No. 187.—The following rules made by the Chief Customs authority under Section 100 of the Sea Customs Act VIII of 1878 in supersession of those notified under No. 5014, dated 8th October 1895, are published for general information:—

Rules for the reducing in strength of spirit in a Bonded Warehouse by the addition of water and the bottling of such spirit when intended for export to a foreign port or for use as stores on board a vessel proceeding to a foreign port.

1. The importer or owner of any spirit in a Bonded Warehouse who desires for the purpose of exportation to a foreign port, or for its use as stores on board a vessel proceeding to a foreign port, to reduce the strength of the same by the addition of water, or to bottle the spirit after it has been so reduced in strength, should make an application to the Collector stating the number of the bond under which the spirit has been warehoused and the marks and numbers on the casks or vessels containing the spirit to be reduced, or to be reduced and bottled, as the case may be. The application should in other respects be in such form and contain such particulars as the Collector may direct. The strength of the spirit may be reduced as desired by the exporter, provided not less than the whole contents of a cask or other vessel shall be reduced to a uniform strength or reduced and bottled at one operation.

2. The whole operation of reducing the strength of spirits in bond, or of bottling spirits, shall be conducted in the presence of a Customs Gauger, for whose services will be charged a fee of Rs. 5 per day or for any portion of a day that the Gauger may be employed in watching the operation.

3. Before the operation of reducing the strength is commenced, the Gauger should re-gauge the casks or vessels containing the spirits to ascertain whether any duty is recoverable on any deficiency in excess of the allowance prescribed by Section 116 of the Sea Customs Act. The strength of the spirit should also be ascertained before its admixture with water.

4. The water added to the spirit should be thoroughly mixed with it, and the admixture allowed to stand for two days, after which the casks or vessels holding the admixture should be re-gauged and the strength ascertained. The admixture may be coloured with a colouring of burnt sugar only, which shall be of such a description as will not obscure the strength.

5. All bottles containing spirit bottled in a Bonded Warehouse shall bear labels correctly showing the description of the spirit bottled, and that the spirit was bottled in Bombay by the bottler under his full and correct name.

6. The bottles used for bottling spirit bottled in a Bonded Warehouse shall for each transaction and as far as practicable be of one uniform size.

7. The labels or seals placed on casks or vessels containing spirit which has been reduced in strength in a Bonded Warehouse, or on bottles of spirits which have been bottled in a Bonded Warehouse, shall not describe the spirits as reduced in strength or bottled under Customs or official supervision, or misdescribe the spirit in any manner. Such casks, vessels or bottles may, however, be labelled or sealed as "reduced in strength in the Customs Bonded Warehouse at Bombay" or "bottled in the Customs Bonded Warehouse at Bombay" as the case may be, or "reduced in strength" or "bottled in Bond at Bombay."

8. The Gauger shall on completion of the operation report in writing to his official superior full particulars of the re-gauge and strength of the spirit before its admixture with water, the gauge and strength of the spirit after admixture, the number of casks, vessels or bottles filled, details as to the labels or seals attached to the casks, vessels or bottles, and the marks and numbers of the packages into which the bottles have been packed.

Rules for the bottling of spirit in a Bonded Warehouse when intended for home consumption.

1. No importer or owner of spirit in a Bonded Warehouse shall be permitted to reduce the strength or to colour such spirit when it is intended for home consumption.

2. The importer or owner of any spirit in a Bonded Warehouse who desires to bottle the same for home consumption should make an application to the Collector stating the number of the bond under which the spirit has been warehoused, and the marks and numbers on the casks or vessels containing the spirit to be bottled. The application should in other respects be in such form and contain such particulars as the Collector may direct.

3. Permission to bottle spirit for home consumption will be granted, provided not less than the whole contents of a cask or other vessel shall be bottled at one operation in the presence of a Customs Gauger for whose services will be charged a fee of Rs. 5 per day or any portion of a day the Gauger may be employed in watching the operation.

4. Before bottling, the Gauger should re-gauge the casks or vessels containing the spirit to ascertain whether any duty is recoverable on any deficiency in excess of the allowance prescribed by Section 116 of the Sea Customs Act. The strength of the spirit should also be ascertained.

5. All bottles containing spirit bottled in a Bonded Warehouse for home consumption shall bear labels correctly showing the description of the spirit bottled, and that the spirit was bottled in Bombay by the bottler under his full name as shown in his Excise License.

6. The bottles used for bottling spirit bottled in a Bonded Warehouse shall for each transaction and as far as practicable be of one uniform size.

7. The labels or seals placed on bottles of spirits which have been bottled in a Bonded Warehouse shall not describe the spirits as bottled under Customs or official supervision, or misdescribe the spirit in any manner. Such bottles may however be labelled or sealed as "bottled in the Customs Bonded Warehouse at Bombay" or "bottled in Bond at Bombay."

8. The Gauger shall on completion of the operation report in writing to his official superior full particulars of the re-gauge and strength of the spirit, the gauge and number of bottles filled, details as to the labels or seals attached to the bottles and the marks and numbers of the packages into which the bottles have been packed.
