The Right Hon'ble the Governor General avails himself of the appropriate occasion of the decisive victory obtained over the Seikh Army at Subraon, on the 10th instant, where he witnessed the bravery and energy of the Sirmoor and Nusseeree Battalions, to confer upon the men of those corps, when wounded on actual service with troops of the line, the same scale of pension for wounds as that which was granted to the men of the Regular Army in General Orders dated the 31st ultimo.

The same advantages will be extended to the Sowars of the Irregular Cavalry and to all local corps generally, when wounded under similar circumstances.

This order will apply to the Local Corps of the three Presidencies.

The Army of the Sutlej having crossed that River and entered the Punjaub, this day, the Governor General is pleased to order that all corps whose head quarters are on the right bank of the Sutlej shall receive the same rates of pay and allowances as those laid down in Government General Orders of the 15th August 1845, No. 261, A. for the Artillery, Cavalry and Infantry of the Bengal Army serving in Science.

Detachments of corps, whose head quarters have not crossed the Sutlej, employed on escort or other duty on the right bank of the river, shall receive Scinde pay and allowances, if the duty on which they are employed shall exceed three days.

POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

BOMBAY CASTLE, 2nd MARCH 1846.

In continuation of the Notification dated the 19th ultimo, the Hon'ble the Governor in Council has the highest satisfaction in publishing for general information, the following General Order issued by the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India, on the 14th ultimo, together with the despatch therein alluded to, from His Excellency the Commander in Chief in India, detailing the particulars of the brilliant and decisive Victory obtained on the 10th ultimo, by the British Forces over the Sikh Army at Sobraon, and also a Proclamation issued by the Governor General on the former date.

By order of the Hon'ble the Governor in Council, J. P. WILLOUGHBY, Chief Seey.

GENERAL ORDER BY THE RIGHT HONORABLE THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA.

Foreign Department, Camp Kussoor, the 14th February 1846.

The Governor-General having received from His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief the despatch annexed to this paper, announces to the Army and the people of India, for the fourth time during this Campaign, a most important and memorable Victory obtained by the Army of the Sutlej over the Sikh forces at Sobraon on the 10th instant.

On that day the Enemy's strongly entrenched camp, defended by 35,000 men and 67 pieces of Artillery, exclusive of heavy guns on the opposite bank of the river, was stormed by the British Army under the immediate command of His Excellency Sir Hugh Gough, Baronet, G. C. B., and in two hours the Sikh forces were driven into the river with immense loss, sixty-seven guns being captured by the Victors.

The Governor-General most cordially congratulates the Commander-in Chief and the British Army on this exploit, one of the most daring ever achieved, by which, in open day, a triple line of Breastworks, flanked by form-idable Redoubts, bristling with Artillery, manned by 32 Regular Regiments of Infantry, was assaulted and carried by the forces under His Excellency's command.

This important operation was most judiciously preceded by a cannonade from the heavy Howitzers and Mortars, which had arrived from Delhi on the 8th instant, the same day on which the forces under Major General Sir Harry Smith, which had been detached to Loodianah and had gained the victory of Aliwal, rejoined the Commander-in-Chief's Camp.

The vertical fire of the heavy Ordnance had the effect intended by His Excellency; it shook the Enemy's confidence in works so well and so laboriously constructed, and compelled them to seek shelter in the broken ground within their camp.

The British Infantry, formed on the extreme left of the line, then advanced to the assault, and in spite of every impediment, cleared the entrenchments and entered the Enemy's camp. Her Majesty's 10th, 53rd, and 80th Regiments, with the 33rd, 43rd, 59th, and 63d Native Infantry, moving at a firm and steady pace, never fired a shot till they had passed the barriers opposed to them, a forbearance much to be commended and most worthy of constant imitation, to which may be attributed the success of their first effort, and the small loss they sustained; this attack was crowned with the success it deserved and (led by its gallant Commander, Major General Sir Robert Dick) obtained the admiration of the Army, which witnessed its disciplined valor; when checked by the formidable obstacles and superior numbers to which the attacking division was exposed, the 2d division, under Major General Gilbert, afforded the most opportune assistance by rapidly advancing to the attack of the enemy's Batteries, entering their fortified position after a severe struggle, and sweeping through the interior of the camp. This division inflicted a very severe loss on the retreating Enemy.

The same gallant efforts, attended by the same success, distinguished the attack of the Enemy's left, made by the first Division under the command of Major-General Sir H. Smith, K. C. E., in which the Troops nobly sustained their former reputation.

These three Divisions of Infantry, concentrated within the Enemy's carap, drove his shattered forces into the river, with a loss which far exceeded that which the most experienced Officers had ever witnessed.

Thus terminated, in the brief space of two hours, this most remarkable conflict, in which the Militrary combinations of the Commander-in-Chief were fully and ably carried into effect with His Excellency's characteristic energy. The Enemy's select Regiments of Regular Infantry have been dispersed, and a large proportion destroyed, with the loss, since the campaign began, of 220 pieces of Artillery taken in action.

