friend from Poona concerning the Parola affair to which he has referred.

It appears to me that the facts which he mentioned are not correct. Parola is 20 miles away from Dhulia. I have been there and I have obtained information from its inhabitants and I have also received applications from people of that town. Had the description of the existing state of things in Parola, given by my honourable friend Mr. Gokhale, been correct, then certainly I would not have objected to the request which he has made to the Government for withdrawing the police force, but at present the tension between the Hindus and Mahomedans there continues to the same extent as it was two years back. The Mahomedan population which was there two or three years ago has not yet returned.

[Mr. Shaikh Abdul Aziz]

Nearly half of the Mahomedans who left the place on account of the fear of boycott and the acute tension between the two communities, have not returned yet. The boycott is being continued still and not in a less degree than it existed two or three years back. Mahomedans are being persecuted as before, and if Government remove the police, the peace which is at present existing will not be maintained. I would request Government that at least the police force kept at present there should be maintained for some time more till the relations between the two communities grow friendly.

Mr. H. B. CLAYTON: Sir, I understand that my honourable friend Mr. Gokhale also raised this question of the police at Parola, and the last speaker has again referred to it. I am sorry I was not in the House when my honourable friend Mr. Gokhale was speaking; otherwise, I should no doubt have been able to answer his point with greater clearness. But I understand that he raised the perfectly legitimate point that an extra force of police is still maintained in Parola at the cost of the inhabitants, although for more than a year or two years nearly there has been no open outbreak of violence between these two communities who, unfortunately, in this case, as in other cases, are at variance. Well, I consider that position perfectly legitimate, and with that object I myself took the opportunity, quite recently during my tour in Khandesh, to pay a visit to Parola, after warning the parties concerned as well as I could that I was coming to Parola with the express object of discussing this problem and endeavouring to see whether some settlement could not be arrived at. I am perfectly sure that my honourable friend Mr. Gokhale will absolve Government and the local officers of any desire to retain that police force there, or anywhere else, for one moment after they are satisfied that it is reasonably possible to remove the force without exposing the town to a danger which it cannot legitimately be exposed to. Well, Sir, in this case I do not propose to go into the details of the unfortunate quarrel at all. But I must say that I was satisfied from my local enquiries that there is still a very considerable danger of a very serious outbreak in Parola town. Unfortunately, Parola town is not the only town, either in the Bombay Presidency or in India, where such a position exists, and, if I may say so, I think that it must be recognised that it is impossible to go on maintaining indefinitely a force of police, purely because there is the danger of a communal outbreak. It is not fair to one party or the other. The time must come, in my opinion—I speak without any authority from Government, I am expressing my personal opinion—the time must eventually come when that force must be withdrawn, and the only question is, when? Of course, the happiest solution would be that the force should be withdrawn by reason of an agreement between the parties concerned. That would be a happy solution, and I would ask the last speaker and any other gentleman of either community who has influence in Parola to do his very best to smooth the relations that exist there, and endeavour to let us arrive at some settlement by agreement, because, as I have said—and I say it again even at the danger of repeating myself—all that the district officers and the district administration can wish is to withdraw that police force as soon as they possibly can with a reasonable margin of safety. The former arrangements in Parola have been, I think I am right in saying from as far back as there are records, that during the Balaji festival it has been the custom to send a small force of police from the headquarters, Dhulia, when Dhulia was the headquarters, and since the separation, from Jalgaon, to Parola to keep order during that important festival. That can be done for the 10 or 15 days of the festival without asking either the Bombay Government or the people of Parola to pay an extra charge therefor. What cannot be done, and I think this will be admitted by my honourable friend Mr. Gokhale, is to detach a force of 25 to 30 police permanently from the district police force and attach it to the ordinary police force that is in Parola, just because that danger exists. As I said, I am not authorised to make any statement, but I do feel, from the discussion I had both with the people of Parola and with the local officers, that some step forward must be made, and I have set certain wheels agoing, which I hope will have the result of enabling the Honourable the Home Member to tell the House in June that he has found it possible to withdraw the force. [Honourable Members: Hear, hear.] I hope I am not unduly optimistic—I may be of course—but I may say that I sincerely hope that that will be the case, and I think that it would be better for me not to say here or in any other place exactly the methods I have adopted for that purpose.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: On a point of information. When the Commissioner went to Parola, did he find that the same tension which existed before exists now?

Mr. H. B. CLAYTON: If I may say so, I regret to say I have. I found that the tension was very great indeed, and therefore the retention at present of the additional police force appeared to me to be absolutely justified.

Dr. V. G. VAISHAMPAYAN: Sir, I take this opportunity of making one observation regarding the Police administration. The undertrials who are in police custody come, I think, under this head. These undertrials are very severely handled by the police when they are in their custody. So, I hope the Honourable the Home Member will take a note of this, and will be kind enough to take steps in this matter, as he has done regarding the lathi charges. With these remarks, I resume my seat.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District): Sir, I am very glad to hear the speech of the honourable member the Commissioner of the Central Division. As he has gone to Parola personally to enquire into the matter, I must accept his word, and I entirely agree with him when he says that both the communities should come to an amicable agreement, so that Government would be pleased to take the necessary action to remove the additional police force at present stationed there. I think now it is the bounden duty of my honourable friend Shaikh Abdul Aziz and of myself to go to Parola and induce both the parties to come to an amicable settlement. As the honourable member the Commissioner,

[Rao Bahadur D. R. Patil]

Central Division, has said very rightly, the Honourable the Home Member will then see his way to remove the additional police force in June, if both the parties come to an amicable settlement. With this assurance I am quite pleased.

(After recess.)

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Sir, I am not here to question the propriety or otherwise of the promulgation of Ordinances or to quarrel with the views of the Bombay Cabinet in their administrative capacity. I have not said that there is no emergency this year. The Secretary of State is reported to have stated that there is no emergency outside Bombay and that at the end of this month law and order will be restored. So, I think that there will be no necessity to entertain any additional police. I think that the ordinary police will be quite enough to maintain law and order in this Presidency. My point is that there is no money to protect ourselves. Diseased persons cannot be given medicine without charging them for it. Government have no money to give for the expansion of primary and secondary education. We all know that the country is poor. Even the hidden gold has already left the shores of India. So, there is very little to be protected by the police. There is very little for the police to do at such extraordinary cost. We can ill-afford to pay that large amount.

We were told yesterday that the school teachers can forgo one or two rupees in their salary of Rs. 15 or Rs. 20 a month. I think there is force in what the honourable member from Nasik (Rao Bahadur Pradhan) said that there was scope for a cut in the Police Department. I think not only the high officers but also the ordinary constables can well-afford to forgo something in their salary.

I come to my district. Last year the police were mercilessly utilised to exact the arrears of revenue in Kanara. This year, we have a sympathetic Collector and Assistant Collectors who are recently transferred to our district. I trust they will generously handle the poor ignorant agriculturists. I should think that the police in Kanara can best be utilised for the protection of agriculturists from wild beasts. The wild beasts take away the crops, lives and cattle of the agriculturists and there are no hunters employed by the Forest Department. My request to Government is that a rule may be framed by which a policeman should kill one or two wild beasts a year in Kanara. But for the civil disobedience movement there is absolutely no work for the police. Thefts are rarely detected. Murders are scarcely detected and, if at all any murder is detected, the accused is let off in the sessions for want of evidence. Then, there is the regulation of the motor traffic. As a rule, there are more passengers in buses for hire than the licence allows. If the police officer is sanjaved, there is the end of all trouble. There are many accidents due to motor bus traffic. These accidents are hardly prevented. The drivers who are responsible for the accidents are let off on the ground that they are not to blame. These are the duties done by the police in Kanara. So, I think, so far as Kanara is concerned, the police officers, if they can use their guns, must be made to kill wild animals and protect the agriculturists from their ravages. So far as the political movement is concerned, there is very little for the police officers to maintain law and order in the Presidency proper in view of the present days under the ordinances.

Mr. M. M. KARBHARI (Thana and Bombay Suburban Districts): Sir, with great misgivings for fear of being misunderstood I am trying to offer a few criticisms on this cut. Sir, I recognise that of all the departments for the good of the country, perhaps the most necessary and essential department is the Police Department. If I can compare this department with any part of the body, they are the eyes. That is to say, they form the eyes of the administration of the Government. As such, the police force should be brought under the common law, that is to say, their actions and behaviour ought to be brought under the common law, that is, the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure. But at the same time, in order to meet an emergency or a serious situation, that may crop up, Government have got certain powers to promulgate ordinances and so on. Naturally, these police officers who would otherwise come under the operation of the common law are exempted from the operation of the common law, in view of the fact that they have been given certain special powers. I do not know how far this honourable House will be in a position to sanction this grant, which is asked for under Police. What I mean to say is that immediately these emergency powers are given to them, the police force changes its character into a semi-military force. Under these circumstances, I think that the Governor in Council has ample powers under the Act to certify provision for the maintenance of this force and that it is beyond the pale of this House to accord sanction to this grant. That is the view I take. I hope the Honourable the Home Member will explain to what extent we will be justified in giving our sanction to this grant, when the force is charged with special powers.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: What powers?

Mr. M. M. KARBHARI: I am asked what that power is. I know that in ordinary course, any policeman who beats a culprit will be liable under the common law. I think that the power now given to them, if judicially examined, is beyond common law. That is what I want to suggest. My second point is that this police force, which forms part of the administration, should be and must be guarded against corruption. Sir, we know that in a country like India, where there are layers and layers of societies and when there is ample exploitation of one class by another, when it is an admitted fact that there is disunion and disaffection among the people themselves, it is natural for one to suspect that the force which is recruited from such classes may also be reasonably expected to fall a prey to these, our deficiencies and disabilities. If, in the ordinary times, it has been found necessary by Government to keep a vigilant watch over this force, so that the administration may not suffer, is it not all the more necessary to increase the same two-fold now when this force is entrusted with special powers which should be judiciously exercised for the benefit of the public as well as of Government? Is it not likely that they may, in the hope that their actions may be praised and may be approved, commit excesses either through over-zealousness or through reasons which I just now described? So, my point is, if it is necessary for Government to give this power, it is in their interest as well as of the public that they should side by side have a department of their own to keep strict vigilance on the action of this force, instead of allowing the public to complain about them.

After having said this, I will come to another point. It is the question of taxation, which is very important. The police force which is maintained is for the presidency. It is maintained from the common revenues of the presidency. The provision that is made for the Bombay city is from the common revenue of the presidency. If proper adjustment has not been made between the Central and the Provincial Government with regard to the taxes recovered by the Central Government from the city, may I know why the presidency as a whole should be made to pay for the maintenance of the police in the city, which is more to the advantage of the Central Government? Bombay is a purely commercial and industrial city. I believe that the attention of Government ought to be drawn to this point. In case of Bombay city expanding further and if there is an increase in the offences in Bombay city and if there is a labour trouble, the need for additional police becomes necessary, which means additional expenditure by this Government from the common revenue of the presidency. I should think that the Government should make either the Corporation or the city itself share a portion of this expenditure, if they cannot come to a settlement with the Central Government with regard to the adjustment of the taxes. I find also that the police is supplied to the railways also; and this expense also is thrown on the public. I know also some portion of the cost is recovered from the railways. It is true that the travelling public do receive protection; but at the same time, through that protection, the public are encouraged to travel more and consequently the railways make greater profits. Should not this question then of recovering the expenses incurred from them also be tackled with a view to relieve the burden on the agriculturists?

Sir SHAH NAWAZ BHUTTO (Larkana District): Sir, I must admit that I am not very much enamoured of police ways in general, nor can I say that the system is perfect. At the same time, I am very much amused at the criticism that we have the opportunity of hearing from our honourable friends. Sir, it is not possible for any of the honourable members of this House to deny that there is an emergency so long as the civil disobedience movement is there and we have got turmoil in the country. There is enough evidence that there is an emergency. I do not believe that some of my honourable colleagues are quite serious in their criticism. For, I remember two years ago, when His Excellency the Governor called a conference at Poona, one of the high personages of

[Sir Shah Nawaz Bhutto]

Bombay whispered into my ears, "Why don't you suggest martial law for Bombay? Things are very bad; it is very difficult and doubtful for us to feel security under the existing conditions." I asked him, "Why don't you suggest it?" "Well," he said, "I will be stoned to death. I dare not do it." When the chance was given to that very gentleman, a very responsible public man, to express his views, he denounced Government for the lathi charge although he himself had suggested that I should advise Government to use bullets. Sir, under emergency conditions, if any special action is found necessary, I do not think it lies in the mouth of law-breakers to break the law and when punished start crying. What do they expect? Police is not a machinery to provide comforts and give them a pleasant time. I understand that the honourable members that I find in this House do not approve of the principles and practice of law-breakers as those who approve their methods find their way as Government guests to Yeravda, and not here. Here, all of us believe in the necessity for the maintenance of law and order, and as legislators it is our duty under circumstances like these to realise our responsibility.

It is quite true that there is corruption and zulum to a very great extent in the Police Department. But that is the case also with other departments. [Interruption.] I think the fault lies equally with us. The vices will exist so long as there is jealousy and rivalry among ourselves and we concern ourselves almost entirely in the affairs of others. It may be due to lack of education, although I have found that even educated persons run at the throat of one another. They will spend their whole fortune in order to injure their neighbours. There is thus a great temptation for the police, and they take advantage of this power. We must also remember that most of these officers are Indians; almost all the posts, even of some of the District Superintendents of Police, are held by Indians. Some of them do resist the temptation, but the officers have to trust their subordinates who are tempted by the circumstances. The fault lies with both parties. We should get over all these difficulties; we should educate our own people. Then, I do not think we will find complaints to the extent that we do find.

Of course, I do admit that things are worse in Sind, especially in the interior, because people there are comparatively less educated than the people in the presidency proper, and therefore there is more jealousy and rivalry among the people there than in the presidency proper.

Of course, it is the duty of Government to control as best as they can. But it is very difficult for the Government at the top to set things right unless we ourselves co-operate with them and help them in improving matters.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat District): While offering a few remarks, Sir, on this particular head, I have to perform a very unpleasant duty. During the budget discussion I had to trouble the House with my own affairs and certain incidents which occurred in the Surat city and Rander. I thought that I would not be obliged to say out things once again. But only two days ago a letter was addressed to myself and my honourable colleague Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai Naik by Mr. Shivdasani, ex-M.L.C., whose seat I am occupying to-day, forwarding to us some papers received by him to bring to the notice of this honourable House or Government a few instances of the lawless methods of the police in the Surat District. I am not going to give the details of that letter here, because I propose, in consultation with my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai, to hand over the papers of representation to the proper authority—I mean the Honourable the Home Member—who could look through those instances and decide the matter. We have got several statements made by people who have fallen victims to these lawless methods of the police in the Surat District. However, I would not keep the information from the House that the undesirable methods, which are followed by the police in the Surat District, are mostly in Jalalpur Taluka, and they comprise three things: firstly, ruthless beating of Congress people or suspected Congress volunteers; secondly, withholding of food from them for more than 24 hours; and, thirdly, humiliating them by ordering them to stand on all fours—that is, bending down and catching hold of their toes—and if they refuse to obey these orders, severely beating them. These are the three main complaints received in this representation. I personally am not acquainted with this matter. I speak on the authority of the letter that has been sent to us. This is a letter from Lady Vidyagouri Ramanbhai Nilkanth, and she has urged that this matter be brought to the notice of the proper authorities for setting matters right.

With these words, I resume my seat. I will in due course hand over the papers and the statements to the Honourable the Home Member.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID (Karachi District): Sir, I had no intention to speak on the cut under discussion, but for the fact that my honourable friend Sir Shah Nawaz Bhutto has justified in some manner the corruption that is rampant in the Police Department. His chief argument in justification of the existing corruption is that to a very great extent the people themselves are responsible and since most of the officials in the department who are charged with corruption are Indians, we should put the blame more on ourselves than on Government. I confess, Sir, that there is some weight in the arguments that have been given by my honourable friend, but he has ignored one fact, as I see it, and it is this: that law and order is not a transferred subject, and there is no responsibility to this legislature so far as that subject is concerned. If the Honourable the Home Member had been responsible to this legislature for the portfolio he holds, then I think his remarks would have been correct to a very great extent. But so long as Government are not responsible to this legislature, I think it is Government who are responsible for the existence of corruption in the Police Department.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, do I understand the honourable gentleman to say that I am responsible for the corruption in the Police Department?

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID: I did not hear the honourable member.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Does the honourable member mean that I am responsible for the corruption in the Police Department? He said that so long as law and order is not transferred to an Indian Minister, Government were responsible for the existence of corruption in the police. Is he accusing me of being responsible for the corruption?

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID: I do not mean the Honourable the Home Member personally.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Thank you.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID: I mean to say that the administrative machinery being what it is and the appointment of the Home Member and those who are under his charge being beyond the control of this legislature, certainly the people cannot be blamed for the existence of corruption in the Police Department.

Sir SHAH NAWAZ BHUTTO: What about Excise and Forests?

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID: So far as Excise and Forests are concerned, I do admit that corruption exists there also. But real responsible government, a system under which the Cabinet will be responsible to the legislature, has not yet been introduced. It is not within our power to appoint or dismiss the Minister. So long as that power does not vest in this legislature, all the evils existing in the different departments cannot be attributed to us; at any rate, we cannot in any way be held responsible for the existence of those evils. I had rather expected from a man of the position of my honourable friend that he would demand on behalf of the province that the time has come when Government should take drastic measures for putting down corruption. That is one point to which I wanted to draw the attention of this honourable House.

Another question which was referred to is the question of exercise of powers under the ordinances. I hold no brief on behalf of those who have taken to law-breaking. I am not in agreement with them and I have always opposed their programme of civil disobedience. But the question of moderation does arise—whether the powers used under the ordinances are within limits or beyond what is necessary. The ordinances do not, I submit, authorise the police to use their powers with a vengeance or with immoderation; and if any complaints are laid against the conduct of the police, I do not see how that conduct can be justified simply because the police have been given certain powers under the ordinances——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: What powers have been given to the police?

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID: The power of using lathis.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Which ordinances have conferred on the police the power of using lathis?

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID: I do not know under what ordinance, but I am pointing out facts——

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: I ask what powers he is referring to?

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID: The power of dispersing crowds with lathis.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Thank you.

Mr. SHAIKH ABDUL MAJID: In this connection I may also bring to the notice of the Honourable the Home Member that some of the political prisoners, when transferred from one jail to another, are handcuffed. I submit that in the case of the men who voluntarily offer themselves for arrest and about whom no such suspicion can be entertained that they would run away from the hands of the police, it is advisable that no such treatment should be meted out. It simply embitters the feelings even of those who are not in the movement. That is one thing to which I think the Honourable the Home Member will give his best attention, because it does not help Government in any way in the restoration of a peaceful atmosphere and it unnecessarily creates bitter feelings in the minds of those who certainly think that the prisoners who are being handcuffed would never run away, because they voluntarily offer themselves for arrest and imprisonment. With these words, I resume my seat.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): I have nothing to say in reply, Sir.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, I have to thank the honourable the mover of the cut for adopting the suggestion which came from the Chair that he should defer his remarks upon the ordinances until a subsequent occasion during the session.

Several of the honourable members who spoke, referred to Parola—the honourable members Mr. Gokhale, Mr. Shaikh Abdul Aziz and Rao Bahadur Patil. A reply to them has been given by the honourable member the Commissioner of the Central Division. He has told them, speaking on his own authority, that the punitive police force will be removed if possible by July or any time when Government think it safe to remove it. I should be very glad on behalf of Government to recommend it the moment we feel justified in removing the punitive police from Parola which is costing Rs. 15,000 or so. But responsibility for the preservation of law and order rests upon us, and until we are satisfied that a situation has arisen in that place which would justify the removal of the punitive police force, we shall have to keep it on. As the honourable member the Commissioner suggested, it is rather through local effort and through the co-operation of the two communities that we can arrive at a satisfactory conclusion than by any direct action on the part of Government.

The honourable member Rao Bahadur Pradhan asked why there had been no cut in the pay of police sub-inspectors. This question was very carefully considered not only by the Bombay Government but by all other local Governments, and it was suggested that there should be some uniform procedure in this respect. All local Governments were in favour, in view of the magnificent services rendered by them, of exempting the police force of the rank of sub-inspectors and lower ranks from any cut in their pay.

The honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni seemed to think that we paid more to our police in Bombay than any other Presidency. I am not quite sure what the scale of pay for each grade in the other Presidencies is, but I have the figures showing the average cost per annum of policemen including officers in the three Presidencies. In the Bombay Presidency it is Rs. 540 per man. In the Madras Presidency it is Rs. 577 and in Bengal it is Rs. 642. In Burma the cost per man in the police department comes to no less than Rs. 869. We are paying very much less per head than the other three Presidencies. I hope this will satisfy the honourable member that we are not more extravagant than other provinces in the matter of expenditure on the police.

The next speaker was the honourable member Mr. Baloch, who spoke in a language unintelligible to me for the most part. I gathered he was referring to some gambling experience of his youth when he used to visit opium dens and other low resorts. He complained also a great deal of the zulum and corruption in the police and, I think, some other departments. I am not going to contend that zulum and corruption do not exist in the police department. They do. Zulum and corruption exist in every sphere of Government. I do not think Government can possibly be blamed for that.

My honourable friend Mr. Shaikh Abdul Majid suggested the transfer of the Home Department from my control to that of one of my honourable colleagues to my right and said that such transfer would remove all forms of corruption. I have my doubts about it. If I return to India when we have provincial autonomy, I should be very much interested to see whether any complaints about corruption still remain.

The honourable member Dr. Vaishampayan made some remarks about under-trial prisoners. I am not quite sure about his remarks, but if he will state his grievances in writing to me, I can assure him that I will have the matter enquired into.

My honourable friend Mr. Gangoli again said that the emergency police were not required. I have replied to that on the motion for a cut under the emergency police department, and I am not going to repeat what I said then. He also made an extremely interesting suggestion—whether it was quite seriously meant or not I am not sure—that every policeman in Kanara should be deputed to kill one wild beast a year. That is a most excellent suggestion, which I shall be glad to adopt on behalf of Government if the honourable member will organise shikar parties and arrange to pay the expenses of the policemen, and I am quite sure the policemen will enjoy the experience just as much as any one else.

The honourable member Mr. Karbhari stated that the police have been given certain emergency powers which they are abusing. I asked the honourable gentleman to say what powers, and he replied, powers to disperse crowds by lathis. That has been repeated by my friend

[Mr. G. A. Thomas]

Mr. Shaikh Abdul Majid. He also said that extraordinary powers were given to the police and I asked what those extraordinary powers were. He said that he was referring to the powers to disperse crowds by lathis. I rather fancy that he was merely repeating what the honourable member Mr. Karbhari said. I would like the honourable member Mr. Karbhari to say under what ordinances, or under what section of what ordinance, the police are given powers to disperse crowds by lathis. His answer is, "I do not know." The police have always had the power to disperse crowds ever since the honourable gentleman was born and long before. It is one of the duties of the policemen to maintain order and, occasionally in the maintenance of order they have to disperse crowds. Policemen ought to have some weapon. The two weapons except their hands are lathis and firearms. The usual practice is that when the crowd gets out of control the police use lathis to disperse it and, if lathis are ineffectual, they have to fall back upon firearms. But the ordinances confer no special powers on the police for the dispersal of crowds, which are dispersed under the ordinary procedure laid down under the Police Act and the regulations under it. The honourable member Mr. Karbhari knows that quite well.

He makes another very interesting suggestion that Government should create a new department to watch the police. This is certainly a novel suggestion for retrenchment, "Quis custodiet ipsos custodes", with a vengeance. A new department to control the police! I should like to know how he is going to organise that department. Does he want it to consist of Indians or Europeans or both? Who is going to pay for it? If he puts up concrete proposals, I should be very glad to lay them before the House if I am here for the next budget session.

He also asked: why should the Bombay mofussil pay for the Bombay City police? I think he suggested that the Municipality should do so. There is one member—or rather two members—of the Municipality in this House. They do not seem to welcome the suggestion very much because they kept silent. Of course, you must remember that this instrument cuts both ways. We are now trying to get from the Government of India what we consider to be our just dues—our proper share of the income-tax. Income-tax paid by the Bombay Presidency is mostly contributed, I think, by Bombay residents. If Bombay City has to bear the cost of its police, it would be entitled to the lion's share of the income-tax, which would exceed the cost of its police. But this is a question which obviously cannot be discussed under a token cut in the Police Administration.

My honourable friend Dr. Dixit, I am sorry to say, made mention of a letter which proceeded from some person and another letter from some other person referring to certain lawless acts on the part of the police and said that he would hand it over to the Home Member to be enquired into. The Home Member will no doubt enquire into these matters. The honourable member, however, did not disclose what the exact contents were and it is unfair to bring such allegations without chapter and verse on the floor of this House.

[Mr. G. A. Thomas]

The only other point that I think was mentioned was about the handcuffing of persons removed to jails. Well, we do not recognise political prisoners as such. A man who commits an offence breaks the law and is a prisoner; and prisoners transferred from one jail to another, I think, are handcuffed if they are likely to show signs of violence or attempt to escape. Otherwise, I think, they are not handcuffed. But if he can quote any specific cases in which so-called political prisoners removed from one jail to another or from a police court to the jail were handcuffed when they ought not to have been handcuffed, I should be very glad to enquire into them.

Mr. V. N. JOG: I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Original demand put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 22,84,000 under 25-Jails and Convict Settlements.

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 59,31,000 under 24-Administration of Justice—Reserved.

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 90,58,000 under 22-General Administration, except Heads of Provinces—Ministers—Reserved.

Question proposed.

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City): Sir, I beg to move:

"Reduce by Rs. 100—22-B—Legislative Bodies—Provincial Legislative Councils—Total Demand—Rs. 1,52,000 (C. E. page 92)."

Sir, if you refer to page 92, you find that the revised estimate for the current year under this head is Rs. 1,93,000, whereas the budget provision for the next year is Rs. 1,52,000. When I received this budget, I found that mostly the reduction was in travelling allowance, the figure for which was Rs. 50,000. For the current year it was Rs. 91,000 and now it has been reduced by Rs. 41,000 for the next year. The House knows that the rate of travelling allowance paid to honourable members has been reduced, but that would not have accounted for this Rs. 41,000. The matter was elucidated when His Excellency the Governor in his address to the House on the first day of the session stated that it was proposed to delete one of the two Poona sessions of the Legislative Council. I therefore thought it was desirable to raise a discussion on this point in the House in order to find out whether it would be advisable and desirable not to have two Poona sessions of the Legislative Council.

There are certain considerations which must be taken into account on this question. In 1924 when I came into this House, during the budget session six days were given for non-official business ; in the July session six days were given for non-official business, and in the October session I believe five days were given for non-official business, making a total of about 17 days during the whole year. In the following year some change was made and in the budget session the days for non-official business were curtailed to two, but that was made up by giving 9 days for non-official business in the July session. During those three years, honourable members had for non-official business about 16 to 17 days during the whole year. If one whole session is cut out, practically we shall be having only about 8 or 9 days during the whole year for the discussion of non-official business, a reduction of about 50 per cent. of the time allotted up to now for non-official business.

There used to be an interval of about four months between two Council sessions. Now, if there are going to be only two sessions during a year, the period of six months will elapse before honourable members could get a chance of bringing to the notice of Government any grievances of their constituencies. That I submit is a very long period and it is not a desirable thing. First of all, the number of days allotted to honourable members for non-official business has been reduced ; secondly, the period between two sessions is lengthened. Then there is another difficulty. As you are aware, Sir, when any honourable member wishes to introduce a Bill in this House, he is merely allowed to introduce it during one session and the first reading of the Bill is not allowed during that very session, with the result that the first reading has to be postponed to the following session, which may take place after six months or if the budget session has not got a sufficient number of days, the period may be prolonged to one year. That also, I submit, Sir, is not a very desirable thing.

The only ground on which I believe Government propose to reduce the number of sessions of this Council is retrenchment, but whether that is a sufficiently strong and cogent ground I do not know, in the light of the three considerations which I have placed before this House. In any case, if it is decided to reduce the number of sessions, I suggest that a larger number of days must be allowed for non-official business during each of the sessions that are actually held and the honourable members must be given the right, when they introduce a Bill, to move the first reading of it at that time. Otherwise, Sir, it may take even two years to pass even a small Bill which an honourable member may want to introduce in this House. Under those circumstances, in order to raise this discussion on this question, I move this cut.

Question proposed.

Mr. A. N. SURVE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I wish to offer a few remarks as regards the discontinuance of the supply of some of the administration reports of Government Departments to the honourable members of this House——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I was wondering whether that subject could come in under this head. If the honourable member refers to page 92, he will find that the head G-Provincial Legislative Councils is limited to certain sub-heads, and the supply of certain reports and papers is not a sub-head under that head G-Provincial Legislative Councils.

