Descent of Jâghirs.

7. In all cases in which Government has declared any rule of descent to prevail in any family or families of assignees of land-revenue, such rule of descent shall be held to prevail, and to have prevailed, amongst them from the time when the declaration was made, and Government shall have the power to interpret the rule where it may think proper to do so.

Law of Minority.

8. The period of legal minority for persons of all tribes and classes and of both sexes shall be the age of eighteen years, according to the British calendar.

9. A father or guardian is legally entitled to the custody of a child or ward. Any child or ward in state of pupilage who may desert its home, can be compelled by order of the Court to return. But such order will be withheld by the Court, if it should appear that the child had been subjected to any cruelty or gross maltreatment.

10. If it shall appear to the Court that the child, although a minor, is nevertheless of mature and competent understanding, he may determine for himself as to his place of abode, mode of life or religious persuasion, notwithstanding opposition on the part of the parent or guardian. And the Court will disallow the claim of such parent or guardian to custody: Provided always that the course contemplated by the child is not contrary to morality, policy, or law.

14. A contract of betrothal shall be terminated by the death of either of the betrothed parties.

15. If a man, betrothed to a woman, before his marriage with her, marries another woman, the contract of betrothal becomes voidable at the option of the betrothed woman, or of any person entitled by law to dispose of her in marriage.

16. If a contract of betrothal, legally entered into by a parent on behalf of a child is broken by such child on arriving at years of discretion, a suit for damages will lie against such parent or child.

If a marriage has been solemnized during the infancy of the parties, and has not been actually consummated, and if either of the parties, on coming of age, refuse to acknowledge the marriage, or contracts another marriage, a suit will lie against both the child who violates the contract and the parent who made it. In either case the action may be brought either by the aggrieved party, or by his or her parents, or jointly by both. Parents and guardians shall have a right to make such contracts.

17. In any case it is competent for a defendant to adduce reasons for non-fulfilment of the contract of betrothal or of marriage, such as immorality or misconduct on the part of the plaintiff, physical defect or incapacity and the like, and the Court shall decide whether these reasons are sufficient, either for mitigation of damages, or for the dismissal of the suit. In no case can the Court compel either party to complete the marriage against his or her will.

21. The rule shall be applicable whether the suit for enforcement of the contract be brought in the husband's lifetime, or after his death.

PART II.

LAWS RELATING TO LAND AND THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF LANDHOLDERS.

Law of Pre-emption.

22. The right of pre-emption shall be presumed to exist, whether recorded in the list of customs at the settlement or not in all village communities however constituted in the absence of any custom or contract to the contrary. Whenever a landholder in a village desires to sell or permanently transfer his share, he must offer it first to the community at large, or to individual co-partners, and then, if there are any tenants with a right of occupancy in such village, to such tenants. If neither the community, nor any member thereof, nor any such tenant be willing to accept the terms bonâ fide offered by the intending seller, he may sell the property on the same or higher terms to any other person. But if he have effected a sale without offering an opportunity of pre-emption, then the community, or any member of it, or any such, tenant, may bring a suit for rescinding the sale. The same rules will pertain to the foreclosure of mortgages, and to sales in execution of decrees. But the principle of pre-emption is not applicable to mortgages or other temporary transfers.

23. A suit may be brought by any person claiming a right of pre-emption, to contest the bonâ fides of the offer made by an intending seller; and if the Court decide that such offer was not made bonâ fide, and that the plaintiff has a right of pre-emption, it shall decree such a right to the plaintiff on payment of such sum as appears to be the fair market value of the property.

24. In villages, the site and ground occupied by any sharer in the estate shall be subject to the right of pre-emption as above described: if the intending seller be a non-proprietary resident, the pre-emption pertains to the landholding community.

25. If a sharer in any joint undivided property, other than land, be desirous of permanently transferring his share, the right of pre-emption shall pertain to the co-sharers.