The same evening six Regiments of Native Infantry crossed the Sutlej. On the following day the bridge of boats was nearly completed by that able and indefatigable officer, Major Abbott of the Engineers, and the Army is this day encamped at Kussoor, 32 miles from Lahore.

The Governor-General again most cordially congratulates the Commander-in-Chief on the important results obtained by this memorable achievement. The Governor-General, in the name of the Government and of the people of India, offers to His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, to the General Officers, and all the Officers and Troops under their Command, his grateful and heartfelt acknowledgments for the services they have performed,

To commemorate this great Victory the Governor General will cause a Medal to be struck with "Sobraon" engraved upon it, to be presented to the victo ious Army in the service of the East India Company, and repasts His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief to forward the Lists, usually furnished, of those engaged.

The Governor-General deeply regrets the loss of the brave Officers and men who have fallen on this occasion. Major General Sir Robert Dick, K. C. B., who led the attack, received a mortal wound after he had entered the Enemy's entrenchments. Thus fell, most gloriously at the moment of Victory, this veteran Officer, displaying the same energy and intrepidity as when, 35 years ago in Spain, he was the distinguished leader of the 42nd Highlanders.

The Army has also sustained a heavy loss by the death of Brigadier Taylor, Commanding the 3rd Brigade of the 2nd Division, a most able Officer and very worthy to have been at the head of so distinguished a corps as H. M. 29th regiment, by which he was beloved and respected.

The Company's Service has lost an excellent Officer in Captain Fisher, who fell at the head of the brave Sirmoor Regiment, which greatly distinguished itself.

The Governor-General has much satisfaction in again off-ring to Major General Sir Harry Smith, K. C. R. Commanding the 1st division of Infantry, his best thanks for his gallant services on this occasion, by which he has added to his well established reputation.

The Governor-General acknowledges the meritorious conduct of Brigadier Penny and Brigadier Hicks, Commanding Brigades in the 1st division.

H. M. 3 31st and 50th Regiments greatly distinguished themselves, as well as the 42d, 47th Native Infantry, and the Nussceree Battalion.

The Governor-General's thanks are also due to Lieutenant Colonel Ryan, Commanding H. M.'s 50th, who, he regrets to hear, has been severely wounded.

To Major General Gilbert, Communding the 2d division, the Governor-General is most happy to express his acknowledgments for the judgment, coolness, and intrepidity displayed by him on every occasion since the campaign opened, and on the present, the promptitude and energy of his attack essentially contributed to ensure the success of the day.

The Governor-General trusts that the wound received by Brigadier McLaren will not long deprive the service of one of its best Officers.

H. M.'s 29th, and 1st European regiment, and the 16th, 48th, 61st Native Infantry, and the Sirmoor Battalion, have entitled themselves, by their gallant conduct, to the thanks of the Government.

To Brigadier Stacy, on whom the com nand of the 2nd Division devolved, the Governor-General's thanks are epecially due for the able manner in which the attack within the enemy's camp was directed.

The Governor-General is also glad to have this opportunity of acknowledging the services of Brigadier Wilkinson, Commanding the 6th Brigade of the attacking Division.

The Brigade composed of H. M's. 9th and 62nd Regiments, and the 26th N. 1., under the command of Brigadier the Hon'ble T. Ashburnham, placed in support of the attacking division, by its firm and judicious advance, contributed to the success of the assault.

The Cavalry, under the command of Major General Sir J. Thackwell K. C. B., Brigadiers Curcton, Scott, and Campbell, were well in hand, and ready for any emergency; H. M's. 3rd Light Dragoons, as usual, were in the foremost ranks, and distinguished themselves under their Commanding Officer Lieut. Col. White.

Brigadier Smith, the Commanding Engineer, fully accomplished the Commander-in-Chief's instructions, and to Captain Baker and Lieut. Becher, of the Engineers, the Governor General's acknowledgments are due for leading the Division of attack into the enemy's camp; these Officers well maintained the reputation of their Corps whenever gallantry or science may be required from its members.

Major Abbott, of the Engineers, exclusive of his exertions in constructing the bridge of Boats, displayed much intelligence in the field. The merits of Major Reilly, commanding that most useful corps the Sappers and Miners, are acknowledged: the ability and zeal of Brigadier Irvine, the senior officer of the Engineer corps, are well known to the Governor-General, and his forbearance in not assuming the command, having reached the camp on the preceding evening, is duly appreciated.

Brigadier Gowan, Commanding the Artillery, ably directed the practice of the heavy Artillery on the left, assisted by Lieut. Col. Biddulph, Lieut. Col. Brooke, Lieut. Col. Wood, and Capt. Pillans.

On the right the Howitzer pratice was well sustained by Major Grant.

