RESOLUTION.

The Government of India are satisfied with the working of Act V of 1888 (Inventions and Designs Act) during the year. In particular the large increase of income from fees paid under Section 8 of the Act in respect of the continuance of an exclusive privilege indicates that the Act is usefully serving its purpose of stimulating and protecting inventions in this country.

2. The opportunity is taken to call attention to the following points in connection with which applicants for exclusive privilege under the Act have more or less frequently either misunderstood or paid insufficient attention to the provisions of the law. One is a misapprehension regarding the nature of a design. A large number of applications were in 1890 and 1891 rejected because the invention for which protection was sought was a trade-mark and not a design as defined under the Act. The rejections in those years appear to have led in 1892 to a material diminution in the number of applications of the kind, but even in that year a large percentage of claims were rejected on the same ground.

Another frequent mistake which has occurred, and which has led either to the rejection or to the return for amendment of a large number of applications, has been the omission to define, as required by the Act, the particular novelty of which the invention consists ‘with reasonable precision and detail.’ Thus numerous applications have been received for the grant of exclusive privilege to machines and processes, in which are included or combined old and well known contrivances as well as alleged novelties. Under the Act exclusive privilege can only be granted to the latter, which must, in accordance with the directions of Section 5, clause 3, be carefully separated in the application from the former.

3. As the Governor General in Council is desirous that fees, for the return of which there is no legal provision, should not be needlessly paid for the protection of inventions which cannot be brought under the cover of the law, the present occasion is taken to warn the public against the errors pointed out in the preceding paragraph.

“ APPENDIX.

Report on the working of the Office of the Secretary under the Inventions and Designs Act, 1888, during the year 1892.

The arrangement by which the Inventions and Designs Office was placed under the superintendence of the Officer in charge of the Mathematical Instrument Department of the Survey of India continued in force during the entire period to which this report refers.

No matters of public interest were dealt with during the year under report.

The Museum for models provided in the year 1891 was not taken advantage of to the extent that was expected, the number of models sent in by inventors having been very small.

A slight change of procedure was introduced, by which applicants for exclusive privilege are now required to state whether or not a patent has at any time been applied for in the United Kingdom in respect of the invention for which protection is claimed. This was found necessary as instances had occurred of English patents having been applied for without any intimation of the fact being given, and the Department had no means of ascertaining whether the application had been submitted within the period of one year prescribed in Section 25 of the Act without examining the volumes of the Journals of the English Patents Office at a considerable expenditure of time and trouble.

There was a slight decrease in the number of applications filed, the total being 336 against 347 in the preceding year.

Of this number, 228 were granted, 26 rejected, and 82 remained pending at the close of the year. Experts were referred to in 198 cases against 149 in 1891. Of these, 53 were on payment of fees and 145 without, the latter including 47 references to the Public Works Department, being 15 more than in the previous year. Twenty-four of these were for inventions connected with railways, and the remainder were for electric, hydraulic, and other miscellaneous inventions.

The number of specifications filed was considerably in excess of those of the preceding year, being 305 against 236 in 1892. These included 20 connected with electricity, 17 connected with railways, 12 for punkah-pulling machines, 8 for the treatment of ores, 20 for the treatment of cotton and other fibres, 4 for the manufacture of tea, 4 for the manufacture of indigo, 4 for baling presses, and 4 for water-lifts.

Eighty-nine applications for the registration of designs were received, or about half the number received in the previous year; 76 of these were granted and 13 rejected.

Two cases involving points of law were referred to the Legal Advisers to Government against five in 1892.

The fees collected showed an increase of over Rs. 2,000, having stood at Rs. 15,852-10 against Rs. 13,762 in the year previous.

This amount included Rs. 1,400 on account of the continuance of exclusive privilege as compared with Rs. 750 in 1892. The copying fees were double those of the year before, while Rs. 117 were received for the inspection of applications and specifications. From the total receipts must, however, be deducted a sum of Rs. 147-4 representing refunds made to applicants.