[The President]

Mr. A. N. SURVE: Am I permitted to lay my grievance before the Council or am I not ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: No. The head "Printing and Stationery" has, I think, already been voted upon. At any rate, this is out of place on the present motion.

Mr. A. N. SURVE: My submission is this. At present the cut relates to "Legislative Bodies."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: With the limitations mentioned on page 92 of the White Book.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, I have referred to this subject at the time of the general discussion of the budget. I for one do not think that the second session at Poona should be done away with. I think it is only with a view to retrench expenditure that the second Poona session is to be discontinued. A few days ago, in reply to a question, the cost of the Poona session has been given; the travelling allowance comes to Rs. 15,000 and the other cost about Rs. 4,000 and odd. But if the second session is not held in Poona, the whole of this cost is not likely to be saved, because if only one session is to be held, we shall have to increase the number of days for it, and if that is done, the halting allowance of the honourable members for their longer stay in Poona will be increased, and the temporary office establishment also will have to be maintained to that extent. Therefore, some reduction will have to be made in the total amount of saving. After all, the cost of even one session may come to about Rs. 10,000 or so. So, I ask, Sir, considering the smallness of the extra cost involved if two sessions are held, whether it is worth while forgoing the advantages which the public will get by the holding of a second session in Poona. Considering the facilities that would be provided by the holding of two sessions in Poona, it is rather necessary that there should be a second session there this year as usual. It will be remembered that when this side of the House complained that in the budget session only two days are allowed for non-official business, an assurance was given by His Excellency at that time that in the Poona sessions the days for non-official business would be increased. Now if the second session is not held, it will mean that there will be less days for non-official as well as official business. It may be said that the one session should be a longer one than usual, but I submit, Sir, that we find that, as the days pass on, the interest in the Council begins to flag, if the session is an unduly long one, and some of the honourable members get tired of attending too many days during one session; on account of their various other engagements they absent themselves. Even in the budget session, which is a long one, as it is compulsory on us to go on with the budget for a certain fixed number of days, we have necessarily to stay here. But when particular subjects which are rather the special matters of some members are over, the interest begins to flag, and we find that the House is thin. Under these circumstances, it would be better to have two shorter sessions than one long and continuous one. Therefore, I submit that it is a matter of only a few thousand rupees extra expenditure, and taking into consideration the overwhelming advantages which this side of the House will get, I think that the idea of doing away with the second session in Poona should not be pursued.

My honourable friend has already referred to the subject of non-official business. The real difficulty is with regard to legislation. It was suggested that if permission was given for the introduction and the first reading of Bills at the same time, it would meet the case. But I think that concession also cannot solve the difficulty, because, under the procedure followed at present, when there is on the agenda a motion for the introduction of a Bill, no copies of the Bill are supplied to honourable members. We cannot know what it is all about, unless we go to the honourable member concerned and ask him what the Bill is. It is only when a motion for the first reading is to be made that copies of Bills are sent to us. So, if permission is allowed to introduce a Bill and move its first reading at the same session, we shall not have any time to get ourselves acquainted with the subject-matter of the Bills, and the public also will not be quite conversant with the subject. Therefore, I submit that there must be an interval between the two sessions usually held at Poona. Otherwise, what happens is that if a motion for the introduction of a Bill is made, the first reading cannot be taken up in the budget session, because the number of days for non-official business is very limited, which will mean that the first reading could only be considered at the next session. With these remarks, I support the motion.

Rao Bahadur S. K. BOLE: Sir, I rise to support the cut moved by my honourable friend Mr. Hoosenally Rahimtoola. Sir, the honourable members who want to move some Bills would be very much handicapped by this arrangement. This is retrenchment, I think, in the wrong direction—retrenchment with a vengeance. Sir, it is only in the Poona sessions that honourable members get more days for private business. In all they get, I think, some 10 or 12 days, and the Poona sessions is the only time for moving Bills and resolutions. So members who want to move Bills would be very much handicapped if only one session is held in Poona. As has been pointed out by my honourable friend Mr. Hoosenally Rahimtoola, and I am going to repeat it, in the first session we have to introduce a Bill, and in the session after that we have to move the first reading of the Bill. If the second session in Poona is not held, then the first reading will have to be moved in the budget session, when there are only two days allowed for non-official business, and if that item is not reached, then it would be put off to the next July session. That means a delay of a year or more.

[Rao Bahadur S. K. Bole]

The other thing, as my honourable friend has said, is that if they want to reduce the number of sessions, then they should give more days for non-official business, and give the right to honourable members to introduce a Bill and move its first reading in the same session. But I do not know whether that would be possible, because before moving the first reading of a Bill, the Bill is required to be printed and circulated to honourable members. That would not be possible in the same session. I therefore submit that, under these circumstances, the second session in Poona is quite necessary. I do not know whether the Honourable the Finance Member has decided to do away with the second session, but if he has, I hope he will reconsider the matter and give more time for non-official members to move their Bills and resolutions, which they want to do in order to ventilate their grievances. With these words, I support the cut.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Mr. President, we fully appreciate the difficulties that have been pointed out by the honourable mover of the cut as well as by his supporters. Sir, all these days honourable members on the opposite benches have shown themselves very keen on retrenchment and economy, and now when we make a suggestion for retrenchment or economy they oppose it, and they have opposed it because they say there are certain difficulties. Now, I will try to meet those difficulties, when I trust the honourable mover of the cut will withdraw his motion.

Sir, the honourable mover's first complaint was that if one of the two Poona sessions is cut out, there will be very little time for non-official business. Well, we undertake to give honourable members longer time for non-official business than they are getting at present. Now, the honourable member opposite to me (Mr. Jog) should have been consistent. He wanted longer time, but he said at the same time that if longer time is given for one session, members will get tired and run away. Is that fair to us? We try to meet their point of view. They want longer time, and we say we will give them longer time for non-official business; but the honourable member says that if that is done, they will get tired and run away. That means they do not want longer time for non-official business.

The second point was that when a non-official member makes a motion for the introduction of a Bill, Government should not object to its first reading being taken up at the same session. Well, if honourable members were to refer to the agenda for the current session (I have not got a copy of it with me just at the moment), they would find that there are not less than 12 or 13 Bills, to introduce which leave will be asked in this session, and they will all come up in the Poona session for the first reading. I think if honourable members deal with all the readings of these Bills, it will be sufficient work for the legislature to do. All these Bills will come up for the first reading at the Poona session. Naturally some of them will be referred to select committees. Honourable members know that the select committees take some time——

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: The Karachi Municipal Bill?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: The Karachi Municipal Bill will take some time yet.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member wants to say that if a Bill is introduced in the Poona session, it cannot come up for three readings till nearly a year after.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: There is so much legislation on the agenda which will be more than sufficient for honourable members to deal with in the Poona session. Let us finish the agenda we have. What is the good of introducing Bills without their being completely finished?

Mr. V. N. JOG: What about the second reading?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: After the first reading, they will be referred to select committees, the select committees will take considerable time on important Bills before they are taken up for the second reading. Besides, if there is urgent legislation, Government may call a short session of the Council. I think we will be able to save about Rs. 20,000 by having only one session in Poona. Honourable members will not be inconvenienced in any way in regard to their unofficial work. They will get a larger number of days for unofficial work in the Poona session.

An Honourable MEMBER: July?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Whenever it is.

Rao Bahadur S. K. BOLE: What will be the fate of the Bills introduced in Poona?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: There are already 12 or 13 Bills for the first reading. That will be more than enough work for the session. I think this should satisfy the mover of the cut, and I trust he will withdraw his motion.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District): Sir, I am sorry I have to differ from the view expressed by the Honourable the Leader of the House. You know that in the February session we have three days for non-official business, it being a budget session. There are only two other sessions one in July and the other in October in Poona. There we get sufficient time to move resolutions and discuss Bills. There is also Government business even in these two sessions. Let us see how many days we get for non-official business—three days in this session, 6 or 7 days in the July session and 7 or 8 days in the October session. That is to say, in all we get from 15 to 18 days in a year for non-official business. We have got so many grievances to ventilate. Is it not necessary that the non-official members should have the liberty to ventilate the grievances of the people at least for one month in a whole year? Even if you calculate the total number of days allotted to non-official business, we do not get more than 15 to 18 days in a year. That number of days is quite inadequate. The Honourable the Leader of the House stated that Government would be saving Rs. 25,000 by abolishing October session. That is false economy. You may economise. I do not say "No". The Legislative Council is the only place where we can freely ventilate our grievances. When days are cut down——

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We are not curtailing the days for non-official business.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: How many days shall we get for the July session?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: You will get sufficient number of days.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: It is a vague term. I am not satisfied with that., If the Government were to hold a session in July, it will not be more than a fortnight. If some days are taken out of it for Government business, we will get 5 or 6 days. If the October session also is stopped, the result will be that we will get three days in the February session and a week or so in the July session. That is to say, we will get 10 days in a year.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: In the July session honourable members got 9 days.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: We will get in all 10 to 12 days. I submit, Sir, that to curtail October session is, as I said before, false economy. I appeal to Government to reconsider the question and grant the request of the representatives of the people on this side of the House that they should not abolish the October session. I hope Government will kindly accept that request. We are prepared to meet the Government in various ways. The saving of Rs. 25,000 will not be much. In the interest of the people I hope Government will reconsider the question and not abolish the October session. I appeal to Government that there should be two sessions in July and October. Suppose some Bills are introduced now, they will be ripe for the first reading in the July session, when they will be referred to the select committee. If the October session is abolished, they will have to come for the second reading in the February session when there will be very little time, that being a budget session. These are the difficulties which we experience. I hope Government will be pleased to reconsider the question and see that none of the sessions is curtailed.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Sir, after all, the difficulty is not so great. The Legislative Council is the only forum to ventilate our grievances from all parts of the presidency. Please let us not be deprived of that forum. Let the Government also be helped in this matter. I would simply submit that we must forgo the travelling allowance and the daily allowance for the third session. By this means the Government side would be satisfied and we will have the third session also.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: There will be many ready to forgo.

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City): Sir, the Honourable the Leader of the House has dealt with all the points that have been raised, except one, and that was the length of interval between two sessions. I have made the point that by having two sessions, the interval between the two sessions is very long and it takes a longer time for non-official members to bring to the notice of Government the grievances of their constituencies. If there are three sessions, the interval between two sessions will be three or four months; whereas, if there are two sessions, the interval will be 6 months. So, it is a longer time before which honourable members can bring to the notice of Government the grievances of their constituencies.

The Honourable the Leader of the House charged the House with not co-operating with Government in the matter of retrenchment. He said something about it to the effect that when Government wanted to retrench, the members of the House did not like. Look at the way retrenchment is carried out. They held an extra session in November for nothing. If they had joined that special session to the budget session, they could have made a great saving. I submit that non-official members, when they come to this House, come for the definite purpose of bringing to the notice of Government the grievances of their constituencies. They must be given ample opportunity. The Honourable the Leader of the House said that there were 13 Bills for first reading, which will come up for first reading in the Poona session and that these 13 Bills would fully occupy the non-official days. What will happen to the resolutions, if these 13 Bills were to occupy the whole time allotted for non-official business? I therefore request Government to reconsider this question and, as far as possible, give a third session.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Sir, I would just bring to the notice of this honourable House the exact words used by His Excellency in his speech:

> "I have no doubt, Gentlemen, you will also be glad to have an opportunity to make a contribution of your own towards retrenchment, and this we propose to give you by asking you to forgo the October session of the Legislative Council this year."

Mark the words:

> "As far as can be foreseen at present, this can be done without sacrifice of any urgent business, but if any sufficiently urgent business subsequently arises, we shall of course arrange to cancel this decision and hold the October session as usual."

So, His Excellency used those words guardedly. Honourable members are aware that during the third year, when the Council is to be dissolved for elections, there is no third session, and no complaints are raised on that account. The honourable member from Bombay (Mr. Hoosenally Rahimtoola) raises an objection on the ground that there is a wide gap between one session and another and honourable members will not be able to ventilate people's grievances during that interval. May I point out that even now the intervals between the three sessions are not even? We meet in July, and within two months again we meet in October, and after that if there are any grievances they have to wait for four months until we meet in February. If, instead of holding the session in July, we hold it in the beginning of August, the period between the two sessions will be curtailed. The Honourable the Leader of the House has already given an assurance to the honourable member that it is not the desire of Government to take away the time allotted for private work. Rs. 20,000 or Rs. 25,000 is not a small sum in these days when every pie counts. If His Excellency put forward before this House a proposal that this House should forgo the October session, but that if any emergency arose we should certainly hold it, I do not think His Excellency told this House anything so extraordinary that this House can take exception to.

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City): Sir, I respond to the appeal of the Honourable the Leader of the House and ask permission to withdraw the motion. I hope Government also will respond to our wishes and reconsider the question from the point of view put forward by the non-official members.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI (Poona District): Sir, I beg to move:

"Reduce by Rs. 100—District Administration—P-1—Pay and Allowances to District and Village Officers—Voted, Rs. 29,54,000 (C. E. page 114)."

Sir, I am very glad to see that the responsible side of this House has taken this opportunity to effect retrenchment even in the provision made for the meetings of this Council. I also wish to take this opportunity to put forward my grievances before the honourable House, the redress of which will bring a saving to Government amounting to lakhs and lakhs of rupees. I am for the reinstatement of the system of kulkarnis in place of the system of talatis. From the financial point of view, lakhs of rupees will be saved by this measure, and, at the same time, justice will be done to the aggrieved. I hope an unbiassed hearing will be given to the statement I am making before the House.

Undoubtedly, the grievance is of old standing. Resolutions were moved in the House to redress the grievance but were not passed. But they were pressed at that time for a different reason. But now that we are experiencing acute financial stringency, we should try to save as much as we can without taking away from the efficiency of the administration. If we look to the budget, we see that Rs. 17,08,339 is provided as pay of talatis, and for their allowances, etc. an extra amount of Rs. 3,02,425 is provided. Altogether Government has provided to spend on this costly system Rs. 20,17,764. Now, if we see the records of 1913, we will find that it was stated at that time that when the kulkarni system was in force the payment was Rs. 7,96,376. So, we can easily save Rs. 12,21,388. I have taken these figures from the reply given to the Honourable Mr. Brelvi in 1913. In 1914-15, the year in which the kulkarni system was abolished, Rs. 11,03,422 was given as the actual cost. If we take that figure, Rs. 9,14,342 can be saved by the reinstatement of the kulkarni system in place of the talati system. So that, whether we take the figures of 1913 or 1914-15, a saving of ten lakhs of rupees is sure to accrue to Government if they agree to effect this administrative reform. Now, this point was tackled by the Retrenchment Committee. They have given careful consideration to this problem. They have said in their report that there are certain defects in the talati system and that they can be removed. I am not going to quote the actual wording of their report; I am only giving the sum and substance of it. They say that the size of the sajas should be enlarged and curtail the number of talatis and thereby effect economy. There are some defects in this proposal also. But before I point out the defects, I must say that there is no unanimity of opinion amongst the members of the Retrenchment Committee on this point. A dissenting minute has been submitted by the honourable member Mr. Chikodi in which he has said that the kulkarni system on point of economy is worth reinstatement. I am quoting the very words from the minute of Mr. Chikodi.

"The old system of the kulkarni doing the work of Village Accountant is very cheap and efficient, and should be restored wherever talatis have been appointed."

That was what one of the members of the Retrenchment Committee said in his minute of dissent. But the majority view was altogether different. They have not given their reasons for differing from Mr. Chikodi. They have only made some suggestions and have kept silent on the point of reinstating the system.

Now, I come to the remedies suggested by the Retrenchment Committee to meet the deficit. The first remedy which they suggest is the enlargement of the size of sajas. Now, those who are well conversant with the working of the Revenue Department know that the saja system is altogether inconvenient to the revenue officers themselves and the public is also greatly inconvenienced thereby. Suppose a talati has got two or three or four villages in his saja. He is sure not to be found in any village. If a [illegible] inspector comes he will say he was in another village. Suppose a man wants an extract from the record of rights in order to file a suit which is likely to be time-barred in a day or two. If he wants it, he must submit an application to the talati in writing; otherwise his suit will not be admitted. Where is he to find the talati within a short time at his disposal? The size of the saja will be enlarged and a greater number of villages will be brought into it but the proposed change is sure to be most inconvenient both to the public and the Government alike. Thereby another difficulty is likely to come in, that is about observing regularity in paying assessment. The assessment will be recovered earlier from some villages and some other villages will have the advantage of paying the assessment later because the talati cannot visit all villages at the same time. Some people will be unnecessarily put to inconvenience thereby in these days of acute financial stringency when there is no money with the agriculturists.

Now, the Retrenchment Committee suggests that the number of talatis should be reduced. I do not agree with the view that it will not adversely affect the efficient working of the revenue department. The public are sure to be inconvenienced thereby. The talati is a rolling stone going from one village to another. We see at the present moment that the Government arrears of land revenue are accumulated from year to year. The result of handing over more villages to the charge of talatis will be that they will not hold themselves responsible for the prompt collection of revenue dues. When the kulkarni system was in existence, the revenue dues were not being accumulated in such large amounts. The talati system is mainly responsible for the accumulation of the arrears, because the talati is a rolling stone. The size of the saja is already large, and if Government is going to reduce the number of talatis, what will be the result? The public will be inconvenienced and the smooth working of the Revenue Department will also be hampered. If the opinions of the various Mamlatdars and prant officers are taken by Government in this connection, they will find that those officers will not agree with the suggestion of the Retrenchment Committee and they will tell Government that revenue collections will suffer if effect is given to the suggestion made by members in majority.

According to the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee, we find that Government have reduced the posts of talatis. Last year there were 4,023 talatis and in the present budget Government have made provision for 4,003. There is a reduction of 20 talatis. I have calculated the cost of each talati and it comes to Rs. 30 per month. Thus, at the rate Government propose to proceed, the saving will be Rs. 7,200 per year and to make up the deficit to which I have referred, namely, about 10 lakhs, I think more than 125 years will be required. This will not help the prompt solution of the problem with which we are faced. Apart from prejudicial views, I think the kulkarnis have got a very strong case for reinstatement.

Another point which I wish to bring to the notice of [illegible] House is this: the firm foundation of British rule depends upon t[illegible] people. The kulkarni families number, according to [illegible] replies to questions in the Council, 11,752 in one [illegible]. Resolution [illegible] is not a communal question. A statement was made by a responsible member in the Council that they are not inefficient. Many of them undoubtedly belong to the advanced classes, but there are others also who hold the office of kulkarnis.

I shall read an extract from that statement:

"These are not illiterate people. Many of them are Brahmins. There are some people among them who are not Brahmins, but Lingayats or Marathas, and in a few cases, even Mussalmans. But they are all literate people." (Page 882, Council Debates, 1914.)

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: What is the proportion?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Therefore, Sir, by reinstating kulkarnis in place of talatis not only one class will be favoured but so many other castes also will be benefited, and when we see the economy and advantage of administration, these minor things and minor differences ought not to be taken into consideration in the interest of administration and the good government and of the ultimate good of the subjects.

Something was said about efficiency, but if we look to the previous history and look to the judgment pronounced by an experienced revenue officer, Mr. Hatch, the efficiency of the Kulkarnis will not be questioned. They are efficient and if an opportunity is given to them, they will come forward to pass the prescribed test, and if they pass the prescribed test, they will be eligible for not only their own posts but perhaps even for somewhat higher posts. I do not mean to say, however, that they should be reinstated at the cost of efficiency and therefore I do not say that illiterate Kulkarnis should be reinstated in the place of literate talatis. Looking to the number of the talatis, as far as my experience goes, I find that out of 100 talatis only 25 have passed the vernacular final examination in my district and I should be quite ready to agree to Government prescribing the vernacular final test for the Kulkarnis as was proposed in a Government Resolution some years back. That service is both very cheap and very efficient, and only when they prove themselves qualified, then and then only will they be entitled to get those posts.

One argument may be pressed against them namely, that the present time is not a suitable time for putting forward the claims of hereditary posts or of retaining hereditary posts in the hereditary families only. I find, however, that Government have been gracious in maintaining the principle of hereditary posts in other cases and I do not therefore think that this problem will come in their way in any shape or form. In fact, in order to organise the village system, it is essential to have permanent residents of the village for the efficient working of the village administration, for the simple reason that these people have a natural and special attachment for their own villages so that they will be bound to care much for the management of the villages and also for the sanitation, If a [illegible] of their own villages than any outsiders who will not, Suppose a man [illegible] of things, care so much for the good of the villages in which [illegible] which [illegible] mere temporary sojourners for a few months or a few years. The kulkarnis are anxious to keep loyal to the present Government just as they were loyal to the predecessors of this Government, and I may even go so far as to say that just as they hold hereditary posts, similarly the quality of loyalty seems to have come to them as a hereditary quality along with their hereditary posts. I have in my possession hundreds of applications in which Kulkarnis have expressed full faith in the proclamation which was declared in 1858 by Her Majesty the Good and Gracious Queen Victoria. That proclamation has been quoted by so many men in their applications and in order to refresh the memory of the honourable members I shall quote a small portion of that proclamation :

"And it is our further will that, so far as may be, our subjects, of whatever Race or Creed, be freely and impartially admitted to office in our service, the Duties of which they may be qualified, by their education, ability, and integrity, duly to discharge...."

"And we will, in framing and administering the Law, that due regard be paid to the ancient Rights, usages and customs of India....."

[Rao Saheb P. D. Kulkarni]

These are words worthy of being taken to heart and of being acted upon by those who are now in charge of the Government. Though they were uttered in the year 1858 and though we are now in the year 1932, they have not lost their meaning——

An Honourable MEMBER: Does the honourable member confine his remarks only to the Kulkarnis of the higher castes?

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Certainly not. I include in my remarks all those who hold hereditary offices such as village Mahars, ramoshis, patils and so on. The Kulkarnis and these other watandar servants are sailing in the same boat and they will sink or swim together. There are of course some stipendiary servants, and therefore, in order to ensure a smooth working of the village administration and to put it on a sound basis, and in order that that administration may continue to be as successful as it has been in the past when it was carried on by hereditary kulkarnis and other watandar families, I am putting forward my humble views for such reception as Government may in their goodness be pleased to vouchsafe to them. The financial stringency, the all-devouring financial stringency, is still there in all its acute and severe forms, but that financial stringency should not, in my opinion which is shared by many, be allowed to come in the way of justice being done to these loyal and efficient class of hereditary kulkarnis who have rendered excellent service to Government for generations together. At least for this reason, if not for any others, this point alone is worthy of being taken into very sympathetic consideration by Government. With this view, I have made the remarks which I have and it is for this reason that I have moved my motion.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: Sir, may I say a few words?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member is evidently trying to book himself for to-morrow?

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: When the Chair is kind enough to respect my desire, I do not want to book myself in advance.

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—resumed.

Question again proposed :

Reduce by Rs. 100—District Administration—P-1—Pay and allowances to District and Village Officers Voted—Rs. 29,54,000.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District) : Mr. President, I quite appreciate the point of view expressed by the honourable the mover of the cut. He belongs to a kulkarni family, and he is perfectly justified in taking up the cause of the kulkarnis. I must submit, Sir, that when Government decided to do away with the services of the kulkarnis, for reasons which were not quite unknown to the kulkarnis themselves, the kulkarnis applied to the Collector under section 15 of the Act, which runs thus :

"The Collector may, with the consent of the holder of a watan given in writing, relieve him and his heirs and successors in perpetuity of their liability to perform service upon such conditions, whether consistent with the provisions of this Act or not, as may be agreed upon by the Collector and such holder."

Clause 3 of the section says :

"Every settlement made or confirmed under this section shall be binding upon both Government and the holder of the watan and his heirs and successors."

My submission is this, that the Government wanted to dispense with the services of the watandar kulkarnis. It was quite open to every kulkarni to accept the offer of the Government or not. Some kulkarnis wanted to be relieved of their liability to serve as kulkarnis upon certain conditions, for instance, that they would get, say, one-third of their remuneration by way of cash allowances. It is a fact, Sir, that some of the kulkarnis were willing to get themselves relieved of the liability to work as kulkarnis in consideration of these cash allowances. Now, the question arises, when such an agreement has been entered into by the kulkarnis with the Government, what are we to do ? There were certain kulkarnis who did not accept the offer of Government, and they are still working as kulkarnis. So, the position comes to this, that the kulkarnis came forward to get themselves relieved of their liability to work, in lieu of cash allowances. When that has been done, is there any room for complaint ? I do not think for a moment that there is any justification for a complaint.

Now, I know, Sir, that the remuneration that was given to the kulkarni was not quite adequate, and some of the kulkarnis appointed deputies with the desire that they should not be required to work in person, and they got something out of the remuneration that was paid to the deputies. I should like to illustrate. Suppose the remuneration of the kulkarni was

[Rao Bahadur D. R. Patil]

Rs. 100 a year. The kulkarni himself did not want to work personally, but appointed a deputy. The deputy certainly got Rs. 100, but out of the amount the representative watandar kulkarni got, say, Rs. 25, and for this amount he was induced to appoint a deputy. In short, there were certain kulkarnis who did not want to work in person, and therefore they wanted to get money in this way. So, these people were quite pleased to be relieved of the services and got cash allowances. I can understand that there were certain kulkarnis who were very good and efficient men, but unfortunately they have accepted this position by entering into an agreement with the Government under section 15 of the Watan Act. So, they must thank themselves.

Sir, when Government embarked upon the policy of appointing talatis, I submit they did appoint old kulkarnis as talatis wherever they could. Government have done that. In the year 1925, if my memory is correct, Government passed a Resolution that in Government service 50 per cent. of the posts should be allowed to communities backward in education, that is to say, the backward communities. Naturally it was but proper for Government to get persons, for the posts of talatis, from the backward communities, and Government have done it.

Now, the question is, are we to revert to the old system? The thing has been done. There are so many difficulties. Certain persons have been engaged as talatis. What is to be done as regards them, if we revert to the old system? Are we to drive them out of employment now? If we do that, we shall have to give some compensation to them according to the rules. So, in this way, we shall be losers. The system which was in vogue before, is done away with by the substitution of he talati system. Now, when the Government have done so many things which could be done for the kulkarnis, I think it is but proper for the honourable mover of the cut to withdraw it. I can understand the feelings which actuated him to move this cut. I really feel for him, and I make this request to him: let him come before this Council with some other proposal in the interest of the kulkarnis, which will be more acceptable. We shall naturally examine it on its own merits, and decide the question accordingly. With these words, I would repeat my request to the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni to withdraw his motion. Of course he belongs to a Kulkarni family and I belong to a Patil family, and we are sailing in the same boat. I hope my request will appeal to him, and he will be pleased to withdraw his motion.

Rao Bahadur S. K. BOLE: Sir, I rise to oppose the cut moved by the honourable member Rao Saheb Kulkarni. It is but meet that Rao Saheb Kulkarni should come forward to take up the cudgels on behalf of kulkarnis. Sir, I may tell him that the institution of kulkarnis had outgrown its value and had become rotten and corrupt. Complaints were made to Government by the agriculturists, and how the agriculturists were harassed was brought to the notice of Government; and Government, after mature consideration, abolished the institution of kulkarnis and earned the blessings of the poor and ignorant agriculturists.

[Rao Bahadur S. K. Bole]

Sir, the kulkarnis took advantage of the ignorance of the agriculturists and harassed them in various ways. They exploited the agriculturists, and if Rao Saheb Kulkarni wants to know in what way they harassed them, I would recommend him to read the treatise called "Kulkarni Leelamrit", composed by the editor of the "Deen Mitra", Rao Saheb Mukundrao Patil. Sir, in that "Leelamrit", the composer has depicted the true picture of the kulkarni, and pointed out in very touching language in what way the kulkarnis used to harass the agriculturists. I am sure if Rao Saheb Kulkarni reads the "Leelamrit", he will be convinced that the kulkarnis used to harass the poor agriculturists, and he would not plead for the restoration of the institution of kulkarnis. Sir, these are democratic days and nobody should talk of hereditary appointments. Hereditary appointments create vested interests and they become the means of harassing the public. I therefore submit that under no circumstances the institution of kulkarnis should be restored. With these words I oppose the cut.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: Sir, the point which I want to make out has already been made out by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Bole. It is undesirable to revive the hereditary system. The old system of having hereditary kulkarnis was done away with in the pre-reform days, after a great deal of consideration, as some of my old friends like Sir Rafiuddin Ahmad who is now on the other side of the turnstile may remember. This is an old controversy. Recently we also discussed the matter in the Retrenchment Committee. In the general public interest I do not think that the present system should be changed, and that we should revert to the old system of 20 years ago. Such a reverse is not in the public interest at all. The vicious element of having a cadre on the principle of hereditary service is itself wrong. It might have been correct in the olden days, when the village economy was based entirely on different principles. Now, the village economy has changed, in fact the whole system of village administration has changed. Now, the kulkarnis are to carry out functions much larger than were allotted to them in the olden days. Take for instance the record of rights. Take again the various other Acts of legislature for which the village is the unit; so that the kulkarni has to be far more efficient than the kulkarni of the olden times. That is one thing.