The Troops of Horse Artillery of Lieut. Col. Laue and Capt. Fordyce greatly assisted the attack of our Infantry on the left, and whilst the enemy were crossing the river the fire of Lieut. Col. Alexander's troop was most effective.

The Troops of Capt. Horsford and Capt Swinley also did good service.

The Governor-General's acknowledgments are due to Major Grant, Deputy Adjutant General, and to his department generally, for their ability and intelligence. To the Quarter Master General the service is much indebted for the judgment and zeal which mark all the proceedings of that Officer, and the Governor-General offers his acknowledgments to him, to the Deputy Quarter Master General Lieut. Col. Drummond, and the Officers of that department.

To Lieut. Col. Barr Acting Adjutant General, and to Lieut. Col. Gough Acting Quarter Master General Queen's service, the Governor-General's thanks are due. He regrets the temporary privation of the services of these officers by the wounds they have received.

To Lieut, Col. Birch, Judge Advocate General, the Governor-General again has to repeat his thanks for his intelligence and gallantry.

To Lieut. Col. Havelock, Persian Interpreter, the Governor-General offers his best thanks.

The Governor-General desires to record his obligations to Count Ravensburgh and to the Officers of His Royal Highness's Staff, Count Oriola and Count Greuben. This gallant and amiable Prince, with his brave associates of the Prussian Army, has shared all the dangers, and secured for himself the respect and admiration of the British Army, and the Governor General begs to convey to his Royal Highness and to his Staff his cordial thanks for the ready offers of their services on the field of battle.

The Governor-General has now to acknowledge the services rendered by the officers attached to his own staff.

. He renews to Lieut, Col. Benson of the Military Board, his strong sense of the important services rendered by that officer during the whole of this campaign, whose general information in military details, and cool judgment in action, deserve this acknowledgment.

Lieut. Col. Wood, the Governor-General's Military Secretary, displayed on the 10th instant, the same intelligence and gallantry as on former occasions.

Major Lawrence, the Governor-General's Political Agent, has throughout these operations afforded most useful assistance by his ability, zeal and activity in the field, as well as on every other occasion.

Capt. Mills, Assistant Pol. Agent and Honorary Aide-de-Camp to the Governor-General, has shown the most unwearied devotion to the service, as well in the field as in the exercise of his personal influence in the protected Sikh States.

The Governor-General's thanks are also due to Capt. Cunningham, Engineers, Assistant Pol. Agent.

The Governor-General's Aides-de-Camp, Capt. Grant. Lord Arthur Hay, Capt. Peel, and Capt. Hardinge, by their gallantry and intelligence rendered themselves most useful.

In the operations of this campaign, in which Officers of the Civil Service have accompanied the camp and participated in the risks incidental to active warfare, the Governor-General's thanks are due for their readiness in encountering these risks, and their endurance of privations. The Governor-General acknowledges the able assistance he has at all times received from the Political Secretary F. Currie Esq. His acknowledgments are also due to his Private Secretary C. Hardinge Esq., and to the Assistant Political Agent R. Cust Esq.

Lieut. Col. Parsons, Deputy Commissary General, has succeeded in keeping the army well supplied, and the Governor-General is much satisfied with his exertions and those of the Officers under his command. The army took the field under circumstances of great difficulty, and by strendous exertions, and good arrangements on the part of the Lieut. Colonel, the army has now a large supply in reserve, a result very creditable to the chief of the Commissariat Department. The manner in which Capt. Johnston has conducted the Commissariat duties entrusted to him, has also met with the Governor-General's approbation.

To Dr. Macleod, Superintending Surgeon, and to Dr. Graham, as well as to the officers of the Medical Department generally, the Governor-General offers his acknowledgments.

His thanks are due to Dr. Walker, Surgeon to the Governor-General, whose ability is only to be equalled by his zeal and humanity.

A salute of 21 guns will be fired in celebration of the Victory of Sobraon at all the usual stations of the Army.

By Order of the Right Hon'ble the Govern'r-General of India.

(Signed) F CURRIE,

Secy. to the Govt. of India, with the Governor-General,

Head Quarters, Army of the Sutlej, Camp Kussoor, 13th February, 1846.

· To the Right Hon'ble the Governor-General of India, &c. &c. &c.

Right Hon'ble Sir.—This is the fourth despatch which I have had the honor of addressing to you since the opening of the campaign. Thanks to Almighty God, whose hand I desire to acknowledge in all our successes, the occasion of my writing now is to announce a fourth and most glorious and decisive Victory!

My last communication detailed the movements of the Sikhs and our counter-manœuvres since the great day of Ferozshah. Defeated on the Upper Sutlej, the enemy continued to occupy his position on the right bank, and his formidable tete de pont and entrenchments on the left bank of the river in front of the main body of our Army. But on the 10th instant, all that he held of British territory, which was comprised in the ground on which one of his camps stood, was stormed from his grasp, and his audacity was again signally punished by a blow, sudden, heavy and overwhelming. It is my gratifying duty to detail the measures which have led to this glorious result.