The statement below furnishes statistics of the working of the Inventions and Designs Office during the year under reference as compared with the previous two years:—

REGIMENTAL DEBTS ACT, 1893.

[56 VICTORIA, CHAPTER 5.]

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the Payment of Regimental Debts, and the Collection and Disposal of the Effects of Officers and Soldiers in case of Death, Desertion, Insanity, and other cases.

[29TH APRIL 1893.]

Be it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Collection of Effects and Payment of Preferential Charges.

1. On the death of a person while subject to military law the prescribed committee of adjustment shall, as soon as may be, in accordance with the prescribed regulations and subject to any exceptions made thereby,

(1) secure and make an inventory of all such of the effects of the deceased as are in camp or quarters, and, if the death occurs out of the United Kingdom, are within the prescribed area, whether station, colony, or command, or other (which area is in this Act referred to as the regulation area); and

(2) ascertain the amount and provide for the payment of the preferential charges on the property of the deceased.

2. The following shall be the preferential charges on the property of a person dying while subject to military law, and shall, except so far as other provision may be made for them or any of them, be payable in preference to all other debts and liabilities, and as among themselves, in the following order:

- (1) Expenses of last illness and funeral;
- (2) Military debts, namely, sums due in respect of, or of any advance in respect of—
 - (a) Quarters;
 - (b) Mess, band, and other regimental accounts;
 - (c) Military clothing, appointments and equipments, not exceeding a sum equal to six months' pay of the deceased, and having become due within eighteen months before his death;

to which shall be added, where the death occurs out of the United Kingdom,—

- (3) Servants' wages, not exceeding two months' wages to each servant; and

(4) Household expenses incurred within a month before the death, or after the last issue of pay to the deceased, whichever is the shorter period.

3. So much only of the personal property of a person dying while subject to military law as remains after payment of the preferential charges shall be considered personal estate of the deceased with reference to the calculation of probate duty, or of any other duty, tax or percentage, or for any of the purposes of administration.

4. If in any case a doubt or difference arises in relation to any preferential charge or the payment thereof, the decision of the Secretary of State, or of such officer or person as the Secretary of State deposes by writing to act in this behalf, shall be final and shall be binding on all persons for all purposes.

5. Subject to the prescribed regulations, if any person pays or secures the payment of the preferential charges in full, the committee of adjustment shall not further interfere in relation to the property except so far as they may be requested so to do by or on behalf of that person.

6. (1) If within one month after the death, or such further time not exceeding the prescribed time as the committee of adjustment allow, the preferential charges are not paid or secured to their satisfaction, the committee shall proceed to pay those charges.

(2) If the death occurs out of the United Kingdom, the committee of adjustment, save as may be prescribed, shall, if it appears to them necessary for the payment of the preferential charges, and in any case may, collect all the personal property of the deceased in the regulation area.

(3) The committee, save as may be prescribed, shall for the purpose of paying the preferential charges and their expenses, and in any case may at such time as, subject to the prescribed regulations, they think expedient, sell and convert into money such of the personal property of the deceased as does not consist of money.

(4) If the death occurs out of the United Kingdom they may also, save as otherwise prescribed, pay all debts which appear to them to be legally payable out of the personal estate of the deceased.

(5) For the purpose of the exercise of their duties, the committee shall, to the exclusion of all authorities and persons whomsoever, have the same rights and powers as if they had taken out representation to the deceased, and also if in a colony the powers which any official administrator has by the law of that colony; and any receipt given by the committee shall have the like effect as if it had been given by the legal personal representative of the deceased.

(6) The committee of adjustment shall lodge the surplus remaining in their hands after payment of the said charges and expenses and debts with such person (in this Act referred to as the paymaster) at such times, in such manner, and together with such inventory, accounts, vouchers and information, as may be prescribed.

Disposal of Surplus and Residue.

