Bombay Castle, 27th July 1892.

No. 6086.—The following papers relating to a new Customs Tariff, &c., for the Portuguese Indian territory are published for general information:—

“Letter from H. B. M.’s CONSUL, Goa, to the SECRETARY to GOVERNMENT, Political Department, Bombay, No.  $\frac{B.G.}{9}$ , dated H. B. M.’s Consulate, New Goa, 11th June 1892.

SIR,—I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of the Portaria No. 233 of the Government of Portuguese India, dated 14th ultimo, establishing under orders from Lisbon a new Customs Tariff and prescribing certain preliminary regulations referring to customs and navigation for Portuguese Indian territory, in supersession of the provisional tariff referred to in my letter No.  $\frac{B.G.}{2}$ , dated 19th January last.

2. The new tariff came into force on the 26th ultimo. As most of its provisions are calculated to affect the British Indian trade with Portuguese India, I respectfully beg to submit a translation of those portions: (1) of the remarks made by the Minister for Colonial Affairs at Lisbon in his report to the King of Portugal, (2) of the tariff schedules, and (3) of the rules framed in connection with the working of the new tariff as appear to require particular attention.

3. As regards the duties levied on imports, those on tea, silk, wool and cotton piece-goods appear to be heavy. On tea (No. 12 in the Schedule A) the rate varies from 5 annas 3 pies to 5 annas 6 pies per Indian seer of 2 lbs. This represents a tax of from about 14 to 17 per cent. ad valorem. On silk piece-goods the duty is Rs. 5-9-6 per seer; on mixed silk and cotton goods, it is Rs. 2-0-6 per seer, and on woollen and cotton piece-goods the rate varies from 10 annas to Re. 1-8-0 for every 2 lbs. in weight (Schedule A, No. 48).

4. The duties levied on arms and ammunition (Schedule A, No. 3) are considerably lower than those prevailing in British India. Muzzle-loading guns can be imported on payment of a duty of only Rs. 5. For breech-loaders the duty amounts to Rs. 12 each as compared with Rs. 50 in British territory; and for pistols and revolvers only Rs. 2 are charged as compared with the British duty of Rs. 15. This great difference in the import duty on such articles as levied in the two territories will undoubtedly tend towards smuggling from Portuguese into British districts. And although each individual entering Portuguese territory is nominally allowed to bring with him only one gun and one revolver or a pair of pistols,* there is no restriction apparently as yet applicable to the trade

5. Except as part of the personal equipment of a Military or Police officer, arms in transit through Portuguese India are not allowed to pass free of duty; and each officer is permitted to take with him only a sword and a revolver or pair of pistols. His personal baggage is allowed free transit, but arms and ammunition are not included under the terms “baggage.” As the “through traffic,” however, by the railway is exempt from duty, it is desirable in the interests of all British Government servants and British subjects generally, having reason to travel through Portuguese Indian territory, that these new regulations should be widely known. If they do travel by the Marmugao Railway, all their baggage should be booked “through,” if possible, before arrival in Portuguese territory. Otherwise, they will run the risk not only of having to pay the duty on their guns or rifles in transit, but may also be subjected to great annoyance or inconvenience in having such articles in excess of the authorized quantities allowed to be imported, indefinitely detained by the authorities pending the decision of the Government as to their disposal.

6. Somewhat similar remarks apply more cogently to travellers between Castle Rock and Kúrwir via Margao. In this case the privileges accorded to the through traffic by rail do not apply. Personal baggage, including dutiable articles, but not including arms or ammunition, will be allowed to be transported free of duty from the railway station at Murgao by road to the Kúwra frontier at Polim (near Mazali) and vice versa only, in charge of the Portuguese Customs Police, to whom a daily remuneration will have to be paid at a fixed rate of 12 annas a day for each guardi and 6 annas for each sepooy. Arms and ammunition will not under any circumstances be allowed to pass free by this route.

7. Though at present there is no tax on salt produced, it is expected that a small tax will be imposed shortly, as referred to in the concluding paragraph of the extract, a translation of which is submitted, from the report of the Colonial Minister at Lisbon. The probability is that this tax will be merely a nominal one.