The enemy's works had been repeatedly reconnoited during the time of my Head Quarters being fixed at Ni-halkee, by myself, my Departmental Staff, and my Engineer and Artillery Officers. Our observations, coupled with the reports of spies, convinced us that there had devolved on us the arduous task of attacking, in a position covered with formidable entrenchments, not fewer than thirty thousand men, the best of the Khalsa troops, with seventy pieces of cannon, united by a good bridge to a reserve on the opposite bank, on which the enemy had a considerable camp, and some Artillery, commanding and flanking his field works on our side. Major General Sir Harry Smith's division having rejoined me on the evening of the 8th, and part of my siege train having come up with me, I resolved, on the morning of the 10th, to dispose our mortars and battering guys on the alluvial land within good range of the enemy's works. To enable us to do this it was necessary first to drive in the enemy's pickets at the post of observation in front of Kodeewalla, and at the little Sobraon. It was directed that this should be done during the night of the 9th, but the execution of this part of the plan was deferred owing to misshowed that the Sikhs had followed our example in occupying the two posts in force by day only. Of both showed that the Sikhs had followed our example in occupying the two posts in force by day only. Of both therefore possession was taken without opposition. The battering and disposable Field Artillery was then put in therefore possession was taken without opposition. The battering and disposable Field Artillery was then put in position on an extended semi-circle, embracing within its fire the works of the Sikhs It had been intended that the cannonade should have commenced at daybreak; but so heavy a mist hung over the plain and river that it became necessary to wait until the rays of the sun had penetrated it and cleared the atmosphere. Meanwhile on the margin of the Sutlej on our left, two Brigades of Major General Sir Robert Dick's Division, under his personal command, stood ready to commence the assault against the enemy's extreme right. His 7th Brigade, in which was the 10th Foot, reinforced by the 53d Foot, and led by Brigadier Stacy, was to head the attack, supported at two hundred yards distance by the sixth Brigade under Brigadier Wilkinson. In reserve was the 5th Brigade under Brigadier the Hon'ble T. Ashburnham, which was to move forward from the entrenched village of Kodeewalla, leaving, if necessary, a regiment for its defence. In the centre Major General Gilbert's Division was deployed for support or attack, its right resting on and in the village of the little Sobraon. Major General Sir Harry Smith's Division was formed near the village of Guttah, with its right thrown up towards the Sutlej. Brigadier Cureton's Cavalry threatened, by feigned attacks, the ford at Harre

Our Battery of 9-pounders enlarged into twelves opened near the little Sobraon with a Brigade of Howitzers formed from the Light field Batteries and troops of Horse Artillery, shortly after daybreak. But it was half past six before the whole of our Artillery fire was developed. It was most spirited and well directed. I cannot speak in terms too high of the judicious disposition of the Guns, their admirable practice, or the activity with which the cannonade was sustained. But notwithstanding the formidable calibre of our Iron Guns, Mortars and Howitzers, and the admirable way in which they were served, and aided by a Rocket Battery, it would have been visionary to expect that they could, within any limited time, silence the fire of seventy pieces behind well constructed Batteries of earth, plank and fascines, or dislodge troops covered either by redoubts or epaulements, or within a treble line of trenches. The effect of the connonade was, as has been since proved by an inspection of the camp, most severely felt by the enemy; but it soon became evident that the issue of this struggle must be brought to the arbitrement of musketry and the bayonet.

At 9 o'clock Brigadier Stacy's Brigade, supported on either flank by Captains Horsford's and Fordyce's Batteries and Lieut. Col. Lane's Troop of Horse Artillery, moved to the attack in admirable order. The Infantry and Guns aided each other correlatively. The former marched steadily on in line, which they halted only to correct when necessary. The latter took up successive positions at the gallop, until at length they were within three hundred yards of the heavy Batteries of the Sikhs, but notwithstanding the regularity and coolness, and scientific character of this assault, which Brigadier Wilkinson well supported, so hot was the fire of cannon, musketry and zumborucks kept up by the Khalsa troops, that it seemed for some moments impossible that the entrenchments could be won under it; but soon persevering gallantry triumphed, and the whole Army had the satisfaction to see the gallant Brigadier Stacy's soldiers driving the Sikhs in confusion before them within the area of their encampment. The 10th Foot, under Lieutenant Colonel Franks, now for the first time brought into serious contact with the enemy, greatly distinguished themselves. This regiment never fired a shot until it had got within the works of the enemy. The onset of H. M.'s 53d Foot was as gallant and effective. The 43d and 59th Native Infantry, brigaded with them, emulated both in cool determination.