7. The paymaster shall pay the surplus in the prescribed manner, and subject to the prescribed provisions and exceptions, as follows:

(1) If out of the United Kingdom he may pay thereout any expenses which under the prescribed regulations are chargeable against the surplus, and any debts which are legally payable out of the personal estate of the deceased;

(2) If he knows of a representative of the deceased in the same part of Her Majesty's dominions, he shall pay the surplus to that representative;

(3) If he does not know of such a representative as above mentioned, and the amount does not exceed one hundred pounds, he may pay or apply all or any part thereof to or for the benefit of such persons in the same part of Her Majesty's dominions as he knows of and appear to be beneficially entitled to the personal estate of the deceased, or to or for the benefit of any of such persons;

(4) He shall remit the surplus or so much thereof as is not paid or applied in pursuance of this section to the Secretary of State.

8. The Secretary of State, on being informed of the death of a person subject to military law, shall proceed with all reasonable speed as follows:

(1) He shall cause to be ascertained the total amount to the credit of the deceased, including any surplus or part of a surplus remitted by a paymaster as mentioned in this Act, and all arrears of pay, batta, grants and other allowances in the nature thereof, which total amount so ascertained is in this Act referred to as the residue;

(2) If he has notice of a representative of the deceased, he shall pay the residue to that representative;

(3) He may, and if it is so prescribed shall, before such payment, publish the prescribed notice stating the amount of the residue and such other particulars respecting the deceased and his property as may seem fit, and also the mode in which any application respecting the residue is to be made to the Secretary of State: Provided that the Secretary of State may pay out of any money in his hands to the credit of the deceased any preferential charges appearing to him to have been left unpaid by the committee of adjustment.

9. Where the residue does not exceed one hundred pounds, the Secretary of State may, if he thinks fit, require representation to be taken out; but if he does not, and has no notice of a representative of the deceased, then, after the expiration of the prescribed time and the publication of the prescribed notice (if any), the residue shall be disposed of as follows :

(1) The Secretary of State may, if he thinks fit, pay or apply the residue or any part thereof in accordance with the prescribed regulations to or for the benefit of any of the persons appearing to be beneficially entitled to the personal estate of the deceased, or any of them, and may for that purpose invest the same by deposit in a military or other savings bank or otherwise, and, if necessary, in the name or names of a trustee or trustees for any such person.

(2) Any part thereof remaining in the hands of the Secretary of State, and not irrevocably appropriated, shall be applied in paying any debt of the deceased which—

(a) accrued due within three years before the death; and

(b) is claimed from the Secretary of State within two years after the death; and

(c) is proved by the claimant to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State.

(3) Except as above in this section provided, a person shall not be entitled to obtain payment out of any residue in the hands of the Secretary of State of any sum due from the deceased.

10. (1) Where any residue or any part thereof remains undisposed of and unappropriated, the prescribed notice thereof shall be published, and during six years next after the publication of that notice, the like notice with any necessary modifications shall be annually published.

(2) So much of the residue as remains undisposed of and unappropriated for six months after the publication of the last of such notices shall, together with any income or accumulations of income accrued therefrom, be applied in the prescribed manner in or towards the creation or maintenance of such compassionate or other fund for the benefit of widows and children, or other near relatives, of soldiers dying on service, or within six months after discharge, as may be prescribed :

(3) Provided that the application under this section of any residue, or part of a residue, shall not bar any claim of any person to the same, or any part thereof.

Supplemental Provisions.

11. Medals and decorations shall not be considered to be comprised in the personal estate of the deceased with reference to the claims of creditors or for any of the purposes of administration under this Act or otherwise; and, notwithstanding anything in this or any other Act, the same, when secured by the committee of adjustment, shall be held and disposed of according to regulations laid down by royal warrant.

12. Where any part of the personal estate of the deceased consists of effects, securities, or other property not converted into money, the provisions of this Act with respect to paying or remitting the surplus shall, save as may be prescribed, extend to the delivery, transmission, or transfer of such effects, securities, or property, and the paymaster and Secretary of State shall respectively have the same power of converting the same into money as the representative of the deceased.

13. (1) Her Majesty the Queen may, by Regulations by royal warrant, sign manual, make regulations for all such things as are by this Act directed or authorised to be prescribed or made subject to regulations, and also such regulations as may seem fit for the better execution of this Act or any part thereof; and may by such regulations make different provisions to meet different cases or different circumstances.