26. If in any town or city, or any sub-division thereof, the custom of pre-emption is shown to prevail, it may be enforced in the Civil Court. The Court shall determine the preferential right between contending claimants with reference to vicinity, relationship, or any other ground on which the right of pre-emption may be legally claimed.

27. No person who has been a party to a sale, may, after such sale, withdraw the property so sold and enforce a right of pre-emption as to other property sold at such sale.

28. When property is bonâ fide transferred by way of gift, no right of pre-emption arises.

29. The observance of any special procedure as regards rights of pre-emption, other than that herein prescribed, is in no case necessary.

30. In decrees for pre-emption, the decree shall state within what time the decree-holder shall pay the purchase-money for the property, and shall direct that, in default of such payment, the decree shall be void.

31. Where a right of pre-emption has been decreed, the vendor may not refuse to sell at the price fixed by the Court.

32. In villages in which the chukdâri tenure prevails, the co-sharers in a well have a right of pre-emption as to shares in such well in preference to a general proprietor in a village having no share in the well, but merely receiving a huk zemindaree from the "chukdârs."

Responsibility of Landholders and others.

33. Every village headman, village watchman, owner or occupier of land, and every Native officer employed in the collection of revenue or rent of land on the part of Government or the Court of Wards, is bound forthwith to communicate to the nearest Magistrate, or to the officer in charge of the nearest police station, any information which he may obtain respecting—

(a) the residence of any notorious receiver or vender of stolen property at the village of which he is headman, or watchman, or in which he owns or occupies land, or collects rent or revenue, as the case may be;

(b) the resort to any place within the limits of such village of any person or persons known or reasonably suspected of belonging to a band of robbers;

(c) the commission or intention to commit suttee or other non-bailable offence at or near such village.

34. Every owner or occupier of land is responsible for the value of property stolen or plundered in any robbery or theft committed on the land which he owns or occupies:

Provided that no owner or occupier of land shall be so responsible in respect of a robbery or theft committed by night in any open road or wood, unless it be shown that he had such knowledge of the circumstances as might have been reasonably expected to enable him to prevent such theft or robbery, or that such theft or robbery was committed with his connivance.

In any case in which an owner or occupier is responsible for the value of property stolen or plundered in a robbery or theft, it shall be lawful for the person, whose property has been stolen or plundered, to sue such owner or occupier in the Civil Court for the recovery of the value of such property.

35. On the occurrence of a murder, or of any offence specified in section one hundred and thirty-eight of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the Village Watchmen of the village in which such offence has occurred shall, to the utmost of their ability, pursue and endeavour to apprehend the offender, and shall call on the headmen and owners or occupiers of land in the village, to oppose and seize such offender, or to pursue him if he has fled.

36. It shall be the duty of all such headmen, owners or occupiers of land, and of the Headmen, Village Watchmen, owners or occupiers of land in any village through which the pursuit of such offender lies, to offer all the assistance in their power when called on to do so towards the arrest of such offender.

Any Village Watchman, Headman, owner or occupier of land, who fails to comply with the requirements of this section, shall be deemed to have committed an offence under the second part of section one hundred and eighty seven of the Indian Penal Code.

37. When an offence is committed and the tracks of the offenders are followed to a spot within the immediate vicinity of a village, the person following such tracks may call upon any Headman or Village Watchman in such village to assist in carrying on the tracks.

38. If such Headman or Watchman do not forthwith give such assistance, or if the inhabitants of such village do not afford full opportunity for search in their houses for the offenders, or if, from the circumstances of the case, there shall appear good reason to believe that the inhabitants of such village, or any of them, were conniving at the offence or at the escape of the offenders, and such offenders cannot be traced beyond the village, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate of the district to inflict a fine not exceeding rupees five hundred upon such village, to be recovered in the same manner as if it were arrears of land-revenue.

39. An appeal against all convictions under this section shall lie to the Chief Court, and they shall be reported to the Local Government.