At the moment of this first success, I directed Brigadier the Hon'ble T. Ashburnham's Brigade to move on in support; and Major Genl. Gilbert's and Sir Harry Smith's Divisions to throw out their light troops to threaten the works aided by Artillery. As these attacks of the centre and right commenced, the fire of our heavy Guns had first to be directed to the right, and then gradually to cease, but at one time the thunder of full 120 pieces of, ord-nance reverberated in this mighty combat through the valley of the Sutlej, and as it was soon seen that the weight of the whole force within the Sikh Camp was likely to be thrown upon the two Brigades that had passed its trenches, it became necessary to convert into close and serious attacks the demonstrations with Skirmishers and Artillery of the centre and right, and the battle raged with inconceivable fury from right to left. The Sikhs, even when at particular points their entrenchments were mastered with the bayonet, strove to regain them by the fier-cest conflict sword in hand. Nor was it until the Cavalry of the left under Major General Sir Joseph Thackwell had moved forward and ridden through the openings in the entrenchments made by our sappers, in single file and re-formed as they passed them, and the 3d Dragoons, whom no obstacle usually held formidable by horse-appears to check, had on this day, as at Ferozshah, galloped over and cut down the obstinate defenders of Batteries and field works, and until the full weight of three divisions of infantry, with every field artillery Gun which could be sent to their aid, had been cast into the scale, that victory finally declared for the British. The fire of the Sikhs first slackened and then nearly ceased, and the victors then pressing them on every side, precipitated them in masses over their bridge and into the Sutlej, which a sudden rise of seven inches had rendered hardly fordable. In their efforts to reach the right bank through the deepened water, they suffered from our horse artillery a terrible carnage. Thei

Sixty-seven pieces of cannon, upwards of 200 camel swivels, (zumboorucks) numerous standards, and vast munitions of war, captured by our troops, are the piedges and trophies of our victory. The battle was over by 11 in the morning, and in the forenoon I caused our Engineers to burn a part and to sink a part of the vaunted bridge of the Khalsa army, across which they had boastfully come once more to defy us, and to threaten India with ruin and devastation.

We have to deplore a loss severe in itself, but certainly not heavy when weighed in the balance against the obstacles overcome and the advantages obtained. I have especially to lament the fall of Major General Sir Robert Dick, K. C. B., a gallant veteran of the Peninsula and Waterloo campaigns. He survived only until evening the dangerous grape-shot wound which he received close to the enemy's entrenchments whilst personally animating, by his dauntless example, the soldiers of H. M. 80th Regt. in their career of noble daring. Major General Gilbert, to whose gallantry and unceasing exertions. I have been so deeply indebted, and whose services have been so eminent throughout this eventral campaign, and Brigadier Stacy, the leader of the Brigade most hotly and successfully engaged, both received contusions. They were such as would have caused many men to retire from the field, but they did not interrupt for a moment the efforts of these heroic officers. Brigadier McLaren, so distinguished in the campaigns in Affghanistan, at Maharajpore, and now again in our conflicts with the Sikhs, has been badly wounded by a ball in the knee. Brigadier Taylor c. B., one of the most gallant and intelligent officers in the army; to whom I have felt deeply indebted on many occasions, fell in this fight at the head of his Brigade in close encounter with the enemy, and covered with honorable wounds. Brigadier Penny, of the Nusserce Battalion, commanding the 2nd Brigade, has been wounded, but not I trust severely. I am deprived for the present of the valuable services of Lieutenant Colonel J. B. Gough, c. B., Acting Quarter-Master-General H. M's. Troops, whose aid I have so highly prized in all my campaigns in China and India. He has received a wound from a grape shot, which is severe, but I hope not dangerous. Lieutenant Colonel Barr, Acting Adjutant General H. M's. Forces, whose superior merit as a staff officer I have before recorded, has suffered a compound fracture in the left arm by a ball. It is feared that amputation may beco

I have now to make the attempt, difficult, nay impracticable though I deem it, of expressing in adequate terms, my sense of obligation to those who especially aided me by their talents and self-devotion in the hard-fought field of Sobraon.

First, Right Honorable Sir, you must permit me to speak of yourself. Before the action, 1 had the satisfaction of submitting to you my plan of attack, and I cannot describe the support which I derived from the circumstance of its having in all its details met your approbation. When a soldier of such sound judgment and matured experience as your Excellency assured me that my projected operation deserved success, I could not permit myself to doubt that, with the blessing of Divine Providence, the victory would be ours. Nor did your assistance stop here: though suffering severely from the effects of a fall, and unable to mount on horseback without assistance, your uncontrollable desire to see this Army once more triumphant, carried you into the hottest of the fire, filling all who witnessed your exposure to such peril at once with admiration of the intrepidity that prompted it and anxiety for your personal safety, involving so deeply in itself the interests and happiness of British India. I must acknowledge also my obligations to you for having, whilst I was busied with another portion of our operations, superintended all the arrangements that related to laying our bridge across the Sutlej near Ferozpoor. Our prompt appearance on this bank of the river after victory, and advance to this place, which has enabled us to surprise its fort, and encamp without opposition in one of the strongest positions in the country, is the result of this invaluable assistance.