Secondly, whatever we might say about communal matters, it is perfectly true that, if we revert to the old system, the kulkarni cadre would predominently remain in the hands of one particular community. From the public point of view I do not think it is desirable. We, on this side of the House, this group I mean, take our stand on the fact that the administration must be based on non-communal lines and although from that point of view we are not able to achieve a great deal of our ideal, we must stick to the principle we advocate. Unfortunately even Government are not following this principle. I for one feel that, if India has suffered and if India is lost to Indians, it is because of the castes, creeds, classes and communities being too many. Now I know Government want to perpetuate the castes and communal basis under the new constitution. I for one am not prepared to support them in their ideas. I really want that there ought to be a mixture of various castes and creeds in any cadre of public service and that principle applies to the cadre of kulkarnis throughout the Deccan. I do not know how many kulkarnis there are in the Deccan—5,000 or 6,000—but if we revert to the old system, why should there not be the non-Brahmin, the depressed classes, and so on as kulkarnis? I do not think that this could be achieved if we revert to the pre-reforms system. I have never indulged as a rule in Brahmin and non-Brahmin controversy. But from the public point of view, the cadre must contain a suitable and reasonable admixture of all communities. And this cannot be achieved if we revert to the old system.

So far as economy is concerned, no doubt there will be a few lakhs of saving. But the general public policy is far more valuable than a few lakhs of rupees, which might be saved by reverting to the old system of Watandar Kulkarnis. Even then, it is doubtful whether it would be a real economy or fallacious economy. It is admitted, Sir, that the old type of kulkarnis were living on perquisites, which means they taxed the villagers. I do not think that the present talati lives on corruption to the same degree and exacts the same amount of perquisites. I do not wish to draw any comparison between the two types but I maintain that this is a great advantage in the present system in this that, if a talati is found to be corrupt and living on perquisites, he is transferable but not so the old kulkarni who as a Watandar is rooted to the village under the terms of the watan and who could not be transferred from one district to another or from one division to another. I therefore think that the possibility of transferring the man who is found to be corrupt is a great weapon and check in the hands of the Government to put down corruption. I do not consider that it would be a desirable policy to make the kulkarni a permanent fixture, allowing the dud of the family to work as kulkarni, the other brighter and more efficient members of the family going out and entering the professions and other occupations. These are the points which are against the system of having hereditary kulkarnis. With all my sympathies for those who are in the position of the displaced kulkarnis, and with every sympathy for the vested interests, I think it is not desirable to give up a system which has been adopted after careful consideration and is found fairly satisfactory nearly for twenty years.

Mr. A. W. W. MACKIE: Sir, I cannot but feel that this motion is already dead. Indeed I am at a loss to understand why honourable members opposite should consent at all to the time of this honourable House being occupied with this proposal, knowing that the time is limited. But as I understand that from their point of view there is apparently no objection to the time of the House being occupied with this proposal, I am quite content to discourse on the subject for the time that is allowed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member can speak as long as he likes.

Mr. A. W. W. MACKIE: It is now almost 31 years since I came to India and made my first acquaintance with the kulkarni system in the district of Dharwar. I shall relate to the House the impression which I got about it then and the impression which I have about it now. Several honourable members spoke of the system in relation to the people in the villages and to the public generally, but I shall confine my remarks for the most part to the point of view of administration and how it affects the administrative officer. When I first became acquainted with the system, I had to make the appointments of kulkarnis and patils in the villages from amongst the various claimants for the appointments. I knew nothing about the subject but I was perfectly willing to learn. Therefore, in my court I would pitch into these cases with two pleaders, one on either side, to give me the points for and against. The pleaders I chiefly remember were Mr. Subrao Byahatti and Mr. Ram Rao Bellary. The main points of conflict that arose in my court had no connection with efficiency or with public interest. The words that most frequently occurred were "watandar of the same watan" and "a member of the watan family" and anything except efficiency, and when the sound of legal combat died down in my court, anyone looking in to investigate the cause of the unwonted silence would have found all concerned poring over a genealogical tree going far back into the mists of antiquity. Or sometimes it would be an ancient document produced because therein mention had been made of one man being some sort of relation of some other man, which words were now brought forward in order to establish some sort of relationship between two apparently separate families, which were claimed to be the same family. Adoption deeds were another subject which occupied us; also alleged adoptions without deeds. The rights of females caused extraordinary complications. Apart from a few minor amendments in the law the difficulties are as great to-day as then. I had a case that came to me two months ago as Commissioner and I referred it back to my office with certain queries, not all exactly required for my own information, but partly because I thought the investigation of the points concerned would be good for my staff whose knowledge was clearly defective. I have made inquiries about it at intervals since then only to find that it is still on the anvil.

Now what has all this obscure and complicated inquiry to do with efficient administration? Consider what a simple thing it is to appoint a talati, selecting the best man from amongst the candidates, giving him a living wage and setting him to work with prospects of promotion which will make him work his best. But how far, far different was the actual procedure of appointment? The centre round which swayed the legal battle I have described is section 53 of the Act which prescribes the procedure under which men are actually selected for these petty posts. Section 53 reads as follows:

"Except as is otherwise provided in the last preceding section and in section 56, and except as the Governor in Council shall by a general or special order from time to time otherwise direct, every deputy appointed under this Act shall be a member of the same family to which the representative watandar whose duty it is to officiate belongs, if there be a member of such family fit and willing to officiate or, in default of such member, a watandar of the same watan who is fit and willing to officiate and who is descended from the same original watandar as the representative watandar whose duty it is to officiate."

[Mr. A. W. W. Mackie]

This indicates the sort of questions we were trying to solve by these extraordinary enquiries. Extraordinarily complicated as this section sounds when it is read out, it is a hundred times more complicated even than it seems. In the Act "watandar of the same watan" is nowhere defined. You have to make out the meaning by a combination of other definitions, one of which is:

"'Watandar' means a person having an hereditary interest in a watan. It includes a person holding watan property acquired by him before the introduction of the British Government into the locality of the watan, or legally acquired subsequent to such introduction, and a person holding such property from him by inheritance. It includes a person adopted by an owner of a watan, or part of a watan, subject to the conditions specified in sections 33 to 35."

Now, if I may be allowed to give the House an idea of what "watandar of the same watan" means, I shall read a few sentences from the Watan Act, a famous book, which is edited by Mr. Gejji, where the author has made an attempt by giving various instances. When I read these instances, just remember that all that we are wanted to do is to appoint a village accountant to a single village of 450 inhabitants for the space of five years; not even for life, for five years. Here is one of his instances—I take it as a short one:

"If A is a Hindu and a member of a divided family and the watan in question is his ancestral property, the expression (watandar of the same watan) would include strangers or members of the family owning a share in the watan or having a vested interest therein, and the lineal male descendants to the third degree."

And another case very similar but not quite the same:

"If A is a Hindu and a member of a divided family and the watan has come to him by collateral succession or as self-acquired property, the expression would include only those who own a share in the watan or have a vested interest therein, be they strangers or members of the family. It does not include his lineal male descendants."

I shall inflict only just a sentence about the word "family". If the meaning of "a watandar of the same watan" is difficult to get at, "a family" is worse. The discourse on the word "family" begins thus:

"The definition of 'family' is inclusive and therefore inconclusive."

Well, Sir, after I had left that work some years, I was succeeded in the post of Assistant Collector, Dharwar, in the Southern Division there, by my honourable friend to my right (Mr. J. Monteath), and when I came back to Dharwar touring as Superintendent of Land Records, I heard a story there which he had left behind him. It was to the effect that there were two villages which had entirely the same watan families with the same sharers and with shares in the same proportions in the watans; they were entirely the same. Both came up before me, but unfortunately they came with an interval of time between them. The story as I heard it went that in one case I had written a long and learned argument proving conclusively that A was a watandar of the same watan, and in the other, when it had come up I had written an equally long and equally learned argument proving equally conclusively that A was not a watandar of the same watan. Well, Sir, I am quite prepared to believe that the story is correct, because of the great amount of uncertainty and indefiniteness in regard to these claims; incredible to those who have not experienced it.

Now, Sir, one point made by the honourable mover of this cut was that of expense. When you consider, Sir, the enormous proportion of the time of revenue officers occupied by this futile work; when you count in that, and when you count the cost to those concerned, the pleader's fees, the copying fees, the time they spend in going to the various courts, the cost to the community must be tremendous. It is overwhelming compared with that of the simple talati system. That is a point of indirect expenditure which I think it is worth while to mention. Again, consider just for a moment the unbusinesslike way of making these appointments. I daresay there are some businessmen present in this House; can they imagine for a moment a business firm adopting such a system and attempting to make their appointments in that way? Just imagine what it is! Hundreds of people dotted over the district who have actually got the right of appointing village accountants under the pay of the State. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Bole and other members have given some indication of the results which actually accrue, and which must accrue of course, from such a plan. I shall no longer dwell on that; it is not pleasant and it is so extremely obvious.

It is rather interesting to cogitate how the kulkarni system came about. I surmise myself it had the same origin as probably had the mirasi tenure; that is to say, that it originated in a time of insecurity when a central Government which might be able to function to-day would not be functioning to-morrow, so to speak. There was no certainty, and, therefore, the device was resorted to of employing methods which contained within themselves their own continuity; the post was made hereditary so that whatever was going on, unless the whole family was wiped out, there was always some one who would consider it his right and his duty to carry on; just as with the mirasi tenure under which, no matter how long a man had disappeared from the village, when he came back, provided the central Government was strong enough, he got back his land. I surmise that the two things must have arisen from the same cause. They belong to an age to which the abandoned forts which dot the countryside belong. And the honourable member who has proposed this cut apparently belongs in this connection to those same dark ages. He wants the House to step back into them along with him. I have no doubt that this House has no intention whatsoever of doing anything of the kind. If the cheapest system is wanted, the obvious thing would be to call for tenders for the right of appointing the kulkarnis in the districts. Why, it is conceivable that people might come and offer some money for the privilege of making the appointments.

I just heard a word or two from the honourable member (Rao Saheb Kulkarni) about certain inconveniences caused by the talati system owing to their numbers not being very great and a man having to look after a fair number of villages in what is called a saza. I need not rebut that in detail. It is enough if I merely mention the Konkan and Kanara where we have had the talati system working for a long time and where no such inconveniences have exhibited themselves.

The honourable member Mr. Kamat spoke much more effectively than I could do on what I had intended to deal with in the concluding portion of my remarks, that is to say, the effect of the change from kulkarnis to talatis on our administration, how absolutely necessary and unavoidable it was, and what a salutary change it has been, a change to go back on which is totally inconceivable.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI (Poona District): Sir, there are a few points raised which I wish to meet. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Dongarsing Patil referred to the agreement or contract which has been executed already and said we could not go back on it. I am not a man of legal acumen, but I am sure that when a contract is entered into between two parties, that contract can be rescinded with the consent of the same parties. Therefore, if Government decide to go back there is no difficulty in the way.

As regards the question of giving 50 per cent. of the appointments to backward class people, etc., there was a promise distinctly made that preference will be given to watandar kulkarnis, and I do not wish to say anything on that point. I hope the promise will be kept.

I am looking at this question from the point of view of economy. As regards the remarks made by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Bole, I do not know how far they are applicable to this case. I must admit that there is corruption in every community and in every department. Yesterday, we were told that there was corruption in the Police Department. The same is the case with the kulkarnis. As regards the book "Kulkarni Leelamrit" the honourable member Rao Bahadur Bole referred to, I wish only to say that it is a book of fiction having no relation to facts. I do not wish to repeat the thoughts expressed in that book; they are coarse and are not fit to be uttered in this House. It is a rotten work and I wish not to pollute the atmosphere of this honourable House by repeating the nasty thoughts expressed in that book though I wish to convince the House of its ugly nature.

I will now point out what my honourable friend Mr. Kamat said in 1914. Mr. Kamat is an experienced member of this Council. He was an elected member when this question came up before the Council on the motion of the honourable member Mr. Belvi. At that time Mr. Kamat advocated the cause of the kulkarnis and said that it would be better to reinstate the kulkarnis in the place of talatis. [Interruption.] But the honourable member did then support Mr. Belvi's motion and said that he was in favour of the reinstatement of the kulkarni system in place of the talati system. I refer to page 898 of the Council proceedings of the year 1914. The honourable member actually condemned the talati system and gave his deliberate and mature view that a great injustice was being done to the kulkarnis. If the honourable member can show that I have quoted him wrongly, I am prepared to take back my words, but if, just as a man has a right to change his opinions, he wishes to change his opinion now, then he is quite welcome to do it.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: In 1916, I was not an elected member of this House on behalf of any constituency.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: I refer to 1914, not to 1916.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: The point is that the honourable member said I was an elected member. I was not.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: It is no use pursuing that controversy. The fact remains that the honourable member Mr. Kamat, whether he was an elected or a nominated member, did uphold the cause of the kulkarnis and gave it as his considered judgment that the kulkarni system should be restored and the talati system abolished.

Now as regards what the honourable member Mr. Mackie said, I might say at once that his arguments are not new as they were placed before the Council in the year 1914 by the then Honourable Member representing Government—I believe Sir George Curtis—and all those arguments were given a reply to by the then honourable member Mr. Belvi who had no difficulty in demolishing them beyond recognition.

Now only one thing remains for me to put forward and that is about a personal remark to the effect that I belong to a Kulkarni family and therefore I am not quite free from a suspicion that my motive in giving this cut is not quite as unselfish as my remarks would appear to be. Let me say at once, though I am proud of being one of the Kulkarnis, Sir, that neither my grandfather, my father nor myself ever held this hereditary post, and I am sure, no member of our family intends or is ever likely to aspire to it. I must make it quite clear that the one object with which I have made myself responsible for a motion of this kind is the present financial stringency of the Government and the good not only of the country but also of the Government themselves.

Now I shall revert to only one remark made by the honourable member Mr. Mackie and I shall have done. The honourable member asked whether tenders should be invited for the posts. Well, to be frank, Sir, that question staggers me and I refused to believe my ears when I heard such an absurd suggestion coming from a responsible member of what are called responsible benches on the Government side. Why not then should the posts of Collectors or Commissioners be advertised and tenders invited?

You will not be surprised, Sir, if I quote now in favour of my motion and in support of my views the opinions given expression to by two honourable members of the present Cabinet of the Bombay Government—I mean the Honourable the Leader of the House (Sir Ghulam Hussain) and the Honourable Minister for Education (Sir Rafiuddin Ahmad). Both of these honourable members strongly supported Mr. Belvi's motion that the kulkarni system should be restored and the talati system abolished. In fact, the Honourable Sir Rafiuddin Ahmad said on that occasion that he had very great sympathy with the cause of kulkarnis which his then honourable friend Mr. Belvi espoused and that he would certainly do everything in his power to support him——

An Honourable MEMBER: At that time the Honourable the Education Minister was an ordinary elected member and not in power.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: Quite right, but now that he is in power, I hope he will carry out the promise which he then gave and lend me his weighty support on the present occasion. I make the same appeal to the Honourable the Leader of the House, because both of them voted for Mr. Belvi's motion, and especially because it is on the ground of retrenchment that I have brought this cut, and also to secure a good income to the Government treasury. It is this thought that has made me courageous enough to place my views before this honourable House and I never thought that my proposal would be received as light-heartedly as it has been by my honourable friend Mr. Mackie. I have greater faith in the mature and experienced judgment of the honourable members of this House and I entreat them to look at the economic aspect of the proposals which I have made. Even if my views are not accepted by Government, I shall not be sorry because I feel I have done my duty to my constituents no less than to Government themselves in view of the existing financial crisis.

With these words, I appeal to Government to afford redress to the thousands of kulkarni families who have been practically ruined by this Act and they are asking for this favour not as alms but in consideration of the loyal and efficient services rendered by the kulkarnis to Government in the past.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: On a point of correction, Sir. The honourable member said that I had mentioned in my speech that there was some difficulty in rescinding the contract. I never said so.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Sir, I presume the House will wish me to exercise my privilege of winding up this debate though it seems to me there is remarkably little left to wind, since most of the arguments that I should have endeavoured to put forward have already been put forward, some of them most effectively, from the opposite side of the House. Whatever the House may think of the utility of this discussion at a time when we are almost within the shadow of the guillotine, I think we shall all be grateful to the honourable member for proposing this cut, if for no other reason, than because he succeeded in eliciting from my honourable friend behind me (Mr. Mackie) the most informing and, incidentally, the most amusing speech that we have had this session. I confess when this debate began I knew remarkably little about the kulkarni system, but I now feel that I know quite a lot about it. It so happened, although I came to India a year or two before my honourable friend the Commissioner, Southern Division (Mr. Mackie), the first twenty years of my service were spent in Sind and Gujarat where the kulkarni breed does not exist, and I therefore never had to spend my time in examining elaborate genealogical trees or conducting any of those semi-legal inquiries which appear to have occupied so much of the time of the Assistant Collector of Dharwar. It is therefore with considerable diffidence that I venture to speak about the kulkarni system as it was.

I understand from one of my honourable friends over there that the kulkarnis had the habit of oppressing people. I find it very difficult to believe this when I look at my honourable friend (Rao Saheb Kulkarni), and I am quite sure that he never oppressed any one; his mild exterior forbids any such suggestion. Still, I gather that kulkarnis at any rate did not give complete satisfaction in all the villages or at any rate in many of the villages in which they carried out their official duties, and it was only after a long experience of them and their ways that Government decided on the system which is now in force. I cannot believe that Government would have made that change if it had not been forced upon them by circumstances. No one will undertake a more expensive system if a cheaper one would do, and I feel sure that those of my honourable friends in this House whose memory goes back to those days will support me in saying that this was a measure which was actually forced upon Government by circumstances, and on the whole it has been a success. I am not going to suggest for a moment that the talati is a perfect person any more than the rest of us. I have no doubt that there are many faults to be found with talatis, but I am sure that the House will agree with me that the system is a sound one. Hereditary offices are out of date, there is no question about that, and the work of the talati now-a-days is infinitely more complex, infinitely more difficult than the work of the kulkarni of 50 or 60 years ago, and any one of my honourable friends who has ever studied the Record of Rights will realise that it does require a man of some intelligence and education to fill it up with anything approaching to correctness and that we cannot expect the watandar kulkarnis always to be men who have that education.

As regards the question of expense, I understand that as the result of the remarks contained in the Retrenchment Committee's Report, the Revenue Department looked rather carefully into the question of how much we could save straightway if we did accept the suggestion made and go back to the kulkarni system where possible, and we found that with the talatis who would have to be pensioned off or compensated there would be no immediate saving whatever. The House knows that what we want is an immediate saving. I forget what figures were mentioned by my honourable friend last night. I think he said that seven or eight lakhs could be saved, but I am sure that his figures are not quite right and that we shall not be able to effect any such saving at any rate as he suggests——

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: The figures I gave were taken from a reply given by Government to a question put by Mr. Belvi at that time.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I am afraid I did not correctly follow the honourable member's remarks or perhaps I misunderstood him. Anyway, the point I am trying to make is that there is no immediate saving to be made even if we went back to this discarded, old and vicious system. I am not going to make a fetish of efficiency for the moment, because I know we cannot do so in these days, but I do not think myself that this change would be welcomed in the villages which would be most affected. There can be no doubt about it. It is most desirable that if a village accountant commits acts of (what shall I say) indiscretion or if there are serious defects found with his work, we should be able to shift him and that is a very valuable check which the supervising officers have over the village establishment. They had no such check in the old days, and if we revert to the old system, we shall have no check in future. I think those of my honourable friends who understand the agricultural population of this Presidency and who know village life, will realise that it is most desirable that the supervising authority should have power to transfer the village establishment at any time if it seems necessary.

I have listened with great interest to the historical surmises of my honourable friend Mr. Mackie as to how the kulkarni system arose. He may be right or he may be wrong. The origins are lost in the mist of history, whatever they may be. But I have no doubt whatever that the British Government deserves credit for having put a stop to the system, because in the long run it is not for the good of the people.

I hope my honourable friend will withdraw his motion. I sympathise with him very much, because I feel sure he realises now that he has not got the support of the House; and also, I am afraid, there is no prospect of my appointing him as the first member of his clan as a village accountant. But I am grateful to him for giving us this discussion which has been of great interest to the House.

Rao Saheb P. D. KULKARNI: I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Motions Nos. 131 to 135 are out of order. They are specific cuts of non-voted items.

Mr. J. HUMPHREY (Karachi Chamber of Commerce): Sir, I beg to move:

"Reduce by Rs. 1,000—Total Demand—Rs. 2,08,23,000 (B. page 48)."

In moving this motion, I would like to preface my remarks by saying that one of the most satisfactory features in the present session is the complete absence of vicious criticisms in discussing the Budget and demands for grants of the way in which Government have been dealing with the finances of this Presidency. On the other hand, there has been general approval expressed of the Government's retrenchment policy and also of the fact that they have appointed a committee or intend appointing a committee of experts to go into the whole question of reorganisation of the administration. In fact, I find for the first time during the term of my short experience of this honourable House that there seems to be a genuine feeling amongst all of us that Government have really tried hard to overcome our present financial difficulties; and in doing so, there seems to be complete co-operation in all departments, and amongst all members of the services in all branches. I feel sure that this House, or rather this side of the House feels that Government should be congratulated on what they have done and further on what they intend doing, for they are not staying their hands because retrenchments have been effected, but intend carrying their work further by encouraging a complete overhaul of the whole Government administration. I trust what I am going to say now and what I have just stated will not be regarded as criticism, but rather as helpful suggestions.

The reason for my moving this cut is that in spite of the retrenchments that have taken place, and in spite of the determination of Government to effect reorganisation, there are still two more small items that have not been finally dealt with by them, both of which appear in both the reports of the Retrenchment Committee. One is the reduction of the Cabinet and the other is the question of having one headquarters for the Government of this province. His Excellency, when he addressed this House at the beginning of the session, informed us that his Government had completed the examination of the subject of the reduction of the Cabinet and they had evolved a scheme by which the Cabinet could be reduced to four portfolios; and what is more, that the members of the Cabinet themselves had promised him their co-operation in carrying out the scheme to the fullest extent. This statement was deservedly and rightly received with applause by this honourable House. As I suggested the other day, and I repeat now, every member of this House must have felt the greatest admiration for the spirit shown by the members of the Cabinet in this helping, of offering to help, Government towards further retrenchment and towards the goal at which we are aiming. Then, unfortunately, His Excellency raised the doubt whether it was wise to bring such a change into effect at the present time, whether it would not be better if we waited until the new constitution was introduced. Apart from the fact that in my opinion it would be much wiser at the present moment to reduce the Cabinet rather than wait until the new constitution is introduced, it would mean that if the reduction is made now, the experimental stage would take place at a time when there is an efficient government. I am not saying that the new constitution will not be efficient; I am sure it will be, but at the same time it will be new and therefore inexperienced. But now we have a Government which has the experience of years and years and if they reduce the portfolios now, they will be reducing that field in which they are working and they can find the best way of doing so.

Sir, this demand on the part of the public is not a new one. It was urged by those who had the honour to belong to this House during the budget session in 1931. In fact, it was urged before that. When it came to the Retrenchment Committee which sat to deal with the question of retrenchment of expenditure, they did not wait till the final report; they decided to deal with this subject in the ad interim report and it was recommended then by the majority that a reduction in the Cabinet should be made as soon as possible. As I have said, Government deserve to be congratulated on doing their best to set the finances of the Presidency in order, and I consider they are to be congratulated on having taken this matter in hand promptly. Our thanks are due to His Excellency also for having taken such interest in the question. But at the present moment we are all left in doubt as to what is going to happen, and it does seem important, when one considers that the saving, according to the Retrenchment Committee, would be about Rs. 1,75,000. Actually, I feel certain that it would be more, because if one takes into consideration the reduction in staff and small items of that nature, the saving would probably be not Rs. 1,75,000 but about 2 or 2½ lakhs. There is no question, therefore, that this subject of reducing and reorganising the Cabinet should be taken up at the present moment. Government have not so far expressed their definite intentions in this matter, and I am sure it would be of considerable interest to this honourable House if Government could give us some idea about what their intentions are in this connection.

The other point I want to raise is one about headquarters of Government. This is a point upon which I am not going to speak at great length, but it is a point which has been raised by the party to which I have the honour to belong for many years. It was first raised, I think, in 1921, and the subject has been constantly broached ever since. This point was also considered by the Retrenchment Committee; but I must admit that the report of the Committee is slightly vague. But during all this time when the subject was discussed, we have been trying to ascertain from Government what the cost of the move is. But up to now we have never had any definite figures on that point. Now I think I should rather change my question and ask Government, not what the cost of the move is, but what the savings would be if that move did not take place. I say that purposely because I think there is a very great distinction between the cost and the savings; if there is only one headquarters, it means there is only one set of Government offices, one set of houses for Government officers and the staff, apart from all the incidental charges which must result out of the move. I fancy if we had got those figures, we would find out the exact situation. In the Retrenchment Committee's report the opinion is expressed that the cost of the move would be very small, smaller than the cost of the move to Mahableshwar. I think that the saving in the cost would be very considerable and that it would be well worth consideration at the present time when we are in such difficulties.

These are the only two points I wish to raise, but to my mind they are points of vital importance and should not be overlooked and should be dealt with at once. Government have shown themselves so willing and so anxious last year to meet the wishes of this House and make every effort to improve the financial condition of this Presidency, but it would be a great pity in two matters capable of such easy adjustment they should not complete the task. Sir, I move the motion.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association): Mr. President, I have very great pleasure in supporting the motion for a cut that my honourable friend, the member for the Karachi Chamber of Commerce (Mr. Humphrey), has just moved, in order to raise a discussion on the two important questions which are embodied in the proposal which he has dealt with, with such lucidity. I do not believe, Sir, that there is any difference of opinion in this House on these questions, particularly the former one, about which His Excellency the Governor, in his speech the other day, gave us such a definite and clear indication. All that this House would like to know is, when the proposed reduction is going to be given effect to, and how long it will take the matter to go through the various stages which must finally lead up to that consummation. I need hardly add, Sir, that, in our present financial difficulties, among the various steps that have been and are being taken to relieve the situation, this is perhaps the most important and the most urgently needed; for, by bringing about this reform or reduction, whichever way you may like to put it, the administration is not only not likely to suffer in efficiency, but on the other hand, to gain by an increase of it, by the complete elimination of the duplication of the entire machinery of the upper stratum of the Government, which exists at present in a marked degree to the detriment of the administration. As we all know, Sir, the Cabinet handles at the present moment, precisely the same number of subjects as before, and, I am sure, precisely in the same manner in which they were handled and managed by the Cabinets of the old days, consisting of only four members. It is therefore not unreasonable to say and conclude that the administration will gain materially in efficiency and certainly in speed, if the present size of the Cabinet is reduced and the portfolios redistributed in such a manner as may ensure efficiency with despatch of work. Of course, we readily recognise that it is rather a delicate and unpleasant duty for His Excellency to perform, as several points of a somewhat personal character have got to be considered and settled before arriving at a definite decision on the question. But like every one else, Members of the Cabinet have got to sacrifice and to come to a speedy conclusion in this matter, with one and only one end in view, viz., the good of the administration and the advancement of the cause of the people, committed to their charge. I think therefore that the House may reasonably look forward to an early and authoritative statement on this matter, as to when this long-looked for reduction, which we have been promised, is going to be given effect to. We fail to understand what the difficulty is, and why there should be this long delay. The public cannot wait for this overdue retrenchment till the introduction of the Reforms. That is going to take a good long time yet; and meanwhile, every extra day lost, means the loss of a good opportunity for bringing about a reform which is very urgently needed and already long overdue. I think our honourable friend has not been a day too soon in drawing the attention of the Government to this matter in this pointed manner.

