

CONTENTS

GDAŃSK

|   |  |
|---|--|
| INTRODUCTION. — German claim — examples of Germanized districts elsewhere not claimed — German character of Gdańsk not decisive — neither historical nor economic claims possible — Gdańsk belonged to Poland for seven centuries — to the Teutonic Order for 146 years — to Prussia for 126 years — chief motive of the partitions of Poland — necessary reparation of that crime — struggle for Gdańsk dominates the whole rivalry between free Poland and despotic Prussia — a Polish Gdańsk secures freedom for Poland, Lithuania, Bohemia — unanimity of Polish public opinion on that point. | 3334444445 |
|---|--|

I. GEOGRAPHICAL AND ECONOMICAL CONSIDERATIONS, 5-11.

|  |   |
|--|---|
| The basin of the Vistula greater than that of any German river :exceptionally well irrigated — unique extent of the basin fora length of 1.125 km., and a distance from source to mouth of only530 km. — important artificial waterways — Vistula connectedwith the Niemen, the Oder, and the Dnieper — more canals caneasily be constructed — 4.120 km. navigable waterways in an areaof 198.510 squ. km., an unique proportion — development im-possible without political unity — the three partitioning statessubordinated the interests of the Polish nation to such distant centresas Hamburg, Bremen, Vienna or Moscow — examples of economicanomalies — wealth wasted on foreign railways — coal ne-glected — tribute to Prussian coal mines — export ofoil — Polish emigration sent to German ports — Losses ofGdańsk after the first partition — two alternatives: either GdańskPolish, or Poland German — Growth of German ports comparedwith decay of Gdańsk — Growth of other Polish cities —Vanishing importance of Gdańsk for German trade — Gdańska third rate port — another destiny awaits it in a free Poland :Internationalization or neutralization dangerous — the basinof the Vistula is a delicate instrument, not to be used by differentstates — no natural limits between Poland and Germany orRussia — but the whole of the basin of the Vistula must belongto one state — this is required by the interests of the world'strade — Bismarck's opinion that Gdańsk more indispensablethan Posen to a Polish state — How the Hakatists interpretWilson's points — rise in the prices of the houses in Gdańsk —if different nations owned the basin of the Vistula they would haveto form one state — the conflict is between more than twenty millionsof Poles and a few hundred thousand Germans — other German | 555666666677788889999991010101010 |
|--|---|

cities in Poland— Gdańsk would become Polish — if the 10 Poles living around Gdańsk were allowed to settle in the city : 10
how the Germans acted towards Poland — necessity of full 11
reconstitution of the unity of Poland. 11

II. HISTORICAL FACTS..... 11-18

Strangeness of the case — almost incredible — Poland in 11
the xith century — in the xiith century — Conrad of 11
Masovia and the Prussians — unlucky advice of St Hedvige, a 12
German princess — the Teutonic Order — rapid growth: 12
Gdańsk still Polish in the xivth century — the will of Mes- 12
twin — Przemysław and Łokietek — Sudden aggression in 13
1308 — feast of St. Dominic — violent Germanization — Great 13
Master in Marienburg — vain appeals to the Pope and succession 13 of wars — peace of Kalisz — Lizard Union— Grünwald — a 14
partial umpire — Prussian delegation to the Polish Diet — Jan 14 Baysen — pacifist bishops — war of liberation — final defeat of 15
the Teutonic Order — solemn obligation of the Great Master — 15 increase of the trade of Gdańsk — prosperity of the port parallel 15 to the prosperity of Poland — prices of wheat — Growth 15 of trade and population in the xvith c. — Gdańsk and England 16
— Polish feelings in Gdańsk — fidelity to Leszczyński — resistance 16 to Friedrich II — protest against annexation — exile of 17
Schopenhauer — two sieges in 1807 and 1813 — last will of a free 17 town — Polish spirit in Gdańsk — Polish papers — Polish 18 churches and schools. 18

III. STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS..... 18-20

Future wars — a German Gdańsk prevents the communication 18 of Poland with the Allies — use for the condemned warships — 19
— Kashoubs good sailors — The Baltic must not become a 19
German sea — only Poland can resist the Germans — Polish navy 19
needed. 20

IV. ISOLATION OF EAST PRUSSIA FROM GERMANY. 20-22

East Prussia as an Alsatia — not really separated from Germa- 21
ny — territorial connexion recent — the Junkers of East 21
Prussia — a very special caste — a Prussian contagion — no 21 national feeling for East Prussia — Prussia discredited — the 21 ambition and greed of a dynasty led to the partitions of Poland — 22 final refutation of Prussian theory and practice — a free Poland 22 means the disintegration of Prussia — Prussia's fate well 22
deserved. 22