(2) Every royal warrant made under this Act shall be printed by the Queen's printer, and published under the authority of Her Majesty's Stationery Office, and laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after the making thereof.

14. (1) An official administrator, notwithstanding any law regulating his office independently of this Act, shall not interpose in any manner in relation to any property of a person dying while subject to military law, except in the prescribed cases, or except when and so far as he is expressly required to do so by a committee of adjustment, or paymaster, or Secretary of State.

(2) The committee of adjustment in such cases, under such circumstances, and at such times as may be prescribed may request an official administrator to exercise his official powers either on behalf of the committee or otherwise, and the administrator shall comply with the request. The committee may also lodge any property secured or collected by them with any official administrator.

(3) Where under this Act any property comes to the hands of any official administrator, he shall administer the same as regards preferential charges and otherwise in accordance with this Act, and, subject thereto, according to the law regulating his office independently of this Act.

(4) The official administrator shall remit any surplus remaining in his hands after discharge of all debts and his charges to the Secretary of State at such time and in such manner as may be prescribed to be disposed of according to the provisions of this Act as if remitted by a paymaster.

(5) An official administrator shall not take a percentage on the property exceeding three per cent. on the gross amount coming to or remaining in his hands after payment of preferential charges.

15. Any property coming under this Act to the hands of any committee of adjustment or paymaster shall not, by reason of so coming, be deemed assets or effects at the place in which that committee or paymaster is stationed or resides, and it shall not be necessary by reason thereof that representation be taken out in respect of that property for that place.

16. Where any surplus or residue, as the case may be, does not exceed one hundred pounds, no duty shall be payable in the United Kingdom or India in respect thereof, and it shall not be necessary that representation to any deceased person be taken out for the purpose of obtaining payment thereof or of any part thereof under this Act from a paymaster or a Secretary of State, except in any prescribed case, or in any case where the Secretary of State requires it.

17. Compliance with the regulations under this Act with respect to the mode of payment of any surplus or residue or any part thereof to any person (whether by transmission or remission to another place or person or otherwise) shall discharge the Secretary of State or paymaster or other person complying with the regulations, and he shall not be liable by reason of the surplus or residue or part which may be in his hands having been paid, transmitted, remitted, or otherwise dealt with in accordance with the regulations.

18. Every payment, application, sale, or other disposition of property made by the Secretary of State, or by any committee of adjustment, or by any paymaster when acting in execution or supposed execution of this Act, or of any royal warrant for carrying this Act into effect, shall be valid as against all persons whomsoever; and the Secretary of State, and every officer belonging to any such committee, and every such paymaster as aforesaid shall, by virtue of this Act, be absolutely discharged from all liability in respect of the property so paid, applied, sold, or disposed of.

19. After the committee of adjustment have lodged with the paymaster the surplus of the property of any deceased person, any representative of that person and any official administrator shall, as regards any property of a deceased person not collected by the committee of adjustment and not forming part of the surplus or residue in this Act mentioned, have the same rights and duties as if this Act had not passed.

20. A creditor, as such, shall not be deemed a person entitled to take out representation to the deceased within the meaning of this Act or to pay or secure the preferential charges; nor shall a creditor taking out representation be entitled as representative of the deceased to claim from a paymaster or the Secretary of State any part of the property of the deceased.

21. (1) Where any original will of a person dying while subject to military law, whether he died before or after the commencement of this Act, comes to the hands of a Secretary of State, and representation under the same is not taken out, then the Secretary of State may cause the same to be deposited as follows:

(a) Where the domicile of the testator appears to the Secretary of State to have been in Scotland, then in the office of the commissary clerk of the commissary court of the county of Edinburgh:

(b) Where the domicile of the testator appears to the Secretary of State to have been in Ireland, then in the place for the time being appointed in Dublin for the deposit of original wills brought into the High Court in Ireland:

(c) In any other case, in the place for the time being appointed in London for the deposit of original wills brought into the High Court in England.