Coming to the other point referred to by him, I think even there, there is practically a consensus of opinion both in this House and outside

[Mr. J. B. Petit]

it, that the heavy expenditure which is being incurred every year and which has been incurred all these years, should not only be now avoided but put a stop to for once and for all. We in this province have now arrived at a stage in our constitutional development, when a definite solution of this matter should be found at the earliest possible moment. When all the civilised Governments of the world have their offices and secretariats located in their capital cities, there is no reason why our Governments in this country should follow a different procedure. In this respect, I think, both the Government of India and all the provincial Governments are all alike equally to blame. At any rate, this system does not conduce to efficiency and it has materially added to our expenditure in the past. After all, it is the capital city of a Government which is the centre of authority and the source of all activities—be they political, social or economic—from which radiate all thoughts, ideas and movements, which gradually permeate the rest of the country or province concerned. It is but natural that the capital City should therefore be the permanent seat of the Government of every country or province. In the modern countries of Europe and America, it would be unthinkable to have the seat of the Government in any city but the Capital of the province or state concerned. As we are out to retrench in every possible direction, there is no reason why one of the main heads, which is capable of substantial reduction, should be allowed to go untouched. I for one have never understood why it is at all necessary now and why it was ever found necessary all these years for the Government as a whole to move from Bombay to Mahableshwar, from Mahableshwar to Poona, and from Poona back again to Bombay, with all the huge paraphernalia of the Secretariat, and the inevitable expenditure of and incidental to the move. Now that the visit to Mahableshwar has been knocked on the head this year, we only hope that it will be permanently given up. We also want that similar steps should be taken with regard to the move to Poona. I think, Sir, that Bombay, the capital city of the Presidency, is entitled to have the Government located in its midst throughout the year; and it should be decided accordingly. To my mind, it would be as absurd to have the seat of our Government located in any city other than Bombay, as it would be to have the Government of Great Britain outside London or the Government of the United States of America in any city other than Washington. It is in accordance with this unwritten rule prevalent in every civilized country, that we in our presidency, should insist upon our capital city being the seat of our Government, where the Secretariat and the centre of all authority should be permanently installed. To act differently is tantamount to sacrifice efficiency to comfort and convenience. To make even periodical annual moves—as in India—would be to sacrifice the continuity of control, the rigour of discipline and the despatch of work. Personally, Sir, I would have no objection to the head of the Government going out periodically or even regularly every year, for the benefit of his health. But that the Government as a whole, should move out with their extensive secretariat and their enormous paraphernalia, is to my mind absolutely unwarranted. Owing to the early transfer of power to the Councils, it will not even be necessary for the future Governors of the Provinces to stay in the capital cities any longer, unless they wish to do so; nor will it be necessary for the secretariats to leave the capital towns, as they will have to be within easy reach of the Ministers, who will henceforth be managing all the affairs of the Government in the fully autonomous provinces of the future, and will be required to stay permanently in the seat of the Government. I think therefore that the time has come when the Government should make up their mind definitely in this matter and make an authoritative declaration of their policy for once and for all. I am emphatically of opinion, Sir, that there is one and only one decision to which they can and ought to arrive, and that is, that Bombay as the capital of the province, should be the permanent and only centre of the Government and that the entire work of the administration should be carried on from Bombay alone. That is the only proper conclusion to which the Government can come; and it is the only solution of the present difficulty. But if this is not agreeable to them, this honourable House would like to know what their intention in the matter is.

I think my honourable friend has made out a very good case in favour of both these points; and an authoritative and unequivocal declaration of policy on them from the Government will be very much appreciated by this House, and by all sections of the public outside it. I have accordingly very great pleasure in supporting the motion for the cut which has been moved by the honourable member for the Karachi Chamber of Commerce.

Sir REGINALD SPENCE (Bombay City): Sir, I should like to support the motion moved by my honourable friend to my left (Mr. John Humphrey) and speak particularly as regards the second part of it, namely, that the Government of Bombay should abandon their move to Poona and have only one central government. My honourable friend representing the Bombay Mill Industry referred to Bombay as being the capital city and said, "Bombay has been the seat from which all capital thoughts originate." He added, "We want to know what Government intend to do in the matter". I would urge this honourable House to consider whether Bombay is the seat of capital and the seat from which all capital thoughts emanate, or is Ahmedabad? Some capitalists in Bombay follow the thoughts that emanate from Ahmedabad blindly without any consideration as to whether what Ahmedabad suggests is for the good of the country. I should like to echo what my honourable friend Mr. Petit asked Government, "What do Government intend to do? Is Bombay or Ahmedabad to be the seat from which the capital thoughts of this Presidency emanate?"

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, the honourable mover of the cut concentrated his attention on two points, namely, the size of the Cabinet should be reduced from 7 to 4 and that the headquarters of the presidency should be only one and not two as at present. With regard to the size of the Cabinet, I fully support the honourable mover of the cut. Before the Reforms the work of administration was performed by four members. It is only after the introduction of the Reforms, the size of the Cabinet has been enlarged. I do not know whether better results have been achieved by increasing the size. Whenever we raise the question of the high pay of officers, we are told that we have to pay more because we are getting efficient service. The same argument may be brought forward with regard to the size of the Cabinet also, that there are various activities of the departments which will have to be managed and controlled and that we have to employ a number of officers and pay them decently. When we consider the history of the past 10 or 12 years, we cannot say that the presidency is the better for it. If you take the instance of the finances of our presidency, you know how they have been managed. Even the large balances we had before the Reforms had been frittered away and we have now come to a stage when we have to borrow for running the administration. We cannot balance our budget. If you just cast a glance to find out the cause why we are in this plight, we will be told that there is trade depression and so on. That is not the sole cause of our bad plight. The Bombay Development scheme is the special—

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I may interrupt the honourable member and correct him. That was in the pre-Reform days.

Mr. V. N. JOG: It was started then. But the Bombay reclamation and all other activities were carried on after the Reforms. So, I submit that the return we have got does not justify the enlargement of the Cabinet and the high salaries. Therefore, I submit that the portfolios which have now been managed by seven members can be distributed among four.

Then, an argument was advanced that because the new Reforms will soon be introduced, a re-shuffling of the portfolios at present would be inopportune and difficult for work at present. But I think that, because the new Cabinet will solely consist of the Ministers who will be elected men, the re-shuffling of portfolios now will give facility to them and they should not be burdened with the task of re-shuffling the portfolios. Some of the Ministers in the new Cabinet will be new men who may not know the intricate details of the departmental activities and so it is the duty of the present Government to go into this question even now. Even His Excellency observed that a detailed scheme had been taken up. If that is so, it is rather desirable that the new Cabinet should not be burdened with the re-shuffling of the portfolios. We have got, in the present Cabinet, Members who have been there from the beginning and who know the various details of the administration. They will be the best men to consider how the portfolios should be re-shuffled. For the present Cabinet, it will be a very simple question. We cannot say now whether any of the present Ministers or Members of that high service will be in the new Cabinet. So, it is up to them to re-shuffle the portfolios now, so that even the present Ministers may become accustomed to the new arrangement, in case they happen to be in the new Cabinet. So, I suggest that it is better that this reform is taken in hand now.

As regards the size of the Cabinet, though it may not directly come under the grant, the question of Ministers may indirectly be included——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There is another cut.

Mr. V. N. JOG: I am not directly moving a cut with regard to the salaries of Ministers.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not think that subject can be referred to at present. The honourable member should wait till the other cut is reached.

Mr. V. N. JOG: With regard to pay.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Pay cannot be referred to at present.

Mr. V. N. JOG: When the size of the Executive Council is reduced as suggested, naturally the size of the Cabinet of Ministers should also be reduced. In this connection I refer to the suggestion which has already been made by the Retrenchment Committee, with the only dissentient voice of my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Patil——

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: What about the opinion of the Mahomedan member?

Mr. V. N. JOG: He has not referred to the size, but only to the pay. I submit, therefore, Sir, that the size of the Cabinet should be reduced as soon as possible. As regards this recommendation Government simply say "This matter is being considered."

I now come to the question of the reorganisation of the services. It was stated at the commencement of this session that Government was thinking of appointing an expert committee to go into this question. But we find reports in the papers that technical difficulties have arisen with regard to the appointment of Sir Frederic Gauntlett. If the Secretary of State does not give his sanction, then we should like to know whether Government are going to appoint the expert committee at all. We do not know when it is going to be appointed. If that committee is not going to be appointed soon, Government themselves will have to take into consideration the reorganisation of the services. Among the various suggestions made by the Retrenchment Committee is one to reduce the Secretariat. I do not want to tire the House by going into the various details, but I will simply say that a committee appointed by this very House has gone into the question and their recommendations should be accepted.

I would also suggest in this connection the reduction of the salaries. The complaint of this side of the House has been that the salaries are higher than they ought to be. Unless we tackle this question of salaries, I do not think we can find any money for a long time to come for the development of the various activities which it is the duty of the Government to undertake. No doubt by a temporary cut in salaries they may have been able to relieve the situation, but it is intended that these salaries should be restored by the end of this year. It was on that understanding that it has been done. I just put it to the other side of the House whether in the circumstances in which we are placed, if the cut in salaries is to be restored, we will be able to balance the budget. Even if we are able to balance the budget on paper, will we have enough for the development of the nation-building departments? Unless we have sufficient surplus we cannot undertake the various developments which we have now stopped as an emergency measure. Therefore, this question of the reorganisation of the services should be taken in hand immediately.

When on this question, I wish to place before the House the system by which the whole thing should be done. We have not at present any system in the gradation of these posts. It is up to us and Government now once for all to state what should be the maximum and minimum. There should be fixed a proportion between the maximum and the minimum, and the maximum and minimum should be arrived at taking into consideration the economic condition of the country. What our country is able to pay should be the criterion, not what we have been accustomed to pay. We have to take into consideration the capacity of the people to bear the burden. We shall also have to consider the scales of salaries obtaining in various other countries. It is only in this country there is a large disproportion between the lowest and the highest salary. I will quote some figures from a small brochure prepared by Mr. Gadgil. He has given the proportion that the maximum bears to the minimum in other countries. In South Africa the maximum is 11 times the multiple of the minimum; in the United Kingdom it is 32 times; in Canada, 17 times; in the United States of America, 9 times; in Germany, 13 times; in Japan, 14 times; and in India 133 times. In calculating the figures for India he has only taken Rs. 4,000 as the maximum; he has not considered the higher salaries. In no other country is the maximum more than 32 times the minimum. I submit that having regard to the circumstances of our country the highest salary here should not exceed Rs. 3,000. If that be settled, the salaries of other posts shall have to be automatically reduced to suit the highest of Rs. 3,000. People have gone even as far as to say that it should not be more than Rs. 500. They say that anything more than that our country is unable to pay. But even if we reduce the highest salary to Rs. 3,000 we shall be able to save a considerable amount. I find, Sir, that the salaries of the all-India services have not been touched by the Retrenchment Committee because it was not permissible to do so. But they have proposed some scales for the Provincial and Subordinate services, but those scales do not do full justice to the criterion I have suggested. Some of those scales will have to be reconsidered, because I believe those scales are higher than they ought to be. I consider, Sir, that this question will have to be considered very seriously; if the expert committee is not coming soon, then Government should take the matter immediately in hand.

[Mr. V. N. Jog]

It has been stated that there is a difficulty with regard to the reduction of the salaries of certain services with whom contracts have been made. With regard to this I have to make a suggestion. Difficulties there may be, but with regard to the increases we have given after 1919 and the new scales we have laid down there should be no difficulty in withdrawing them. It is only the entrants who have come after the new schedule of pays who might present some difficulty because they might say that on that offer they accepted this contract of service and that cannot be reduced, but persons who entered service before there was this schedule and before there was that offer and when there was no expectation that they would get the increments sanctioned after 1919, cannot present the same difficulty. I am pointing this out because of the likelihood of that legal objection being put forward. The increases were given only on account of the rise in prices. I have suggested once before and I repeat that suggestion today that if the salaries are reduced to the same scale which was there when they entered the service—I mean those servants who entered service before the increments were sanctioned after 1919—there would be no injustice. As an illustration I might say that a person, who entered service in 1919, would rise by this time to Rs 600 and if on account of the new rise after 1919 he goes up to Rs. 700, it is not necessary to bring him down, but if he is again to rise to Rs. 800 under the new scale, he is not legally entitled to it. Then it may be said that there are certain expectations raised and that those expectations are not realised. In this connection I wish to submit and ask, "Are not the expectations of other persons such as landlords, tenants, farmers and others unfulfilled and are they not disappointed in their expectations?" Suppose, formerly a landlord had let his land at a rental of Rs. 200 or Rs. 400 when the cotton prices and prices of grain rose and he had certain expectation that he would get that amount of rent or money; but now that expectation is gone and he is not even getting half that rent which he used to get. There may be a disappointment here and there, but every one has to meet with disappointment in life in trade and other avocations. So, I submit, Sir, that just as the other parts of the Presidency and other persons are suffering, so also the servants of Government should be prepared to suffer. With these remarks I close this particular subject.

As regards the moving of headquarters of Government, if it is going to make a lot of saving, I do not see why there should not be one place only. Perhaps it may be said that the climate of Bombay is very hot and that it is not possible to live in Bombay all the year round——

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: Dharwar.

Mr. V. N. JOG: My honourable friend Rao Bahadur Patil says "Dharwar". If the question of climate is raised, then I submit that there are many places in other countries also where the headquarters are in one place. Is the climate of London very fair throughout the season? There may be various healthy places round about London, but the Government there does not think of moving to those healthy places, and therefore I submit, Sir, that if there is great economy to be achieved, we should achieve it. Only yesterday, even for a matter of Rs. 20,000, Government was saying that a second session of the Council should if possible be dispensed with this year at Poona; and for similar reasons if there is any saving possible to be made, I think we should go ahead and make that saving. For all these reasons, I say, Sir, that this question should be considered very, very carefully.

[Mr. V. N. Jog]

Yesterday, I wanted to refer to the policy with regard to certain officers—I mean magistrates—under the ordinances, but I do not wish to take up any more time of the House now. With these words, I support the motion as regards the removal of headquarters, and resume my seat.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I shall be very brief in my remarks and I will not try to cover the same ground which has been covered by the honourable member who spoke before me. The other day I said that this Presidency is spending 537 lakhs on establishments. The honourable member the Finance Secretary then said that Government have to spend money mostly on salaries if they want to get their work done. I do understand that Government have to employ servants and officers to govern and to pay them. Again we requested from this side of the House times without number to make retrenchments and to bring down the standard of salaries and emoluments, according to the capacity of the taxpayers of the Presidency, and according to the revenue; we were told that there was no scope for further retrenchment and that whatever was within the power of Government has been already done. Now, Sir, I take the figures of expenditure on establishments of this very Government in the year 1915-16. In that year this Presidency was spending on establishments about 3 crores in support of which I shall give official figures. For the Imperial Services for the year 1915-16, the expenditure was 67·69 lakhs, which was raised after the introduction of the reforms and in the year 1921-22 it was 97·52 and adding 10 lakhs of the Lee Commission to it, the percentage comes to 52 per cent. increase over the figures of 1915-16.

Now let me take the provincial services. In the year 1915-16, the expenditure on the provincial services was 48·87 lakhs, which was raised and in the year 1921-22 it was 79·50 lakhs, that is an increase of 63 per cent.

Then let us take the ministerial and clerical services. The expenditure on it in 1915-16 was Rs. 2,02,57,000 and it was raised to Rs. 4,15,02,000 in the year 1921-22, that is an increase of 105 per cent.

I shall now come to the menials. In 1915-16 the expenditure on this head was Rs. 17,07,000. It was raised and in the year 1921-22 it was Rs. 31,49,000, that is, 14 lakhs more which comes to an increase of about 182 per cent.

What I contend, Sir, is this, that the difference between the establishment expenditure of the year 1915-16 and the year 1921-22 comes to 287 lakhs, and if you were to add another 12 lakhs since the year 1921-22, it will come to about 3 crores. So I say, that in the establishment expenditure of this Presidency of 537 lakhs, about 300 lakhs has been increased during the last 15 years. Of course when this increase was made, there was some reason and some justification. On account of the abnormal rise in the prices of commodities, it was then contended that all officers should get a living wage and therefore it was found necessary to increase their rates of pay. But, Sir, we all know that most, if not all, prices have come down to the pre-war level at present in Bombay and also in other big cities of the Presidency except perhaps rents which have not come down to pre-war level. But prices of cereals and other commodities have come down to the same level as the year 1915-16, and therefore if Government had a mind to retrench their expenditure, they could easily have done so from this establishment bill alone without looking for retrenchment in other directions. Just now the honourable member Mr. Jog gave us figures of some other countries like Canada, Australia, South Africa. I will quote those figures when we come to the general cut under salaries of Ministers. He says that the maximum pay of a Minister should not exceed Rs. 3,000. I submit that even that is much in my opinion looking to the capacity of the taxpayers of this Presidency and also looking to the revenue of the Presidency as a whole. It was I who gave here some figures a couple of years ago about Canada, which is the principal Dominion of Great Britain, and its revenue is 150 crores and the Chief Minister of Canada gets about Rs. 2,700 to 3,000 per month. The revenue of Canada is 11 times that of Bombay and yet the Chief Minister of Canada gets about Rs. 2,700 to 3,000 a month as against the salary of Rs. 5,333 which is drawn by the Honourable the Leader of the House in Bombay which has a revenue of 14 crores. Even the Collectors and the Commissioners and other Civil Servants in the Colonies are not getting as much as what they get in India. If you were to compare the taxable capacity of the people and also the revenue of the province of Bombay with that of the Colonies, you will be bound to admit that the salaries we pay here are out of all proportion to those paid in the Colonies. The standard of living in Canada or South Africa, Australia or New Zealand is in no way inferior to that obtaining in Bombay Presidency but is in fact much higher than that in Bombay, and yet there the standard of salaries is lower than that obtaining in Bombay.

Now a few words about contracts of service. We have been told that there are some contracts with Government servants and that they cannot be broken, but only yesterday, or the day before yesterday, it was I believe the honourable member the Director of Public Instruction or some other member of Government who advised us to break contracts with Primary teachers. He, I believe, told us that though the salaries of teachers have been fixed by Government recently and though the teachers have been given an assurance that those salaries would be given to them in future, yet he advised members of this House to exercise their influence with district local boards and to induce them to reduce the salaries of teachers under their control.

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

That was the suggestion thrown out by a responsible officer of Government that though the Government have entered into contracts by fixing their salaries and allowances Government would be prepared to give sanction to the district local boards to cut down their salaries. The teachers are low-paid servants. We might put them on a level with clerks. If their salaries can be cut down, I do not know why the salaries of higher servants should not also be cut down. The same principle applies both to highly-paid and low-paid officers. I maintain, Sir, as I have maintained in the past, that the salaries of public servants of this Presidency are on a scale that the general tax-payers are not in a position to maintain; and it is the duty of Government—whatever Government it may be—always to fix the standard of salaries according to the income of the population over whom they rule. I gave out the figures of the income of the population and I need not repeat them again to-day. Therefore Government should take such steps as to reduce the standard of salaries to the level which the tax-payers will be able to bear. I do not think hardship will be caused to any one if the salaries are reduced on account of the reduction in the commodity prices and in the cost of living.

There is one other point which I wanted to bring to the notice of the Honourable the Finance Member. I refer to the items on page 88 of the White Book. I notice two items against "I.—Commissioner in Sind", one of Rs. 71,000 and the other of Rs. 1,90,000. The total of these two items gives Rs. 2,61,000. That is for Sind—the Commissioner in Sind and his establishment. Now, taking the other three Commissioners and their establishments, the cost comes to about Rs. 2,80,000. It is obvious, therefore, that while three Commissioners with their establishments cost Rs. 2,80,000 in the Presidency proper, one Commissioner with his establishment costs Rs. 2,61,000 in Sind. I want to know the reason for this great disparity. Of course I raise this point for the information of the honourable House. At first I thought that as the Commissioner in Sind has very wide powers, he must be getting a high pay, perhaps next to the Governor; but he is only getting Rs. 3,500. So there must be some other extra establishment charges. I hope that the Honourable the Finance Member will be good enough to explain this great disparity between the Presidency and Sind. There are other points also, but as I said, I shall speak on this cut moved by the honourable member Mr. Jog.

Mr. J. S. KADRI (Northern Division): Sir, the motion involves very radical and highly important issues. I would, therefore, like to make a few observations regarding them. It has been an admitted fact that the Government machinery is very costly, and it is for this reason that His Excellency the Governor has decided to reduce the size of the Cabinet to four members. I think that is a very wise decision and it is very much appreciated by this honourable House. It is necessary that this decision should be given effect to as early as possible, with a view to facilitate the smooth working of the future administration, which will devolve on the reformed government, so that the Government machinery may be in proper working order, by the time the new reforms are set in motion. Of course in pre-reform years, the Cabinet was carrying on its business with fewer men and there was no complaint on that score and there is no reason to fear that in future also the reduced Cabinet will not be able to discharge its functions quite satisfactorily. The aim of the reduction is not only economy but also efficiency, and I think the smaller the number, the greater the efficiency. Of course very great care will have to be taken by His Excellency the Governor, in selecting the Ministers as well as the Members of the Executive Council. We do hope that the best men will be selected, not with any regard to caste or creed, but on pure merits, men who would inspire confidence not only in the Government but also in the public and who would have a strong backing behind them. I fully endorse the suggestion that the reduction of the Cabinet should take place without any further delay.

As regards the salaries, the matter is one of paramount importance. I think the day is not distant when even the President of this honourable House will be an honorary one and the popular Ministers will be well prepared to serve on much less salaries than they are drawing at present. I hope the spirit of patriotism and self-sacrifice will inspire them to undertake their duty to their country on only such salaries as will keep their body and soul together. We have very good examples of this spirit of self-sacrifice in the Cabinets of other countries. The British Cabinet has no doubt set a very good example which must be copied here, and which will have to be copied sooner or later throughout India.

As regards the seat of the Government, that is also a question which has been mooted from various points of view, and on this point, the honourable member Sir Reginald Spence has struck a note which, I think, must touch the hearts of us all. I believe the seat of Government must be decided from the point of view of its convenience to the Presidency as a whole. I do not think that Bombay City is quite a suitable place for it. It is not only losing its reputation, as a commercial centre, but it is also losing its prestige as the chief seat of Government, so far as political considerations go. I think Ahmedabad has got a very strong ground [Hear, hear] not only on account of its central position but also on account of its commercial, political, and historical importance. It is situated close to the various parts of the Presidency, particularly Sind and Kathiawar, which are very important tracts——

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Sind is to be separated.

Mr. J. S. KADRI: I think Sind will not press for separation, when Ahmedabad becomes the seat of Government, because they will be quite close by and be the next door neighbours of Government. I think also that Government will be making a good deal of saving by shifting to Ahmedabad, because Ahmedabad is a cheap and a central place and also a commercial centre. I think the day is approaching when Ahmedabad will surpass Bombay in the matter of industries, commerce and trade as well as in other respects. Kathiawar is now growing in importance. Its ports are displacing Bombay to a great extent, and so far as

[Mr. J. S. Kadri]

Bhavnagar at least is concerned, it has been absorbing much of the overseas trade, and as the present circumstances go, Bombay is fast losing its ground as a commercial port and Kathiawar ports will usurp, if they have not already usurped, most of the trade of Bombay. So, on economic and political grounds and also on grounds of convenience, I think Ahmedabad will be a very suitable place, as the seat of Bombay Government. I would urge upon this honourable House to consider the suitability of Ahmedabad for Government from various points of view, some of which I have already stated. From the point of view of climate also, I think when the choice lies between Poona and Bombay, I should say Ahmedabad is not in any way inferior to Bombay at any rate, and with all the facilities of communication and transport now available and with the trunk road connecting Ahmedabad with Bombay, there should be no difficulty for Government to run down from Ahmedabad to Bombay at any time. It is only a question of 12 hours' journey and with air service and aerial communications which are imminent in the near future, I think Government will always be in touch with Bombay and other places.

An Honourable MEMBER: Why not Karachi?

Mr. J. S. KADRI: Ahmedabad is very close to Karachi also. Ahmedabad has got its own historical importance. It was the seat of Government for several centuries. Ahmedabad, I think, was rightly selected by the Sultans of Gujarat as the seat of their government. From there, they ruled over vast areas, extending up to Rutlam and Central Provinces. The political relations of the Bombay Government with the Central Government will be very much strengthened by the transfer of the seat of Government from Bombay to Ahmedabad. Delhi is not very far off from Ahmedabad. Ahmedabad is the railway junction connecting Gujarat with other parts of India. That is again a great advantage.

I would, therefore, strongly urge the claims of Ahmedabad to be the seat of the Bombay Government and I trust my Sindhi friends will support my view. They will perhaps be glad to relinquish their claim for separation from the Presidency, in case Government make up their mind to choose Ahmedabad as their headquarters.

(After recess.)

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Bombay University): Sir, I wish to make a few remarks while we are on this motion for a cut in the General Administration, and I understand that the policy of this Department has been under discussion. Retrenchment is being carried on, and the one criticism that we are justified in making in this behalf is that, though Government have retrenched sufficiently, perhaps more than sufficiently, from the bottom, that is to say, in the subordinate establishments and so on, there has not been sufficient retrenchment and economy at the top. By retrenchment I mean a curtailment in the number, and to begin from the top we have the Cabinet. Of course, it was very gratifying to find that His Excellency in the address which he gave to the Council stated :

"One possible avenue of retrenchment I indicated in my last speech to you—a reduction in the size of the Cabinet. We have pressed on with the examination of this possibility and now have a complete scheme worked out in detail for a reduction of the Cabinet to four portfolios—two Members and two Ministers."

Now, if there is a complete scheme of reorganisation of the Cabinet ready, as I understand from the speech of His Excellency, and that it has been framed with the complete co-operation of the members of that body, I see no reason why that scheme should not be brought into operation at the earliest opportunity, I mean from the beginning of the next financial year.

Then, Sir, with regard to the other retrenchment in the Secretariat, I have to make one remark, and it is this, that having regard to the pace of Indianisation, we find, as compared with other provinces, the Indianisation in the Bombay Secretariat has not been to the same extent as it has been in other presidencies. This question requires to be investigated, and if Indianisation is to result in certain economy, I do feel that there should be more Indianisation in the Secretariat, at least in so far as it will bear a favourable comparison with other provinces.

I might just mention once more—I had mentioned it in my general remarks on the budget—that the cut in the salaries has been an all-round one of 10 per cent. As I said, that operates inequitably so far as the lower salaries are concerned, but I would not dwell on the matter at any further length.

With regard to the size of the Cabinet, I shall say only one word. We need not be misunderstood when we are asking for this reduction. All the Members of the Cabinet, the Ministers and the Executive Councillors, have been doing their work in a manner which is known to all of us. It does not mean any criticism of any particular individual or any person. All that we on this side, as the Opposition in the Council, have done from time to time is to criticise the policies of the several departments that may be in charge of the several Members and Ministers. Our criticisms were directed to point out how the policy has been carried on and how it has not been responsive to the opinions expressed from this side of the House from time to time. The criticism that is made from this side is in a way constructive, and if we have reason to feel that an attempt is made to respond to the constructive proposals that are made from time to time from this side of the House, certainly we shall be satisfied. Therefore, when we make a criticism about the size of the Cabinet, or suggest a reduction in the numbers of the Ministers or Members of the Executive Council, let it not be understood that we have anything personal against any of the responsible persons. Their work is known to us. If, however, it is possible to combine any two or three departments in one individual who is capable of managing them, certainly it would be in the interest of public administration that a step forward in this direction, in the light in which the criticism is made, should be taken, and it should not be understood in any way that there is any desire on this side of the House to censure the Government. I need not dilate on this aspect of the question, but I do feel that the purpose of this motion will be served if, as a matter of fact, some consideration is given to the views expressed by non-official members on this side.

With regard to the Secretariat, of course it is rather too late to say anything, but I might add that the provision in the Government of India Act for the appointment of Council Secretaries has not been given effect to during the last 12 years. Perhaps, if that reform had been introduced, certainly there would have been not only a reduction in the cost, but also experience of Secretariat work would have been gained by the elected members of this Council. So, it would have resulted in economy and in preparing the people to conduct the administration when complete provincial autonomy came into being.

I do think, therefore, that taking into account all these circumstances and the fact that really we are financially not well off, it would be proper if the Government were pleased to give effect to this recommendation from the next year.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District): Sir, everybody on this side of the House wants provincial autonomy. That means the administration of this Presidency should be managed by the Ministers, namely, the elected members of the Council. Sir, 4 Executive Councillors and 3 Ministers have been managing the affairs of this Presidency since the inauguration of the Reforms. Government must have considered very carefully as to the number of Executive Councillors and Ministers necessary for carrying on the administration efficiently. On this side of the House, there is an intention in the minds of some of the members that the size of the Cabinet should be reduced. My honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale has stated that there is no personal feeling against any of the Members or Ministers, but it is purely for economy and retrenchment that the proposal is made. It is very good of him to say so. But when we are crying for democracy and for provincial autonomy, it is our bounden duty to say in plain terms that we are not in favour of reducing even a single one of the Ministers, who are the elected members and who can protect the interests of the people. So, I am strongly opposed to the idea that even a single one out of the Ministers should be reduced. If we at all want to effect economy, then there are so many ways of doing it. Government are going to appoint the Gauntlett Committee, and that committee will go carefully into the question of economy. As I said last time, the new Reforms are to come into operation soon and the Government of India Act is to be revised. We do not know what the British Parliament will decide as to the number of Ministers necessary to administer the affairs of the country under the revised Government of India Act. We do not know that. When so many honourable members get up and say that the number of Ministers should be reduced, do they know what work the Ministers are performing now? So far as I know, I see the Ministers busy with their work. All the time they are in their offices they are busy with their portfolios. So we are not justified in saying that their number should be reduced.