8. There has been no change in the rates of tonnage dues payable on account of steamers and sailing vessels calling at Marmugao. In regard to other ports in Portuguese India, the tonnage dues on vessels of 10 tons and over has been increased from 1 to 2 annas per ton. All vessels below 10 tons; all vessels belonging to recognized yacht clubs; vessels entering and leaving in ballast, or entering with cargo and leaving in ballast in order to proceed to some other port for repairs and then again entering in ballast; steamers when calling for provisions or for coal; or when having entered a port for commercial purposes a vessel is condemned as being unseaworthy and is consequently to be broken up in that port; when a vessel transports shipwrecked persons, prisoners, poor people, or other individuals under an order given by Consuls for special reasons; when the quantity of cargo landed or shipped does not exceed one ton; when entering occasionally for the purpose of embarking or disembarking not more than five passengers; when entering for the exclusive purpose of taking off cargo from another vessel which in consequence of any accident is absolutely obliged to discharge its cargo; when only precious metals in coin or bullion are transported; and when a vessel enters and leaves a port without any commercial operation having been effected,—no port dues are payable.

9. All ships of war, fishing vessels of all nationalities, vessels bound to call under contracts or in furtherance of international treaties and special laws, are exempted from the payment of port dues as heretofore.

I have &c.,

(Signed) N. R. OLIVER,

H. B. M.'s Consul.

(Translation.)

Extract from the Report of the Minister for the Colonies to the King of Portugal.

INDIA.

The renunciation of the Treaty of the 26th December 1878 necessitated a reversion to the Customs Tariff in force in Portuguese India prior to the Treaty. Practical local difficulties necessitated the non-adoption in the tariffs of the metrical system, which so distinctly interfered with the commercial usages of the country that it has been preferred to continue the adoption of the Indian measures more familiar to the Indian officials, and principally to the trade which is mostly, if not exclusively, carried on with British India by Mahomedans, Hindus and Parsis, natives of that country.

The duties proposed are not excessive. They, perhaps, appear heavier than those ruling previous to the Treaty, for preference has been given, as much as possible, to specific taxation, which alone combined with the standard weight adopted will conduce to a more rapid and effective administration.

Applying the new tariff to the average statistics for the years 1887, 1888 and 1889, which relate solely to imports by sea (for importation by the land frontier was quite free and largely availed of), it should yield an import revenue of Rs. 3,16,413 and an export revenue of Rs. 25,065, or in all Rs. 3,41,478, that is, more than was realised during the Treaty (including the customs compensation mentioned in Article 17 of the Treaty) which on an average may be set down at Rs. 1,34,061 per annum. In other words, the tariff, considering the sea customs only, will yield double the customs receipts realized during the term of the Treaty.

Considerable attention has been paid to the binding of the relations between Portuguese India and Lisbon. A bonus of 50 per cent. of the duties has been allowed on national products, and taking the general basis of taxation at 14 per cent. ad valorem, this represents a distinct benefit of 7 per cent. ad valorem. It cannot be further extended, for the country being hemmed in by a vast continent which supplies it with all necessaries, it would not be easy to compete with it, and still less so with a land frontier difficult to guard, if a system affording some liberty were supplanted by a prohibitive one. An arrangement which is being entered into with the "Mala Real" [Royal Mail Service] will provide, without any expense to Government, for a direct communication by Portuguese vessels between India and Lisbon; so considerable advantage to our wine trade principally may be anticipated from the benefit alluded to, which in this particular is important, as the duty on foreign wines is comparatively high.

National wines certainly could not be exempted entirely from duty in consequence of the necessity of not interfering with the industry of the manufacture of country spirits, the revenue from which is not only intended to be kept up but further increased by the adoption of a simpler system of akbári taxation than at present in force. By this means and with the land frontier revenue as well as with a moderate tax on salt produced, which however will exclude any burden on salt exported, it is expected that the financial administration of Portuguese India will be placed in a better condition and will largely compensate for the loss of the four lakhs of rupees received from the British Government during the term of the Treaty.

Importation.