The Majors-General of Divisions engaged, deserve far more commendation than I am able, within the limits of a dispatch, to bestow. Major General Sir Robert Dick, as I have already related, has fallen on a field of renown worthy of his Military career and services, and the affectionate regret of his country will follow him to a soldier's grave.

In his attack on the enemy's left, Major-General Sir Harry Smith displayed the same valor and judgment which gave him the victory of Alliwal. A more arduous task has, seldom, if ever been assigned to a division. Never has an attempt become gloriously carried through.

I want words to express my gratitude to Major General Gilbert. Not only have I to record that in this great fight all was achieved by him maich, as Commander-in-Chief, I could desire to have executed; not only on this day was his division enabled by his skill and courageous example to triumph over obstacles from which a less ardent spirit would have recoiled as insurmountable, but since the hour in which our leading columns moved out of Umballah, I have found in the Major General an Officer who has not merely carried out all my orders to the letter, but whose zeal and tact have enabled him in a hundred instances to perform valuable services in exact anticipation of my wishes. I beg explicitly to recommend him to your Excellency's especial notice as a divisional commander of the highest merit.

Major General Sir, Joseph Thackwell has established a claim on this day to the rare commendation of having achieved much with a Cavalry force, where the duty to be done consisted entirely of an attack on field works usually supposed to be the particular province of Infantry and Artillery. His vigilance and activity throughout our operations, and the superior manner in which our out-post duties have been carried on under his superintendence, demand my warmest acknowledgments.

Brigadier Stacy, C. B., I must commend to your special protection and favor. On him devolved the arduous duty of leading the first column to the attack, turning the enemy's right, encountering his fire, before his numbers had been thinced, or his spirit broken, and, to use a phrase which a soldier like your Excellency will comprehend, taking off the rough edge of the Sikhs in the fight. How ably, how gallantly, how successfully, this was done, I have before endeavoured to relate. I feel certain that Brigadier Stacy and his noble troops will hold their due place in your Excellency's estimation, and that his merits will meet with fit reward.

Brigadier Orchard, c. B., in consequence of the only Regiment under his Command, that was engaged in the action, being with Brigadier Stacy's Brigade, attached himself to it, and shared all its dangers, glories and success.

I beg as warmly and sincerely to praise the manner in which Brigadier Wilkinson supported Brigadier Stacy, and followed his lead into the Enemy's works.

Brigadier the Hon'ble T. Ashburnham manœuvred with great coolness and success as a reserve to the two last mentioned Brigades.

Brigadier Taylor, H. M's. 20th fell nobly, as has already been told, in the discharge of his duty. He is himself beyond the reach of earthly praise; but it is my earnest desire that his memory may be honored in his fall; and that his Regiment, the army with which he served, and his country, may know that no officer held a higher place in my poor estimation, for gallantry or skill, than Brigadier C. C. Taylor.

Brigadier McLaren c B, in whom I have ever confided as one of the ablest of the Senior Officers of this Force, sustained on this day, as I have before intimated, his already enviable reputation; I trust he may not long be kept by his wound out of the sphere of active exertion which is his natural element.

Brigadiers Penny and Hicks, commanded the two Brigades of Major-General Sir Harry Smith's Division, and overcame at their head the most formidable opposition. I beg to bring both in the most earnest manner to your notice, trusting that Brigadier Penny's active services will soon become once more available.

. The manœuvres of Brigadier Cureton's Cavalry in attracting and fixing the attention of Raja Lall Sing Misr's horse, fulfilled every expectation which I had formed, and were worthy of the skill of the Officer employed, whose prominent exploits at the battle of Aliwal I have recently had the honor to bring to your notice.

Brigadier Scott c. B., in command of the 1st Brigade of Cavalry, had the rare fortune of meeting and overcoming a powerful body of Infantry in the rear of a line of formidable field works. I have to congratulate him on the success of the noble troops under him, and to thank him for his own meritorious exertions. I am quite certain that your Excellency will bear them in mind,

Brigadier Campbell's Brigade was less actively employed: but all that was required of it was most creditably performed. The demonstration on the Enemy's left by the 9th Lancers towards the conclusion of the battle; was made in the best order under a sharp cannonade.

Brigadier Gowan, c. n., deserves my best thanks for his able arrangements, the value of which was so fully evinced in the first hour and a half of this conflict, when it was almost exclusively an Artillery fight. Brigadiers Biddulph and Brook and Dennyss supported him in the ablest way throughout the day, and have given me the most effectual assistance under every circumstance of the campaign.

The effective practice of our Rockets on the Wing under Brigadier Brooke, elicited my particular admiration.