[Rao Bahadur D. R. Patil]

Again, Sir, though His Excellency said that a scheme for the re-organisation of the Cabinet is ready, he has made a very cautious statement that it is very doubtful whether it will be practicable. His Excellency has made that statement very carefully. I think that though the scheme is ready, perhaps His Excellency wanted to know the views of the honourable members of this House, and I for one am prepared to say that there should be no reduction whatsoever in the number of Ministers. If economy is wanted, I might suggest one way of effecting it. There are at present 4 Executive Councillors. They are getting salaries to the extent of Rs. 5,000 and odd each, and if we reduce their salaries by Rs. 1,000 per month, we can safely get a saving to the extent of about Rs. 48,000 a year. That comes to the annual salary of one Minister. Sir, the Ministers are our men; they are elected by the people, and naturally the people think that the Ministers should be there to protect their interests. When we want provincial autonomy, what is the meaning of that? It means that the administration should be conducted by our own representatives. If that is the idea, then of course it is in the fitness of things to say that the Ministers should not be reduced at all. Now, Sir, suppose His Excellency is not pleased to cut down the salaries of the Executive Councillors, there is another suggestion which can be very easily accepted by Government. The present number of 4 Executive Councillors can be reduced to two, with the sanction of the Secretary of State, and their portfolios can be transferred to the Ministers, who can very well manage these portfolios. If at all we want to reduce the size of the Cabinet, that is my suggestion.

Now, so far as the Ministers are concerned, I might submit that the people will never like the idea that the number of Ministers—their representatives—should be reduced. I might say that in plain terms. Of course some of the members have stated that out of pure love for economy they are suggesting a reduction in the size of the Cabinet, especially in the number of Ministers. But, Sir, though we know that there is that love for economy on the part of some members, yet I think in the interests of the administration they should not suggest this idea. That is my view. As I said, we do not know what exact number will be finally settled about the Ministers who will naturally govern the administration of this presidency. Under these circumstances, it is not desirable at all to take up the question of the reduction of the Cabinet. These are the suggestions which I have to make. I strongly oppose the idea of the cut.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Sir, the last speaker, a lawyer of great experience and long standing, makes a subtle distinction between "our men" and "your men." I do not know how he makes that distinction between the Ministers and Executive Councillors. There should be no such thing as "our men" and "your men." They are all our men. [An Honourable Member: Elected men.] They entered this Council as elected members and by their merit and qualification they have risen to a position of distinction. I entirely agree with the proposer of the cut in saying that under the present circumstances and looking to the economic crisis there should be some cut in the Secretariat and that the Cabinet should be retrenched, as His Excellency has given out in his speech. Are we really able to pay the high salaries? I would certainly invite some of the high salaried officers to visit some of the villages and see for themselves the people who hardly get one full meal once in two days so that they can see whether they are justified in receiving such a high salary. In the interest of the people whom they profess to govern and in view of the fact that this is a record year for economic crisis, they should give up some portion of their salaries. We are not able to pay such high salaries. They may be worth not only this much but even more, but we are unable to pay.

So far as the Retrenchment Committee is concerned, we have heard from the Honourable Minister that he has received every assistance and co-operation from all the departments. We have heard also from Rao Bahadur Kale that he received a questionnaire from the Retrenchment Committee, but before he could send in the answers, he was informed that the committee had been dissolved, with the result that his suggestions were not considered by the committee. Clearly the Secretariat was not even touched. I am strengthened in my argument by the figures in the White Book. I take the figures for the non-voted item in the Secretariat. We do not know actually what was spent. But if we look into the accounts, we find that the item is the same for which provision is made for the ensuing year. That is an index to show what is required for the administration. In the account the figure given is Rs. 1,12,00,000; and the budget estimate is Rs. 1,18,00,000 for the coming year. The account for 1930-31 is Rs. 1,12,00,000 and the budget estimate for the coming year is Rs. 1,18,00,000. Instead of there being a reduction on account of the 10 per cent. cut, we see an increase of 6 lakhs. Even the 10 per cent. cut has not affected the provision for the Secretariat. From the time I have been attending this Council, I have been observing that there is not a single Indian as Secretary in this Council. Not a single Indian as Revenue Commissioner, I do not know whether Indian civilians are not available. There is not even a Commissioner of Police. I am told that in Bombay the Police Commissioner has always been a man who is not an Indian. For Indian civilians convenient jobs are given. They are posted as Registrars of Co-operative Societies or Registrars of High Court or as Postmaster General. Even the Director of Public Instruction is not an Indian. Even the Chief Engineer or Conservator of Forests is not an Indian. Coming down, we find more Indian civilians as District Judges and Assistant Judges but not as Collectors. It is not intentional, perhaps it may be a coincidence. I only say that no position worth the name is occupied by Indians at any rate at present. I would urge this point and bring to the notice of Government that at least in future they should do something to post Indians to some responsible posts which are being held at present by non-Indians.

Now, we are told that a retrenchment committee is to be appointed. I have tabled a question as to the nature, scope and the time when it is to be appointed. I do not know why Sir Frederic Gauntlett is to be brought all the way for this small committee of retrenchment. There are capable men here like Professor Wadia, Sir Govindrao Madgaonkar, a retired Judge of the High Court, or Dr. Paranjpye. All these men can be very well employed to serve on the committee. I do not know why Sir Frederic Gaurtlett should be brought for this purpose at a heavy cost, thus burdening the already burdened people. In this budget at any rate we find discrimination made under almost all the heads. When we come to charity, we find that the provision for Indians is very small; when we come to schools, we find a comparatively very large provision is made for European schools; when we come to hospitals we know the debate that took place on it; and when we come to education, there is a cut of 20 per cent. on primary schools, but only of 5 per cent. to secondary schools as there is English there. Take the College Professors, the Vernacular Professors get less. I hope the Government will remedy the defects and explain why there has been no cut in the non-voted item, although His Excellency the Governor has given an idea of his giving up the move to Mahableshwar and his band also. The expenditure under this head should be less. I should like to know why the swollen figures are there.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM (Bombay Chamber of Commerce): Sir, I would like very briefly to say that I support the honourable mover of the cut in both the points which he made. It is believed by my constituency that the sooner the front bench, if I may so allude to its Honourable occupants without discourtesy, is reduced in number the better, for the reason that it will be a gesture which will be interpreted by the general public as Government's earnest desire to carry out retrenchment from the top and not from the middle or bottom. In making this remark I am conscious of the difficulty that it may not be an entirely proper way of expressing one's opinion by doing so under a cut of this nature, because I do not believe that this question can properly be criticized as one of policy on the part of the Government. It seems to me, however, that this is the only method by which this House as a whole can express its opinion on the question, and this is my reason for supporting this motion. So, I do agree that the sooner the reduction in the Cabinet comes the better, but I do not for a moment agree with the remarks of the honourable member representing the Bombay Millowners' Association that, because four members were able to carry on Government before the Reforms, they should be able to do so now. The work of course has enormously increased. One of the reasons for that increase is the existence of this honourable House itself. I am also doubtful as to whether, under the new constitution, the new provincial Government will be able to carry on with four Ministers. I strongly suspect that the number will have to be greater, but this is no argument against the reduction in size of the present cabinet because I anticipate that, while it will be necessary to have more than four Ministers in the new provincial legislature, the salaries given will be considerably lower.

[Mr. G. L. Winterbotham]

On the question of having one headquarters, I entirely agree with what has been said by the honourable mover.

Mr. PESTANSHAH N. VAKIL (Ahmedabad City): Sir, I had no desire to participate in this debate, but the observations made by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Patil induce me to offer a few remarks. I am afraid the honourable mover of the cut has been flogging a dead horse. If we read between the lines of the address delivered by His Excellency some days ago, it is apparent that the Government are in a determined mood. They seem to have already made up their minds to reduce the Cabinet. There is no use shedding crocodile's tears over the impending change. I admit that as the affairs of Government are getting more and more complex there is everywhere a tendency to increase the size of the Cabinet. It has happened in England and it has happened here too. In the time of Lord Salisbury the Cabinet was not half the size of what it was under Mr. Lloyd George and now Mr. MacDonald has been compelled by stress of circumstances to reduce the size of his Cabinet also. New departments have got to be created, for instance, the Department of Transport. There is always this tendency to make the administration topheavy. We cannot always resist this temptation of adding department after department to the machinery of the State.

What, however, I do not understand in this connection is this. Section 47 of the Government of India Act invests the Secretary of State in Council with power to appoint not more than four Executive Councillors. How the maximum should have become the minimum passes my comprehension, because for the past so many years the number of Executive Councillors has been not less than four. Section 52 which deals with the appointment of Ministers does not lay down any limit to their number. So, it is open to His Excellency even now to appoint as many Ministers as he likes. The number of Executive Councillors is prescribed and cannot be increased. One thing, however, is certain. The number of Executive Councillors has been maintained at its maximum figure and it is high time that this number should be reduced. Moreover for one Minister that will be retrenched, two Executive Councillors will have to go. These words have come out of His Excellency's mouth and I make mention of the fact for the information of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Patil.

The re-shuffling of portfolios is not in my opinion going to present insuperable obstacles. For instance, I cannot understand why irrigation should be divorced from agriculture. Irrigation is only a handmaid of agriculture. These portfolios can very well be placed in charge of one Minister. Similarly the provinces of education and local self-Government are so overlapping that they create at present no end of trouble due to the fact that these two charges are held by two Ministers separately. These two portfolios can very well be combined. I know the combined duties will be very heavy for the two Ministers and two Executive Councillors. But as I remarked a little while ago, it is open to His Excellency to add to the number of Ministers, if later on he found it necessary to do so. One thing is certain. The financial stringency is so acute that there is no device that should be left untried. Under these circumstances, Sir, I suppose that we should resign ourselves to the reduction in the size of the Cabinet.

As I am on this subject, I may as well be permitted to make a few remarks on retrenchment. "Retrenchment" has now become a slogan. Nobody has spoken at greater length than I on the value and abuse of slogans: you will remember, Sir, at Poona I was pulled up by your ruling when I was speaking on it. But retrenchment should be of the right kind. Retrenchment should not be empirical; it must be worked out on certain scientific principles. I do not understand why the Retrenchment Committee should have hesitated to recommend even a cut of 10 per cent. in salaries. From the Ad Interim Report of the Retrenchment Committee it is evident that the members were puzzled and hesitated what to do. The official part of the committee had definitely come to the conclusion that anything in excess of 6¼ per cent. would be a very great calamity for Government officials. The majority of the non-officials on the other hand recommended a maximum cut of 10 per cent. While they were quarrelling about fractions the Government of India came to their assistance by cutting the Gordian knot by announcing a flat reduction of 10 per cent., and the way our Government have accepted this cut of 10 per cent. goes to show that there is still room for considerable retrenchment in this direction. I must congratulate my honourable friend Mr. Kamat on having brought this point prominently to the notice of the Council on a previous occasion. The salaries absorb more than 5,37 lakhs of rupees. If you add to that a couple of crores for compensatory allowances, for contingencies and all that sort of thing, fully half the revenue of the province is swallowed up by salaries. Therefore, as I remarked on previous occasion, this is the domain in which to wield the axe without scruple and without compunction. Then, Sir, on what was the salary cut based? Did it take into consideration the index number of prices? It was merely empirical. When I say that, I do not mean to suggest that no important considerations were taken into reckoning in determining the cut: some must have been. But I shall explain my meaning in a different way. I mean to say that there must be some relation between the salary and the standard of comfort, or, shall we say, the necessity of the holder of the post. If commodity prices as indicated by the index number have risen, it becomes increasingly difficult for the Government servant to maintain that standard of comfort to which he has been accustomed; therefore, there is a demand for a rise in salaries. But parity of reasoning requires that when commodity prices are lowered, the causes that operated to increase the salaries must be allowed free play in the opposite direction, and the salaries must be cut down. Now, is there any relation between the proportion of the cut in salaries and the proportion of the reduction in commodity-prices? I do not think, Sir, that sufficient consideration has been given to this factor. I will give you only one instance. The starting salary of subordinate judges at present is Rs. 300,—perhaps,

[Mr. P. N. Vakil]

Rs. 350 in some special cases. Ten years ago their minimum or initial salary was Rs. 150. Now, are we to understand that the cost of living or the prices of the necessaries of life have risen fully 100 per cent.? Making allowance for house-rent, which has not appreciably come down and allowing also for certain other items of expenditure, such as the higher cost of education of children, still I do not suppose that the total cost of living is now 100 per cent. higher than it was about a decade ago—a consideration which alone can justify the existing scale of salaries. I therefore think that the ten per cent. cut is not adequate. I am sure that the Gauntlett Committee, if the terms of reference permit, will have to go into the whole question over again. I am afraid the Government of India may also have to do the same sooner or later, because this is the field in which retrenchment will yield the best results.

Then, Sir, I do not desire to reopen a question which was discussed yesterday. But under the latitude allowed by the nature of the cut I shall with your permission only refer very briefly to it. Alluding to the opposition to the abolition of the third session of the Council the Honourable the Leader of the House charged this part of the House with inconsistency inasmuch as they clamoured for economy on the one hand and on the other were not prepared to accept it when it was offered in the shape of that curtailment. I think, Sir, he has done us less than justice. Well, economy must be real, proper economy and not economy merely in name. We are not here to register the decrees of the members of Government. A saving of Rs. 15,000 or Rs. 20,000 at the most can hardly be called economy. We view the curtailment in the number of Council sessions as an encroachment on the privileges to which we have been accustomed for a number of years and to which we have come to look forward with great keenness and eagerness. Some very cogent arguments were advanced by my honourable friend the mover of the cut and also by Rao Bahadur Patil. I take this opportunity of adding one more argument, namely, that we, elected—and for the matter of that nominated members, too—form an important connecting-link between the rulers and the ruled; we come fresh from our constituencies and form, as it were, a political barometer reflecting the trend of events in our districts, the condition of the rural areas, and so forth. We give Government first-hand information. By the abolition of the third session of the Council the loss will not be on one side only; Government will be greater losers. What, Sir, is the objection to the annual summer migration to the hills? It is that the Government is isolated from the people. Already there is the charge that this is an alien Government and it is not in touch with the people. The reason for it is that there is a great deal of aloofness between the rulers and the ruled. The occasions for contact between the two must be made more and more numerous. This to my mind is one of the most cogent reasons for our requesting Government to reconsider the matter. The Honourable the Leader of the House has not fully realised the depth of feeling which has been animating this part of the House. Then a statement was made by somebody that some members were even willing to forgo their allowances. We are already making a very great sacrifice. The allowances cover only a small part of our sacrifice. The allowance is only Rs. 8 a day; many of us spend more than double that amount. Count also the sacrifice of time that the lawyers make. Some of them earn as much as Rs. 100 a day, perhaps Rs. 200 or Rs. 300. Then we are taken away from our business for a considerable length of time. It is not fair to expect us to make a monetary sacrifice on top of the sacrifices in time and convenience that we are already making. That was, however, only a suggestion from a private member. Then the Honourable the Leader of the House charged my honourable friend Mr. Jog with inconsistency, in that his demand for addition to the number of days allotted for non-official business was not consistent with his complaint about the ennui or the lack of interest shown by non-official members at the fag end of a long-drawn-out session. There is hardly any inconsistency here. We want the third session, but failing that we want a larger number of days to be devoted to the transaction of private business. It is not possible to add to the length of this session, i.e. the budget session, which is already too long, five weeks. And hot in the footsteps of the budget session will follow another long monsoon session. That will be rather too much. Therefore, the third session is absolutely necessary. I felt compelled to give expression to these views because I could see that the Honourable the Leader of the House and the Honourable the Finance Member did not fully realise the depth of our feelings on this point.

The Honourable Mr. G. A. THOMAS: Sir, my honourable friend from Kanara suggested that there was racial discrimination in the higher appointments of the services. That is entirely an incorrect statement. He referred to the Public Works Department. During the last two or three years, there have been three Indian Chief Engineers, viz. Mr. Framji, Mr. Satarawala and Mr. Moraes. I can recall three Secretaries to Government who were Indians, Mr. Dalal, Mr. Wadia and Mr. Nanavati; in the Revenue Department, two Commissioners in recent years, Mr. Ghosal and Mr. Bharucha; and at the present moment, the Surgeon General is an Indian. There is no racial discrimination. The House must remember that Indianization is a flower of recent growth. Indianization cannot begin at the top; it must begin at the bottom. Appointments go, provided there is a suitable degree of efficiency, by seniority. There are more Europeans in the upper branches of the services than in the lower, and as time goes on their places will be taken by Indians, and I have no doubt that ten or fifteen years hence there will be a majority of Indians in the higher posts. The fact that there are not many Indians at present in the higher posts is simply because there are no Indians at the present moment of sufficient seniority.

Mr. JOHN HUMPHREY (Karachi Chamber of Commerce): Sir, the support to the motion that I moved this afternoon has been so overwhelming that there is left very little for me to say on the debate. The position can be best described by using the sentence that was used by the honourable member Mr. Pestanshah Vakil. He rather accused me of flogging a dead horse. The position, Sir, is, the horse is not dead yet; the horse is still alive, and we want to see that it is dead. When it is dead we shall flog it no longer. What we want is a definite statement this afternoon, if it is possible to give it to us, that the Cabinet will be reduced. It may not be possible at the present moment to state when it will be reduced. If it is not possible to state when it will be reduced at the present moment, we should like to know why. What we do want is that Government should realise very fully from what has been said this afternoon that there is a definite opinion that the Cabinet should be reduced as early as possible to the figures mentioned by His Excellency. Government have agreed to it in principle and the thing is now to carry it into effect.

With regard to the other portion of my motion, namely, one headquarters, my honourable friends Sir Reginald Spence and Mr. Kadri have both suggested Ahmedabad as a possible headquarters. The idea underlying the suggestion of one headquarters is to retrench, and building a new capital at Ahmedabad would not be retrenching.

I have nothing further to say, Sir, and so, I resume my seat.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I am thankful to the honourable mover of the cut for all that he said about Government. I am at the same time very glad that this move has come from the honourable members belonging to the European group, though I may characterise it as a rather late move. However, I welcome it because it shows their interest in the welfare of this Presidency. The honourable mover of the cut gave us to understand that his object in moving this cut was two-fold (1) reduction of the Cabinet and (2) that Government should continue to remain in Bombay all the year round. The Non-European group however added one more, namely, reduction of salaries, about which the European group was silent.

First I will deal with the reduction of salaries. We have, as honourable members know, three kinds of services in this Presidency, namely, the All-India Services, the Provincial Services and the Subordinate Services. Honourable members are aware that the All-India sevices are under the control of the Secretary of State, and this Government has no power to interfere with their salaries. As regards the Provincial Services where we have authority, we have already provided a new scale for new entrants as well as for the subordinate services.

It was said that the work that was done during the pre-reform days by four Members is being done today by seven, though the amount of work is the same. Honourable members should bear in mind that Finance which was originally in the hands of the Government of India has been now transferred to the provinces, and is being dealt with as a provincial subject. I specially draw the attention of my honourable friend opposite to me, my former colleague in the pre-reform Councils, to what used to be the discussion under the budget in the pre-reform Council when it was not in the hands of the provincial Government. We used to criticise the whole budget after it was sanctioned by the Government of

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

India. Now the situation is completely changed. At that time we could not interfere with many of its items—it was merely advice or suggestions we could offer—but now we have power to interfere with the budget——

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: May I ask if any one on this side said that the work was just the same?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Almost every one.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: No.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: So, there is the additional work of the Finance Department, and it is the most important work, because it is the Finance Department which initiates finance bills and brings before the House all demands for expenditure. Therefore, honourable members will see that the work has considerably increased. As one of the honourable members said—I think it was Mr. Winterbotham who explained it—we have to face the Councils nearly 3 to 3½ months of the year; and the number of questions has also increased; then the preparation for the Council has also considerably added to the work of the Cabinet; and, last, but not least, honourable members will see that even the number of visitors we get now has gone up, because now Government is more in contact with the people.

Again, it was said that if we do not reduce the number of the Cabinet to four, when the new constitution is introduced, the four new Ministers will have to start the work of re-shuffling, and that will be very difficult for them. But honourable members forget that not only this Government, but as far as I remember, speaking from memory, every provincial Government has recommended five Ministers, and so——

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: Who knows, the number may be increased?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Yes, it may even go from five to six. I am simply replying to the arguments put forward by honourable members in order to show that there is likely to be difficulty of re-shuffling even if we reduce our number to four at the present moment. Again, honourable members will see what will be the repercussion on other Presidencies, if we reduce the Cabinet to four and carry on with four. What is the number in the major presidencies and other provinces? Much greater. However, we have already willingly consented to be reduced, and we have left it to His Excellency to keep as many as he likes and remove as many as he likes.

Coming now to the move to Poona, my honourable friend Mr. Pestanshah Vakil wanted us to come into contact with the people. There was a suggestion that we should go to Ahmedabad. There was a little bit of controversy over that; whether political thought emanates from Bombay or Ahmedabad. I am not concerned with that, but honourable members who belong to the city of Bombay and Ahmedabad may decide it between themselves. But I would stress one fact, and that is, that our Presidency is both industrial and agricultural. Are we going to be in touch only with Bombay City, which is purely industrial, and should we not go out of it? We must come into contact with the people in the mofussil. I think we ought to be fair both to the agriculturists as well as to the people living in big cities. I think it is enough that we remain here for 6 or 7 months. I may as well tell honourable members that every time I am in Poona, irrigators have been visiting me in large numbers, but when I am in Bombay I do not find any one of them here.

Now, Sir, I come to what His Excellency has already assured this honourable House about, namely, that he is doing his best in regard to the reduction of the Cabinet. Honourable members ought to realise his difficulty also. If honourable members refer to section 47 of the Government of India Act, they will read as follows:

"47(1) The members of a governor's executive council shall be appointed by His Majesty by warrant under the Royal Sign Manual, and shall be of such number, not exceeding four, as the Secretary of State in Council directs.

(2) One at least of them must be a person who at the time of his appointment has been for at least twelve years in the service of the Crown in India."

So, honourable members will see that the appointments are made by His Majesty the King, and unless we get the sanction of the Secretary of State, we cannot reduce the Executive Members, and I assure you that His Excellency is in communication with the Secretary of State in this matter. Once again I assure you, honourable members, that none of us wants to stick to these seats [Hear, hear]. We have already given our resignations into the hands of His Excellency the Governor, and as soon as His Excellency gets the sanction of the Secretary of State, we will move in the matter. With this explanation, Sir, I hope the honourable mover of the cut will withdraw his motion.

Mr. JOHN HUMPHREY (Karachi Chamber of Commerce): Sir, I beg leave to withdraw my motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Demand put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 1,44,000 under 22-General Administration—Heads of Provinces—Ministers—Transferred.

Question proposed.

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Sir, I beg to move:

"Reduce by Rs. 60,000—Total Grant—Pay of Ministers—Rs. 1,44,000 (C.E. page 118)."

At the time I tabled this motion, I had in mind that there should be a reduction of one post of a Minister and if that one post of a Minister is reduced, I thought the salaries of the remaining Ministers would be reduced only by Rs. 500.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: More work and less pay!

Mr. V. N. JOG: The Retrenchment Committee at that time definitely stated in their interim report that the Cabinet was to be reduced to four

[Mr. V. N. Jog]

—two in the Executive Council and one reduction in the Ministers. I thought that if the Presidency was saved the expense on account of the pay of one Minister, then this side of the House would be inclined to agree to each of the remaining two Ministers being paid Rs. 3,500 per month on account of the heavier burden that they would have to bear.

I know, Sir, what will be the result of this cut. With regard to the last cut, perhaps the honourable mover was induced to withdraw in consideration of the fact that even if the cut was carried, it was not obligatory upon the Government or upon His Excellency to accept the motion, namely, to reduce the size of the Cabinet to four, because it is not solely within the jurisdiction either of His Excellency or his Government and has to be referred to the Secretary of State. But this matter, namely, the reduction of the salary of the Ministers is solely within the jurisdiction of this House. Therefore, if the House is serious, it should express itself on this motion. If this motion is carried, there would be a specific mandate instead of a recommendation. Even if they want to retain the three Ministers, the result of carrying this motion will be that they will be paid less, that is, Rs. 2,800 each.

With regard to the recommendation of the Retrenchment Committee on this subject, you will be pleased to see, Sir, that on page 13 of the Statement No. 1 showing the action taken by Government on the recommendations, it is stated :

"In view of the fact that the Legislative Council has recently given a definite vote in favour of retaining the present salary and in view of section 52(1) of the Government of India Act, Government do not intend to take the initiative in this matter."

So, the whole burden is thrown upon this side of the House. When last time I moved a similar cut, I urged that this was a matter solely within the province of this House and the Retrenchment Committee or the Government could not do anything, and I think most of the members first seemed to have agreed with me, but the atmosphere changed after the Finance Member gave them to understand that the matter was within the province of the Retrenchment Committee and Government. You will find this in the debates of the last year. On page 760 of the debates of the February-March 1931 session you will find that I made mention of that fact in my reply :

"The cuts have to be obeyed unless certified. That is not the case with the recommendations of the Retrenchment Committee. I would like further to emphasize to this House that the Retrenchment Committee cannot be useful in this particular matter. As regards this, I will bring to the notice of this House section 52 of the Government of India Act, because the impression is current here that the Retrenchment Committee can take cognisance of this matter, but I submit, Sir, it cannot do so. It has no control over this."

That is what I said at the time of my reply. There was a feeling at the time that the Retrenchment Committee which Government had announced would go into the matter and that they would be able to reduce the salary. At that time this point was touched upon by the Honourable the Finance Member. At that time the Honourable the

[Mr. V. N. Jog]

Finance Member took a different view. You will find it on page 763 of the debates of the last budget session:

"Mr. President, I did not want to make any reply to any point, but because the honourable member who moved this cut has referred to section 52 of the Government of India Act and has tried to raise a cloud as regards the interpretation of that section, I am constrained to explain the section as it is framed."

Then he went on to say that as the word "may" had been used, it was possible for the Government to reduce the salary if the Retrenchment Committee so recommended. That impression became common, and as the members were carried away by the assurance of the Finance Member, my motion was not carried. The House was under the impression that the Retrenchment Committee would consider the whole question and if the Retrenchment Committee recommended it, Government would accept the reduction of salaries of Ministers. That was practically the assurance given by the Honourable the Finance Member. When this matter came up before the Retrenchment Committee, objection was raised that the matter was not within the province of the Retrenchment Committee and that therefore the Committee could not consider it. I quote the relevant passage from the Retrenchment Committee's report:

"We make the following special recommendations by a majority:

The Cabinet.—The pay of Ministers should be fixed at Rs. 3,000. The majority of the non-official members would couple this with a recommendation that the pay of Executive Councillors should also be reduced.

Note.—Khan Bahadur Allahbaksh holds the view that as the Legislative Council recently discussed and negatived a reduction in the pay of Ministers, the Committee as being a committee of the Legislative Council has a mandate not to make this proposal and should not have raised the question."

That passage occurs on page 4, paragraph 10 of the report. In the statement showing the action taken by Government on the recommendations, Government say that it is solely a matter within the purview of the Council. If the interpretation had not been given that under the Government of India Act Government had the power to reduce the salaries of Ministers, the vote of the Council would have been in favour of my motion of last year. I have now again moved the cut at the fag-end of this debate and in a depleted House. I do not know what will be the fate of this motion, because again a bait has been held out that an expert committee is to be appointed. The Retrenchment Committee was a committee of this House; but this is an expert committee which is to be appointed to reorganise the whole administration. That committee may perhaps go into this question; or the argument may be advanced that as the reforms will be introduced shortly, this will not be the proper time to effect any change. The question of sentiment and prestige also comes in. If the salaries of the Executive Councillors are not reduced, why should the salaries of the Ministers be reduced? It may be said that though the Act lays down that the salaries of Ministers and Executive Councillors may be equal, the Ministers' salaries have already been reduced to Rs. 4,000. But, Sir, so far as the reserved side is concerned, it is not in our hands. When the country demands a sacrifice, the question is who is to set the example? We are not, after all, reducing the salaries disproportionately. Taking even the status, the standard of comfort and everything into consideration, I think that the pay which has been now proposed in this cut, even if the alternative is taken, is quite sufficient. There will be no question of prestige, or status, or matters of that sort, because it is not stated by the other side that they are determined not to reduce the salaries even of the Executive Councillors. The whole matter, they say, is under consideration. So, when this matter is within our hands, I submit that the House would be well advised in accepting the motion.

Then with regard to the various other points, it is no use going over the same ground again. All that can be said, has been said last year. The only thing is that last year it was the impression of the House that the Retrenchment Committee could go into the question, and Government would accept the committee's recommendation.