Article 1.—Foreign goods and merchandise imported at the custom-houses in Portuguese India shall be liable to duty as shown in the Schedule A.

Article 2.—National goods and merchandise imported at Portuguese Indian custom-houses shall be liable to 50 per cent. of the duty specified in the said Schedule A.

Note.—Wines made of grapes or of any other kind manufactured in Portugal and its adjacent islands are excepted. These shall pay 6 annas per Imperial gallon. Spirits used in drugs and medicines in any proportion, and any other spirits, or alcohol, aromatic spirits, liquors, beer and salt, are also excepted. They shall be liable to the duty fixed in Article 5 and its notes and in Article 45 of the Schedule A.

Article 3.—For purposes of the preceding article, national goods and merchandise are those produced in Portugal and the adjacent islands, and also foreign goods and merchandise on which duty may have been paid at any of the custom-houses of the Kingdom and its adjacent islands.

Article 4.—All goods and merchandise produced in Portuguese India which may be imported from any of its ports into others in the same territory by national or foreign vessels are exempt from duty; as also are foreign goods and merchandise on which the duty may have been paid at any of the custom-houses in the said territory.

Note.—Country spirits the exportation of which shall be regulated by the restrictions contained in the Ábkári Regulations, are not included in the provisions of the above Article 4.

Article 5.—Cotton piece-goods of any kind or origin, imported into Portuguese India in order to be coloured or stamped and afterwards re-exported from the territory, will be admitted free of duty.

Note 1.—These piece-goods shall be re-exported within one year commencing from the date of the import manifest.

Note 2.—Any infraction of the preceding note shall entail the payment of the duty leviable as per Schedule A on the piece-goods imported with an addition of 50 per cent.

Note 3.—The importer shall furnish proper security for the fulfilment of the provisions of the preceding notes.

Article 6.—Goods, or articles composed of materials or substances differently taxed are liable to duty at the rate leviable on the materials or substance which predominates in quantity, provided that the said goods are not specified in the tariff; should there, however, be any doubt as to the principal material or substance, the goods shall be subject to the duty fixed for the material or substance to which the higher rate is applicable.

Article 7.—When goods imported exceed Rs. 2,500 in value, two-thirds of the duty may be paid by means of bonds under the following conditions:—

(a) The goods shall be entered for import in one form of import manifest.

(b) The payment of one-third of the duty relating to each manifest shall be made as soon as the valuation and the amount of duty are made up.

(c) For the remaining two-thirds two bonds shall be executed by the importer at his own cost but without being liable to the payment of any interest. The first bond will fall due at the expiration of three months counting from the date of the manifest and the second after six months from the same date.

(d) The bonds shall be guaranteed by two trading firms of recognized credit or by the hypothecation of articles, the value of which is double the amount of the duty.

(e) Should any of the bonds not be paid up on due date, all others executed by the same importer shall be deemed to have become due.

Exportation and Re-exportation.

Article 8.—All goods exported from Portuguese Indian custom-houses and specified in the Schedule C, shall be subject to the payment of the duties fixed in that schedule.

Note.—The provisions of this article are not applicable to merchandise exported from the Marmugao Custom-house on payment of wharfage fees.

Article 9.—All goods and merchandise brought from any territory and under any flag will be allowed to be warehoused for re-exportation.

Note.—The re-exportation is free of duty.

Transshipment.

Article 10.—The transshipment of goods from one trading vessel to another or to a war vessel of any nationality is free of duty.

Duty ad valorem.

Article 11.—The import duties ad valorem fixed in Schedule A are to be calculated on the value of the goods in the original market, together with an additional 10 per cent. of that value on account of carriage expenses, insurance and commission.

Note 1.—The value of goods imported shall be verified by the production of the invoice issued by the seller in the original market, showing the true value of the said goods. This invoice may be substituted by a written declaration.

Note 2.—The invoice or declaration shall specify the quantity and value of each kind of goods contained in the packages, as shown in the manifest.

