SCHEDULE B.

(SEE SECTION 11).

Form of Police officer's Certificate of office.

A. B. has been appointed to the Police of the district of and is vested with the powers, functions and privileges of a Police officer under the Bombay District Police Act, 1888.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The administration of the District Police of this presidency has been hitherto vested, subject to the superintendence and control of Government, in the Commissioners of divisions. Since the year 1885, an Inspector General of Police has been appointed, whose position and powers were provisionally determined by orders of Government. The experience since gained has enabled Government to arrive at clear views of the proper place of the Inspector General in the Police system. It has become necessary to give legislative definition to his authority and functions and in settling these to review and re-define the relations to the Police system of the Commissioners and District Magistrates. The constitution and working of the Police Forces established in other provinces of India, chiefly under the provisions of Act V of 1861, have been carefully considered as a source of improvement for the Bombay system and such provisions as could be beneficially adopted have been introduced into the present Bill in such modified forms as were necessary in order to reduce them to harmony with the general system. It has been thought desirable, while giving the Inspector General full control over the discipline and mechanism of the force, to maintain and emphasize the authority of the Magistrate of the District as one in whom a certain extent centre both the magisterial and the executive local powers, and to confer a corresponding authority on each Commissioner within the area under his administrative control.

2. This Bill is introduced for this purpose, and the opportunity has been taken of re-arranging the provisions of the Police law, of revising them with a view to the conditions of the present time and of introducing amongst them some new enactments suggested by the deficiencies of the present law.

Whenever extended authority has been given to the magistracy or the police for the purpose of preserving order and maintaining the general comfort of the public careful precautions have been taken to prevent abuse of the powers thus confirmed. Some novel sections have been introduced for the purpose of securing gentleness and humanity on the part of the Police in the discharge of their necessarily harsh and invidious duties.

3. The Act will not in the first instance extend to Sind or to Aden and its dependencies. But power is reserved to Government to extend to these places either the whole Act or such portions of it as shall seem appropriate. Several of the provisions of the Bill have a possible utility independent of the others and may be brought into operation, when the introduction of the Act as a whole might be premature or inadvisable.

11th December 1889.