Sir, I am not at all moving this as a censure motion; it is not at all a censure motion. It is only in the interest of the country and in order that there should be retrenchment that I am moving it. I have nothing personal about the individuals who are acting as Ministers. It is only as an example for others to follow that this reduction should come from the top, and as far as that part of the Cabinet which is responsible to this side is concerned, we are making an appeal and a request that they will agree to the cut in salary, and I hope that the House will pass this motion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I understand the implication of this motion to be that the number of Ministers be reduced to 2, and that the pay of the 2 Ministers so retained be reduced to Rs. 3,500 a month.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Yes, Sir. There is also another alternative which I have to suggest, how the cut is to be accepted. If this cut to the extent of Rs. 60,000 is passed, they can accept it by reducing one post and reducing the salaries to Rs. 3,500 per month, or else there is an alternative, if they want to retain all the three Ministers, each Minister shall have to be paid only Rs. 2,800 per month. This motion does not mean that any or any particular person is to be reduced. It is only a reduction of Rs. 60,000, and if the Government think that all the three Ministers should be kept, then I say that the pay may be reduced to Rs. 2,800.

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District): Mr. President, I can understand the point of view of my honourable friend Mr. Jog who is very keen about economy. He wants to set a good example to the Ministers and not to the Executive Councillors, because they are beyond the scope of his attack and their salaries are controlled by the Secretary of State. So, if he wanted to set a good example, it would have been proper for him to do so by suggesting that no travelling allowance or daily allowance should be allowed to the members of this House. He has not moved any cut in connection with that, though he has taken so much care to move so many other cuts.

Mr. J. S. KADRI: You may move it.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: I do not want to move that; that is silly. I do not want to move that cut.

Mr. J. S. KADRI: I will support you.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: I do not want your support. This is the way by which my honourable friend wants to set a good example. I do not think it would be proper to cut the salaries of the Ministers and reduce their number. The Honourable the Leader of the House has told us that the Government of Bombay are in communication with the Secretary of State as regards the reduction of the Cabinet. I think, when that is the state of things, it would be cruel——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: It is as regards a reduction in the number of the Executive Councillors of the Cabinet.

Rao Bahadur D. R. PATIL: But looking to the speech of His Excellency, if the number of Executive Councillors is reduced, His Excellency may be pleased perhaps to reduce the number of Ministers. Therefore, I say it is not proper at this stage to move any cut in the salary of the Ministers. The question about the reduction of Ministers will be decided within a short time. It appeared so from the speech of the Honourable the Leader of the House. Under these circumstances, I do not think that we should support the cut moved by my honourable friend Mr. Jog, and under these circumstances I hope that my honourable friend Mr. Jog will be pleased to withdraw his cut.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association): I hope, Sir, that this honourable House will not accept the proposed cut, first, because there is going to be a substantial reduction in the size of the Cabinet at a very early date; and, secondly, because our Ministers are already drawing their salaries on a lower scale compared with the Executive Councillors, even though originally it was intended that their salaries should be on a par. It was during the first session of the reformed Council, as you, Sir, doubtless know, that the members of this honourable House felt very strongly that if a substantial reduction was made in the salaries of the Ministers, which are under the control of this House, the step would produce a very desirable effect upon the mind of the Government and would soon be followed by a similar cut in the salaries of the Executive Councillors, which are reserved. I am sorry to say that I was one of those who were impressed by that argument at the time and voted for the reduction. But the result has been that the salaries of the Executive Councillors are still at the original figure, whereas our Ministers are drawing salaries on the reduced scale, then sanctioned. I do not think that it is at all fair to the Ministers that they should be thus put in an invidious position in consequence of this marked disparity between the two sections of the Government. If we want to bring about a reduction, I submit that it should be a general one, applicable to all the members of the Cabinet and not confined merely to the transferred section thereof. As, however, owing to the statutory limitations imposed upon this House by the Government of India Act, this object cannot be achieved so far as the covenanted services are concerned, I do not see any point in further reducing the salaries of the Ministers which are already lower than the salaries of the Executive Councillors. If the proposal of the honourable member for Dharwar (Mr. Jog) is accepted, it will put the Ministers under a further disadvantage, and make the disparity, already existing, still more pointed and invidious.

At the same time, we cannot ignore the fact that the re-construction of the Cabinet is under consideration, and the further fact that we have also requested His Excellency the Governor to hasten the step, so that the hopes held out to us during the course of his speech the other day, may be given effect to without unnecessary delay. With that prospect before us, I do not think we ought to press this cut and push it to a division. Personally, Sir, I am satisfied, and I am sure that even the honourable mover is satisfied, with the present position. I am equally certain that by moving this cut it must have been his intention merely to raise a discussion on this point and to bring to the notice of the Government in a definite form the views of this House on the matter. Now that this object has been achieved, I am sure he will agree that he ought to withdraw his motion, for we are all certain that before long the Cabinet is bound to be re-constituted and a substantial reduction made in its size by the elimination of the extra members thereof. But, meanwhile, to make a reduction in the salaries, merely of the transferred section of the Cabinet, leaving the other section untouched, would, to my mind, not be fair, either to the Cabinet as a whole or to the Ministerial section thereof. I hope, therefore, that the honourable member will withdraw his proposal.

Mr. V. N. JOG: Sir, I ask for leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Total demand put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Sir, I move a grant of Rs. 19,000 under 19, Interest on Ordinary Debt (Reserved).

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I move a grant of Rs. 64,01,000 under XIII—Deduct—"Working Expenses", "15-Other revenue expenditure financed from ordinary revenues," and "Refunds of revenue", under the heads "XIII" and "XIV".

Question proposed.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: Sir, I move that the grant be reduced by 2 lakhs.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: I rise to a point of order. He cannot move his cut. The House has voted the establishment under 41, Civil Works, which includes Rs. 3,12,000.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The point of order raised is correct.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: What is the point of order, Sir?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member's motion is:

"Reduce by 2 lakhs—(Statement E-Item No. 5)—Total Grant—Rs. 3,12,000".

That has already been sanctioned.

Khan Bahadur KHUHRO: Shall I be permitted to speak on the whole demand?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: If there is a cut for general discussion.

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 38,000 under 9A, Scheduled Taxes (Reserved).

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 6,53,000 under 9, Registration (Transferred).

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: I make a demand for Rs. 1,29,000 under 8A, Forest Capital Outlay charged to revenue (Transferred).

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 34,62,000 under 8, Forest (Transferred).

Question proposed.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI rose.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. The honourable member is about to move, as I understand, a cut of one rupee on the total demand. He must understand the implication of it. I have already warned the House that, unless the whole House or a majority of it is in favour of the motion, it is not enough that the mover himself is determined to carry it to a division. A motion like that is a censure motion. It is not advisable to move it, unless it is seriously meant to be pressed.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: I submit I do not move it.

Demand put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 4,82,000 under 7, Stamps (Reserved).

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Sir RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 54,40,000 under 6, Excise (Transferred).

Question put, and agreed to.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Sir, I make a demand for Rs. 57,38,000 under 5, Land Revenue (Reserved).

Question proposed.

Mr. V. A. SURVE (Ratnagiri District) (Addressed the House in Marathi): Sir, I beg to move—

Reduce by Rs. 100 total demand under Land Revenue, Rs. 66,86,000 (C. E. page 53).

Sir, the fate of the cultivators is determined by the policy pursued by Government in the Revenue Department. In the Ratnagiri district we depend for water mostly on the rains. There are a few nullahs and rivers which supply water during summer. Section 37 of the Land Revenue Code governs the use of water from these nullahs and rivers. In the villages there is not a single river or water channel which is under the control of a single individual or community, but the agriculturists in hard times try to eke out a livelihood by cultivating a few garden crops by making use of these rivers and nullahs. Out come the revenue subordinates, point to the rules of the Land Revenue Code and stop them from using the water of these rivers and nullahs. Is this not zulum? Where is justice to the agriculturists. The departmental subordinates appear to rely on section 55 or 57 of the Land Revenue Code, which says that the rivers and streams are the property of Government. On the strength of this section, the villagers are asked to dismantle their mots. This sort of thing goes on in the Harekeri village, but not in khoti villages. Why should there be this discrimination?

The Honourable Sir GOVINDRAO PRADHAN: The Honourable the Revenue Member wishes that the honourable member should give some examples.

Mr. V. A. SURVE: In the villages of Malgu and Vara the talatis have actually forced the agriculturists to remove their mots, which they were using for growing brinjals, chillies, etc. The people of a place called Varoda have actually complained to me about this. Why should Government tolerate this open defiance of their rules by their subordinates? I appeal to the Honourable the Revenue Member to remedy this state of affairs as early as he can and protect the agriculturists from the zulum of the subordinate officials. The Revenue Department is the chief department which comes into close contact with the every day life of the agriculturists. The departments of Excise and Forests do not affect them so much. My final appeal to the Revenue Member is that he should see that the subordinates of the Revenue Department do not abuse the provisions of the Land Revenue Code or transgress the rules laid down in it.

[Mr. V. A. Surve]

Besides, I hear that a suspension of three annas in the rupee has been given in the Kolaba District.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Two annas suspension has been given in certain talukas of the Ratnagiri District and three annas in certain talukas of the Kolaba District.

Mr. V. A. SURVE: This is of course all to the good, but what I wish to urge upon the Honourable the Revenue Member is that there might be a mingling of sympathy with the duty of collection of land revenue. I however do not see why there should be two annas suspension in the Ratnagiri District as against three annas in the Kolaba District.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Is there any difference between the suspension granted in Ratnagiri and that granted in Kolaba?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: It is three annas in certain talukas of the Kolaba district and two annas in certain talukas of the Ratnagiri district. If the honourable member Mr. V. A. Surve would do me the honour to read the reply which was printed, he will know the facts.

Mr. V. A. SURVE: Whatever that may be, Sir, the instalments have been reduced from four to two, and there is such an absence of sympathy or even discretion in enforcing the letter of the law, that it might interest the House and the Honourable the Revenue Member to know what happened in my own case. On the 13th of a certain month I wrote to the taluka magistrate that within five days from that date I would pay Rs. 210. At 1 p.m. on the 18th I paid the amount. On the 16th, however, when I was not there, the revenue man comes and seizes my goods by way of distraint. Why should that revenue officer have shown such strictness in collecting the amount? What the agriculturists would appreciate most is that even if there is a delay of a few days in payment, they should not be harassed in the manner I have shown.

The Ratnagiri district is not a famine-stricken district. We have 240 inches of rain and it has been estimated by Government that it costs Rs. 8-12-0 worth of grain for a man's food per year! Concessions of two or three annas do not mean much if they are not accompanied by even a small trace of sympathy in the process of collection of the land revenue, and even if there happens to be a slight delay of four or eight days, the agriculturists should be treated leniently. I am laying particular stress on this question of sympathy and sympathetic handling of the poor agriculturists who are mostly illiterate and ignorant.

To place this special grievance of the agriculturists I have moved this cut so that the Honourable the Revenue Member will be pleased to take suitable steps to remove our grievances by bringing his subordinates under proper control. Although all the other departments have to do a good deal with the daily lives of the agriculturists, it is the Revenue Department which has to do most with them and this makes an additional reason why the Honourable the Revenue Member should devote special and personal attention to the complaints I have laid before the House to-day with a view to seeing their causes removed. I trust my motion will be accepted by the House.

Question proposed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I should like to know if there are many honourable members who wish to speak on the general policy under Land Revenue, because on that will depend the arrangements for to-morrow.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I was only hoping that no other honourable member would speak on this motion and that we might be able to finish this item this evening. If other honourable members desire to speak, then it is no use my attempting to reply before I hear them.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I was myself waiting to congratulate the House on the record they have made this time in having gone through every item of the budget a day before the guillotine to-morrow. As, however, there are so many members desiring to speak, I think to-morrow will be occupied. On the last day of the demands, we usually meet at 12 o'clock, rise for tea at 3-30, meet again at 4 and go on till 5 when the guillotine is applied. If honourable members will continue to show the same spirit which they have shown so far in carrying on the debate, we need not meet early.

As regards the day after to-morrow, which is a private day, I wish to inform the House that I propose to give preference to the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale's motion on Saturday. So, that will be taken first and disposed of on that day.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: We have no objection to the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale's motion being taken up on Saturday. In fact, I have already informed him that we would take it up on the first day available.

There is one other matter. If we finished the discussion on demands for grants to-morrow, and if there is time, we may take up the statutory motion of the honourable member Mr. Jog regarding the Co-operative Societies Rules.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: If there is time, we might dispose of that motion.

Mr. V. N. JOG: I may inform you, Sir, that I am not going to move it.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Do I understand, Sir, that we meet at 2 o'clock to-morrow and that the discussion on demands will be finished by 5 o'clock?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The law is that the discussion may go on till 5 o'clock; and then all the remaining demands will be put to the House without discussion.

The Honourable Sirdar Sir RUSTOM JEHANGIR VAKIL: On Saturday we meet in the morning as usual; do we not?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Yes. The House is now adjourned to 2 o'clock to-morrow, Friday, the 11th March 1932.

DISCUSSION ON DEMANDS FOR GRANTS—resumed.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI (Kanara District): Sir, it is said that God helps those who are helpless. I thought that this item, which is the last in the second list, would never be reached. I had also tabled a resolution recommending to Government the grant of remissions. That also came last, and I thought that even that would not be reached. Fortunately, we have reached this item. So, I am availing myself of this opportunity to represent the grievances of Kanara with a view to getting some redress from Government. But before doing so, I wish to offer thanks on behalf of my constituency to two Members on the Government benches. The first is Sir Govindrao Pradhan, who, when he was Minister, was kind enough to visit Kanara and after local inspection tried much to redress, and actually redressed, many of our grievances. The second is the Honourable Member in charge of the Revenue Department. He kindly went through the report of the settlement officer who was specially appointed for the purpose—I mean Mr. Collins—and gave us last year a remission of Rs. 17,000. Mr. Collins had recommended a reduction of Rs. 17,000 from the land revenue paid by gardeners.

After having thanked these Honourable Members, I come to state what the real facts in Kanara are. For the past three years, the owners of garden lands in Kanara and the agriculturists in general have not been getting a proper price for their produce: they have not been getting even 30 per cent. of the prices they used to get three or four years ago. I have already stated on the floor of this House that Kanara is regarded by the Agricultural Department as the pride of that department and as the pride of the Bombay presidency. The assessment per acre of garden land is up to Rs. 16 and the maximum assessment for paddy lands, called tari lands, is Rs. 8 per acre. I think that is the highest level of assessment in this presidency. Yet we are neglected by the Department of Agriculture. It is the general complaint that the agriculturists in this country have not occupation for all the 365 days in the year. But so far as the cultivators of garden lands in Kanara are concerned, not only are they occupied all through the year, but they have work every minute of every day of the 365 days. From a really good garden land in ordinary times the gross yield was not less than Rs. 400 per acre. So, it gives sufficient work for all the 365 days and also sufficient income. There is also one other feature of these garden lands, and that is for thousands of years one garden can yield the same amount of produce. That is a peculiarity of these garden lands. The Kanara district is more fortunate than other districts in that we have never known a year of famine or scarcity, there is no quarrel between Hindus and Mussalmans or between Brahmins and non-Brahmins. In all these respects we are blessed. But our grievances are, firstly, malaria; secondly, forests; and, thirdly, lack of sympathy. By forests I mean excess of forests as well as want of forest produce. By malaria, I mean not only that we die of malaria, but also that we are disabled from work in the fields and weakened. This time, I may say they have selected a representative of my type just to show also to the House what type of people inhabit Kanara. I attribute to lack of sympathy the ignorance and illiteracy of our villagers. Most of the villagers have to live in valleys remote one from the other and not connected by roads, in order to carry on the cultivation of their special commodity, spice. They are so ignorant that when some of them come to the town and see a motor car they ask us "Where are the oxen to be yoked to this?" This is the kind of illiteracy and ignorance prevailing in the villages. [Interruption.] It is no exaggeration. With all this, some of these agriculturists are black-marked as civil disobedience and non-cooperation fellows. The fact is that they are unable to pay. Let some means be shown to them and they will pay. If we are shown some means to pay, I undertake myself to pay each and every pie of assessment in Kanara. The Co-operative Department no doubt gave us some help in the past by way of advances and loans, but it has left us in heavy indebtedness. For the last three years, instead of coming to our aid in these dire days they have stopped all further loans; there are circular orders now that no advances should be given to agriculturists because the agriculturists are already in debt. That is the case. The sowkars are angry with us for our having started co-operative societies in hundreds and they do not advance a single pie. Government have ceased to pay tagavi. No doubt last year they financed the cultivators by tagavi to the extent of nearly Rs. 20,000; but they took away with their left hand what they advanced with their right hand. They paid the tagavi only to help in the payment of revenue.

After stating this much, I shall come to state what the effect of this policy has been on Kanara. I shall first take two talukas, Sirsi and Siddapur. In 1891, the population of Sirsi was 54,000; in 1901, 53,000; in 1911, 47,000; in 1921, 40,000 and in 1931, 39,000. So, there is a decrease of 26 per cent. in the Sirsi taluka. In the Siddapur taluka, the population in 1891 was 42,000; in 1901, 41,000, in 1911, 37,000; in 1921, 32,000 and in 1931, 33,000. So, there is also a decrease of 21 per cent. in the Siddapur taluka.

I stated at the beginning that the Honourable the Revenue Member had actually granted us a remission of Rs. 17,000. It was only what was our due from the year 1925. The settlement officer, Mr. Collins, had strongly reported that the garden cultivators were heavily taxed and that they should be relieved to the extent of Rs. 17,000. That was only for some villages in these two talukas. Even that recommendation was not carried into effect, and in spite of the inability of the people they were forced to pay every year. In the long run, however, some officer found that people had not a single pie to pay, took pity on them, and reported that to the higher authorities, and the Honourable the Revenue Member having come to know of the fact granted remissions to the extent of Rs. 17,000. In the beginning of this session the Honourable the Revenue Member said that three annas remission was granted to some districts. I got up and asked him "What about Kanara?" I understood him to say that I must wait and see.

[Mr G. S. Gangoli]

The Honourable the Finance Member on the other hand, perhaps through an inadvertence,—or it may be a fact—said that four annas remission was given to Kanara.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Which Member?

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: The Honourable the Finance Member.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: What did he say?

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: That four annas remission was to be granted to Kanara.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Where has he stated it?

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: It may be through inadvertence or it may be a fact.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Let the honourable member quote the page.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: It is in his speech. The Honourable Member can verify.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: The honourable member has got a printed copy. He can give the reference.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: I have not been supplied with it yet.

I shall now come to some of the reports of Government. The Report of the Department of Agriculture for the year 1930-31, contains the following passage at page 164,—I have once quoted it:

"Even the money-lenders and sowkars consider it risky to advance any loan for the cultivation of staple crops and the effect of all this depression is likely to be seen in future cultivation. The general indebtedness has been increased and in some parts of the Kanara District great difficulty has been felt in collecting the revenue. The poor cultivators are not in a position to hold out their produce until better prices prevail; and as a result almost all the produce has passed into the hands of merchants and sowkars at the cheapest possible rate. If the present depression continues, the cost of cultivation and the value of the produce will be automatically settled, but this settlement will take a heavy toll at the cost of poor cultivators."

This was written a year ago; after that, the situation has gone from bad to worse. Now, we have another report, a communique from the Director of Information, regarding the remission of Rs. 17,000 granted, and it states:

"The Governor in Council considers that the relief recommended for occupants of garden-lands should not be withheld because the proposals as a whole are kept in abeyance. The need of concessions has been accentuated by the recent fall in the prices of garden produce and remissions amounting to nearly Rs. 20,000 were given last year to occupants of garden-lands in the talukas of Sirsi and Siddapur. In order to secure a more equitable distribution of the land revenue demand as a whole in the areas in question, the Governor in Council is now pleased to direct that remissions equal to the reductions proposed by Mr. Collins should be granted every year on garden-lands in the talukas of Sirsi, Siddapur, and Yellapur and in the Mundgod Mahal till the current settlements are finally revised. The orders should have effect from the current revenue year, 1931-32."

So that even His Excellency the Governor and his advisers have felt the necessity of remitting land revenue to the extent of Rs. 20,000 in the year 1930 and remitting to the extent of Rs. 17,000 in the year 1931. Now, when we have gone from bad to worse and from worse to the worst this year, I have come with a prayer that we may be saved from the calamity, because there is no other way out. We thought of starting a land mortgage bank on co-operative lines but I learn that the Co-operative Department cannot help us in that direction also at present.

Even to-day, as I am speaking here, I have received letters from many people in Kanara that in Bhatkal last week one tiger killed five or six cows. The District Superintendent of Police himself went there to kill the animal but could not succeed in tracing it. In another village in the Sirsi taluka wild elephants have come in and are depriving us of our standing crops and also of trees.

Now I come to some of the reports of the Settlement Officer himself. Mr. Baskerville, who was then the Collector, writes in the precis of the Settlement Report:

"There is sufficient evidence to shew that the outturn of garden-crop has deteriorated. The difference in the outturn of pepper and cardamom is apparent."

I shall now give a brief extract from what the Forest Grievances Enquiry Committee say on page 63 of their report:

"Kanara is the only forest district in the Presidency where population and cultivation are both declining. The Committee visited some places in Kumpta and Sirsi talukas where forest has been extended to the very doors of the cultivations and habitations"....

"Proximity of closed proper forest round about cultivation and habitation serves as a haunt for wild animals and reptiles dangerous to life and cultivation and a hot-bed for malaria brought about by the thick over-growth of useless vegetation choking the process of ventilation and by the decaying of organic matter. It interferes with the right of grazing and the exercise of privileges. It also gives rise to impounding of cattle, ravages of wild beasts, scarcity of water, harassment by forest officials, insanitary conditions of the locality affecting the lives of the residents, thereby making the very existence of agriculture and habitation difficult and impossible. On account of such forest pressure, both population and cultivation in some villages and hamlets have been extinct and in the case of some villages they are on the very verge of extinction....."

Now, Sir, having stated this much regarding the actual state of affairs in Kanara, I shall come to the way in which land revenue was exacted last year though there were no ordinances and give some concrete instances:

"Saraswati Annayyabhat (a widow) of Shirgodhail, Kabbali gram, Siddapur taluka:—

Paid first instalment by recourse to loan in the hope that second instalment would be suspended. There was attachment for second instalment. The attachment party broke open her house in her absence and attached Rs. 1-8-0 belonging to her and Rs. 5 belonging to others. After that, paid the balance of Rs. 15 by selling rice that she had kept for her sustenance."

"Krishnabhatta Ganapabhatta, Kerchond, Chappermane grama, Siddapur taluka:—

Had to pay Rs. 40 as assessment; was not able to pay on account of economic distress. Notice was served on 2nd April 1931 but even before that copper pots and milch buffaloes attached. On payment of first instalment articles attached, excepting buffalo, returned. Later informed that buffaloe was sold for grazing fees, went to Mamlatdar's house but was driven away by police. Deponent had to secure relief from Relief Fund....."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member is evidently reading from a printed pamphlet.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: Yes, Sir. They are statements taken from the people.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Taken by whom and where?

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: Taken in the villages named.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Who took them?

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: Not Government officers, but others and myself.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I beg the honourable member's pardon. I did not know that.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: I shall quote one or two more instances:

"Parameshwar Shivram Hegde, of Harogar, Taluka Sirsi:—

At instance of Shanbhog applied for tagavi, to the extent of Rs. 100. Arrears were Rs. 75 and that amount only was sanctioned as tagavi and credited towards payment of arrears."

"Mahalayya Ramayya Hegde, of Balgod:—

Forfeiture notice for default in paying both instalments. Second instalment suspended. Asked to pay first instalment by recourse to Tagavi. Rs. 50 was sanctioned. Rs. 42-9-0 was credited to arrears of revenue and Rs. 7-7-0 were actually paid to him."

There are many instances of even worse type. What I mean to show from this is that even the tagavi which was paid to them was paid not for sustenance or purchase of seed and cattle as was made out but only to pay the land revenue which was in arrears. I submit, Sir, that when in 1930 Government saw the necessity of giving a remission of about Rs. 20,000 and in 1931 of about Rs. 17,000 this year when we have reached the worst possible stage and our plight is really deplorable, no remission is yet announced. I am, however, labouring under some disabilities because I do not find here two honourable members who were here last time—I mean Mr. Collins and Mr. Maxwell—as they, from their personal knowledge of Kanara, would surely have borne me out. I have been labouring under another difficulty also, namely, when I returned from the December session I fell seriously ill and could not therefore see the new Collector who has just taken over charge. I hear that he is a very sympathetic and just officer and that if only I had approached him and satisfied him of the genuineness of our grievances, he would surely have submitted his recommendations to the Honourable the Revenue Member and obtained justice for us. I am referring to Mr. C. B. B. Clee. Our worst enemy in Kanara is the lower official who has been for the last three years misrepresenting to Government that the poor agriculturists in the towns and villages of Kanara have been actuated by improper motives as they belong to a disloyal movement and that therefore payment of land revenue is being withheld. Well, let me assure the Honourable the Revenue Member that that is not so. The real fact is that the people are too poor to pay and have not the wherewithal to pay the land revenue assessment. Their economic condition is truly deplorable. They have been in want. At the same time I take upon myself the responsibility of stating on the floor of this House that if any responsible Government officer will show us the means by which to pay the land revenue assessment or will start some land mortgage bank or co-operative society which can advance money to us at a moderate rate of interest, we shall pay up all that is due from us.

Similarly, in the case of garden lands, if any amount is advanced to us at a low rate of interest, we shall pay the land revenue, or else, I approach Government with all the emphasis that I can command and of course in all humility and I pray for relief from this deplorable state of affairs in Kanara. I do not mean to say that each and every agriculturist should be relieved. There are two instalments in Kanara. Nearly 70 per cent. of the first instalment is already paid. Some of the traders and zamindars have paid and other professional men who own land have also paid the assessment this year even one month in advance and therefore I make my appeal to Government on behalf of the helpless and poor agriculturists who really cannot, due to deplorable economic conditions, afford to pay and I hope and trust that such poor agriculturists will be given due relief.

With this prayer, I resume my seat.

SYED MIRAN MAHOMED SHAH (Hyderabad District): Sir, I rise to support this cut and while supporting it, I wish to place before this honourable House the condition of Sind as connected with this demand. This demand covers a wide range, namely, the revenue establishment, land records, Manager, Incumbered Estates and so on and so forth and so I shall briefly touch upon every department so far as it concerns the administration in Sind.

First and foremost, I would like to place before this honourable House the deplorable condition of the zamindar so far as his liabilities to Government are concerned. Sir, they are many and manifold, in the shape of land revenue assessment which he has not been able to pay since the year 1927-28 right up to this date, the arrears of Co-operative Bank loans and takavi loans which he has to discharge and the interest thereon; his private liabilities and such other liabilities which are being multiplied and being put on to the shoulders not only of himself but also of the posterity in the shape of charges for rectangulation and new water-courses, etc. being carried on in the province of Sind at present.

Now, Sir, referring to the specific item of land revenue assessment only, I would like to draw the attention of the Honourable the Revenue Member, who I think has a very soft corner for the Sindhis having spent a considerable portion of his service in that province, to certain aspects of the land revenue assessment which obtain there at the present moment. I do not deny that the Honourable the Revenue Member has a very soft corner for us, Sindhis, and it is for this very reason that I am going to make an attempt, however feeble, to touch that soft corner in his heart. I do not think I shall at all be relating a new story, but I shall quote from the reports of Government themselves—reports which have been prepared under the supervision of the Honourable the Revenue Member himself—reports for years 1927-28 to 1930-31, all of which I have in my possession at this moment. On page 99 of the report for the year 1927-28, the very first sentence runs thus:

"The season during the year under report was far from satisfactory."

I do not wish to bother the honourable House with further details, but I have just quoted that line which gives an indication as to what was the condition of the zamindars in that year in Sind. I shall now quote one short sentence which will give you some idea of the exact position of the zamindars in that year. I am quoting from the third paragraph :

"The locust disease visited Sind again. (Previous to 1927-28 also locusts visited Sind and caused considerable damage to standing crops).....

The calamities of the year did not end there owing to excessive and unprecedented rainfall in Thar Parkar and Hyderabad districts in the end of July when serious floods occurred in those districts....."

So, locusts, floods and excessive rainfall overtook the province of Sind in the year 1927-28. Then the year 1928-29 also was not very satisfactory. For instance, the report says :

"The inundation during the year under report was satisfactory..... though the river did not at any time rise much above the normal level. There was no rainfall, or the rainfall was scanty throughout the year. The barani tracts suffered."

Then as regards the year 1929-30, the same pessimistic note is struck. The report says :

"The season under report was on the whole far from satisfactory."