Department, which were in the highest degree judicious and in every respect excellent. On the evening of the 9th instant Brigadier Irvine, whose name is associated with one of the most brilliant events in our Military History, the capture of Bhurtpore, arrived in Camp. The Command would of course have devolved on him, but with that generosity of spirit which ever accompanies true valor and ability, he declined to assume it, in order that all the credit of the work which he had began might attach to Brigadier Smith. For himself, Brigadier Irvine sought only the opportunity of sharing our perils in the field, and he personally accompanied me throughout the day. Brigadier Smith has earned a title to the highest praise which I can bestow. Brigadier Smith, c. n , had made all the dispositions in the Engineer Department, which were in the highest

To the General Staff I am in every way indebted. Nothing could surpass the activity and intelligence of Lieut-Colonel Garden, and Major Grant, who are the heads of it, in the discharge of the duties of their departments, ever very laborious and during this campaign almost overwhelming. Both yet suffer under the effects of wounds previously received. Lieut. Colonel Drummond c. n., Deputy Quarter Master General, and Lieutenant Arthur Becher, Deputy Assistant Quarter Master General, ally supported the former, and the exertions of Captains Anson and Tucker, Assistants Adjutant General, have been most satisfactory to the latter and to myself.

Lieut. Colonel Parsons, Deputy Commissary General, has evinced the most successful perseverance in his important endeavours to supply the Army. He has been ably aided at Head Quarters by Major W. F. Thompson, C. B., and Major Curtis, Sab-Assist.-Comy.-Genl.; all three of these officers were most active in conveying my orders in the battle of Sobraon in the face of every danger. I have, in the most explicit way, to record the same intelligence and ability, and the same activity and bravery, in the case of Lieut.-Colonel Birch, Judge Advocate General, both as respects departmental duties and active attendance on me in the field. I have already spoken of the loss which I have sustained by Lieut.-Colonels Gough and Barr being wounded. The exertions of both in animating our troops in moments of emergency, were laudable beyond my power to praise. Lieut. Sandys, 55th Regiment N. I., Post Master of the force, assisted in conveying my orders.

Suptdg. Surgeon B. Macleod, M. D., has been indefatigable in the fulfilment of every requirement of Lis important and responsible situation. I am entirely satisfied with his exertions and their results. I must bring to notice also the merits of Field Surgeon J. Steel, M. D., and Surgeon Graham, M. D., in charge of the depot of various points, in the thickest of the fight and the hottest of the fire, and to all of them I feel greatly indebted.

I was accompanied during the action by the following Officers of my personal Staff:—Captain the Hon'ble C. R. Sackville West, H. M. 21st Foot, Offig. Mily. Secy. (Captain Haines, for whom he acts, still being disabled by his severe wound); Lieut. Col. H. Havelock, C. B., H. M.'s 39th Foot, Persian Interpreter; Lieut. Bagot, 15th N. I.; Lieut. Edwards, 1st European Light 1afy.; and Cornet Lord James Browne, 9th Lancers, my Aides-de-Camp; and Asst. Surg. J. E. Stephens, M. D. my Medl. Officer. All these Officers assisted in conveying my orders to various points, in the thickest of the fight and the hottest of the fire, and to all of them I feel greatly indebted.

I have to acknowledge the services in the command of Regiments, Troops, and Batteries, or on select and particular duties in the Engineer Department, of the following officers, and to recommend them to your Excellency's special favour: - viz. Major F. Abbott, who laid the bridge by which the army crossed into the Punjaub, and who was present at Sobraon, and did excellent service; Captain Baker, and Lieut. John Becher, Engineers, who conducted Brigadier Lacy's column (the last of these was wounded); Lieut. Colonel Wood, Artillery. Pattenson, 16th Lancers, Capt. J. Garvock 31st Foot, Lt. G. H. M. Jones, 29th Foot; Capt J.

L. Taylor, 26th Lt. Infy., Lieut H. F. Dunsford, 59th Regt. N. I., Majors of Brigade, Captain Combe, 1st European Light Infy., Major of Brigade 2nd Brigade; Capt. Gordon, 11th N. I., Major of Brigade 6th Brigade; Capt. A. G. Warde, 68th N. I., Major of Brigade; and Lt. P. Hay, Major of Brigade (killed).

Having ventured to speak of your Excellency's own part in this action, it would be most gratifying to me to go on to mention the brilliant share taken in it by Lieutenant Colonel Wood and the Officers of your personal staff, as well by the Civil, Political, and other Military officers attached to you. But as these were all under your own eye, I cannot doubt that you will yourself do justice to their exertions.

We were in this battle again honored with the presence of Prince Waldemar of Prussia, and the two noblemen in his suite, Counts Oriola and Greuben. Here, as at Moodkee and Ferozshah, these distinguished visitors did not content themselves with a distant view of the action, but throughout it were to be seen in front wherever danger most urgently pressed.