Note 3.—Should the Customs officer consider the declared value to be insufficient, he will cause the goods to be appraised by arbitrators, of whom one shall be appointed on behalf of the Custom-house and the other by the importer. Before proceeding to make the estimation, the arbitrators shall select a third party to be umpire. Should the two arbitrators not agree as to the selection, the Customs authority will appoint a third arbitrator.

Note 4.—If from the examination made by the arbitrators, it should appear that the value of the merchandise does not exceed by 5 per cent. that declared by the importer, duty will be recovered according to the invoice or declaration, and the expenses of the examination and valuation made by the arbitrators shall be defrayed by the Custom-house. If otherwise, the duty shall be increased by 25 per cent. as a fine, and the expenses connected with the examination and valuation shall be paid by the importer.

Note 5.—If the two first arbitrators should not agree and the third should decide in favour of the importer, the Fiscal authority shall avail itself of the right of pre-emption, if he deems it expedient in the interests of the Government, giving to the said importer the value declared by him and an additional 10 per cent. of the value.

Note 6.—The proceedings relating to pre-emption shall be forwarded to the Committee referred to in Article 17 of the Regulations of the 7th November 1889, which will specify the custom-house at which the articles shall be sold.

Note 7.—The Customs officer may, however, proceed at once to sell the articles by auction, if they are liable to deterioration.

Article 12.—The export duties ad valorem shall be levied according to the ruling price published in the latest Boletim Official that may have reached the custom-house from which the goods are to be exported. Such prices shall be fixed monthly by the committee referred to in Article 17 of the Decree of 7th November 1889.

Note 2.—For the purposes of exemption from duties, apparel and articles of personal use belonging to travellers and crews of vessels, as well as iron tools, instruments and utensils appertaining to the travellers' profession, are considered luggage; but not so carbines, or muskets, revolvers, or pistols, except in the instances provided for in Exception 2 of Article 3 of Schedule A. Note 4.—Goods of an inflammable nature can only be deposited in special warehouses which Government may possess, or in private warehouses under a guarantee for the payment of the duties and under the immediate supervision of the Customs authorities.

Note 9.—Goods deposited in warehouses or entered at the custom-houses, as well as any unencumbered credits that may exist in Government offices in favour of the owners thereof, shall be deemed to be a guarantee for the recovery of the duties payable on other goods which eventually may not have been paid, or for other responsibilities which the owner may be liable for to the Custom-house.

Note 10.—Goods seized as security for a fine the payment of which is disputed, may be sold if there is any risk of their becoming damaged. Article 18.—The Government may allow the establishment of general warehouses, in terms of Article 408 and those following it of the Commercial Code, to administrative corporations, associations or companies legally organized, whose articles of association shall have been approved by the Provincial Government in Council. Note 2.—Covers, such as pipes, barrels, casks, packing cases, covers, bags, tin boxes, &c., that may have served for the usual and indispensable protection of the imported goods, shall be exempt from customs duties.

Note 3.—If, however, in the internal or external packing of the goods articles be used which are not generally used or are not indispensable for such packing and which may be sold by themselves, or separately, such articles shall be liable to the duty fixed for them as though they were imported separately.

Damages.

Article 20.—An abatement of duties is allowed for damage accrued to goods in proportion to the difference between its value at the time of entry as compared with its value when in a perfect state.

Note 1.—For the purposes of this article, the under-mentioned is considered to be damage :—

- (a) The damage which goods may have suffered from the time when the ship in which they are imported is subject to sea risks till the time of the landing of the goods.
- (b) The damage caused by accident at the port of landing in consequence of the fall of the packages into water whilst being landed.
- (c) The damage which may have happened to goods deposited in the customs warehouses in consequence of white ants or inundation.

Note 2.—No abatement of duties on account of difference in quality or value will be made in consequence of damage to goods resulting from causes other than those mentioned in the preceding note.

Note 3.—Even in the cases referred to in Note 1, it is necessary, in order that abatement may be granted, that the damage exceeds 3 per cent. of the value of the merchandise in its perfect state and the conditions laid down in the following note are complied with.

Note 4.—If the damage should have occurred during the voyage, it is indispensable that in the report of the ship's arrival, and by means of a legal document, it should appear that the captain duly entered a protest respecting the damage caused by leakage, collision, stranding, fire, or similar causes.

