EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

The following Memorandum, explaining the views of Government, with reference to the grant of public aid to European and Eurasian Schools in the Bombay Presidency, is published for general information.

By order of the Honorable the Governor in Council,

W. H. HAVELOCK,
Officiating Secretary.

Bombay Castle, 9th December 1863.

No. of 1863-64.

Poona, Office of the Director of Public Instruction, October 1863.

MEMORANDUM.

Under the instructions of His Excellency the Governor in Council, conveyed in Government letter, No. 351, dated 9th July 1863, Educational Department, this Memorandum is published, in order to explain the views of Government with regard to granting public aid to European and Eurasian schools in the Bombay Presidency.

2. In a Minute dated 29th October 1860, the late Lord Canning recorded his views to the following general effect, with reference to a scheme for Christian schools, drawn up by the Bishop of Calcutta:

1. There is a present and increasing necessity for providing Education for European and Eurasian children in India.

2. To meet this want the British public in India and England should be looked to, aided by the Government with encouragement and public funds, but the "principle of self-support should be carefully kept in view to the fullest extent to which it may be attainable." The Bishop of Calcutta's scheme is approved as in accordance with this idea.

3. Schools are required in the hills and on the plains. In both, practical arts may be taught. "Hitherto education has done little more for the Eurasians than to turn them into clerks and copying machines."

4. The management of the schools should be chiefly private, some Government Officers however being managers ex-officio.

5. "The schools now contemplated are not charitable institutions."

3. The principles on which Government aid should be given to the schools thus described were defined as follows:—

1. "That to the sum collected from private subscriptions as a building and foundation fund, an equal sum be added by the Government."

2. "That from the opening of each school it should receive a grant-in-aid to the fullest extent allowed by the rules."

3. "That if the school be built where ground is at the disposal of Government, the ground be given."

These principles were sanctioned by Her Majesty's Secretary of State under date the 16th January 1861.

4. On the 23rd September 1862, the Bishop of Bombay addressed the local Government with a request for aid under Lord Canning's Minute to the Indo-British School and a few other Institutions. The Bishop's letter was transmitted for report to the Director of Public Instruction, who, on the 12th November 1862, in anticipation of his special report on the Bishop's proposals, requested the Government to favor him for his guidance with their views on the subject generally.

5. The answer of Government is dated the 9th July 1863, and so much of it as is general in character is here reprinted; the substance, or in some cases the words in full, of the Director's suggestions, where it seemed necessary, being added in the margin.

Extract from a Minute by His Excellency the Governor, concurred in by the Honorable Board.

6. "Mr. Howard says, that Lord Canning's Minute seems to contemplate grants to new schools only. I do not think this was intended, but grants for Buildings or Foundation Funds should ordinarily be given only to meet new efforts. I concur with the distinction in the 8th paragraph of Mr. Howard's letter, that whilst annual subscriptions may be regarded as new efforts, the proceeds of an endowment could not be so considered; but even this rule must be liberally interpreted, and an old Institution reformed and put on a new footing may well deserve the character of a new effort. Whilst attaching the highest importance, as Mr. Howard does, to the warning in Lord Canning's Minute against the present style of Eurasian teaching for boys, and entirely concurring with Mr. Howard as to the superior value of a good artizan's as compared with a mere clerk's education, I do not think that such points as the teaching of trades should be made an invariable condition of grants under these rules. The intention is to furnish better schools for the class, which from inability or some other cause does not send its children to England. This class comprises many grades, the higher of which may reasonably desire to train their children for higher positions than those of artificers. A still larger number will unreasonably, but not the less absolutely, reject any training as tradesmen; and will accept the most superficial teaching which pretends to be of a higher kind, in preference. We cannot ignore the fact that there is a great demand for a particular kind of training. We may not think it the most beneficial to the community or to the individual, but it is free from objection; and I conceive that it is within the purpose of Lord Canning's Minute to do what can be done to make the best of it."

Lord Canning seems to contemplate grants to new schools only. This is indeed the fundamental idea of the grants-in-aid system that public funds are only to be given to meet new efforts; not to maintain a status quo; still less to enable the reduction of existing expenditure.

On the other hand it may be said that annual subscriptions are in the nature of new efforts, but the proceeds of an endowment could not, I suppose, be so considered.

I attach the highest importance to Lord Canning's warning against the present style of Eurasian teaching for boys. We are inundated with clerks, the most feeble and helpless of all classes, if they happen to be out of employment. Teach your Christian boys in preference a useful trade, make them gardeners, blacksmiths, carpenters, and so forth. Analogous advice may be given to the instructors of girls.

Only to-day* I heard with great pain from a member of the Committee of the Byculla Schools that the girls are "too weak" to be taught cooking and ironing. How then, I asked, will they manage when they become wives and mothers? "They will then have a washerman and a cook of their own. They will not marry poor men. Soldiers complain that they cannot get a wife from the Byculla school;" and I was told that "girls often remain for months, even years, in the hospital, they recover their strength so slowly after illness."