So, from the reports it is quite clear that for the last five years the zamindar of Sind has been subjected to various calamities ranging from heavy rainfall and floods to locusts, cholera, malaria, and so on, and now therefore he has been reduced to penury and destitution. I do not dispute the fact that he may possess large tracts of land, but that does not matter. If you were to take into consideration the aggregate expenses that he has to incur to carry on his cultivation, to meet his necessities of life, and also to discharge his various liabilities, I think you will see simply a barren picture. I hope I will be excused if I am giving vent to expressions which might be considered as hyperbolic or exaggerated, but really speaking I am only painting the picture in its true colours. Sir, since we have come here to attend the session of this honourable House, we have been receiving pressing letters and telegrams from time to time, of which my pockets are full, but I do not mean to take the time of the House in reading them out. One of them which has just been put into my hands by my honourable friend Mr. Shaikh Abdul Majid—I am going to resist the temptation of reading it out—gives a genuine impression of what the people feel. So that, that is really the condition of the zamindars. The prices have gone very low and the crops have deteriorated in yield on account of various causes besides natural causes, over which the zamindar has no control. For instance, if one were to take into consideration the portion of Lower Sind only, I think, apart from heavenly calamities, the human hand also has something to do with the present condition there, for instance the introduction of the remodelling of the Fuleli, and the inefficacy of the Kalri project, and others, on account of which the water has been reduced in those tracts. So that lands which would yield something substantial and enable the zamindar to pay a fair share of it to Government and also to maintain himself have deteriorated in their fertility, and the outturn is so very poor that it is hardly enough to meet the Government demands. That factor should not be overlooked. It is not only the prices, but the outturn of every crop has gone poor, and it has considerably deteriorated. Prices of course have got much to do with the zamindar's present condition. But these are in short the governing factors on the basis of which we have been urging upon Government for remission. It might be said, Sir, that cotton has been rising in price. But I must assure the Honourable the Revenue Member that cotton has been for long sold and it has gone over to the hands of the Baniya, before the zamindars could take advantage of the rise in price, because being hard pressed by his various creditors, he had to sell his crop in advance. If figures were to be compiled, I think they would go to prove that about 75 per cent. of the cultivators have sold their crop while it was standing, while it did not yield anything, even to the extent of one pie out of a rupee,—all that is sold in advance. They could not help doing it. They could not carry on their business without doing it. So that, really, the agriculturist has not benefited by the rise in the prices of cotton at all. Of course, the rice cultivator has suffered decidedly and I hope Government will have nothing to say against that. If cost of cultivation is deducted from the price of rice produce, there will hardly be left any surplus over and above land assessment. Sir, taking all these factors into consideration, I would urge upon Government kindly to take early steps to revise the system of settlement, to make it flexible and elastic, so as to keep pace with the circumstances of the time. We are quite prepared to pay more when we have got more in our pockets, but we cannot pay when we have nothing in our pockets. I think we shall shortly witness ghastly and pitiable scenes of the goods and chattels of the zamindars being sold in the open market and in the street with no purchasers for it, if the provisions of the Land Revenue Code are put literally into execution. I do not think the Honourable the Revenue Member will go these lengths, and I do not think he will allow the lands of the zamindars to be sold, for they will not be worth the game. People have not got money. There are large tracts in the Barrage zone, which we are anxious to dispose of at as good prices as possible, but we are not able to do so according to our estimates. Therefore the selling of the land of zamindars by auction is out of the question, and the chattels will not bring anything. So that, the only course is to remit a considerable portion of the land revenue in order to give relief to the agriculturist, to enable him to be prepared and ready to carry on his business, in order to be able to finance the coffers of Government. Otherwise, if you fleece him, and he is shorn of all the weapons and instruments that he possesses for his agriculture, it will neither benefit him nor Government; it will be casting him to the winds, and there will be growing discontent, the volume of which it will be very hard for Government to resist. I am sure, in the course of his reply to this motion, the Honourable the Revenue Member will have something to say with regard to Sind, as he did with regard to the other parts of the Presidency. This is at least the expectation of this side of the House. Then, Sir, as I am afraid that my honourable friends might envy the position I am taking in encroaching upon their valuable time, as they might have to say something about their own divisions, I will pass on to another item within the grant. That, Sir, is with regard to land records.

[Syed Miran Mahomed Shah]

Sir, I am in possession of several issues of local newspaper Hamdard wherein clear indication is given that the records of rights are not properly maintained, so much so that the entries for the last 15 years have not been made. That means that the mutation of records has not been carried out in time and the records are not maintained in their proper form. This is due mostly to disputes also. The disputes must be settled, but the officers do not take it seriously enough to carry on the mutation of records in time and to keep the records up to date, because it does not concern them as it does not affect Government financially. As long as they get the land revenue assessment, they do not care whether there are disputes or anything else. If there is a dispute, they say, let the parties go to court, fight it out there, and establish their rights; and God forbid if the Probate Bill is passed, Government will be getting additional revenue from disputed property. The Collector of Hyderabad once challenged the editor of this paper as to the correctness of these statements which he published in token whereof the papers published the actual instances. When an official is asked to make a simple entry, if he is not satisfied, he does not do it, or when he is bribed by the other party he does not carry out the mutation of records in time, which gives rise to so many complications and puts the parties to so many troubles in course of time. So that, I would only draw the attention of my honourable friend the Revenue Member to it—and I have drawn his attention to it in the form of questions also—in order that he may take early steps to see that this thing is remedied as soon as possible.

Then, Sir, I will cursorily touch the Encumbered Estates Department. Now, Sir, so far as the purpose of this department is concerned, I think it was mainly established for the purpose of affording protection to the agriculturist who could not protect his own interests. Government did realise the necessity of guarding the interest of the agriculturist, who, on account of a certain position brought about either by his own fault or on account of circumstances beyond his control, could not maintain his property and maintain himself financially; and Government, being in the position of a parent, thought it their fundamental duty to protect his interests at his own cost, because the cost is borne by the estate coming under the management of the Encumbered Estates Department. And how were these estates administered in the good old days? I have been hearing from my father and grandfather words of praise with regard to those old officers who manned the Department at its early stages, and they repeat their names with feelings of reverence. I can trace this feeling up to Mr. Mountford, but not beyond him. Mr. Mountford is remembered even to-day on our side on account of the genuine interest that he took in the protection of the interests of these people whose estates came under his control as Manager of Encumbered Estates. Officers like him considered the zamindars coming under their protection as their own children. But that spirit does not prevail to-day. It is getting stereotyped and technical. That is my experience. I have come across a few instances which go to prove and to convince me that it is getting stereotyped, and that that amount of interest and feeling which is expected from the heads controlling that department is not being evinced. Now, Sir, I will give an illustration. Lest I might be misunderstood, let me say at the very outset that I am criticising the Department in order to draw the attention of the authorities to the matter, because it is only when we go to sleep that we are goaded and vice versa. There is no harm in dosing or going to sleep, because we could be goaded up, and then we can revert to the discharge of our responsibilities and duties. It is only with the spirit of correction that I am giving expression to what I have to say, and I am just giving one instance which has only recently come to my knowledge. There is a gentleman who had served Government very honestly and loyally all his life. He is nearly 70 years of age now, and has also gone blind. He is a very big zamindar, possessing certificates of good service and character from the Collector right up to His Excellency the Governor. Such a man needs any amount of interest and any amount of care at the hands of Government. The son of this blind man, having gone out of his control, being a spendthrift, went on unscrupulously leasing the lands for nothing, and selling them for a song when he could not pay the lease money which he took in advance. From the papers in my hand I find that about 6 or 7 suits were filed against the man before the Manager of the Encumbered Estates, as the estate is under his management, and half of them were decided in his favour by the Manager of the Estates, but the Commissioner in Sind, perhaps in his greater wisdom, saw the necessity of reversing these decisions and has decided against the old man, and in this way an injustice has been done to him. Here is a poor, old man, who has been so loyal to Government and useful to the public, who possesses certificates from high officials about his good character, and who has gone blind. If injustice is done to such people what will be the fate of others whose case we do not know ? From that instance, I can draw only this inference, that this department is getting stereotyped and too technical; technical, because being a person not conversant with law, he is time-barred and cannot reopen the matter, because certain sections of the Encumbered Estates Act stand against him. Now, what is the remedy ? At least the provisions of law should be made so elastic as to allow an appeal from Commissioner's orders if any injustice is done. If the Commissioner cannot take interest, the parental body, the Government, should take interest. We are centralising everything now-a-days, and before provincial autonomy is ushered in we can remedy the situation. Here also we can have appeal to Government. If there is any injustice done, the party should not be shut out from appealing to Government. There are several such instances which might not have come to my notice. There are instances in which injustice has been done out of heartlessness. Only for want of interest, this is going on. Had everybody's case been investigated, nobody would have reason to complain on that score. If the officers could be goaded to rise from their slumber and made to understand the huge responsibility of having taken over the property of the estate owners and stepped into the shoes of a guardian, they can be made to look upon wards as their own children and look upon their property as their own property.

I will finish my speech with a few more words. There is one matter concerning the department of my honourable friend the Revenue Member. I could not get an earlier opportunity to bring it to his notice. I think it will not be irrelevant, if I give expression to my feelings in regard to the question of lappo and rasai, which was raised some time ago in this House. I got an assurance from the Honourable the Revenue Member that he will do his best to put my scheme into operation for the sake of trial. I do not see that my scheme has been put to trial anywhere. My constituency wants a trial only. If my scheme had been put to trial seriously and if it had failed, I would have had no grievance. At least I would have had some reason to advance to my constituency that I did my best but the object could not be achieved. I would have told them that everything humanly possible had been done. I do not think that my scheme has evoked any interest in the local officers. Perhaps my scheme has been consigned to oblivion. I would like only to bring this to the notice of Government that the people are still looking forward whether my scheme or any other alternative scheme will be put into operation, in order to redress their grievances on that score. The Tapadar is still going strong. He goes strong as "Johnnie Walker" and nobody touches him. He will only think that the voice of the honourable members is not being carried into effect. He will think that honourable members come here and waste their words and their voice goes in the wilderness and that nobody will touch him. He therefore believes that he can go on with his rasai and lappo to the same extent as he did 100 years ago. With these few remarks I would support the cut.

Mr. A. N. SURVE (Bombay City, North): Sir, the land revenue policy pursued by our Government is unsympathetic, unwise, short-sighted and suicidal. Sir, it is unsympathetic in this sense that it is putting into practice the phrase found in the Bible, viz. that: "He that hath shall be given more but he that hath very little shall be deprived of what little he hath." The small agriculturist is squeezed out by three agencies—the Government, the landlord and the sowcar or money-lender. The law is on their side. In this connection, I remember at this moment the line in one of Goldsmith's poems "Law grinds the poor and richmen rule the law." The farmers produce the crop and they are deprived of it by the three agencies which I have mentioned. The poor farmer is left destitute. He has no food to eat and he has no money with which to cultivate his land. This condition turns him into a discontented person, who falls an easy prey to the political agitator. Sir, if with all this he tries to improve his land, Government swoops down upon him in the form of harsh rules, a good instance of which was given yesterday by the honourable member from Ratnagiri (Mr. V. A. Surve). It was about two years ago that Government introduced these Budiki rules, which penalise industriousness on the part of the agriculturists. After finding that he has been left destitute by the before-mentioned three agencies, if he wants to find out some means of living by becoming more industrious, his industry is cut short by rules such as these. May I just inquire if water running in natural water channels is not running to waste? For centuries such water has been running to waste but it was only two or three years ago that this water was brought under these rules. Government have been this year, and also last year, very sympathetic in granting remissions and suspensions. I acknowledge that small mercy which is shown to the suffering ryot. But, Sir, these concessions are merely palliatives. They do not go to the root cause of the trouble. They do not help to improve the condition of the soil nor do they bring in more revenue. Several honourable members of Government have repeated time and again that land revenue has become non-elastic and that it has ceased to grow. May I enquire why it has ceased to grow? Let the Government consider the measures they have adopted since the Reforms. From the year 1921 to about the year 1926, or thereabouts, we had an era of land revision settlements. Time and again this side of the House had warned Government that revision settlements were exorbitant, and that the agriculturists are being ruined. But Government never stopped their unwise course until circumstances compelled them to do so.

Then, Sir, I mention another measure that was adopted by Government about the year 1924-25. Almost every Government Gazette published week after week for nearly two years contained long lists of small tanks which were declared subject to Irrigation Act. What I mean is this. If water was taken out of these small village tanks for irrigation, then the irrigator was to pay for it. Such harsh acts on the part of Government paved the way for natural adjustment which has now set in. Government pursued their policy but in the end found out that it was one which cannot be pursued to its ultimate goal. They have learnt now I think that they must hold their hand and therefore for the present the Revision Settlements have been given up. If instead of pursuing this policy, they had acted upon the recommendation of the Joint Parliamentary Committee to introduce legislative measures for fixing land revenue, would it not have been a wise course? During the last 12 years nothing concrete has been done in this direction. Government may have moved half-heartedly in the matter but to the outside world nothing tangible appears to have been achieved. The other presidencies have actually introduced this kind of legislation and it has been in practice for some years now. Now, Sir, what is the remedy? The remedy which I propose is an extension of what the honourable member for Kolaba has suggested in his speech on the budget discussion. He is considering only the present difficulty. He has recommended that every agriculturist whose assessment is below Rs. 30 should be given full remission during the fall of prices. But I am not making any suggestion of a temporary nature. I am going a step further and recommending the introduction of a sort of graduated scale for land revenue on the lines of income tax. Fix the minimum produce of land which may be exempted; if it is below that minimum, the landholder will have to pay nothing as

[Mr. A. N. Surve]

Land Revenue assessment. Above that minimum, have a graduated scale—the larger the amount of produce the more the revenue assessment. In that way, whatever may be lost by way of exemption, may be recovered from rich men who are best able to bear it. What would be the result of such exemption? The result will be that the agriculturists will get something to live upon. They will get the incentive to improve their lands. That means the Government revenue will also improve in course of time, and the Government will get the revenue without having to use coercive measures under the Land Revenue Code. When the higher taxation is imposed, the absentee landlord will try to see how he can evade it. He will try to distribute his land. Land to-day is in the hands of these absentee landlords, who show no incentive whatever to improve their land. If you want more revenue from land, the only remedy is to see that the land is equitably distributed. The absentee landlord is a danger to the well-being of the State. He produces nothing; his greed in enhancing rents leads to the deterioration of the soil, which only results in bringing less money to Government coffers. Let me humbly warn Government that land revenue is the cornerstone of the revenue system of the whole Presidency. On land revenue depends every other revenue,—excise and stamps and every other revenue. If the agriculturist has money in his pockets, he may indulge in drink. I do not say that he should. I am only referring to everyday occurrences. Similarly, if there is plenty of money in the land, the stamp revenue will also improve. Every year we find that with the imposition of higher stamp duties, we have not been able to realise our expectations of drawing in more money. If Government do not pay early attention to the land revenue policy of theirs, heaven forbid, but I must warn them that the whole revenue policy of Government will crash down. Let me again entreat the Honourable the Finance Member that instead of making appeals to the Government of India or to the Finance Committee of the Round Table Conference now in India to give him additional sources of revenue for this Presidency, he should see that the land revenue policy is changed for the better. I do not say that we should not make those appeals. Our case is a strong one. But my suggestion is that we must make our land revenue policy more humane. We ourselves will be benefited to a great extent if we adopt a more humane policy. I do not subscribe to the correctness of the dictum laid down by our Finance Department when it asserts that the land revenue has become inelastic or that it has ceased to grow. As a matter of fact, it is correct, but it is correct simply because it is the result of the unwise revenue policy that has been pursued for these years. This humble suggestion of mine is in the nature of self-help. Let us put our shoulders together and find out the means of improving our land revenue on some such lines as I have indicated. The only remedy so far as I can see is to adopt a more humane policy.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO (Larkana District): Sir, I take this opportunity to say a few words with regard to the land revenue policy so far as the province of Sind is concerned. I do not wish to cover the whole ground and refer to the points that have already been touched upon by my honourable friend from Hyderabad (Syed Miran Mahomed Shah). I wish to refer only to the present condition of the agriculturists in the province of Sind and particularly the part of Sind that I represent.

Sir, the honourable member who preceded me attacked the present policy of Government on quite different lines and he suggested his own new policy which, I must confess, I did not quite follow. But so far as I could gather, he wanted to tax the bigger landholders further and wanted to exempt those who possessed small holdings. Perhaps if he were to put it the other way and suggest that income tax should take the place of the land revenue, I personally would have no objection. But if you examine the figures of income that will be realised by the Government if the present land revenue system is abandoned and it is allowed to give way to the income tax, I am quite sure that Government will lose revenues to a greater extent. The system existing in most of the countries of Europe cannot be applied to India, as the conditions in India are materially different from those in the countries of Europe. I must say that the Government are recovering from the zamindars the maximum assessment and I do not think that it would be possible for Government either now or hereafter as contemplated by the honourable member Mr. Surve to realise as much as they are realising to-day if the system recommended by the honourable member is adopted. There are many landholders who possess land less than 10 acres. In the province of Sind he may find many zamindars owning land more than 10 acres but we have to take the Presidency as a whole. There will be therefore many more people in the Presidency who will come under the exemption rule advocated by him than in Sind. But even in the case of zamindars owning land more than 10 acres, Government will have to consider whether it would be possible to realise more land revenue from them under the new system recommended by the honourable member Mr. Surve and particularly in these hard times. They have to calculate what the expense will be of growing the crop and what other necessary expenditure will be. That will have to be deducted. From the net income the zamindar will have to take a reasonable share for his personal efforts and time devoted to the work, etc. I am perfectly convinced that in this Presidency at least it is absurd to imagine at any time that the method suggested by the honourable member Mr. Surve will bring in more land revenue to the coffers of Government. On the contrary there is every reason to feel that the revenue will be far less than what we get even now, as a very large number will come under the category of those that have to be exempted from payment possessing less than 10 acres of land.

Coming to the real issue, that is, the present condition of the agriculturists in Sind, I certainly believe that at present it is not possible for the landholders of Sind—I am speaking for the moment only of Sind—to pay the present rates of assessment. These rates were fixed no less than 20 years ago; and I have addressed a lengthy letter on the subject to the Honourable the Revenue Member in which I have shown by facts and figures that the present land revenue rates are out of all proportion and it is merely impossible for zamindars to pay them. I hope the Honourable the Revenue Member is considering the question carefully and I do not want to repeat what I have said in the letter. I will only bring to the notice of the House a few important relevant points. When I came to Bombay a few weeks ago, I found a very strong impression having gained ground among official as well as non-official circles that the prices have risen considerably, as compared with last year. But, Sir, I take this opportunity to assure those who hold that view, that they are absolutely mistaken. I am talking of the two principal crops at present, paddy and wheat. If we were to examine closely the figures of prices that the zamindars realised last year this time or a month before and the prices that they are now realising, I have genuine reasons to believe that the rates which obtain at present in Larkana, Shikarpur, Jacobabad and other places are lower than the prices which were obtained last year. That is my personal experience. Paddy is at present sold at about Rs. 1-4-0 from the fields of zamindars. The prices depend on the distance of the holding of each zamindar. Some zamindars, for instance, do not get more than Re. 1. I think my honourable friend Sir Shah Nawaz will support me in this argument, namely, that lands which are far away, like his, do not fetch more than Re. 1 if any purchaser comes and buys the paddy from the fields. Similarly, in my own case, I have not been able to get more than Rs. 1-4-0 from my own fields. This shows that we realised less this year than we did last year. For, last year the rates I realized at the corresponding time of the year, were between Rs. 1-8-0 to Rs. 1-12-0 per maund of paddy.

Now, taking the average produce of a zamindar, it does not amount to more than 8 maunds per acre, and taking the maximum price of Rs. 1-4-0 per maund, the income should not be more than Rs. 10 per acre. The land revenue which is at present being charged for that land is Rs. 5-12-0. Add to that the local cess which comes to 9 annas. Add again the gratuities of tapedars, etc. which come to about 7 annas; so that the zamindar has to pay actually about Rs. 7. In addition to that, he has to incur the clearance expense of Re. 1 and has to pay Re. 1 for supervision and maintenance. That brings the net income of the zamindar to Re. 1. If you were to put these figures in the form of a ratio, then Government is realising something like 70 per cent. from the net income of the zamindar, and about 20 per cent. go to clearance and supervision, etc. Thus, the zamindar is left with only 10 per cent. of the net income of his fields. At the time the land assessment was last revised, it was stated in the settlement reports that Government did not propose to take more than 20 to 25 per cent. of the net income of the zamindar. Now, the assessment is three times that percentage on account of the very low rates prevailing. At the time the settlements were revised, nobody thought that the prices would go down so low. Mr. Green, a Government settlement officer, who undertook settlement work in 1924-25 in view of the Barrage coming into operation, took the price of wheat to be Rs. 5 per maund and the price of paddy Rs. 3-8-0 per maund as basic rates. The prices now prevailing are even less than 50 per cent. of the price then prevailing. That was but four years ago. Whether you take the rates which prevailed at the time of the original settlement or the prices which prevailed four years ago, the fact remains that the present level of prices is comparatively very low and therefore the zamindars are not in a position to pay land revenue at the present rates. Only two days ago I got a letter from a friend of mine, who is a big zamindar, saying that after meeting his actual expenses and after deducting the land revenue, his net saving was only Rs. 1-8-6 per acre from the paddy crop he has raised. I must state here that his lands are situated in the best locality in the Larkana Sub-Division, which is regarded to be the best tract in the whole of Sind. The figures being what they are and the position being what it is, you cannot expect them to pay land revenue without disposing of their lands or without resorting to the other methods to which my honourable friend Syed Miran Mahomed Shah made a reference. It is a cause of genuine anxiety in the minds of the public in Sind and of the representatives of the people here that Government have so far made no statement as to what decision they have come to with regard to the policy they are going to adopt towards the province of Sind and what rebate they propose to give in the matter of land revenue this year. We have got a strong case to show that the remissions that were granted last year were not adequate. I have not taken into consideration exceptions like the district of Thar and Parkar, and about the extent of their indebtedness which figures were disclosed in reply to my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Ghulam Nabi Shah's questions, figures which clearly indicated that the indebtedness of zamindars was indeed very heavy in the shape of revenue arrears, tagavis, loans from co-operative banks, and private debts from Banias. The other day one gentleman was travelling with me who has served a long time and also holds lands in Thar and Parkar District. He has a good deal of experience of the district. He told me that if we calculated the entire value of the landed property of the zamindars as well as the amount of their debts, the debts would be more than the entire value of their property. So practically the whole landed property of the zamindars was mortgaged. That is the true position in this district. Even in the case of other districts, which may be considered slightly better than the district of Thar and Parkar, the condition is not very much better. The zamindars there have to meet tagavi loans, land revenue arrears, loans from co-operative banks and also large loans taken from banias. In many places they are seeking the protection of the Manager of Encumbered Estates. The number of applications for protection reaching the Manager of Encumbered Estates will prove what the economic condition of the people is. They are not seeking his protection for the sake of fancy, they are doing it out of sheer necessity. When they find it impossible to meet all these demands and to get the bare necessities of life the only way left for them is to seek his protection.

[Khan Bahadur M. A. Khuhro]

Owing to the strictness of the rules, many of them are not found fit for such protection and are not given it. Then, they have no other alternative but to dispose of their lands at cheap rates. At present the prices which the zamindars realise for their lands are something like 20, or at the most 25 per cent. of what they were able to realise only three years ago. They are genuinely sorry for having to part with the lands which they have inherited from their ancestors, but they are forced by circumstances to dispose of those lands. They do it in order to save their honour and reputation and to pay Government revenues. I know of many instances of respectable zamindars in Sind who disposed of their gold ornaments and other valuable things or mortgaged in order to pay Government revenue last year. The recoveries of revenue were very good for Government last year. But last year being the first or second year of calamity, it was not so hard as it will now be for zamindars to meet the exorbitant demands of Government. There is no denying the fact that this year it will be very difficult, nay, next to impossible, for the zamindars to satisfy the land revenue claims of Government. Therefore, it is a foregone conclusion that Government will have to resort to very unhappy and unpleasant methods if they insist on their recovering the land revenue in full. I therefore appeal to the Honourable the Revenue Member with all the force that I can command, to treat the pitiable case of the agriculturists in the province of Sind as sympathetically as may be possible. I do realise that Government also are faced with financial stringency and have got a deficit to meet. But, Sir, considering the necessity of giving remissions in the province of Sind and comparing it with the Government financial stringency it is certainly imperative to give preference to the former. It is the duty of a civilized Government to see that the people who are the backbone of Government at all times are fairly and properly treated, that the raiyats are not rack-rented, that only that much is demanded from them which they can easily pay. No zamindar in Sind will grudge to pay 25 per cent. or even 40 per cent., or whatever share that is regarded reasonable, out of his net income. But certainly it is very unfair to demand from the zamindar 80 per cent. of his income at present. The figures that I have quoted are drawn from my own personal experience or taken from friends in whom I have faith. That is why I make bold to say that I am prepared to be examined closely by any officer appointed by the Honourable the Revenue Member. I would earnestly urge upon him that under the circumstances it is very necessary that fair consideration should be shown to the people in that province. I hope our appeal in this connection will not go in vain.

MR. C. M. LANE: Sir, on a point of information. Might I ask the last honourable speaker to explain how, in view of the harrowing circumstances which he has described, there is keen competition for agricultural land in forest reserve limits? They are often ready to pay three to four times the ordinary assessment. There are many more applicants for the areas that fall vacant than there is land available for them.

Khan Bahadur M. A. KHUHRO: I will reply to that question, Sir. I am certain that the statement made by the honourable member that there is very keen competition for forest land in Sind at present is rather misleading. I will quote the instance of my own district, Larkana. My personal experience is that where the Forest Department secured twice the assessment two years ago, they can hardly get as much as the ordinary assessment now. I met the Conservator of Forests about two months ago, and, as I knew of cases where people had applied for remission of the assessment, because they were unable to pay twice the assessment, I asked him whether he had received applications for remission and what had been done to them. He told me that he was waiting to see what the Revenue Department was going to remit and that he was going to give a corresponding remission. In most cases people had taken up the land on the undertaking given by the Forest Department that they would follow the example of the Revenue Department in matters of remission. The honourable member has possibly in mind a few instances where petty zamindars take two or three acres of land close to their own fields and houses for the purpose of grazing and other facilities. They are exceptional cases. I can give concrete cases where people who applied for remissions were given promises that the Forest Department would follow the principles enunciated by the Revenue Department, in the matter of remissions.

Sardar Davar T. K. MODI (Surat City): Sir, last year I had one or two complaints to make about this department, and I am glad to find that the cause of one of them has been removed. I thank the Honourable the Revenue Member for having issued orders cancelling an erroneous practice of the Commissioner, Northern Division, under which he entered as river kharaba private lands of holders which had been eroded by the action of the river. Now, Sir, this practice continued from the year 1918 to the year 1931. In spite of great protest from landholders, in spite of petition to Government regarding it, the lands of private holders were removed from their names. This, Sir, shows that the law of alluvion and diluvian is not properly understood by the revenue officers. The law of alluvion and diluvian, Sir, is not defined in the Land Revenue Code. There are four sections dealing with it, but they do not define the law; they only lay down rules as to how Government is to levy assessment in such cases. About the year 1879 an All-India Bill providing for cases of alluvion and diluvian was drafted and presented but it was subsequently withdrawn. Sir, there are no sufficient guiding rules for revenue officers, and my humble suggestion to the Revenue Member is that he might bring up a Bill relating to the law of alluvion and diluvian, because the landholders in riverian villages have sometimes to suffer great hardship on account of the law on the point not being very clear.

Then, Sir, I have another point to urge before the Honourable the Revenue Member. I come to what are known as Rent Assistance Suits. Under the Land Revenue Code a superior holder gets assistance from Government to recover his rent from the inferior holder. After a decree is passed, the decree is not to remain unsatisfied beyond the period of six months from the date thereof, but what we usually find is that a decree remains unsatisfied for a period of two or three years. In spite of constant reminders, in spite of repeated efforts to get a decree executed and although the judgment-debtor may have sufficient property, no action is taken by the revenue authorities to enforce it. And, Sir, there is a general belief abroad that that is not done because the revenue officers do not wish to give any annoyance to the people. That perhaps is an erroneous idea, but, Sir, that is there amongst a good many people, and it would be very advisable if Government were to issue strict orders in this respect.