Note 5.—If the damage should have occurred at the port of landing, or in the boats used for conveying the goods ashore, the fact should be ascertained by an enquiry held immediately after the occurrence, or within the first twenty-four hours, at the office of the employé responsible for the work of landing.

Note 6.—After the circumstances referred to in the preceding notes shall have been proved, it is necessary that an arbitrator should decide if the damage did really ensue from any of the causes mentioned in the same notes.

Note 7.—No abatement of the duties is allowed on account of damage to grain, sugar, pulse, meat, cheese, cod-fish, fruits and other kinds of provisions, nor for medicines or drugs used in medicines.

Note 9.—The expenses on account of the examination and estimation by the arbitrators shall be borne by the importer.

Article 21.—The owners of the goods alluded to in Notes 7 and 8 to the preceding article are allowed, whatever be the nature of the damage, to separate the undamaged portion of the goods and clear it for consumption, and to re-export or abandon the rest.

Note 1.—In case of the re-exportation of damaged provisions, the Customs authority should communicate the fact to the Portuguese Consul at the port of destination, if such port be a foreign port, or to the Customs officer at the port of estimation, if it be a national port.

Note 2.—When abandoned provisions or damaged medical drugs are intended to be cleared, the Sanitary officer shall be called, and if he should state that it would be dangerous to the public health to allow such articles to pass for consumption, they shall be immediately destroyed, the required proceedings being drawn up in the presence of witnesses and with the formalities prescribed for analogous cases.

Note 3.—Provisions abandoned on account of Damage (if the Sanitary officer should raise no objection), and in the same way any goods abandoned on account of damage by sea water, shall be sold by the Custom-house on behalf of the owners thereof; and after deducting the duties and other expenses connected with the sale thereof, the balance shall be kept in deposit for three years in the central treasury of the province, and if not claimed within that period such money shall be credited to Government.

Article 22.—When damage has occurred from sea water and the importer is unwilling to clear the merchandise with the abatement awarded in conformity with the following article, the said merchandise may be abandoned. In this case also the sale shall be made by the Custom-house, but the abatement of the duties shall be proportionate to the difference between the cost price and the sale price.

Article 23.—The origin and proportion of the damage shall be settled by two arbitrators who will decide as to the facts referred to in Article 20, Note 3. One of these arbitrators shall be appointed by the Director or Chief of the Custom-house and the other by the trader.

Note 1.—The two arbitrators before commencing work shall choose a third person as umpire, and if they should not agree regarding his selection, the third person shall be appointed by the Customs officer.

Note.—If, however, the goods be found concealed under a false bottom, or in any other secret place, or mixed up among other goods on which less duty is payable or which are exempt from duty, or be re-landed after having been cleared from the custom-house for re-export, the fine shall be equal to the value of such goods, plus five times the amount of duty leviable thereon under aggravating circumstances as a maximum fine (provided this maximum fine does not exceed the value of the goods referred to) and as a minimum fine double the amount of the duties shall be levied.

Article 26.—Offences against fiscal regulations are punishable with fine ranging between 4 and 5 hundred rupees.

Note.—When previous declaration is not made by the owner or receiver of inflammable, explosive, or dangerous goods, which it is sought to store in the general warehouses of the custom-house, the offence shall be punished with a fine ranging between Rs. 10 and Rs. 1,000, the delinquent being liable besides to pay compensation on account of loss and damage caused in consequence of such omission to make the declaration.

- (a) Smuggling is the fraudulent importation or exportation of goods, the import or export of which is absolutely prohibited.
- (b) Evasion is any or whatever fraudulent act by means of which it is intended to evade wholly, or partly, the payment of the duties or imposts established regarding the import, export, or consumption of goods.
- (c) All acts not mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) but which are contrary to law and to the fiscal regulations are considered as simple transgressions of the fiscal regulations.

Article 28.—In any of the cases referred to in the preceding articles, the goods as well as their conveyances shall be seized as a guarantee for the payment of the fine when the same is not immediately paid or the amount thereof deposited or guaranteed.