The loss of the enemy has been immense: an estimate of it must be formed with a due allowance for the spirit of exaggeration which pervades all statements of Asiatics where their interest leads them to magnify numbers, but our own observation on the river banks and in the enemy's Camp, combined, with the reports brought to our intelligence department, to convince me that the Khalsa casualties were between 8 and 10,600 men killed and wounded maction and drowned in the passage of the river. Amongst the slain are Sirdars Sham Singh, Attareewalla, Genls. Goolab Singh Koopta, and Heera Singh Topee, Sirdar Kishen Singh, son of the late Jemadar Kooshall Singh, Genls. Mobaruck Ally and Illahee Buksh, and Shah Newaz Khan, son of Futteh-ood-deen Khan of Kussoor, The body of Sham Singh was sought for in the captured camp by his followers: and respecting the gallantry with which he is reported to have devoted himself to death rather than accompany the Army in its flight, I forbade his people being molested in their search, which was finally successful.

The consequences of this great action have yet to be fully developed. It has at least in God's Providence, once more expelled the Sikhs from our Territory and planted our standards in the soil of the Punjaub. After occupying their entrenched position for nearly a month, the Khalsa Army had perhaps mistaken the caution which induced us to wait for the necessary material, for timidity. But they must now deeply feel that the blow which has fallen on them from the British Arm has only been the heavier for being long delayed.

PROCLAMATION

BY THE RIGHT HON'BLE THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA.

Foreign Department, Kussoor, the 14th February 1846.

The Sikh Army has been expelled from the left Bank of the river Sulledge, having been defeated in every action, with the loss of more than 220 pieces of Field Artillery.

The British Army has crossed the Sutlej and entered the Punjaub.

The Governor-General announces by this Proclamation that this measure has been adopted by the Government of India, in accordance with the intentions expressed in the Proclamation of the 13th December last, as having been forced upon the Governor-General for the purpose of "effectually protecting the British Provinces, for vindicating the authority of the British Government, and for punishing the violators of treaties and the disturbers of the public peace."

These operations will be steadily persevered in, and vigorously prosecuted, until the objects proposed to be accomplished are fully attained. The occupation of the Punjaub by the British forces will not be relinquished until ample atonement for the insult offered to the British Government, by the infraction of the treaty of 1809, A. D., and by the unprovoked invasion of the British Provinces, shall have been exacted. These objects will include full indemnity for all expences incurred during the war, and such arrangements for the future Government of the Lahore territories as will give perfect security to the British Government against similar acts of perfidy and aggression.

Military operations against the Government and Army of the Lahore State have not been undertaken by the Government of India from any desire of territorial aggrandizement. The Governor General, as already announced in the Proclamation of the 13th December, "sincerely desired to see a strong Sikh Government re-established in the Punjaub able to control its army and to protect its subjects." The sincerity of these professions is proved by the fact that no preparations for hostilities had been made, when the Lahore Government suddenly, and without a pretext of complaint, invaded the British territories. This unprovoked aggression has compelled the British Government to have recourse to arms, and to organise the means of offensive warfare; and whatever may now befall the Lahore-State, the consequences can alone be attributed to the misconduct of that Government and its Army.

No extension of territory was desired by the Government of India; the measures necessary for providing indemnity for the past, and security for the future, will, however, involve the retention, by the British Government, of a portion of the country hitherto under the Government of the Lahore State. The extent of territory which it may be deemed advisable to hold, will be determined by the conduct of the Durbar, and by considerations for the security of the British frontier. The Government of India will, under any circumstances, annex to the British Provinces the districts, hill and plain, situated between the rivers Sutlej and Beas, the revenues thereof being appropriated as a part of the indemnity required from the Lahore State.

The Government of India has frequently declared that it did not desire to subvert the Sikh Government in the Punjaub; and although the conduct of the Durbar has been such as to justify the most severe and extreme measures of retribution (the infliction of which may yet be required by sound policy if the recent acts of violence be not amply atoned for, and immediate submission tendered) nevertheless the Governor-General is still willing that an opportunity should be given to the Durbar and to the Chiefs to submit themselves to the authority of the British Government, and by a return to good faith, and the observance of prudent counsels, enable the Governor-General to organise a Sikh Government in the person of a descendant of its founder, the late Maha Rajah Runjeet Singh, the faithful ally of the British power.

The Governor-General at this moment of a most complete and decisive Victory, cannot give a stronger proof of the forbearance and moderation of the British Government than by making this declaration of his intention, the terms and mode of the arrangment remaining for further adjustment.

The Governor-General therefore calls upon all those Chiefs who are the well wishers of the descendants of Runjeet Singh, and especially such Chiefs as have not participated in the hostile proceedings against the British power, to act in concert with him for carrying into effect such arrangements as shall maintain a Sikh Government at Lahore capable of controlling its army, and protecting its subjects, and based upon principles that shall provide for the future tranquillity of the Sikh States, shall secure the British Frontier against a repetition of acts of aggression, and shall prove to the whole world the moderation and justice of the paramount power of India.

If this opportunity of rescuing the Sikh Nation from military anarchy and misrule be neglected, and hostile opposition to the British army be renewed, the Government of India will make such other arrangements for the future Government of the Punjaub as the interests and security of the British power may render just and expedient.

By order, &c. (Signed) F. CURRIE, Secy. to the Gov. of India with the Govr. Genl.