The Magistrate may direct that the fine or any part thereof inflicted under this section may be awarded to any persons injured by such offence in compensation for such injury.

The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules as to the instalments by which, and the places at which, the revenue shall be paid, and, unless and until the Local Government shall otherwise direct, it shall be deemed to have directed that the practice now observed shall continue to be observed.

36. It is the duty of every person who has engaged to pay any portion of revenue, and, in the case of a village community, it is the duty of the headmen, to pay the same at the place, and during office hours, on the day appointed by the Local Government in that behalf.

37. Any sum not so paid thereupon becomes an arrear of land-revenue.

38. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due the Deputy Commissioner may issue a notice to pay the amount within a time stated in the notice;

or if the arrear has remained unpaid for ten days after it became due, whether any notice has been issued or not, may order any such person or his surety to be arrested and conveyed to the Deputy Commissioner's head quarters, there to be kept under personal restraint in the land-revenue office of the district for ten days from the time of his arrival;

or order the distraint and sale of the moveable property of any such person, with the exception of instruments of husbandry, cattle actually employed in agriculture, and the tools of artisans.

(2) arrest and detention;

(3) imprisonment in Civil gaol;

(4) distraint and sale of moveables.

39. 40. If any such process as is mentioned in section thirty-eight is taken against any person, such person may pay the amount claimed or any part thereof under protest, and, upon such payment, such process shall be withdrawn, and the party against whom it was issued may sue the Government in any Civil Court for the amount so claimed.

41. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Deputy Commissioner of the District may in addition to the processes specified in section thirty-eight, or any two or more of them, cause the land in respect of which the arrear has become due to be attached and taken under the direct management of any agent whom he may appoint for that purpose. The agent so appointed shall stand for all purposes in the position of the person on account of whose default the land was attached, and shall be bound by all the engagements or other relations which existed between him and any subordinate proprietors or tenants with rights of occupancy, and shall be entitled to manage the land to the exclusion of the person whose interest therein has been attached, until the arrears of land-revenue due therefrom have been satisfied, or until the Deputy Commissioner of the district directs him to restore the person whose interest has been attached to the management thereof.

42. When any arrear of land-revenue has accrued and remains unpaid for more than one month, the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, cause to be published, within the village or upon the land in respect of which such arrear is due, a notification that, unless the arrear is paid within fifteen days from the date of the notice, the settlement made in respect of the land will be cancelled, and all contracts made between any superior proprietor and any subordinate proprietor thereof, and all occupancy rights of all tenants thereof, however they may have accrued, will be suspended for a term to be specified in the notification, not exceeding fifteen years.

43. If the arrear of land-revenue due in respect of the land is not paid within fifteen days from the date of the notification, the settlement therein mentioned shall be cancelled, and the contracts between the superior and subordinate proprietors, and the rights of the subordinate proprietors, shall be suspended for the term mentioned in the notification; and the Deputy Commissioner, with the previous consent of the Financial Commissioner, may either appoint an agent to manage the land or may let the land in farm to any person who may be willing to accept the same, and upon any terms which he may think fit, and the agent or farmer thereof may, during the terms specified in the notification, either occupy the land himself or sub-let the same to the persons who before the expiration of the fifteen days' notice, had occupancy rights therein, or who held the same as tenants-at-will, or to such other persons, on such terms as he may think proper.

44. Whenever any person is dispossessed of any beneficial interest in any land under section forty-one or section forty-three, he shall be entitled to an allowance in respect thereof such as is provided in section thirty-one.

46. If an arrear of land-revenue has accrued in respect of the share of any member of a village community, the Deputy Commissioner may call upon the other co-sharers to pay the arrear and to accept a transfer of the share of the defaulting co-sharer, either permanently or for a term of years not exceeding fifteen, or until the arrear is repaid.