The last report of the Lawrence School at Aboo states that the boys are trained to expect the employment of clerks under Government or in the Electric Telegraph Department. The fault seems to be there as here, that instead of turning out simple useful house-keepers we breed a race of feeble pseudo fine ladies, and "copying machines" instead of hard-handed tradesmen.

Yet these schools are supported to only a fractional extent by the payments of pupils, and in some sense they must, I suppose, be considered charitable Institutions.

* NOTE.—This was written last year; there may have been some changes since that time.

"Mr. Howard, in his concluding remarks on this point of the kind of education, says: 'Surely there should be a broader line drawn between charity children on the one hand, and young ladies and gentlemen, whose parents can afford to pay for their education what it costs. These are irreconcileable elements, and cannot be properly combined in one school.'"

"To this I quite agree, and my foregoing remark does not apply to charity schools, nor were Lord Canning's observations directed to them, but rather to those schools which meet the wants of numerous grades between those who can afford to pay the full cost of the best school instruction, and those who are dependent on charitable institutions."

"We have in fact to consider the reasonable wants and wishes of parents in many classes of life; from those who would, if in England, wisely and properly send their children to a good parish or national school, up to those who would with equal wisdom and propriety, send them to a good Grammar or High School. It is impossible to apply one rule as regards the instruction to be afforded to all these classes. The only point they have in common is the necessity for not allowing the children to be untaught, nor to receive an education which, whether pretending to be liberal or rudimentary, shall be, as much of the present teaching of that class unfortunately is, essentially unsound."

"Again concurring entirely with Mr. Howard's opinion as to the advantage of a European or hill climate, I do not think we should confine our grants to schools at Hill stations. The advantages of climate might however be good ground for extraordinary aid to establish such schools. The observations in the 12th paragraph of Lord Canning's Minute are pertinent to this question."

Then there is the question of climate. I would at all events sweep every European school out of the enervating air of Bombay, and set them either in one of the hill Sanitaria which Lord Canning contemplates, or out of India altogether.

Mr. Walker of Bombay proposed a scheme of sending all the Byculla boys to England. I believe that if this could be done the best results will follow. Every debauched helpless European in the country is an enemy of England in the strictest sense, and if it were possible, should be deported. This is only possible in the case of children whose parents seek the aid of Government for their education, and I would gladly see a condition attached to such aid that the people should at least be educated in a hill station if not in England, and again that every pupil to be aided by the State should be brought up to a trade, except perhaps in the case of a few very clever boys whose abilities could be trained to a higher occupation with advantage to the public.

"I quite concur with Mr. Howard in his regret that European and Eurasian children do not make more use of the means of obtaining an excellent secular education, such as is given at the schools and colleges provided for our native youth. But he hardly allows sufficient weight to the defects of that education in the eyes of most European parents, or to the physical as well as other difficulties of their children obtaining it. The religious element is of necessity wanting in the general course, and most European parents in this country, while they value this as much or more than other branches of education, feel quite as diffident with regard to their own powers of teaching it."

The instruction given in the Government National Schools is much better as well as cheaper than that ordinarily available for poor European and Eurasian boys, yet the parents of the latter are too much accustomed to look down on natives and to forbid their children from using the Government schools, and they are encouraged in this arrogant spirit by those who should give them better advice.

"Then again the Government schools are generally day schools, and so situated as to suit the convenience of particular classes of natives, such localities are rarely convenient for the attendance of the children of the less affluent classes of Europeans and Eurasians."

"I do not say that it would be at all impossible for one of this class to get his boys all the advantages of the good secular teaching of a Government Native School, and to add by instruction at home, and from Christian ministers, such religious teaching as a Christian parent would desire. But to do so requires better opportunities and better arrangements than most of our less affluent fellow countrymen could command."

"A remedy might be found in a good boarding house for Christian children under proper superintendence in a suitable locality, whence they could attend the classes of our Government schools and colleges. No provision need be made in the boarding house for any but the religious instruction of the scholars. I think the attention of the Director of Public Instruction, and of all interested in the education of Christian children, might be usefully directed to a trial of this plan."

Director of Public Instruction.

N.B.—This table is an extract from a more extensive yearly Return that is prepared for statistical purposes, and chiefly for the detection of any removable sources of disease, with a view to improving the healthiness of the Island. As the principal object cannot be fully attained unless the true causes of death be recorded, persons at out-stations are requested, in each case of death occurring in their circle, to obtain, in writing, from the Medical Attendant, the name of the fatal disease, that it may be delivered to the Policeman at the funeral place. Medical Practitioners, particularly, are requested to aid the registration. Blank forms of Death Reports, to keep by them in readiness, are given gratuitously on application at the Office of the Deputy Commissioner of Police.

It is thought that some withhold their assistance through the notion that reports of the single casualties coming now and then under their observation could but little affect the Returns; but it ought rather to be borne in mind, that the accuracy of the Returns depends on the correct reporting of all single cases, for of such only the aggregate is made up.