Note 1.—Against the Director's decision an appeal may be made to the Committee referred to in Article 17 of the Regulation of 7th November 1889 and the proceedings should be communicated to the accused.

Article 31.—Out of the fines and sale-proceeds of the merchandise, two-thirds shall be distributed amongst the seizers, denouncers, informers, or discoverers; one-sixth shall belong to Government, and the remaining one-third shall be lodged in the treasury containing the pay of the Internal Customs establishment.

Deposit of Duties.

Article 32.—The following articles will be allowed to be cleared on a deposit being made of the duties and special license obtained from the custom-house:—

This deposit shall be retained in the Customs treasury, to be refunded to the parties concerned when leaving and on their giving up the counterparts of the receipts.

Article 34.—The period for which the deposit may extend shall be six months, counting from the date on which it is made. But Government may extend this period to nine months, if there be good grounds for doing so.

Article 35.—The said deposits shall be credited to Government if, at the end of six months when no extension is made, or at the end of nine months when extension is made, the articles respecting which the deposits have been made should not have been cleared from the custom-house.

Letter from H. B. M.'s CONSUL, Goa, to the SECRETARY to GOVERNMENT, Political Department, Bombay, No.  $\frac{116}{10}$ , dated H. B. M.'s Consulate, New Goa, 13th June 1892.

SIR,—In continuation of my letter No.  $\frac{116}{9}$ , dated 11th instant, submitting a copy (together with a translation) of the Portaria No. 233 of the Government of Portuguese India of the 14th ultimo, establishing a new customs tariff for Portuguese India, I have the honour to report that, in accordance with a telegram dated 6th instant from the Portuguese Minister for the Colonies, the Goa Government in their Portaria No. 280, dated 9th instant, just published, have ordered that the duty on vinegar (No. 55 in the Schedule A) is to be annas 3 per Imperial gallon, instead of annas 2 as previously notified.

Letter from H. B. M.'s CONSUL, Goa, to the SECRETARY to GOVERNMENT, Political Department, Bombay, No.  $\frac{116}{11}$ , dated H. B. M.'s Consulate, New Goa, 25th June 1892.

SIR,—I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of the Goa "Boletim Official," containing a copy of the Lisbon Decree of the 6th ultimo, relating to certain changes in the Abkari rules and system for Portuguese India in consequence of the termination of the Treaty of the 26th December 1878. A translation of the new rules is also submitted herewith and a copy thereof has also been sent direct to the Commissioner of Customs, Salt, Opium and Abkari, Bombay, in continuation of a telegram I sent him on the 8th instant.

2. A careful inspection of the new rules affords indication that they have been apparently somewhat hurriedly compiled by the Portuguese authorities. For instance, the "1st Note" to Article 4 seems to have been omitted altogether, only "notes" 2 and 3 being given. Again, in Article 5 (note 1) reference is made to certain sales of liquor authorized in Article 4. But in so much of Article 4 as is printed, there is no reference to any sale of liquor. There seems to be also some mistake or repetition in the numbering of Articles 14 and 16, and in Article 20 (Note 1) 700 reis fortes are shown as being equivalent to 1½ rupee instead of 1¾ rupee.

3. I have attempted to obtain from the local authorities some explanation in reference to these discrepancies, but they seem unable to afford any, except that the rules as printed at Goa are in exact accordance with those sent out from Lisbon. Until receipt, therefore, of further communications from Portugal these discrepancies cannot be reconciled.

4. The new rules will not be put into force pending the completion of a general revision of all the existing Abkari regulations for Portuguese India as ordered in Article 30.

I have, &amp;c.

Translation of New A'bkári Rules for Portuguese India.—Decree of 6th May 1892.

Article 1.—From such date as the Governor General of Portuguese India in Council may determine, the tax on trees tapped for toddy in Goa territory shall be regulated in the manner laid down in this Decree.

Article 2.—A tax of Rs. 10 per year shall be payable on each cocoanut and brab tree tapped for toddy. The first instalment of this tax shall be paid at the time of granting the license, and each of the remaining eleven instalments on the dates to be specified in a special regulation which shall be framed by the Governor General in Council.