47. If the share is transferred until the arrear is repaid, and if the arrear is not repaid within twelve years, the members of the village community, to whom the share is transferred, may apply to the Deputy Commissioner to publish a notification that, if the arrear is not paid within one year from the date thereof, the transfer will become absolute, and the Deputy Commissioner shall publish such notification accordingly; and, if the arrear is not paid before the expiration of one year from the date of the notification, the transfer shall become absolute accordingly.

48. Any member of a village community, in respect of one of the shares in which an arrear of revenue accrues, may tender payment of such arrear or may offer to pay such arrear by instalments, and, if such tender be made, or if the Deputy Commissioner considers such offer satisfactory, the Deputy Commissioner shall transfer the share of the defaulting co-sharers to such other co-sharer in either of the manners specified in section forty-three, and subject to the provision of section forty-four. If more co-sharers than one make such tender or offer, the one who is most nearly related to the defaulter, or who, in case of sale, would have a right of pre-emption, shall be preferred.

49. The procedure prescribed in sections forty-three, forty-four and forty-five shall not affect the joint and several liability of the members of the village community, or prevent the issue against them, of any of the other processes hereinbefore prescribed for the recovery of arrears of land-revenue which have accrued due from them or any of them.

50. When an arrear of revenue cannot be recovered by any of the processes hereinbefore described against the person or moveable property of the defaulter, or against the land in respect of which the arrear has accrued, the Deputy Commissioner may, with the previous sanction of the Financial Commissioner, order the attachment under section forty-one, of any beneficial interest which the person liable for the arrear may be entitled to in any other land, and may keep such land under attachment till the arrear is satisfied.

51. No attachment or letting to farm under this Act shall, as against the Government, be called in question in any Civil Court whatever.

CHAPTER VI.

68. Before such re-sale, a notification, similar to the one mentioned in section fifty-nine, shall be issued, but it shall not issue till three clear days after the default.

69. If, upon re-sale of the land, the price ultimately received is less than the price offered by the defaulting bidder, the difference shall be regarded as an arrear of land-revenue due from him, and may be recovered as such; and if more bidders than one make default, they shall be jointly and severally liable to the extent of their respective bids for such difference, and the amount ultimately recovered shall be credited to the person in respect of whose default the land was sold.

70. Whenever a deposit is forfeited, the defaulting proprietor of the land may pay or tender payment of the arrear for which the land was exposed to sale, and such payment or tender shall prevent any re-sale.

71. Any person whose interest in land has been sold by auction may, within fifteen days from the sale, appeal to the Commissioner of the Division in which the sale is held, and the Commissioner may, if he considers that the sale has been illegally conducted, annul the sale, or, if he thinks that the sale ought to be annulled on any other ground, recommend the Local Government to annul it, and the Local Government may do so if it thinks proper. If the sale is annulled, the deposit shall be returned to the purchaser with interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum from the time when the deposit was made.

72. If the purchase-money has been paid, and if no appeal has been made, or if an appeal has been brought and dismissed, the sale shall become final on the thirtieth day from the date thereof. If an appeal against the sale is pending on that day, the sale shall not become final till the day on which the appeal is dismissed.

73. No sale shall be set aside on any of the following grounds:—

(1) that a tender of the arrear was made after office hours on the last day specified in the second notification;

(2) that the defaulter had any claim against the Government;

(3) that the revenue due from the defaulter had been remitted, unless the Local Government admits it;

(4) that money belonging to the defaulter and sufficient to satisfy the whole or any part of the arrear was in any Government treasury, unless the defaulter had an exclusive and undisputed property therein, and unless, after application by the defaulter within the time specified in the notification that such money shall be applied to the satisfaction of the arrear, the Deputy Commissioner neglected or refused upon insufficient grounds so to apply it;

(5) that the land sold does not belong to the defaulter.

74. No such sale as aforesaid shall be set aside or annulled by any Civil Court, except on the ground that the land sold was not the land on which the arrear of revenue in respect of which it was sold was due, or on account of a breach of the rules hereinbefore contained; but any person aggrieved by any act or omission of any public officer in reference to any such sale, may sue such officer or the Government therefor.