(2) Where a person dies while subject to military law intestate, and under this Act any residue of his property comes to the hands of the Secretary of State, and representation to the deceased is not taken out, then the Secretary of State may, if it seems fit, cause a declaration of his intestacy to be deposited in the place or office where his original will (if any) would be deposited as aforesaid.

(3) In every such case the Secretary of State may cause to be deposited, together with the original will or declaration of intestacy, an inventory showing the personal property of the deceased, and the application thereof, as far as the same is known.

(4) Every such original will, declaration of intestacy, and inventory shall be preserved and dealt with and may be inspected, subject and according to the same rules or orders and on payment of the same fees as any other like documents deposited in that office or place, or subject and according to such other rules or orders and on payment of such other fees as may be made or fixed in that behalf by the court, judge, or other authority empowered to make rules or orders in relation to other documents deposited in the same place or office.

Application of Act to special Cases.

22. In the application of this Act to an army paymaster, the following special provision as to modifications shall be made:

(1) The powers and duties of the committee of adjustment shall arise immediately on his death, and shall continue notwithstanding that the professional charges are paid or secured:

(2) Money in the possession or under the control of an army paymaster at his death shall not be considered to be comprised in his effects for the purposes of this Act.

(3) The surplus in the hands of the committee of adjustment and the residue in the hands of a Secretary of State shall be dealt with and disposed of as may be prescribed and not according to the foregoing provisions of this Act.

23. Where a person subject to military law deserts, or is absent without leave for twenty-one days, or is convicted by a civil court of any offence which by the law of England is felony, or is delivered up as an apprentice, whether in pursuance of an order of a court, or otherwise, the provisions of this Act shall apply as if the person were dead, subject to the following modifications:

(1) The powers of the committee of adjustment shall arise and continue notwithstanding that the preferential charges are paid or secured:

(2) The committee of adjustment shall dispose of the surplus in the prescribed manner, and the same when so disposed of shall be free from all claim on the part of the said person or any one claiming through him.

24. Where a person subject to military law is

ascertained in the prescribed manner to be insane, the provisions of this Act shall apply as if he had died at the time of his insanity being so ascertained, subject nevertheless to the prescribed exceptions, and to the following modifications:

(a) The preferential charges may be paid by the wife of the insane person, or by any person who, subject to the prescribed regulations, appears to be a relative of or person undertaking the care of the insane person or of his property:

(b) The committee of adjustment shall dispose of the surplus in the prescribed manner with a view to its being applied for the benefit of the insane person.

Application of Act to India.

25. This Act shall apply to India as if it were dies while in India or while on service with any force under the command of the Commander-in-Chief in India, or of any provincial Commander-in-Chief in India, and who is not a soldier of Her Majesty's regular forces, this Act shall apply with the following modifications:

(1) The paymaster shall, after the prescribed notice, pay all debts of which he has notice within the prescribed time, and which appear to him to be lawfully payable out of the estate of the deceased: Provided that if, under the special circumstances of the case of the deceased, it appears to the paymaster inexpedient or unjust to pay any claims out of the estate, or if the claims lodged exceed in the whole the prescribed amount, the paymaster shall, without discharging those claims, or any of them, transfer the surplus aforesaid to the official administrator:

(2) Where the paymaster does not so transfer the surplus, he shall dispose thereof, or of so much thereof as remains after the discharge of any claims, in manner directed by this Act:

(3) The foregoing provisions of this section shall not apply to an army paymaster:

(4) The Secretary to the Government of India in the Military Department shall have the same power as the Secretary of State to decide any doubt or difference as to preferential charges, and his decision shall have the same effect as if it were given by the Secretary of State.

27. Nothing in this Act shall prevent the Deduction for arrears of subscription to military and orphan funds.

Secretary of State from deducting in the pay office from any arrears of pay due to the deceased the amount of any arrears of subscription due by the deceased to the Indian military and orphan funds, or either of them.

23. Anything authorised or required by this

Provision as to Secretary of State for India.

Act to be done by, to, or before a Secretary of State may, in the prescribed cases, be done by, to, or before the Secretary of State in Council of India.
