STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Certain Acts of general application passed by the chief Indian Legislature have been treated as in force in territories acquired by the British Government subsequently to their enactment, although never formally extended to such territories. Other enactments, by the same authority and of a similar character, contain in themselves no express definition of their intended local extent.

The object of this Bill is to remove all doubt as to the legal operation of enactments coming within either of these classes, throughout the whole of British India.