75. When the sale becomes final, the Deputy Commissioner of the district shall give the purchaser a certificate of title in the following form:—

"I certify that A. B. has purchased at public auction under the Panjáb Land-Revenue Act, 1871, and that his purchase took effect on the day of " (being the date of the day after that fixed for the last day of payment.)—Signed by the Deputy Commissioner of the district.

The said certificate may be produced in any Court of civil judicature as evidence of the matters stated therein, and the Court shall presume the genuineness of every document purporting to be such a certificate.

76. The Deputy Commissioner of the district shall publish a notification of the transfer of the property of the said land to the purchaser.

77. The purchase-money shall be applied as follows:—

(1) to the payment of the arrear due on the latest day of payment;

(2) to the payment of any other arrear of land revenue due by the same person;

(3) the surplus shall be paid to the late proprietor, or, if the land were held in shares, then to the co-sharers collectively or according to the amount of their respective interests at the discretion of the Deputy Commissioner.

78. The surplus shall not be payable to any creditor of the late proprietor on his demand, and shall not be retained in the land-revenue treasury, except under precept of a Court of civil judicature, and in satisfaction of a decree of such Court; and whenever the surplus of purchase-money has been in any such case paid to the creditors of the proprietor under a precept of a Court of civil judicature, and a decree annulling the sale is afterwards passed, the proprietor shall not be restored to possession, until the amount so paid be returned by him with interest.

No Court shall entertain any suit to oust the certified purchaser on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of any person other than the certified purchaser, though by agreement the name of the certified purchaser was used.

79. The person named in the certificate of title as purchaser shall be liable for all instalments of land-revenue which may fall due subsequently to the latest date of payment aforesaid.

80. When a sale is reversed by a decree of a Civil Court of judicature, the purchase-money shall be refunded with interest at five per cent. per annum.

81. When any Court by a precept issued in that behalf directs any Revenue Officer to execute decrees of Court. Revenue Officer to issue against any land for the satisfaction of any judgment or decree any of the processes hereinbefore specified for the collection of arrears of land-revenue, such Revenue Officer shall issue such process accordingly, according to the exigency of such precept, and shall report the execution thereof to such Court.

82. Commissioners may exercise all the powers hereinbefore mentioned for the recovery of land-revenue and for the recovery of any other revenue due from any person to the Government.

CHAPTER VII.

POWER TO LOCAL GOVERNMENT TO MAKE RULES.

83. The Local Government may from time to time, make rules not inconsistent with this Act, for the purpose of carrying it into effect, and such rules, as well as rules on the matters hereinbefore specially referred to, shall have the force of law if the following conditions are fulfilled, but not otherwise:—

(1) if the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council is obtained to such rules;

(2) if they are published in the Gazette as rules having the force of law.

The Local Government may at any time alter or cancel any such rules.

84. All rules having the force of law made under this Act shall, with the previous sanction of the Government of India, be re-published every year in the month of June, and upon such re-publication, all such rules shall be arranged in the order of their subject-matter, and all such alterations or amendments as may have been made in the course of the preceding year, or may have become necessary or advisable, shall be embodied therewith, and upon such re-publication all previous rules shall be repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to express in a single enactment and in unambiguous language the various rules and orders having the force of law by which the proceedings of Revenue and Settlement Officials in the Panjáb are at present governed; to prescribe with distinctness the course of procedure which is to be followed in the assessment of revenue, and in the compilation and correction of the record of rights; and to define precisely the effects of the decisions passed and facts recorded by officers in the course of a settlement.

No express law on these subjects has ever been passed for the Panjáb, and the Regulations by which Settlement Officers were originally instructed to guide their proceedings are couched in language which is in some cases inappropriate to the peculiar circumstances of land tenure in the Province, in others vague, obsolete, or otherwise inappropriate.