Note 1.—For cocoanut and brab trees belonging to Government, the licensees shall pay an additional tax of not less than Rs. 3 per annum.

Note 2.—The tax on each date-tree and wild palm tree shall be Rs. 5 per annum, which shall be recovered in the same manner as provided in this article in respect to cocoanut trees.

Article 3.—The still-head duty on cocoanut toddy spirit as well as the central distilleries are hereby abolished, and the tappers are allowed to distil spirits on the site of the licensed trees.

Article 4.—Permission for establishing distilleries on the site where the trees tapped are situated shall be granted to the tappers, and the limits within which such distilleries may be established, as well as the number of stills that may be set up therein, shall be defined by an order of the Administrator of the district, after consultation with the Chief Fiscal concerned and in accordance with the licenses to tap trees issued by the respective Revenue office. The order of the Administrator shall be subject to the confirmation of the Commissioner of A'bkári and Customs.

*Note 2.—Each license to tap trees shall comprise at least fifteen trees.

Note 3.—The distiller shall pay for each still a tax of Rs. 2, and unless he produces a receipt for the payment thereof, he will not be allowed to set up the still.

Article 5.—Only those who hold licenses for tapping cocoanut trees shall have the right to distil spirits from the toddy drawn from these trees in stills erected under the conditions of the preceding article.

Note 1.—They may sell to the public at their depôts, in quantities not less than two gallons, spirits which they manufacture, provided they do so in accordance with the restrictions imposed in this Decree. The sale of such spirits shall be covered by a pass, the form of which shall be prescribed in a special regulation.

Note 2.—Within the limits assigned to each distillery, depôts may be established under the written permission of the District Administrator and confirmed by the Commissioner.

Article 6.—Taverns may be established for the sale of any quantity of country liquor on payment of the under-mentioned license fees:—

For 1st class taverns...	Rs. 100	per annum.
„ 2nd do. ... „	75	do.
„ 3rd do. ... „	50	do.
„ 4th do. ... „	25	do.

The General Government, after consultation with the Revenue Inspector and the Commissioner of A'bkári, shall classify the taverns taking as a basis for the classification the importance and density of the population and the financial resources of the locality to be served by these taverns.

Note 1.—The licensees referred to in Article 5 may obtain, on payment of the tavern fees, a license to sell the liquor alluded to in Article 4 (sic) either in the locality where their depôt is situated, or at any other place.

Note 2.—The number of taverns may be as many as the number of applicants. The said taverns shall be numbered by the Fiscal establishment and established in prescribed places after the licenses shall have been granted by the Revenue Inspector and approved by the Chief Fiscal.

Note 3.—If, besides the taverns referred to in the foregoing note, existing in localities where fairs are held, other taverns are desired to be established, temporarily, in the same localities during the fair only, a fee of Rs. 8 shall be paid for the licenses for such taverns and these licenses will also have to be approved by the Chief Fiscal.

Note 4.—Spirits for the supply of taverns referred to in the foregoing notes shall only be obtained from the depôts referred to in Article 4, or from the distilleries referred to in Articles 6 and 7.

Note 5.—Spirits sold in licensed taverns in quantities exceeding 1 Imperial gallon shall be covered by a pass from the seller.

Note 6.—Country liquor, remaining in stock at the central distilleries in Goa territory at the time this Decree comes into force, shall not be removed therefrom to the licensed taverns, or to depôts licensed in accordance with the new system, unless payment shall have been made of the still-head duty prescribed for the same under the conditions regarding the farm of country liquor shops for the current year 1892.

Article 7.—Government will supply the supervising and guarding establishment, stationery, lights and other necessary articles for their use for thirty official distilleries in Goa territory wherein spirits from the juice of the caju fruit may be manufactured. These distilleries shall be in operation for three months, or ninety days, in each year at the proper season.

Note 1.—The cost of enclosures for the said distilleries, sheds for the accommodation of the guarding establishment and for storing the distilled spirits and all utensils connected with the distillation of spirits shall be borne by the distillers.