[Sardar Davar T. K. Modi]

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I never expected that the head "Land Revenue" would be reached so soon nor did the Honourable the Revenue Member probably expect that it would be reached at all when he made his speech on the general discussion——

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I was going to congratulate the House on that performance.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Therefore, I say, Sir, that the House must be congratulated on having for the first time taken up all the heads of the budget under discussion. I am however not going to take up much time of the House by going into the long history of the land revenue policy of this Presidency, because I feel that it has been discussed on various occasions in the past and by repeating the same story over again, no useful purpose will be served. I do not know whether the Honourable the Revenue Member will be prepared to admit that the land revenue system of this Presidency is faulty, but I may say that some great English authorities on land revenue—I am not going to quote them line by line because it will take two hours—from the year 1824 till the beginning of this century, had condemned in no uncertain terms this system—I mean Sir Charles Munro, Col. Briggs, Sir Charles Wood, no less a person than the grandfather of the late Viceroy of India, Lord Salisbury, Major Wingate, Elphinstone, Sir Louis Mallet, Sullivan and others who were great authorities on the land revenue policy of this country and who had all severely condemned it. Although Government may pretend that the policy is based on some scientific principle, I assert without any fear of contradiction that it is not at all based on any scientific principle, but it has been based only on one principle, namely, how much the landholder or the tenant should pay, not what his capacity is or how much he is able to pay or the land which he cultivates is able to pay. That has been the policy on which Government have based their land revenue assessment since the middle of the last century. Therefore, it is no use my going into all these details. In the year 1924, this very House appointed a committee called the Land Revenue Assessment Committee which submitted its report in 1925 to Government and in the year 1925 the Government of India appointed another committee called the Taxation Enquiry Committee. Both these committees made useful suggestions as regards land revenue system of

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

India and also of this Presidency. On the recommendation of the report of the Assessment Committee, it was decided by this Government to bring in a Bill revising the present Land Revenue Code and when the present Honourable the Revenue Member took over charge of his high office, we at any rate of this side of the House were led to believe that a Bill would be brought very shortly. As a matter of fact, if I remember aright, once the Honourable the Revenue Member invited some of the honourable members including myself of this side of the House for a consultation and for obtaining our views as to the basis and the rate on which land revenue assessment should be made. Since then I do not know what has happened——

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I have told the honourable member on several occasions and I shall tell him again.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Last year the Honourable the Revenue Member informed us that though it was not possible to bring in a Bill, he gave us some hope that it would be brought in the July session of last year. I expected that as the Honourable the Revenue Member has wide experience of land revenue matters of this Presidency for the last 30 years and as he is considered a sympathetic officer, he will at the time of laying down his high office do some justice to the agriculturists of the Presidency by bringing in a revised Code or Bill.

I ask the Honourable the Revenue Member or the Secretary, Revenue Department, who is sitting behind him, whether he will be prepared to justify the assessments that have taken place between the years 1915-16 and 1927-28. We all know that prices of all agricultural commodities have risen abnormally from the year 1917-18 to the year 1927-28, and during this period more than half of the revision settlements of the whole Presidency have taken place and all those have taken place on the basis of the rentals. When there are high prices of commodities, there is bound to be an inflation of rentals and consequently the assessments which were based on those high rentals are to-day much beyond proportion. Moreover, the Land Revenue Assessment Committee and the Taxation Enquiry Committee recommended that the land revenue should be so fixed that it will not exceed in any case 25 per cent. of the rental value. In other words, the land revenue assessment should not exceed more than 25 per cent. of the rental value that is the maximum limit. Now, Sir, the rental value has been defined by the Taxation Enquiry Committee in very definite and clear words as under:

"The profit on Agriculture after deducting all the cost of cultivation."

I ask, Sir, whether these revision settlements, which have taken place during the period of ten years as mentioned above by me, were based on this principle. I say that there is not a single land revenue assessment in the Presidency which has taken place during this period which was based on this principle. The minimum assessment fixed for any taluka or for any district was 35 per cent. of the rentals, 35 to 45 per cent. of the rents were taken as the assessment in the cases of all revision settlements which took place during the period 1917-18 to 1927-28. I should like, Sir, to be enlightened on this matter. Take for instance Bardoli and Chorasi talukas. The revision settlements of these two talukas took place in the year 1925-26 when the price of cotton —they are cotton-producing talukas—was Rs. 250 per Bhar of 24 maunds of seed cotton or Rs. 10 or so per maund. In the same year the revision settlement of the Chorasi taluka took place also and jowari and bajari were sold at one anna per lb. or Rs. 2-8-0 a maund in 1925-26. On consideration of these prices of Rs. 10 a maund for cotton and Rs. 2-8-0 a maund for jowari, etc., the revision settlements took place in Chorasi and Bardoli and consequently increase of 18 and 20 per cent. was fixed which percentages were subsequently reduced to 5 and 6 per cent. respectively by the Broomfield-Maxwell Committee. I ask, in fairness and justice, whether, if these two gentlemen were appointed to-day to go into the revision settlement of these two talukas according to the present prices and the present rentals namely, Rs. 10 for cotton now reduced to Rs. 5 and Rs. 2-8-0 for jowari now reduced to Rs. 1-4-0, would they have allowed even this 6 and 5 per cent. to stand, or whether they would have recommended a reduction of at least 20 per cent. in original assessment. I am putting this question to the Honourable the Revenue Member simply for the sake of elucidating the point. I have given the illustration of these two talukas because we have got with us the authoritative report made by the Enquiry Committee for them and for the other talukas we have not got any such report. But the same result will be found in their cases also, where revision settlements have taken place during the period 1917-18 to 1927-28.

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

For all these reasons I say, Sir, that Government ought to have taken up the revision of the Land Revenue Code, whatever Government may think to the contrary. Of course, Government will never admit that agriculture now-a-days does not pay and they will on the other hand maintain that the land revenue is very light. Probably, if I were on the other side of the House, I too might have said the same thing. However, Sir, it is my honest and confirmed opinion that an impartial enquiry ought to be made into this matter to see whether the argument which has been advanced from this side of the House is correct or not. I shall give you another instance of the taluka from which you yourself come, Sir. For the last 30 years, the people of the Chorasi taluka have been crying that the soil classification is faulty, but Government say "No, our soil classification is correct and put on scientific basis". But, Sir, the Broomfield-Maxwell Committee gave it as their considered judgment that the soil classification of both the talukas, namely, Chorasi and Bardoli, was faulty, and recommended an enquiry and on a cursory enquiry in the taluka of Chorasi a reduction has been recommended by the Superintendent of Land Records of Rs. 23,800, or about 11 per cent. of the total land revenue of the entire taluka which has been confirmed by Government. As I say, Sir, the soil classification system was faulty, and has been faulty and all these 60 years the people of the taluka have been made to pay Rs. 24,000 annually more than they should have paid. In the same way, the other day the Honourable the Revenue Member said that the people of Bardoli did not co-operate with the Superintendent of Land Records and that therefore they did not get any benefit till now but the result will be the same then also. If the soil classification had been done more correctly, I believe, the people of the Chorasi taluka might have been benefited by more than 23,800 rupees. In spite of the protests and applications of these people the question of soil classification was not taken up, the Government did not take it into their consideration and did not pay any heed to the protests or rather the entreaties of the people, and it was after the enquiry by two competent officers of Government that they had to yield and order an enquiry and had to give this concession. Therefore, I say, Sir, that the soil classification is no doubt faulty. I have often said on the floor of this House that I am prepared to show the Honourable the Revenue Member, if he can come with me or if he can arrange to send his Secretary with me to go round my district, how the system of taxing sub-soil water works in actual practice. Can the Honourable the Revenue Member or the honourable member the Revenue Secretary point out any land revenue system of any civilised country in the world under which water down below the surface is taxed? This is the only country where sub-soil water has been taxed. I give an instance, Sir. I dig a well in my field and get the benefit of the water from that well. I can understand that being taxed by Government. But what I cannot understand is why Government should levy a tax on a mere presumption that there must be water about 30 to 40 feet deep under the surface of the land in my field and I do not make use of the water. Why should this sub-soil water of an uncertain quantity and quality which is not to be used be taxed at all by what is called the sub-soil water tax? These are points which have been so often debated in this honourable House and are still waiting to receive the full, frank and sympathetic consideration of Government. In my mind there is no doubt that if Government were to undertake to-day a revision of the land revenue system of this Presidency, several very important defects will be found to exist in that system, and perhaps they may have to reduce the land revenue assessment, but that is no reason why, because they may have to reduce the land revenue assessment, the people should be compelled to pay unjustly and unfairly.

I may bring to the notice of the Honourable the Revenue Member that perhaps some of us, when we stand up here and argue about land revenue, we might be charged with the allegations that of course we are large landholders, and therefore it is in our own interest to see that land revenue is reduced. But that is not so in my case. I would bring to his notice that by increasing the land revenue I am benefited. My inam villages are settled and surveyed, and whatever increase is made in land revenue I am benefited to that extent. I make a protest because the people are unjustly taxed, not according to the principles of Land Revenue Code, not according to the yielding capacity of this soil. They have been taxed according to what I might call the whims and fancies of the officers put in charge of the revision settlements. This is a question which at any rate this side of the House expects the present Revenue Member to tackle before he leaves his reins of office. I am afraid he will say that only a year and a half of this Council remains, and a new Council will come and perhaps he will have to leave. I know why he has not taken up this question. I know the present prices of commodities and consequently the low rents are not in favour of Government. If they were to take up the revision of the land revenue code now, I am afraid they will have to reduce instead of enhancing the land revenue; they will have to reduce it at least by 25 per cent.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: On the contrary, it will be very largely increased, and that is why I did not do it.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I have always requested the Honourable the Revenue Member—I will not use the word challenged—to take up this matter in hand as early as possible. This is the third or fourth time when I have requested the Honourable the Revenue Member to take up this question earnestly, and we on this side of the House are prepared to help Government in the best way we can. If there is a case for enhancement, we are prepared to advise our constituents to bear the enhancement and to bear the burden, but I am sure there is no case to stand upon for an increase. If the Honourable the Revenue Member wants to say that there is a case, I say that in certain cases Government will have to reduce it by half instead of by 25 per cent. Messrs. Maxwell and Broomfield revised the assessment of Bardoli and Chorasi and fixed it at 32 to 35 per cent. of the rentals; the rents then being based on the prices viz. Rs. 10 and Rs. 2-8-0 for cotton and jowar, respectively. But these two commodities have to-day gone down in value by half, so also other commodities and the rentals have, I know, gone down by half. Where it was Rs. 20 per acre before, it is now Rs. 10. I say, if you make a revision settlement on the basis of the present prices and rentals, I am sure you will have to reduce your assessment.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I agree. At the present prices, certainly.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Does the Honourable the Revenue Member think that the prices will go on rising and be inflated to the level of war prices?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Why not?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Well, Sir, I do not know why not. Of course if the Honourable the Revenue Member means to say that we must wait for prices to rise again to the level of prices in the year 1921——

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I did not use the word inflated. The honourable member misrepresents me. I said, till they reach a normal level.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Naturally, as a result of the aftermath of war, prices are always inflated. They were not normal prices. The present prices are the normal prices. The prices were normal before the war, from 1901 to 1913-14. The present prices are also normal.

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

In the aftermath of war prices are always inflated. Therefore, I purposely and advisedly used the word inflated. I only make this request to the Honourable the Revenue Member, that he has still got some time before him, and if he will take up the question of the revision of land revenue——

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Perhaps I shall only have a fortnight to do it in. I think the honourable member understands the Cabinet is about to be reduced.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: We do not of course know the secrets of the Government. The Honourable the Revenue Member's post is to be reduced also?

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: The honourable member was appealing to me personally, and I was pointing out that the Cabinet is about to be reduced.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: But there will be somebody there in charge of the Revenue Department.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Certainly.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I say, whoever may be in charge of the Department may take up this question earnestly, and we on our part are prepared to help Government in any way that lies in our power.

Rao Saheb B. G. DESAI (Kaira District): Sir, I support the cut moved by my honourable friend Mr. V. A. Surve, in so far as it enables me to offer a few remarks on the condition of the agriculturists and the collection of land revenue in Kaira district which I represent for, I believe I will be failing in doing my duty towards my constituency, if I did not bring the real situation to the notice of Government. As the Government are aware, there is an all-round fall in the prices of foodstuffs, and consequently the agriculturists have not realised even half of their ordinary incomes. In those circumstances, they are hardly capable of paying even the land assessment for the current year, and in many cases they have been able to pay the same only by raising loans and incurring debts. It is true that the collections of land revenue in the Kaira district have been satisfactory, but I can assure Government that it therefore can hardly be taken as any sign or proof that the people are actually capable of paying the assessment. They have done so only as a result of the pressing activities of the Revenue officers of the Kaira district. It is true that Government have recently passed orders that only the revenue assessment for one single year should be collected, but the spirit of these kind concessions and good intentions of Government underlying the same have been frustrated by the rather unsympathetic manner in which coercive measures have been put into force in the district. The crops of defaulting agriculturists have been attached, with the result that they have been rendered more incapable of paying the assessment and subjected to much greater loss in income than they would otherwise have been. The crops are in charge of Government; the defaulting agriculturists cannot touch it, nor can Government sell it at a good price. The result is that the agriculturist suffers, substantially, by the operation of such coercive measures.

[Rao Saheb B. G. Desai]

Another direction in which the coercive measures have been rather unsympathetically directed is the levying of fines and penalties without proper discrimination and the discretion given to the Revenue officers has been rather unsympathetically exercised by converting the suspended arrears into unauthorised arrears, in many cases where there is not even a shadow of political contumacy and which it is obviously enough not the object of Government to levy or collect in the current year. I therefore request the Honourable the Revenue Member to issue instructions that the good intentions underlying the recent orders issued by Government be fully carried out, and that coercive measures should be used but sparingly and in extreme cases only and should be exercised with maximum sympathy and leniency at least in deserving cases where the defaulter is a well-meaning and law-abiding agriculturist, and in cases where failure and delay in payment is due to difficulty to find funds for the payment of the land revenue and not to any the least political contumacy on the part of the defaulter. In short what I mean to say is that the revenue authorities should take care to discriminate and distinguish between cases of political contumacy and those of hardship which often goes to prevent or delay the prompt and regular payment of land revenue and exercise proper discretion in resorting to coercive measures in such cases of real hardship and difficulty and I trust that the Government will take necessary steps in the matter.

Mr. G. S. GANGOLI: Sir, I referred to the speech of the Honourable the Finance Member, and I was asked by the Honourable the Revenue Member to point it out. On page 264 of the proceedings of this session we find the following:

"..... and 4 annas in parts of Kanara and Belgaum districts."

I said it may be through inadvertence that he said that, or it may be truth, the decision of the Cabinet.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: I will look it up afterwards. I do not remember.

Mr. N. N. PATIL (Kolaba District): Sir, I would request you to allow me to speak for three or four minutes.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. N. N. PATIL: I must thank the Chair for giving me a little time. I shall be very brief, as I have expressed my views on the land revenue policy of Government during the general discussion of the budget.

Sir, the honourable mover of the cut (Mr. V. A. Surve) whenever he stands on his legs on the floor of this House, does nothing but defend the cause of the poor agriculturists. Yesterday evening, with great zeal and cogent arguments, he brought to the notice of this House how the poor agriculturists in his district are being harassed by the subordinate Land Revenue officers of this Government. He was then called upon by the Honourable the Finance Member to name some of the villages. I remember he named three villages where the agriculturists were not allowed to use the water that runs through the natural channel, and he further stated, Sir, that all these three villages are dharakari villages, that is, the land revenue of these villages is being directly collected by Government through talatis. Besides these, in the Ratnagiri district there are 1,339 villages, and out of these 1,000 villages are under the khots. In Kolaba district also Government collect land revenue through khots. I have to make, in this connection, one point only and it is this, that these khots also, at the time of exacting the rent for their land, harass and oppress the tenants like anything, and I would only request the Honourable the Revenue Member to see his way to do away with this khoti system as soon as he can. The sooner it is done away with, the better it is for the Government as well as for the public.

As I have not any more time at my disposal, I resume my seat.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Sir, as I have been reminded by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik, when I ventured to occupy the time of the House for a few minutes on the general discussion of the budget, I was bold enough to prophesy that 5, Land Revenue would not be reached in the discussions on the demands for grants. I am very glad, Sir, that events have proved that prophecy to be wrong, not because I wish to make another speech—far from it,—but because the fact that we have now got through the whole budget, I think for the first time in history, at any rate the first time for many years, clearly indicates, if I may venture to say so without impertinence, a marked improvement in the methods of this House. It also seems to me to suggest that this House is really satisfied that Government has this year applied the pruning knife to the budget in good earnest, and that there was consequently less justification for cuts proposed by the House. At any rate, I think perhaps Government are entitled to this little crumb of comfort in the rather miserable position in which they find themselves financially. And now, Sir, it looks to me as if, unless I take up an unconscionable amount of time, since Government have applied their pruning knife so energetically, you will be saved the painful duty, also probably for the first time, of applying your axe, your historic knife I may call it perhaps, the guillotine. This, I think, establishes a record for this Council, and I think also that both Government and this House are entitled to congratulate themselves on such a satisfactory result. No one can say this year that he has been crowded out; no one can complain that he has not had at any rate an opportunity of discussing his favourite subject and of bringing his pet grievances to the notice of the House. My only regret is that much time and money has been wasted on printing the cuts which honourable members have not thought fit to move in this House, and more especially I would invite the attention of honourable members to several cuts which, if moved, would have been ruled out of order. Perhaps, next year a little more care will be exercised by honourable members in giving notice of cuts.

Now, coming to the speeches of honourable members I do not think the House would expect me to discuss in detail every point that has been raised in the course of the debate. I shall confine myself to the more important points which I have recorded in my notes. As all the speeches will be recorded in the official Hansard, the other points that I do not touch upon will be carefully considered by me. I am sorry I owe an apology to the honourable mover of the cut for the fact that, in spite of the kindly assistance of my honourable friend the Finance Member, I have not been able to follow his remarks in detail, but I understand that he has a considerable list of grievances. As soon as his speech appears on the official record, I shall see whether those grievances cannot be redressed. I hope in consideration of that, when the time comes, he will be prepared to withdraw his motion. I think it will be convenient for the House, if I leave the points raised by my honourable friends from Sind to be dealt with last, as they are in the main similar; whereas the points raised by other honourable members are more or less disconnected.

I am afraid I cannot follow my honourable friend Mr. Surve in his excursion into agricultural economics. I would only ask him to settle his differences with the honourable member Khan Bahadur Khuhro and pass a Bill in this House, when I shall have the good fortune, when it comes, to substitute it for the present land revenue system. With the proposal that the honourable member Mr. Surve advocates I am in entire sympathy; but I have no intention of attempting to introduce anything like it. He asked me why the land revenue has ceased to grow. There are a great many reasons why it has ceased to grow. One of them is that, in accordance with the wishes of the House, we have not for several years made any attempt to introduce revision settlements. If we had gone on introducing revision settlements, land revenue would certainly have grown. There is no question whatever, when we come to consider the policy adopted by Government with regard to land revenue, that this House is mainly responsible for it. I am not for a moment saying that that policy is wrong. I say that, because honourable members may realise it.

The honourable member from Surat (Sardar Davar T. K. Modi) complained about the extreme intricacy of the alluvion and diluvian rules. In such cases we do the best we can, and I was glad to hear that he approved of certain orders recently issued. I am afraid we shall never be able to get over the difficulties which are inherent in that subject and which are due to natural causes over which we have no control.

As regards the assistance suits, I shall want more specific information from him, before I take the action he suggests. The revenue officers are frequently accused of being unsympathetic in their attitude towards the agriculturists. I do not know whether in the cases he has mentioned he has accused the revenue officers with being over-sympathetic, at any rate, with the poorer classes. I am not prepared to agree with the honourable member's contention that there have been cases in which the Collectors have failed to exercise the power vested in them to recover money which is due, but the instructions of Government have always been and will continue to be that those powers should be exercised with great sympathy and moderation. If my honourable friend can give more specific information to me or to the Commissioner, Northern Division, suitable instructions will be issued.

The honourable member from Kaira (Rao Saheb B. G. Desai) suggests that undue hardship is being caused in the collection of unauthorised arrears. He also suggests that there has been—I do not know the right word—some under-hand methods in the collection of authorised arrears as unauthorised arrears. There is no ground whatever for that suggestion. I can assure him that I have no intention whatever of giving instructions that contumacious defaulters should be treated with leniency. This honourable House knows that the Kaira District has been the centre of a no-rent campaign, which I am determined to crush. No leniency of any kind will be shown in such cases. As regards authorised arrears of revenue, it is entirely different. Honourable members know the instructions that have been issued to our officers. If the honourable member can prove to me that in any case a person is being asked to pay more than the authorised arrears, who is not connected with the no-rent campaign, and is not a contumacious defaulter, I am prepared to go into the question and issue instructions. The honourable member felt it his duty to place this argument before the House. But I say again that we will not tolerate a no-rent campaign. It has caused the greatest inconvenience to the administration, quite apart from the fact that it has reduced our revenues very much, on account of which every member of this House is suffering. Therefore, if the honourable member expects me to be easy-going in this matter, he will be disappointed.

Now, I come to my old friend Rao Bahadur Naik. He said that the land revenue system in the Bombay Presidency is thoroughly faulty. He quoted the authority of gentlemen who never set foot in India. No one is going to pretend——

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: I quoted the Governor Elphinstone also.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: No one is going to pretend—I am not going to pretend—that the land revenue system of Bombay, which was practically framed before I was born, is a perfect system. But I think it may interest this honourable House to hear what was said yesterday to me by a very distinguished Bengal civilian, who spent over 30 years of his life in India and who is thoroughly well acquainted with the several systems of India and more especially with those of Bengal and Assam. When we were discussing many other things, he quite spontaneously remarked that the Bombay land revenue system is acknowledged all over India as one of the best, if not the best. I will ask honourable members to pay some little attention to the impression of an officer of great experience. However, Sir, I am not pretending that it is a perfect system. It would have given me the greatest satisfaction if it had been possible for me during the term of my office to do something to improve it. When he said the land revenue system,

[Mr. W. F. Hudson]

I think my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik was referring chiefly to the settlement system. Well, Sir, I have already explained in this House twice, if not oftener, why we are not proceeding with the Land Revenue Bill. I thought on the last occasion that most of the honourable members were satisfied that this—what shall I call it?—dilatory policy has been forced upon us by circumstances. The House knows quite well that two years ago we formulated a Bill—a very complete Bill containing large changes in our present system. I was quite prepared to introduce it, although I knew perfectly well that this House would never pass it. I still think so. Then came the slump in prices—a phenomenal slump such as we have never seen before and which I hope we shall never see again. Government discussed this matter many times and it seemed to them that it was a pure waste of time and money to introduce a highly controversial Bill, which, if carried into effect, would involve a very considerable expenditure, necessitated by a more intricate and more scientific system. Our present system is a rough and ready one and it is not at all scientific. The system we evolved was of a more scientific nature, but you cannot put it into effect, without increasing the establishment, without elaborating your records and without adding to your expenditure. What is to be the result of that? Whatever my honourable friends on the opposite side may say, there is no question that to some extent, in fact to a large extent, any assessment rates must be based on the average of rentals and the average of prices. I will not argue how much it should be on the rental and how much it should be on the prices. My honourable friend will agree that these are the two main factors. But what is the good of introducing rates based on average, if you cannot take the average for at least 5 or 10 years? Ten years will be the proper period. If you take the average for ten years, there will be a considerable increase in the settlement rates. Can we introduce increased settlement rates based on those prices at the present moment, when the other conditions are not changed? I am not talking about Barrage lands. There the conditions are going to change. I am talking for the presidency proper. Under no possible circumstances could we think of raising the rates, at present, though the averages would show a higher figure, because the prices and rentals in 8 of the last 10 years have been very high. I should think that explanation ought to satisfy the House. The position is this. We now have a Bill prepared with infinite care in consultation with all our experts and with non-official opinion. I do not say it is a perfect Bill, but I will make a present of it to my honourable friend and look forward to the day when he will introduce it in this House.

Now, I come to my honourable friends from Sind. One of the honourable members very kindly referred to what is known as my soft heart in connection with that province. I plead guilty to a soft heart, but they apparently also wish me to have a soft head. In the interest of the general taxpayer and this House, I am afraid I cannot allow them to think that my head is as soft as my heart.

Mr. B. S. KAMAT: Softening of the brain has not yet set in.

The Honourable Mr. W. F. HUDSON: Just so.

I take due note of what they say, although I cannot accept some of their figures and what they call their facts. But I am having, as they know, a very careful enquiry made into this matter; and I cannot see that they have any reason to suppose that Government will not treat them fairly.

It is perhaps unnecessary for me to cover the whole ground, but I must remind my honourable friends from Sind that last year they were fortunate enough to receive concessions such as they have never before received in the history of this Presidency. A very large portion of the province has received a remission—not suspension—of 25 per cent. in kharif. Practically the rest of the province has received a remission of 12½ per cent. On the Jamrao area they received a remission of 40 per cent., and practically the whole of the province received a remission of 25 per cent. in rabi. Now, Sir, I do not wish to stir up inter-provincial jealousies, but think of what will be the feelings of my honourable friends over there. If they had received anything like that in the way of concessions, they would have considered themselves extremely fortunate. Now, I understand from some of my honourable friends that they are expecting to receive more this year than they received last year. I am not going to make any promises about that; I can only say to them, as I have often said before, that their position, which, in some cases, I admit, is poor—I am not by any means prepared to say it of the whole province—will receive the fullest consideration at the hands of Government. I am not in a position to make any announcement today, for this reason, that we have, naturally and quite correctly as I think, put off as long as possible calling for final reports from our district officers. We have been justified in this action by the rise in prices. I admit, of course, most of what has been said about prices, though that is not true of all the parts of the province, but I can assure my honourable friends that Government will go as far as it is possible for them to go. This is not a question of meherbani or anything of that sort. I hope my honourable friends will disabuse themselves of any of these old fashioned ideas about a sympathetic Government and meherbani. We are simply guardians of the public purse and we cannot possibly afford to give away one anna that we can collect. Having said that, I may also say that I myself was much impressed, when I was in Sind, by the unfortunate state of affairs; and I am not for a moment going to deny that in the past four or five years certain very unfortunate and widespread calamities have affected the resources of the Sind zamindars. But I should like just to warn my honourable friends that they must not regard this remission as a sort of established right now. They seem to suggest that because we made the concession last year, therefore it must, as a matter of course, be repeated this year. That is a wrong impression altogether, because every taluka and almost every village has got to be judged upon its merits. There is a very serious side to this question which I wish to bring to the notice of my honourable friends from Sind even if it bores the rest of the House. Last year, out of the total jamabandi of about 95 lakhs—the land revenue in Sind varies between 95 lakhs and 105 lakhs, but we will take it for the purposes of this argument as 95 lakhs—out of 95 lakhs there were 9 lakhs of ordinary remissions, 23 lakhs of special remissions and 15 lakhs were not collected. If you add those three figures together, you will find that they come to about Rs. 47 lakhs; that is to say, out of the total land revenue (whatever it was) 47 lakhs did not go into the coffers of Government. My honourable friends are looking forward to the separation of Sind, and they know that their only difficulty, or at least their main difficulty—they have got over the political difficulty—is the financial one. How they are going to surmount that obstacle I do not know. We shall see several honourable members present today before long tackling that problem. Do they wish the official representative of the Bombay Government to tell the Separation Committee that the land revenue of Sind is not 95 lakhs but about 55 or 60 lakhs? Isn't that going to add tremendously to their difficulty? Their difficulty was never as great as it is now. And I would, therefore, as a friend advise them to moderate their demand for remissions. It is easy enough to say, "Well, it was last year." After all, last year was a special year, but if it is going to happen this year again, how are honourable members going to get over that difficulty? I give them this advice from a purely friendly point of view, because my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Khuhro suggested that the zamindars cannot pay their land revenue, or, at any rate he suggested that the rates were excessively high. Now, everybody knows that the rates of assessment in Sind are excessively low. That is one of the things which struck the Financial Enquiry Committee. They said to me, "Your rates in Sind are extremely low compared to other parts of India." I am not going to discuss that now—I shall have another opportunity of arguing that question—but I would bring to the notice of my friends from Sind that the less stress they lay upon the inability of Sind zamindars to pay their revenue, the more easy will they find it to convince the Committee which is going to decide the question of the separation of Sind that it is a feasible proposition.

Now, Sir, I think that I have dealt more or less with the more important points which have been brought forward in this debate. I do not think my friend from Hyderabad (Syed Miran Mahomed Shah) really wants to begin a discussion on rasai again, but I have taken note of what he said.

It seems to me that the main points which have been raised have been dealt with and the only thing that remains for me now is once again to assure my honourable friend the mover that I will look into his grievances when I can quite follow what they are and to ask him to withdraw his motion.

Mr. V. A. SURVE: Sir, I beg leave of the House to withdraw my motion.

Motion, by leave, withdrawn.

Original demand put, and agreed to.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have been approached by many honourable members asking me to hold the meeting at 10 o'clock to-morrow, but I think half-past nine has been agreed upon, as I am told that to-morrow's races are not meant so much for sport as for charity. Many of the honourable members of this House are likely to attend the races. Therefore, the House is adjourned to half-past nine to-morrow, Saturday, the 12th March 1932.
